Is the effort being made more or less, by every religiously disposed person, and even many whose reform does not make more than a claim to morality; are all trying to be good. But how few of those who are trying to be good are trying in the right way, and of the few who try aright, only a part are trying with sufficient energy to be successful hence no doubt the very small percentage of persons in each community who are actually becoming better in their lives. Yet it is not because many do not wish to be good, but because they do not seek in the right way after that reform or change, that builds upon the solid foundation of a thorough renewal of the heart in Christ Jesus.

FROM MANDO.—Strange enough, the rumor of War, in fact our correspondent felt sure we should publish a communication from his pen on the subject, as he thinks it is a serious and reliable rumor that he has heard, of Francis Caulker, and we believe, he says Franklin Caulker also again sending to the interior for War. But unfortunately for the truth of the rumor, yet fortunately the country, the circumstances are all against the possibility of such a report. Of other matters in that quarter there seems no strange thing to note. Planting has continued, and most people expect to reap something by and by. Prospects for trade are very good we are told in the Themdale.'

AGRICULTURE—PLANTING.

Mr. Editor,—I am coming again with a word or two on the above, first to call the attention of those engaged in cultivation, to their fields; what they have planted, or seeded as I would say, has now began to shoot out of the ground at least, and some early seed plantings are well on the way, part of which will need to be transplanted, during the month of June which is now at the door. Others are already in their places, but will need to be examined for insects that may destroy them if they are neglected. Of course I scarcely need insinuate that all crops and ground by planting and transplanting will need much cleaning to keep the grass and weeds in proper check; for all will be able to see this for themselves, and if they would escaped, must attend to it in time.

As June is at hand, and I believe it is generally admitted, to be the best month for planting or transplanting coffee and other plants, it would be well for all to seize upon the present opportunity to get out as many plants and trees as possible in order to secure the best results. It may not be out of place, for me to state here that from some experience, I am led to believe that coffee transplanted in June thrives better, comes to bearing sooner, yields more and better berries, than that which is planted in any other month. For this and other reasons I would urge June planting especially for coffee.—More again. J. ALBERT.

FALSEHOOD and DECEPTION

Are two prevailing evils in the land today among nearly all classes; for it is indeed so common a thing for men to make promises and engagements, which it appears that from the very time of making them they never thought of fulfilling, that scarcely any one, seems to consider that breaking of an engagement or promise involves blood on the part of the one who makes the engagement. Many business men only regard a certain class of the promises they make as binding; so others not of that class are broken without even a thought of any obligation. Deception easily creeps into practice where such laxity prevails, and thus no doubt it is that so much of it is also prevailing, among, what ought to be, at least the better classes. Of course there is, as every one knows a very large class of persons in our community who seem to have no regard for the truth indeed some seem to love the opposite, such, one can only believe when he knows from other source that they are speaking the truth. We know that this is a sad picture of the character of any community, but we feel sure that facts will bear us out. Deception among those who can so easily deviate from the truth is very readily practiced. So common is it for one person to deceive another, that very few persons in this part of Africa have confidence, even in those they regard as friends. Of course it may be found that want of confidence prevails more largely among Africans, but it will also be found to a large extent among foreigners too, yet in whatever class it may be traced to falsehood and deception, that is far too common among men of all creeds and from which there should be a speedy reform. This reform too can be effected, if only a little forethought is exercised by hundreds of men and women who are now thoughtlessly deceiving their fellows without the least desire to do so. And a sure remedy for the whole evil, is to "let every man speak the truth with his neighbour;" and every one be open and frank in their intercourse with their fellows.

TRAINING OR INDUSTRIAL SCHOOLS

Are the demand of the present, in Africa both in and out of the Colonies yet more especially so within and along the borders of the Colonies where as a result of several circumstances there is nearly always a large dependent class of persons, many of whom are quite able to earn a living, but in many instances, they have recently escaped from slavery, with perhaps the absurd notion, that freedom means to sit down quietly and do nothing. Such persons wherever found without employment, ought to be taken by the authorities & placed under training in Schools for that purpose. Of course we suppose the objection to this at present is that there are few or no schools of the kind, now in operation and that the Government has not the means to establish such at present. But in our opinion by a little consideration a number of the boarding schools of the present day might be easily changed into such. Trading, Industrious supply by changing the nature of their work so as to embrace some of the more important trades, as carpentry, cabinet making, Masonry, Blacksmithing &c. of course some regard to the on the ground that these trades are overdone now, but surely not more so than that of clerks, teachers, preachers &c. for which nearly all these higher schools are now preparing young men, and again a little industrial exercise would be good for the health. Female institutions would need to revise their present courses of instruction, so as to get in a larger percentage of the useful, leaving off if need be, a little of the ornamental, and thus be able to produce young women that could make themselves useful as wives and mothers for such very many of them ought to be soon after, Of course wherever practicable the agricultural or a horticultural department should be opened in connection with every training institution as are as often the land for such purposes is not always attainable, especially for the Schools already established. Then we would suggest that such open trades departments and thus improve the trades by giving as better mechanics of which there is now a great need. Besides this other and new institutions should be founded in proper places to open up good agricultural departments and also departments for training girls in the art of good housekeeping in all its various details. The new native from the interior could be used about and in these institutions in various ways until such time and that some work and form assigned to whatever department it might seem best. Ten years with such institutions in operation generally throughout the country would do more for the real good of the people, than fifty years with merely literary institutions.

Mr. Editor,—Although the Onitsha case ought to have made a lasting impression in the mind of every Sierra Leonean, yet many since then have not been disposed to follow the same track.

A boy about seven years of age or under, on the 27th inst. had his hands tightly tied to the back, back lateral ed, eyes and face swollen, was seen making his escape to the Factory of R. & R. Macaulay for safety. It was a great relief to the child at the time, but was not long in enjoying for over four hours within the Mission premises. But it is to be feared that this boy would not escape so much if they were disposed to do so. I believe, that the boy would have remained under such inhuman treatment. However the agent in charge of the Factory, spared no time to cut the twine with which the hands of the boy were tied, ordered him to be washed, fed, and clothed.

Such is the state of things perpetrated here, and unless a remedy be found, something worse will follow.

Thanking you for space occupied.

Yours,—GEORGIUS.

Mocolo,

May 28, '89.

HOUSE CHRISTENING.

Mr. Editor,—As I happened to pass by chance off to Domonkoh yesterday morning, I met a girl with a letter in her hand, who presented it to me, (as it was intended for me). On my perusing it, I found that it was an invitation to the christening of the new residence of a Mr. John.

At 7 p.m. precisely, I was present at the meeting. There were present there Rs W. D. Pasha, E. T. Collier and family, J. A. Cole and wife, E. W. Parkinson, A. W. Elliott, I. Peters, Mrs. W. S. D. Pratt, Mrs. M. E. Betts, and Mrs. E. C. Davies and Taylor and others. Mr. Pasha lead in singing, followed by Mr. E. T. Collier with prayer. Mr. J. V. Pratt who occupied the chair at the Hermonium did well in the music.

After singing and prayer, we were all attended with tea, cakes, &c. About an hour also, the gathering was satisfied as also the Bandmen who presented themselves.—After the dedication of the new residence, dancing commenced at 8 p.m., and the musician and bandmen attended the same. The evening for the occasion was well prepared and attended by Mr. and Mrs. W. A. John. The place was illuminated right round the four corners of the house. Oh! it was a pleasant scene Mr. Editor, and I would be very glad that others should copy their example is not to be extravagant, for "economy is no disgrace." I wish the family peace and happiness here on earth and in the world to come eternal glory.—Thanking you for space occupied.

Yours NATHANIEL C.

SCHOOL INSPECTORS' VISIT.

Rev. M. Sunter Govt. Inspector of Schools, as we understand, together with Sub-Inspector M. J. Mark, arrived in this place on the 14th inst on an inspectorial tour of the Schools under the charge of the various Teachers, but, except from the St. Matthew's Church School, we have had no tidings; however from that school, which is under the charge of Mr. C. S. Brown jur. we hear of good success. Of the other schools we cannot speak for want of reports. This we think is rather unfortunate but under the circumstances we cannot remedy it. We regret very much that through some misfortune we did not have the opportunity of an interview with Rev. Mr. Sunter, altho' we have been informed that he wished to see the writer, and called for that purpose, but was told that he could not see him, this was a mistake of some one, as the writer would have been too glad to have seen the Rev gentleman, altho' he was ill, at the time of his visit to this place. It is to be hoped that the Schools here and elsewhere under the care of Govt Inspection are gradually improving in all respects; and the Inspectors reports while criticising the evils, will also suggest the good, or better method of practice in the Schools. It would also be prudent in Teachers rather to study more how to improve their schools, and form Associations for the discussion of better methods of school management; than to oppose the Inspector and criticise their remarks, in a word, let both sides act to be more useful to the communities which they serve.

NEWSITEMS.

May 4.—s. s. Formoso from Freetown, with Messrs C. J. Cole, J. W. Cole, A Haffner, Mrs Bidwell Coker, and others.

16.—s. s. Mandingue and Ship Nelle for France with Messrs Mosson & Victor Roux were passengers per the Mandingue.

19.—s. s. Formoso for Freetown with Mr. C. W. Betts, Rev. R. C. Taylor, and brother, 22.—s. s. Formoso from Freetown with Mrs Rev. J. A. Evans and family and others.

25.—s. s. Formoso for Freetown with Mr, T. E. Macfoy, Mrs Davies and others.

Died.—Mr. Enoch B. Cole we believe in the rivers, on the 29th instant or thereabout his remains were brought to this place and interred on the 31st inst. Mr. Cole's death strikes the community as rather sudden, and should make the impression upon all, that man should be always ready.

School Examination and Inspection.—Professor D F. Wilberforce, Superintendent of the U. B. C. Schools, expects to examine their Schools on this District as follows, Viz:—

Mando,	June	10th
Good Hope,	„	12th
Danville	„	14th
Komconany,	„	17th
Avery,	„	18th

Dear Sir,—Will you kindly publish in your next issue the enclosed stanzas which I have coined from the letters composing Her Majesty's name complementary to her seventieth birthday? I am, yours truly

C. S BROWN Junr.

HER MAJESTY'S 70TH BIRTHDAY

May 24th 1889.

Victoria, Queen and Mother,
In England's throne doth reign;
Can we most rightly render
To God our high refrain?
On this thy grandest birthday,
Now three score years and ten,
United we count thee worthy,
And all respond, Amen.

And now to thee O Father,
Let Queen Victoria sing,
Egged on by love much dearer,
Xt. Jesus came to bring.
At last when in thy Kingdom,
Peace but thy children fair,
Do meet to learn thy wisdom,
Remove from us all care.
Long may kind protected,
Tonight the toast rouse our fears,
And Jesus our Redeemer shall dry up all our tears.

Bonthe, C. S. Brown.
May 24, 1889. Schoolmaster.

The good alone, are really great, even in the world.

Ill health and consequent irregularities of staff of Printers is the cause of our being [illegible] every issue.

Don't Gossip.

Children, avoid this evil. I am pained every day at seeing the work which mischief makers do. Some one has compared this evil to pin-making. "There is sometimes some truth which I called wire. As this passes from hand to hand, one gives it a polish, another a point others make and put on the head, and at last the pin is done." The Bible speaks much against mischief-making, and I would advise you to collect all the verses in the book, bearing on this subject, and commit them to memory, and then I do not think you will ever be guilty of this sin. Remember my little friends, that you can never gather up the mischief you may do by gossip.—Pansy.

A Little Philosopher.

"Papa" said the son of Bishop Berkely, "what is the meaning of the words 'cherubim and 'seraphim' which we meet in the Holy Scriptures?" "Cherubim" replied his father, "is a Hebrew word signifying knowledge; seraphim is another word of the same language, and signifies flame. Whence it is supposed that the cherubim are beings who excel in knowledge, and that the seraphim are angels likewise who excel in loving God." "I hope, then," said the little boy, "when I die I shall be a seraph; for I would rather love God than know all things." Sel.

FOUND GOD.

A child of five years, afterwards famous in the church, was wonderfully converted. "Mother," she said, "I have found God." "Where have you him?" asked her mother. "In heaven" said the little girl in reply. Her elder sister laughed at her, and asked; "Well, Phebe, have you been to heaven?" "No." the child said, "but the kingdom of heaven has come to me." Sel.

JENNY LIND AND THE DISSIPATED MUSICIAN.

The only person I ever met who knew Jenny Lind in her childhood, was Max Bronzden, an old musician. I asked him to tell me of her, and the old man's furrowed face became radiant with a smile. "Remember her," said he; "she has been the angel of my life; the memory of her voice was my salvation. She and I were once alike poor. We were young and happy. Hand in hand we used to wander in the fields and on the hills of old Sweden.

Years passed and she became the idol of princes and kings, and from afar I worshipped her, as I would worship a star in yonder heaven. I tried to keep pace with her, but failed. I became a victim to strong drink, and with that vile passion ambition was buried. In 1849 I was passing Her Majesty's Theatre' in London. I was sober enough to recognize the clear, ringing thrill that had thrilled me in my boyhood days. I was penniless, but I determined to enter and hear that voice once more. I watched my chance. A crowd of ermine-clad men and women were passing in. I rushed into the throng, evaded the ticket agent and gained entrance. In a shadowed recess I crouched and listened. Lucia Lammermoor was the opera, and she was Lucia. I saw her appear in the first scene joyous and happy. Every part of the character she portrayed with heart-searching truth. Then came the climax of her powers, her ultimate madness—the crushing of the heart and mind which produced the death scene in the last act. For a moment there was a thrilling silence, then a tempest of applause that made the house tremble. It was then that I forgot all—forgot that I was a debased vagabond—forgot the throng and the lights—an all save that I saw the little barefoot girl of my boyhood's idolatry a queen among men. I rushed forward and cried, 'Jenny, my little Jenny!' I told you so. I said that you would rule the world with that voice. Speak to me and that you remember.' 'Put him out! put him out!' shouted the multitude.

'He is mad away with him.' A strong arm seized me and I would have been hurled out into darkness, but a sweet voice cried 'Spare him, and let me hear him. What is it, poor man?' I looked up, and like an angel of light, she stood above me. 'Forgive me madame,' I cried,

'I was passing and heard your voice. I stole my way in, it seemed that I had a right to listen. Once the birds and I were your only auditors, and yet when I told you one day that you would be great, you seemed glad at my praise, tho' I was only Max, the blacksmith's son.' Bending over me, she cried Max Bronzden, first and truest friend, stand, let this vast throng look upon you. It was he,' said she, 'who first created ambition in my heart to become great. My stage was a lichen-covered forest log and he showered upon me wild flowers that I prized more than I now prize the jewels and rare gifts that are emblem of my triumph this night.' Rise my friend,' she said to me, 'and be worthy of the trust and confidence that I will ever give you in all the future years. I have struggled and conquered all difficulties. It is not too late, Be no longer a vagabond as you say you are, but be a man worthy of my friendship.' 'I could scarcely speak," said the old man, "but hoarsely I uttered, 'With God's help I will.' The house had been silent as death, when it suddenly burst into tumultuous applause, and the curtain fell. I left that place a new man with new aspirations and courage, and in all the years since that night, nearly half a century ago, I have been a hero and a coqueror of sin. I have lived true to my words!" —Sel.

(Concluded from our last p. 3)

During eleven months of last year there were one hundred and thirtyfour persons arrested in Plainfield, one hundred and thirty of whom were arrested for drunkenness and disorderly conduct, five for liquor-selling on Sundays and without license, leaving only twenty-nine arrested on other charges. The money-cost of the poverty and crime of which the high license liquor-selling is a chief producing cause is so large as to make, even in a money point of view, the license system bad economy for the city; and to do away with the license revenue altogether would impose so slight a burden upon the taxable property as scarcely to be noticeable. The moral gain would greatly outweigh all money considerations. The demoralizing influence of these high license saloons and their accessories, among young men especially, is deplorable in the extreme

Mr J.B.Taylor

Begs to inform the PUBLIC that he now undertakes to be SLAUGHTERING at his BUSINESS PLACE, Corner of Victoria Road and Otto Street, Bonthe.

ALPHA Factory.

York Island SHERBRO

Is Now Open for TRADING

F. & A. SWANZY

GEO. LEACH

Agent-in-Charge.

TOBACCO.

Messrs. SWANZY'S renowned fragrant Crown Tobacco can be obtained at their Sherbro Factory in Hogsheads of about 1250 lbs. nett, Half-Hogsheads of about 550 lbs. nett; also their Kentucky "Bull Head" brand— in similar packages.

Tobacco in Boxes.

To meet the requirements of the UP-RIVER TRADERS, Messrs Swanzy have had both brands of their Tobaccos specially packed into Boxes containing 100 lbs. nett weight. These Boxes contain the choicest leaves and the Tobacco being most carefully pressed there is absolutely no broken or mashed Tobacco to be found therein—

The Boxes are of 1 inch wood, with hinges to the lid, which is screwed, not nailed down. Should the box be opened while in canoe and any of the Tobacco be taken out, it can be instantly detected; so that RIVER TRADERS in buying these Special Boxes, can rely upon receiving the exact weight they send for.

F. & A. SWANZY.

ALPHA FACTORY.

"I Dont Believe It.."

A little wholesome incredulity is useful in these days of wild rumor and unfounded assertion. The ability to swallow every ill report is no advantage to any one. Men are not bound to believe without evidence. If a thing is true there is plenty of time to believe it when its truthfulness can be proved. Thomas was not blamed for waiting for proof of the Savior's resurrection; his incredulity gave place to the sublimest faith, and through his doubt we have grounds for stronger confidence.

Especially is the attitude of doubt appropriate when whispers and slanders are in the air. Our friend is assailed. Shall we give credit to sneaking whispers and vague insinuations? Does not character and acquaintance weigh for something? Can we not wait and hope for better news? It is said that "at one moment in the battle of the Wilderness things looked very dark. Warren was driven back at the center, and a rush of stragglers came hurrying in toward Grant's head-quarters with news that Hancock was routed. Grant was seated on the ground whittling a stick; he simply turned the stick around and whittled the other end, and when it was again reported that Hancock had been driven, he said grimly, 'I dont believe it.' In a few moments word came directly contrary to the earlier rumor. Instead of retreating, Hancock had pushed the enemy. Then Grant looked up and said with as much enthusiasm as he often betrayed, 'Hancock's a glorious soldier.'"

Be not hasty to believe evil.
—Conservator.

Prayer is the closing of the eyes on things seen, and opening them on things unseen. It is penitence vocal, faith making its profession and love kindling to a flame. It is a heart brought to the altar, a flower opening to the benignant eye of Heaven. It is the putting off the shoes at Horeb. It is a walk to Emmaus. It is to be present in the upper chamber; to sit quietly by the Savior's side, lean the head on his bosom, and feel the beating of Immanuel's heart.—A. C. Thomas.

I have made the great discovery that all the foundations of the Bible are for faith. In that whole blessed volume there is not as much as one peg to hang a legitimate doubt upon. Legitimate did I say? There is no such thing possible in the case of an honest man who owns a New Testament. By an honest man I mean one who is willing to follow wherever the truth leads. Doubt has its root in an an unwilling heart.—Dr. D. Steele.

THE HILL OF SCIENCE.

In that season of the year when the serenity of the sky, the various fruits which cover the ground, the discoloured foliage of the trees, and all the sweet, but fading graces of inspiring autumn, open the mind to benvolence, and dispose it for contemplation, I was wandering in a beautiful and romantic country, till curiosity began to give way to weariness; and I sat me down on the fragment of a rock, overgrown with moss, where the rustling of the fallen leaves, the dashing of water, and the hum of the distant city, soothed my mind into the most perfect tranquility, and sleep insensibly stole upon me, as I was indulging the agreeable reveries which the objects around me naturally inspired.

I immediately found myself in a vast extended plain, in the middle of which arose a mountain higher than I had before any conception of. It was covered with a multitude of people, chiefly youth; many of whom pressed forwards with the liveliest expressions of ardour in their countenance, though the way was in many places steep and difficult. I observed, that those who had but just begun to climb the hill, thought themselves not far from the top; but, as they proceeded, new hills were continually rising to their view, and the summit of the highest they could before discern seemed but the foot of another, till the mountain length appeared to lose itself in the clouds. As I was gazing on these things with astonishment, my good genius suddenly appeared: "The mountain before thee," said he, "is the hill of Science. On the top is the temple of Truth, whose head is above the clouds and a veil of pure light covers her face. Observe the progress of her votaries; be silent and attentive."

I saw that the only regular approach to the mountain was by a gate, called the Gate of Languages. It was kept by a woman of pensive and thoughtful appearance, whose lips were continually moving, as though she repeated something to herself. Her name was Memory. On entering this first enclosure I was stunned with a confused murmur of jarring voices and dissonant sounds; which increased upon me to such a degree, that I was entirely confounded, and could compare the noise to nothing but the confusion of tongues at Babel.

After contemplating these things, I turned my eyes towards the top of the mountain, where the air was always pure and exhibiting, the path shaded with laurels and other evergreens, and the effulgence which beamed from the face of the goddess seemed to shed a glory round her votaries. "Happy," said I, "are they who are permitted to ascend the mountain!"—but while I was prononncing the exclamation with uncommon ardour, I saw standing beside me a form of diviner features and a more benign readiness. "Happier," said she, "are those whom Virtue conducts to the mansions of Content!" "What' said I, "does Virtue then reside in the vale,?"—"I am found," said she, "in the vale, and I illuminate the mountain; I cheer the cottager at his toil, and inspire the sage at his meditation. I mingle in the crowd of cities, and bless the hermit in his cell. I have a temple in every heart that owns my influence; and to him that wishes for me, I am already present. Science may raise you to eminence; but I alone can guide to felicity!"—While the goddess was thus speaking I stretched out my arms towards her with a vehemence which broke my slumbers. The chill dews were falling around me, and the shades of evening stretched over the landscape. I hastened homeward, and resigned the night to silence and meditation.—Sel.

A LOGICAL MAN

"Gentlemen," said a temperance lecturer, "I appear before you to-day for the purpose of urging sobriety. Man was created sober, which proves that it is his duty to remain in that condition."

"Hold on!" exclaimed an old fellow rising and addressing the speaker. "You say that man was created sober, and that it is his duty to remain in the condition!" "Yes sir." "Well you ought to embrace the entire platform. Man was created naked, and according to your belief he sould have remained so." "My hearers," said the lecturer, "I am convinced that I have not thoroughly canvassed this subject. You will please amuse yourselves while I go out and take a drink with this philosophical geuleman." Weekly News.

The Early Dawn.

"The Morning Light Is Breaking, The Darkness Disappears."

VOL. VI. BONTHE, SHERBRO, WEST AFRICA, JUNE 15, 1889. No. 11.

The "Early Dawn."

Published Semi-Monthly, At

BONTHE, SHERBRO.

Under the Auspices of the Board of Missions of the

U. B. IN CHRIST.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION

One Year by Mail,	£0	6	0
Delivered in Bonthe,	0	5	0
Half yearly by Mail,	0	3	0
Ditto. deliv'rd in Bonthe,	0	2	6

ADDRESS.—Communications to J. A. EVANS, Editor & Publisher, Bonthe Sherbro, West Africa,—

Subscriptions to be sent to Rev. J. GOMAN, Shinnyay, Mr. E. A. LEWIS, Freetown, West Africa. Rev. Wm. McKEE Dayton, Ohio, U S.A. or to the Editor.—

DIRECTORY.

Commandant. C. H. Harley Moseley

Coroner. The Commandant

Chief Clerk. M. J. W. Rosie

Interpreter. J. D. Rogers.

Bailiff. F. E. B. Bockner.

Sub Treas. & Col. Chief Clerk J. D. Macauley.

Tide Waiters. J. N. Crown, J. B. Turner, & J. J. Werburton.

Asst. Examg. Officer Sulymah Jasper Caulker.

Assistant Col. Surgeon. M. L. Jarrett, M R.C.S.

Dispenser Rowland May

Postmaster. H. E. Williams.

Inspector of Police. M. P. Betts.

Sexton. J. A. Dennis.

Overseer of Roads. A. O. Walker.

Religious Directory.

St. Matthew's Church, Victoria Road Pastor, Vacant.

Wesleyan Methodist, Lime Street Pastor, Rev, J. C. Thomas

Mendi Mission, (Congregational.) Good Hope Pastor, Rev S. Taylor

---

[From the Million.]

A REMARKABLE STORY.

Continued from our last issue,

"It was soon made known to me The Captain entered my room. I could hear indistinctly as if it were afar off, his footsteps on the deck. Then the steward also came in. I heard them consulting together, and both came to the conclusion that I was dead; that my neck was broken in the fall.

"Tell Sails to come in and take his measure. We must bury him to-morrow while fine weather lasts, I heard the Captain say, and presently the sail maker came in and measured me for the last hammock I should ever sleep in. I could not feel him, but I knew by his motions what he was doing. I will not describe how they laid me out on the cabin table and left me there, while both close by, made my shroud. Stitch, stitch, went his needle, seeming to enter my brain every time instead of the thick canvas. I cannot distinctly remember while I lay there the steward tried to close my eyes, but, thank God they flew up every time and left the poor consolation of seeing the preparations for my doom.

"At last all was finished. The canvas spread on the deck and I was laid in it. Then the sailmaker began to stitch me up. He had stitch up all but my face, when I heard him say that he had lost his knife. A rigid search was made every where, but it could not be found, so sails returned to work and all that time I was thinking in my dull way is what fools they were for not looking into my shroud for the lost knife. As I afterward learned it was the next day at noon that I was carried on deck and laid on a plank, preparatory to being shot overboard. The men one by one took a look at my face, then it was covered forever. The burial service was read by the Captain, there was a little delay, and then the plank was tilted, and I was shot into the bitter cold water of the Bight. Before I must have been the shock that brought me to my senses, for, as I sank down deeper and deeper by the shot at my feet, I felt my reason and motion return. At the same moment my right hand I released from its dread burial, grasped what I instantly knew to be a knife. Mechanically I forced the blade and ripped my canvas shroud so that the shot fell and I began to rise to the surface. In a few seconds, I suppose, altho' it seem ed years, I opened my eyes—for it is a curious fact that while I lay in a state of coma they remained open, yet when my feelings returned with the shock I closed them at once—and saw once more the light of day, which I had never expected to see again. I was an excellent swimmer, and had soon regained my breath and cast from me the can vas which impeded my movements. Then I looked around over the waters, and saw that my miraculous escape had been all for nothing. The ship lo king like a great swan, getting smaller even as I looked. There arose from my lips a frantic cry of curses against the God that had abandoned me thus, but almost instantly afterward, as if to rebuke me for my wickedness, I noticed a piece of wreckage floating towards me. Hope once more filled my breast, and I swam toward the piece of deckhouse, as it proved to be, and clambered on top threw myself on my face and wept for very wretchedness.

"Along on the side ocean, a piece of wood the only thing between me and death, dazed and weak from my last terrible experience, what else could I do but weep? Soon I began to feel an intense hunger. By the lowest calculation I must have been comatose for three days, so for time had no nourishment. The thirst must that suddenly came down upon me fed my thirst, but there was nothing to eat. I nearly went crazy as the day wore on.

"At last night fell and added the terrors of the blackness of darkness to the pangs of hunger. I could never tell the horrors of that first night. It was a wonder I was not not stark, staring mad when day broke. The second day passed like the first. Nothing to eat, something to moisten my lips, but no sail in sight. The third day broke in an angry sky and angrier sea, and I saw that before the day closed a Cape Horn gale would be raging with its attendant sleet and cold. I trembled there, for, even though I was almost dead and quite without hope, I wanted to live. By noon the sea had risen tremendously, and it was with great difficulty that I manage to keep on my raft By night fall the gale was raging fiercely, and I was expecting every moment to be engulfed in one of the terrible abysses into which my raft slipped constantly. This was the most awful night I ever spent—worse even than when I lay to all appearance dead on the cabin table of the Osprey. The living spondrift cut me to the bones. The great waves rolled their crested phosphorescent heads high above me, who, sank in a black abyss, heard the gale shrieking over head. I felt soon that I could no last much longer. Numbed and weak as I was, I clung to my refuge with energy of desperation and waited bitterly for death.

"Finally an immense wave higher than all that had gone before, raise its wild head to the skies and rolled down on me.

"My time had come. I was swept like a child from my raft and carried to the crest of the monster as I supposed, to death. But once again the hand of the Almighty was stretched out to save me. I was hurled with inconceivable violence against some thing solid as a rock. Ropes were floating all around me. I grabbed several and then swooned

"I awoke and recognised the old hospipatal of the Osprey. Then I thought my burial and subsequent adventures were all a wandering fancy and that I had never left the hospital. But I was soon undeceived. A kind face bent over me and I saw once more the features of my good captain. He would would permit me to speak all that day, but on the next I was allowed to relate my story, which I did in a weak and quavering voice, I can assure you. Then the captain told me that after having me, as they thought they had lost on their course for two days, when they encountered a heavy head gale which drove them back on their course again. They shipped a terrible sea which carried away boats and houses, forwards but it was the last effort of the gale, for after that it died away. When the wave was sufficiently clear of water to enable the men to walk there they had discovered my body entangled in the ropes lying in the lee copper. At first they thought my corpse had been washed aboard again, as had been several times done, but on lifting me up they saw unmistakable signs of life, and with great awe and wonder carried me in to the cabin. As to my comatose sleep, the captain said he had never seen anything more like death. He had doubtless if the most skilful doctors could have discovered any life in me. He was conscious my neck was broken.

"In a week or so I got around, and one day looking on in a glass, discovered to my astonishment that my hair was quite white. It was over two years before I got over my terrible experience at Cape Horn, sufficiently to go to sea again, but if he left you what you are now—a man of 60 at 25. My case was thought a very extraordinary one. Medical papers described my attack of coma, as they called it, very minutely, only quite differently from my experience."

DIFFICULTY OF TEACHING NATIVES

Especially of Mendis', Sherbros', &c when they are not boarding pupils where they have the constant supervision of a master or Matron: who will keep them about their work or play while out of the school room and compell them to prepare for school at the proper hour, and this needs to be done continually until the habit is formed in the pupil. If something of this kind is not done native children will not be regular in their attendance. Native Parents do not know enough of the benefits of School to make them attend regularly. Another difficulty arises in the matter of language. If an English speaking Teacher, teaches the pupil with difficulty understands his simplest orders, and hence the mind of he child is no doubt often dogged to a great extent to learn how to obey the teacher, rather than to understand its book. Then again if the Teacher speaks the language of the pupil, the child still has the task of learning a new language, while trying to discipher its first nature, and the teacher finds in most cases progress difficult and slow. But if on the other hand native dialects be taught then the difficulty is even greater if any high degree of culture is attempted for then very soon the teacher finds the range of literature very limited, a fact which escapes many men of letters when they advocate the learning and teaching of native dialects and languages. They forget, entirely, that these tribes have no literature, no history, and very little even of reliable tradition; and moreover the little of Tradition that can be traced among some tribes, is either so cruel on the one hand, or so commonplace on the other, as to scarcely interest any civilized mind, and would certainly lend nothing to the civilization or refined culture of any kind. That there are, or may be exceptions to these general remarks, only proves the rule, which I venture to assert will be found true among most if not all the dark tribes of the earth.

ERNEST DILLAVEN.

A FALSEHOOD is so swift footed that it scarcely possible for the truth to overtake it and crush it out of existence, until it has deceive many. This fact is forcibly illustrated in that, while every paper in our church clearly has denied the groundless report that the Daily Christian Advocate was printed on a Sunday during the General Conference, the erroneous report continues in its journey through the round of the press. The report is without any foundation in fact. The only foundation for this report was that some compositors kept on a little after twelve o'clock Saturday night. Ed.

ALPHA Factory.

York Island SHERBRO

Is Now Open for TRADING

F. & A. SWANZY

GEO. LEACH

Agent in Charge.

TOBACCO.

Messrs. SWANZY'S renowned fragrant Crown Tobacco can be obtained at their Sherbro Factory in Hogsheads of about 1000 lbs. nett, Half-Hogsheads of about 550 lbs. nett; also their Kentucky "Bull Head" brand— in similar packages.

Tobacco in Boxes.

To meet the requirements of the UP-RIVER TRADERS, Messrs Swanzy have had both brands of their Tobaccos specially packed into Boxes containing 100 lbs. nett weight. These Boxes contain the choicest leaves and the Tobacco being most carefully pressed there is absolutely no broken or crushed Tobacco to be found therein—

The Boxes are of 1 inch wood, with hinges to the lid, which is screwed, not nailed down. Should the box be opened while in canoe and any of the Tobacco be taken out, it can be instantly detected; so that RIVER TRADERS in buying these Special Boxes, can rely upon receiving the exact weight they send for.

F. & A. SWANZY.
ALPHA FACTORY.

"I Dont Believe It."

A little wholesome incredulity is useful in these days of wild rumor and unfounded assertion. The ability to swallow every ill report is no advantage to any one. Men are not bound to believe without evidence. If a thing is true there is plenty of time to believe it when its truthfulness can be proved. Thomas was not blamed for waiting for proof of the Savior's resurrection; his incredulity gave place to the sublimest faith, and through his doubt we have grounds for stronger confidence.

Especially is the attitude of doubt appropriate when whispers and slanders are in the air. Our friend is assailed. Shall we give credit to sneaking whispers and vague insinuations? Does not character and acquaintance weigh for something? Can we not wait and hope for better news? It is said that "at one moment in the battle of the Wilderness things looked very dark. Warren was driven back at the center, and a rush of stragglers came hurrying in toward Grant's head-quarters with news that Hancock was routed. Grant was seated on the ground whittling a stick; he simply turned the stick around and whittled the other end, and when it was again reported that Hancock had been driven, he said grimly, 'I dont believe it.' In a few moments word came directly contrary to the earlier rumor. Instead of retreating, Hancock had pushed the enemy. Then Grant looked up and said with as much enthusiasm as he often betrayed, 'Hancock's a glorious soldier.'" is the closing of the eyes on things seen, and opening them on things unseen. It is penitence vocal, faith making its profession and love kindling to a flame. It is a heart brought to the altar, a flower opening to the benignant eye of Heaven. It is the putting off the shoes at Horeb. It is a walk to Emmaus. It is to be present in the upper chamber; to sit quietly by the Savior's side, lean the head on his bosom, and feel the beating of Immanuel's heart.—A. C. Thomas.

Be not hasty to believe evil —Conservator.

Prayer

I have made the great discovery that all the foundations of the Bible are for faith. In that whole blessed volume there is not as much as one peg to hang a legitimate doubt upon. Legitimate did I say? There is no such thing possible in the case of's an honest man who owns a New Testament. By an honest man I mean one who is willing to follow wherever the truth leads. Doubt has its root in an an unwilling heart.—Dr. D. Steele.

THE HILL OF SCIENCE.

In that season of the year when the serenity of the sky, the various fruits which cover the ground, the discoloured foliage of the trees, and all the sweet, but fading graces of inspiring autumn, open the mind to benvolence, and dispose it for contemplation, I was wandering in a beautiful and romantic country, till curiosity began to give way to weariness; and I sat me down on the fragment of a rock, overgrown with moss, where the rustling of the falien leaves, the dashing of water, and the hum of the distant city, soothed my mind into the most perfect tranquility, and sleep insensibly stole upon me, as I was indulging the agreeable reveries which the objects around me naturally inspired.

I immediately found myself in a vast extended plain, in the middle of which arose a mountain higher than I had before any conception of. It was covered with a multitude of people, chiefly youth; many of whom pressed forwards with the liveliest expressions of ardour in their countenance, though the way was in many places steep and difficult. I observed, that those who had but just begun to climb the hill, thought themselves not far from the top; but, as they proceeded, new hills were continually rising to their view, and the summit of the highest they could before discern seemed but the foot of another, till the mountain at length appeared to lose itself in the clouds. As I was gazing on these things with astonishment, my good genius suddenly appeared: "The mountain before thee," said he, "is the hill of Science. On the top is the temple of Truth, whose head is above the clouds, and a veil of pure light covers her face. Observe the progress of her votaries; be silent and attentive."

I saw that the only regular approach to the mountain was by a gate, called the Gate of Languages. It was kept by a woman of pensive and thoughtful appearance, whose lips were continually moving, as though she repeated something to herself. Her name was Memory. On entering this first enclosure I was stunned with a confused murmur of jarring voices and dissonant sounds, which increased upon me to such a degree, that I was entirely confounded, and could compare the noise to nothing but the confusion of tongues at Babel.

After contemplating these things, I turned my eyes towards the top of the mountain, where the air was always pure and exhibitting, the path shaded with laurels and other evergreens, and the effulgence which beamed from the face of the goddess seemed to shed a glory round her votaries. "Happy," said I, "are they who are permitted to ascend the mountain!"—but while I was prononncing the exclamation with uncommon ardour, I saw standing beside me a form of diviner features and a more benign readiness. "Happier," said she, "are those whom Virtue conducts to the mansions of Content!" "What" said I, "does Virtue then reside in the vale?"—"I am found," said she, "in the vale, and I illuminate the mountain: I cheer the cottager at his toil, and inspire the sage at his meditation. I mingle in the crowd of cities, and bless the hermit in his cell. I have a temple in every heart that owns my influence; and to him that wishes for me, I am already present. Science may raise you to eminence; but I alone can guide to felicity!"—While the goddess was thus speaking I stretched out my arms towards her with a vehemence which broke my slumbers. The chill dews were falling around me, and the shades of evening stretched over the landscape. I hastened homeward, and resigned the night to silence and meditation.—Sel.

A LOGICAL MAN

"Gentlemen," said a temperance lecturer, "I appear before you to-day for the purpose of urging sobriety. Man was created sober, which proves that it is his duty to remain in that condition." "Hold on!" exclaimed an old fellow rising and addressing the speaker. "You say that man was created sober, and that it is his duty to remain in the condition!" "Yes sir." "Well you ought to embrace the entire platform. Man was created naked, and according to your belief he sould have remained so." "My hearers," said the lecturer, "I am convinced that I have not thoroughly canvassed this subject. You will please favure yourselves while I go out and take a drink with this philosophical gentleman." Weekly News.

The Early Dawn.

"The Morning Light Is Breaking, The Darkness Disappears."

VOL. VI. BONTHE, SHERBRO, WEST AFRICA, JUNE 15, 1889. No. 11.

The "Early Dawn."

Published Semi-Monthly, At

BONTHE, SHERBRO.

Under the Auspices of the Board of Missions of the

U. B. IN CHRIST.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION

One Year by Mail,	10 6 0
Delivered in Bonthe,	0 5 0
Half yearly by Mail,	0 3 0
Ditto. deliv'd in Bonthe,	0 2 6

Annuals.—Communications to J. A. EVANS, Editor & Publisher, Bonthe Sherbro, West Africa.—

Subscriptions to be sent to Rev. J. GOMAN, Shimway, Mr. E. A. LEWIS, Freetown, West Africa. Rev. WM. MCKEE Dayton, Ohio, U.S.A. or to the Editor.—

DIRECTORY.

Commandant.	C. H. Harley Mosses
Coroner.	The Commandant.
Chief Clerk.	M. J. W. Rogers
Interpreter.	J. D. Rogers.
Sanitn.	F. E. B. Barker.
Sub Treas. & Col Chief Clerk	J. D. Macauley.
Tide Waiters.	J. S. Crown, J. B. Turner, & J. J. Werburton.
Asst. Examg. Officer Sulymah.	Jasper Caulker.
Assistant Col. Surgeon.	M. L. Jarrett, M. R. C. S.
Dispenser	Rowland May
Postmaster.	H. B. Williams.
Inspector of Police.	M. F. Bettu.
Warder.	J. A. Dennis.
Overseer of Roads.	A. O. Walker.

Religious Directory.

St. Matthew's Church, Victoria Road
Pastor, Vacant.

Wesleyan Methodist, Lime Street
Pastor, Rev. J. C. Thomas

Mendi Mission, (Congregational.) Good Hope
Pastor, Rev. [illegible] Taylor

[From the Million.]

A REMARKABLE STORY.

Continued from our last issue.

"It was soon made known to me The Captain entered my room. I could hear indistinctly as if it were afar off, his footsteps on the deck. Then the steward also came in. I heard them consulting together, and both came to the conclusion that I was dead; that my neck was broken in the fall.

"Tell Sails to come in and take his measure. We must bury him tomorrow while fine weather lasts, I heard the Captain say, and presently the sail maker came in and measured me for the last hammock I should ever sleep in. I could not feel him, but I knew by his motions what he was doing. I will not describe how they laid me out on the cabin table and left me there, while Sails close by, made my shroud. Stitch, stitch, went his needle, seeming to enter my brain every time instead of the thick canvas. I cannot distinctly remember while I lay there the steward tried to close my eyes, but, thank God they flew up every time and left the poor consolation of seeing the preparations for my doom.

"At last all was finished. The canvas spread on the deck and I was laid in it. Then the sailmaker began to stitch me up. He had stitched up all but my face, when I heard him say that he had lost his knife. A rigid search was made every where, but it could not be found, so Sails returned to work and all that time I was thinking in my dull way what fools they were for not looking into my shroud for the lost knife. As I afterward learned it was the next day at noon that I was carried on deck and laid on a plank preparatory to being shot overboard. The men one by one took a look at my face, then it was covered forever. The burial service was read by the Captain, there was a little delay, and then the plank was tilted, and I was shot into the bitter, cold water of the Indian Ocean. It must have been the shock that brought me to my senses, for, as I sank down dragged lower by the shot at my feet, I felt my feeling and action return. At the same moment my right hand released from its dead position grasped what I instantly knew to be a knife. Mechanically I forced the blade and ripped my canvass shroud so that the shot fell and I began to rise to the surface. In a few seconds, I suppose, tho' it seemed years, I opened my eyes—for it is a curious fact that when I lay in a state of coma I by instinct closed my eyelids during my lasting retirement with the shot I closed them at once—and saw once more the light of day, which I had never expected to see again. I was an excellent swimmer, and had soon regained my breath and cast from me the rags which impeded my movements. Then I looked around over the waters, and saw that my miraculous escape had been seen, for a large ship was sailing like a great swan, getting sunnier every as I looked. There arose from my lips a frenzied curse against the God that had abandoned me thus, but almost immediately afterward, as if to rebuke me for my sin-laden, I noticed a piece of wreckage floating towards me. Hope once more filled my breast, and I swam toward the piece of clothesline, so it proved to be, and clambered on top thinex myself on my face and wept for very thankfulness.

"Alone on the wide ocean, a piece of wood the only thing between me and death, dazed and weak from my late terrible experience, what else could I do but weep? Soon I began to feel an intense hunger. By the lowest calculation I must have been exposed for three days, so for three had no nourishment. The thing most that suddenly came down upon me was my thirst, but there was nothing to eat. I nearly went crazy as the day wore on.

"At last night fell and added the terrors of the blackness of darkness to the pangs of hunger. I could never tell the horrors of that first night. It was a wonder I was not out stark, staring mad when day broke. The second day passed like the first. Nothing to eat, something to moisten my lips, but no sail in sight. The third day broke in an angry sky and angrier sea, and I saw that before the day closed a Cape Horn gale would be raging with its attendant sleet and cold. I trembled then, for, even though I was almost dead and quite without hope, I wanted to live. By noon the scathed risen tremendously, and it was with great difficulty that I manage to keep on my raft. By night fall the gale was raging fiercely, and I was expecting every moment to be engulfed in one of the terrible abysses into which my raft slipped constantly. This was the most awful night I ever spent—worse even than when I lay to all appearances dead on the cabin table of the Osprey. The living spoondrift beat me to the bones. The great waves rolled their crested phosphorescent heads high above me, who, sunk in a black abyss, heard the gale shrieking over head. I felt sure that it could not last much longer. Numbed and weak as I was, I clung to my refuge with energy of desperation and waited bitterly for death.

"Finally an immense wave higher than all that had gone before, raise its self head to the skies and rolled down on me.

"My time had come. I was swept like a child from my raft and carried on the crest of the monster as I supposed, to death. But once again the hand of the Almighty was stretched out to save me. I was hailed with unmistakable evidence against a something solid as a rock. Ropes were floating all around me. I grabbed several and then swoon ed.

"I awoke and recognized the old hospital of the Osprey. Then I thought my horrid and subsequent adventures were all a wandering fancy and that I had never left the hospital. But I was soon undeceived. A kind face beat over me and I saw once more the features of my good captain. He would pardon me my story, which I did in a weak and quivering voice, I can assure you. Then the captain told me that after burying me, as they thought they had kept on their course for two days, when they encountered a heavy head gale which drove them back on their course again. They shipped a terrible sea which carried away boats and houses, forward, but it was the best exertion of the gale, for after that it died away. When the vessel was sufficiently clear of water to enable the men to walk there they had discovered my body entangled in the rope lying in the lee copper. At first they thought my corpse had been washed aboard again, as had been several times done, but on lifting me up they saw unmistakable signs of life, and with great awe and wonder carried me in to the cabin. As to my constant sleeps, the captain said he had never seen anything more like death. He had doubted if the most skilful doctors could have discovered any life in me. He was conscious my neck was broken.

"In a week or so I got around, and one day looking on in a glass, discovered to my astonishment that my hair was quite white. It was over two years before I got over my terrible experience at Cape Horn sufficiently to go to sea again, but it has left me what you see me—a man of 60 at 25." My case was thought a very extraordinary one. Medical papers described my attack of coma, as they called it, very minutely, only quite differently from my experience."

DIFFICULTY OF TEACHING NATIVES

Especially of Mendis', Sherbros', &c when they are not boarding pupils where they have the constant supervision of a master or Matron; who will keep them about their work or play while out of the school room and compel them to prepare for school at the proper hour, and this needs to be done continually until the habit is formed in the pupil. If something of this kind is not done native children will not be regular in their attendance. Native Parents do not know enough of the benefits of School to make them attend regularly. Another difficulty arises in the matter of language; If an English speaking Teacher, teaches the pupil with difficulty understands his simplest orders, and hence the mind of he child is no doubt often engaged to a great extent to learn how to obey the teacher, rather than to understand its book. Then again if the Teacher speaks the language of the pupil, the child still has the task of learning a new language, while trying to decipher its literature, and the teacher finds in most cases, progress difficult and slow. But if on the other hand native dialects be taught then the difficulty is even greater if any high degree of culture is attempted for then very soon the teacher finds the range of literature very limited, a fact which explains many men of letters when they advocate the learning and teaching of native dialects and languages. They forget, entirely, that these tribes have no literature, no history, and very little even of reliable tradition; and moreover in little if Tradition that can be traced among some tribes, is either so cruel on the one hand, or so commonplace on the other, as to scarcely interest any civilized mind, and would certainly lend nothing to the civilization or refined culture of any mind. That there are, or may be exceptions to these general remarks, only proves the rule, which I venture to assert will be found true among most if not all the dark tribes of the earth.

ERROR DISEASED.

A FALSEHOOD is so swift footed that it scarcely possible for the truth to overtake it and crush it out of existence, until it has deceive many. This fact is forcibly illustrated in that, while every paper in our church nearly has denied the groundless report that the Daily Christian Advocate was printed on a Sunday during the General Conference, the statement report continues in its journey through the mind of the press. The report is without any foundation in fact. The only foundation for the report was that some compositors kept on a little after twelve o'clock saturday night. [illegible]

The Early Dawn.
MONTHLY. SHERBRO.

JUNE 15, 1889.

OUR WATERSIDE.

It appears has never received the attention from the Government, which, from its importance, in a place like this it ought to have received. But the time has now come when its improvement is an imperative need, in order to prevent the destruction one of our most useful thoroughfares & that has from time to time given the local authorities no little trouble & expense, to keep in repair & is of great service to the business houses along its line; which are indeed the largest in the place. Much of the damage to Heddle street, the thoroughfare above refered to, is due to the neglected condition of the frontage along the Sherbro river; which in many places is unprotected and in other places only protected by a few plumb sticks driven into the mud. Except in those places where walls have been built by mechants and others of which we confess there are too few. But it certainly is a shame to the government of Sierra Leone that derives so large a revenue from the Sherbro; that it has not done more to improve the Sherbro Harbor, and especially at a time like this when the river is actually rapidly making inroads upon one of the principal streets of this place; which is the seat of the government of the Sherbro District; and a place that is destined, with a fair opportunity to become one of the most important commercial centers on the West Coast of Africa and that too in the near future. We very well know that the how & cry of the government at Freetown is, that there is no funds, but certainly that is not the fault of Sherbro; as every one knows that this district yields quite a sufficient revenue to guarantee the expenditure of a thousaud pounds a year on public improvements while it is a fact, and realy a burning shame, that we are made to get on from year to year with the least pittance, and compelled to pay our duties the same as if our place received the proper care and attention. We now call special attention to the inroads that the river is making every year on the bank near the French Company's large boat shed and then again in front of Church Mission House; these places will become dangerous in a short time, to say nothing of the damage to Heddle Street, if something is not done. The local authorities have done their best; but a special grant of funds is now needed for this and other improvements along our river front and we do sincerely hope that the Sierra Leone government may give this matter their immediate attention.

WHAT IS TO BE DONE WITH MAKIAH!

The Question raised by a correspondent of the Sierra Leone "Weekly News" not long since, "What is to be done with Makiah!" really seems so absurd as not to be worth noticing by any one at all acquainted with the disturbances of the Sulymah District, for to such it must be evident, that Makiah was, at least, one of the principal accessories, if indeed he was not the chief among them; and certainly it was his raids that have been the most injurious to life and property, and the most frustrating to trade in the District. It was also the opinion of most men in and out of the District, who had any knowledge of affairs, that the capture and arrest of Makiah would bring about a cessation of hostilities & that nothing short of that would be effectual or give confidence to the country people or the Traders. This opinion we should remark obtained among those cognizant of the facts in the case, for a considerable while before Captain Crawford arrived on the Coast; even prior to the departure of Sir Francis De-Winton. Captain Crawford's Expedition evidently was either sent to chastise or capture Makiah man then of all phases of opinion seemed to understand that Makiah was a chief disturber of the peace and were a unit in desiring his capture. And if at all there had been any question with reference to Capt. Crawford's Expediton certainly there could not have been any question with reference to Governor Hay's last Expedition to the Kittim when for weeks every one anxiously awaited the return of His Excellency expecting him to bring down the said Makiah. These acts or movements of the authorities were open to the public for any remarks or criticisms, during all the while they were being carried out. If there was any question about the justice, or injustice of the matter, why was not it then brought forward Why wait until the Governor has broken down his health by exposure in an effort to arrest Makiah!

OUR TROUBLE.

From and since the month of January, we have been much hindered in our Office works; arising realy from the ill health of our Foreman; as it was impossible for him at times to be on duty and at other times when on duty to attend to the details of his work this naturally hindered progress, set matters wrong about the Office the result of which was late issues of our paper delay in Job work. But little did we know that all this betokened the sad end of our Foreman's earthly career which eventook place on the 10th. inst. The trouble was rendered greater of course by the failing health of W. E. GLADSTONE our best Pressman and his ultimate retirement from the Office shortly before the death of Mr. BELL, our Devil in the mean time had also disappeared from the Office; leaving us but a solitary Journeyman out of our entire force.

SUSPENDED FOR SIX MONTHS.

Mr. Editor,—Every one interested in the Sabbath qestion, cannot but give three cheers and prolonged applause to the hardworking and indefatigable catechist of St. Matthew's Church of this place, for the prompt attention given to the two sabbath breakers in connection with his charge, and the ultimate decision arrived at, which gives a heading to this article.

The fact of the case as handed to me is this; Two christian sisters, members of St. Matthew's Church Bonthe, went down the public wharf on the Lord's day and bought a canoe of cassada (the price of this article of food has risen about three times the usual price) and when they were remonstrated with for their seeming ungodliness they said they did not transgress the law of men, but the law of God, & consequently accountable to God alone. But the faithful Catechist promptly made them to know that they were likewise amenable to the Church. This is a noble example set forth by this Church for the other churches of this place to follow. If prompt attention were given by those in charge of the flock of Xt. to the Sabbath breakers in connection with their charge and those found guilty, admonished, reprored, or suspended as the case may deserve, there would be less trafficking on a major or minor scale on the Lord's day. The ministers of the Gospel are the rightful persons to deal with the question of the Sabbath by admonishing the people of God to a due observance of the Lord's day.

We need not (except within a small scale) look to the civil magistrate to enforce the observance of the law of the X'tian Sabbath; for it is divine. The right of the civil magistrate enforcing the observance of the sabbath as a religious observance is questioned. For (1) The observance respects our relation to God and not to men. 2. If this duty is within the cognizance of the civil magistrate so are others, and he must see that it is properly discharged. That is to say, if the civil magistrate has a right to take cognizance of this duty to God, he has a right to take cognizance of every other. And if he have a right to take cognizance of the duty, he must necessarily have a right to prescribe in what manner it shall be discharged, or if he see fit to forbid the observance of it altogether. So that the concessions of this right would lead to direct interference with liberty of conscience. The duty is a moral one, and to be acceptable, must be observed with the heart;—a thing that cannot be enforced. We however should expect that the magistrate would protect every individual in the right of worshipping God; and prevent such violations of the Sabbath as disturb the general public rest of the day.

The law of the Sabbath applies equally to societies and to individuals. An individual therefore is forbidden to labor on the Lord's day or employ another person to labor for him. On the groun therefore, the practice of loading steamers and cutters on the Lord's day, is highly condemnable and those christian employers who compel their employees to labour on the Lord's day are highly culpable and amenable to their Church. By their abuse of power they not only break the peace of mind enjoyable by those Christian employees, who would "be in the Spirit on the Lord's day," but they set adrift a pernicious influence among the poor natives who are employed on this day. An influence which once set adrift reaches through all time giving high license to thousands and ten thousands of natives to make free with the fourth Commaadment. The practice is not encouraged by the Merchants of Freetown, but the large and more important steamers wait over Sabbaths thereby giving the clerks and laborers the free enjoyment of the sabbath. I suppose one has sufficient to do to render a strict accoount as last for one's self to the Lord and will we voluntarily take the responsibilities of others

How hard it is for man to be equal in his ways; and to observe strictly the spirit of the Epistle of James "Prefer not the rich to the poor."

I suppose if the good catechist will deal fairly with his members, he will not stop thus far but proceed or to suspend (not for six months but for one year) that particular and principal member of his church who sets a very bad example to this community by compelling his employees to do secular work on the Lords day. I say one year suspension, for he is "by far more intelligent than the two women who have been severely dealt with, and his influence covers a wider area. If the worthy Catechist fail to perform this his important duty, his former action will be looked upon as cowardly and unfair. And the sooner the suspension be lifted, the better. And we are afraid that he will care for himself the reputation of a man of God who is partial and onesided in dealing with his members, fearing the front of men and courting their smiles.

Bonthe Yrs, X.Y.Z.
June 10th '89.

A WAY TO SETTLE SCANDAL.

DR. M. D. HODGE tells of two Christian men who "fell out." One heard that the other was talking against him, and he went to him and said: "Will you be kind enough to tell me my faults to my face that I may profit by your Christian candor and try to get rid of them?" "Yes sir replied the other, "I will do it." They went aside, and the former said: "Before you commence telling what you think wrong in me, will you please bow down with me and let us pray over it, that my eyes may be opened to see my faults as you will tell them? You lead in the prayer." It was done, and when the prayer was over the man who had sought the interview, said: Now proceed with what you have to complain of in me." But the other replied: 'After praying over it, it looks so little that it is not worth talking about. The truth is, I feel now that in going around talking against you I have been serving the devil myself, and have need that you pray for me, and forgive me the wrong I have done you."

NEWSITEMS.

Colonial Surgeon returned Dr. M. L. JARRETT our esteemed friend and assistant Colonial Surgeon, of this District; has we are pleased to note returned, from his leave of absence to England; but has not as yet resumed Duty.

The S. S. FORMOSO; Was disabled by the breaking of her Shaft; about the close of Last Month, in her voyage this way and had to be towed back to Freetown; this accident has greatly inconvenienced the Public

Mr. Rueben H. Hemmingway of the Palma Trading Company's service was in this place several days, he left for Freetown on the 7th.

The Editor of this paper, left also for Freetown on the 7th inst. Rev. R. C. Taylor will have charge of Editorial Department during the Editor's absence.

Mr. E. Edwards of Bendeo, left this place for Freetown about the 10th inst; he is proceeding to England by the s. s. "Niger" for his health.

The Launch, Palmas that bro't the Mails to this place about the 11th. inst barely escaped being Swamped at sea, we learn, in her way from Freetown.

Temperance Meetings, are we understand being held at the Mendi Mission School room in this place, and with considerable interest from time to time. The War has commenced and will be pushed, against Intemperance and Drunkeness.

The Crawford case—We learn, has assumed such importance, that the eminent Barister Samuel Lewis has been requested to return from England to defend Capt. Crawford.

Prof. D. F. Wilberforce—was in this place inspecting the U. B. Mission School on the 12th inst. and we understand that he also held a Temperance meeting in the even of the same day.

Mendi Mission School—We believe, is practicing for their Fourth of July Entertainment.

Our next Issue is forthcoming & will be out in short meanwhile we beg our readers to bear with us for the present.

DIED.

Collin G. Bell

Late Printer of the "Early Dawn," on Monday the 10th inst. at 4. a.m.

Distant friends will please accept this intimation.

The death of Mr. COLLIN GEORGE BELL late head Printer of The Early Dawn who departed this life on the morning of the 10th. Inst. after an eight days illness, would strike upon some of our readers who were personally acquanted with him rather suddenly; and upon others painfully. He had his name for a long time connected with the Shengay Mendi Mission as their head Printer, but not as their member; nor could any other Christian body in this place boast of him as their member. He was formarly connected with some of the Factories in the Bargroo River, but when trade did not pay any longer, and as he understood somewhat of Printing, he thought he should try his hand at it, and as a Printer he succeeded well. He had fairly passed the two thirds of the three score years and ten alloted us. Was not a married man, but was quiet going in his manners and had some good qualities about him, though he had his failings.

But alas! death comes to all sooner or later. How appropriate are the words of the Prophet. "Prepare to meet thy God."

To the Editor of the "EARLY DAWN"

'Twas my intention long ago, Dear Sir,
To send you my poor attempt in finec;
But I cannot remember well the matter.
Why these poor lines have not been sent at times.

On one occasion when I came to you,
A pleasant call to give as goes the phrase,
We spoke together on such a subject true
But after all I left in the maze.

I do intend by my beginning now,
From time to time to send you some few lines;
With hopes your readers not with me may vow,

When e'er it turns out that they have no Rhymes.

I Know by this I cannot dream to soar,
Above criticism's poison'd arrow's tenche,
But who at my poor lines doth wish to roar,
Depend upon it will yet laugh too much

* * * *

Hail! Dr. J. who from the North has come
You have been absent really very long
Your presence here we do congratulate,
How glad we feel I'm sure my pen can't state.

Of Doctors too at present we can boast,
For dear Wykham has not yet left the post,
On them may God the giver [His] blessings pour,
In faith to labour till they be no more.

* * * *

The scene is changed—a sad reflection this,
That Belle the famous Printer is now miss'd;
We only trust that he now rests in peace,
In that fam'd land where we have not yet reached.

Bonthe, C. S. BROWN
11th June '89

THE VOICE OF CHOLERA.

Dear Editor,

In reading over the back numbers of the "Religious Telescope" I happened to fall in with a short but interesting piece with the above heading I accordingly clip it and send it for publication as I have no doubt but that it will interest most if not all your readers.

The Church it seems cannot get along well without Croakers. At least it has not done so in the past.

"It is astonishing to see how men can look at the dark side of every thing In connection with the work of the Church would they see nothing but blackness, and can only moan for the night. Here is what the "Interior" says of these unhelpful critics.

"We have read with sadness and surprise some recent reports of speeches by good men who aspire to be leaders in Israel. They do not talk, they croak. They tell us that only two fifths of the people in this country go to Church that the common people who heard Christ gladly do not hear us ambassadors at all. They say that a large proportion of the nominal Christians whom we reckon on the Lord's side are formalists unreasoning only a name to live, that our ministers themselves a few only excepted—are men who have entered the priest's office because they could not succeed in any other calling etc. etc. This lugubrious croaking reminds us of the story of the Scotch elders or ministers who when asked of the State of religion in his Church of several hundred members shook his head and replied. There be no real Christian here but myself and Sandy and sometimes I have my doubts about Sandy, so thus out of that Church of seventy hundred members the minister is virtually the only true Christian."

This Selection bears me out in the article I sent you some time ago on Croakers though I never thought that there was a Clerical Croaker.

Yours truly,
R. Cookson Taylor.

Dr HODGE'S EXPERIENCE

As far back as I can remember, I had the habit of thanking God for every thing I received and for asking him for every thing I wanted. If I lost a book, or my play-things, I prayed that I might find it. I prayed walking along the streets, in school and out of school, whether playing or studying. I did not do this in obedience to any prescribed rule—it seemed natural. I thought of God as an ever where present being, full of kindness and love, who would not be offended if children talked to him.—Sel.

AGRICULTURE.

No time should now be lost in transplanting of plants and scyons of all kinds, and especially should attention be given to coffee planting; and care should be taken that the grain or tap-roots, are not crumpled in setting the plant in the hole. In setting colar trees, it will be found at times, that a worm or grub is attached to the old seed that adheres to the root of the plant, this gentleman should be removed, before placing the tree or scyon in the ground, otherwise he may destroy the plant. In some places white ants or bugs-bugs, are so few as to be unnoticed unless particular care is taken to look for them, and however few at first if not destroyed they will increase and destroy the plants; hence too great care can not be exercised in getting rid of these and other destructive insects. Really to farm in this country requires, that a man keep his eyes open, to see and remove the various enemies to the growth of crops.—J. Albert.

Dear Editor—allow me through your valuable journal to say a few words to the Members of Bompeh District.

Dear Brethren in Christ

Since Bro. F. M. Stuart's return from the last Annual District Meeting held at Shalloway Jan. 25th '89. I have observed him very closely and I am glad to state (so far as human conception goes) that he seems a real penitent His regular attendance at our Sabbath and weeknight services though his residence is about four or five miles from this station; his confession and vows to God in public, and his life all help to show that his repentance is not a feigned but a genuine one. This gladdens my heart and prompts me to give expression in these lines. Hoping the time is not far when he will once more be employed to take his place as the Station where he once labored faithfully—Thanking you for space occupied—Yrs. in Christ, T. M. Cole.

Mr J.B.Taylor
Begs to inform the PUBLIC that he now undertakes to be SLAUGHTERING at his BUSINESS PLACE, Corner of Victoria Road and Otto Street. Bonthe.

The Early Dawn
Printed at SHERBRO.

JUNE 15, 1889.
OUR WATERSIDE.

It appears has never received the attention from the Government, which, from its importance, in a place like this it ought to have received. But the time has now come when its improvement is an imperative need, in order to prevent the destruction one of our most useful thoroughfares & that has from time to time given the local authorities no little trouble & expense, to keep in repair & is of great service to the business houses along its line; which are indeed the largest in the place. Much of the damage to Heddle street, the thoroughfare above referred to, is due to the neglected condition of the frontage along the Sherbro river; which in many places is unprotected and in other places only protected by a few plumb sticks driven into the mud. Except in those places where walls have been built by merchants and others of which we confess there are too few. But it certainly is a shame to the government of Sierra Leone that derives so large a revenue from the Sherbro; that it has not done more to improve the Sherbro Harbor, and especially at a time like this when the river is actually rapidly making inroads upon one of the principal streets of this place; which is the seat of the Government of the Sherbro District; and a place that is destined, with a fair opportunity to become one of the most important commercial centers on the West Coast of Africa and that too in the near future. We very well know that the new & cry of the government at Freetown is, that there is no funds, but certainly that is not the fault of Sherbro; as every one knows that this district yields quite a sufficient revenue to guarantee the expenditure of a thousand pounds a year on public improvements while it is a fact, and realy a burning shame, that we are made to get on from year to year with the least pittance, and compelled to pay our duties the same as if our place received the proper care and attention. We now call special attention to the inroads that the river is making every year on the bank near the French Company's large boat shed and then again in front of Church Mission House; these places will become dangerous in a short time, to say nothing of the damage to Heddle Street. if something is not done. The local authorities have done their best; but a special grant of funds is now needed for this and other improvements along our river front and we do sincerely hope that the Sierra Leone government may give this matter their immediate attention.

WHAT IS TO BE DONE WITH MAKIAH?

The Question raised by a correspondent of the Sierra Leone "Weekly News" not long since, "What is to be done with Makiah?" really seems so absurd as not to be worth noticing by any one at all acquainted with the disturbances of the Sulymah District, for to such it must be evident, that Makiah was, at least, one of the principal accessories, if indeed he was not the chief among them; and certainly it was his raids that have been the most injurious to life and property, and the most prostrating to trade in the District. It was also the opinion of most men in and out of the District, who had any knowledge of affairs, that the capture and arrest of Makiah would bring about a cessation of hostilities & that nothing short of that would be effectual or give confidence to the country people or the Traders. This opinion we should remark obtained among those cognizant of the facts in the case, for a considerable while before Captain Crawford arrived on the Coast; even prior to the departure of Sir Francis De Winton. Captain Crawford's Expedition evidently was either sent to chastise or capture Makiah; was then of all phases of opinion seemed to understand that Makiah was a chief disturber of the pesce and were a unit in desiring his capture. And if at all there had been any question with reference to Capt. Crawford's Expediton certainly there could not have been any question with reference to Governor Hay's last Expedition to the Kittim when fowerks every one anxiously awaited the return of His Excellency expecting him to bring down the said Makiah. These acts or movements of the authorities were open to the public for any remarks or criticisms, during all the while they were being carried out. If there was any question about the justice, or injustice of the matter, why was not it then brought forward. Why wait until the Governor has broken down his health by exposure in an effort to arrest Makiah?

OUR TROUBLE.

From and since the month of January, we have been much hindered in our Office works; arising realy from the ill health of our Foreman; as it was impossible for him at times to be on duty and at other times when on duty to attend to the details of his work this naturally hindered progress, set matters wrong about the Office the result of which was late issues of our paper delay in Job work. But little did we know that all this betokened the sad end of our Foreman's earthly career which event took place on the 10th. inst. The trouble was rendered greater of course by the failing health of W. E. GLADSTONE our best Pressman and his ultimate retirement from the Office shortly before the death of Mr. BELL, our Devil in the mean time had also disappeared from the Office; leaving us but a solitary Journeyman out of our entire force.

SUSPENDED FOR SIX MONTHS.

Mr. Editor,—Every one interested in the Sabbath qestion, cannot but give three cheers and prolonged applause to the hardworking and indefatigable catechist of St. Matthew's Church of this place, for the prompt attention given to the two sabbath breakers in connection with his charge, and the ultimate decision arrived at, which gives a heading to this article.

The fact of the case as handed to me is this; Two christian sisters, members of St. Matthew's Church Bonthe, went down the public wharf on the Lord's day and bought a canoe of cassada (the price of this article of food has risen about three times the usual price) and when they were remonstrated with for their seeming ungodliness they said they did not transgress the law of men, but the law of God, & consequently accountable to God alone. But the faithful Catechist promptly made them to know that they were likewise amenable to the Church. This is a noble example set forth by this Church for the other churches of this place to follow. If prompt attention were given by those in charge of the flock of Xt. to the Sabbath breakers in connection with their charge and those found guilty, admonished, reproved, or suspended as the case may deserve, there would be less trafficking on a major or minor scale on the Lord's day. The ministers of the Gospel are the rightful persons to deal with the question of the Sabbath by admonishing the people of God to a due observance of the Lord's day.

We need not (except within a small scale) look to the civil magistrate to enforce the observance of the law of the Xtian Sabbath; for it is divine. The right of the civil magistrate enforcing the observance of the sabbath as a religious observance is questioned. For (1) The observance respects our relation to God and not to men. 2. If this duty is within the cognizance of the civil magistrate so are others, and he must see that it is properly discharged. That is to say, if the civil magistrate has a right to take cognizance of this duty to God, he has a right to take cognizance of every other. And if he have a right to take cognizance of the duty, he must necessarily have a right to prescribe in what manner it shall be discharged, or if he see fit to forbid the observance of it altogether. So that the concessions of this right would lead to direct interference with liberty of conscience. The duty is a moral one, and to be acceptable must be observed with the heart:—a thing that cannot be enforced. We however should expect that the magistrate would protect every individual in the right of worshipping God; and prevent such violations of the Sabbath as disturb the general public rest of the day.

The law of the Sabbath applies equally to societies and to individuals. An individual therefore is forbidden to labor on the Lord's day or to employ another person to labor for him. On this groun therefore, the practice of loading steamers and cutters on the Lord's day, is highly condemnable and those christian employers who compel their employees to labour on the Lord's day are highly culpable and amenable to their Church. By their abuse of power they not only break the peace of mind enjoyable by those Christian employees, who would "be in the Spirit on the Lord's day," but they set adrift a pernicious influence among the poor natives who are employed on this day. An influence which once set afloat reaches through all time giving high license to thousands and ten thousands of natives to make free with the fourth Commandment. The practice is not encouraged by the Merchants of Freetown, but the larger and more important steamers wait over Sabbaths thereby giving the clerks and laborers the free enjoyment of the sabbath. I suppose one has sufficient to do to render a strict account at last for one's self to the Lord and will we voluntarily take the responsibilities of others?

How hard it is for man to be equal in his ways; and to observe strictly the spirit of the Epistle of James "Prefer not the rich to the poor."

I suppose if the good catechist will deal fairly with his members, he will not stop thus far but proceed or to suspend (not for six months but for one year) that particular and principal member of his church who sets a very bad example to this community by compelling his employees to do secular work on the Lords day. I say one reason for suspension, for he is "by far more intelligent than the two women who have been severely dealt with, and his influence covers a wider area. If the worthy Catechist fail to perform this his important duty, his former action will be looked upon as cowardly and unfair. And the sooner the suspension be lifted, the better. And we are afraid that he will earn for himself the reputation of a man of God who is partial and onesided in dealing with his members, fearing the front of men and courting their smiles.

Bonthe Yrs, X. Y. Z.
June 10th '89.

A WAY TO SETTLE SCANDAL.

DR. M. D. HODGE tells of two Christian men who "fell out." One heard that the other was talking against him, and he went to him and said: "Will you be kind enough to tell me my faults to my face that I may profit by your Christian candor and try to get rid of them?" "Yes sir replied the other, "I will do it." They went aside, and the former said: "Before you commence telling what you think wrong in me, will you please bow down with me and let us pray over it, that my eyes may be opened to see my faults as you will tell them? You lead in the prayer." It was done, and when the prayer was over the man who had sought the interview, said: Now proceed with what you have to complain of in me." But the other replied: 'After praying over it, it looks so little that it is not worth talking about. The truth is, I feel now that in going around talking against you I have been serving the devil myself, and have need that you pray for me, and forgive me the wrong I have done you."—Ed.

NEWSITEMS.

Colonial Surgeon returned Dr. M. L. JARRETT our esteemed friend and assistant Colonial Surgeon, of this District; has we are pleased to note returned, from his leave of absence to England; but has not as yet resumed Duty.

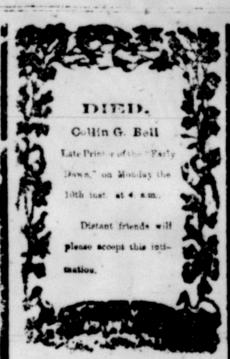
The S. S. FORMOSO; Was disabled by the breaking of her Shaft; about the close of Last Month, in her voyage this way and had to be towed back to Freetown; this accident has greatly inconvenienced the Public

Mr. Rueben H. Hemmingway of the Palma Trading Company's service was in this place several days, he left for Freetown on the 7th.

The Editor of this paper, left also for Freetown on the 7th inst. Rev. R. C. Taylor will have charge of Editorial Department during the Editor's absence.

Mr. E. Edwards of Bendoo, left this place for Freetown about the 10th inst; he is proceeding to England by the s. s. "Niger," for his health.

The Launch, Palmas that brot the Mails to this place about the 11th. inst barely escaped being Swamped at sea, we learn, in her way from Freetown.



Temperance Meetings, are we understand being held at the Mendi Mission School room in this place, and with considerable interest from time to time. The War has commenced and will be pushed, against Intemperance and Drunkeness.

The Crawford case—We learn, has assumed such importance, that the eminent Barister Samuel Lewis has been requested to return from England to defend Capt. Crawford.

Prof. D. F. Wilberforce—was in this place inspecting the U. B. Mission School on the 12th inst. and we understand that he also held a Temperance meeting in the even of the same day.

Mendi Mission School—We believe, is practicing for their Fourth of July Entertainment

Our next Issue is forthcoming & will be out in short meanwhile we bear our readers to bear with us for the present

DIED.

COLLIN G. BELL

Late Printer of the "Early Dawn," on Monday the 10th inst. at 6 a.m.

Distant friends will please accept this intimation.

The death of Mr. COLLIN GEORGE BELL late head Printer of The Early Dawn who departed this life on the morning of the 10th. Inst. after an eight days illness, would strike upon some of our readers who were personally acquanted with him rather suddenly; and upon others painfully. He had his name for a long time connected with the Shengay Mendi Mission as their head Printer, but not as their member; nor could any other Christian body in this place boast of him as their member. He was formarly connected with some of the Factories in the Bargroo River, but when trade did not pay any longer, and as he understood somewhat of Printing, he thought he should try his hand at it, and as a Printer he succeeded well. He had fairly passed the two thirds of the three score years and ten allotted us. Was not a merried man, but was quiet going in his manners and had some good qualities about him, though he had his failings.

But alas! death comes to all sooner or later. How appropriate are the words of the Prophet, "Prepare to meet thy God."

To the Editor of the "EARLY DAWN"

'Twas my intention long ago, Dear Sir,
To send you my poor attempt in lines;
But I cannot remember well the matter
Why these poor lines have not been sent at times.

On one occasion when I came to you,
A pleasant call to give as goes the phrase,
We spoke together on such a subject true
But after all I left in the mists.

I do intend by my coming now,
From time to time to send you some few lines;
With hopes your readers, not with me Yrs.

When o'er it turns out that they have no rhymes.

I know it's idle I cannot dream to soar
Above criticism's pound'd arrow's reach But wise at my poor lines doth wing their flight.

Depend upon it will yet laugh too much

* * * *

Hail! Dr. J. who from the North has come,
You have been absent really very long,
Your presence here we do congratulate How glad we see the sure my pen can state.

Of Doctors too at present we can boast,
For dear Wyhams has not yet left the coast,
On them may God the giver [His] bless Unspoken
In faith to labour till they be no more.

* * * *

The scene is changed—a sad reflection
this,
That Belle the famous Printer is now missed;
We only trust that he now rests in peace,
In that fam'd land where we have not yet reached.

Bonthe, C. S. BROWN.
11th June '89

THE VOICE OF CHOLERA.

Dear Editor,

In reading over the back numbers of the "Religious Telescope" I happened to fall in with a short but interesting piece with the above heading I accordingly cop it and send it for publication as I have no doubt but that it will interest most if not all your readers.

The Church it seems cannot get along well without Crookers. At least it has not done so in the past.

It is astonishing to see how men can look at the dark side of every thing in connection with the work of the Church until they see nothing but blackness, and can only mean for the night. Here is what the "Interior" say of these midnight voices.

"We have read with sadness and surprise many recent reports of speeches by good men who aspire to be leaders in Israel. They do not talk, they croak. They tell us that only two fifths of the people in this country are in Church that the common people who hear Christ gladly do not hear us gladly themselves at all. They say that a large proportion of the so-called Christians whom we number on the Lord's side are Christians only a name to live, that our ministers themselves are only excepted—more men who have entered the priestly office because they could not succeed in any other calling etc. etc. This lugubrious croaking reminds us of the story of the Scottish elders or ministers who were seated on the Stairs of religion in the Church of several hundred members when his head and replied. There he no real Christian here but myself and Sandy and sometimes I have my doubts about Sandy." And out of that church of seventy hundred members the ministers is virtually the only Christian.

Our friend hears me out in the article I sent you some time ago on Crookers though I never thought that there was a Clerical Crooker.

Yours truly,
E. Cockson Taylor.

DR HODGE'S EXPERIENCE

As far back as I can remember, I had the habit of thanking God for every thing I received and for asking him for every thing I wanted. If I lost a book, or my play-things, I prayed that I might find it. I prayed walking along the streets, in school and out of school, whether playing or studying. I did not do this in obedience to any prescribed rule—it seemed natural. I thought of God as an every where present being, full of kindness and love, who would not be offended if children talked to him.—Ed.

AGRICULTURE.

No time should now be lost in transplanting of plants and seeds of all kinds, and especially should attention be given to cedar planting, and care should be taken that the stem or tap-roots are not crumpled in setting the plant in the hole. In setting cedar trees, it will be found at times, that a worm or grub is attached to the old seed that adheres to the root of the plant, this grub must should be removed, before placing the tree or seyan in the ground, otherwise he may destroy the plant. In some places white ants or bug-a-bugs, are so few as to be unnoticed unless particular care is taken to look for them, and however few at first if not destroyed they will increase and destroy the plants; hence too great care can not be exercised in getting rid of these and other destructive insects. Really to farm in this country requires, that a man keep his eyes open, to see and remove the various enemies to the growth of crops.—J. Albert.

Dear Editor—allow me through your valuable journal to say a few words to the Ministers of Bompeh District.

Dear Brethren in Christ

Since Bro. F. M. Stuart's return from the last Annual District Meeting held at Shandjay Jan. 25th '89. I have observed him very closely and I am glad to state (as far as human conception goes) that he seems a real penitent. His regular attendance at our Sabbath and weeknight services though his residence is about four or five miles from this station, his confession and vows to God in public, and his life all help to show that his repentance is not a feigned but a genuine one. This gladdens my heart and prompts me to give expression in these lines. Hoping the time is not far when he will once more be employed to take his place as the Station where he once labored faithfully—Thanking you for space occupied—Yrs in Christ,

T. M. Cole.

Mr J.B.Taylor

Begs to inform the PUBLIC that he now undertakes to be SLAUGHTERING at his BUSINESS PLACE, Corner of Victoria Road and Otto Street, Bonthe.

ALPHA Factory.

York Island SHERBRO

Is Now Open for TRADING

F. & A. SWANZY

GEO. LEACH

Agent-in-Charge.

TOBACCO.

Messrs. SWANZY'S renowned fragrant Crown Tobacco can be obtained at their Sherbro Factory in Hogsheads of about 1250 lbs. nett, Half-Hogsheads of about 550 lbs. nett; also their Kentucky "Bull Head" brand— in similar packages.

Tobacco in Boxes.

To meet the requirements of the Up-River Traders, Messrs. Swanzy have had both brands of their Tobaccos specially packed into Boxes containing 100 lbs. nett weight. These Boxes contain the choicest leaves and the Tobacco being most carefully pressed there is absolutely no broken or mashed Tobacco to be found therein—

The Boxes are of 1 inch wood, with hinges to the lid, which is screwed, not nailed down. Should the box be opened while in canoe and any of the Tobacco be taken out, it can be instantly detected; so that RIVER TRADERS in buying these Special Boxes, can rely upon receiving the exact weight they send for.

F. & A. SWANZY.
ALPHA FACTORY.

"The Light that Shineth More and More."—Prov. 4: 18.

REV. W. JONES, M. D., D. D.

God ordained personal Christian influence one of the chief finite agencies for the renvoation of world. He also clearly teaches the progressive nature of religious experience. God declares that the soul that retain its justified relations with Him does advance from the starting point steadily "The path of the just is as the shining light." God hath chosen the sun as the symbol of a Christian life. It is a primary quality of light to shine. If the light is extinguished the shining is impossible. The Father has an exalted idea of Christian life, & he uses the grandest object in the universe, that is visible to man, as the representative of a converted man.

The sun shines without effort; the existence of a light involves the fact of its shining. The sun does not emit an occasional flash of light. It shines right on. It pours a flood of light and warmth on all the world and holds all the other planets in their respective orbits as it quietly sweeps on in its course of blessing. God says the converted man is like that. He does not have to do something wonderful that will attract others. He just lets his light shine. Each Christian is a light-bearer. Every one on whose heart God has kindled the light of life must let it shine, or extinguish it. When he ceases to be a light-bearer he is no longer a Christian.

When Moses came down from his mountain interview with God his face was radiant with the divine glory, and thirty centuries have not dimmed the brightness of its lustre. If a man has a light, the world will know it. They may admire the light, or they may desire to put the man to death, as they did Lazarus after he was risen from dead, because his light reproved them. Or they may request, as they did of Moses, to have him put a veil over his face. But, regardless of all opinions, there is but one alternative, shine, or extinguish the light. It may require courage, but the light will shine. In a slave-market a lad was on the auction-block, surrounded by nearly all classes of persons; some dealers seeking to turn an active dollar or drive a sharp bargain; some philanthropists, studying the condition of the degraded and helpless ones. The auctioneer's voice had ceased for a moment, when a kindly looking gentleman, attracted by the natural dignity of the youth, approached him and after a few question said "Harry if I buy you, will you be honest? The boy raised himself to his full height, and looking his questioner in the face said, "I will be honest whether you buy me or not." Those are the words of a true Christian; words fit to be placed in the galaxy of immortal utterances to shine on forever.

You cannot put a true man of God where he will not shine. When Joseph was cast into prison he made all Egypt luminous with the emanations of his cell. And when Daniel was cast into the den of lions, they were blinded by the brightness of his shining; and from the recesses of that gloomy but living sepulchre the Orient flamed with celestial brightness. The persecuting civil authorities shut up Peter in prison, but God pushed back the iron bolts, flung wide open its portals, and the impetuous servant of Jesus spread the gospel light from Lebanon to the Nile. And from his prison-cell in Rome Paul poured forth a flood of light, which has increased thro' all the centuries, and is to-day girdling the earth with centers of influence and power. They banished the beloved disciple that his light might be extinguished, but Patmos flames still with the brightness of the Apocalyptic vision, and far-off lands are bathed in the brightness of its shining. And in all lands where the Christ-life is kindled on the alter of a human soul, it burns and blazes and gleams in the darkness, filling all its orbit with heavenly radiance. "It shines more and more unto the perfect day." Christian life is progressive, like the sun. There are two crises in the course of the sun that symbolize the experiences of a christian-its rising, and the moment when it riches its zenith.

Progress is the law of life. It would precipitate a catastrophe in the universe that no pen or pencil could portray if the sun should conclude to set some morning at 9 o'clock. Therefore, we conclude a justified man must progress or perish; must not only be converted, but must reach his zenith, must set in the forenoon, or go up to his zenith-reach the perfect day.

Spain once held both sides of the Mediteranean Sea, and on her coin were engraved two pillars of Hercules that gaurd the entrance to the Straits, and on a scroll thrown back were the words "Ne Plus Ultra." But a bold, adventurous navigator turned the prow of his vessel westward and pushed out through the Straits, far out over the Atlantic, found its waters studded with islands of wondrously productive power, and bordered on the west with a country whose wealth is almost untouched, after centuries of exhaustive effort. When this navigator made this report to his sovereign, the wise governor, changed the inscription on the coin to correspond with the facts, and it read: "Plus Ultra." There are many who assume the leadership of the saints that are not as wise as the king of Spain. In their extreme conservatism they have graven upon the altars of their experience the motto "Nothing beyond." They publish to the world that there is nothing beyond where their feet have traveled—no productive territory which they have not explored and appropriated; and when the spies come into camp with a cluster from Eshcol, and lay the pomegranates on the table and exhibit the fruits of the land, instead of changing their motto to correspond with the facts, they take offence at the victorious explorers whose adventurous feet carried them into the presence of such treasure. They over look the fact that it is of religions experience in this life the apostle is speaking when he says "Eye hath not seen, ear hath not heard, neither have entered into the heart of man the things which God hath in reservation for them that love Him, but He reveals them unto us by his spirit."

When the Christian man comes to his zenith,

"Standing on perfection's height Views all the land below," he just begins to perceive the vastness of that which lies beyond. He then realizes for the first time that a religious experience can never be finished, that it is always fresh, always enlarging, that, like an unrimmed sea, it stretches outward and onward forever.—Sel

Sometimes a whole number of talents is thrown away because of one talent—the talent of using the others is wasting.—Parker

The Early Dawn.

"The Morning Light Is Breaking, The Darkness Disappears."

VOL. VI. BONTHE, SHERBRO, WEST AFRICA, JUNE 29, 1889. No. 12.

The "Early Dawn."

Published Semi-Monthly, At BONTHE, SHERBRO.

Under the Auspices of the Board of Missions of the U. B. IN CHRIST.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION

One Year by Mail,	£0	6	0
Delivered in Bonthe,	0	5	0
Half yearly by Mail,	0	3	0
Ditto, delv'ed in Bonthe,	0	2	6

ADDRESS.—Communications to J. A. EVANS, Editor & Publisher, Bonthe, Sherbro, West Africa,—

Subscriptions to be sent to Rev. J. COMBER, Shainguy, Mr. E. A. LEWIS, Free Town, West Africa. Rev. Wm. McKEE Dayton, Ohio, U.S.A. or to the Editor.—

DIRECTORY.

Commandant.	C. H. Harley Mosely.
Coroner.	The Commandant.
Chief Clerk.	M. J. W. Rocke
Interpreter.	J. D. Rogers.
Bailiff.	F. E. B. Bucher.
Sub Treas. & Col. Chief Clerk	J. D. Macaulay.
Tide Waiters.	J. N. Crown, J. B. Turner, J. J. Werbinton.
Asst. Examg. Officer Sub'ymah Jasper Caulker
Assistant Col. Surgeon.	M. L. Jarrett, M. R. C. S.
Dispenser	Rowland May
Postmaster.	H. H. Williams.
Inspector of Police.	M. E. Betts.
Gaoler.	J. A. Dennis.
Overseer of Roads.	A. O. Walker.

Religious Directory.

St. Matthew's Church, Pastor,	Victoria Road Vacant.
Wesleyan Methodist, Pastor,	Lime Street Rev. J. C. Thomas
Mendi Mission, (Congregational) Pastor,	Good Hope Rev. E. C. Taylor

ENJOYING CHRIST.

Can we enjoy Him while living for ourselves while indulging in sin, while prayerless and cold, and dead? Does not God directly seek our highest happiness when he strips us of vain glory and self-love, embitters the poisonous draught of mere human felicity, and makes us fall down before Him lost in the sense of His desirableness and beauty? The connection between glorifying and enjoying Him, is to my mind, perfect—one following as the necessary sequence of the other. He who has let self go, and lives only for the honor of God, is the free, the happy man. He is no longer a slave but has the liberty of the sons of God; for "him who honors Me, I will honor." Satan has befogged you on this point. He dreads to see you ripen into a saintly, devoted, useful man. He hopes to ruin you. But he will not prevail. You have solemnly given yourself to the Lord; you have chosen the work of winning and feeding souls as your life work; you must not go back. These conflicts are the lot of those who are training to be the Lord's true-yoke fellows. Christ's sweetest consolations lie behind crosses. He reserves his best things for those who have the courage to press foward fighting for them. Turn your eyes from self, from man, and look to Christ. I have been on the road and know it well. By and-by there won't be such lust on it. You will meet with hindrance and trials, but will fight quietly through, and no human ear hear the din of battle, no human eye perceive fainting, or halting, or fall.—Sel

FOR THE "EARLY DAWN."

Mr Editor,

At a regular meeting of the Christian Temperance Army of this place, it was decided that there be a called meeting the following Wednesday, accordingly the society met on the evening of the 5th inst. at Zion Chapel, Shainguy. We had expected a good gathering to be composed of members and non-members, but owing to the inclemency of the weather that evening the chapel was not crowded to the full yet, the gathering was as good one as one might expect under such circumstances.

Owing to the present condition of the country, a question was given out to be discussed, viz—It is certain that the people of Sherbro do not produce sufficient food to meet their wants. What products should be cultivated, and how, that the people may have as much or more than they consume? This question was ably discussed by the intellectual heads of the place, two natives women inclusive. It is a question which we thought to be a momentous one—which touches our interest as well as our social well-being as a community. In a word it is today a question for this country. When we consider what a fertile spirit we possess, and what we are capable of producing should we be an industrious in the true sense of the word, why! We are puzzled to know that we are what we are. However we will not refrain from stating that the causes that bring about such a state of things were largely enumerated by the debaters (natives.) In consideration of the subject as it was debated, there seem to be hopes (which I believe are not delusive ones) when the natives will put forth every energy for the aggrandisement of this country. It is the amelioration of affairs which should also engage the thoughts and attention of those who are chiefs. That patriotic feeling which glows in the heart of every native ought to stimulate us to be more industrious & to be able to produce more food and insure us to superabundance.

Watchman
Shainguy 6th June, 89

Dear Editor

Your remarks in a late issue relative to the arrival of the Inspector and inspection of schools, coupled with a very limited intelligence on the subject, as to its results, are the only reasons eliciting the following brief observations.—We hailed with delight the appearance for the first time in this district of Sierlap of Her Majes by's two Inspectors of schools to conduct the annual examination of the children. The whole affair lasted between two & three days & all was over. The Chief Inspector, we are pleased to observe, did his duty in a straight forward and candid way; and were it for him alone, information would not have been looking to communicate with ya immediately afterwards. But unlike him, his confrater Mr. Marke adopts almost the opposite course. His unsparing regidness of the standards examined, without any consideration of the age or disadvantage of some and his tardiness to chronicle results, all this must be, all this is productive of dissatisfaction. What appears strange to me is, the head Inspector having finished with his class, gives the results which both master and pupil could see at a glance. But the Sub-Inspector must first return to Freetown before a knowledge or result of his doings be made known. The while masters and others are left in abeyance and doubt. Whatever may be said but me this, as to examinational report is based mostly on conjecturing. The master seeing what his pupils did might well assure himself of probable success; but he has yet to learn that neither his thoughts, hopes, nor feelings are any of Mr. Marke's concern when the latter returns him a list of quite a discouraging nature, containg the names of examinees as non-pertformers.

But Mr. Ed, would it not be well and conducive of good to the master of each school when everything is over, before the examiner leaves his seat? Would it not be fair for the sub-inspector to inform the head Inspector in this respect (not even in a rough way? Doing this would partly the interest of those concerned & would be prepared for what would be said hereafter "post mortem." Let the rights of all concerned be sustained before misunderstanding was spread in a shameful way.

E. O. E. A SHERBRO ATTEN.

Dear Mr Editor,

Permit the following observations to appear in your valuable paper, as they may perhaps assist some of those who were present under the preaching of the Revd R. C. Taylor.

On Sunday morning the 16th inst., the pulpit was occupied by the Rev gentleman, and his text was taken from the book of Revelation ch. 20, v. 12., "And I saw the dead small and great stand before God, and the books were opened, and another book was opened; which is the book of life, and the dead were judged out of those things which were written in the books according to their works."

Sir, I cannot but say that God will help him that he may not fear the front of men; for it is not yet quite two months since the revival services held here by Mrs Amanda Smith —lady Evangelist from America—and many professing Christians have again enslaved themselves to satan, wallowing in the mire of sin sparing no pains to do the service of their master, the devil, by their vicious illicit habits. Formality is existing in every form and shape in this place for men who were prominent in the house of God who ought to set bright examples (as christians) to the poor perishing souls around them, would be seen hand in hand with the meanest by their adulterous and bigamous practices. It is advisable for them to give due attention and consideration to the words of the apostle in Romans chapter 6, verse 16. "Know ye not that to whom ye yield yourselves serv ints to obey, his servants ye are whom ye obey; whether of sin unto death, or of obedience unto righteousness?" but God be praised though the field be lost, all is not lost. many still hold to the faith, and many who were once unchaste and intemperate in their manners, now devote their whole service unto God, and are working earnestly for the Lord. I trust every one will awake to the sense of duty duty, and strive to obey the blessed mandate "Love the Lord with all thy heart, and thy neighbour as thyself."

Can we, whose souls are lighted
With wisdom from on high,
Can we to men benighted
The lamp of life deny?
Salvation! O salvation!
The joyful sound proclaim,
Till ev'a remotest nation
Has learnt Messiah's name.

Thanking you Mr. Editor for space granted me in your paper.—NED.

"COMPANY WE KEEP."

In an oration on "Fools," a celebrated wit once delivered himself as follows: "In one gutter I saw a pig; in the other the resemblance of a man. The pig was sober; the man was drunk. The pig had a ring in his nose; the other animal had one in his finger. The pig grunted and so did the man. And I said aloud, 'We are known by the company we keep.' And the pig heard me and walked away, ashamed to be seen in the company of a drunken man."—Sel

The Early Dawn.
BONTHE, SHERBRO.

JUNE 29, 1889.

The Crisis Over.—that is in the U B Church, in America for many years there has been a bone of contention in the Church. It was called the "Slavery Question" and related, to how this subject of secrecy should be treated; whether all Major & Minor Orders ought to be refused admission or only the Major Orders or whether the whole matter ought to be left to either society or individual discretion; of these that favord the last idea there may have been few; but of those who favord the admission of Minor Orders there has grown to be evidently a large Majority in the Church and the advance of years only increased this Majority. The result has been that at the late General Conference the radical minority under the Leadership Bishop Wright withdrew from the regular Church, however they (the minority) put it the other way & say that the liberial Majority withdrew. But that reminds us of the man who said that "the other eleven men on the Jury with him were the most contrary men he even saw, not one of them would agree with him" But no serious reflection, on the noble and good brethren that composed the Minority as as we love and respect them and trust they may be sucessfull in doing good and in due time may find it convenient to return to the Church better and wiser. As for the prospect of the Church, under the New Constitution, we believe, its growth will be so much more rapid, that the loss of the Radical Minority, will not even be felt at the next general Conference. For now it is to be hoped the progressive spirit of the Church will push the work in the Cities & great centers of influence so that hundreds will be gathered in now, and of the more influential, that could not under the old constitution.

FIELD NOTES.

The sanabais complained of a short time ago along the Karbonoro river, have ceased to alarm our itinerants in that section; the reason it is said for this respite, is because of the leaking out of some of their secrets.

Early in May Mr J. T. Metzger reached his charge at Mocobo, to which he had been appointed, by the Presiding Elder, Revd W. S. Sage, and has been getting on with his work since this time. Mr. R. P. Lobo holds the fort at McPuss and is trying for success We should also have mentioned that Mr F. Decony Will was at last hearing driving ahead on the Matogong charge, and now that the war-scare is all over, and the canvass have ceased for the time it is to be hoped that Mr Will is having a good time. Mando is under the charge of Mr Delap and doing well we believe the poor condition of the buildings being a serious drawback especially now in the rains. Bonthe has the services of Mr. Frank C. Dixon and wife also an assisting Pinnant, Mr D. told us when we saw him last (21st inst) that they were visiting 18 Towns on the Romoee charge with success. The new house or Parsonage also there is also being pushed forward to completion. Mr. R. C. Beckersteth an above man is in charge of Shaingay Pastorate and the Day School, he seems to be progressing nicely with his work. Professor Wilberforce supervises a large Liberating District in the vicinity of Shaingay in connection with the Rattle Clark Training School and is doing a grand work in about 30 Towns and villages, Mr Geo. C. Taylor holds forth at Rotifunk and Hancases a considerable district, we believe, some what hard to travel over especially during the rains but, he is reported to be succeeding in his work Mr Remmie Caulker and wife of Kooloogo Station, we are also pleased to learn, are succeeding well and doing good work, and we believe Mr Co' health is much better than last year, Mr Humphrey and wife are also connected with Koolonge Station, and are getting on too in their departments. Mr A. F. Campbell, is in charge of old Otterbein Station, at Bompelstook, his success is said to be a marvel; his work is largely self-supporting, we understand and has been since the time Mr Campbell took charge of it. Mr. D. Berger is in charge of M'Charmany Station since it was reopened and has given satisfaction. The work progresses. Tonkohloh has from the first, we believe, been hard to manage, has had its trials. But so far this year reports are favorable; Mr John Lewis is in charge and is trying to succeed. Mando Station is in charge of Mr J. W. Domingo a young man of much push and energy, he litinerates over a large District and has visited 29 Towns has seekers times in 23 of these towns, in which are enrolled 360 members, an increase of more than Two hundred since January. Really Mando is looking up & fast regaining its former standing, and it is to be hoped that it may continue to progress. Dupree Chapel built under the labors of the Revd H. C. Taylor while at Mando is being repaired by Brother Domingo.

Komeonaray Station, that was vacated for a short time, during the illness of Mr Cole, has again been occupied and the repairs and the work we learn is progressing nicely. Avery, we, believe, is getting on spiritually, the religious work receives due attention & prospers. Revd H. J. Weeks is still there and Bro. Morrisons' Family have returned from their change. The Industrial work has had some drawback we believe, but is now underway again.

Danville—Rev. W. S. M'Cauley in charge has as usual had a struggle against the Current, being as we understand rather short for means, to carry on the work; however Bro M'Cauley is doing his best. A new place of worship is being built, we learn, at Danville. Good Hope Station has the services of Rev. R. C. Taylor as pastor assisted by several others. It gets on but not fully satisfactory for the amountof labor expended. It is certain however that there is some progress in the religious life of some of the members. There is a marked interest among the natives, of what is known as Mission House Class. The collections for various purposes are good, and on the whole are very encouraging. The native work however must be enlarged in the vicinity.

COLONIAL HONORS

We are pleased to notice in the list of officers appointed by Her Majesty to be Knight Commanders of the Order of St. Michael and St. George the name of our Governor Capt. Hay. This distinction has certainly been well earned, and in congratulating His Excellency on the distinguished honor conferred on him we are certain that we voice the universal opinion of the inhabitants of this district in whose interests he has worked so indefatigably.

We learn that Dr. Wykham, who has for the past five months, discharged the duties of Assistant Colonial Surgeon of this District is about to leave us; Dr. Jarrett the permanent Officer, having returned to his native, land from leave of absence.

It affords us the greatest pleasure always to record in our columns public appreciation of the services of individuals and an opportunity is given us in the present instance. Dr. Wykham's attentive manners, his ability and his kindly countenance, has endeared him to the masses of the people,—Our wishes are for his advancement in whatever part of the globe his lot may be cast We feel, moreover, certain that our wishes will find a ready echo in the hearts of the members of this community.

THE PROMOTION OF MR. E. FAUKNER,

Mr. Editor, has called forth, much and favorable comment in native circles and your contemporary. The Weekly News teems with it, congratulates Mr. E. Faukner on his success through many years of hard and successive trial as well as much responsibility, and seems to see the Dawn of a better day for native Officials through the promotion of the indefatigable Mr. Faukner, a deserving man who has outstepped his compeers of the race and reached a higher goal than is usual for the native clerk. I too congratulate Mr. Faukner, upon his success and promotion; and certainly believe that if natives will make themselves reponsible and useful in the lower ranks of office and work as Mr. Faukner, Mr. Hughes and others have done, they will as surely rise to position and influence, as the sun rises daily to the south.

Yours
River Bank, E. J. BETAL.
June 26, '89.

MY VIEWS IN VERSE.

By C. S. Brown.

According to my promise last,
Which was I think, too fast,
I now send you a few more rhymes
To while away the times.

Of news there is not much unfurled
In this part of the world;
At least, they say the Crawford's case
In Town takes all the place.

The case I'm told is getting strong,
And Crawford's looking wrong;
But I'm no judge, I only lay
What I have heard 'Dom say.'

The Lawyer he from England come
Great Sam well known to fame;
To carry out the Duke's bidest,
According to his request.

As steamers do ply to and fro
'Twixt Freetown and Sherbro,
I'd better wait and not forestall,
The judgement in the Hall.

My lines this time are very few,
For much I've had to do;
Please kindly pardon me this once,
I'll thank you in advance.

Bonthe, June, '89.

SUPERSTITION AMONG CHRISTIANS.

From what I can learn, from various sources, there is a great many Superstitious practices among native & Sierra Leone Christians; in fact so many, or much of Superstition, as to render faith, in God very uncertain, among a large majority of those professing faith in Christ; for really beyond their professions some of which are loud and profuse in verbage there is not the slightest appearance of faith or reliance on the Lord, they break every commandment in the Decalogue, and give little or no heed to the precepts of Christ. They evidently do not rely on God for help in special cases of trouble; for it has become a common practice to resort to other & heathen sources for help. Is there anything but a country fashion man is immediately sought after that he may find it or the person who has taken it. If any one dies in any way suddenly or of a disease, not fully understood; it is at once attributed to the use of some means or it is the result of some one swearing, or some other superstitious notion. Such superstitious ideas having obtained among nominal and professing christians is a great barrier to the progress of of the gospel, in fact almost neutralizes its effect, when entrusted to the hands of native workers, who I believe in many cases are true, and labour with all earnestness and zeal for the propagation of the gospel; it is also true that there are many and possibly more, who are given to superstitious notions, which militate both against their faith and hence the influence of their fellows in religious work. This is "an evil under the sun" but alas! it is too common among men, especially among native Christians of these parts, as admitted by native clergymen themselves from time to time.—Yours

EARNEST DISSAUVER.

NEWS ITEMS.

It is rumored, that Dr. Wykham has been chosen, for an acting appointment during the absence, on leave, of Dr Ross the Colonial Surgeon and is to do duty at the Freetown hospital—an important and responsible position.

We extract the following announcement from the "London Times" of the 3rd inst.

BIRTH—on the 30th May at 106 Edith Road, West Kensington, the wife of C. H. Hartley Moseley Civil Commandant of Sherbro West Coast Africa—of a son.

The Portrait of the Rev. J Gomer,—is given in the York Daily, of York Pennsylvania U. S. A., as one of the distinguished visitors to the U. B. General Conference held in that city.

An Oversight—It escaped us, to note in our last issue, the appointment of Mr. J. B. Parkinson, Justice of the Peace in this District.

We now congratulate him on his advancement to the honorable distinction of J. P.

Unfortunate Death.—that of Mr. A. Nicols (of the firm of A. Nichols & Co.) which sad event took place at Grand Canary on his homeward voyage. It strikes us rather suddenly as Mr. Nichols had only a short time before left this place, apparently, in good health.

We learn, with pleasure that Custom revenue of this district for the half year ending June 30th has yielded an increase of £577. 13. 0. over the corresponding period of last year.

It is much to be regretted that arrangments were not made for either a homeward or outward bound mail steamer, to call in here during the time the S. S. Formoso lay in Freetown harbor disabled. The Merchants of this District have been greatly inconvenienced by the delay, in the delivery of Goods and in not being able to ship produce, during the interval of over a month which has intervened.

THE ROYAL COLONIAL INSTITUTE.—Peace of the Council, for '88 & '89 is before us, & shows the continued prosperity of the Institute in its Work. Among the corresponding Secretaries elected we notice the name of our friend Mr T. J. Alldridge

To Subscribers.—Please send in your Dues to this "Early Dawn" Office at once as we are much in need of the amount Due us to pay printers.

THE CRAWFORD CASE.—In its developments, since our last issue, rather seems to have grown worse, before the mind of the public, and threatens to be more protracted, if not more serious; for, about the time of the opening of the case, it was thought that a week would be sufficient time to dispose of it, and most likely, Mr Crawford would get off, but a week up to this writing (30th inst) has fully elapsed and still, if our information is correct, the case continues, and is likely to do so for some time. Moreover, the chances for Mr Crawford look rather less favorable than hitherto; and while we have never shared in the belief that the trial would be a short one, or had great hopes of Mr Crawford, yet we confess that we have had more hopes than at present.

AN ADDRESS

(Deliverered before the Philomathean Literary Society of the R. C. & W. Training School, Shaingay by their President.)

Ladies and Gentlemen,

It becomes my highest pleasure to return you my hearty thanks for conferring on me the honorable position of president of this intelligent body. True, it is the highest office we looked up to in any society; but the thought of the responsibility hanging upon such an office, and how to make the society interesting and attractive are what occupy my mind at present.

Our late President had done his best by way of promoting the interest of the society. But allow me to say that I have never in my life been a President of any society, nor do I possess the genius to preside over such a literary society as this.

This being the case ladies and gentlemen, I feel my inefficiency to ascend the the presidential chair I want to impressed upon your mind that a great future is opened before us through this society. When this society was first established, it was with great difficulty that you could occupy the floor for ten minutes at least. But to-day, I can confidently say that you have mastered public-speaking to that extent that you can now speak intelligently on any subject for fifteen minutes at least. By this you must not permit your minds to be deceived that you have made all the marks required of you. What you have achieved is not all that the society demands. You are privileged characters enjoying the full blaze of the light introduced by the establishing of this grand Institution and literary society; and you are to build on the foundation that has been laid until you arrive to the climax of progress and improvement. Considering what a weight of responsibility is upon us, we ought to direct our attention a little into the future and see our places, as it were, filled by those who come after us. Indeed succeeding generations shall occupy our places after we shall have gone the way of all the earth. With these thoghts ladies and gentlemen, we are to equip ourselves by diligence and persevering application for the various avocations of life to which we shall be called. By the diff of perseverance, we can make this society what it ought to be. Let us look at what they are accomplishing, and their literature, arts, and manners should arouse our minds into a state of marvelous activity. An individual cannot achieve any thing grand or noble in any time of work, without having an interest in that work: and unless we be as the old adage has it, "united we stand" in our efforts we will not accomplish much. It is said that to whom much is given much shall be required. It is an axiom and it requires no demonstration that to us much is given. Facilities for the improvement of our knowledge are abundant and it is within the range of possibility that we can make this age the golden age of the Sherbro country. It has always been a serious consideration with me that we are in great ways responsible for our advantages; and, if they are abused or slighted, whether it shall not result in a stumbling block to succeeding generations? It should be our highest ambition and aspiration not only for the acquisition of knowledge, but also to employ our privileges in promoting the physical, mental, moral, and social well-being of our benighted brethren.

As officers of this society we should wake up to new vigour and alacrity in elevating the society to that standard which will make it well that it is indeed a literary society, so that when the good day comes it will be said of us that we are profitable servants.

To this and ladies and gentlemen, let us strive and mount up the shining course of life before us. With these remarks, I feel it my highest pleasure to resume the second agreement of this Philomathean Literary Society and pray assist always on to promote its interest.—W. J. H.

"SUSPENDED FOR SIX MONTHS. (?)

Dear Sir,

I have read with much satisfaction the article bearing the above title in your last impression.

I fully endorse the sentiments of the writer, and cc. gratulate him also for giving publicity to the active steps taken by the Catechist of St. Matthew's Church who has succeeded in finding out and suspending two of his female members who, some three Sundays ago, were illegal transgressing the Sabbath by buying cassada on the Lord's day.

For the benefit of the writer and his readers generally I think some light should be thrown on one or two points that have come under my notice. The writer X. Y. Z. stated "here" (to quote his own words) "as was handed to him." but I am writing facts as they are.

Shortly after perusing the aforementioned article I gave the catechist a special call for further enlightment on the subject; he gave me to understand that the members were under suspension for three and not six months—a mistake X. Y. Z. through his incorrect information, has unhapily fallen into. I have heard also that the two members have exhibited signs of true penitence and had their punishment mitigated.

Either X. Y. Z. must have been omitted when writing, for I observed that towards the close of his nice letter he pretty nearly allowed his rapid pen to out-write his thoughts. He would have double punishment extended to a pastor or some one who keeps continually "compelling his employees" (X. Y. Z. probably one of them "to perform Sabbath duties on the Sabbath day.")

But X. Y. Z. must remember that the Catechist is not omniscient, and unless the name of this petticular member be told him either in writing or personally, he cannot at all act in this matter.

I hope X. Y. Z. will help the Catechist by forwarding the name of this incognito individual and then we may rest assured that he will leave no stone unturned in this direction.

I might say something more but I do not wish to weaken the force of X. Y. Z's. letter as it is very important.

I am Sir truly yours
X. Y. Z's. Friend.

AGRICULTURE.—TRANSPLANTING.

Mr. Editor,—The time for planting seed has passed and fully one month of the time for transplanting has already gone, but for the latter work we have yet remaining a full month or more; as the whole probably and part of August may be put to good account, if the rains are continuous or frequent, by planters in setting out trees, especially fruit trees as Mangoes, Pears, Oranges &c The planting of Hedges of various kinds which is of course really a transplanting, should be attended now and continued tight on into the dry. Much encouragement ought this to be looked after, because of the fact, that we in this land of Destructive insects and rapid decay of wood, must depend more on some kind of growing or live fencing to inclose over plots of land; if we enclose them at all. While transplanting any kind of trees or shrubs, care should be taken to make the ground as clean as possible nothing should be allowed to grow except some useful crop, as Cassada, Cocoa, Potatoes or something of the kind. The reason for the keeping of ground clean among fruit trees, while young especially, is twofold; first that the tree or crops may have the benefit of the full strength of the soil, and second that we may be able to watch when insects attack them, as they will almost invariably do sooner or later.

Yours—J. Albert.
Bonthe, June 28th '89.

PUBLIC NOTICE.

S. M. MISSION STORE.

We now offer for sale the Best BRANDS of FLOUR
In Bbls. & Half-Bbls.
ALSO
SUGAR, KEROSINE, FLORIDA WATER,
in Bbls. & Cases,

Provisions

Of the freshest kind and in good variety.

Best Tea, Coffee, Lard, Butter, Milk, Cocoa & Milk, Vinegar Sauces, Mustard, Pickles, Tomatoes, Peaches, Tapioca, &c. &c.

Patent and Proprietary MEDICINES—A Specialty.

Time Pieces, Watches, Sewing Machines, Watch Guards, Sewing Machine Needles.

N.B. We Pay CASH for Palm Kernels. J. A. Evans.

Mr J.B.Taylor

Begs to inform the PUBLIC that he now undertakes to be SLAUGHTERING at his BUSINESS PLACE, Corner of Victoria Road and Otto Street, Bonthe.

THE NEED OF REST.

"Come ye yourselves apart into a desert place, and rest awhile."—Mark 6: 31.

Do not devote all your time for action, but reserve a certain portion of it or meditation on eternity. We see Jesus Christ inviting his disciples to go apart, into a desert place, and rest awhile, after their return from the cities, where they had been to announce His religion. How much more necessary is it for us to approach the source of all virtue that we may revive our declining faith and charity when we return from the busy scenes of life where men speak and act as if they had never known there is a God We should look on prayer as the remedy for our weaknesses, the rectifier of our faults. He who was without sin prayed constantly; how much more ought we, who are sinners to be faithful in prayer!

Even the exercise of charity is often a snare to us. It calls us to a certain occupation that dissipates the mind, and may degenerate into mere amusement. Keep an exact proportion between the interior source of virtue and the external practice of it; else like the foolish virgins, we shall find the oil in our lamps exhausted when the Bridegroom comes.

We cease to pray to God as soon as we cease to love Him, as soon as we cease to thirst for His perfections. The coldness of our love is the silence of our hearts before God. Let our hearts be full of love, and they will pray. The ardor of our wishes must render us fit to receive the blessing For if we do not feel a strong desire for the success of our prayers, if we feel a chilling indifference in approaching Him who is a consuming fire, we have no seal for his glory, if we do not feel hatred for sin and a thirst for perfection, we cannot hope for a blessing on such heartless prayers.—Sel.

(From Question of To-day.)

The History and Iniquity of the Lottery.

By Rev. C. K. Cox.

We hear of lotteries first in Rome. During any public entertainment tickets were thrown out marked with thee names of certain prizes. The holder, on presenting the same to the proper officer received the prize indicated upon the ticket. The ancient Spartiards also possessed lottery schemes. One was called the "Jar of Fortune." It consisted of a jar filled with tickets, most of which were blanks (as now) We find the lottery in Germany and France, the latter during the reign of Francis 1. Many lotteries were established in France in 1530, but owing to their evil influence were abolished some time later.

In Florence tickets were placed in large wheel, which was drawn about the streets by charity boys.

The lottery called the Blanc Royal was patronized in France by the Government to the extent of 12,000,000 francs. In 1869 the people of England became so interested in lotteries that all kinds of business and trades were carried on by means of lottery tickets, but this was suppressed, apparently so, under the reign of Queen Anne, but was still continued by the Government and wealthy individuals for many years afterward. The British Museum and many other fine public buildings were erected by means of the money obtained from the sale of lottery tickets. These secret sales were finally abolished.

In America's early days court and school houses were built from the proceeds of lottery tickets. Pennsylvania was the first State to abolish the sale of tickets on account of cheating and robbing the poorer classes, although the State subsequently sanctioned their sale, but about thirty years ago abolished it for the second time. Lotteries are now running in the States of Kentucky and Louisana.

Their agents are in every State in the Union. Flaming and attractive advertisements appear daily in the newspapers Why the press should lend itself to the steal is to be deplored. On account of its fraudulency it should be discountenanced by all good citizens. A favored few are the lucky ones. The majority are swindled. On the grant given by Pennsylvania to the canal company—a swindle brought into existence some years ago—the profits in a short time amounted to 33,000,000, dollars which was 1,000 per cent more than was appropriated for the concern.

Every lottery scheme is raised by money put up by a large number of credulous persons. The agent or originator gets the most of it. The guilt resting upon those who institute and carry out this system of atic robery. It is a species of gambling which ruins all who venture in it. This vice causes men to have an inordinate desire for wealth.—Sel.

THE REASON FOR THE OPPOSITION.

There is a reason for that opposition to holiness, little as you may think it. When you have reached the last analysis you will find in the depths of your heart some secret sin which you are not willing to give up, but which you will have to give up to be holy. Holiness demands some sacrifice that you are not willing to make—therefore you oppose the holiness that makes the demands. A gifted lady grew animated in her opposition to this doctrine, All unsuspected I drew her on in her conversation until she honestly confessed there were duties that had long weighed in her conscience, but she had never gotten her consent to do them and some things she was in the habit of doing that she had grave doubts about. There was no need to search farther—I had found the secret of her opposition.—Sel.

ADVICE TO BOYS.

Horace Mann gives this bit of advice to boys: "You are made to be kind, boys—generous, magnanimous. If there is a boy in school who has a club foot, don't let him know you ever saw it. If there is a boy with ragged clothes, don't talk about rags in his hearing. If there is a lame boy, assign him some part of the game that dosn't require running. If there is a hungary one, give him part of your dinner. If there is a dull one, help him to get his lessons. If there is abright one, be not envious of him; for if one boy is proud of his talents and another is envious of them, there are two great wrongs, and no more talent than before. If a larger or stronger boy has injured you and is sorry for it, forgive him. All the school will show by their contenance how much better it is than to have a great fuss. And remember who said, 'Love your enemies,' and 'bless them which curse you.' Extract

It is best to deceive no one—for he who begins by deceiving others ends by deceiving himself.—Sel.

ALPHA Factory.

York Island SHERBRO

Is Now Open for TRADING

F. & A. SWANZY

GEO. LEACH

Agent-in-Charge.

TOBACCO.

Messrs. SWANZY'S renowned fragrant Crown Tobacco can be obtained at their Sherbro Factory in Hogsheads of about 1250 lbs, nett, Half Hogsheads of about 550 lbs nett; also their Kentucky "Bull Head" brand— in similar packages.

Tobacco in Boxes.

To meet the requirements of the Up-RIVER TRADERS, Messrs. Swanzy have had both brands of their Tobaccos specially packed into Boxes containing 100 lbs. nett weight. These Boxes contain the choicest leaves and the Tobacco being most carefully pressed there is absolutely no broken or mashed Tobacco to be found therein—

The Boxes are of 1 inch wood, with hinges to the lid, which is screwed, not nailed down. Should the box be opened while in canoe and any of the Tobacco be taken out, it can be instantly detected; so that RIVER TRADERS in buying these Special Boxes, can rely upon receiving the exact weight they send for.

F & A. SWANZY.
ALPHA FACTORY.

The Early Dawn.

"The Morning Light Is Breaking, The Darkness Disappears."

VOL. VI. BONTHE, SHERBRO, WEST AFRICA, JULY 16, 1889. No. 12.

The "Early Dawn."

Published Semi-Monthly, At BONTHE, SHERBRO

Under the Auspices of the Mission of the U. B. IN CHRIST.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION

One Year by Mail, £0 6 0.
Delivered in Bonthe, 0 5 0
Half yearly by Mail, 0 3 0
Ditto, deliv'ed in Bonth, 0 2 6

Address.—Communications to J. A. Evans, Editor & Publisher, Bonthe, Sherbro, West Africa.—

Subscriptions to be sent to Rev. J. Gibbs, Shinyanga, Mr. E. A. Lewis, Freetown, West Africa, Rev. Wm. McKee, Dayton, Ohio, U.S.A., or to the Editor.—

DIRECTORY.

Commandant. C. H. Harley Moseley

Coroner. The Commandant.

Chief Clerk. M. J. W. Rocke

Interpreter. J. D. Rogers.

Bailiff. F. E. B. Buckner.

Sub Treas. & Col Chief Clerk J. D. Macauley.

Tide Waiters. J. S. Crowe. J. B. Turner. J. J. Warburton.

Asst. Examg. Officer Salymah Jasper Caulker.

Assistant Col. Surgeon. M. L. Jarrett, M. R. C. S.

Dispenser Rowland May

Postmaster. H. R. Williams.

Inspector of Police. M. E. Betts.

Gaoler. J. A. Dennis.

Overseer of Roads. A. O. Walker.

Religious Directory.

St. Matthew's Church, Victoria Road Pastor, Vacant.

Wesleyan Methodist, Lime Street Pastor, Rev. J. C. Thomas

Mendi Mission, (Congregational.) Good Home Pastor, Rev. R. C. Taylor

A FEW MAXIMS.

If a man wishes to be good, he must first cease to do evil, and second learn to do well.

If one desires, as one of old, to die the death of the righteous; he must live as the righteous.

A pure heart will promote pure thoughts, and pure thoughts pure words and a pure life will be the result.

One should cultivate piety, if he wishes to be pious.

The new creation, or second birth is a necessity, to the living of a new, or renewed life, in this world. Old things must pass away, and all things become new ere a man can be changed into a new creature in Christ Jesus.

WHAT WILL IT BE NEXT?

Dear Editor—It is an old adage by our forefathers "The longer you live, the more strange sights you will see." Surely a Christian community like this, should be found in the cry against such heart rending outrages on society, committed by one of its prominent members, who is likewise a member of St. Matthew's Church, Bonthe. If the grown man cannot take cognizance of such tender cases, cannot the catechist in charge deal with that member according to the government of their Church? Or have they no Church polity?

I was more than shocked to know that the huge number of Bandoo devils which were to be seen in many quarters of Bonthe, much to the annoyance of the intelligent public, were specially sent for, all the way from Bargroo, to come and perform some ceremonies on a poor Mendi girl, preparatory to her being sacrificed to the gratification of the insatiable bloodthirstiness of a communicant member of St. Matthew's Church What will it be next, we are not in a position to tell presently. But this much we can say that the evil is gathering strength daily; and unless dealt with promptly (laying aside for a moment personal considerations,) it will first weaken and ultimately cut up the life of the church. Bolder still, on Sabbath he was seen picking his way to the Church. I strained my eyes, in vain, to see if the Mendi lady took her seat beside him. May be she was indisposed, or he is not yet wound up to that pitch to take her boldly to Church. What it will be next we cannot now tell; But we shall not be greatly surprised to see them hand in hand picking their way to the house of that God who says, in plain language, "Thou shalt not commit adultery."

The estimated cost of this sensuality is not far from £15, exclusive of the outrage on society, the respect lost, and the suspension or expulsion from the class which he necessarily deserves, if the St. Matthew's Church will do her duty impartially.

Honest labour is now as a rule scorned by most of the natives who can very easily secure from eight to ten bags of rice, an equal number of demijohns of rum, and cases of gin to match, by simply offering a several gist or so on the altar of lust, and by turning their voices from the sacred soprano to the lowest bass tone in praise of their sandra." As a consequence of this, the people either do their honest labour altogether, or would ask such high price for a small bit of a job as would forcible convince even a fool that that gentleman is allied to a so-called rich man. What will it be next? Night visits into fowl coops, kitchens and, and dwelling houses. But these infatuated wretches, instead of going to put their night visits to him who is the originator of all these, have always gone to those who have nothing to do with it. The world is truly a stage, remember you can go through it only once. Every faithful member of that Church should never cease to cry against, till it be impartially administered. I close with the lines of one of your correspondents "Truth Seeker" in your issue of 15th Dec. 88 Is it time that discipline has become a thing of the past to the management of Bonthe Pastorate Council Alas! 'tis sadly the case.

Yours truly,

HAP.

TEMPERANCE.

Is, I should Judge, on the advance from the large gathering, that were present on the 4th inst. to witness a Temperance Entertainment, at the M. M. School room in this place. The Entertainment was given by the school, and was planned by that eminently successful Teacher C. A. Earnshaw Campbell. Rev. J. A. Evans Presiding Elder of the Mendi Mission District, of the U. B. C. Missions occupied the chair on the occasion, and I believe quite to the satisfaction of all present; In taking the chair the gentleman made rather strong remarks on the work of Temperance, especially of the Temperance Army which he said had been organized here to oppose Intemperance, Drunkenness, and the Rum Traffick. He also spoke of the evils of drinking in our land and the world over, and urged the importance of the Temperance cause for the good of the people. The interest taken in these remarks, showed that the audience largely sympathized with the Work of Temperance.

The exercises by the school, all had a temperance bearing, and as they were skilfully arranged and well performed they were very entertaining and instructive and I doubt not made a good Impression on all present. Mr Campbell deserves great credit for giving to the public such a Treat and the pupils of the school for their excellent performances.

Temperance Army, this causes me to wonder when we shall see these Temperance people moving about our streets, with music-Mottoes and Banners, displaying their Badges of Blue and White; surely the right thing has reached us at last, and I do hope Intemperance will feel its power.

EARNEST DISCIPLES.

Manheim, Pa., May 20, '89.

Dear Bro Evans,—I desire to write to you to tell you of several things that occured lately, one of which we had the looking out for very eagerly, and which was most highly enjoyed by all.

The General Conference of the United Brethren has convened in York, Pa. on May 9th and is still in session, but it is expected that by holding an evening session to night, they can bring the meeting to a close. It was my good pleasure to attend the session for a few days, being my first visit to a General Conference of the Church.

I was honored in being permitted to shake the hand and speak a few words with Bishop Flickinger whom I had long wished I could see. I also had the pleasure of taking the hand of all the other Bishops, except Bishop Wright to whom the agent did not seem to drive me to shake hands, so I passed him by. I also had the extreme pleasure of meeting Brother J. Gomer. I met him this way. I was on my way to the Opera House where they were holding the Conference, but having become bewildered in my journey, I took the wrong direction. I passed an old colored man who was carrying a box, and close behind came a colored boy who was taking in all the sights as he went along. I wished to find my way to the Opera House and thinking that boy could direct me I said "Say bob, can you tell me where the Opera House is?" "I don know sir," said the boy, thinks I "that's queer, if you live in York & dont know where the Opera House is: I stood and looked at the two as they passed on then crossing the street, I retraced my steps, when opposite D. W. Crider's Book Store, I noticed the old colored man looking up at the same over the door. It just then occured to me that that might be Bro. Gomer and that he was trying to find what I was. I stepped across the street, passed the old man and asked the boy what his name was, the answer was, "Jonathan, sir." Eureka, I've found it! I then reached out my hand to the old man and said "How do you do Bro. Gomer" but of course he did not say "how are you brother Stoner" for you see he did not know me yet, but gave me a hearty hand shake just the same. I made myself known to him, and we then seemed to have known each other for a long time.

Bro Gomer agreed to visit this place Saturday May 18th, to deliver an illustrated, or stereoscopic lecture. On the day set, Rev. Rean, our pastor, and myself went to the depot to meet Bro Gomer. That evening he showed his magic Lantern to a full house. Every one was well pleased. Sunday morning he spoke to the people about Africa. It had been announced that he would be in Sunday school, and the room was pretty well filled; the children and all enjoyed the talk he gave us: then Jonathan gave a song which wonderfully pleased the little ones.

For dinner they all three, (Brother and sister Gomer, and the boy,) stopped for a meal with Rev Rean, but for supper they found themselves in a rather tight place, they were invited to so many places, they could not accept all, so they were divided, the boy sat with Bro Young, sister Gomer with sister Miller, and Bro. Gomer with Bro. Witmeyer, that evening Brother Gomer again spoke to a large congregation. After the congregation was dismissed, I got Bro Gomer to show some of the members how to speak to the natives, he had Jonathan repeat what he said, and gave us an idea, which was enjoyed by us. Bro. Gomer's visit here was pleasing to all and has awakened a missionary spirit among the members that may result in much good. Many have said they would like to go to Africa.

Monday morning May 20 we bid adieu to Bro and sister Gomer feeling as if we had met for the first and last time, but with the assurance that we can one day meet in Heaven, if not on earth. Sister Stoner remarked that it seems as if some one in the family had been lost when they left. It appears so lonesome.

Continued on the Third Page.

The Early Dawn.
BONTHE. SHERBRO.

JULY 16, 1889.

BUNDOOISM.

Is one of those heathen Institutions, of a female character, that has insinuated themselves at least into the toleration of nominal Christianity, in this Colony, and could be found in even the city of Freetown itself, but a few years ago, parading the streets in open daylight in sight of Fort Thornton; whether this continues to be the case up to this time, we are not prepared to say, yet we are prepared to say that it continues in this place, much to the annoyance of those who would live, a sober, quiet and peaceable life, in our community. Moreover from the reports and complaints that have come to us, at various times, and continue to come. It would appear that this Institution, is very debasing in its character. Whether this is the effect of its contact with civilization or not, we are not prepared to say at present, but only have to regret that some professed christians should even countenance, such an Institution as the Bundoo, that is seen in our streets from time. And yet we are assured, and from creditable sources, that christians have aided and abetted the importation of Bundoo Devils for the displays of that vile Institution that lately paraded our streets in the day, and made night hideous with their nocturnal orgies. How can our people, become civilized when we tolerate base heathen practices. and christians import devils to make pandemonium of our Town! Will not our Elders, Pastors, Catechists and Teachers arise as one man to put down these Diabolical Institutions,in our midst? and unite their whole energies, for the expulsion of all manner of wickedness in the land.

SCARCITY OF FOOD; seems now to be the most popular topic in the out-lying country; and this town sympathizes largely with the same; for while the well to do and those employed may be able to obtain a supply of imported rice and other provisions; yet it is very hard for the poor, and destitute, and unemployed, to get sufficient to eat of the cheapest kind. It is, however, fortunate that we have Steam Communication with Freetown, and some trade from the surrounding Country as well as free egress to the various river Districts, so that while food is really scarce, the population is not so great, or so huddled together, as when the rivers are not open to trade. Yet the fact cannot be ignored that there is much suffering both here and in the rivers on account of the Scarcity of food. For in the Shaingay District the scarcity almost ammounts to famine; it would seem, from the reports that reach us from that quarter The Gbargroo District also suffers no little from the want of food.

FIELD NOTES.

Having undertaken to give under this caption news from the Mission field, we shall be obliged if our missionaries, in particular, & other missionaries in general, will correspond with us, & give us the freshest items from their work, that we may be able from time to time to glean something from the same for our "Field Notes."

Since our last we have been saddened by the death of Mrs. Nekoh Tucker of Shaingay, she was the relict of the late Rev. Thomas Tucker, a devoted native Sherbro missionary, who died some years ago at Mophun Station, of which he was then the Pastor. Mrs. Tucker, we believe, was taken ill while bringing the remains of her late husband to Shaingay for interment, and has been a sufferer during all the years that have since elapsed; but has now, we trust, gone to meet him, where parting will be no more. We also regret to note that we have heard that Mr. Remmie G. Caulker of NKooloonge is not so well, and has been suffering somewhat of late. His work, we are however pleased to learn, continues to prosper, except that the scarcity of food in the country renders it difficult to support the Mission children; we should here remark that the depredations of thieves is the chief cause of the scarcity of food at Koolonge, as we learn that the farmer Mr. H. P. Humphrey has planted fine crops of corn, cassada, etc., but thieves will not permit them to mature. Of many Charges or Mission Stations we are without tidings since our last. But from Shaingay we have heard that Rev. W. S. Sage the Presiding Elder held the Quarterly Meeting of that station on the 29th 30th June with much success and preached two excellent sermons during the meeting. Rev. D. F. Wilberforce, Principal of the Clark Training School, left Shaingay for Freetown on the 9th. The Training school and Day school are both at present closed for vacation. Food is said to be scarce at Shaingay. Good Hope Station (Bonthe) is making advancement. By the reports at the last Quarterly Conference, held on the 3rd. inst., it was found that much more had been done than was thought at our last writing. The Pastor Rev. R. C. Taylor is sparing no pains or labor to increase the religious experience of his members; vital piety is what he is striving to instill in his people, no easy task in a corrupt place like this, but we believe he is succeeding. The school here gave a "Temperance Entertainment" on the 4th inst which was good. From Dannville Station comes the good news, that the building of a place of worship is progressing nicely, the people are helping cheerfully; and the pastor Rev. W. S. MaCauley expects to complete the work by the 1st. Sept, Brother M'Cauley deserves the sympathy and help of all real christians and friends of mission work, and we trust that those who can will help him in his good work. Koneonany, we hear, is still progressing. Brother Cole is trying, Rev. W. S. M'Cauley recently preached there to a good gathering on a week day evening and reports well of the station. Matro is still supplied with services by the Itinerants from Avery Station. More attention, we believe, will be given this place in short.

Avery Station, about which we could say but little in our last, for want of information, has continued to prosper. The Quarterly Meeting held on the 14th and 15th insts., was a blessed occasion; there were 5 persons received into full connnection, three adults baptized, and 27 partook of the communion, on Sabbath and the attendance at at each of the services was large and interesting. On Monday from 7½ to 9½ A. M. The Quarterly Conference was in session 10 members were present and 2 absent; much good work had been done.

Fourth of July.—The Mendi Mission School of this place being supported by Americans munificence and and employing more or less of American Missionaries observed the American "Independence Day" this year as usual, as a holliday and a day of festivities. The pupils of School were given a Dinner and allowed to make merry on the Mission Ground; over 200 persons old and young paticipated in the celebration during the day. In the evening the School gave an Entertainment at their School room in Victoria road which was largely attended and was a grand success.

THE following drift of the ocean was found by a fisherman on the beach at Sea Bar on the 1st inst.

Thrown overboard from the Mail Steamer "Garth Castle" (Donald Currie Line) in Lat. 7. 17 N. Long: 14. 43 W. while on a voyage from London, to the Cape, on May 20th. 1889. The finder is requested to communicate with C. A. Boughton Knight, Naval and Military Club, London W. Stating date and position of this bottle, when picked up.

The War Chief,—Gbarpor was brought down, by Mr. Commissioner Garrett they arrived here on the 11th per. steam launch (James) from Lavanah and we believe pr ceeded to Freetown per. s. s. "Formoso" on the 12 inst; this is doubtless another providence in favor of Mr. Garrett and a great thing for the continued peace of the country, which altogether depends upon the hunting down and capturing, dead or alive of every freebooter that can be found.

MY VIEWS IN VERSE

By C. S. Brown.

On Monday morn at eleven O'clock
The first day of July,
In came Formoso, tearing no rock,
For none in our waters lie.

By her we learnt some funny news
Of Oku's case in court:
On which we all did freely muse
Exactly as we ought.

And other news again-a fact,
That thieves in Trinity Church,
Performed their sacrilegious act,
When none there was to watch.

In this respect we differ here,
And have no need to watch;
For Mendis would not venture near,
Where stands the sacred Church.

* * * *

Three times last week the grave did yawn,
And made some of us mourn,
The last a woman of full age,
Left us without a rage.

In age, of course, she did exceed,
What in the Psalms we read;
Her age they say was 1. O. 4.
And still some thought it more.

* * * *

Ye Frenchmen do some pity take,
And no more fires on Sunday make,
Or else if you continue such,
You'll scare our people out of Church.

Bonthe July 15-89.

(From the Weekly News)

THE LATE HON. C. W. M. HEDDLE.

NOT a few of the residents of this colony will remember the above ramed gentleman, who, for a considerable number of years, was the prince of merchants in Sierra Leone: and when in 1872, he closed his business operations here, with what reluctance his constituents parted from him on his quitting the shores of Freetown to take up his residence in France, where for the last sixteen years of his retirement, he lived in the lap of luxury, which the large fortune he had amassed here enabled him to affird. Charles William Maxwell Heddle was known here as an English gentleman, and possessed considerable property in this city, the greater portion of which he sold to the Colonial Government prior to his final departure in 1872 for the sum of 16,000. He was a man of keen intellect, and great aptitude: he well understood the intricacies of Sierra Leone trade: was a member of the Legislative Council from 1845 to 1871, and only retired from active life when the increasing weight of age & bodily infirmity compelled him to do so. His slim figure, expressive features, and small voice have not faded entirely from the recollection of those who well know him. He died recently in France the exact day of which has not reached us. He left as issue an only son, Mr. John C. Heddle, who visited this colony a few years ago.

To Subscribers.—Please send in Your Dues to this [Early Dawn] Office at once as we are much in need of the amount Due us to pay printers.

NEWS ITEMS.

Mr. REMMIE G. CAULKER,—since penning "Field Notes" we have learned, that although Mr. Caulker is getting on with his work, yet his health is not so much better than last year, which is to be much regretted.

S. S. Formoso arived from Freetown on the 1st inst after an absent of more than a mounth with cargo the following Passangers; J. B. Wright Esq. J. P.; J. B. Parkinson Esq. J. P.; Messrs Pearson, C. S. Brown Sen'r Fitzjohn; Mrs Hume, Mrs Clay Mrs Fewry, and others.

Thieves are abroad.— in our Town. The Mendi Mission Watchman Caught one on the early moring of the 3rd inst. Stealing Boards, he was arrested, Convicted of theft, and Locked up for one mounth.

Quarterly Conference – of Good Hope Station Mendi Mission was held on the evening of the 3rd. inst. in this place it was well attended.

American Independence Day—was nicely observed by the American Mendi Mission (U. B. C.) of this place, a gathering of about 200 men, women and children had a nice time ofit making merry.

New Printer,—Mr Geo. N. Cowan has been engaged as foreman of this Office, to fill the vacancy made by the death of Mr Collin C Bell lately deceased.

Personal.

Mr. C. S. Brown Senr. Catechist Bendoo returned from Freetown on the 1st inst. after a considerable absence, found his family and others well. Only he had to regret the death of two of his male members during his absence.

Mr. J. B. Wright J. P.—of Bendoo was also among those who returned per S. S. Formoso on the 1st inst from Freetown.

Cor'pl Moore.— Called on the 2nd inst. and reported Mrs Moore his wife, as under Treatment and much better.

Mr. A. P. Doomahbey.—Clerk of Shaingay Mission, arrived here on the 5th inst. on business and seeking food.

Rev. W. S. M'Cauley of Dannville Station Gbangbiah, Imperch Land, arrived here, from his place on the 12th inst and we believe, preached two interesting sermons, for the U. B. Church of this place on Sabbath the 14th inst.

Continued from the first page.

Jonathan was quite a hero among the boys here. Each one tried to do something for him. I think when he gets back to Africa he will be looked upon as a great "medicine man" as he will have some wonderful things to show the boys.

I intend sending him several things which caused him to open wide his eyes when I showed them to him. One was a ball made of wood through which a string was put, and by holding the string in an upright position he can make the ball stop at any point on the string. Jonathan was so well taken up at this place by every one and especially the boys, that he wished the train would go off and let him here. I was pleased to see such kind attention paid to them. This is a place in which there is no colored person living, but for all that they were well treated.

I said Conference was expected to close Monday evening, but it only closed last evening (Tuesday).

There has been a separation from the Church by a few delegates at the General Conference at York, under the leadership of Rev. M Wright on May 13th as you may get this letter before you may receive a paper I will give you the names. H. T. Barnaby and W. S. Titus of Michigan, C. L. Wood and G. A. Bowls of N. Michigan; C. H. Kincaid; J. K. Alwood and W. H Clay of N. Ohio; C. Beaver of Rock River; A. W. Gosslin, of Missouri; A. Bennett of Oregon; and A. Floyd; Z MacKee, J. M Kobriah and J. N. Sharp of White Siver the three last persons were found not to have been elected, so that only 11 delegates entitled to seats behind with M. Wright. The Telescope thinks the Church may probable lose from 5,000 to 10,000 members by the action of the kicker.

Bro. Gomer was given a number of daily papers with the full proceedings of Conference, which he is going to send you.

On next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, May 27, 28 and 29 the Sunday School convention of the East Pa. Conference meets at this place, and through the mismanagement of our Pastor we are being pushed for homes for the delegates, we expect from 100 to 150 to be present.

I noticed in the paper in the paper that the conference recomended the following Bro. and Sister Gomers return to Africa as soon as practicable; that the buildings at Shaingay, Kooling Good Hope, Avery and Mambo be repaired as soon as may be, and that a practical farmer to superintend the farm work be employed. As you will receive the full report through the papers I will not weary you with more, if there is anything in my letter that you might think would be of any interest to your readers you are at liberty to publish same.

I saw (through the magic Lantern) where the Early Dawn is printed.

With prayers for you and yours,
I remain your brother in Christ.
M. J. Stoner,
Manheim, Pa.
U. S. A.

WHAT WE SEE AND HEAR IN AMERICA.

Dear Bro. Evans—I have been wanting to write something for the "Early Dawn" ever since I landed in New York the 29th of April; we had a very pleasant passage in the Aurania of the Cunard line of steamers. The grand centenial of the inauguration of Washington had just opened up that day, and we saw thousands and thousands of people, all wearing clothes, and some of them most gorgeously attired, the 30th of April and the 1st. of May the throng of people was very great, processions of soldiers and Artisans Presidents, preachers, and politicians and as a matter of course the preacher was criticised as well as the politicians, some even ventured to speak ill of the presidents, their wives alone escaped criticism. I made a note of these facts and they help me to bear critisms, for when such learned grandees, are criticised I need not complain. We left New York and went West into Pennsylvania, here we had a very cordial reception at Lebanon, Annville, Chambersburg, and many other places; The country is lovely beyond description, the Lord has greatly blessed this people, and they too honor God with their substance, these Pennsylvania people have given largely to the African mission in money; they have also given five sewing machines, and they gave to your humble servant his wife and the young African good homes, we fared sumptously every day. I heard people say that Africa is a promising field and ought to be well cared for, I saw too, that the people mean all they say and in these people we may be sure we have warm friends. The split in the church at York was a sad affair and very much to be regretted, the party that pulled ont were sincere and thought they were doing the wisest and best thing the Lord only knows. I heard, some very wise men say that they were greatly deceive

What seems most strange to to me is that intelligent christian men that daily seek counsel from God should be so deceived, I believe that after all God will bring good out of it. I saw some at York that a General Conference is a pretty big thing to manage, and the Bishops have to be men of clear heads and strong heads.

This America is a fine country to live and be happy in, but for me I can serve God better in Africa.

Dayton, Ohio. J. GOMER.

PUBLIC ROADS.

Mr. Editor—Some of the streets of Bonthe are becoming first rate for cleanliness than that of Yhandahoo, the gutters were dug up about 2 feet wide. Day after day, there are to be seen the Government laborers and convicts, engaged in performing duties in the making and cleaning of public bridges and roads.

Many thanks to our Commandant Mr. C. H. Harley Mosely for the action taken in this popular duty.

I now call the attention of the Overseer of public roads to take a walk to Yhandahoo, and view Macolo road; On his returning let him trace his steps downward to the first street known as Mission Road which is now overgrown with wild grass.

With many thanks Mr. Editor, Yours truly—GRONOTUS.

EVILS OF THE BUNDOO.

From information recently received in the easly part of July, an individual came up to the Mission House, informing me of the way in which she and her mother had been brutally treated by the natives of a town called Largor. The reason is simply this; a child was sent by her mother to perform certain duties in one of the adjacent towns in which the Bundoo Devils were performig their Bundooism. The girl forgetting to be obedient to the injunction of he mother, rushed into the business without introduction, and was seized by those present. The mother having heard that her daughter was caught, immediately gathered a few men, hasted to the Bundoo bush, violently seized her daughter by force of arms, and outran those who were in the bush as also the men of the town, plundered every thing in the place; whereupon the 'Socho' and Marrugbah were caught, tied, to exposed and they were severely punished for that business. There was a man who presumed to defend himself was mortally wounded. Guns were fired. The wounded man was left to the mercies of Providence who alone has power to raise the dead. If the heathens are endeavoring to lay aside this custom, owing to the deceitful practices that have been perpetrated therein, then the christians ought to flee these things for it does not tend to the upbuilding of the Redeemer's kingdom, but to retard it. It is the duty of christians in every land to raise up the standard of the cross and endeavor to pull down the kingdom of Satan, by words actions and deeds. But in the face of this we believe that those who are christians and who will be looked upon as setting before the heathen an important example by the knowledge they possess and the blessing they receive from the hand of that God, who in the days of Elijah the prophet Elijah caused fire to descend from Heaven and consumed the sacrifices offered, so that the Heathen themselves had to exclaim "The Lord he is the God" etc. etc."

Nevertheless we hail the time when christians in this present time will no so deflate as in the days of the Hebrew children while in Babylon, in the land of their captivity; so bold as to declare in the face of the ungodly monarch, that "If it be so our God whom we serve, is able to deliver us from the fiery furnace and he will deliver us from the hand oh king.

Thanking you Mr. Editor for space occupied

Yours—JULIUS CEASAR.

BEARING THE CROSS.

Jesus on one occassion said, "Whosoever will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow me." The force of these words was very well understood in the days when Jesus uttered them. Crucifixion was not by any means an unusual mode of putting people to death, nor was the practice peculiar to that time. Other nations besides the Romans practiced it long before. Criminals, especially of the lower classes, slaves, and captives in war were often subjected to this terrible form of suffering or death. Of the latter sometimes hundreds were executed together. They were not always nailed fast to the cross, as Jesus was, but were tied fast with ropes, and left to slow death by starvation and the burning fever of thirst. This mode of punishment was considered reproachful to the last degree. Roman citizens were exempt from this unusual disgrace, as also from the torture of scourging.

On account of the extreme humiliation and contempt, as well as the excruciating sufferings, the cross became the symbol of reproach and pain. Jesus knew that this was the form of death he should die. He said to his disciples when journeying toward Jerusalem the last time "Behold, we go up to Jerusalem; and the Son of man shall be betrayed unto the chief priests and unto the scribes, and they shall condemn him to death, and shall deliver him to the gentiles to mock, and to scourge, and to crucify him."(Matt. 28: 18, 19.)

He knew also that the gospel he preached, and which the apostles should preach after him, would be scoffed at as the gospel of a man who was put to death on a cross. Hence it was that the apostles spoke afterward of the shame of the cross, and Paul said, "For I am not ashamed of the gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ."

The form of the words taking up the cross, or bearing the cross, arose from the custom of compelling the victim to carry his own cross from the place of judgment to the place of crucifixion. There was written on a piece of board the name of the victim with the crime for which he was to suffer death. This was suspended upon his breast as he went toward the place of execution, and afterward nailed to the cross above his head, so that all might see him both as he went to his place of suffering, and while he was enduring the pangs of death. It was in accordance with this custom that Jesus bore the cross from the Roman prætorium in Jerusalem toward Calvary, and that Pilate wrote the superscription, "Jesus of Nazareth, King of the Jews." This was written in three languages, the Latin, the Greek, and the Hebrew.

On the way toward Calvary, Jesus, wearied and exhausted from the long night's suffering, his mocking trial before the great Jewish council and before Pilate and Herod, and the cruel scourging and beating, sunk to the earth beneath the weight of the cross. The soldiers who had Jesus in charge and who crucified him, might order any one to carry the cross instead when a victim was unable to carry it. They accordingly commanded a man named Simon to carry the cross for Jesus. Simon was a stranger in Jerusalem, from the city of Cyrene in north Africa, and had just come into the country. And so this stranger was compelled to share the reproach of Jesus, and by the fact was exalted to a place of the highest honor. Blessed are they who gladly litt up Jesus' cross and bear it upon their shoulders.—Extract.

LOST.

SINNER, do you never stop to reflect? Judged by the truth of God you are already doomed. Should death seize you now, would you not lift the lament of the lost, and wail "The harvest is past, the summer is ended, and I am not saved!"—Jer. 8, 20.

Think, I entreat you, for what poor trifles you spurn salvation. The spirit has convicted you of sin, you have been earnestly entreated to flee from the wrath to come; but you said in your heart, "Go thy way for this time, when I have a more convenient season I will call for thee." That time never came; still you peril your soul, for God has said "My spirit shall not always strive with men." Gen. 5. 3. The call is unheeded still, and Christ knocks in vain at the portals of your soul. Alas! the hope of your rescue is growing less and less, for heaven has less attraction, and the world more power. Has not God Himself besought you to "seek ye the Lord while he may be found, call ye upon Him while He is near."—Isa. 55, 9. Even now, do you find your heart dead, so that you are but little concerned at the awful end that approaches; unmoved at the thought that you must wail with the damned to all eternity? Backslider, more stubborn and hard-hearted than others, more sure of perdition than those who never knew the pardon of sin, your light has become darkness, and "How great is that darkness." Oh! in the name of God, I beseech you to awake before God shall withdraw His Spirit from you forever!

Quench not the spirit, for the judgment hasteus on, and we shall suddenly be called to the bar of God.—Sel.

What She Did.

Christiana Dickson, the wife of one of the first settlers of Erie County, Pennsylvania, was a small blue-eyed, low-voiced woman, extremely timid. But she had a horror of drunkeness.

She lived in days when the use of liquor was universal. But when her sons were born she resolved to put a stop to whiskey drinking in her home. Her husband being absent, her brothers called for the help of the neighbors, according to custom, to put up a barn needed on her farm. They all assembled and went to work, while she prepared a great dinner. After an hour or two, whisky was asked for. She refused to provide it,

Her brothers, and at last an elder in the church came to reason with her—to tell her that she would be accused of meanness. Without a word the little woman went to the barn, and, baring her head, stepped upon a log and spoke to them

"My neighbors," she said, "this is a strange thing. Three of you are my brothers, three of you are elders in the church—all of you are my friends. I have prepared for you the best dinner in my power. If you refuse to raise the barn without liquor, so be it But I would rather these timbers shall rot where they lie than to give you whisky."

The men angrily went home, The little woman returned to the house, and for hours cried as though her heart would break. But the next day every man came back went heartily to work, enjoyed her good dinner, and said not a word about whisky.

This led to a discontinuance of the use of whisky at barnraisings in the county. Her sons grew up strong, vigorous men, and did good work in helping to civilize and Christianize the world. Their descendants are all of a high type of intellectual & moral men & women. If she had yielded this little point, they might have become, like many of their neighbors, drunkards.

Our stout-hearted pioneer fore fathers redeemed the land and drove out the wild beasts and serpents; but there are vices and malignant customs still to be conquered for which we need women of high souls and gentle spirits, like Christiana Dickson.—The Manna

PUBLIC NOTICE.

S. M. MISSION STORE.

We now offer for sale the Best BRANDS of FLOUR In Bbls. & Half-Bbls. ALSO SUGAR, KEROSINE, FLORIDA WATER, in Bbls. & Cases,

Provisions

Of the freshest kind and in good variety.

Best Tea, Coffee, Lard, Butter Milk, Cocoa & Milk, Vinegar Sauces, Mustard, Pickles, Tomatoes, Peaches, Tapioca, &c, &c.

MEDICINES

(Patent and Proprietary)

A SPECIALITY

Time Pieces, Watches, Sewing Machines, Watch Guards, Sewing Machine Needles.

N.B. We Pay CASH for Palm Kernels.

J. A. Evans.

The Early Dawn.

"The Morning Light Is Breaking, The Darkness Disappears."

VOL. VI. BONTHE SHERBRO, WEST AFRICA, JULY 31, 1889. No. 14.

The "Early Dawn."

Published Semi-Monthly, At

BONTHE, SHERBRO.

Under the Auspices of the Board of Missions of the

B. IN CHRIST.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTON

One Year by Mail,	£0	6	0
Delivered in Bonthe,	0	5	0
Half yearly by Mail,	0	3	0
Ditto. deliv'ed in Bonth,	0	2	6

ADDRESS,—Communications to J. A. EVANS, Editor & Publisher, Bonthe, Sherbro, West Africa,—

Subscriptions to be sent to REV. J. GOMER, Shaingay, Mr. E. A. Lewis, Freetown, West Africa. REV. WM. MCKEE Dayton, Ohio, U.S.A. or to the Editor.—

DIRECTORY.

Commandant.	C. H. Harley Esquire
Coroner.	The Commandant.
Chief Clerk.	M. J. W. Rocke
Interpreter.	J. D. Rogers.
Bailiff.	F. E. B. Buckner
Sub Treas. & Col Chief Clerk	J. D. Macaulay.
Tide Waiters.	J. N. Crown. J. B. Turner. J. J. Warburton.
Asst. Examg. Officer	Sulymah Jasper Caulker
Assistant Col. Surgeon.	M. L. Jarrett, M. R. C. S.
Dispenser	Rowland May
Postmaster.	H. R. Williams.
Inspector of Police.	M. E. Bette.
Usher.	J. A. Dennis.
Overseer of Roads.	A. O. Walker.

Religious Directory.

St. Matthew's Church, Victoria Road
Pastor, Vacant.

Wesleyan Methodist, Lime Street
Pastor, Rev. J. C. Thomas

Mendi Mission, (Congregational) Good Hope
Pastor, Rev R. C. Taylor

Faith.

Of course I refer to religious faith, a belief in the tenets of the Gospel, as received from Jesus Christ the greatest of religious teachers, which the world has ever seen; this faith implies a reliance upon the promises of God's word, as revealed to us in the holy scriptures. Such a confidence, as we may not have if anything else; a confidence that we can rely upon as a sure foundation of our hope. The writer of the epistle to the Hebrews (xi. 1) definedit to be "the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen." Such faith is very necessary to a christian life, and should be sought by every believer in order that he may be prepared for all the conflicts of life.

Reader are you a christian, have you a clean heart, and a right spirit within you? If not. Why not?

Fealty to Jesus.

BY EV. W. F. BERGER.

There is at least one thought in christendom that carries with itself great force and reasonableness, and that is, Am I loyal to Jesus Christ? See what wonderful things hang upon the answers we give to this question! The success or failure of Christ's visible church depends largely upon the responses the Christian world make to that thought. The question runs itself backward until they touch each human heart. Here then comes individual responsibility. But, alas! how many there are who never see any necessity in replying to this truth—fealty to Jesus. This is the sad side of life. How often the minister's heart aches! How often he prays God to come with converting power among men, when he sees men and women listless and careless about their salvation. But how much anxiety comes upon the church and her faithful ones when they find some who are not loyal to their Savior.

It is, however so much like human nature to excuse itself when the demands of the gospel press her for an answer to its many questions. We are, it is true surrounded by many details of life, and all these call upon us for effort. But it does not matter how much we are hemmed in by dufficulties and circumstances, we ought to feel that godliness is great gain; that positive Christianity is always best. Notice briefly that fealty to Jesus means—

1. An entire seperation from the world on the part of Christians.

What crude ideas many people have with regard to the Christian life. They think that to be a Christian means only a partial seperation from the world and sin. One can be a member of the church, and still be in the world. And how often do you hear people recite the famous text of the tares and wheat in order to prove their position right. But what a mistake they make! Their minds have not true logic. That wheat and tare transaction ends one day; and that they forget. How sad their condition! Did you ever see a building with roof of straw? I have. Such a building represents a wheat-and-tare Christian. He has seemingly enough religion round about him; but at the top of his religious life there are only stubble and straw. No, no, such a loyalty to Jesus does not pay. The world an I Jesus cannot go together. They cannot be united. You and I may try to serve God and Satan; but there it stops. It will only be a trying, a miserable failure.

To be loyal to Jesus, you and I must cut our connections from the world and sin. This means a great deal—more than people often imagine. It means an entire severance of all thought feeling and action from the elements of worldly life. It means an experience of meanness of heart, aims, and purposes It means a richness in our resolutions to do good. It means a living union with the church our blessed Redeemer gave to us. Then fealty to Jesus means—

2. The full possession of Jesus himself. Who would not have Jesus? Is there one so hard-hearted as to deny this Savior the privilege of entering into his soul? How often, when that Jesus stands at the door of our hearts, we refuse him admittance! Will he not come in if we open the door? Do you think he is unfaithful because you are? Listen to the sweetest words of any tongue. "Behold, I stand at the door, and knock; if any man hear my voice, and open the door, I will come in to him, and will sup with him, and he with me." (Revelation 3: 20.) Why not open wide the door and let the king of glory in? Would it not be better to have him as the honoured guest at the daily banquets of our hearts? When we spread our heartboards with the choice things of life why not let him come in and share them with us? Would not your home be dearer to you if you had there that Guest, whose presence drives out all sordid care and worry, sorrows and pain? How many they are who never see this Jesus in their homes! How many they are who break their daily bread at their tables, but never think of that bread which came down from heaven, a full possession of which means everlasting life!

But what a priceless treasure this Jesus is! The Christian knows what it is to possess in his soul the unspeakable gift. Possessing Jesus is great gain—a hundred fold gain to you and me; a gain beyond human conception. This life will be a happy song. The hour of death may be sad to our friends, but to us so cheerful and bright. The grave will not be a dark dungeon, out of which we can never come, but will only be the gate to life. And the hereafter—oh, what will that be! Possession of Jesus is the full and everlasting hereafter. Will we love him who loves us so? Christian, are you loyal to him? Sinner, what are you going to do with this Jesus?—Telescope.

REPT OF AVERY STATION M. M.

For the Quarter Ending June, 30th. 1889.

Mr Pres:

Series of unpleasant scenes have faced us during the quarter.

In the midst of half civilized residents whose influence and destructive habits unavoidably would result in ridicule and disgrace, and in the midst of numerous opposition arising from sectarian principles, is no common task to labor among the heathen.

Considering therefore the many disadvantages under which we labor, we can thankfully say that the work in this District is growing stronger and more successful.

The different Circuits have been visited as usual, although sickness interrupted us for a time.

During the months of March and April last some of the place in which we operated in the neighbourhood, have been destroyed by fire; when in the nearer farms, a great quantity of food comprising Rice, Cassada and Guinea corn have been consumed. Providentially no life was lost.

Sister Amanda Smiths' visited here a short time after the close of the last quarterly session has been productive of more ardent zeal.

We are thankful that the seed has not been sown in vain; and we earnestly hope that those who have been converted to God, will follow the lessons of truth and virtue taught them from time to time.

We have lost Bro. James Nivestook Mish a faithful and an aged member by death. He became a member in this church eight years ago, and though he was advanced in years, and feeble, yet his attendance in the house of God was nevertheless more regular than any one of his age. He was quite prepared to die, and after a few farewell words to some of the members he calmly fell asleep in Jesus.

Bro. H. J. Week's engagement has remained our wants in the itinerating work a good deal.

Day School—The work in this department is one ongoing, Bro Weeks who had charge during the teachers absence to Freetown has been very diligent in teaching and it is gratifying to to know that the children are progressing—N.. of both sexes, —42.

Sabbath School has had careful attention though the results have not been quite as pleasing as we desired.

No. of both sexes 46; Teachers and Officers 3. Total 46.

Missionary Aid Collection £3. 6. 8.

Light	Do.	2. 7½
Class	pence	3. 11½
Sabbath School		0 0
Preacher's Salary		15. 2.
		4. 5. 4.

S. B. Morrison

July 15th '89

Education is not like a bulky article paid for with money which can be seen and handled, but is an abstract thing, possessed in the inward parts of man, and invisible to sight. Knowledge is an inseparable possession. A man may possess lands, houses, boats, canoes and goods and he may soon become poor man. But Knowledge you can never lose as long as life exists, and your mental faculties are healthy; wherever you go it is ready to do you service. Therefore Solomon sums the instructions to the young in these words—"Take fast hold of instruction; let her not go: keep her, for she is thy life." Prov. iv. 9 3.

A Lover of Education.

SHE DIED FOR HER MONEY.

A sad case of death by suffocation occupied recently in New York City. A Bavarian immigrant occupied a flat in the house, and with him resided his mother, his wife and their one little child. The mother had a little money, at least twenty-five hundred dollars. This she had placed for safety's sake between the mattresses of her bed. One afternoon a smell of fire was detected. The younger women were overwhelmed, the house was on fire, smothering and burning both, and calling to the child by its name, made her way to the street. But the old lady stayed to get her treasure, and the effort cost her her life. She was found by a fireman suffocated to death with the bag of money tightly clutched in her hand. The story is a sad one, but are there not many among us who are losing life immortal for the sake of the wealth that is good for this world only.—Ed.

The Early Dawn.
—BONTHE, SHERBRO.

JULY 31, 1889.

A MODEL FACTORY,

We understand, has been established for some time in the Boom Rivers, by messrs Thompson Bros., natvies of the village of Kissy, a few miles from the city of Freetown, Sierra Leone. The Principle of business adopted by this Factory is destined to supersede all the principles of trade that have been established in the various trading spots along the Boom and Kittam Rivers which takes a larger quantity of Rum and Gin of the worst kind as essentials of the trade. It was once the popular belief that no profitable trade can be carried on in these rivers without a large quantity of Rum and Gin. But now facts and figures can bear us out that Messrs Thompson Bros. are the most successful of the River traders, and will always be, unless the other adopt the same principles they have substituted for the false and popular one.

We congratulate Messrs Thompson Bros. for their past success and wish them abundant success for the future. They have secured to themselves the lasting honour that will be handed down to generations yet unborn, of being the first gentlemen who have errried on a very successful business in these Rivers without a drop of rum, or gin; and that too against fearful oppositions.

Correspondents,—will please keep in mind when writing for this journal, that we absolutely and possitively do not want articles of an obnoxious personal character, and especialy so when they can be of no real good to the public benefit. But by this we do not mean to wink at the covering up of men's Crimes against society if mens bad doings against their fellows or against society comes under the observation our correspondents we shall expect them to write against such actions, but in a personal manner if it can be avoided A few objectionable articles have crept into our colums of late and one or more into this Issue, but were observed too late.

To Subscribers.—Please send in your Dues to this [Early Dawn] Office at once as we are much in need of the amount Due us to pay printers.

INTEMPERANCE

Is the monster that is making wholesale desolations, in almost, all lands, but surely in no other does it do a more thorough work of destruction than in this dark continent of Africa. It gets into Churches and destroys the piety of their members, even the priesthood not escaping its awful influence, but are with the laity often robbed of their piety by Intemperance; I can now remember that but a few years ago two ministers called on me, and with what difficulty one of them, made his way up the stairway, and worse what nonesense he talked, after he did find his way into the parlor, the sight was shocking. But Intemperance did all of it. I can conceive of no greater destruction than that of the piety and usefulness of the ministry, nor do I know of any other part of the world where intemperance, so easily invades the sacred precincts of the ministry, as it does among the native clergy of this continent. So it becomes us of this part of the continent, to be not only temperate, but to abstain from the use of all intoxicating beverages. Intemperance is a great barrier in the war of true piety, in these parts among church members, as it prevents that sobriety, that is so necessary to the growth of the christian religion. Intemperance promotes brawling and course language and thus deprives men and women of their gentility; so that whatever their social standing, otherwise, intemperance will mar it. For months and a thousand and other reasons Intemperance should be opposed by all classes of our community; and all lovers of law and Order; may we not then confidently rely upon all good men and women, to write with us in our efforts against Intemperance. Or have men become so stong, in their devotion to Bacchus, that they are willing to prostrate themselves upon the earth, and allow the juggernaut of Intemperance to destroy their bodies and souls without resistance? No I believe not; and feel assured, that if by any means we can arouse the sleepy masses to a sense of their danger they will assuredly arise to resist the power that threatens their utter destruction.

YR, ERNEST DELSAUVER.

June 25th '89

ITINERATING.

As this is the best means, of reaching the largest number of people, whether in civilized or heathen lands, should be carefully considered, by every one engaged in religious work; especially in such a land as this whether we labor among the heathen altogether, or only in part. For we find that men, who claim to be civilized, when not religiously cared for often act worse than many real heathen and it is very much to be regretted that civilized persons are to be found in all our communities who dissipate, if they do not otherwise break the Sabbath, by remaining at home instead of attending Church; amusing themselves in some secular way, instead of giving their attention to devotion, as the word of God requires. The Itinerant by walking from house and exhorting daily, those who are so inclined, to be, for their own edification, more prayerful, and especially should the Itinerant labor to interest all, on the subject of religion not of the head & lip variety, but heartfelt, the soul inspiring, the loving, the pure, and undefiled before God. I speak this time more upon the work, from house to house, and with individuals, because of the fact, that at this season of the year here, it is hard in many places to get large attendance, and men and women too, are more disposed to remain at home than to go out, especially, to attend the House of God, however able they may be to, attend other places. And also because Indigents are apt to become discouraged on account of these things.

J. A. E.

Bonthe, July 23 '89.

For the 'Early Dawn.'

OPEN THY MOUTH WIDE AND IT SHA LL BE FILLED.—Psalm. 81. 10.

Dear Editor—I beg to present the following lines before the readers of your valuable columns, which I trust may be interesting to all, particularly to men of the sacerdotal order.

The subject, readers, is misconceived by many individuals of the above named class, who think it right to appear before their hearers with mouth opened wide, entirely dependent on God for supply of words; with none or slight preparation being made for the occasion. Depending on this promise with an impromtu sermons, most preachers of the above class have been disappointed to certain extent and forced to make a solemn conclusions after long tarrition before their hearers with inefficacious sermons. We accept the promise as a fact, even when claimed to be general, but in our acceptance, we depend upon the specific work which it demands.

The promises of "Rest" to the laborer or that of "Eternal Life" by Our Savior, the Wisdom of whom I speak understand it so far as we do-that only successful soldiers of the cross shall obtain it notwithstanding the invitation being general. But to the direct promise which now engage our attention they proved to be ignorant of the fact; and in their ignorance they represent God not only as an encourager but an absolute commender of their impromtu and insignificant sermons. In His promise to fill their mouth He never forbids previous preparation but commanded meditation on His words day and night. Josh. 1. 8.

Only look at the position you occupy Gentlemen of the said class, and think whose representatives you are and in addition think of the people who form your hearers and patient on every Sabbath day, then see whether an impromtu sermons will suit such an assembly. Depend no more friends on impromtu sermons, with all earnestness and zeal together with your prayerful thoughts prepare your sermons, then not fail then will your mouth be filled with precious truth and you shall believe that men's hearts are not stones only, can never yield to sermon which discussion is a simple story, concluded with intelligible words as all careless preachers do.

Thanking you kind Editor for space occupied,—Your friend, LITTLE SAMUEL.

Bonthe July 25th '89.

Grateful Tribute.

The Rev R. Cookson Taylor and wife return their heartfelt thanks to the members of the three Churches of this place as well as to the Rev. J. C. Thomas and Catechist W. D. Casha for their Xtian Sympathy manifested and help rendered them during their bereavement.

MY VIEWS IN VERSE.
By C. S. Brown.

We bid thee farewell now July,
Thou art commanded
But then not by mine bade,
Through we have chamber'd.

We cannot say you've welcomed been,
Under such sinners;
For I do think we all have seen
Much of thy hours.

We thank God though who giveth rain.
In such soundness;
To make our corn and every grain,
In growth to advance.

* * * * *

Formoso off—I think we are
Most truly thankful;
In our small craft to venture far
Is almost sinful.

* * * * *

Accept our sympathy Rev T.
For thy late loss;
And help to comfort Mrs. T.
For thou can't nurse.

* * * * *

What news is this that thrills our core
From Sierra Leone?
That has brought forth such real tears
From every one!

'Tis said a boat from York set sail
Some time last week;
Not knowing that an unseen gale
Might play some trick.

They went as far as Cape Light House;
In seeming safety;
But when Murphy began to rouse
The Boat turned empty.

Of men not one was lost we're told
All swam to shore;
But the seven women not half so bold
Rose up no more.

Our pity we extend to those
Who are thus lost:
And trust that they have found repose
In Christ the just.

A warning this indeed to thee,
Sooth doth afford:
That thou should'st always ready be
To meet thy God.

Bonthe, July 26th, 89.

Enjoying Religion.

I can easily remember, when religions persons used to enquire of one another, as to how they were enjoying religion, but for many or some years I have heard little very little of this kind of enquiring and I have sometimes wondered if men to a very great extension since the good olden time ceased to enjoy religion; whether the experience of many religious persons is not a sort of bondage to them, rather than the liberty which the Gospel guarantees; something which men rather endure than enjoy; and for that reason they have largely ceased to speak of enjoying religion. Dear reader how is it with you? Does your religion seems a burden, or a joy to you? Is the yoke of our dear Redeemer a heavy or a light one? Do you bear it with mourning or delight? In short are you enduring or enjoying religion?—E.

The Temperance movement as we believe has taken root in this place, and we only await the fruit of an early abundant Harvest.

NEWS ITEMS.

Rev. W. S. M'CAULEY;— of Danville returned to his station about the 17th. instant.

S. S. Formoso unfortunately grounded about the mouth of Tallie River on the 16th. inst., we understand, where she spent over a week only reaching this place on the morning of the 26th. instant.

Died.— At Bonthe, at the residence of her daughter Mrs. Janice M. Taylor, at 11 45. A. M. on the 27th inst. Mrs. Mary Ann Cordelia Wilhelm, at the age of 48 yrs. 8 months 15 days leaving 4 children, 4 grandchildren and a large circle of sorrowing relations to mourn their irreparable loss.

Dear Mr. Editor—A very lowbred and silly love-lorn is living among us; who because she has been disappointed oft times by lovers, loving those who love her not' has taken into her head to malign two strangers who came not many weeks ago to stay among us, just for a change, by posting to public libellous writings detrimental to their character. It will be better if such hopes forsaken one takes another turn and instead of giving vent to their feelings by such low and mean tricks, which will not only make those strangers feel very uncomfortable whilst in our midst, but would deter others from seeking a change among us, regarding us as a community that has been lurking in their midst; an evil few whose business is to pounce upon the character and good name of strangers, let her seek a solitary place and mourn her disappointments.

Is there any reason why strangers should not feel comfortable and safe in such an intelligent community like ours? If so let her answer.—Yrs. truly

A RESIDENT.

Dear Mr. Editor,

It is surprising to find that, in a place like this which boasts of having 3 churches, the people (I mean professed Xtns.) have not as yet arrived to that standard of piety as would enable to prove to the heathen by whom we are surrounded that they are really and truly the follows of the Lord Jesus; for the examples set forth by these so called christians are so debasing that some of the heathens dare not commit such acts.

You will be surprised to find that notwithstanding the able and eloquent sermon preached at St. Matthews Church a few Sundays ago, from Nehmiah 10 ch. 31, "We would not buy it of them on the Sabbath or on this holy day", yet, in spite of all that, the preacher said on that occasion, the people still violate the Lord's day by buying at the public market and any where else where canoes may happen to land with Cassada &c. &c. How long will this evil practice last, God only knows; for the more the minister of the gospel preaches against this particular sin, the more the people are hardened, but the time is not far distant, when God will pour out his fury upon all such Sabbath breakers. Another evil that I observe is, that of Gambling on the Sabbath day by the natives in the farkies, and it is disgusting to find some of our Christian young men, instead of attending the Sabbath school, would join with the natives; hence there used to be so many crimes committed in the farkies on the Sabbath day, and hence some of the Government and merchant's labourers are never in a position to pay their debts at the ending of the month. If the Commandant would make it known, that who ever be found gambling in the farkies or elsewhere on the Sabbath or any other day, will be arrested and punished; I believe this practice will soon be knocked off: For it is evident, that the laws set fourth by God's Who will be ready to punish, and unless we submit to this, all the preachings from the pulpit.

The Commandant will also be rendering great help to the ministers of this place, by publicly preventing the sale of Cassada, etc., on the Sabbath. If this is done the natives who bring the trade, will be ready to obey his laws, than the Christian who disregards the warning from the pulpit see Nehmiah 13 chap. 15 to 21st verses.—It will be just and reasonable if your correspondent who styles himself "Hop" in your issue of July 16, would point out to the Catechist of St. Matthew's church, the motivinal referred to in his letter other wise no one but himself is responsive for the facts disclosed in his letter, for he must remember that the Catechist is either an Omniscient nor Omnipresent being. The Catechist has been discharging his multifarious duties to the entire satisfaction of his memoer and he does not encourage any inconsistency in his church as will be found in the case of the two members who were suspended lately; for he knew them personally and was aware of their misconduct—I shall write you on another subject of importance in my next.

Bonthe, Justitia.
July 26th 189

Dear Editor,

To the religious community, as well as to all British subjects, the incessant firing of cannons from the Ghundumah Factory at Bonthe from early morning until late at night, on Sabbath the 14 inst. was very unpleasant and presages ill. Never was such an unprecedented desecration of the Lord's day in open defiance of the laws of the land, known in the annals of the history of any christian nations in the nineteenth century. The simple reason given is the celebration of an Anniversary. Surely this is making a big jump from the usual order of things. I believe we are all quite pleased, and highly satisfied with the usual order of laying over the celebration of any of the public days observed in honour of our most gracious sovereign lady the Queen, (God Monda,) whenever they fall on Sabbath. Why should French irreligionists and insubordination take root downward and bear fruit on British soil? You contemporary "The Weekly News" through its powerful columns, has of late brought to the notice of the intelligent world, the wreckless manner in which British subjects were treated, their properties destroyed, and British laws contemned with impunity, on British soil, by French authorities on the Coast. The next point pitched upon for the manifestation of their abuse of liberty, is Bonthe, and in the future, opportunity is only waiting) we shall not be surprised to read from the "Weekly News" that worse things are done even in the city of Freetown, and at this rate we cannot but say that the outcome looks ill. The incident which transpired last sabbath no doubt was precipitated by that which transpired lately on the Coast "previously referred to of bold defiance with impunity, no effective enquiry being made. But the sure-to-succeed adage will always hold good. A stitch in time saves nine."

Yours truly,—JACK.

Bonthe Mutual Literary Club

Dear Editor,—Not less than six or seven times, attempts have been made to promote the culture of our Bonthe young men, which have all, one after the other proved to be failures. But the one I have perposed to deal with at present, is the one known by the above title, which is the last of a series of reported failures.

On the evening of the fourteenth Nov. 1887, the re met, at the Court Hall, a large and respectable gathering to witness the inaugural ceremonies of the Bonthe Mutual Literary Club, affiliated to the Grand East End Club, Freetown. It was an occasion of joyous mein, and indeed it was a source of pleasure as it afforded him the opportunity of hearing both the inaugural address and speeches made on that occasion. Not a few of those who were present that evening, would recollect this society made a good start. It was observed to the admiration that one of the many reasons of failure to establish in our midst an association which has for its object the literary and social improvement of ladies and gentlemen specially the latter, is self conceit and false notions; this step is very true.

But, now, the sole aim of the Bonthe Mutual Club, as it seemed, was to labour in spite of discouragements and manifest hostility, by putting in such means which are at once conducive to religious social and, in particular literary and good results.

To be more effective, the society proposed to bring before the public, from time to time, Lectures, Debates and other literary Exercises that may engage the mind with profit. Apparently, the society to be silent to our very suspicions, and intimated a good deal of a successful future. I say this on account of the prominent persons of the community that constituted and patronized their movements. But worth a reverse do we find! In the whole, the society to my recollection and perhaps to many others, never met more than about six or seven times, reckoning from the inauguration day to the very day of their last meeting, despite the many warnings given them by several respectable speakers that evening, especially that given by the Rev. J. A. Evans who spoke at length of the inevitable of young men of our community, and give counsel for their welfare, and Messrs Green and Brown Jun'r. who also gave advices to watch well the unity of the promoters, and to guard against every guiseless bad may creep in. I say despite this Mr. Editor, the society ultimately sunk beneath the weight of decaying influences. Pity, gentlemen of the club, that you have made an equal if not greater failure than those made by your predecessors. I repeat it is a pity gentlemen, that notwithstanding the readiness of the public to give full and hearty co-operations, you have come to such a wreck. This Mr. Editor, would make me not to believe the self-depending ability of young men in this place, to work up and maintain anything profitable and lasting in an educational point of view. However this may be, I believe, with a man of profound insight at his head, and the willingness of its members to be guided by every deliberate and wise suggestions, this or any society, will be in a position to operate in a way as to maintain its protracted existence.

You may hear from me again on the subject of some of the main causes of failure of societies in our midst. Thanking you in advance for space occupied.

Yours—HARMLESS OBSERVER.

OUR PUBLIC ROAD.

Dear Editor—Your Editorial of the issue of June 15th struck the right keynote to the tune "Our public Road-" and I do think every intelligent resident of Bonthe should fall in at once in joining in the song, by making known to the authorities of Freetown through your valuable columns the bad state of our public roads, especially that principal one wich is the first street that crosses the town from East to West, and which a stranger just coming into the town will most with and by which perhaps form his idea of the sanitation of the place.

The miserable condition of the principal public roads of this place is better seen than described, and the Commandant is perhaps not before this annual [illegible] of things, because the [illegible] from Sherbro must be noticed in the aggrandisement of Freetown. Where is the rights-ranks of such procedure, I fail to see by what, delimited logical argument the authorities can justify their action.

Why not invest the Commandant with the authority essentially necessary in a commanding officer placed over an important place like this, a place yielding such large revenue, to use a portion of the revenue in repairing the Public roads and render due account to proper authorities.

Why should the Commandant of Sherbro be instrumental is collecting the revenue of Sherbro and not have a share in the disbursements; I am conscious of the abuse of confidence in times past. But why should the revenue of Sherbro be so employed at all in bettering the condition of another place so as to shut out neglected Sherbro from the enjoyment of her revenue? We hope the government will give this matter the earnest and immediate attention which it deserves, and allow a liberal grant of from £500 to 1000 to Sherbro to carry out those plans which the commandant may have in mind for the general good of the place and people.—Yrs. truly

A RESIDENT.

The Independence Day.

This is Independence Day!
Who is independent!
Who can raise his hand & say,
Truth is my defendant!
A slave is he who takes his toddy!
A slave to rum in soul and body!
How the guns do crack and roar
Across the cont'neut.
Over mountain, lake, and moor
The crackling flash is sent;
'Tis followed fast by freedom's Thunder,
And grape-shot knocks its victim under.
Filled with stars the banner flies,
Unhindered every where:
Copied from unclouded skies
Coquetting with the air,
A million throats greet with hosannas
Our clear, cold-water, shining banners.
All hail to the whitest day
In freedom's history!
We'll keep it, unstaind for aye,
Sacred to liberty.
And temperance and peace for-ever.
Deserting from our army never!

George W. Banyon, on the Banner.

DISEASES OF WINE TASTERS.

The diseases of wine tasters were studied by Donnett, of Bordeaux, and Dr. C. Marandon, of Dijon. Wine tasters are frequently suffering with disturbances similar to alcoholism, although the claret tasters do not swallow the wine, but, on the contrary, eject it, and even rinse their mouth afterward. In one case of Dr. Donnett's, a man 32 years old used to taste every day 30 or 40 samples of wine, occasionally liquors and rum, without ever swallowing any part of them. After two years he became very excitable, lost his appetite, did not sleep well, and suffered with disturbances of sensibility, pains in the breat, a feeling of weakness, difficulty in breathing. He improved after abandoning his profession, although a nervous debility still remained, as noticeable by the facility with which he was set in tears.

Another statement made by Dr. Donnett is the great number of apoplexies in Bordeaux, where many persons drink one and a half litres of wines with each meal. This number exceeds the number of apoplexies in any city in the world.

The Home.

Seven year-old Willie McConnel, of San Francisco, found a bottle of whisky and tasted the contents. He liked it and drank over half a pint. He became tipsy, then ill, and in a few hours died in great agony, in spite of the best efforts of a good doctor to save him.

There is a prominent lady in Philadelphia who has written for private circulation a little social tract, in which she takes the view that a very little mischief would happen in the world that does happen if men would stay home evening with their wives Intemperance, crime, divorce and even political corruption, she attributes to this cause.

FOUND DEAD.

"Found dead by the roadside,
Augustus Hall,
With a bottle clasped to his frozen breast;
He died from drink, where he chanced to fall"—
Ran the coroner's verdict—and this was all;
God only knows the rest.

Where was the soul, once brave and strong
As he staggered along the broad highway
Where was the Mentor of right and wrong,
As he babbled a stave of the drinking song
Heard in a den that day?

"Vive la vie!" as the maudlin swell
Went trembling out on the startled air
An echo marked, from the frozen dell,
"La vie—la vie!" he reeled and fell,
Where to, he did not care.

The wind, in the leafless tree-tops, beat
The onward march of a wintry storm,
But the snow came down with silent feet
And tenderly spread a winding-sheet
Over the human form.

They found him there, when the morning light
Shone over the woodland far and free,
Still and stark, in the shimmering light
With his lips apart as, yesternight,
He sung, "Vere la vie!"

This human wreck in his rags and grime,
The lowest and least of his fellow-men
Had never committed a penal crime—
Was fellowed and flattered, in manhood's prime
For eloquent tongue and pen.

He had led the van for truth and right,
But, alas! he fell, where thousands yield;
Fell, with the goal of his hope in sight,
Fell, in the strength of his mind and might—
And sleeps in Potter's Field.

The terrible sin, may God forefend,
Of the man who never stops to think
He may dig a pit, and shape the end
Of a ruin'd life, when he asks a friend
To take a social drink.

Sel.

HE GOT THE PLACE.—A lawyer friend tells me he advertised for an office boy a few days ago, and as usual got a big bundle of answers. He got fairly well tired reading the various creditable things the young aspirants for the place had to say for themselves, but finally he struck a letter which really arrested him. It was written on a very much soiled and crumple piece of paper that had never been white, and ran about as follows:—"I'm 12 years old. I hain't got no father nor muther. I'm an orfan and I've got to hustel. It betes all how hard times is." My legal friend read no more of the letters but immediately sent for the writer of this one and gave him the job. The urchin settled down to "hustling" in earnest, and doesn't complain any more about hard times.—Chicago Mail.

Dear Mr. Editor,—I have noticed that the government laborers are not working honestly and faithfully as in the time of Commandant Mitford: but are to be seen carying wood to private houses during government hours. Cannot the time thus wasted be employed in seeing after the bad state of our public roads? I also noticed when the tide is up in high spring the road going to Ghundumah factory is geneerly overflowed and it was not so during last year. If our overseer will give a little more attention to his duty by reporting faithfully and prompting to his Boss the bad state of that and other public roads and the Boss in turn reports to head quarters from time to time I believe he will ultimately gain a hearing.—Yrs.

A SPECTATOR.

Mr. Editor—We have in our midst a shameless and adulterous young man who held a prominent post in this place. His conduct has ruined himself and family, see him at night, moveing as quiet as a Serpent ready to attack peoples children, and listening from door to door, to here tails to carry in the morning. How are we to get him from our midst; he has no shame, hear him with is broad laugh from door to door with those whose family are with them. Where is his? they are not: Where have they gone to? Gone to the bush, eat with the mendi's in the bush and lie with them, are they to be blamed. No, this man is the cause of it. Is it true he made confession to the Evangelist Johnson the last time he came hear that he is the cause of his house ruined. If so, another confession is needful to Evengelize a selfmade heathen like unto this youngman.

A Friend.

Mr J.B.Taylor

Begs to inform the PUBLIC that he now undertakes to be SLAUGHTERING at his BUSINESS PLACE, Corner of Victoria Road & Otto Street.

Bonthe.

PUBLIC NOTICE.

S. M. MISSION STORE.

We now offer for sale the Best BRANDS of FLOUR
In Bbls. & Half-Bbls.
ALSO
SUGAR, KEROSINE, FLORIDA WATER,
in Bbls. & Cases,

Provisions

Of the freshest kind and in good variety.

Best Tea, Coffee, Lard, Butter, Milk, Cocoa & Milk, Vinegar, Sauces, Mustard, Pickles, Tomatoes, Peaches, Tapioca, Sago, Pear, Barley, Potted Meats, Pilchards, Baking Powder, Chocolate, and Milk, Split Peas, Pears, Soups, assorted.

MEDICINES

(Patent and Proprietary)
A SPECIALITY

Time Pieces, Watches, Sewing Machines, Watch Guards, Sewing Machine Needles.

N.B. We Pay CASH for Palm Kernels.

J. A. Evans.

ADVERTISEMENT SCALE.
Reduced rates.

(FOR EACH INSERTION.)

A whole page	£1 10 0
A whole column	0 8 0
Half-a-column	0 5 0
One-fourth of a column	0 3 0
One-eighth of a column	0 2 0
Marriage	0 2 6
Births and deaths	0 1 0
Domestic servants wanted	0 1 6
Servants wanting situations	0 1 3

Each notice should not exceed 4 lines. Every additional line or part of a line 3d. extra.

'Early Dawn'

PRINTING OFFICE.
Job Work Done at short
Notice.

Enquire of G. N. Cowan—Printer.

The Early Dawn

"The Morning Light Is Breaking, The Darkness Disappears."

VOL. VI. BONTHE SHERBRO, WEST AFRICA, AUGUST 16, 1889. No. 15.

The "Early Dawn."
Published Semi-Monthly, At
BONTHE, SHERBRO.
Under the Auspices of the Board of Missions of the
U. B. IN CHRIST.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTON

One Year by Mail,	£0	6	0
Delivered in Bonthe,	0	5	0
Half yearly by Mail,	0	3	0
Ditto. delv'rd in Bonth,	0	2	6

ADDRESS.—Communications to J. A. EVANS, Editor & Publisher, Bonthe Sherbro, West Africa.

Subscriptions to be sent to Rev. J. GOMER, Shainyay, Mr. E. A. LEWIS, Free town, West Africa. Rev. Wm. McKEE Dayton, Ohio, U.S.A. or to the Editor.—

DIRECTORY.

Commandant	C. H. Harley Moseley
Coroner	The Commandant.
Chief Clerk.	M. J. W. Rocke
Interpreter	J. D. Rogers.
Bailiff	F. E. B. Buckner.
Bnh Treas. & Col Chief Clerk	J. D. Macaulay.
Tide Waiters.	J. N. Crown. J. R. Turner. J. J. Warburton
Asst. Examg. Officer	Sulyman Jasper Caulker
Assistant Col. Surgeon.	M. L. Jarrett, M. R. C. S.
Dispenser	Rowland May
Postmaster.	H. R. Williams.
Inspector of Police	M. E. Bette.
Gaoler.	J. A. Jibson.
Overseer of Roads.	A. O. Walker

Religious Directory.

St. Matthew's Church, Victoria Road
Pastor, Vacant.
Wesleyan Methodist, Lime Street
Pastor, Rev. J. C. Thomas

Mendi Mission, (Congregational.) Good Hope
Pastor, Rev. R. G. Taylor

ETERNITY WHAT IS IT?

The answer, perhaps, to this question may seem easy, as almost any one would be able to say, that eternity is that unmeasured duration that begins (if at all it can be said to begin) a measurable duration ceases, and continues forever. True enough we may have an answer in this, sufficient for the scientist, & logical enough to satisfy the philosopher, but! ask is it enough to satisfy the Soul that is to live or die throughout the endless ages of such a term? It is based to spend an hour with the dying, except we have the presence of Jesus, who is himself the life, but what must it be to die ourselves and have no light, even for an hour! But think of a man dying, the seconds ticking about the endless ages of that unmeasured duration, called Eternity. Then O man why are you going thus to die? God your Maker asks you why!

E.

THE CRAWFORD CASE.

Since the Onitsha Murder Case when resounded from the banks of the Niger to the British House of Lords, nothing has transpired in the Judicial history of Sierra Leone, which has arrested as much of public attention as the Crawford Murder Case upon which judgment was pronounced on the 20th inst. in the Supreme Court of this Colony. Between the two cases there is very little to choose. For cool continuous cruelty, for revolting outrage perpetrated on a poor, defenceless, unresisting human being, and for the dreadful catastrophe in which the tragedy in either of the cases terminated, the two cases are occurrences sui generis. Their recital rouses a sensation of peculiar horror to which the feeling heart is happily not often subjected, and elevates the perpetrators to a painful pre eminence which, even minus the penalty, none may care to occupy. It is not simply that law and justice as outraged but humanity itself shuddered at the crime.

In both these cases, the same Counsel were engaged; only by an unexpected irony of fate, they exchanged places strangely. The prosecutor in the Onitsha Murder Case, appeared for the defence of the Crawford Murder Case, whilst the Acting Queen's Advocate, who prosecuted in the latter case was sole Counsel for the defence in the former. If in the one case, the guilty parties were all natives and agents of the C. M. S., those involved in the present tragedy were with only one exception, all in the service of the Colonial Gov't, the leading character and principal actor being a British Officer, high in Special service of the Government. The nationality of Capt. Crawford, his connection with the Army and rank in the Service, when contrasted with the race origin and social condition of the victimised Oba, a Kroo boy and servant of Capt. Crawford, rendered it one section of the community, an anxious natural being for the safety of the Capt. petty general, but produced in the other section, an attitude of keen but silent observation of the conduct of justice in the decision and sentence that would be arrived at. There are those who in such a case, could see only a rare opportunity for the display of legal argumentative ability. No doubt the learned Queen's Advocate, acting valorously and single-handed against his redoubtable antagonist, who in himself is a host, aided besides by his two co-assistors, afforded a scene of thrilling interest to those intellectually capable of appreciating it. The well known ability of the leading Counsel for the defence was met by an independence of mind and stubborn array of damning fact on the part of the prosecution. But mere victory should not be allowed to eclipse the important principle which the case was peculiarly suited to illustrate. There is one consideration before which every thing else in connection with the Crawford Case dwindles into almost nothingness. The impartial justice of the British law enacts one and the same penalty for all the offenders alike, irrespective of rank, race or condition; but the application of this even-handed justice, when a European is the offender, has ever been regarded by many in the Colony as problematical and doubtful. It is of the highest importance that this feeling of doubt, not improbably groundless though we believe it should be shown when an opportunity offered to have rested on no solid foundation. In this matter our Rulers have an extremely delicate part to act, and one that is scarcely ever popular as their actions are always liable to be looked at from the partial bent of race—feelings.

Another point of equal importance. From time to time reports have reached the Colony of acts of reckless cruelty done beyond our jurisdiction by British subjects, white as well as black, by which the liberties and even lives of persons have been destroyed as things of no consideration. A man occupies a post on the borders, or, more frequently, beyond the boundaries of British Jurisdiction. He possesses power ill-defined and practically unrestrained by respect or fear of Law. He has many ways and means of escaping or evading the cognizance and penalties of the law. On the slightest occasion, almost for anything, a mere caprice, a wanton exhibition of power, such a man would draw, his pistol and shoot down one or more of his employees or servants as might for the time being be the objects of his whim, just as if they were in his estimation, not human beings, but only so many partridges; or else would use them so brutally that death ensued invariably. Again and over again we have heard of these outrages. Their recitals carry a strong appearance of truth. They obtain general credence. From Sherbro, from the Northern Rivers, from the Niger came from time to time terrible recitals. It is high time that the Majesty of the inhuman deeds have outraged every law which these reckless and should be vindicated, and that such offender if known, should be hunted after, apprehended and brought to undergo condign punishment as a warning to others, be they white or black or however they may be engaged, in sacred calling as missionaries, or in Government, mercantile or any other secular service whatever. The narrow escape the constables had who acted in unthinking subserviency to Capt. Crawford's orders would serve we hope to make others of their class pause to consider how they offer willing tools to execute unlawful orders and take part in lawless deeds.

We have no resentment against Capt. Crawford. He has our sympathy and confessedly that of the whole community, judging from the tone of feeling at the Supreme Court, for the serious risk he has run and the deep calamity that has overtaken him. But there is a great and manifest necessity that deeds such as were abundantly proved by the Crown against him should not be indulged in, should definitely and peremtorily be put an end to.—From the "Weekly News."

TRADE PROSPECTS

Are certainly, not what a good many expected, and yet so far as the out-look is concerned I am inclined to believe that the future has something of fair, if not to say great promise in it, for those prepared to accept the new order of things, but he who will not or is slow to do so must suffer or fall before the onward of march of new activity, that is dawning upon us. Trade and commerce has evidently become a different thing from what it was twenty years ago; small stocks of unassorted, or selected stuff, will not take again as in time past. Nor can a man hope again to demand and obtain his prices, or in any way control the market, he must now study the wants of the people and suit his prices as to the condition of things; any attempt otherwise must prove detrimental to his interests. In short the Trade of the future will require much of study, common sense and cool calculation on the part of the participant if he hopes to succeed. However, it is not quite so certain as some may suppose that all small or petty traders will be forced to withdraw from the field, for it is pretty evident that quite a number of them will in one way or another maintain their places and that others are likely to come forward to take the places of those who do retire. As to who continues in the Trade great or small, is of no material importance, as far as I can now understand the trend of circumstances, the changed condition of matters is sure to continue, and will shortly convince all that to be successful, a man must be energetic and push his business to the front and keep it there; let people know what he has to sell what he wants for it and of what use it is, and it he does this properly he will succeed; and it but a small dealer now, he will grow larger and larger until he will be one of the great ones. "Seest thou a man delligent in his business? he shall stand before kings; he shall not stand before mean men" In short there is every reason to believe, that Trade, will speedily return to a normal condition, but to the old abnormal state of many years ago no one need expect it to return the age is too advanced for that to be.

Bonthe, 8/89 R. J. BETAL.

The Early Dawn.
BONTHE, SHERBRO.
August 16, 1889.

"COURAGE & STRENGTH."

Two prerequisites, of an energetic life, in other words two things necessary to a life of push and vim, a life that makes itself felt on surrounding lives, and gives impetus to society. A life that sets in motion influences that upraise our fellows and bears the possessor onward to a goal of distinction, & such is the kind of life that Godly men should ever possess in order to secure not so much earthly, but heavenly distinction, which is far superior to what men of the world can ever, in their worldly course obtain yea, it is really a higher grade of life than they are capable of conceiving,—a life of humility & yet fraught with an energy that moves mountains, yea moves the world—but for such a life, pure and undefiled before God we need first Courage & second Strengh., Courage to undertake & Strength to Combat in the great conflict of life, of a good life' such as God the great Judge of all shall pronounce fit to enter the kingdom of Light.

Another Word.— To our correspondents, we offered an apology in our last for one or more scurilous articles that got into that issue, and said possitively that we did not want any more such yet several replies to these same objectionable articles have come to hand and while possibly they are as mild, as the authors were able to make them, they are yet not the kind of matter that we require, so let the writers not feel disappointed if we have left them out of this issue.

THE CRAWFORD CASE, — we give in full an Editorial from our esteemed contemporary the Weekly News, not because we fully endorse the sentiment of that Journal on the subject but that our readers may have the benifit of the views of its Editor on the subject as the case was watched through its Critical proceedings, in a Court more than one hundred and fifty miles, from where the Crime was committed, and where it must be known that strong race prejudice prevailed against the accused, and before a jury that had, for the most part, not to be convinced of the guilt of the prisoner, but of his innocence. It is now left for the unbiassed to Judge of the Justice of such a trial.

FIELD NOTES.

Time would not permit us to make notes for the last issue,—i e to put them in shape for the Printer, however, we shall try to give all the information we can, from the field. From the Bompeh we learn that some months ago Revds. West and Sage, with nine Mission boys and about 15 other persons, as hammock men, carriers &c., made an extensive tour to the interior, reaching about 150 miles inland, from Rotafunk at Head-waters of the Bompeh, visiting many populous towns. They report a large field ripe for Harvest; and how our hearts have longed to enter these extensive openings for the work of the master, but these reports make us even more anxious. The Bompeh Mission has an effective Itinerating Force. that of Rotafunk station composed largely of young men and boys of the school at that place is under the efficient management of that experienced Itinerant Rev. W. Sanford Sage of Girls Home, Rotafunk, this band of Workers do a large amount of Religious work in the surrounding country but we are not informed as to the number of towns they visit. Rev. J. B. W. Johnson of Falli, we believe, gives his whole time to the work of itinerating over a large field; he is eminently successful in literally destroying the Works of the Devil,—Devil Bush, Devil houses, Alligator-dens &c.—we are pleased to have two articles from the pen of Bro. Johnson which will D. V. appear in these columns in due course. Mrs. Juliana Thompson, daughter of Daniel Crowther, so well known in the past, as Preceptress of the Lesher school, has, by appointment, since our last Annual meeting, been in charge of Bompeh school, and from all reports, is succeeding well in a great work. The latest news from Bompeh (about the 7th inst.) reports all well that way, and stone being prepared for the new School Building in the near future.

Shainguy District, feels the severity of the weather, and scarcity of food which will operate adversely upon the Religious and Educational work, as the ailments of the physical effect the spiritual nature of man. Rentice House has, we are here, been completed, and the Itinerants are pushing forward in their Work. Mr. Dallop and wife of Mambo have not been quite so gushing as heretofore; but are away now on leave to Freetown, however a supply has been sent to keep the work going during their absence. We would here state Mrs Dallop's delicate condition, we understand, is the cause of their taking leave at the present juncture. From the Presiding Elder we understand, that the next Quarterlies of Mopon, Mainoong and Mocobo will be held conjointly at Mocobo, which we believe will work well & is a good idea, & just here we suggest that every where, that it is possible the people of the different towns and villages of the different charges, be urged to attend the Quarterly meetings of the respective stations to increase religious interest. Shainguy Station the Central Light of all the stations still shines brightly amid a constellation of lesser lights. Brother Bierstreth holds forth with a steady strong hand at the helm he has a large Day School and a very interesting Sunday school, which it was our place to visit on the 11th instant and conclude by invitation a large and intelligent Bible Class at Rufus Clark. Professor Wilberforce was at the same time away, and his band of Itinerants, as also Rev. H. J. Williams, attending services in the various Towns and Villages of a large District of Country. The writer also attended services at Flockinger Chapel on Sabbath at 11 A. M and listened to an able discourse, by the Bro. E. C. Bickerstetb. In the afternoon at about 5 o'clock the writer talked to the people at Zion. The writer also had the pleasure of short call at Otterbein Station, Bompehtookong on the 14 inst. of which Mr. A. F. Campbell has charge and has succeeded well, with the co-operation of the people, the work is going on the parsonage. There is a good school at Otterbein and we were pleased to see that the Old Chapel Barra erected there by the Rev. J. C. Sawyer during his pastorate, still stands as a monument of his labor in that place. We suggest that Quarterly Meetings be held alternately at Otterbein and Kononcong, and that Sish Pond, Gbradumanah and other places be invited specially to attend such meetings. We had great desire, but time and title would not permit us to do so, yet we hope to visit Kooloonge at some other time. As N'Charmany, Tonkohloh and Manoh are each mentioned in the Report of Schools and we have nothing special to add at present, we omit the further mention of these stations. Referring to Mendi Mission, we have to lament the recent death of Chief Kong Doomahbey, and if times were Ante Bellum times, we might expect worse to follow, but in these days of peaceful jurisdiction, and gospel light we need have no fears. Yet we sympathize with the relatives, & Mr. A. P. Doomahbey especially. Religious matters in that part are under the charge of Mr. Domingo who has everything in good trim we believe. No late tidings from Kononcony or Matroe. Avery Station chhronicles an accident in the Saw Mill, but no loss of life, by the falling of the gangway, yet it has hindered the execution of Lumber Orders considerably. But sadder than this was the loss, by death, of Brother John Miller, an aged Itinerant, who passed away suddenly from labor to reward about the first of this month. Dannville Station is still progressing, Rev. W. S. M'Cauley says he expects to complete his new Church at the station, the Dedication of which will D. V. take place on the 8th prox. the friends are invited; Prof. Wilberforce and the writer are both announced to preach on that occasion, & we trust all persons attending that Dedication may prepare themselves to help the Work by a liberal Donation. Good Hope Station is pushing on its work well, the Pastor has been afflicted in the loss of mother-in-law Mrs. Wilhelm whose death we noted in our last issue. We understand that a special effort for the cause of Mission is to be made in September, our wish is for its success.

REPORT OF SCHOOLS.

The following Report to the Coresponding Secretary of the Home Frontier and Foreign Missionary Society of the U. B. in Christ, is here given for the benefit of our Teachers and others in our mission schools.

Rev. B. F. BOOTH, D.D.
Corresponding Secretary.
&c, &c, &c.

Sir,—I have just concluded the Semi-annual examination of our Day Schools, and now submit a report of that department of our work. The Examinations were conducted with a view to ascertain the general work of the schools, and not so much the grades of each pupil as heretofore. I had teachers to conduct recitations in their usual way. By this I am enabled to note the plans and methods of each teacher

Sherbro Mission.

Shainguy—Quite an interest manifested by pupils, in school work and examinations The average results are not the same as when the school was examined last year December. This may be largely due to an accident which befel one of the teachers and prevented his attendance at school several weeks, Reading in all the grades was good; Grammar fair; Good work done in the elementary classes. Enrolled 122. The Lesher school which was conducted at a village a few miles from Shainguy, was discontinued, and the teacher transfered to another station Koolonge and Bompeh took:— The two schools were examined jointly. The Bompehtook work is quite new, but gives hopeful results. The Koolonge classes anawered readily in Geography, but need more drill in Arithmetic, and a little care, so as to correct careless habits in reading Both schools number 36 pupils.

Mambo—This school one year ago, gave excellent results in work and examination. Mr J. C. Sawyer was then in charge. There has been quite a falling off in numbers since Mr Sawyer left; the larger and more advanced pupils having either gone with Mr. Sawyer or left the school. Thorough work is needed to bring up the School to its its former standing in grades and and numbers Present enrolment 10.

Mandoe—The teacher at this station deserves credit for having re-organised, and kept up a good school during the term. While there is room for very great improvement, which on the whole is encouraging. 20 names are enrolled.

Rembee, Charmany, Mofuss, and Matacong, Mocobo, have not done much since the war of 1887. Rembee has a school of 11 pupils. Charmany presents a reports of 7 names most of whom were absent when school was visited. Matacong has newly organized with 5 pupils. These on the day of my visit, had gone to seaach for food. Mr Luke of the Clark Training school has a class of 11 at Mofuss, which is promising. Tongulloh Station has no school. Total number of pupils in Sherbro mission 229

Mendi Mission.

Good Hope.—This is the largest school in the district 143 names are registered. It is evident that the teachers have bestirred themselves to build up the school. The average daily attendance is however low for the number enrolled. The pupils of the fourth Third and Second grades did well in and were ready to give in their own words the substance of the lessons read. Considerable work is yet to be done in Grammor and Arithmetic.

Avery.—There is greater interest shown by the pupils than formerly. Reading in Fourth grade, fair: Grammar and Geography well committed to memory, but in many cases, the meaning of words and terms not understood. Work and problems in arithmetic should be practised. This is needed in all our schools. Number of pupils, 39.

Conkonany.—This school would likely have shown good work if teacher had not been ill during the term. The changes in the police force, whose children or servants make up a good part of the school, interferes with progress of the school as a whole. Yet I am glad to report improvement.

Danville, Chambersburg Mission school, had a very poor support financially during the term The teacher had therefore to labor under discouraging circumstances. He has however managed to keep and board a number of pupils at less personal expenses. Enrolled 22. Reading fair. In Grammar pupils gave ready answers, but do not fully understand principles and meaning of words. A chief difficulty encountered during the term, was the lack of books

Our teachers on the whole are doing well, and trying to build up their schools. They have many burdens to bear, and expenses to incur, that are unusual to teachers in America and other places. The support of many pupils often fall on their lot. To fail to undertake this burden would be to have no school or very poor ones, as to attendance and numbers. It would be a very great help to the schools and a relief to teachers, if some help is rendered especially as regards clothing. I wish in connection with this report, to express my grateful appreciation of the uniform courtesy and hospitality of the teachers and agents whose schools I have visited.

While passed with the work done and hopeful as to the future. I would suggest, that particular attention be given to the preliminary exercises found in the reading books, as those give valuable aid to pupils in prononunciation of "Aar" for "a", and "im" or "e" for "in" or Ae, must be early noticed and corrected.

The teacher should understand that he must largely depend upon himself to make the principles of Grammar understood by the pupils. He should not be satisfied with the ready answers given from memory, till it is certain that the pupils understands the principles involved.

Continue on 3rd page.

NEWS ITEMS.

Died.—We learn from Avery station, Manoh Gbargroo, of the death of John Miller, formerly of this place, but for sometime past employed as an Itinerant in the Mendi Mission.

Chief Kong Doomahbey—of Mando died we believe about the 10th. inst. We Sympathize with the relatives especially Mr. A. P. Doomahbey, Clerk of Shaingay Mission.

The Editor of this Journal returned from Freetown on the 2nd. inst and made a visit to Shaingay between the 13th and 14th. instants.

Church Dedication,— At Danville Station, Gbangbiah, Imperch, to be on the 8th Sept. Rev W. S. M'Cauley Past or.

s. s. Formoso,—Grounded on the edge of the Middle Ground on the 31st ult. The Cause was a dense mist that at times obscured everything on either side, and it was impossible to have done better under the circumstances, unless the vessel had anchored on account of the thickness.

Aug. 1st Mails were brought in by the Purser in Ship's Boat from the s. s. Formoso off Bwoy point.

2nd.—Some Passengers disembarked in Boats for Bonthe. Among others were Messrs. Hogan, Guinott, Bob, and the Editor of this Journal; they reached Bonthe the same night.

3rd.—s. s. Formoso,—Arrived with Mr. Lees and others as passengers, also much Cargo a part of which she discharged

4th. Formoso left for Freetown about 10 a. m.

Grand Court—was to have opened here on the 8th., but has been defered to the 21st inst., we have heard, on account of the illness of the Judge.

Our Waterside.—The Local Authorities are giving prompt attention, to the worst Bwak in our River Bunk, and will soon have it secured. We congratulate the Commandant and Overseer of Roads for success achieved.

To Subscribers.—Please send in your Dues to this [Early Dawn] Office at once as we are much in need of the money Due us to pay printers.

Continued from page 2.

Practical examples should be given in connection with every lesson in arithmetic.

Female teachers have been found so eminently successful as teachers of the young.—A task peculiarly adapted to their nature—that they form a large force in the army of teachers in other lands. I am pleased to notice that some of them are engaged in our schools. But nature alone does not equip and qualify the teacher. Natural endowments are not alone sufficient. She must study the subject to be taught, as well as study how to use the powers with which she is endowed, so as to do the real work of teaching. Superintendents and agents in charge of missions should insist upon this, and also that lady teachers attend our Teachers meetings and conferences.

D. F. WILBERFORCE,
Shaingay, West Africa.
July 5th 1889.

MY VIEWS IN VERSE
By C. S. Brown.

Ah! now, how can I best begin
To view in lines all we have seen
Just full twelve months ago!
When death the King of terrors came
And with one stroke that touched his frame
Dear Pastor N. laid low!

I call to mind full well the day
When he to York Island hied his way
On that fair Sabbath morn;
To perform in faith the Lord's behest
Exactly as he did request.
That we should sup not mourn.

'Twas on the following day at eve,
That we found out we had to grieve
For one so much esteemed;
But why weep we? lets dry our tears
Remembering that he without fears
Now walks with the redeemed.

* * * * *

Ye Sabbah breakers, stop and think
O'er your bad practise, ere you sink
In that infernal pit.
Remember that your God doth know
When during His hours ye gambling go Against His Sacred Writ.

By this you incur God's anger great;
As such prepare to meet your fate,
As devotees of old
He sinned and made Israel to sin,
Like him you cannot enter in Where dwells Christ's lovely fold

Ye should be found at Sabbath School
In listening posture, calm and cool
To learn God's holy way,
For in His second book most clear
The twentieth chapter doth declare
How you should keep His day

Formoso had been doing well
In breaking through the potent spell
That kept her back last month;
By her arrives the Revd. M.
Whom come to succeed late G. G. M,
Who died last year late month.

Of other passengers we note
As an old writer really wrote
"As enviable pair:"
Mr. and Mrs. S. go To
We wish you all prosperity
As much as you desire.

* * * * *

Your Paper, Sir, for July past
Contained some letters rather fast
On personal attacks:
I pity tonogh, such empty brains
For no one thanks them for their pains
In pointless remarks.

If write they would then write good sense
To edify and not incense
By such effusions rare;
Such nonsense from idle pate
Who do worse things at any rate
Than their vile stuffs declare.

* * * * *

Promoters of "Bonthe Mutual Club"
I here you have begun to rou
Over your past frailties toil
Pope Hennessy's day is drawing nigh,
Now wake and show yourselves right sligh,
Invite us to the trial
Booth
Aug. 15th '89.

Appointments for Shaingay District 3nd quarter

Shaingay	September	1st
Manoh	"	2nd
Tongkoloh	"	4th
N'Charmany	"	6th
Kooloonge	"	8th.
Rembee	"	10th.
Mocobo	"	12th.
Mambo	"	14 & 15th.

The teachers at Mactacong and Mofuss will please meet me at Mocobo and report.

W. SANFORD SAGE P. E.

—From the "Weekly News."

"TRIAL BY JURY", THE SOONER ABOLISHED IN SA. LEONE THE BETTER.

The words or words to the like effect were heard by many at the Court Hall on Saturday last past, soon after the Jury had returned their verdict of manslaughter against Capt. Copland Crawford and Mr. Robert Maister, and the Acting Chief Justice pronounced his sentence. The words came from a certain class in our midst, a good sprinkling of which attended the sittings of the Court during the trial of this painful case. At first, we were disposed to regard the utterances as the unrestrained ill guarded ebullition of disappointed wishes, full of sound and fury, signifying nothing: but upon second thought, we feel, we ought not, consistently with our duty to the public, to let it pass without some comment and notice.

We have to observe that the utterance came from a class whose number is small and which occupies exclusive position in the Colony, men of the same calling, race and nationality as Capt Crawford. Race feelings and professional with the unfortunate Captain have evidently called forth the wish—the desire,—Trial be Jury. No question but that Jury system acts as a barrier to the way of offenders especially from the privileged class easily eluding the arms of Justice or the penalties of the law. It makes it difficult for offenders to escape scot-free. But how have the Jurors in any way forfeited their right to sit?

We submit for the present that graniting they had been at fault, that would be no reason why the community should be deprived of one of the fundamental rights of every British subject to be tried by his own peers. Who does not know as it is alleged how very difficult, how almost impossible the British Government found it to obtain any body of Irish Jurors to condemn any accused of the Home Rule party, however clear the case might have been! Has Ireland therefore been deprived of the right of trial by Jury, or has the right been even seriously threatened?

Now what were the facts of the Crawford Case? Briefly told they were as follows:—Capt Crawford was employed in the Special service of the Colonial Government, and was stationed in the Sulymah District of British Sherbro, and in addition, was a local Magistrate. One of his personal servants was Oka alias Walker. At Cassie Capt Crawford reported that he lost £64 whilst occupying a house of Mr. Robert Maisters. Oka at Maisters suggestion was suspected to have robbed his master of the money. On this bare suspicion, he ordered the young man to be tied and whipped that he might confess and produce the money. In spite of persistent denial of the charge and profession of his innocence, the unfortunate Oka was tied and whipped several times during the day and in the nights of February 22rd, and on every occasion fresh hands were brought to administer the flagellation. The Captain himself was borne evidence to, as having used a coffee stick upon the person of Oka when tied. Upon the bleeding back, water was thrown and then salt applied over the wounds. Even after this, the tying and flogging went on The Policemen who were employed in this brutal act felt the punishment to have been enough and implored Capt. Crawford to desist, he had would no longer themselves flog Oka at all, or did it with evidently ill grace. Hammockmen were at this stage asked to apply the rod. This cruel act was on Sunday morning, and on Monday Oka died. Capt Crawford had expressed his mind to flog Oka to death. These facts the defence practically could not upset in spite of splendid and able efforts to do so. For this the Jury returned a verdict of manslaughter! This was the verdict on account of which the Colony of Sierra Leone must be deprived of one of its most precious safe-guards to justice!

On the verdict, the Judge declared that Manslaughter was one undoubtedly committed and that when charging the Jury he had expected they might return some such verdict as was returned by them. So that though the Judge expressed satisfaction at the verdict, those who returned the verdict have acted wrongly and untruthfully and their post should be abolished!!!

Let us reverse this picture. Let us suppose that it was Oka, a black man who with the Policemen had inflicted the brutal treatment upon Capt. Crawford and death ensued! Think!! What was the feeling at Court in regard to the unfortunate Captain? There was no jubilation anywhere expressed. The audience felt he was guilty and were satisfied to find that the white man was amenable to the same laws and penalties as the blackmen; and, when the Judge before passing sentence spoke of mercy and actually sentenced the prisoners to to one year's imprisonment, there was an audible expression of fellow feeling and sympathy with the prisoner.

The fact that our Jurors have often had trying cases to determine and have invariably shown themselves capable of rising above local and other prejudices for he sake of justice and have discharged their conscience with an integrity that others might have found so easy to imitate.

NARROW ESCAPE.

Dear Sir,

It will be very surprising to you and your various readers when going through the following piece of news. That a lad of 12 and a woman from Vandee Farkie was catching Crabs to serve as fish by the beach from Mocolo to Magbeth or about the 5th instant and while performing this when reached ... gbatch the lad was seized by a ... Constrictor of about 18ft in length & wrapped up immediately to stifle to death, the lad then took hold of the head & the woman ran to call for help to the boy's ... who spared no time to come ... cue the lad from the grasp of the Boa. Thanking you for ... occupied.

Yours as ever
NOTI S.

Debis
9th Aug. 1889

Appointments for Shaingay Dis t 3nd quarter

Shaingay	September	1st
Manoh	"	2nd
Tongkoloh	"	4th
NCharmany	"	6th
Kooloonge	"	8th.
Rembeo	"	10th.
Mocobo	"	12th.
Mambo	"	14 & 15th.

The teachers at Mactacong and fuss will please meet me at Mo-o and report-

W. SANFORD SAGE P. E.

From the "Weekly News."

RIAL BY JURY", THE SOON- ABOLISHED IN Sa. LEONE THE BETTER.

The words or words to the like ef- were heard by many at the Court ill on Saturday last past, soon after Jury had returned their verdict of nslaughter against Capt. Copland awford and Mr. Robert Maister, and Acting Chief Justice pronounced sentence. The words came from ertain class in our midst, a good inkling of which attended the sit- gs of the Court during the trial of a painful case. At first, we were posed to regard the utterances as unrestrained ill guarded ebullition disappointed wishes, full of sound d fury, signifying nothing: but upon ond thought, we feel, we ought not, sistently with our duty to the pub- to let it pass without some com- nt and notice.

We have to observe that the utter- ce came from a class whose number small and which occupies exclusive sition in the Colony, men of the ne calling, race and nationality as pt Crawford. Race feelings and fessional with the unfortunate Cap- n have evidently called forth the sh—the desire,—Trial by Jury. No estion but that Jury system acts as a rrier in the way of offenders especial- from the priviledged class easily ding the arms of Justice or the alties of the law. It makes it diffi- t for offenders to escape scot-free. t how have the Jurors in any way feited their right to sit?

We submit for the present that grani they had been at fault, that would no reason why the community should deprived of one of the fundamental hts of every British subject to be ed by his own peers. Who does not ow as it is alleged how very difficult, almost impossible the British Gov- ment found it to obtain any body Irish Jurors to condemn any accus- of the Home Rule party, however ar the case might have been! Has land therefore been deprived of the ht of trial by Jury, or has the right en even seriously threatened?

Now what were the facts of the wford Case? Briefly told they were follows:—Capt Crawford was employ- in the Special service of the Colo- l Government, and was stationed in Sulemah District of British Sher- , and in addition, was a local Magis- te. One of his personal servants Oka alias Walker. At Cassie Capt. wford reported that his lost £64 ilst occupying a house of Mr. Robert isters. Oka at Maisters sugges- n was suspected to have robb- his master of the money. On this e suspicion, he ordered the young n to be tied and whipped that he ght confess and produce the money. spite of persistent denial of the charge l profession of his innocence, the ortunate Oka was tied and whipped eral times during the day and in the nights of February 23rd, and on every occasion fresh hands were brought [illegible] administer the flagellation. The Cap tain himself was borne evidence to, as having used a coffee stick upon the person of Oka when tied. Upon the bleeding back, water was thrown and then salt applied over the wounds. Even after this, the tying and flogging went on. The Policemen who were employed in this brutal act felt the punishment to have been enough and implored Capt. Crawford to desist had would no longer themselves flog Oka at all, or did it with evidently ill grace. Hammockmen were at this stage asked to apply the rod. This cruel act was on Sunday morning, and on Monday Oka died. Capt Crawford had expressed his mind to flog Oka to death. These facts the defence practically could not upset in spite of splendid and able efforts to do so. For this the Jury returned a verdict of manslaughter! This was the verdict on account of which the Colony of Sierra Leone must be deprived of one of its most precious safe-guards to justice!

On the verdict, the Judge declared that Manslaughter was most undoubtedly committed and that when charging the Jury he had expected they might return some such verdict as was returned by them. So that though the Judge expressed satisfaction at the verdict, those who returned the verdict have acted wrongly and untruthfully and their post should be abolished!!!

Let us reverse this picture. Let us suppose that it was Oka, a black man who with the Policemen had inflicted the brutal treatment upon Capt. Crawford and death ensued! Think!! What was the feeling at Court in regard to the unfortunate Captain? There was no jubilation anywhere expressed. The audience felt he was guilty and were satisfied to find that the white man was amenable to the same laws and penalties as the blackman. And, when the Judge before passing sentence spoke of mercy and actually sentenced the prisoners to one year's imprisonment, there was an audible expression of fellow feeling and sympathy with the prisoner.

The fact that our Jurors have often had trying cases to determine and have invariably shown themselves capable of rising above local and other prejudices fort he sake of justice and have discharged their conscience with an integrity that others might have found so easy to imitate.

NARROW ESCAPE.

Dear Sir,

It will be very surprising to you and your various readers when going through the following piece of news. That a lad of 12 and a woman from Vandee Farkie was catching Crabs to serve as fish by the beach from Mocolo to Magbatch or about the 5th instant and while performing this when reached Magbatch the lad was seized by a Constrictor of about 18ft in length & wrapped up immediately to suffocate to death, the lad then took hold of the head & the woman ran to call for help to the boy's assistance who spared no time to come and rescue the lad from the grasp of the Boa. Thanking you for space occupied.

Yours as ever,

NOTIS.

Debia
9th Aug. 1889

[From Christian Standard.]

A Word to Friends.

Beloved, suffer a word of exhortation. The harvest-days are upon us for work in the Lord's vineyard. Do not let your hands hang down. Thrust in your sickles and reap. "Only be thou strong and very courageous; be not afraid, neither be thou dismayed; for the Lord thy God is with thee whithersoever thou goest." If the Lord really uses us in His work there must be a fitness for personal service. First of all, this is a "preparation of the heart," and this is from the Lord. See to it that it is thoroughly cleansed—"purified by faith." Top-dressing is not the best. There is a surface blessing which may yield quite a crop when all conditions are most favorable, but "when tribulation or persecution ariseth because of the word, by and by he is offended." How sad it is to turn out a "Mr. Ready-to-halt! Go deep, dear friends, go deep. "Break up your fallow ground," "and seek the Lord, till He come and rain righteousness upon you." Yes, "till He come." "keep not silence; neither give him any rest." There is too little persistent, wrestling prayer. "And He blessed him there," is not written of any man that does not get down to a place of importunity that says, "I will not let thee go except thou bless-ed me." Then and not untill then, are we quite prepared to "take the cup of salvation" and drink to the full. Have you ever been baptized with the Holy Ghost and with fire? Are you sure? Did it kill old carnality? Were you filled with the Spirit? Did you speak with another tongue? Did perfect love cast out all fear? Did you cease caring for the honors that come from men, the chief seats, and being called rabbi Were you satisfied with the honors that come from God only? The honor of being well "hated for Jusus' sake," of "suffering as an evil doer," and of having "all manner of evil" said about you falsely? Of being "beaten in the synagogue," and "brought before "their rulers, and elders, and scribes, and threatened?" If so, praise the Lord. But wait a moment, beloved. You have answer your catechism kindly and well, I think. Now let us enquire, . dose your anointing abide?" Are all of this past acts in your experience realised as the present facts of today? Are you now "walking] in the light as God is in the light," and have you "on the whole armor of God!" And if not, will you not join us at the the throne of grace, bringing a broken spirit and a contrite heart, and a new surrender and consecration beseech God to "restore the joys of His salvation!" We are sure He will do it; blessed be His name. And even though we do realize that general and thorough "preparation of the heart," at which we have glanced, yet we need, and must have, a special girding for every service. An anointing with "fresh oil" warms the heart, enlightens the mind, open the ear, and loosens the tongue. The Lord grant it to every one of us; and He will, if we are in a position to receive it. But alas! there are many "nobles that put not their necks into the work of the Lord," in this day as well as in Nehemiah's and to these will come "the curse of Meroz" rather than the Lord's anointing. Nevertheless, "let us rise up and build." "Have no fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness, but rather reprove them." May the Lord give to the "people a mind to work." "If it be possible, as much as lieth in you, live peaceably with all men." But do not expect to follow Jesus, and do His work, and yet do not encounter Satanic opposition. Be sure that Sanballat and Tobiah and Geshem will be "grieved exceedingly" that a man should "come to seek the welfare of the children of Israel." The devil (disgnise as a friend), the world and the flesh are a trinity of evil, allied for the defeat of God's work. Their weapons are (1) discouragement (Neh. iv. 3); (2) organized resistance (v. 7, 8); the cry of treason (vi. 6, 7); (4) intimidation (v. 9); and (5) compromise (v. 10). "Now, therefore, O God, strengthen our hands," and help us to remember that our weapons are not carnal, but mighty through God to the pulling down of strongholds." We are to take "the sword of the Spirit, which is the word of God." To be sure, there are those who cannot or, will not receive this word "Yet count him not as an an enemy, but admonish him as a brother." As a brother, too, would we enter your homes, and share the hospitalities of your firesides. And whether we see eye to eye in all things, yea or nay, we may love as brethren, be pitiful, be courteous." And in our heart there is a loving prayer for blessing, in which the old men and maidens, young men and children of our Zion every one of them, has an especial share: That, in these days of gladness the song of the heavenly host may find a loving response in every heart, "Glory to God in the highest and on earth peace, good will toward men."

"For the love of God is broader Than the measures of man's mind,
And the heart of the Eternal
Is most wonderfully kind.
"But we make His love too narrow
By false limits of our own,
And we magnify His strictness
With a zeal He will not own
"If our love were but more simple
We should take Him at His word.
And our lives would be all sunshine
In the sweetness of our Lord."

—Friends' Expositor (Editorial.)

NAILED ON THE FOREHEAD.

Mr. Editor,

Dear Sir,—Your most monthly the "Early Dawn" was received on the 31st July and perused. An article by your Correspondent (signed) Jack appeared in that issue has furnished your valuable journal with a character of a kind offensive and in nature very complicated. Thus in writing he said, "Why should French irreligiousness and insubordination take root downward," and bear fruit on British soil &c", which when closely looked into is a make bate between the two powers, I differ from the writer; the simple meaning is this the action of a single man like that on the 14th July is not to be attributed to the whole multitude of a nation, this is an idea or expression full of absurdity. Next place in his letter the question of "religion and insubordination" It is not hard to our understanding to notice the Early Dawn crying against the immorals of this place, but I shall present iv deal with "insubordination."

Whereis, or is there any in the Laws of Great Britain's Government that prohibiting man to perform work on Sun day? I suppose there is none, otherwise the permits granted to the Merchants frequently, and the Officials demanding fees of guineas and half guineas for that day's work, is it not a violation of the Law? this Jack in his writing has failed to notice, Where is the law and insubordination of French to British in that? Jack failed again to know it is the church alone denouncing against this desecration of the Sabbath. In appealing to this power need great deal of consideration. But it appears from Jack's letter that he would rather confond Religion with political affairs, that he cannot for a good reason prove in referring to a certain action on the coast, I believe Jack like all Philanthropist has good intentions but he lacks of proper ideas or choice of words adorn his letter advocating Sabbath to keep orderly. Thanking you for space already occupied,

I am, yours truly,—FACT.

PUBLIC NOTICE.

S. M. MISSION STORE.

We now offer for sale th
Best BRANDS of FLOU
In Bbls. & Half-Bbls.
ALSO
SUGAR, KEROSINE,
FLORIDA WATER,
in Bbls. & Cases.

Provisions

Of the freshest kind and good variety.
Best Tea, Coffee, Lard, Butte
Milk, Cocoa & Milk, Vinega
Sauces, Mustard, Pickles, T
matoes, Peaches, Tapioca, S go, Peas, Barley, Potted Mea
Pilchards, Baking Powde
Chocolate, and Milk, Spi
Peas, Pearl, Soups, assorted.

MEDICINES

(Patent and Proprietary)
A SPECIALITY
Fine Pieces, Watches, Spe
ing Machines, Watch Guard
Sewing Machine Needles.

N.B. We Pay CA
for Palm Ke
nels.

J. A. Evans

ADVERTISEMENT SCALE.
Reduced rates

(FOR EACH INSERTION.)

A whole page	£1 10
A whole column	0 [illegible]
Half-a-column	0 6
One-fourth of a column	0 3
One-eighth of a column	0 1
Marriage	0 2
Births and deaths	0 1
Domestic servants wanted	0 1
Servants wanting situations	0 1

Each notice should not exceed 4 lin
Every additional line or part of a line 3 extra.

'Early Dawn

PRINTING OFFICE.
Job Work Done at short
Notice.
Enquire of G. N. Cowan
Printer.

ISSUE(S)
MISSING

The Early Dawn.

"The Morning Light Is Breaking, The Darkness Disappears."

VOL. VI. BONTHE, SHERBRO, WEST AFRICA, SEPTEMBER 16, 1889. No. 17.

The "Early Dawn.

Published Semi-Monthly, At

BONTHE, SHERBRO.

Under the Auspices of the Board of Missions of the

U. B. IN CHRIST.

TERMS OF SUESCRIPTON

One Year by Mail,	£0 6 0
Delivered in Bonthe,	0 5 0
Half yearly by Mail,	0 3 0
Ditto, deliv'd in Bonthe,	0 2 6

ADDRESS,—Communications to J. A. EVANS, Editor & Publisher, Bonthe, Sherbro, West Africa,—

Subscriptions to be sent to REV. D. F. WELBERFORCE Shiangay, Mr. E. A. LEWIS, Freetown, West Africa, REV. WM. MCKEE Dayton, Ohio, U.S.A. or to the Editor.—

DIRECTORY.

Commandant.	C. H. Harley Moseley
Consular.	The Commandant.
Chief Clerk.	M. J. W. Rocks
Interpreter.	J. D. Rogers
Bailiff.	F. E. B. Buckner.
Sub Treas. & Col. Chief Clerk	J. D. Macaulay.
Tide Waiters.	J. N. Crown. J. B. Turner. J. J. Warburton.
Asst. Excise. Officer.	Sulimanh Jasper Coulibor
Assistant Col. Surgeon.	M. L. Jarrett, M. R. C. S.
Dispenser.	Rowland May
Postmaster.	H. E. Williams.
Inspector of Police.	M. E. Betts.
Gaoler.	J. A. Dundas.
Overseer of Roads.	A. O. Walker

Religious Directory.

St. Matthew's Church, Victoria Road
Pastor, Vacant.

Wesleyan Methodist, Lime Street
Pastor, Rev. J. C. Thomas

Mendi Mission, (Congregational.) Good Hope.
Pastor, Rev. E. C. Taylor

LANDS TO BE CONQUERED FOR JESUS CHRIST.

There are some tribes and people dwelling along the Minee river, The mouth of which is about 100 miles from Gaboon. The present name of the Minee river is the Agoway river, as was affirmed by one of those who in 1855 went up the river with Capt. Croft, of the English man-of-war Pro matheus. Three hundred and seventy-two miles from the mouth of the river going up, is a great and wonderful bridge, constructed by the natives and thrown across the river, to facilitate inter-communication.

From the Gaboon to the mouth of this river is 100 miles, according to information furnished to one of the undersigned by the Rev. Dr. Nassau, of the American Baptist Mission, who laboured twenty years at Gaboon.

The tract of land occupied is a very extensive one, the country very populous, and its limits have not been ascertained. There are over a hundred countries, each country governed by its own king, the smaller towns being chieftaincies. The soil is very rich and fertile. Cedar trees abound, and also cocoa, plantain, banana, yams beans and corn all of which attain very large and extraordinary sizes. Kola trees are also in abundance, and there are plenty of fresh streams. The Minee supplies fish; and cattle and poultry are also in the country. There are very many elephants—in the forest, and especially at Mbitun and Pinvin, where palm kernels age pleatiful.

The mineral resources of the country are not known, but there are blacksmiths in the various places, who work in iron and are very skilful in making needles. There are also native engineers who construct bridges, &c. The people are, all of them, of a very peaceful disposition, and most likely to receive missionaries. They observe one day in seven strictly as a day of rest, and on that day not even water is allowed to be carried. But their worship is not known: and though they carve images, there is no adoration paid to them. they acknowledge, however the existence of of a good deity and a bad one.

We now give an enumeration of the different countries composing the Mbitwor land.

On arrival at the bridge already mentioned, and which lies from north to south across the river (Minee or Agoway), on the right hand side are these nations, viz, Mbisuag, Perminyan, Perndockneg, Perngeosang, N'dop, Mitsee, &c.

On the left or north side of the river, are the Pashia Pandoshia, Pinya, Pisheo, Perpueg and Fecugec, Cobngea, Nbayum, Nbawaie, Ngongholaeg, Perfoocg, Perfoegiam, Porlain, Permou, Perkoom Perpacg, Perpiah Mbifoon, Pinvin, Mbainavouez, Pernquain, Permilicalum, Permaigoom. Paryham, Mbaisongudarm, Perfoundarm. Mbainkundarm. Mbaingeundarm, Mbinkumileoeg, Mbaindzundarum, Pitiocgn darm, The following are the chief countries of Mbituor land. Mbimbueh or Perlaegfaundum; Permivong, Perlaegfnuntiorg Mbaingang, Perlaeghatsneu, Mbiotim, Perlaegn'jeotsen, Perpiparn, Pertishaing, Pershaingnang, Perlaegtnaunsang, Perninddan, Permbu, and Pertsaen, the capital city of Fuau lonnou, the king, and grandfather of Mr. Z. E. T. Williams of the Customs, Sierra Leone, who is therefore one of the princes of the said land. On the back part of these countries are the undermentioned, viz., Pertoeg, Pernstel, Perlivinery, Perlaeg Fuatsaug, Perlaeg Fuang'ngah, Perlaeg Fuanza, Perlaeg Fuan-Ntim, Perlaeg Fuau Tindon O'zu, Peraeg Fuau Ntim, Perlaeg Fuau Tindon Ozer, Perlaeg Fuau Tindon Mingang, Permoeg, Pernwhuar

These countries have never, to our knowledge been claimed or acquired by any foreign nation or power, and our object in now bringing them before the notice of the Christian public, is that they might be taken up for mission work, and that the Gospel of the blessed Lord Jesus Christ might be made known among them. Such a field ripe already unto the harvest should be reaped by the Lord's labourers. We, who sign this paper, are of the royal family of some of those countries, as is Mr. St. John, whose mother is Ngumangi, a princess, daughter of Fuau N'dungtiorg, that is king Nduntiorg of Mbimbueh, and we have the warmest desire that the truth should be sent to our brethren; and we pray that the Holy Spirt may move the hearts of some of those whose eyes this may reach, to do something acceptable in God's sight, that the light of His Holy Name and the knowledge of his word may be vouchsafed unto these our brethren.

(Sgd.) S. E. White, alias D'Ozheor Yim fuau, Z. E. T. Williams, Grandson of Fuau Lou Ngou, king of Pertsarn, S. Albert St. John, grandson of Fuau Nduntiong, king of Mbimbueh, Johannah Langley, alias Min Fua N'duntiorg, John Francis Langley, grandson of Fuau N'duntiorg, Hannah Langley, Joalina Spencer, and Elizabeth Dwson, grand-daughters of Fuau N'duntiorg, king of Mbimbueh, Fanny Liverpool, Nancy Cummings, granddanguter of Ngeo Fauupee, chief of Persiamguang, Abraham Grant, grandson of Aliphs and chief to Fuau Linko Pinga and native of the same.—The Artisan.

CANNIBALISM

It seems rather unfortunate that cannibals are reported in the upper Bargroo, and especially between Bendoomah Jarrah and Yandahoo, places within British Jurisdiction. However much this may be denied or disbelieved by inteligent minds, yet we must not forget that there are yet mysteries in Afrion. On the 19th Ultimo three little boys went from the latter village to the bush to cut fire wood and whilst they were busily engaged in so doing a sudden grasp was made upon one of them about 8 years old by some thing resembling a Leopard. Fortunately for the poor sufferer a man was passing and hearing the yell hastened to the spot and rescued him, yet the unfortunate lad died before the next morning.

A friend, and my informant who is residing in the same village said that he saw the lad after he was rescued and knew him, and that the wounds were more likely those of a dagger than of a leopards claws.

On the 25th. also under the drenching rain of that morning an old woman sister-in-law to the deceased lad's master or father was caught and eaten up, part of her bones with the head and two legs were found in the bush near Jarrah the next day, but the other parts were devoured. Due notice was taken by the Natives, of the skin of the forehead which was curiously cut off. Chief Humper Rango we are told upon receiving the sad intelligence placed a fine of three heads of money on the people of Yhandahoo & one head on those at Bendoomah.

Since then Mr. Editor, you can hardly conceive the craziness afloat about that locality. The watchword of the cannibals was observed daily by those who understand their calls. stringent means should be adopted by the authorities to check these barbarous acts at once, as Chiefs cannot be expected to do it.—Bara.

The Early Dawn.
BONTHE, SHERBRO.

SEPTEMBER 16, 1889.

THE RICE CROP.

Is largely reported as a failure throughout the Gbargroo & adjoining Teritories. When we use the word largely it is to show our hope of a partial harvest & some believe it will be considerable yet the facts are that the fields, although numerous, are nearly al of them blasted, and the owners, and others who are nearest to them say that there is no grain in the husk of most kinds of rice and on this account all hearts are sad, Rice growers however say that there are very many varities of rice, & that it is the one kind, known as Sherbro Rice or Ko-ko-fah that has burned this year and the blight is more general because of the fact, that this particular kind of rice, has of late years been planted in the Gbargroo, more than any other variety. And they say further that there are men who always plant more or less of some other kind, especially Gbongoh, a fine White Rice, and that this has not been hurt the present year on this the hopes of many depend. Traders assure us that later on, we shall get rice in fair quantity, & are arranging to buy. But as these men are not always the best informed, we confide but little in their hopes and await the further developements of the rice harvest, which has already began and will continue for sometime yet come.

SCRAPS OF ADVICE.

To Scribblers, it is scarcely necessary, to let people know of your sins by denying every accusation or responding to every insinuation made by others, Nor is it of any benefit to any person, to pay attention to all that people have to say even about themselves, whether good or bad; unless when they know that they are guilty of the ball, they at once reform and do better, and if they have realy done good to go on in the good way.

It is not prudent to attempt to write for the press simply because you can write an ordinary letter to a friend, for you can be assured that your mistakes will not all meet the charity of a friend to shield them from criticism.

Further it should be remembered that poor composition is far worse than bad hand writing and that both are liable to go the Waste Basket.

"A REVIEW—Of Revd Edward H. "ewett's 'Communion Wine' by John Ellis M.D."

"The Holy Supper, Is representative &c, by J. R Hoffer" Is the double title of an excellent Pamphlet, that has come to our notice through the kindness of the Publisher, J. R. Hoffer of Mount Joy Pennsylvania U. S. A. We have read a portion of it with great interest and feel that it ought to be read by many, if not al. Pastors of Churches. It has a value as a temperance work; which should not be overlooked and, which in our estimation commends it to the more careful reading of the laity, as well as the not-pastorate Clergy; who not having flocks may feel little interest in the Communion prerequisites. But few of whom will dare to deny their interest the cause of Temperance.

The Dedication:—at Danville Station of the Sallie Fohl U. B. Church took place as was announced, in our Issue of the 16th ult. on the 8th. ist. Revd. J. A. Evans presiding Elder of the Mendi Mission District, Officiated assisted by Prof. D. F. Wilberforce Principal of the Rufus Clark Training School. Rev. S. B Morrison Pastor of Avery Station, and Rev. W. S. M'Cauley Pastor of Danville Station

The Services were well attended, notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather and the interest was the best throughout the day.

The good singing for which Danville is noted, was greatly supplemented, on the above occasion by the presence of a contingent from the Rufus Clark, whose well trained voices toned up the harmony most delightfully.

Rev. W. S. M'Cauley is to be congratulated upon his success in erecting so neat a little place of worship as also the many friends who have assisted him in the work at Danville.

EDUCATION CIRCULAR

Board of Education Chamber,
Freetown, Sierra Leone.
24th. Aug 1889.

His Excellency the administrator has been pleased to direct that the following Dispatch, received from the Right Honorable the Secretary of State for the Colonies, on the subject of the Establishment of an institution for the promotion of Technical Education in the Colony should be printed and circulated for the general information of the public, prior to its consideration by the Board of Education.

The Subject is one of such manifold importance in regard to the future welfare of the Colony that His Excellency ventures to hope that the public will so cooperate with the Board in the scheme proposed, that the wish of the Right Honorable the Secretary of State, as expressed in the last paragraph of the Dispatch, may be speedily fulfilled.

J. C ERNEST PARKES
for the Clerk to Board of Education

SECRETARY OF STATE TO ADMINISTRATOR

Sierra Leone 186. Downing Street, 30th July 1889.

Sir,

I have the honour to transmit for your consideration a copy of a letter from Sir J. S. Hay, in which he draws attention to the special importance of taking steps to encourage Technical Education in Sierra Leone.

You are aware that the expediency of promoting some kind of industrial training in the Schools of the Colony has constantly been referred to in the Inspector's reports, and that repeated endeavours have been made by the Government to induce the Managers of Schools to include such a section in industrial subjects in their Schools.

The existing Education Ordinance & Rules provide for the award of liberal grants not for such instruction, but for general education, and it has been found that the result has been disappointing, as boys and girls earning these grants last year.

Sir J. S. Hay now proposes that a fresh and increased effort should be made by the government to promote Industrial Training by the grant of extra financial assistance to any School undertaking it.

I have had the advantage of discussing the matter with Sir J. S. Hay, and I am disposed to think that something in the proposed direction should be so, on foot.

I request therefore that you will bring the matter before the Education, Board as soon as necessary.

It appears impossible to induce the ordinary Schools to undertake any part of Industrial Training, except to to a small extent among the elder girls

It seems therefore desirable that a special School should be established in Freetown, which should be mainly devoted to Industrial Training of elder boys.

It should be clearly understood that the Government itself institute cannot such a School. I should be prepared to approve the award of a liberal special grant in aid of any local effort that might be made in this direction, but in the absence of any popular demand for Technical Education, the foundation and management of such a school would not be a suitable task for the Sierra Leone Government in its present financial condition.

The existence of an institution devoted to the teaching of useful handicrafts would however be of such incalculable benefit to Sierra Leone, that I should hope that local enterprise will not be lacking to carry it on aided by such assistance as the Government could properly afford. It would probably be sufficient as a commencement, if a suitable house were hired, with some adjacent ground, and two or three competent workmen engaged for a certain number of hours per week to teach a a small number of elder boys such subjects as carpentering, shoe making and gardeneming. I understand that a competent shoe-maker could be obtained, and it should not be found impossible to obtain the services of some one actually employed in agriculture to teach the rudiments of gardening. If any large number of pupils presented themselves it would even be possible to obtain skilled craftsmen as teachers from England and the West Indies.

If the Board of Education considers that such a School would be desirable, I should be prepared to approve the contribution of a large portion of its cost, say one third (not exceeding the maximum of £200 proposed by Sir J. S. Hay) from the funds of of the Colony. I do not know whether it would be possible to induce one of the larger religious denominations to take up the plan, and start such a School. It is obvious that it could usefully be worked in conjunction with the existing Freetown Schools, the elder boys devoting the morning or afternoon to Industrial Training and continuing to attend their former School for the rest of the day.

In such a case, I should be prepared to approve, if recommended by the Board, of a small special grant to the ordinary School, for each of those "half-timers."

The Industrial School could however, probably be more easily founded and maintained by a joint Committee representing all denominations, and able to attract pupils from all the Schools in Freetown and its vicinity. If the Board of Education should consider that this plan is more likely to succeed, it might be useful to call together a meeting of those persons interested in the matter, at which such a joint Committee could be formed and subscriptions obtained from the leading inhabitants towards the foundation of an institution likely to be of great importance to the Colony. A guarantee Fund would probably be necessary to ensure the actual managers against loss, as it must be clearly understood that the Government can undertake no risk, and could at most contribute a third of the initial and subsequent annual cost.

Fees from scholar might after a time go far to meet the rest of the annual expense, but in any case the initial cost of founding the school must be mainly borne by those interested in the welfare of the Colony.

I have taken this opportunity of sketching out in some detail the plan suggested by Sir J. S. Hay, as it appears necessary that the conditions of a successful effort toward Technical Education in Sierra Leone should be clearly stated. Hitherto such efforts and aspirations have failed in spite of the proffered assistance of the Government, from lack of local enterprise and interest.

I shall be glad if, through the efforts of the Education Board, the suggestion of Sir J. S. Hay could meet with better success.

I have &c,
(Sgd.) KNUTSFORD.

The Officer Administering
The Government of Sierra Leone.

NEWS ITEMS.

A Steamer was aground outside we learn about 29th. or 30th. ultimo.

The Mails.— or perhaps, we should say, A Mail was closed at 8 a. m. on the 31st ult. for Freetown per S. S. "Susu."

An Address on behalf of U. B. Sabbath School, Good Hope Station, was delivered in School Room of U. B. Church, Bonthe, September 1st. 1889.

Sallie Fohl U. B. Church of Danville Station, was dedicated to worship of God on the 8th inst —see Editorial this Issue

Professor Wilberforce—of the Rufus Clark Training School Shaingay was recently on an extended Tour of our Mission Stations he attended Dedication at Danville on the 8th. inst.

Sept. 8 Schr. "Success" from Freetown consigned to C W. Betts.

She brought as passanger Mr. W. E. C Dixon as Bookkeeper for Messrs Pickering and Berthoud.

10— Schr. "Wonder" from Freetown consigned to Messrs. Paterson Zochonis & Co.

11— Boat "Ellen" H. E. Williams master and owner for Freetown with mails

12—S. S. "Fomoso" from Freetown with mails and the following passanger. Mr. Ginnot Mrs Felitia Davies, Labor, and Wise.

14—The dead body of a man was found on the water side of P. Z Co. with the head cut off. a post mortem examination was held on the body by the Coroner and Dr. Jarrett.

S. S. "Formoso" for Freetown with mails and passengers among whom was S. B. A Macfoy Esq.

The case of Regina v. s. Melbury and Kamah for wounding and stabbing a woman named Moosoo is Remanded to Wednesday Sept. 18th.

Sunday afternoon services for Natives in connection with St Matthews Church recommenced on the 1st.

Thieves entered the premises of Mr. Robert Wilson at Yhandahoo and carried off his large Box of Wearing apparel and other valuables.

The Watchman of J. B. Parkinson Esq. and the woman were sentenced to 3 months hard labour each.

The former for stealing and the latter for receiving a quantity of Goods stolen from the shop. They were sent to Freetown gaol by the Formoso on the 14th: inst.

Cannibals,—are reported as doing a sad work in their human victims in the Upper Gbargroo, about Bendumah, Dodo, Konconany &c.

Rice Reported.—In considerable quantities, along the left handside of the Big Gbargroo river, and it is said that about head of the Karborroh river there is abundance.

This information is our latest and came to hand after we had written our Editorial on the Rice Crop.

Personal

Mr. S H. Jones:— agent Palm Trading Company of Lavanah spent a few days in this place about the last of August: he gave us a very pleasant call indeed, and was not to get rid of our material wants, he paid us our Subscription dues.

Mr Jones left for Lavanah about the 31st ultimo.

Revd. W. Sanford Sage:—Presiding Elder of Shaingay District, met Revd. D. F. Wilberforce' Principal of the Rufus Clark Trainning School Shaingay, and Superintendent of the U. B Mission Schools at Mocobo Station on the 12th inst. to confer on the condition of their work.

AGRICULTURE

Mr. Editor,—Is it not a fact, as a gentleman, in substance, remarked to me a short time since, that we fail to make the effort to grow very many products and there say that they will not grow? I really, and from some experience, believe that it is too true, of, at least, most civilized persons, whether foreign, or native. We sit down in our poverty, if we (as most of us have done) lost all in trying to trade, and say it is of no use trying to farm or to go into agriculture for the land is not suitable and if it was, we have no capital to start with and when such excuses are heard of in other lands unlike this where men have need to purchase at great expense or go far from Market Centers appear reasonable, in a measure, but certainly they are not really; for a man only needs a will to work hard and suffer a little privation in almost any part of this broad land in order to begin Farming. But some perseverance and faith will be necessary to making it a success; yet the same energy to achieve success in agriculture in any other land will bring the like happy result here only I very believe a larger percentage of industrious farmers may become independent here than in most other parts of the world, and that too in fewer years. For any one who can buy a a bushel of Coffee seed for six shillings may easily raise from two to four hundred Coffee Seyons that will in, from three to five years, come to bearing all all depending upon the soil and care bestowed upon the plants; and in no case will even one man's whole time be required to plant and care for four hundred Coffee trees & yet this number in a very few years will yield from five to seven pounds of Coffee each if all is carefully picked cured & saved; which in the agregate would at the least yield a ton of Coffee at the lowest worth thirty pounds sterling, but at present worth easily fifty pounds in hard Cash. Of course as four hundred would not take one man's whole time, ten times four hundred—i. e. Four thousand—would not require the full time of ten men, and yet this number would yield more than ten tons of Coffee worth at the lowest price thirty pounds per ton equal to £300, 0 0 for the crop, while with this coffee by the same laborers may be reared Cassava, Yams, Coca Potatoes, Sweet Potatoes, in abundance for the eating and for sale. More than this the improving of the land from the manure of cows, sheep, pigs, goats &c may be going on, as well as the planting of fruit trees which would increase the value of the plantation and also increase the yearly revenue, and with more certainty than trade and greater ease to the possessor. Hence I say it is but too true too true that we say we can not before we we have made the proper effort; and fail for lack of perseverance in a given line, until success is achieved.

Yours truly
Bonthe, J. ALBERT
Sept. '89

Mr Editor,—Permit me to occupy a little space in your valuable journal to enquire (a) Why is it that the roads of Bendoomah leading to the interior and to other villages from Mattro &c. &c, have not been cleared up according to the Governor's order? (b) Is the police man in charge of the place gone to to sleep?

No wonder Cannibalism is practiced in lieu of war.

Thanking you for the space allowed me. I remain, Mr. Editor.

Sherbro, A TRAVELLER.
Sep. 89.

Seekest thou to live a life devoid of offence before God and man? Then refrain thine heart from evil thoughts.

The path-way to greatness lies through the fields of goodness; so if you would be great, then you should be good.

To the Editor of the "Early Dawn."

Dear sir;

I am very grateful to the friends and members of the U. B. Mission Church at Bonthe Victoria Road, who have donated largely to the aid of the New U. B. Church at Danville station; and I trust that a double portion of what has been given may bestowed upon them by God.—I am your Bro. in Christ.

W. S. M'CAULEY

11th Sep. 1889.

PRESS ON.

This is a speech though brief, but is full of inspiration, and opening the way to all victory:—

The mystery of Napoleon's career was this; under all difficulties and discouragements. Press on! It solves the problem of all heroes; it is the rule by which successes and triumphal marches to fortune and genius. It should be the motto of all, old and young, high and, low, fortunate and unfortunate.

Press on. Never despair, never be discouraged, however dark the way, however great the difficulties and repeated the failures. Press on.

If fortune has played false with thee today do thou play true for thyself tomorrow. If thy riches have taken wings and left thee do not weep thy life away, but be up and doing & retrieve the loss by new energes and actions:—

If those whom thou hast trusted, have betrayed thee, do not be discouraged do not idly weep but Press on find others or what is better, learn to live within thyself and let the foolishness of yesterday made thee wise today. If another has been false to thee, do not thou increase the evils by being false to thyself but endeavour to live a brave, true, and above all, a religious life.

Press on, surmount the rocky steep,
Climb boldly o'er the torrents arch
He falls alone who feebly creeps
He wins who dares the terms march
Be thou a hero? let thy mind
Transp on eternal snows its way
And through the above walls of night
How down a passage into day.

Press on. If fortune play thee false
Today tomorrow she'll be true
Whom now she sinks, she now exalt
Taking old gifts and granting new
The wisdom of the present hour
Makes up for follies past and gone
To weakness, strength succeed & power
From frailty springs— Press on Press on

Selected by W. Bidwell Coker.

To Subscribers.—Please send in your Dues to this [EarlyDawn] Office at once as we are much in need of the mount Due us to pay printers.

State for the Colonies, on the subject of the Establishment of an institution for the promotion of Technical Education in the Colony should be printed and circulated for the general information of the public, prior to its consideration by the Board of Education.

The Subject is one of such manifold importance in regard to the future welfare of the Colony that His Excellency ventures to hope that the public will so cooperate with the Board in the scheme proposed, that the wish of the Right Honorable the Secretary of State, as expressed in the last paragraph of the Dispatch, may be speedily fulfilled.

J. C. ERNEST PARKES
for the Clerk to Board of Education

SECRETARY OF STATE TO ADMINISTRATOR.

Sierra Leone 186. Downing Street, 30th July 1889.

Sir,

I have the honour to transmit for your consideration a copy of a letter from Sir J. S. Hay, in which he draws attention to the special importance of taking steps to encourage Technical Education in Sierra Leone.

You are aware that the expediency of promoting some kind of industrial training in the Schools of the Colony has constantly been referred to in the Inspector's reports, and that repeated endeavours have been made by the Government to introduce this into Managers of Schools to include manual instruction in industrial subjects in their Schools.

The existing Education Ordinance & Rules provide for the award of liberal grants in aid for such instruction, but I regret to say that the result has hitherto been disappointing, as boys and only 127 girls earning these grants last year.

Sir J. S. Hay now proposes that a fresh and increased effort should be made by the government to promote Industrial Training by the grant of extra financial assistance to any School undertaking it.

I have had the advantage of discussing the matter with Sir J. S. Hay, and I am disposed to think that something in the proposed direction should be set on foot.

I request therefore that you will bring the matter before the Education Board at its next meeting.

It appears impossible to induce ordinary Schools to undertake any part of Industrial Training, except to a small extent among the elder girls.

It seems therefore desirable that a special School should be established in Freetown, which should be mainly devoted to Industrial Training of elder boys.

It should be clearly understood that the Government itself institute cannot such a School. I should be prepared to approve the award of a liberal special grant in aid of any local effort that might be made in this direction, but in the absence of any popular demand for Technical Education, the foundation and management of such a school could not be a suitable task for the Sierra Leone Government in its present financial condition.

The existence of an institution devoted to the teaching of useful handicrafts would however be of such incalculable benefit to Sierra Leone, that I should hope that Local enterprise will not be lacking to carry it on aided by such assistance as the Government could properly afford. It would probably be sufficient as a commencement, if a suitable house were hired, with some adjacent ground, and two or three competent workmen engaged for a certain number of hours per week to teach a small number of elder boys such subjects as carpentering, shoe making and gardeneing. I understand that a competent shoe-maker could be obtained, and it should not be found impossible to obtain the services of some one actually employed in agriculture to teach the rudiments of gardening. If any large number of pupils presented themselves it would even be possible to obtain skilled craftsmen as teachers from England and the West Indies.

If the Board of Education considers that such a School would be desirable, I should be prepared to approve the contribution of a large portion of its cost, say one third (not exceeding the maximum of £300 proposed by Sir J. S. Hay) from the funds of the Colony. I do not know whether it would be possible to induce one of the larger religious denominations to take up the plan, and start such a School. It is obvious that it could usefully be worked in conjunction with the existing Freetown Schools, the elder boys devoting the morning or afternoon to Industrial Training and continuing to attend their former School for the rest of the day.

In such a case, I should be prepared to approve, if recommended by the Board, of a small special grant to the ordinary School, for each of these "half-timers."

The Industrial School could however, probably be more easily founded and maintained by a joint Committee representing all denominations, and able to attract pupils from all the Schools in Freetown and its vicinity. If the Board of Education should consider that this plan is more likely to succeed, I might be useful to call together a meeting of those persons interested in the matter, at which such a joint Committee could be formed and subscriptions obtained from the leading inhabitants towards the foundation of an institution likely to be of great importance to the Colony. A guarantee Fund would probably be necessary to ensure the actual managers against loss, as it must be clearly understood that the Government can undertake no risk, and could at most contribute a third of the initial and subsequent annual cost.

Free from scholar might after a time go far to meet the rest of the annual expense, but in any case the initial cost of founding the school must be mainly borne by those interested in the welfare of the Colony.

I have taken this opportunity of sketching out in some detail the plan suggested by Sir J. S. Hay, as it appears necessary that the conditions of a succesful effort toward Technical Education in Sierra Leone should be clearly stated. Hitherto such efforts and aspirations have failed in spite of the proffered assistance of the Government, from lack of local enterprise and interest.

I shall be glad if, through the efforts of the Education Board, the suggestion of Sir J. S. Hay could meet with better success.

I have &c.,
(Sgd.) KNUTSFORD.

The Officer Administering
The Government of Sierra Leone.

SENTENCED 16.

NEWS ITEMS.

A Steamer was aground outside we learn about 29th. or 30th. ultimo.

The Mails.—or perhaps, we should say, A Mail was closed at 8 a. m. on the 31st ult. for Freetown per S. S. "Susu."

An Address on behalf of U. B. Sabbath School, Good Hope Station, was delivered in School Room of U. B. Church, Bonthe, September 1st. 1889.

Sallie Fold U. B. Church of Danville Station, was dedicated to worship of God on the 8th inst —see Editorial this Issue

Professor Wilberforce—of the Rufus Clark Training School Shaingay was recently on an extended Tour of our Mission Stations he attended Dedication at Danville on the 8th. inst.

Sept. 8 Schr. "Success" from Freetown consigned to C W. Betts.

She brought as passanger Mr. W. E. C Dixon as Bookkeeper for Messrs Pickering and Berthoud.

10— Schr. "Wonder" from Freetown consigned to Messrs. Paterson Zochonis & Co.

11— Boat "Ellen" H. L. Williams master and owner for Freetown with mails

12—S. S. "Fomoso" from Freetown with mails and the following passanger- Mr. Ginnot Mrs Felitia Davies, Labor, and Wise.

14—The dead body of a man was found on the water side of P. Z. Co. with the head cut off. a post mortem examination was held on the body by the Coroner and Dr. Jarrett.

S. S. "Formoso" for Freetown with mails and passengers among whom was S. B. A Macfoy Esq.

The case of Regina v. s. Melbury and Kamah for wounding and stabbing a woman named Moosoo is Remanded to Wednesday Sept. 18th.

Sunday afternoon services for Natives in connection with St Matthews Church recommenced on the 1st.

Thieves entered the premises of Mr. Robert Wilson at Yhandahoo and carried off his large Box of Wearing apparel and other valuables.

The Watchman of J. B. Parkinson Esq. and the woman were sentenced to 3 months hard labour each.

The former for stealing and the latter for receiving a quantity of Goods stolen from the shop. They were sent to Freetown gaol by the Formoso on the 14th: inst.

Cannibals,—are reported as doing a sad work in their human victims in the Upper Gbargroo, about Bendumah, Dodo, Koneonany &c.

Rice Reported.—In considerable quantities, along the left handside of the Big Gbargroo river, and it is said that about head of the Karborroh river there is abundance.

This information is our latest and came to hand after we had written our Editorial on the Rice Crop.

Personal

Mr. S H. Jones:—agent Palma Trading Company of Lavanah spent a few days in this place about the last of August: he gave us a very pleasant call indeed, and was not forgetful of our material wants, he paid us our Subscription dues.

Mr Jones left for Lavanah about the 31st ultimo.

Revd. W. Sanford Sage:—Presiding Elder of Shaingay District, met Revd. D. F. Wilberforce Principal of the Rufus Clark Trainning School Shaingay, and Superintendent of the U. B Mission Schools at Mocobo Station on the 12th inst. to confer on the condition of their work.

AGRICULTURE

Mr. Editor,—Is it not a fact, as a gentleman, in substance, remarked to me a short time since, that we fail to make the effort to grow very many products and then say that they will not grow? I really, and from some experience, believe that it is too true, of, at least, most civilized persons, whether foreign, or native. We sit down in our poverty, if we (as most of us have done) lost all in trying to trade, and say it is of no use trying to farm or to go into agriculture for the land is not suitable and if it was, we have no capital to start with and when such excuses are heard of in other lands unlike this where men have need to purchase at great expense or go far from Market Centers appear reasonable, in a measure, but certainly they are not really; for a man only needs a will to work hard and suffer a little privation in almost any part of this broad land in order to begin Earning. But some perseverance and faith will be necessary to making it a success; yet the same energy to achieve success in agriculture in any other land will bring the like happy result here only I very believe a larger percentage of industrious farmers may become independent here than in most other parts of the world, and that too in fewer years. For any one who can buy a bushel of Coffee seed for six shillings may easily raise from two to four hundred Coffee Seyons that will in, from three to five years, come to bearing all all depending upon the soil and care bestowed upon the plants; and in no case will even one man's whole time be required to plant and care for four hundred Coffee trees & yet this number in a very few years will yield from five to seven pounds of Coffee each if all is carefully picked cured & saved; which in the agregate would at the least yield a ton of Coffee at the lowest worth thirty pounds sterling, but at present worth easily fifty pounds in hard Cash. Of course as four hundred would not take one man's whole time, ten times four hundred—i. e. Four thousand—would not require the full time of ten men, and yet this number would yield more than ten tons of Coffee worth at the lowest price thirty pounds per ton equal to £300. 0. 0 for the crop, while with this coffee by the same laborers may be reared Cassada, Yams, Coca Potatoes, Sweet Potatoes, in abundance for the eating and for sale. More than this the improving of the land from the manure of cows, sheep, pigs, goats &c may be going on, as well as the planting of fruit trees which would increase the value of the plantation and also increase the yearly revenue, and with more certainty than trade and greater ease to the possessor. Hence I say it is but too true too true that we say we can not before we we have made the proper effort; and fail for lack of perseverance in a given line, until success is achieved.

Yours truly
Bonthe, J. ALBERT
Sept. '89

Mr Editor,—Permit me to occupy a little space in your valuable journal to enquire (a) Why is it that the roads of Bendoomah leadiug to the interior and to other villages from Mattro &c. &c, have not been cleared up according to the Governor's order? (b) Is the police mau in charge of the place gone to to sleep?

No wonder Cannibalism is practiced in lieu of war.

Thanking you for the space allowed me. I remain, Mr. Editor.

Sherbro, A TRAVELLER.
Sep. 89.

Seekest thou to live a life devoid of offence before God and man? Then refrain thine heart from evil thoughts.

The path-way to greatness lies through the fields of goodness; so if you would be great, then you should be good-

To the Editor of the "Early Dawn."

Dear sir;

I am very grateful to the friends and members of the U. B. Mission Church at Bonthe Victoria Road, who have donated largely to the aid of the New U. B. Church at Danesville station; and I trust that a double portion of what has been given may bestowed upon them by God.—I am your Bro in Christ.

W. S. M'CAULEY

11th Sep. 1889.

PRESS ON.

This is a speech though brief, but is full of inspiration, and opening the way to all victory:—

The mystery of Napoleon's career was this; under all difficulties and discouragements. Press on! It solves the problem of all heroes; it is the rule by which successes and triumphal marches to fortune and genius. It should be the motto of all, old and young, high and. low, fortunate and unfortunate.

Press on. Never despair, never be discouraged, however dark the way, however great the difficulties and repeated the failures. Press on.

If fortune has played false with thee today do thou play true for thyself tomorrow. If thy riches have taken wings and left thee do not weep thy life away, but be up and doing & retrieve the loss by new energes and actions:—

If those whom thou hast trusted, have betrayed thee, do not be discouraged do not idly weep but Press on find others or what is better, learn to live within thyself and let the foolishness of yesterday made thee wise today. If another has been false to thee, do not thou increase the evils by being false to thyself but endeavour to live a brave, true, and above all, a religious life.

Press on, surmount the rocky steep,
Climb boldly o'er the torrents arch
He falls alone who feebly creeps
He wins who dares the berrys march
Be thou a hero? let thy might
Transp on eternal snows its way
And through the above walls of night
How down a passage into day.

Press on. If fortune play thee false
Today tomorrow she'll be true
Whom now she sinks, she now exalt
Taking off gifts and granting new
The wisdom of the present hour
Makes up for follies past and gone
To weakness, strength succeed & power
From frailty springs—Press on Press on

Selected by W. Bidwell Coker.

To Subscribers.—Please send in your Dues to this [Early Dawn] Office at once as we are much in need of the mount Due us to pay printers.

(Extract from an address on behalf of U. B. Sabbath School, Good Hope Station, delivered in School Room of U. B. Church, Bonthe, September 1st, '89.)

Mr Chairman and kind Friends,

Being a Superintendent of the Sabbath School and a member of the United Brethren Church in this place for nearly two years, I feel myself in some measure acquainted, and hence qualified to make a few observations on this part of the work, viz.—the Sabbath School the condition of which is all but healthy. By this you will understand that it is indeed existing, but not under the enjoyment of that glowing feature, that is always apparent in Sabbath Schools which are said to be healthy.

And I make bold to say that our Sabbath School has been deprived of that life and influence (which, as the first organised Sabbath School, it ought to have been breathing and exercising in this community,) greatly, if not wholly by the members of this denomination. I am aware of the consequences such a remark will produce, but I feel quite safe in making it as I know it is on the side of Truth. It is not my intention presently to speak of the benefits to be derived from daily attending the Sabbath School and the offer such thoughts as inducements, but yet to bring before you the dangers to which one may be exposed in keeping away from the Sabbath School as a terror, for many of you know and could give able addresses on the blessings obtainable or the dangers avoidable though the continued observance of the Sabbath School. But my sole purpose is only to make on this occasion a few and brief observations respecting the laxity prevailing among the members of the Church as regards the Sabbath School and note the disadvantages experienced through such laxity. And while I reserve your attention I will meanwhile say to you, in the touching advice of Polonius to Laertes his son

"This above all: to thine ownself be true,
And it must follow, as the night the day,
Thou can'st not then be false to any man."

This wanting to be true to ourselves is the greatest desideratum in the land. It goes hard against our minds, to acknowledge an error, a fault, an offence done against a friend, a brother, an acquaintance although we feel in not so doing that we are acting against the behest of our consciences; but I am digressing — however, let us be true to ourselves. I proceed then by observing 1st. The laxity prevailing among the members as regards the School; and of this first appealing to our Chairman, a Co-worker in Superintending the interests of the Sabbath School who will bear me out, I must say that the young men and women of our Connection, have not only been lax, but altogether neglectful of our Sabbath School: when we take into consideration that many of these have been at sometime or other, whilst we may familiary term "Mendi Mission School boys and girls" and for whom unsparing pains, both Physical and intellectual have been taken for their useful developement in their after life, and for whom fervent and incessant prayers have been made, that they may grow to be useful in their time and generation — be a blessing in the community they live, and be burning and shining lights around, and show by their living up to those privileges, and fulfilling those desires and good wishes.

Would it not be a pleasant sight if on the Sabbath afternoon you could be seen with a couple of friends of your invitation wending your way to the School Room enjoy to a couple of hours in reading and conversing from the most accomplished of all literary productions The Bible; and mingling with happy voices in the Sunday School Songs? I know this would be more than pleasant it would be the thing to be done — a move in the desired and right direction. As I am making these remarks, I recall vividly to mind, those pleasant hours, when but a boy of nine summers, I saw men and women sometimes bent down with age, with their spectacles following with their fingers with manifest delight and pleasure, every line of the selected portions of the Bible I seem even now to be breathing the flowers and Shrubs around the School House and to be hearing the low and loud voices intermingling, voices aleeking as it were the precious word with lusty sinners; every one panting to arrive at some blessed interpretation of a passage which would lend them a helping hand as they journey along amid the varying scenes and occurrences of life, and when I am seeing the vast and extensive difference between the conduct of the people of those days with each other, and the present nature of things, I know, and I believe all will have an inkling of the cause of this difference; We therefore need not mention it save if we could make here the solitary allusion to the fact, that there was less cause for warning against backbiting and slandering and immoral propensities from the people of those days, than is now realized; and if we are to enquire after the reason, the reply will be simple this, that they love the Sunday School and could find no time for idle gossiping after Sunday morning Service.

But while I refer to those who have had educational advantages, but have been neglectful, I do not appear a room for an excuse, under which those who had not those advantages will desire to screen themselves. Many will be ready to say, I have not been to school, I had not the chance, and I dont know how to read. This is all true; and it any of this class is under my hearing, I will say to such you have our sympathy, and we will be charitable with you. it is not your fault. The vicissitudes of life are various and many of you are deprived of those glorious advantages perhaps by circumstances over which you had no control, to come in with us and we will help you.

Open Thy Mouth Wide.

Dear Editor

In perusing an article dated 23th July much has been said about misconceived idea of the Scriptures which formed the subject. My simple opension is I believe those who are Bible Readers will bear me out, That the writer misconstrued the Expression, I was plainly declared by Jehovah to the Jewish nations, encouraging them that they should follow his precepts for the 13 and 14 verses of the same chapter gives a thorough sense of the latter clause of the 10th verse. It bears not refrence to the Superficial function. Previous to the ascension of our blessed Lord, he promise his few disciples to wait for the Holy Spirit. The disciples were unlearned men, but being with Jesus Christ, the great teacher of the world who taught them as man could have taught, we believe that the disciples had been qualified for their calling, so that they could go on preaching. But the command was that they should wait for the Holy Spirit which should teach them all things. For we read in Acts 1 and 2 Chapters that the disciples had been in private devotion, and at the day of Pentecost the promise was given, and five thousand souls were added to the Church. It is a fact that those who came from Mesopotamia Egypt & Rome were astonished at the wonderful work of God, while those who came from different quarters were edified those who were the children of the kingdom had to use such a language that the apostle had to rebuke them, we are not drunken as you suppose seeing it is but the third hour of the day. It a natural among unconverted men of those days to have regarded the apostle as men full of new wine. The Saviour in the days of his flesh had been certified by Scribes and Pharisees while the Centurion had to exclaim, never man spake like this man. It is a fact the writer does not posess the Spirit of the Master If any man hath not the Spirit of Christ he is none of his. The writer may be was in book knowledge but void of the Spirit. The simple reading of the sacred volume without any explanation may save a soul from Eternal burning. The Phillipian Jailer heard a few sentence from the lips of Paul and he was saved. The Ethiopian Eunuch was reading the Scripture when the spirit of the Lord caught Philip to join him in the chariot he believed and was baptize. To the closure, Peradventure the scripture was read by Peter. It would be prudent if the writer of that article obey the injunctions of the wise man in the book of the Ecclesiastes or the preacher "Be not rash with thy mouth, instead of speaking about unpromptu sermon it would be advisable for the writer to use the confident words of the Psalmist and say create in me a clean heart O God and renew a right spirit within me.

Thanking Mr. Editor for space occupied yours.—Time.

25 Aug. 1889

The above writer we fear has misunderstood the article in question, and we are quite sure that the writer of the article is a zealous christian although young in years — Ed.

PUBLIC NOTICE.

S. M. MISSION STORE.

We now offer for sale the Best BRANDS of FLOUR
In Bbls. & Half Bbls
ALSO
SUGAR, KEROSINE, FLORIDA WATER,
in Bbls. & Cases,

Provisions

Of the freshest kind and in good variety.
Best Tea, Coffee, Lard, Butter, Milk, Cocoa & Milk, Vinegar, Sauces, Mustard, Pickles, Tomatoes, Peaches, Tapioca, Sago, Pearl Barley, Potted Meats, Pilchards, Baking Powder, Chocolate and Milk, Split-Peas, Pears, Soups, assorted.

MEDICINES

(Patent and Proprietary)
— A SPECIALITY —
time Pieces, Watches, Sewing Machines, Watch Guards, Sewing Machine Needles.

N.B. We Pay CASH for Palm Kernels.

J. A. Evans.

TO LET

The Wellknown Shaingay Mission stores, Wharf, &c. Situate at Shaingay, or Tassoh Point, better known as Shaingay Mission, about 60 miles Southeast of Freetown and 59 miles North-west of Bonthe Sherbro. This is a well located property and commands a good Trade, and being on one of the most healthy Promontories of the West Coast of Africa offers special attraction for European residence. For particulars, Apply to

J. A. EVANS
BONTHE SHERBRO
13th Aug '89. W. C. Africa

Notice.

THE Undersigned
WRITING CLERK & ACCOUNTANT

Begs again to inform the Public of Bonthe and the Rivers that he is prepared to do all WRITING JOB WORK,
as follows:—
STOCK TAKING,
MAKING UP ACCOUNTS
WRITING LETTERS, &c.,
Charges Moderate!

FOR further particulars apply at his Residence, Williams St. the east the Wesleyan Church, or by letter.

He solicits their patronage.

W. BIDWELL COKER
Bonthe,
August '89.

ADVERTISEMENT SCALE.
Reduced rates.

(FOR EACH INSERTION.)

	£	s	d
A whole page	£1	10	0
A whole column	0	8	0
Half-a-column	0	5	"
One-fourth of a column	0	3	0
One-eighth of a column	0	2	6
Marriage	0	2	6
Births and deaths	0	1	0
Domestic servants wanted	0	1	0
Servants wanting situations	0	1	0

Each notice should not exceed 4 lines Every additional line or part of a line 4d extra.

'Early Dawn'

PRINTING OFFICE.
Job Work Done at short Notice.

Enquire of G. N. Cowan — Printer.

The Early Dawn.

"The Morning Light Is Breaking, The Darkness Disappears."

VOL. VI. BONTHE, SHERBRO, WEST AFRICA, SEPTEMBER 30, 1889. No. 18.

The "Early Dawn."
Published Semi-Monthly, At
BONTHE, SHERBRO.
Under the Auspices of the Board of Missions of the U. B. IN CHRIST.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION

	£	s	d
One Year by Mail,	£0	6	0
Delivered in Bonthe,	0	5	0
Half yearly by Mail,	0	3	0
Ditto. deliv'ed in Bonth,	0	2	6

ADDRESS.—Communications to J. A. Evans, Editor & Publisher, Bonthe Sherbro, West Africa,—

Subscriptions to be sent to Rev. D. F. Williamson Shaingay, Mr. E. A. Lewis, Freetown, West Africa. Rev. Wm. McKain Boyton, Ohio, U.S.A. or to the Editor.—

DIRECTORY.

Commodant. C. H. Harley Mossley
Coroner. The Commandant.
Chief Clerk. M. J. W. Banks
Interpreter. J. D. Rogers.
Bailiff. F. E. S. Seabacer.

Sub Treas. & Col. Chief Clerk J. D. Macaulay.

Tide Waiters. J. N. Crown, J. B. Turner. J. J. Warburton.

Asst. Examg. Officer Sulpmah Jasper Coulker

Assistant Col. Surgeon. M. L. Jarrett, M. R. C. S.

Dispenser Rowland May
Postmaster. H. R. Williams.
Inspector of Police. M. E. Hotto.
Boatswain J. A. Dawson
Overseer of Roads. A. O. Walker.

Religious Directory.

St. Matthew's Church, Victoria Road
Pastor, Vacant.
Wesleyan Methodist, Lime Street
Pastor, Rev. J. C. Thomas

Mendi Mission, (Congregational.) Good Hope
Pastor, Rev E. C. Taylor

Sin is the way to woe! Refrain from evil and do good.

Shall we continue in sin that grace may abound! God forbid!

The wicked fleeth, when no man pursueth; but the righteous of the Lord shall inherit the Kingdom of heaven.

Life passeth soon, death draweth nigh; And we shall be with those that rest, asleep within the tomb.

ITINERATING.

It has been practiced by the emissaries of the cross for many centuries, in fact ever since the days of our blessed Redeemer, who while himself engaged in the work of preaching the Kingdom, Itinerated up and down throughout Palestine, even perhaps into the adjacent coasts or borders of Tyre and Sidon. As he went he taught the people everywhere of heavenly and divine things, was never idle but incessantly engaged about his father's business, the establishment of a new kingdom or Dominion on earth the terms of which should be peace and Good will toward men. This work was such indeed as none but himself could well do, not because of the superhuman power, but from the depravity of men's nature, and the fact that few men will do to the utmost in way good. However the savior and a long line of successors, not indeed those in line of St. Peter, but of all the apostles and disciples of Christ, have left us a grand example of travelling over the country in the work of especially teaching men and women in the way of right living, doing good this was a chafacteristic of our Saviour's itinerating, going about doing good and right here I must observe that it has been the misfortune of too many of our latter day Itinerants that they have not always done good but contrary wise have done evil and sometimes brought shame and reproach upon the cause. This is a sad misfortune and some have felt the guilt of such conduct very keenly, yet often too late, and yet may there not be found those engaged in Itinerating who have not the higher conception of their work and who for this reason are not really doing the good they should, and even worse than that are not those who by their unfaithfulness, want of deligence, and perseverance, in the master's cause are rather doing harm than good. Every Itinerant should really and studiously study the life and character of Jesus Christ and earnestly pray for his spirit and energy of soul. An Itinerant needs to watch as well as pray he has to watch in common with other Christians against evil above this he should watch for opportunity to teach others the way of right, to enforce truth upon the hearts by happy illustration such as will be rightly understood by the hearer or hearers. He should watch his own deportment among all classes, do nothing that would conflict with his Teaching.

FACTS FROM SHAINGAY.

Mr. Editor—Watching closely as we do the prospect of the season, we have every evidence to convince us of the fact that the state of things in our midst is assuming a different aspect. During the months of June, July, and August, that have just past, the feelings of individuals were far different from what they are now. We concluded that many persons possessed that weary cor roding, and self-tormenting anxiety which our Saviour condemns. The state of tfings then was a bad one: and we thought it had reached to that extent which would bring us to certain conclusion. We sighed, and thought, and complained, and pussled to know why it was so. But now every heart is lifted up by a better prospect which bids us to look forward to something forthcoming. Our rice fields are looking nice, and the bird drivers must necessarily make new alings or else repair the old ones to drive away birds. At such a time as this those who feed the people with the "bread of life," should adapt themselves to the circumstances of the people so that they may not starve for want of the Word. For early in the morning must they go to their farms, and late in the evening must they return.

It is nothing too strange to us in regard to what our experiences have been, but sad enough, we languished and pained as if forsaken. At all probability we should recognize the hand of providence in the various mishaps of life, considering that he dealeth with us as sons,—that nothing happens by chance but is seen by the one who is omniscient, and who "doeth all things well." We rejoice that we are not made a prey to intestine calamities, but that it is as well with us as it is. We would therefore like to see more life and activity in our people in various ways; the chiefest of all is, in regard to religious matters.

The few months past have taught us lessons and we hope many will not fail to get in the ground corn, potatoes, and cassada for the latter rains.

By the way, a few words more and we are done. Our capital, Shaingay wants a little more attention. Never before was our chief so active as now We sympathize with him in his multifarous duties. There is a good deal yet to be done, to put the town of Shaingay in a more decent order, so that the very appearance of the town may bespeak nothing else than the early dawn of civilization. Our feelings for this our little capital are patriotic; and though our chief's duties are arduous and cumberous, yet we are actuated by an undaunted spirit to say our say in this respect. The inhabitants of Shaingay ought to be compelled to put that small stream of water near Bach-ellor in good condition. We trust that those who are by relation connected with the chieftainey may put forth their best effort to cement that union lately effected by Mr. W. more closely, and by acting simultaneously towards the late ultimatum of putting Shaingay in good order. Thanking you Mr Editor for space occupied. You will hear from us again.

SMALLIE & J.

Shaingay, Sept. 7, '89.

Important To Teachers of U. B. Mission Schools.

PROGRAMME FOR NEXT DISTRICT MEET'G.

Reading—Introductory Principles, M'cGuffey's Fifth Reader.

Grammar—Sentence and Construction of Sentences.

Arithmetic—First Principles.

Report of Committee on Normal Instruction U. B District Meeting —Jan. 26, '89

Kooconay, 15th Sept., '89.

Dear Editor,—It is rumored about here, since last month that there are some cannibals through the broad road from Bandawahi to Dodo and Kibbim, and since last month to this, I am sorry to tell, that we have lost six persons, caught by Cannibals. Sierra Leoneans and natives and also passing strangers. The Chiefs are fearing to seek after them as the country is in the hands of the Government. While closing my lines to you, Mr. Ed., the news arrive, that a one man was caught by the cannibals in a town near Kooconay called Morsacka, and, only parts of her leg was found by the road side

I hope the Government will soon put a stop to this cannibalism, a person dare not walk at one a distance of half a mile He or she will no more return except 3 or 4 persons walk together. Yours—A Teacher.

Sept. 16th.

An Admiral's Daughter Elopes with a Policeman.—

Social gossip turns a good deal just now (writes the London correspondent of an Irish contemporary) on the romance of the gallant young constable and the Admiral's daughter. The policeman had been almost permanently on a "fixed point" in the Belgravian district. Among the many ladies, young and old, whom it was his daily duty to escort over the crossings was a pretty and accomplished girl whose father figures in the Admiral's pension list. She was fascinated by the stalwart boy in blue it seems, and showed her sentiment in a manner which touched his heart with a returned passion. Half a year ago some friends surprized her in tender discourse with the "copper" on his beat. Their suspicions were roused by the familiarity; they watched and found that the girl not only haunted her lover when on duty, but that she met him when off duty and spent hours in his company. They reasoned with her and threatend to tell her father unless she promised to end the unequal acquaintance. She must have been an artful maiden, for she gave the promise and contrived to break it off so skilfully that though the romance ran its course as before, the friends were completely decived into the belief that it was over. The truth was discovered last week, when the lady disappeared from her home and the constable from his beat; and up to the present it appears nothing has been heard from the eloping pair.—Selected by W. Bidwell Coker.

The Early Dawn.

BONTHE, SHERBRO.

SEPTEMBER 30, 1889.

Cannibalism.—The subject of which has been appearing very frequently in the columns of our past issues, from a number of our correspondents, and on which we publish several articles in this issue, needs, we are compelled to remark, the special and prompt attention of the Local Authorities. It is a fact that this base and inhuman practice, does not only disturb places in and about the Bargroo district, but carries on its evil in the Kar ghoroh and adjacent places. We hope therefore, in consequence of this, that something ought to be done at once in arresting the progress of the cruelties of Cannibalism before it reaches a state that will be difficult to check, since it appears from what we can gather, that some of the chiefs are afraid to use means which they deem sufficient to stop the grossness of such conduct.

We must be understood that our calling the attention of the Authorities in this place, to this subject, is in answer to the importune requests of those who are anticipating, and think they ought to believe in a dreadful outlook.

THE SUPREME COURT.

It is about five years ago since a session of the Supreme Court was held in this place by His Honor the late Mr. Tasleton, then the Acting Chief Justice of Sierra Leone, and on Monday last the 23rd inst. another was held in this place by His Honor W. H. Quayle Jones Chief Justice of Sierra Leone. We are glad that the Government has seen its way now clearly to be holding the sessions in Sherbro thus giving an opportunity for many persons to to witness how prisoners are tried in Freetown, and we must confess that we are perfectly satisfied with the manner in which His Honor has disposed of the cases that were brought before him. For whilst he was severe in a particular case, yet he exercised mercy in the others, for we were glad to hear him remark from the bench in the case of Regina vs. Richard and Wellington that it is not his policy to send offenders to prison for the first offence committed an I that he does not wish to make Gaol bird of any "one." We must say that such remarks proceeding from the highest judicial officer in the Colony needs commendation, and it is to be hoped that the leniency with which His Honor dealt with the two cases referred to will be productive of good results, especially to the young woman who was simply fined £5. for Committing Perjury.

These remaks of the Chief Justice should teach us also to to maintain always an unimpeached character through all our various dealings in life, for it was the good character borne by these two offenders that moved His Honor to adopt such lenient measures with them.

On the other hand, the case of Melbury has met with the full penalties of the laws, for altho' we observed him using every endeavour to extrigate himself from the crime for which he was charged, yet the Divine is—"Though hand join in hand, the wicked shall not go unpunished."

We therefore hope that the setence of seven long years imprisonment that has been passed on him will deter others from committing a like offence.

HUMPER RANGO again !!

Since the visit of His Excellency Sir J. S. Hay to the Bargroo District some time in February last, when I understand at the meeting of the various Chiefs &c. of that District at Manoh Bargroo, His Excellency expressed to them that his visit was not to deprive them of their country, but rather to assist them to set it to right, and still giving them power as chiefs to decide matters in their Barde (excepting cases of murder and the like) without the interference of any Police constable, than Humper Rango, who for many years previous had been shelved and unnoticed by the Government through his enmity, barbarity, & injustice to his subjects & also Sierra Leoneans, again assumes the attitude for which he was once so renowned, and has begun to exhibit those fits for rascality and mischief, so common to his name.

No sooner had he been vested with power as Chief over Konoonay District than the murmurings of gross outrage perpetrated by himself or through his orders on an individual were heard—the unjust decision of matters in his Barde against persons he now has the opportunity to vent his spleen by making some pay large sums o' money, in some instances as much as £50 if not more—and the unlawful seizure made by him upon the property of one or more of his subjects—all these of which perhaps the Authorities may or may not have been aware have transpired, and must be brought to light and the remedy be at once applied; or it would not be long, when disturbence will once more reign supreme in the present partly peaceful Upper Bargroo regions.

More yet to follow.

Sept. 20 '89. — A BIRD.

BENDOOMAH ROAD IS IT CLEARY

Sir,—In the columns of the last issue of this valuable journal appeared an article inserted by "A Traveller", in which he asked two questions with reference to Bendoomah Road, &c., and being cleared according to the Governor's order, and whether the Police in that part of the District was asleep.

I can safely assure him that at present, there is no Police constable stationed at Bendoomah, but that the duties are being performed by the "Frontier Police" of Manoh Bargroo, whose Corporal in charge has done his best, in having the roads not only at Bendoomah but in all the District properly cleared in July last.

If therefore the weeds seen on the road along Bendoomah way as described by "A Traveller" two months after the thorough cleaning, and in the wet season too, no one else but "A Traveller" could work to prevent the nature of things to happen.

I have no reason to conceive that "A Traveller" could intend to create by his article any misleading statement to your readers of the neglect of duty on the part of the Police men who have to perform a patrol thro' every week, though that locality has his attendance of something not very bright to mention.

Sherbro, — TRUTH.

Sep. 27. '89.

"Editor "Early Dawn,"

Dear Sir,—Please publish this

ACKNOWLEDGMENT.

Just received! A most valuable case of Medicines from Rev. J. Gerrie Jones D.D. who wrote that it is from Messrs. Burroughs, Wellcome & Co., Manufacturers, London.

The case contains various kinds of Medicines, chiefly in tabloids highly condensed. Also books on Diet and other surgical appliances most serviceable in cases of necessity. These are not patent medicines, but genuine. The Manufacturers have our thanks also Dr. Jones, who is constantly working up some gift for us.

Shairgo, D. F. Wilberforce.

Sept. 28, 89.

Dear Editor,

Permit me to inform you & your readers of the meeting I had the pleasure of attending at the Mendi Mission School Room on Thursday evening, the 26th instant, when Mr. John Elwin Sumner delivered a lecture on the life of David. If Mr. Sumner's first attempt at lecturing has been so successful, what will subsequent ones be? The lecturer is to be heartily congratulated. Almost an equal number of ladies and gentlemen went away satisfied. It was announced in the meeting that a paper on the Life of Moses will be read by Mr. Fred Johnson at 7. p. m. on Thursday the 10th prox. We wish Mr. Johnson all success.

Yours—SMALL.

Dear Editor,

With all due deference, I crave your kind permission to let me have at my disposal a space in your valuable journal, to expose to the public's eye, certain oppressant sectarian misunderstanding under which the agent of St. Matthew's Church is erroneously labouring.

It was to my utter surprise on Sunday last, after the revision of the quarter's lessons, that the Superintendent of the Wesleyan Sabbath school, ominously, and earnestly impressed on the mind of his members that on the previous Sabbath the hoary Catechist of the afore mentioned Church, being filled with sectarian bigotry, indiscreetly warned his members against attending the Wesleyan Sabbath school; and whoever infringes the so called law, will run the risk of being excommunicated from the Church &c. &c.

Am I to understand, that the time has passed when the young shall more look for example to those whose looks and garb bespeak piety? Am I to understand, that there are "no" to be founds amongst those who pretend to unfold the "Word of Life" every Lord's day, laboring under the baser enormity, as those who said, "I am of Paul," and "I am of Appolos"!

Would it be wisdom in us, like the Israelites to make a "Calf of gold, because Moses is long in the mount? Or in plain words, must we be driven by force of circumstances to study simply because the right man is the right place?

In the face of conscience, if a Church member by visiting the Wesleyan Sabbath school could be condemned, what for methodist. What then must be done to those, who and the elaborate preaching of Mrs. Smith, in which the very Agent, himself was not recently seen attended? For shame, it would not do for a place like this, two wide churches and leaders grow six months. A public rebuke too much on St. Matthew's Church Agent, to much so, one will be fatal to say to it.

Bonthe, Sept. 28th. 1889.

Thanking you Mr. Editor for occupied space.

PRIM PAGE.

The above article we think takes a wrong view of the Catechist of St. Matthew's.

Ed.

Dear Mr. Editor,

Perhaps you and your readers are not conscious of the fact that Bonthe the seat of Government in the Sherbro District is almost entirely without Police constables.

If one were to walk down to the Station House he would there find without any exaggeration, a sergeant or a Corporal and a private only on duty; and very often you find only the sergeant or the Corporal. I have an idea this one sergeant or one Corporal and about six or seven privates are allowed on duty at the Station alternately. but the number it would appear from what I have seen of late has been cut down to two and sometimes one. It may be well to remark that the Subinspector in this District deserves some pity; many a time, he may be seen busy here and there doing that which he might have ordered his men to do. But where are the men? I do not think that this grave fact was known to the public, otherwise their apprehension might have been aroused ere this time.

Not long ago, a murderous assault was committed on a helpless woman within a mile from Bonthe, immediate action was absolutely necessary by way of tracing the assailant, but sufficient number of police men could not be had to do duty. On that occasion Government Boatmen had to be dispatched to do Policemen's work. One may easily imagine how clumsily the work would be done by Boatmen, as a natural consequence the result was nil. In the event of any emergency, I hardly think half a dozen of police could be mustered in Bonthe for action, such a state of things is simply deplorable. As this fact is now brought to light, I trust the public will direct attention to the matter and that they will not rest satisfied till a sufficient number of police are stationed in Bonthe as the importance of the place demands it.

Bonthe, Yours truly.

23rd. Sept. '89. Watchman.

NEWS ITEMS.

Communion Service.—were held at Caroonan on the 15th inst. by the Presiding Elder of the Mendi Mission District, they were very interesting and well attended, several persons (12 in all) were baptized by the Elder on the same occasion.

Good Sermons.—were preached at the U. B. Church in this place by Rev. R. C. Taylor the pastor at 11. a. m. and at 7 p. m. on the 15 th inst.

Editor of this Journal returned from the Upper Bargroo on the 16 h inst. and left for Shaingay on the 19th. instant.

Sept 18 S. S. "Sasu" from Freetown with mails

20—S. S. "Sasu" with Mr. J. Porter who leaves finally.

Boat "Ellen" Williams master and owner from Freetown.

Mail boat from Freetown with mails

21 — Mail boat for Freetown

22 — "Countess of Derby" from Freetown with Chief Justice W. H. Quayle Jones, J. A. M'carthy Esq. B. L. acting Queen's Advocate, Messrs. Valentine and Isaacs officers of the Court Messrs S. P. A. Macfoy and C. Barthelmy.

23.— Supreme Court held at Bonthe this day there were 4 Cases in the Calender. Viz.

1— Theo. Richards for Receiving goods by false pretence pleaded not guilty, Found guilty, by the jury and was bound by 2 securities of £ 10 each to keep the peace.

2— Lucretia Wellington a young girl for Committing Perjury Pleaded guilty was fined £5 or 3 months imprisonment to be paid on the 14 th Oct. the fine has since been paid.

3— James alias Joe Sye for escaping from prison — Pleaded guilty and sentence 1 month imprisonment with hard labour

4— William Henry Melbury and Kamah for wounding with intent to commit murder on the person of one Moosoo on the 28rd ultimo.

Prisoner Kamah, pleaded guilty and was sentenced to 3 months hard labour

Melbury pleaded not guilty but was found guilty by the jury for wounding with intent to do grievous bodily harm, was sentenced to 7 years imprisonment with hard labour.

A full report of the case of Melbury may be published in our next issue.

24 — Supreme Court terminate this day.

"Countess of Derby" left for Freetown with His Honor the Chief Justice The Hon'ble the Queen's advocate &c.

Eight Policemen arrived from Freetown to relieve the same number from this place, among whom are Corpl's J. W. Nicol, Eben Roberts, Privates Moore, Hume, W. H. Davis O'Connor and 2 others

Corpl Roberts and private Moore left for Freetown per "Countess of Derby."

25—The Editor of this journal left Freetown for Shaingay per "Olive Branch."

26—S. S. Pomoso from Freetown with mails, she brought as passenger for this place Miss Nicol (sister of the late Rev. G. G. M. Nicol), Mr. S. H. Jones agent of the Palma Trading Company, Lavanah, & others.

Boat "Ellen" for Freetown.

Sep. 26th. A paper on "The Life of David" was read by Mr. John E. Summer in the M. M. School Room.

A paper on the "The Life of Moses will be read by Mr. Fred Johnson in the M. M. School Room on Thursday evening the 10th Prox.

S. S. "Pormoso" for Freetown with mails

Personal.

The Honorable J. A. M'Carthy, B.L., Acting Queen's Advocate, our lately bereaved friend gave us a pleasant call on the morning of the 25th inst. and was looking very well.

Bonthe Mutual Literary Club' Reviewed. (July 31. '89.)

Dear Mr. Editor,—Kindly pardon me for the withdrawal made by me for not creeping into the prints of your valuable and interesing journal which has from time to time used to the good of the public, so as to further the welfare of the Society in general.

An article appeared in the Early Dawn of the 31st July 1889 under the caption of "Bonthe Mutual Literary Club" which appeared in my name and I was one to object for the reproduction that which I brought forward by your Journal into the Committee.

As I was interested in Newspaper reading, Mr. Editor since that article appeared in the issue as above stated, I carefully perused all others up to the present issue of Sept. 16 '89. And as Harmless Observer has expressed his intentions, I thought he would not fail carry out his interview; but alas! Your Correspondent seemed to misunderstand himself whilst writing, and he proved himself worse, ten times worse, than any of the failures made by the members of the "Bonthe Mutual Literary Club as well as the Societies mentioned in his writings.

In taking a retrospect on the subject alluded to by your correspondent Mr. Editor, he as it were, must have known the natures and circumstances of the members of the Bonthe Mutual Club And as such I could assure you that they have done their part.

As foreigners they try their best endeavors and put their whole energy to set forth a bright example to the natives of Sherbro so far as their education is then concerned: Because they have been and are still privileged to advances in the science of Literature, &c., &c., &c., but alas! on the contrary (I speak from those of the Shaingay District) by their misconduct, seem to lack of that capability of intelligence, in the science of Literature, Theological Training and principles, which they had advanced to, (for the benefit of their country, and the welfare of this community in general) by the American Missionaries who are still cramming out here in succession, to labor for the gospel. However true this is, Mr. Editor, you, as an American missionary will bare it with me. In order that your correspondent should point out those facts, he listlessly rushed into print, as an unthinking horse rushing into a mighty battle.

Yours truly sir

Nathaniel C.

GETTYSBURG.

(Copyrighted in '89. by J. W. Seaghan.)

When fortune on a happy people smiles,
And peace and plenty gladden all the land,
When parent and the evening hour beguiles,
And tells of battles and consuming brand,
Then from the past, yet vivid and sublime,
Shall rise afresh the memory of that time.
When quaking Terror on his tott'ring throne
Held his frail scepter in his trembling hand;
In stately mansion and in cottage lone
His sway, uncertain, ruled throughout the land;
And strong men's hearts had failed them in dismay
And gentle women could but wait and pray

And Desolation, with a heavy tread,
Trampled the land's produce beneath his feet;
Whether he reared his shaggy giant head,
Fled from Thirst away with footsteps fleet
The land before him was a garden fair;
The land behind him was a desert sere.

What ties were sundered and what hopes were riven
How desolate was many, a fair abode
The brightest flower of many a home was given
To perish, as when torrid blasts corrode
The bloom, the verdure in the track of death.
When withered by the fiery simoom's breath.

Ah, well remembered are the stirring times,
When volunteers came at their country's call,
When tocsin's rang out their alarming chimes
Awakening, thrilling animating all,
When martial music, with inspiring strains,
Was heard from northern hills to Texan plains.

The smoke of many battles upward rolled
And land and sea had felt the shock of war
And village bells had slowly, sadly tolled
When ceased the echo of the cannon's roar.
And like the ocean's ever-heaving tide,
So rolled the wave of conflict far and wide.

The skill of artisan was not employed,
The tools of peaceful industry to shape,
For great brass guns the metals were alloyed,
And shells were made, and canister and grape cast
Hands that had wrought the plowshare and the pruning hook
Were making bayonet and saber blade.

The lawyer left his office for the field
All classes rose with general accord:
The merchant, the mechanic learned to wield
The carbine, pistol, musket, and the sword
And from the peaceful labors of the farm
The yeoman turned toward the war's alarm.

—Religious Telescope.

The Early Dawn.
BONTHE, SHERBRO.
September 30, 1889.

Cannibalism.—The subject of which has been appearing very frequently in the columns of our past issues, is a matter of our correspondents, and on which we publish several articles in this issue, needless we are compelled to remark, the special and present attention of the Local Authorities. It is a fact that this base and inhuman practice, does not only disgrace places in and along the Sherbro district, but carries on its evil in the hideous and secluded places. We hope therefore, in consequence of this, that something ought to be done at once to arrest the progress of the cruelties of Cannibalism before it reaches a state that will be difficult to check, since it appears from what we can gather, that some of the chiefs are afraid to use means which they deem sufficient to stop the grossness of such conduct.

We must be understood that our calling the attention of the Authorities in this place, to this subject, is in answer to the importune requests of those who are anticipating, and think they ought to believe in a dreadful outbreak.

THE SUPREME COURT.

It is about five years ago since a session of the Supreme Court was held in this place by His Honor the late Mr. Tarleton, then the Acting Chief Justice of Sierra Leone, and on Monday last the 23rd inst. another was held in this place by His Honor W. H. Quayle Jones Chief Justice of Sierra Leone. We are glad that the Government has seen its way now clearly to be holding the sessions in Sherbro thus giving an opportunity for many persons to to witness how prisoners are tried in Freetown, and we must confess that we are perfectly satisfied with the manner in which His Honor has disposed of the cases that were brought before him. For whilst he was severe in a particular case, yet he exercised mercy in the others, for we were glad to hear his remark from the bench in the case of Regina vs Richard and Wellington that it is not his policy to send offenders to prison for the first offence committed an [illegible] does not wish to make [illegible] to any one. We must say that such remarks coming from the highest judicial officer in the Colony needs commendation, and it is to be hoped that the leniency with which His Honor dealt with the two cases referred to will be productive of good results, especially to the young woman who was simply fined £5. for committing Perjury.

These remarks of the Chief Justice should teach us also to to maintain always an unimpeached character though all our various dealings in life, for it was the good character he in these two offenders that moved His Honor to adopt such lenient measures with them.

On the other hand, the case of Mellury has met with the full penalties of the laws, for although we observed him using every endeavour to exculpate himself from the crime for which he was charged, yet the Public is of the high hand [illegible] join in hand, the wicked shall not go unpunished.

We therefore hope that the sentence of seven long years imprisonment that has been passed on him will deter others from committing a like offence.

HOPPER RANGE again !!

Since the visit of His Excellency Sir J. S. Hay to this District some time in February last, when I understand at the meeting of the various Chiefs &c. of that District at Mano Sarkie, His Excellency expressed to them that his visit was not to deprive them of their country, but rather to assist them to set it to right, and still give to them power to settle to decide matters in their Barie (excepting cases of murder and such matters as in reference of any Police commander, than Hopper Range, who for many years previous had been shrouded and covered by the thick mantle of darkness, which, indeed, is also Sierra Leone, I assure the attitude he would be was unprepared, but has begun to see those fair mercantile and manifold overtures to his name.

No sooner had he been vested with power as Chief over Kwamaya District than the murmurings of most outrageous proportions by himself or through his orders on an individual were heard to the utter astonishment of numbers, his name against persons he may have the opportunity to put his spleen by means of some pot luck war or other, or by misdemeanors as much as and if not more—and the wide fell sentence made by him upon the property of one or more of his subjects—all these set what perhaps the Authorities may or may not have been aware. have emanated, and must be brought to light and the remedy be at once applied, for it would not be long when this same will come home respectfully to the present party peaceful Upper Bargo residents.

More yet to follow.

Sept. 25 '89. A BIRD.

BENEVOLENCE [illegible]

Sir,—In the columns of the last issue of your valuable journal, a [illegible] was published by "A Friend", in connection with the [illegible] Fund, [illegible] to Bob Loosie Road, &c. and [illegible] the Police in connection with the Police in charge of the District was [illegible] That there was a present [illegible] Fund on hand, but that the shares are [illegible] by the Creditor Police [illegible] Mr. Hanson, who [illegible] charge has done his best, in having the [illegible] not only at Bonthe but [illegible] the District properly cleared [illegible]

[illegible] there was seen in the [illegible] Sierra Leone [illegible] Sierra Leone [illegible] Sierra Leone

GLADSTONE'S WONDROUS VOICE.

He was in splendid voice to ring as clear in years gone. And what a voice! It was of extraordinary compass from the light bantering note in which he twitted the Tories with endeavoring "to adorn the laugh, to decorate it with an idea," down to the deep, resonant, and intentionally hoarse bass. It which it sunk as he spoke of the profound and bitter condemnation with which English action toward Ireland was universally received. Then the flexibility of it! From the top note to the bottom Mr. Gladstone passes lightly, smoothly, and easily as a bird's carol. And the quality of it! How can one describe that! It is impossible to do so without seeming to fall into absurd hyperbole. There is something so winning, so magnetic in Mr. Gladstone's voice, as it was once more last night, and as one can hardly venture to hope it will be again, that it is necessary to seek far for a simile. A cathedral bell sounding far away over a river; a waterfall heard a long way off in the stillness of the night; the sea rolling over a hill-top of pines—in each of these there is a strange, indescribable quality which sometimes makes one's eyes fill and throat contract for mere physical sympathy. In Mr. Gladstone's voice, when he will, there is the same note. That voice is an inalienable memory. —London Correspondence Evening Post.

His Own Stuff.

Some time ago the Interior told the following:

'A plain-spoken man' but of small judgment, walking home with a young preacher, at the close of a morning service, in one of our towns, said to him, "I noticed that you omitted the reading of the Scriptures."

"Yes," said the young minister, "I made the introductory services as short as I could, because my sermon was so long."

"But why," was the answer, "didn't you leave out some of your stuff?"

But why would not the minister substitute the reading his own "stuff" for the chapter in the Bible? He no doubt, on the same occasion, substituted hymns of human composition which are oftentimes called "stuff" by those that use them for the word of God given in the Psalms of the Bible and with his command to use them in praise. Why not? Christian Instructor.

A young man, being in deep distress of mind, apply to Dr. Goodwin tor advice and consolation. After he had laid before him the long and black list of sins that troubled his conscience, the Doctor reminded him that there was one blacker still, which he had not named. "What can that be, sir?" he dispondingly asked. "The sin," reply the doctor, "I refer to is that of refusing to belive in Christ Jusus as the Savior." The simple word banished the anxious one's guilty fears.

A great philosopehr, accustomed to receive large fees from his pupils, had an application from a poor young man to be admitted to his school. "And what," said the sage, "will you give me in return?" "I will give you myself," was the reply. "I accept the gift, said the philosopher, "and engage to restore you to yourself at some future period much more valuable than now." Thus does the great Teacher for those who put themselves implicitly in his hands.

A smooth sea never made a skill-ful mariner, neither do uninterrupted prosperity and success qualify for usefulness & happiness. The storms of adversity, like those of the ocean, rouse the faculties, and excite the invention, prudence, skill and fortitude of the voyager. The martyrs of ancient times, in bracing their minds to outward calamities, acquired a loftiness of purpose and moral herosim worth a life time of softness and security.

"Your prejudice against tobacco, Maria, "observed Mr. Billus, lighting his pipe, "is unreasonable. God made tobacco." "He made a certain animal, too, "said Mrs Billus sharply, opening the doors and window "and afterward, according to Moses, pronounced it unclean, Mr. Billus." Chicago Tribune.

To strive to forget enemies, or to throw out to them only friendly thougts is as much an act of self-protection as it is to ward off a physical blow.

The persistent thought of friendliness turns aside thought of ill will and renders it harmless.—Prentice Mulford.

To Subscribers.—Please send in your Dues to this [EarlyDawn] Office at once as we are much in need of the mount Due us to pay printers.

A Puzzled Surveyor.

A puzzled surveyor was enlightened by a scientific friend recently at Kensington, N. Y. The surveyor was engaged in running a line, but at the outset of his work his compass failed him. To use his own expression, his "line ran in the air." The compass had never played him such a trick before and he examined it carefully, but found no cause for the aberration. "I looked up to the sky," he said, laughingly, 'to see if the North Star could be out of gear." He moved his position, and tried again, but no sooner had he leveled his compass and bent over it than he was foiled again. He called the attention of a friend to the circumstance, and his friend watched the strange performance attentively. "Ah!" he said, you have a new hat on; let me look at it." The surveyor removed his hat, and handed it to his friend, whereupon the friend showed the puzzled man that in the stiff brim of the hat a steel wire had been placed to keep the form perfect, and the wire had affected the needle; as the surveyor bent over the instrument working witnout his hat, the compass did its duty faithfully. but by hangiug his hat upon it the needle went up instantly. A similar phenomenon takes place frequently in spiritual matters. The conscience, which should direct its owner faithfully becomes useless when strong inclination to evil or the sophistry of the tempter perverts it. (Titus 1: 15.) Sel

TO LET

The Wellknown Shaingay Mission stores, Wharf, &c, Situate at Shaingay, or Tasoh Point, better known as Shaingay Mission, about 60 miles, southeast of Freetown and 59 miles North-west of Bonthe Sherbro. This is a well located, property and commands a good Trade, and being on one of the most healthy Promontories of the West Coast of Africa offers special attraction for European residence.

For particulars, Apply to

J. A. EVANS

BONTHE SHERBRO

13th Aug '89. W. C. Africa

PUBLIC NOTICE.

S. M. MISSION STORE.

We now offer for sale the Best BRANDS of FLOUR In Bbls. & Half Bbls. ALSO SUGAR, KEROSINE, FLORIDA WATER, in Bbls & Cases,

Provisions

Of the freshest kind and in good variety.

Best Tea, Coffee, Lard, Butter, Milk, Cocoa & Milk, Vinegar, Sauces, Mustard, Pickles, Tomatoes, Peaches, Tapioca, Sago, Pearl Barley, Potted Meats, Pilchards, Baking Powder, Chocolate and Milk, Split Peas, Pears, Soups, assorted.

MEDICINES

(Patent and Proietary)

A SPECIALITY

prme Pieces, Watches, Sewing Machines, Watch Guards, Sewing Machine Needles.

N.B. We Pay CASH for Palm Kernels.

J. A. Evans.

ADVERTISEMENT SCALE.

Reduced rates.

(FOR EACH INSERTION.)

A whole page	£1	10	0
A whole column	0	8	0
Half-a-column	0	5	0
One-fourth of a column	0	3	0
One-eighth of a column	0	2	0
Marriage	0	2	0
Births and deaths	0	1	0
Domestic servants wanted	0	1	0
Servants wanting situations	0	1	0

Each notice should not exceed 4 lines Every additional line or part of a line 6d extra.

'Early Dawn'

PRINTING OFFICE.

Job Work Done at short

Notice.

Enquire of G. W. Cowan—Printer.

The Early Dawn.

"The Morning Light Is Breaking, The Darkness Disappears."

VOL. VI. BONTHE, SHERBRO, WEST AFRICA, OCTOBER 16, 1889. No 19.

The "Early Dawn."

Published Semi-Monthly, A

BONTHE, SHERBRO.

Under the Auspices of the Board of Missions of the

U. B. IN CHRIST.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION

One Year by Mail,	£0	6	0
Delivered in Bonthe,	0	5	0
Half yearly by Mail,	0	3	0
Ditto. deliv'rd in Bonth,	0	2	6

ADDRESS.—Communications to J. A EVANS, Editor & Publisher, Bonthe Sherbro, West Africa,—

Subscriptions to be sent to Rev. D F WILLIAMSON Shaingay, Mr. E. A. LEWIS, Freetown, West Africa. Rev Wm. McKEE Dayton, Ohio, U.S.A. or to the Editor.—

DIRECTORY.

Commandant. C. H. Harley Moseley

Coxswn. The Commandant.

Chief Clerk. M. E. W. Rooke

Interpreter. J. D. Rogers,

Bailiff. F. E. B. Beckner.

Sub Treas. & Col. Chief Clerk J. D. Macaulay.

Tide Waiters. J. N. Crown, J. B. Turner. J. J. Warburton.

Asst. Exams. Officer Sulymah Jasper Caulker

Assistant Col. Surgeon. M. L. Jarrett, M R. C. S.

Discounter Rowland May

Postmaster. H. R. Williams.

Inspector of Police. M. E. Betts.

Gaoler. J. A. Dennis

Overseer of Roads. A. O. Walker.

Religious Directory.

St. Matthew's Church, Victoria Row
Pastor, Vacant.

Wesleyan Methodist, Lime Street
Pastor, Rev. J. C. Thomas

Mendi Mission. (Congregational.) Good Hope
Pastor, Rev R. C. Taylor

Walk in The Light.

Of the revealed and plainly written Word of God, not doubting, or caviling, at the so-called discrepancies.—for really there are none,—but let the precious Word be a lamp to guide your feet, a light on your pathway through a veritable wilderness of Error, superstition, vice and every conceivable variation from the really Right and True. Yes walk in the light of the Gospel of Jesus. The light of the light of the World. E.

'The Attention of All'

Dear Mr. Editor—In perusing your issue of September 30th, I noticed an article signed by your Correspondent, "A Watchman" calling the immediate attention of the Authorities to the want of sufficient Policemen to do duty in Sherbro District, by referring to the case of Reg. vs. Mellory, as an instance of emergency in which Boatmen were called upon to do Policemen's duty is a fact which no one in this District can deny. I will therefore beg your kind indulgence Mr. Editor, to enlarge upon the subject in your valuable journal. Who in this vicinity would not agree with Mr. 'Watchman' as well as myself to say that we are left to the mercy of heartless men, as there are some such among us. If Freetown and Bonthe are considered to be the chief seats of the Government of Sierra Leone, and if Freetown is supplied with able men both in Soldiers and Policemen for the protection of the Freetown District, why cannot Bonthe also be supplied with men for the safety of the Sherbro District? If we cannot have soldiers why not sufficient Policemen? Take a visiting trip down to the Police Station here you will find only a Sergeant and a Private or a Corporal with a Private composing a division for the protection of Bonthe District when there are no disturbances in the interior, you will only find 3 or 4 men including the Sergt or Corp'l who is to be in charge of the privates

In the whole at Present you cannot find 6 qualified privates at Bonthe, should there be any uproar or break out who are to defend its inhabitants? No one will doubt that Sierra Leoneans must defend the place since it is certain that the Mendies without being compelled will never go'nst their countrymen protect Sierra Leoneans.

Posey a man as our energetic and praise worthy Commandant going on duty to the Bargees District, whither about 6 Policemen should have escorted him, only had one man owing to not having sufficient policemen at Bonthe. I am afraid Mr. Ed. that if this state of things in Sherbro does not receive the immediate attention of the Authorities there will be a great fall that will require much expence to rectify. The Community were greatly surprized to hear of the great changes taking place through the head of the Constabulary Department in Freetown, by relieving those useful and interesten policemen who are assisting the authorities a great deal especially in the "Aborigines Branch". The only intelligent person among the eight policemen sent from Freetown to relieve those that are under the Corporal. The remaining seven men do not know A. from B. Go and view them with their inspector at their parade ground; it is an amusing sight they do not know their right from their left. What are we to do with such men? Sherbro District, I am sure Mr. Editor does not require such men as have been sent from Freetown; But if they are to remain in Sherbro, there ought to be sufficient in en of bright understanding to teach these dark benighted men what their duties are; for Sherbro duties so far as I am acquainted with this place are different from those of Freetown. Let me stop to ask one or two questions.

Are we as loyal subjects of our Sovereign lady the Queen not to have the protection of the Government in a country like this.

Are we not paying to the Treasury our monies thereby increasing the Revenue of Sherbro for the support of the Colony? Why cannot why cannot we have proper and sufficient policemen who know how to use their Rifles to protect us?

Bonthe, Yours—A RESIDENT.
Oct 7th '89.

For the "Early Dawn."

By permission.

Mr Editor,—In order to encourage industry, and the cultivation of the soil, the Principal of the Rufus Clark and Wife Theological Training School had given out to the students that there will be prizes awarded for the best design of garden, best quality, and variety of garden products.

Competent judges were also appointed by the Principal to decide in regard to the design of gardens, variety, and quality of products.

The students then undertook the task of competing for the prizes.

The following is the decision of the judges lately submitted.

We the undersigned judges having carefully inspected the gardens of the R. C. and Wife Theological Training School, have arrived at a conclusion that the following gentlemen are entitled to awards, viz:

Master Joseph H. Coulker, 1st prize for design and quality.
" George A. Remmie 1st prize for variety and quality.
" Alphatet Avery, 2nd prize for design.

A. Philander Doomakbay } Judges
H. J. Williams }

Shaingay.
Sept 24, '89.

FACTS FROM SHAINGAY

Mr. Editor,—Shaingay is a nice little town "beautiful for situation"—situated on a spot which makes the scenery of the place an attractive one. We are again fired by the feeling of patriotism to say that the town in its present condition is not a healthy one.

The air that one inhales when he is without the town is far different from the insalubrious air, caused by the putrefraction of the leaves of the plantain, banana, and other worthless trees that are standing where fine houses ought to be built. As we are so near to the Atlantic ocean, we would like to enjoy the warmth floating from the surface of its waters, and the pleasant breeze that is blowing from it. These are salient facts and we wish them to be noticed. We feel too to arrest the attention of him who has the power (humanly speaking) to command and it shall be done to make a move which we believe will be a move in the right direction towards the end which calls forth our say. We may like to have a pic-nic and when we shall be ready a shady place under the forest trees will be found; but it is not our taste to be so shaded as we are at prefent.

We will hail with joy the day when Batch-allor bridge shall be put under repairs. It was with difficulty that we waiked over it the other night to prayer meeting; and remaining as it is, it is possible for us to say, it is a bad state of things. By the way, the cannibals have begun again their devilish and atrocious pratice. Leopards and alligators are chasing people at Yainkain point now and then. And folks at Tresannah must be very care ful, because the suspicions of the mass of people this way is concentrated on them, Canny Woore to at party to give Tresannah people all the fresh meat they want.

The power last-be should see that there be no more of open desecration of the Sab-ath such as came under our notice on the 22nd inst., Peace! If we had the power we would have imprisoned every one of those devil-agents who participated in the dance. You will hear from us again.

SHAINGAY & J.
Shaingay, Sept. 27, '89.

To the Editor of the "Early Dawn."

Dear Editor A little scene occured in St. M ttheo's Church on Sunday the 6th during morning service which deserves a little space in the "Early Dawn"

Immediately before the hymn was given out to preach the officiating Catechist announced to the congregation that a certain burden was lying in his breast which unless he unbosomed he could not freely ascend the pulpit then he asked the question, "Are there any slanderers here" after a pause he commenced with indignation to denounce the writer of the article which appeared in the last issue of the "Early Dawn" bearing the name of "Prima Facie" which the Catechist newly styled "Prima Facies"—I had never before witnessed such a ridiculous exhibition of rage, in a place where seriousness should reign supreme.

If I were asked to furnish a list of the names of slanderers in this place I should assuredly be strongly inclined to head such a list with the name of this worthily offended preacher. Among other things the Catechist told his congregation that it was his determination to resort to a Justice of the Peace respecting the article whether to get an advice or to set the law in motion against the writer, he did not say, he also failed to say what reigned his determination—no doubt his conscience must have convinced him that he was not entirely, free from speaking injudiciously of other people. I am unable to see any slander in Prima Facie's article, the writer simply gave out to the Public the subject-ance of the Catechist's public remarks and commented on them—I do not know from where the catechist has imported his law that enables him to see any slander in the article in question. If he is really afraid as he appears to be, of this sort of things appearing in public, let him acquire the wisdom to know when to speak and what to speak about—as the catechist had already given out that the superintendent and teachers of his Sunday school would refute the article of "Prima Facie," I shall wait patiently to see the powerful refutation when these sunday school worthies will present to the public. Meanwhile I subscribe myself to be, Yours truly,

Bonthe, ALPHA.
9th Oct. '89.

To Subscribers.—Please send in your Dues to this [EarlyDawn] Office at once as we are much in need of the mount Due us to pay printers.

The Early Dawn.

BONTHE, SHERBRO.

OCTOBER 16, 1889.

THE CATECHIST OF ST MATTHEWS.

We regret to note, has been the subject of a rather severe attack, in our columns, by a correspondent — Prima Facie, — and while not approved by us, it was nevertheless admitted on the responsibility of writer, as we at the time had not the opportunity of weighing its contents in all their bearings upon the community; however, as the writer only saw it in type, he could but negative, its force by a footnote, which he did as will be seen by reference to article in our last Issue and further he at the time of the Issue of the paper, asked a friend of the Catechist, to kindly point out this to him, and hoped that this would end the matter; but unfortunately it seems that it did not; and that the Catechist had occasion to refer to it publicly on Sabbath in such a manner as gave rise to Alpha's letter in this Issue. And also a rejoinder from the Teasso a rejoinder from the Teachers of the St. Mathews Sabbath School that we insert in this Issue, by the request of the Secretary of the Sabbath School and of course on the responsibility of the Authors. For our own part we can freely say, that we have never noticed anything, in the demeanor or otherwise of the Catechist of St. Mathew's of a Sectarian nature, or that is like bigotry' we have always known him as a very liberal man in Church matters never speaking ill of any connection of Christians. On the other hand it would have been well for the defense in this case to be sure of the exact attitude of Prima Facie before charging him with a libelious article or malevolence as this is very strong language and we do not think he intended either, but rather commented upon the report which he heard. With this brief notice of this unfortunate affair we drop the gavel without being able to insert further articles of the defense

Acknowledgement—We are again placed under renewed obligations to the Royal Colonial Institute for another fine Vollume of its Proceedings for 1888-89. These Proceedings are indeed interesting to us, and of great value to any one interested in the British Colonial Empire.

The Rains,—Seem to most of us to have continued for rather an unusul period, but it should be bourne in mind too that they have not been so incessant as in other years, but that we have had many sunny days.

THE GOLDEN RULE.

"As ye would that men should do to you, do ye also to them likewise." Is the rule, according to our Lord's Teaching, by which men should be guided in their, duty toward each other, but while it is the best for humanity yet men are reluctant to adopt it, as the governing principal of their action. And for no other reason than it antagonizes, their selfish, if not to say, revengeful natures, for when the law of retdiation was incorporated, into the Mosaic code, men readily entered into the Spirit of it and when it was an eye for an eye, and a tooth, for a tooth, men did not hesitate, to carry out the requirements of the Law to the Letter. But years after when Jesus the Christ taught that men should not return evil for evil, men found it difficult to submit to the divine will because, it did not harmonize with their natures. However it was the father's will enunciated by the divine son, and in that it was so declared was superior to those laws proclaimed from Sinai by his servant Moses; however, the Law of retaliation or revenge was not of Sinaitic, origin but of Bedouin, it was from the roving Tribes of the desert incorporated into the Statute Laws of Palestine, no doubt as a means of retrubutive Justice by which the almighty might use ancient Isreal in visiting his judgements upon the Canannites and other heathen tribes, the cup of whose iniquity was either full or filling up rapidly. This having been accomplished without satisfactory results upon the race. The Father of Good saw fit to announce through his Son this Law of Love, and which is so strictly in keeping with his nature of love, and goodness as leaves no room for us to doubt its divine origin, and yet how few of the professed followers of his dear son are the keepers of of this divine injunction.

Dear Mr Editor,

Please give publicity to the following in your next impression.

We have read with intense disgust, the article signed "Prima Facie" in your issue of the 30th ultimo.

We say with intense disgust, because the things stated are quite repulsive to the ear and ridiculous in the extreme, being the outburst of an uncontrollable disposition and malevolence of one who is a stranger to truth.

"Prima Facie" has unwarrantably put before the public a libellous article against the agent of St Matthew's Church Bonthe, with reference to his remarks a few sundays ago, admonishing his members to continue to attend and give support to their Sabbath School as heretofore.

He further touched on the inconsistency of his members having their names enrolled in other Sabbath Schools here when their own is in proper working order and discipline.

"Prima Facie" has for reasons best known to himself, changed the tenor of some much respected Catechist's remarks, and has stigmatised him with the painful brand of a "sectarian bigot."

The writer no doubt must have thought that this piece of impertinence would would be overlooked, or perhaps he is flattering himself that he would be appreciated for his frenzy: it is with a view of preventing him from falling into a like error that we have undertaken to correct his statements, being untrue, misleading, malicious.

It is, however satisfactory to observe that the reading and thinking portion of the community is more thoroughly acquainted with the Catechist's openheart coduess and liderality than "Prima Facie" whose first appearance in print is met with reproach and abhorrence.

We are,

Yours faithfully,

Pro the teaching staff in connection with St. Matthews Sabbath School, Bonthe.

C. S. Brown,
Secretary.

Bonthe,
10th Oct. '89.

WAITING FOR THE TIDE.

Every reader even of Geogra phy, will at once understand what is meant by the Tide, that it is the periodical rise and fall of the water in the sea or of the great Ocean, which occurs twice in every twenty-four hours or what is called a day, but it may not be so well known how this rising and falling of the sea or ocean affect the travel of missionaries and others on the Rivers and Lagoons of this coast of Africa; so, By your permission I will give you a little idea from experience. Not long since I had an occasion to go to Koneonany, one our stations about seventy miles from this place, to hold quarterly meet'g. We had prepared for our journey the day previous, then slept and waited for Tide to rise half way in the morning, and which it did by 4 o'clock, and the boatmen came for our luggage. There were six of us to go, the School Teacher's wife and 3 children, an Interpreter and myself, so we had many little things besides ourselves to carry in the boat, but all were in, & at 4 o'clock sharp 4 men threw out their oars with a splash into the Water & the fifth held the Tiller or Helm to guide the Boat and off we went on our way. And as we had to go down one river and up another we used the half Tide going down which we did just in time to ascend the other river, and this we did as long as the tide was rising, but but at length it was full, the Africans call it "Chuck." Then the man at the helm, who by the way is called "Captain" or by some "Sappen" as not all Africans can pronounce C (or K as it is in this word) said please sah make we land "Nyokeh" foh wait water sah" This meant that we should stop six hours, in the next Town & wait until the tide went down and began to rise again But we could not go against the current and so of course we agreed, and soon the prow of our boat was turned to the shore, and in less time our boatmen had leaped on Terra Firma and were making "Konany" (asking) for a place to cook their rice and fish. This they would enjoy waiting on the pot to boil, telling and asking the news sleeping and eating. My time I could not spend that way; so after reading a while I went ashore and up into the town to the Barrie of principal woman, whose lott was filled with rice in the straw and she rejoicing that she has been blest with abundant harvest. I improved the circumstances by first refering to her rice as the gift of God, which she readily acknowleged to be true, I then spoke to her and others that were present of the goodness of God in bestowing such blessings, as she was then enjoying, and pointed out her duty to thank and worship God for his goodness etc, I then asked the woman if she ever prayed to God, and she said no, that she did not know how to pray. I then had my Interpreter, who is an intelligent native Christian and a bible reader, to tell her how to pray, which he did, she with others thank'd us. And we passed on further into the town speaksng to such as we met. And returning to the wharf, we entered another Barrie, the loft of which was filled with grain (rice). And here again I sat down and tried to point the inmates to God as the giver of all the blessings of life and that every one should be greatful to him. E.

NEWS ITEMS.

Editor, — returned from Shaingay and Freetown on the night of the 30th ultimo after absence of 12 days

S.S Formoso,— arrived from Freetown with Mails Passengers, and Freights, on the 3rd. instant.

The James,— Steam Launch belonging to the Palma Trading Company was here about the 3rd. it left on the 5th. with Mr Jones the enterprising agent of the Company.

Official Meeting, — of the U. B. C. Good Hope Station, this place met on the 9th. inst at Mendi Mission School Room.

Mrs. Rebecca Taylor, wife of Serjeant Taylor at Muffusi left as Passanger in the Contract boat leaving for Muffusi on the 8th. inst. to pay the Policemen in the Boom District Mrs. Taylor, it is said is to direct the two Policemen viz. Booboo and Mormoh Fullah, proceeding by the said boat the way and manner of Paying men in Out Stations on their way and signing vouchers.

What a shameful sight to see a woman acting as Pay Mistress in consequence of having no qualified Police in the Boat.

The Annual Meeting,—Or Conference of the U. B. Church will convene at Shaingay on Thursday Dec. 12th instead of the 29th of Dec. As stated in the printed minutes. Teachers and others concerned please note this fact.

Temprance Meeting will be held in the Mendi Mission School Room on Thursday the 17th. inst. at 7 P. M. to which all are respectfully invited. The Rev. J. A. Evans Supt. of The S. M Missions will read a paper on Temperance.

On Thursday Evening the 10th. inst. before a respectable gathering of ladies and gentlemen A Paper on "The Life of Moses" was read by Mr. Fred. Johnson in the Mendi Mission School Room. The paper bespeaks much intelligence and extensive reading. It was well appreciated by those present Mr. Johnson has justly earned the hearty thanks of the Meeting.

SUPREME COURT INTELLIGENCE.

Bonthe, Sherbro,
September 23, 1889.

Regina versus William Henry Melbury. For wounding one Moosoo at Bonthe on the 23rd August. The information against the prisoner was read by Mr. Valentine acting Master of the Court, and it contained 5 counts—to which the Prisoner pleaded, Not guilty

After the Jurors were empannelled the Honble J. A. Macarthy B.L. acting Queens Advocate opened the case for the prosecution and stated the facts of the case to the jurors:—

The first witness called was moosoo, who sworn states,—

My name is Moosoo, I am the wife of Chief Abdulye of Juring, I know the prisoner, we were living together as man and wife. There was a dispute between myself and the prisoner, I came to Bonthe to attend the supreme court, Prisoner asked me to go with him to his house as we were not living in one house I refused, he came again the next day, I refused to go with him, he then said to me, I hear you always part with every man you lived with, but I shall be the last, I asked him, "What will you do if I dont go with you." He replied I will kill you and go away." I would have complained to the Commandant, had my name not been in the book already — Tennah, Jassah, Noosah, and several other persons were present when he said he would kill me. This took place at midday, the day previous to the day I got hurt. After this prisoner went away.

The next day I saw the last prisoner Kamah, in the morning, she came to me and told me that she wanted to see me, that was the first time I saw her, she asked me to go with her to the bush, I told her I was washing. After this she went away, and returned and met me taking breakfast.

She told me to go with her to pick some leaves to make palaver sauce, I then left my breakfast and went with her.

We went to Otto street in a cassada farm. We left the house when the first bell ringing for school. The bell had not rung before I took my breakfast, I did not hear the second bell as I was in the bush. When we got to the field Kamah asked me to sit down & she would pick off lice from my head, I told her I had none. Then she broke some cassada leaves and spread it on the ground. I sat down and she scratched my back, she told me that she was waiting for some one to bring her some cassada. I told her that I wanted to go home. Whilst attempting to get up I saw the prisoner who hit me with a stick on my head, I did not see the stick but felt it. When he hit me on the head, I fell down, and cried out prisoner caught hold of my two hands, (The wound on the head was shown to the jurors) I had no wounds on my head before prisoner struck me. The prisoner came from a bush. I did not see any knife with Kamah when we went together to the cassada field. I did not see knife with any one. I did not hear any one talk about the knife. I received the first wound on the palm of my left hand I received another wound on my belly. After I had got the wound on my belly prisoner left I cried out all the while, they stopped my mouth with a piece of cloth. Kamah then took off my coral and earing, she also held me by the throat. I had beads on my waist and a pair of mallmas and a blue baft wrapper, When I cried out then Murry Bah came and found Kamah on top of me & he caught hold of her while Murry Bah held Kamah I ran away thinking that he had also come to kill me. I also saw Medley who came and held me to a fire kie in a house from whence I was taken to the Colonial Hospital, Crossexamined by prisoner—I know you, were living together, I cannot remember where the sun was when I got hurt, I never thought you would have carried out the threats you made to me the day previous, I never saw you with a knife like this, (knife produced) you took a pen knife from me, we had had a row the day before, therefore I did not ask you why you beat me. I dont know whether you are acquainted with Kamah.

Cross-examined by Queen's Advocate I am quite sure that it was the prisoner Kamah gave me the wound on the head.

Kamah sworn states,—My name is Kamah, I pleaded guilty in this Court to a charge of wounding the prosecutrix Moosoo, I know both the prisoner and Moosoo. The first time I know the prisoner was the day the road took place I met prisoner and moosoo quarrelling, prisoner complained that Moosoo had given him sick, and that she refused to go with him. The same evening prisoner came to me. He met me eating foo foo, I invited him, but he refused saying that he does not eat foofoo, he said that he had come to see me I asked him his reasons for coming to see me as I never know him before, he replied "I wanted you to go and called Moosoo" I told him, what you have done today is bad, you acted to Moosoo as if you were not born by a woman, he then said that I must go and called Moosoo and that he wanted to beg her, I consented and went to moosoo's house, but did not find her at home, I returned and reported same to prisoner. He then told me to go to her the next morning and ask her to go with me to the road as he wanted to go away. I went to moosoo the next morning and asked her to go with me to pick some leaves to make palaver sauce, she agreed and we went to a cassada field in upper Otto street we were there for a while. When moosoo attempted to get up then prisoner knocked her on the head with a stick, (stick produced) I am sure it was prisoner who struck moosoo with the stick, when she fell down I said to prisoner, Is this what you call me for, prisoner said to me, let us kill moosoo and I will pay you, then he took off the earing and coral &c, from moosoo and gave them to me, this was when moosoo lie senseless on the ground, prisoner stabbed her On the belly with a knife, I stabbed her on the head, I got the knife from prisoner, prisoner put something in moosoo's mouth to prevent her from crying aloud.

Cross Examined by Prisoner—I never knew you till the day of the road. You gave me fid to buy rum. After you wounded Moosoo you ran to the bush.

Cross Examined by Chief Justice.—While we were eating the bush the first bell had rung. I did not hear the second bell I took no notice where the sun was when in the Cassada farm. After prisoner left Murrybah came to the spot, prisoner never done anything wrong. It makes no difference to me whether prisoner be found guilty or not as I have no ill-feelings against him.

Murry Bah Sworn and saith—I am a trader. I lived at Mosolo. I remember about a month ago I saw Moosoo and Kamah in a Cassada farm. I heard a noise in the bush "I am doing they kill me do come." I went to the spot. I did not see any one besides. I met Kamah on top of Moosoo, I heard "Leave the knife, the voice was a woman's voice. When I got to the spot I found Kamah holding Moosoo by her throat. I called for help and Muffey came. I took Kamah from on top of Moosoo. Kamah told me that a man was killing Moosoo but that he ran away for the knife. I did not see the man.

Dr. M. L. Jarrett.—I am Asst. Colonial Surgeon of Sherbro—Moosoo was brought to Hospital by some of her friends on the 23rd August about 2.30 p.m. in a hammock, and she appeared to be in great pains and weak.

On examination, I found on the outer side of the right leg about 6 inches above the ancle joint punctured wound ½ inch in depth below upwards and ½ inch in width, and 1 inch from the right of the navel there is a punctured wound ½ inch in length, this wound extended on to the bowels, the part called the mentum perinæl. An inch or more below this and on the left of it, there is another wound on the left part as the one just described, preventing the same appearance, bowels also protruded. On the outer side of the left arm in front and about an inch from the waist joint there is a punctured wound about ½ an inch wide and ½ in depth. On the the left chest just about the level of the border jaw and two inch in a straight line on the lower end of the ear there is a superficial incise wound about half inch below is another of some length. There are two or three abrasions of the skin, a little behind above these there there is a wound on the scalp 2 inch above the outer side of the left eye 1 inch long and extending to the bone. Another on the top of the head 1½ inch also extended to the bone. On the 27th her hair was shaved and the superficial wound on the scalp was seen a little more than an inch on the right. There was not very much loss of blood, she was in a rather serious condition.

None of the wounds were of a very serious nature excepting those of the abdomen. The wounds on the head might be caused by a stick, and those on the other parts of the body with a knife.

The case for the posecution being over the witnesses for the defence were next called.

Jacob Thomas.—I am a shop boy at Korankoh. I do dot remember the day in last month when I came from Koranko. I do remember the day of the week that I left for Koranukoh. I started from Yandaboo Factory. We left after breakfast, prisoner took passage with me, I was asked by the Agent to give him apassage. The sun was overhead at the time. Prisoner called me from the shop I did not see him before he called me. The Agent's name is T. E. Macfoy Cross Examined by Queen's Advocate.—Prisoner did not continue the passage. He took passage for Koranko. He left us and with passage to the mail boat, assigning as a reason, that our boat was overloaded and I was leaking, and that he had no where to stretch his back. He did not say that the boat was moving slowly. I said to the Police Court that prisoner complained of my boat being too slow and that he took passage in the mail boat. I knew the prisoner at Koranokh before he took passage with me. We are not employed in the same factory.

Cross Examined by Prisoner.—Yourself and wounds left the boat and with passage in the mail boat. After we left Bonthe we landed only at Mosally Mr. Bettie factory, at night.

Conray Sammah.—I am a labourer at Korankoh, prisoner took passage with us for Koranokh. I cannot remember the day of the month. We left Bonthe on a Friday after the men had returned from their breakfast. I never saw the prisoner before that Friday.

Cross Exam'd by Queens Advocate.—Prisoner said that the boat was overloaded and was not moving fast enough. He left with passage in the mail boat and another woman.

T. E. Macfoy.—I am Agent for Paterson Zochonis & Co. I live at Yandaboo factory, Bonthe. I know Jacob Thomas. He was here last month from Koranokh. He came on the 21st. The boat returned on the 22nd. and the same day I heard that a woman was wounded. I know prisoner, he asked me for a passage in the morning of the same day at 7 o'clock. I granted him the passage, after this he left. I told him the boat might go away at any time, I think I next saw him before 12 noon. We rang for the bell that day, there was a difference of about 10 minutes. Prisoner came with the Captain.

A. M. Peters.—I am a writing clerk in the employment of Paterson Zochonis & Co. I lived at Bonthe, I know the prisoner. I know Jacob Thomas. I remember seeing the prisoner the day woman was wounded. I did not see the prisoner leave with the boat, saw prisoner about ½ to 11 in the Factory Yard. I did not see him after.

O. Lennox Macauley—I am a writing clerk at P. Z & Co. I saw the prisoner the day a woman was wounded, I saw him about 9 in the morning. He left and came back about half past eleven. When I saw him the second time, he came with his box and asked the Captain for a passage. The Capt. said that the boat was crowded, but I urged on him to take the prisoner.

Jacob Thomas Re-exam'd by Ch. Justice.—Remember Mr. Macauley asked me to make place for prisoner.

The Judge after summing up the evidences produced, left the case for the Jury who retired and after a while returned a verdict of "Guilty of Wounding with intent to do Grievous bodily harm", and was sentenced to 7 Years imprisonment with Hard Labour.

FOR SALE—At Bonthe Sherbro TWO PLOTS OF LAND

The one situate at Victoria Rd., between the premises in occupation of C. J. Cole, and Sally Martyn, the other at King, Lane and Thomas St., near the premises in occupation of Thomas V. W. Lefevre.

For further Particulars,

Apply to Frank Mackintosh Cole

Representative of the Lawful Proprietors King, Lane & Thomas Sts. Bonthe Sherbro,

THE JEW.

A skeptical prince once requested his chaplain to give him a short, clear proof of Christianity. The chaplain immediately said, "The Jew, your Majesty" Agnostics, atheists, and skeptics can pick at and raise perplexing questions about the miracles of the Bible, salvation by faith, human immortality, etc.; but how can they gainsay the Jew, his history and the fact that in every city and town of any note in all the world he is a living, moving demonstration of the fulfillment of the predictions written at least three thousand years ago? Read the 28th. chapter of Deuteronomy and the reference therein given, and then read the history of the Jews by Josephus.

That the Jew today is the most wonderful person on the face of the earth must be admitted. He is the banker of Europe and the merchant of the world. Scattered throughout all nations, yet a separate and distinct people,—until recently persecuted, despised, and often outraged on account of his nationality yet never denying his religion or race or often wronged in his property rights, and systematic efforts put forth in many countries to spoil him,—yet he toils on submissively and succeeds in accumulating wealth. And today, despite powerful and long-continued efforts to beggar and annihilate the race, how numerous and thrifty!

There are now upward of 400,000 of this remarkable people in the United States, and their number is rapidly increasing. The country has special attractions for the Jews. Here they enjoy the greatest possible freedom. Here the most favorable opportunities are afforded them for accumulating wealth. Here they come in contact with the enterprise and business tact of the ingenious, wide-awake Yankee, which is peculiarly exhilarating to a Hebrew. In every respect, save in their religion, they readily Americanize, and reap all the benefits of intelligent, industrous, enterprising citizenship.

Being temperate, industrious chaste, shrewed, economical, it is but natural that they should thrive; and that they do thrive is a fact well known to all. And why should they not! Say what we may the Jew is a thrifty, useful, law-abiding citizen. Prejudice long since placed him under a ban in the public estimation; but candor compels the admission that as a thrifty, law-abiding citizen he stands without a peer. Who ever saw a Jewish boy or maiden in a reform school! Who ever heard of a Jew being in the penitentiary! Who ever heard of a Jew being hung for murder Perhaps there have been instances, but they are certainly very rare. Compare the Jew in this respect with the English, the French, the German, the Irish, or any other foreign nationality, and what a contrast.

In his religion only is the Jew peculiar and even in this respect is he neither offensive or meddlesome, but rather a model of faith, a monument of of hope deferred, and an object of commiseration. Refusing to see in Christ his promised and long looked for Messiah, he is still waiting, watching, hoping. How oft his hope fails and he is on the verge of yielding in dispair, God only knows

And just what the future of this peculiar people is to be none can foreast. One thing is sure, he is destined to rapidly increase in numbers and wealth in this country, and consequently wield a powerful influence in the affairs of the nation. Meantime God is through him demonstrating the truth of prophecy, and by that the divine origin of Christianity; and we may rest assured that when "the fulness of the gentiles be come in" (see Romans 11: 25), the Jew, scattered throughout the world, will accept Christ, and thus become a most potent factor in ushering in the universal reign of the Prince of Peace.—Religious Telescope.

To the Editor of the "Early Dawn."

Dear Mr Editor,

Since I have become a subscriber and that is nearly two years ago, I have never come across any article in your paper dealing with the treatment which native children living with Sierra Leone people in Sherbro receive from the latter.

It may not be generally known how some of these juvenile aborigines are cruelly treated by their christian masters & mistresses. Some of them would be so severely beaten that one could hardly make out a smooth part on their bodies, others would be set down for starvation, to say nothing of the unwholesome food given to the poor children whenever their great lords or ladies condescend to allow them to taste anything —when perchance the children are blessed with good food, it will be insufficient.

Now it is quite plain that those who treat the native children in this way would not allow their own children to be served in a similar manner. They bestow the greatest care on their own children in every particular but neglect and ill-use the strange children who labour for them as slaves.

It is necessary to impress on such heartlessly formal christians that they are provoking on themselves the Divine wrath and condemnation— A good many of them appear to to be ignorant of the fact that they are responsible to a superior being for such remorseless conduct and that sooner or later justice shall be meted out to them.

Bonthe Yours truly,
10th Oct, 89. KONG.

TO LET

The Wellknown Shaingay Mission stores, Wharf, &c. Situate at Shaingay, or Tassoh Point, better known as Shaingay Mission, about 60 miles southeast of Freetown and 59 miles North-west of Bonthe Sherbro. This is a well located, property and commands a good trade, and being on one of the most healthy Promontories of the West Coast of Africa offers special attraction for European residence.

For particulars, Apply to

J. A. EVANS
BONTHE SHERBRO

3rd Aug '89. W. C. Africa

Notice.

THE

Undersigned

A WRITING CLERK & ACCOUNTANT

Begs again to inform the Public of Bonthe and the Rivers that he is prepared to do all

WRITING JOB WORK,

as follows:—

STOCK-TAKING,
MAKING UP ACCOUNTS
WRITING LETTERS, &c.,

Charges Moderate!

FOR further particulars apply at his Residence, Williams St. abreast the Wesleyan Church, or by letter.

He solicits their patronage.

W. BIDWELL COKER.

Bonthe,
August '89.

PUBLIC NOTICE.

S. M. MISSION STORE.

We now offer for sale the

Best BRANDS of FLOUR

In Bbls. & Half Bbls.

ALSO

SUGAR, KEROSINE.
FLORIDA WATER,

in Bbls & Cases,

Provisions

Of the freshest kind and in good variety.

Best Tea, Coffee, Lard, Butter Milk, Cocoa & Milk, Vinegar, Sauces, Mustard, Pickles, Tomatoes, Peaches, Tapioca, Sago, Pearl Barley, Potted Meats, Pilchards, Baking Powder, Chocolate and Milk, Split Peas, Pears, Soups, assorted.

MEDICINES

(Patent and Proietary)

A SPECIALITY

Time Pieces, Watches, Sewing Machines, Watch Guards' Sewing Machine Needles.

N.B. We Pay CASH for Palm Kernels.

J. A. Evans.

ADVERTISEMENT SCALE.
Reduced rates.

(FOR EACH INSERTION.)

A whole paige	£1	10	0
A whole column	0	8	0
Half-a-column	0	5	0
One-fourth of a column	0	3	0
One-eighth of a column	0	2	0
Marriage	0	2	0
Births and deaths	0	1	0
Domestic servants wanted	0	1	0
Servants wanting situations	0	1	0

Each notice should not exceed 6 lines Every additional line or part of a line 6d extra.

'Early Dawn'

PRINTING OFFICE.

Job Work Done at short

Notice.

Enquire of G. N. Cowan—Printer.

The Early Dawn

"The Morning Light Is Breaking, The Darkness Disappears."

VOL. VI. BONTHE, SHERBRO, WEST AFRICA, OCTOBER 31, 1889. No 20.

The "Early Dawn."

Published Semi-Monthly, At BONTHE, SHERBRO.

Under the Auspices of the Board of Missions of the U. B. IN CHRIST.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION

One Year by Mail,	£0	6	0
Delivered in Bonthe,	0	5	0
Half yearly by Mail,	0	3	0
Ditto. delv'ed in Bonthe,	0	2	6

ADDRESS,—Communications to J. A. EVANS, Editor & Publisher, Bonthe Sherbro, West Africa,—

Subscriptions to be sent to Rev. D F WILKERPOOLE Shaingay, Mr. E. A. LEWIS, Freetown, West Africa, Rev. Wm. MCKEE Dayton, Ohio, U.S.A. are to Editor.—

DIRECTORY.

Commandant.	C. H. Harley Moseley
Coxswain	The Commandant.
Chief Clerk.	M. J. W. Rocks
Interpreter.	J. D. Rogers.
Bosun.	F. E. B. Buckner.
Clerk Treas. & Col.	J. D. Macaulay.
Tide Waiters.	J. N. Crown, J. B. Turner, J. J. Warburton.
Asst. Examg. Officer	Sulymah Jasper Caulker
Assistant Col. Surgeon.	M. L. Jarrett, M. R. C. S.
Dispenser	Rowland May
Coxswainer	H. E. Williams.
Inspector of Police	M. E. Davis.
Harbor Master	J. A. Bonnets.
Overseer of Roads.	A. O. Walker.

Religious Directory.

St. Matthew's Church, Victoria Row
Pastor, Vacant.

Wesleyan Methodist, Lane Street
Pastor, Rev. J. C. Thomas

Heath Mission, (Congregational.) Good Hope
Pastor, Rev R. C. Taylor

Dear Editor,

Kindly give publicity to the enclosed paper on "The Influence of Strong Drink" read on the night of the 17th inst. for the benefit of the Meeting Temperance Army & a respectable Gathering of Ladies and Gentlemen at the Mendi Mission School Room, by the Rev. J. A. Evans Supt. of the S. M. Mission, and President of the above Meeting & oblige.

Yours respectfully, R. C. TAYLOR,
Bonthe, Oct 18 '89

THE INFLUENCE OF STRONG DRINK.

I am aware that this is a subject, of very great importance, and that it cannot be dealt with properly, in a single paper, sufficiently long for an evenings reading so that I propose to make the present paper, only introductory to a general Introductory view of the subject to be followed hereafter by other papers going into further detail or discussion of the subject.—It is a subject that may I know be considered by you & you, & I am further persuaded that there are many here present that would prefer the argument in favor of liquor as a beverage and a commodity of Trade. Yet I feel compelled from a genuine sense of my duty to my fellowmen and my God to Inveigh against both its use and sale in this and and future papers dealing with particular phases of the subject, on account of the evil influence of Strong Drink upon the community, in any part of the World where drink has been introduced to any considerable extent. And especially among the less lightened tribes of this our Coast, where men and women are scarcely able to resist any demand of a carnal appetite: and this unfortunately does not apply alone to raw natives or bushmen, but very largely to all classes; Europeans, Sierra Leoneans and Natives. And tho the cause may be climatic, the fact remains as a monstrous truth: That men who have withstood the temptation to yield to their lower passions in other lands have fallen on this Coast. Just think of it and what an awful picture is presented to our minds at once, when we consider the wrecks that have occured along the History of West Africa. These have been of every class, creed, and nationality, that have dared to set foot on our shores; the wrecks have been of strength, of morals, of Faith, of Official rank, of Capital and in fact of almost any and everything, that is prized by man. And the Question arises. What has been the chief cause of all this Wreckage? But if you will look carefully you can readily perceive one deadly force passing along the whole line of these misfortunes,—it is the Rum of drink in the Parlor, Drink in the shop, Drink on the ship Drink in the stores, Drink in the office, Drink strong Drink every where. Not even the sacred precinct of the House of God, has escaped. Do you ask how I know drink has done haste all along these years, read if you please Scott upon a history or any other history of the earlier days of Sierra Leone, read them & see what nerved the pirate to hazard and terrify the commerce of those Days and especially to commit the brutal acts which they committed. I know by some of delapi dated buildings of the pestal city of Freetown, the former owners of which now fill Drunkard graves, others are in rags and dirt and help to swell the numbers of the "Saturday militia." I know from some of the circumstances of men who stagger through the streets of our own town of Bonthe. But let us look directly at the influence of strong drink on men; for instance take a strong hearty labourer let him have a little every morning of cyder—rum—and just observe how the habit will grow on him; and although first he attends his work with more than ordinary strength, and takes comparatively little, but after a while you will notice an increase in the consumption of rum, with a greater decrease in inner self respect and regard for your kindness in fact he will soon cheek you angry, but that is not all the man will become drunken, and will attend the grog-shop more than your work—will reel to and fro in the streets under the influence of rum—of course you say he takes too much, and that may be true, but taking too much bread or any useful food will not effect him so that he cannot keep the road or cause him to fall in the gutter. No Schools to attend or any make a man sick or possibly kill him; but it will never make him drunk, or turn him a fool. Turn to the influence of Drink, on a man of intellect, whosoever he gets a little too fond he is either cross or silly, will fly up at this or that and every thing is wrong, or if he is of the silly turn of mind, he talks nonsense; but mark you never from the effects of eating out from drinking, strong drinking is what upsets a man's brains & empties out his senses. Then if a business man persist in such a course how soon you see his business decline and it is to the court or in cases I could for no drunkard can do a successful business and every drunker is a danger of becoming a drunkard, I care not how little he may be drinking to night and worse than all no man can tell when he gets to be a drunkard any more than one of you can tell when a pig becomes a hog—he just goes from a pig to a hog & so a drunkard goes on gradually from a drinker to a drunkard. Young men did you know you are going that way and every spark ling glass you take, you increase the number less Soon you'll reach the glass eyed fields of trunker's glory.

But strong drink not only spoils a man's business, wrecks his estate and breaks down his constitution, but destroys his powers of affection and intimidates no longer with the tender grasp of love the arms of his bosom, nor is the paternal love of the Offspring of his own bowels so tender to him again, he can alike curse mother and babe as he staggers into the house with foul and poisonous breath: wives think of the shame and disgrace your husbands are going on in, by the use of strong drink, but it is too little, they will ere long forget the fond name that they love you or your children, turn as you value the affection of your husband and the comforts of home, prevail upon your companion to forsake the glass. I am aware a many of you say and feel that you are sensible, and can control your appetite, can drink or let it alone and really that is my reason for appealing to you, that I may point out to you, what is your safest course, while you enjoy the high prerogative of choice, and there is hope. To reach that man or the sensible man addressed with the intoxicating cup, once enjoyed the same good sense that you now enjoy, he was once respectable, and moreso, it may be instance named and he could drink or he could Resist as he did so, but alas! that time has now passed and he has become a slave to his passion, despite appeals his senses have either deserted or are of little use to him. And more on fortune, his respectability and social status are gone, his name, or soon will take the place of his good children. And as is the picture, it is but what drink puts down in thousands of cases, it is so now, as years, and I am loth to think not very far from your case. Remember that a drinker is, as a rule, a deprived character and although his development may be slow, or even cut short by circumstances, yet if not restrained, will assuredly mature into a full grown Drunkard. Drinker what do you think of the prospect of the wreck of your physical and mental condition and ultimate slavery to an insatiate desire for the intoxicating cup? Do you wish your own destruction? You say not as long as I have my senses, yet you should remember that it is the first work of strong drink to deprive a man of his senses, after which it is easy to bring him down to pain and disgrace. Your only safety then, lies in a hasty retreat from the influence of the cup; prove your freedom and progressive of choosing, by making a wise choice, & making it a once, lest an evil day overtake you & the opportunity be lost, forever! And you as the fair ladies treat me not, be lost to society, to yourself and to friends and all through the influence of the Cup. Drinking strong beverages grows upon those who indulge upon the social glass, as a rule. I care not how careful the person may be, if he is not ever watchful in its use. The tendency is so strong toward an increase of quantity, that he is ever in danger of yielding; and this is perhaps among the worst peculiarities of the influence of strong drink. It seems expressive if not to say Satanic, in its alluring and drawing on its victims in their downward career, until it wraps its slimy coils securely around them, or starts them up in the prayerful Person of a first habit that increases to their ruin in time and eternity.

Dear Mr Editor,

Upon the 17th was the pleasant day of commencing to the public the formation of a Society in this place designated "The Sherbro Literary Association having for its basis the cultivation of useful practical knowledge.

Mr. Caulker Thomson in an able lecture delivered at St. Matthew's School room on the occasion spoke at length with interest to all viz "Sierra Leone's prospects since it was a "Commercial Coast point," has exercised in remarking our latest enterprise, and has kindled the flickering flame in our breasts, and enabled us to grasp more manly desires of assisting our noble country Sierra Leone, and all on the shores of our coast.

The lecture on the above Association is in succession of our manifest intentions to comply with the Proposers suggestions. This our effort for the present, is not to be considered however one may be able to exhibit more striking illustrations examples of the principles of

In a community like ours where opportunities are so few for such public meetings as these are wonder that most of our young people have certainly failed to realize the object of the existence of it is only on a thorough reform like ours that we can find the silver and ore respect in a decided success in the end.

The fact is that associations of a similar nature have been formed and have expired long before they had practicable effects, their infancies never have been very short. Perseverance is the secret to the public and not one has ever attained to maturity who has not experienced a succession of hardships. Well, success crown the late Association in a lasting form, praying that God may animate them from time to time and therefore our sincere wishes and best other societies may accept the formation engaging with our endeavours, wishing us success, and if any thing can be advanced, I the company hand of many strong-hearted intelligent men and helpers—and all the more to acquire a manhood.

I am, Dear Mr. Editor,
Yours in earnest
Moses J. W. Rocks
Secretary.

17th Oct. 89.

The Early Dawn.
BONTHE, SHERBRO.
October 31, 1889.

Public Improvements Needed.

We were pleased to notice some remarks in the "Weekly News" our esteemed contemporary published in Freetown, after a visit of its enterprising Editor to Sherbro, referring to the want of suitable public buildings, in this place; it is certainly a crying shame that a place yeilding the revenue that Sherbro does, cannot be provided with at least respectable public buildings. But some how we are left with the merest excuses in that line, most of which are neither comodious or comfortable. Take for instance the Court Hall Building and we find on the ground floor the Police Station, and we feel inclined to say Barracks, with whatever pertains to that department huddled together in strange proximity. Yet really the downstairs is more suitably arranged than the upstairs; for here indeed is to be found a strange medley; for after ascending a rather precarious stairway to a covered and inclosed landing that forms the entrance to the Court room you have on either hand a comfortably sized entry opening into the Court Hall; one of these cloisters is the Sherbro P at Office, and the other is the Chief's Clerk Office. On the same side with the latter is a little larger appartment which is the Commandant's Office. While on the opposite side and in a line with the Post Office is the Magistrate's Room and the Bailiff's room. The only person that can get to his appartment without passing through the Court Room is the Postmaster. Besides inconvenience it renders ventilation miserable. But time would fail us to detail further the description of this building which certainly needs a complete and thorough over hauling in order to make it either suitable or respectable. The Custom House gives a better external appearance, but even its interior arrangement could doubtless be improved, at least it would seem better to have the Gaol somewhere else than in the lower story of the Custom House. But the worst of all the unbearable arrangements, here, in the line of Public Buildings, is the Hospital, which we cannot understand why we are called to endure in a place so far from Freetown, and where so many persons, foreigners as well as natives are liable to require quarters, and treatment. And yet there is but a single Clap-board building to accomodate male and female patients and the offices necessary to such an institution. Of course scarcely any respectable person can be placed in such a place for treatment however greatly they may be in need of it. Then what is to be done when an Official is ill? let him suffer, or throw him on the public Charity, for shelter is the only answer which the present state of things seems to give.

The Commandant's Visit to Manoh Bargroo District.

On the night of the 27th. ultimo, C. H. Harley Mosely Esq. Civil Commandant of Sherbro, accompanied by Dr. M. L. Jarret assistant Col. Surgeon. and five Jurymen who left Bonthe for an inquest, arrived at Avery Station, and proceeded the next morning to Yandahu Town (about 15 minutes walk from the Mission grounds) where, on Monday the 23rd ultimo a cruel murder was committed by some person or persons (Human Leopards) yet unknown, on a woman the wife of one Bannah Will. On his return from the scene of horror, the chiefs having asked for an interview with him, although as he rightly said, he had not come up this time on political matters, yet he kindly walked to the chief's town, where the natives had all congreated and awaiting his arrival; and after an interview of about an hour, the assembly dispersed every one feeling satisfied at the Commaadant's good wishes and expressions.

It is to be regretted though, that the interpretation made by the Corporal, his orderly from Bonthe was bad enough the interview would have been therefore of much more intereste, if a proper interpretation of the Commandant's remarks had been made, being fraught with advices for the people's welfare.

It is to me a miracle, why some men would undertake to interpret a language which to themselves needs interpretation

The Commandant returned to Avery; and at 3 oclock, p. m. himself and suite bade farewell to all, and glided down the river in his jolly boat for Bonthe to continue the Inquiry.

Both Sierra Leoneans and natives felt happy on his visit, and only wish it would be more frequent than heretofore

Sherbro, VOX.
11th Oct. '89.
(The above should have appeared in our last issue but was overlooked, Ed.)

For the "Early Dawn"

Dear Mr Editor,—Being in a temporary possession of your valuable journal, the "Early Dawn" of October 16, and casting a glance over its columns, I caught sight of a letter written for your insertion from the R. C. and Wife training Institution, giving the names of young gentlemen who were awarded prizes for horticulture or the best regulated garden and its productions. I must confess Mr. Editor that I was not the less pleased to see that such a grand movement has been undertaken over the other side of the Sherbro country. I may venture to say that such a grand movement is the the giving birth to a grander movement as a son and, that is agriculture. The writer of this article is one who has harboured in his mind a great love and taste for agriculture, having been bred up by one who is a farmer who has taught him farming to some extent; and he has been able to put that theory into practice by laying out a field of wild grass, sown, and reaped the benefit of that field. That the writer's previous knowledge of agriculture was not of a protracted kind, yet he can now with boldness assert that his knowledge is now far better than what it was before. It was a subject of debate sometime ago, as to which of the two Trade or agriculture is more beneficial to Africa. Various were the opinions expressed by gentlemen on both sides; and some have advanced that Trade is more beneficial to Africa than agriculture. True enough, by trade we have been able to hold communication with other civilized nations. But may I ask, without agriculture could trade have risen to that summit of success as it now is? Now there are so many classes of men existing, all engaged in the different pursuits of life. But were it possible that a census be taken of working men in our country, (say Sierra Leone) I donot not that there will be found the least number of farmers and that a very insignificant one in comparison with the rest. There arises the question, are we all in our proper element? There may be some but is it so in all cases? are we not many of us in a wrong calling in life? I do believe so. There are some of us born to be agricultursts mechanics, merchants, &c; but what do we find, but that many have taken a pursuit that has not proved at all beneficial to them. In Freetown where we have many kinds of workmen, we can speak in extenso. There are many men of handicrafts in that vicinity, but do they all keep to what they learnt as their trade? are there not many who have taken, besides their trade to other spheres of labour? and can they tell me they have been as successful as was their anticipations? In fact their eager panting after money or the avaricious wish to amass a great amount of wealth has so taken up their minds that they do not know the right source of gaining wealth; the fact is that wealth seeing as many traps or gins set about for her capture, has takenwings to herself and flown away to the city of Refuge, to the utter disappointment of the trappers

Of a truth trade has now become the the order of the day, almost every one becomes a trader and even farmers (young farmers) have beome so much disgusted with the success they have gained from their labour that many have become traders choosing to have themselves clad with the borrowed bodily ornaments of other nations with clapped hands against their mattock and spade, and sit down in shops whose very shelves are angry at their load of one or two boxes of collars and a little of sundries. These men are like the Daw with the borrowed plumes of the Peacock.

What has been the result of this state of things, but that there is less of Home consumption, and what is worse depression of trade. Such men who have divested from the course they had pursued instead of being bettered by trade have been reduced in many cases to penury. It is a well known maxim, "Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do with thy might." But I regret to say that things are not so with our people. Almost all of us do one and the same thing, hence there are more sellers than buyers. Even in this little town of Bonthe, there are more shops than are required to be here. If all had been each supplied with distinct merchandise, and one merchant by dependent on his friend for what he had not, then trade would be of more benefit to us than farming. If things continue at the rate they are going on now trade would become a thing of no benefit and then I ask, who will become of the clerks in the country houses? but they will all sit at home with folded arms, depending on the farmers, to bring cassada for them to buy and eat. Some talk of trade as of more benefit to Africa than farming. Do not merchants use tare their undivided attention to farming? and so much the better for them; for they no doubt suffer less expenses. To those who are speaking so much in favor of trade, let me put one or two questions. Where have they found or heard of a farmer involved in debt in his pursuit? Where have they heard of a farmer placing his house under a mortgage? But on the contrary they live very quietly, resting satisfied in their humble cottages with food sufficient and to spare. They have no fear of robbon breaking through their houses, nor of the man he was in contract with, thereby involving himself in debt to harass him, and rendering his life a hazzardous one; but otherwise they live happily, incur no debt, so as to place himself and family under a great distress and after his death his family have no where to live or to suffer from the oppressing of him he owes; he is free, entirely free from the pangs of debt. But what of merchants! Methinks I hear some one of them saying, our lives are miserable! and so it is undoubtedly, poor men! they labour in vain expecting to fill their coffers, but alas! alas!! what is the result of their strenous efforts to gain! It comes to this that some after years of toil that they build fine houses, which are afterwards not theirs; from the fact that they have incurred much debt, and are unable to pay, they lose their magnificent building and there they are resting with great remorse of conscience in small cottages, suffering under the penalties of those they had been in contract with. And men are still thirsting for trade, making agriculture a subject of secondary thought. Let there be no rice crop and let men come from bringing palm Kernel to the house they derive no benefit from them, and you ask a merchant how is trade? and the answer will be trade is very dull, and what next, but hunger and after that death in the land. At present we are suffering from scarcity of food. Sherbro country scarce of rice, and even aggridly some time ago was a thing of scarcity, because there was no corn. And things will so continue, if all of us become clerks and merchants. There are vast wastes of land suitable for agricultural purposes, and why should we sit down with folded arms, waiting for the mendis to bring us rice. The fact is, the mendis themselves have not enough to eat now. It is highly necessary then that we turn our attention to our fields and lay them under the power of the plough, so that our land may yield forth its increase and we cry no more of hardness of time or scarcity of food.

It is highly commendable in the managers of the R C and wife Training Institution, that they encourage gardening I wish them much success.

Signed "A Farmer."

NEWS ITEMS.

Oct. 18 Boat "Ellen" for Freetown.

19—S. S. "Foulah" from Marseille. — Monsr. E. Mossu of the French Company and servant—Sandfish arrived, 22—S. S. "Susu", from Freetown with mails and Mr. J. B. Turner of the Customs.

24—S. S. "Foulah" for Freetown with mails and the following passengers. — Mr. C. R. Arden Thompson (the able Lecturer) Corpls. Peacock, J. W. Nicol, A. B. Davis Privates, Hume, O'Connor, W. H. Davis, Garber, & Johnson. The above all leave finally and make quite a gap in our acquaintance.

The Bark Liberia:—belonging to Messrs Yates & Porterfield of New York left that Port on Wednesday the 2nd inst. for Sierra Leone with of course her usual Cargo of American Goods, and some passengers, among whom we are advised is their faithful & enterprising agent Robert P. Pooley Esq. and we believe Three Missionaries.

S. S. "Susu" for Freetown with Mrs. Ebenezer Roberts as a passenger.

Schr. "Success" from Freetown consigned to C. W. Betts She brought as passenger Mr. Peter Johnson.

Capt. Le Power acting Manager of the Sulymah District arrived here on sick leave on the instant and returned on the 25th instant quite recovered from his illness.

26—S. S. "Erna Woermann arrived consigned to T. E. Macfoy

27—Died at Bonthe: Mary Lewis wife of T. Z. Lewis & sister to Mrs. Kezia Pratt of Bonthe aged 33 years. She was buried at 4 p. m. the same day.

28—Boat "Ellen" from Freetown.

S. S. "Formoso" for Freetown with mails

Mr. R. H. Pearson agent for Pickering and Birthoud of this place left for Freetown per S. S. "Formoso"

Miss Nicol sister of late Rev. Nicol also left for Freetown per the "Formoso"

Wesleyan Missions:— Sermons on behalf of the above Missions will be preached in the Weslevan Church, Lime Street on Sunday the 3rd proximo at 11 a. m. and 7 p. m according to circuit plan. To be followed by a Juvenile Missionary Meeting on the 4th at 11 a. m.

The Public meeting to be addressed by ministers, and other gentlemen, will take place on the 5th at 7 p. m

A collection will be made at the close of each meeting in aid of the Mission Funds.

From The Ghargroo:— especially the Eastern Section, we learn of great distress occasioned by the want of food: the crops having failed completely throughtout the most of the District, the people have almost thing upon which to subsist. Avery Station of the Mendi Mission is suffering greatly from this general destitution, and the Industrial work is brought almost to a standstil by this sad state of affairs.

Mails.—Will be made up to go by the s. s. "Erna Woermann" at 10 a. m. tomorrow.

Personal.

Rev. J. Gomer, Supt. Shaingay Misson, it is reported Officially, will likely return in December next. At present he is busily engaged in Lecturing on behalf of Africa in the United States.

Dispenser Bell:—of the Sulymah District has returned to his District.

Mission House, Bendoo,
16 Oct., 1889.

Rev. J. A. Frane.

My dear sir,

I send you a few lines to enquire after your health as well as that of Mrs. Evans and the children.

I am glad to be able to tell you that the work of the Lord continues to prosper at Bendoo. Although the population of this place has gone down considerably, owing to the removal of some of the Sierra Leone people to different localities, for the purpose of trade, and the returning of some of the natives heathen to their homes in the interior, from want employment as labourers, yet it is pleasing to observe, that out of 600 or 700 persons which form the present entire population, more than 1 are church going people. Our work here partakes of a double nature. We have not only to edify and strengthen believers in Jesus, as also to watch the growth of their spiritual man, but what is more & perhaps much more tiresome, though joyful to proclaim the old but ever story of Jesus to the surrounding heathens in their respective villages. Both of these branches of labour have been, and are being carried on as systematically as we possibly can. The people listen to the word of God when explained to them with rapt attention and not unfrequently they expressed their satisfaction of what they have heard. They have been taught the Lord's Prayer in their own tongue which those of them who are attending the Catechumen's class, could repeat off-hand besides we explained to them the Ten Commandments, The stories of the Deluge, the Tower of Babel, the Cross, the Marriage Feast, or Wedding Garments, The duties enjoined in the Keeping of the Sabbath day. We have been much encouraged in this department of our work.

The Sunday Services and week day and Sabbath-Schools, are all in a flourishing condition. More than a dozen grown up persons attend the Sabbath School regularly, since its re-organization over two months ago, besides children. The well known Mr. G. R. Thompson, a trader is Superintendent of the Sabbath school.

I shall be very happy and thankful to receive some of the Sunday School Helps, Sunday school Journals, & other periodicals I distributed those you sent me last to the grown up ones as well as to little boys and girls, which they appreciated very much. I consigned the entire work of this Station to your prayers. May God grant you success in all your undertakings.

Believe me very sincerely yours
C. S. BROWN.
Cat.-in-Charge.

Bonthe, 18th Oct. '89.

To the Editor of the "Early Dawn"

Dear Sir,

"A story should, to please, at least seem true,
Be apropos, well told, concise and hot;
And whensoever it deviates from these rules,
The wise will sleep, and leave applause to fools."

Well shod and properly clad in the habiliments of the night, the hero of our story strove to Adonis', then halted, and like a sentinel on the watch took an erect position in the kitchen.

We are now verging on that portion of the year in which we begin to anticipate that mirth and merry should sit on the brow of all, and to me it seems that to heighten this, some remarkable occurrence must occur to give it a greater vein. It is therefore with the greatest delight we hail the promoters of the Pain Street Tragedy.

Bearing a striking analogy to what took place exactly two years ago in this community—to wit the Victoria Road Tragedy—a scene of a more hideous and appalling nature happened in the small hours of the morning of the 16th inst.

Our hero had scarcely continued long in his invariable attitude, when all suspicion of innocence came out, to inhale the salubrious ness of the morning air.

A cowardly restlessness on the part of our self-created suspicion in Adonis who, at a respectable distance interrogatively asked "Who deh yah?" For want of that presence of mind which is indispensable to adjust questions of momentary import, and which even the weak-minded king Richard of old adopted when he quelled the insurgents at Smithfield without striking a blow: our hero rather thought that putting into practice the aphorism "No bravery in the dark," a safe plan, therefore bolted out of the dark corner with even the rapidity of a gun-shot.

Adonis possessing more agility took to the chase with a relish; a few yards had only been over run; and then commenced that great assault on our hero, who in the agony of the moment called for quarters better understood in the vernacular "De yah daddy do yah"

Most revengfully however did Adonis wield in quick succession the hateful cudgel, and as it not exhibit great impression on the cranium and tender portions of the body, took to grapple, inasmuch that the very larynx of our hero was endangered, and respirations for the moment suspended.

Soon after our hero gained his ground confronted with this sable Adonis, arose that fearful contest which irresistably throws our minds far back to the time when Greece the Cradle of thought and fame led the way; and like Ajax and Ulysses contending for the armour of the renowned Achilles, fought to the bitter end.

Adonis, whose brow age deeply sits with wrinkles—bearing those characteristic significations which attest that under the Emancipation Act he had been transplanted from the land of his birth to Sierra Leone the Land of Liberty—to whose aid the gods had repaired, promptly turned from the field of contest thanking the gods.

Our hero still undaunted, owing to reverse of circumstance now implocated the gods for thus mercilessly ignoring him, and changing pale with rage, gasping for breath, now turned away and like the invulnerable Greek would say

"No more Achilles draws, his conquering sword
In any woman's cause,
The gods command me to forgive the past,
But let this first invasion be the last."
Thanking you for publishing this,
Yours truly
ERSKINE.

"Our Alien Children"

Dear Mr. Editor,

I have read your "Early Dawn" of the 16th. October & among other interesting articles I notice in particular the one signed "Kong" treating on the ill usage of alien children under the care of Sierra Leone Christians in Sherbro

I am quite glad that the subject has appeard in the press for the first time in your issue although it is a fact well known among us. you will I trust allow me only a very small space to corroborate all that "Kong" has written for they are facts which none can deny expecially some of those who have the cares of these alien children. Well, the only remedy I can suggest for preventing these inhuman practise are these:—

1. That the Government adopt the same laws that regulates the keeping of alien children in Freetown by having them registered.

2. That every one who has the care of any alien child be compelled to send them to School as is done in Freetown

I believe if this system be adopted, these children will be more properly taken care of than is done at present, instead of being inhumanly beaten and illtreated by their cruel masters and mistresses. For it must be remember that we are to treat our fellow creatures as we would that others treat us.

We are responsible to God for the manner we trent alien children, for our children are no better than they and why should we not have compassion over them as well as our own.

There are some persons who keep about a dozen of these alien children who toil and labour for them and yet in spite of that, they are not treated as they should be, no interest whatever is manifested about their spiritual welfare. I am sure if the British Govt., who rescued our fathers from slavery had treated them in the way the alien children are treated surely our hearts would melt whenever the story is related to us.

I hope therefore the letter of "Kong" in your last issue will produce a reformation on those whose delight is to illtreat these poor helpless children. "Thou shalt not rule over him with rigour; but shalt fear thy God" Lev. 25, 43.

"And ye masters, do the same unto your servant forbearing threatening, knowing that your master also is in heaven neither is there respector of persons with him." I must close.

Yours Mr. Editor,
Sherbro "An Aku Boy"
Oct. 24 1889.

Words and Fruits.

Dear Editor,—It is true that the Christian religion has more sides than one. Let us say two sides. The theoretical and the practical. The practical is the more important of the two. Not all christians are acquainted with both sides. There are more theoretical than practical christians. Would it were the other way, for then would we confidently say the Millenium is near. We long for the time when there shall be more of practical or doing christians; who would always ask the question "Lord what wilt thou have me to do?" "Words are leaves, deeds are fruits." Not all who sing lustily "Fly abroad thou mighty gospel" are willing to lend it wings by giving cheerfully as God has prospered them.

Many give and cheerfully too. But all who name the name of Christ should give thereby emphasizing that important word in the divine command "Go."

Yours—A Son.

The Guilt of Pride.

There was once a daughter who was unwilling to confess that her mother was her mother. When that daughter was an infant her mother was obliged, on a certain occasion, to leave her child at home while she went to a neighbor's. On returning, she saw flames bursting from her window. She found that her infant child was yet within, and was about to enter, when she was prevented and told that death would be the inevetable consequence. She nevertheless rushed in, and found the child where she had left it. She wound it up in a covering, and carried it out safe, but was herself shockingly burned. For months she hung between life and death, and, when she recovered, was a frightful object. Twenty years afterwards the infant, then a young woman, was asked by a stranger who a deformed person was. The daughter was ashamed to confess it was her mother. So thousands treat Jesus Christ. As the young woman was unwilling to say, "This is my mother," so they are unwilling to say of him who died for them, and whose vissage was more marred than any man's, "This is my Redeemer and my King, and I will serve him and love him forever."—Sel.

To the Editor of the "Early Dawn."

Dear Bro. in Christ,

Having visited a few places in the Imperaeh District Jangalior, Bogo, and other places, these are some who had not b en priviledged to hear of Christ since the days of the Apostles down to the present time, Save the corrupt teachings of some of the followers of Mohammed, who had infused bad principles, into the minds of the people, by making some kind of Charms called "Sebbeh," hanging them about the different parts of their bodies as a security of their lives, but no sooner they understand, that their life is hid with Christ in God: and that each of his creatures should look up to him for every blessing both temporal and spiritual they listend to the word spoken with profound attention so much so that after the close of the service that was held at Jangalior on Sunday, Sept. 1st, the Chief had to go home to his house with the impression that his life depended entirely on God the next day he remarked to his people and to a Sierra Leone Trader in the adjacent town, that all he heard on the Sabbath was true. The Sabbath is regarded by this man, as a Sacred day no manner of work his done by him neither any of his subjects. How true are the words of our Saviour Christ, many shall come from the east and from the west, and shall sit with Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob in the kingdom of heaven, while the children of the Kindgom shall be cast out; for many that should teach our heathen Brethen around us by their daily lives, are desecrating the Sabbath, and do many things contrary to the principles of real Christianity. Nevertheless the time is fast approaching when every work shall be brot into judgement with every secret thing whether they be good or evil, I also visited Bogo Sunday Oct. 6th. while on my way to the town being drenched by wading into deep waters and the unpeasantness of the road I met Chief Bahsin proceeding to Bogo he enquired of my whereabout as also my name, I told him, and the object of my visit. As we entered the town he ordered his people to prepare the Barra for service and I spoke to them from the Psalms 39, about our sojourning on earth. There was a Mohammedan man who was present on the occasion after the service was over the mohammedan man confess to the people that all that had been said was true he belived it he said in my hearing that he belive in God that "Sebbeh" &c. were all foolish but he is only doing it for the sake of living, in the evening I went over on the other side I had a good service the mohammedan man crossed the swamps with his boys and attended the evening service and was interested. The people also thanked me for having heard of Jesus and his word.

I am your Bro. in Christ.

Oct. 15th 89. W. S. M

TEMPERANCE.

Liquor men would be no more patient in the face of restrictions than under prohibition did they not see the dreadful curse of the traffic and the determination of the people to destroy the business unless it can be regulated; and it is really remarkable how patient they are and how ready they are to accept anything short of prohibition. They regard any man as a friend to the traffic unless he is a prohibitionist. Even preachers they regard as friends if they go no further than to advise restriction by high license, and some of these preachers have become "patron saints" with liquor men. As a temperance man and a Methodist our opinion is that the saloon ought to go—the traffic in liquor ought to be extirpated. We favour the measures that will bring about these results in the shortest time.—An merican Paper.

FOR SALE—At Bonthe Sherbro TWO PLOTS OF LAND

The one situate at Victoria Rd., between the premises in occupation of C. J. Cole, and Sally Martyn, the other at King Lane and Thomas St., near the premises in occupation of Thomas V. W. Lefevre.

For further Particulars,

Apply to Frank Mackintosh Cole

Representative of the Lawful Proprietors King Lane & Thomas Sts. Bonthe Sherbro

To Subscribers.—Please send in your Dues to this [Early Dawn] Office at once as we are much in need of the amount Due us to pay printers.

TO LET

The Wellknown Shaingay Mission stores, Wharf, &c, Situate as Shaingay, or Tassoh Point, better known as Shaingay Mission, about 60 miles, southeast of Freetown and 53 miles North-west of Bonthe Sherbro. This is a well located, property and commands a good Trade, and being on one of the most healthy Promontories of the West Coast of Africa offers special attraction for European residence.

For particulars, Apply to
J. A. Evans
Bonthe, Sherbro
3rd Aug '89. W. C. Africa.

PUBLIC NOTICE.

S. M MISSION STORE.

We now offer for sale the Best BRANDS of FLOUR
In Bbls. & Half Bbls.
ALSO
SUGAR, KEROSINE,
FLORIDA WATER,
in Bbls. & Cases,

Provisions

Of the freshest kind and in good variety.

Best Tea, Coffee, Lard, Butter, Milk, Cocoa & Milk, Vinegar, Sauces, Mustard, Pickles, Tomatoes, Peaches, Tapioca, Sago, Pearl Barley, Potted Meats, Pilchards, Baking Powder, Chocolate and Milk, Split Peas, Pears, Soups, assorted.

MEDICINES
(Patent and Proietary)
A SPECIALITY

Time Pieces, Watches, Sewing Machines, Watch Guards' Sewing Machine Needles.

N.B. We Pay CASH for Palm Kernels.

J. A. Evans

'Early Dawn'
PRINTING OFFICE.
Job Work Done at short
Notice.
Enquire of G. N. Cowan—Printer.

The Early Dawn

"The Morning Light Is Breaking, The Darkness Disappears."

VOL. VI. BONTHE, ~~SHERBRO~~ WEST AFRICA, NOVEMBER 15, 1889 No. 4

"Early Dawn."
Published Semi-Monthly, At
BONTHE, SHERBRO.
Under the Auspices of the Board of Managers of the U. B. M. CHRIST.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION

One Year by Mail,	£0	6	0
Delivered in Bonthe,	0	5	0
Half Yearly by Mail,	0	3	0
Ditto, delivered in Bonthe,	0	2	6

Address,—Communications to J. A. Evans, Editor & Publisher, Bonthe Sherbro, West Africa.—

Subscriptions to be sent to Rev. D. F. Harrington Shaingay, Mr. K. A. Lewis Waterloo, West Africa, Rev. Wm. McKee Dayton, Ohio, U.S.A. or the Editor.—

DIRECTORY.

Commandant	C. H. Farley Morel
Coroner.	The Commandant.
Chief Clerk,	Mr. J. W. Rocke
Interpreter	J. D. Rogers.
Bailiff.	F. R. E. Beetson
1st Town Sub Col.
Chief Clerk	J. D. Macaulay.
Tide Waiters.	J. M. Crown, J. H. Turner.
Light Keeper.	J. A. Washington.
Asst. Exam.	Oliver Sulyman. Jasper Caulker
Assistant Colo. Surgeon.	M. L. Jarrett, M. R. C. S.
Discharger	Rowland May
Postmaster.	H. R. Williams.
Inspector of Police.	M. E. Hotte,
Gaoler.	J. A. Dennis.
Overseer of Roads.	A. O. Walker.

Religious Directory.

St. Matthew's Church, Victoria Row
Pastor, Vacant.
Wesleyan Methodist, Lime Street
Pastor, Rev. J. C. Thomas

Bee & Mission, (Congregational.)
Good Hope
Pastor, Rev. R. C. Taylor

MR. COLLIER IN PARIS.

It is our pleasure, in this Issue, to give our readers a letter from Paris by our esteemed friend Mr. C. B. Collier, whose departure from us for a trope some months ago, we were unable to notice as we desired, owing to circumstances over which we had no control. Mr. Collier has since he left us not only visited England, but has also visited Paris the capital and metropolis of France. And through the thoughtfulness of Mr. Collier and the kindness of our good friend Mr. C. Barthelmait, we have a glance at what the former has been enjoying in one of the largest, most fashionable, polite, and the cleanest cities in the world. And now possessing the highest to see on the globe. The French are truly a great and an enterprising people; and Paris a city of wonderful magnificence.

PARIS LETTER

6 Rande Bugeaud, Paris,
12th Sept. 89.

C. Barthelmett Esq.

Dear sir,—It was always think ing of writing you since I arrived from England, but I thought it would be much better to wait until I was able to visit the Paris Exhibition; and I am glad to say that I received mine since last September myself and daughter we have spent nearly one whole day on the Eiffel Tower and we can only get to the 2nd floor the crowd being so thick that one has to wait for about 2 or 3 hours before he can get to the lift. However we were satisfied to remain on the 2nd floor being the two important places. The sight is something wonderful, one could hardly express himself to a distant friend. I am here now five days and I can say I have not as yet been able to go through the half therefore shall I be able to see all for it would take a month to see the whole. On Wednesday as I was returning from the Iron and Machine Store department, to the entrance of the Loudon Store department, I happened by chance to meet Mr Mallet just going out, who promised to call on me to-day. From what I have seen of the Exhibition nothing can be more perfect than what is seen here, and I can say to all my friends for no amount of explanation from any visitor would give any one the idea of what is seen in the exhibition, I must say that on the whole when looking around, that the African is not left behind, and the scene if not very interesting to me, the drumming and dancing of the different tribes, Africans are most amusing to the general public so much so that you can scarcely get enclosure room in to see the performance. However I must close for this time with hopes to pleasy if Lodge Liberation D. V. when I get home. I shall be leaving in a day or two for London. trusting you have been well

With kind regards I remain,
Yours truly
C. B. COLLIER.

INDUSTRIAL EDUCATION.

This subject is now and has been for some time, in the past receiving considerable notice in nearly all circles and of late in Freetown some meetings of important dimensions have been held to consider the Question especially since Lord Knutsford's Circular has been published, and the Colonial Authorities have become intented, in the importance of some kind of useful training for the Masses. But so far as I can learn from the men who have so far spoken or written for the press in this Colony. They seem to be at sea as regards definiteness of plan to be pursued as to Industrial-Training. Two things seem to me to be in the way of most men; one is the desire to keep in harmony with the popular feeling on the subject, the other is the desire to secure official favor and government patronage, neither of these feelings is likely to produce the desired effect, at least to secure the best plan for projecting a successful Industrial school. But some practical man must come to the front, or what would be better perhaps, several such men, plan out and lay before the public a scheme to be discussed, then we shall have at least something tangible and from which something successful may grow as time goes on. But to my mind no scheme is so likely to be successful and in the present circumstances of the Colony as one that will take up the cultivation of the soil; And for this reason I believe that the first attempt of an Industrial Institution should be established outside of the narrow Limits of Freetown, and where not less than six hundred acres of arable land could be secured, then build upon one suitable, and if possible central portion of this tract. Large property contructed buildings for teaching Literature, Trades, Horticulture, Agriculture, & Mechanics. Such an Institution would of course be supplied with divine services, by its professors or select Chaplain, as the promoters might deem best. And plan ed or established at any convenient place in the settlement it would work a revolution in the life and industries of the Colony; settlements or agricultural colonies in a few years, would begin to "ring up over the land as a result of such a training Institution, and men would so on be able to see what the imitative principle so noticeable in the African would produce for his own good, and that of his fellows and the World. more again.

J. A. E.

The Trade & Traders.

Mr Editor—I have had some conversation with the Traders of the different parts of the rivers, and one complaint seems to come from all and that is, by the new modus operandi of the Merchants to send large Factors into the rivers and to supply them in such a way that they have a better assortment of cheaper goods than the Small Trader, they are being crowded out of the profits on theirs, and are thus compelled to fly from place to place in the vain hope of being able somewhere to enjoy immunity from the branch Factories of the large Firms. But complain that the way is being closed against them everywhere and that there is no hope of doing anything. Of course in many cases these unfortunates, would cease the attempt, but for the fact that they are in debt and wish to get out in fact would get out if they could anywhere be allowed to make a profitable turnover of their little resources; but as it is now, every trip is a failure hence matters continue, in most cases from bad to worse. And just how all this is to be remedied is a serious question. That scarcely any one can answer, yet the presumption is that bankruptcy must be the ultimate end, in most cases of an attempt at ~~ordinance~~. But it could it will be policy to withdraw from the unequal contest with the large Firms? And such an [illegible] something left after paying their debts, from the sale into agricultural districts, establish suitable lands and found settlements of Farmers, in such places as they, can under the protection of the Government, this is, anywhere within jurisdiction, such as undertaking would no doubt succeed, and would further more take our interest, for it would form Christian settlements in such [illegible] places, and without the necessity of the curse of Rum, as farmers would need none of this liquid Rum for which Traders chiefly deal. Otherwise it would be built, in a rude way it may be at first, but afterward better buildings shall follow and God would be glorified in spirit and be walked by a simple people nourished by the vices of a petty Trade, or the iniquity of the Liquid Traffick.

Yours for Agriculture
J. Agrarian

Little Babyboy.

O, tis she is a dear little miss!
Never at rest; ever alive as a bird,
Being out shopping, or getting in mischief,
Talking to chaps, nothing daring or small.

Never a lad on the mischievous road,
When the child chose to be frolicsome also,
Ask for him, she will quickly appear,
"Haven't got none; I'm looking for mine."

Are the birds merry when flying upon the sun?
Or the wee tumblins when bouncing they run?
Or the bright butterflies folding their wings?
Grasshoppers, crickets, and all merry things?

Then must this dear baby-boy of ours
Long for her rest with the close of the flowers
O, the sweet lips that to lullaby say:
"Good night—no tired—I've been busy to day!"

—Sel.

To Subscribers.—Please send in your Dues to this [Early Dawn] Office at once as we are much in need of the amount Due us to pay printers.

The Early Dawn.
BONTHE, SHERBRO.
NOVEMBER 15, 1889.

WHAT ABOUT OUR MAILS?

Are we to have no kind of Communication between this and Freetown? except that afforded by the occasional voyages of the Branch steamer Formoso; which however Kind of the steamship Company, is nevertheless very uncertain, and extremely inconvenient for us at this end. And we regard it as a fearful imposition, on the part of Government that we are called upon to pay our duties and imposts for the support of such an inconsiderate institution, as the Freetown Government, seems to be, we say seems to be as, we can scarcely believe that the Authorities of Sierra Leone can possibly be so blind to their own interest as to allow this place to suffer at this time for want of Mail Communication. So we shall hope when this matter shall come properly before them, they may take immediate steps to put things in proper shape, for the furtherance of better Communication between Freetown and Sherbro. As it is entirely out of the Question that we should get but a single Mail, in three or four weeks, as has been the case for sometime past.

THE WESLEYAN ANNIVERSARY

Services have been held in this place; on Subbath the 3rd inst, Sermons were preached, by the able Pastor, Revd. J. C. Thomas, and Catechist Mr. J. M'Cauley at thier Chapel in Lime street, as had been previously announced in our Issue of the 31st ult. The sermons are reported to have been very able efforts, and in every way befitting the occasion. Monday the third was devoted to the Juvenile Sabbath School Anniversary as usual, and was quite a success, we believe. The Public Missionary Meeting was held at 7 p. m. on the 5th inst when the Chair was occupied by W. S. D. Pratt Esqre., who, on coming forward was loudly cheered by the crowded gathering. Mr. Pratt, on taking the chair remarked that it was rather an unusual thing for him to act in such a capacity as all knew, but that he considered it his duty to do so on this occasion, as he believed it to be the will of God; he also felt that he was honored by the position, and that what is worth doing at all, is worth doing well. The Chair on resuming his seat called for the Report which was read by the Secretary. It was rather striking for its brevity, and yet it contained all that was necessary to be said on & stated in such a paper. The usual resolutions were moved, seconded, and supported in a very befitting manner. The discussions were unusually practical, and to the point. Among the speakers we noted Revds. J. C. Thomas, and J. A. Evans, Messrs. M. J. W. Rocks, J. J. Warburton, I. R. May, F. E. B. Buckner, J. A. Williams, and others were on the Stand. A Collection was taken up. Votes of thanks were given to the Chair and also the preachers of the Sermons on Subbath the 3rd inst.

After appropriate responses this Intersting meeting came to a close with Benediction by the Revd. J. C. Thomas.

ITINERATING.

Much attention, is, we are pleased to learn being given to this very important branch of the Missionary Work, of the various religious bodies operating in the Sherbro Districts. Rev. J. C. Thomas, Pastor of the Wesleyan Church of this place made an extended tour into the rivers, as we understand not only for collections, but with a view to extending the Gospel message. Since his return the Rev. R. C. Taylor Pastor of the U. B. Church of this place, has gone out to collect and to preach to those he may have opportunity. Mr. Taylor is accompanied by a young Itinerant, who will be of great assistance as a skilled interpreter. Mr. Pasha the able Catechist of St. Matthew's is also out as he informed us before leaving on an Itinerating tour of the adjacent rivers.

Mr. C. S. Brown of St. Luke's Bendoo, informs us also that the Itinerating branch of the work in connection with his church, is kept up with success. The news from most of the U. B. Mission Stations from the Bompeh to the Big Bargroo, is good.

THE MAIL SERVICE.

Merchants certainly have now reasonable cause to complain of the way they are being treated by the Government, as regards the Mail Service, between Freetown and Bonthe the principal places of Commerce in this Colony. It is of great importance to these Merchants, that we have a well established Mail Service for Regular and frequent Communication The present mode of waiting for the irregular visits of the s. s. "Formoso" to bring the mails whenever it may suit the convenience of that vessel to do so, is certainly shameful, to say the least of it. And must Merchants who support the Government put up with such treatment as this? Especially since we understand that the Steamship Company are willing to run the s. s. "Formoso" every week if the Government will give a subsidy. Why cannot this be done? And trade thereby facilitated, which really means an increase in revenue. We trust the Authorities will give this matter their earliest attention. And thus assist our Merchants and the general Public.

THE TEMPERANCE ARMY.

Is a movement we believe destined to exert a strong influence, for good in this place; and while there are those who have not much faith in the stability of Temperance, among a people so given to drinking as the masses are in these parts; yet it is pretty evident, to the most, casual observer, that even these are not likely to oppose the Army movement and most especially when the Army shall have become fully organized and begins its advance in good earnest upon the foe of God and men;—striving into life the latent forces of temperance that have so long been pent up for want of an opening; reviving the slumbering energies of the churches on the important work, of preaching and especially practicing righteous and sober living. The army seems to us is the very means of giving energy to the cause of temperance in our community and as we expect soon to publish the Constitution and By-Laws of the Army we hope all the lovers of the good will prepare themselves for a fair consideration of the utility of the Army as an Institution for the good of youth and old age in our midst.

The sincere friends of Mr. W. S. D Pratt & Wife have their sisters thanks for kind sympathy expressed on the occasion of the death of his Sister in law, Mrs Mary Lewis which occured on the 27th ult. at their residence at Victoria Rd in this place.

Bonthe, Yours truly,
11th Nov. '89. A Friend.

THE DEMAND OF TODAY.

Is evidently the extension of the Missionary work toward the Interior of Africa; Several reasons present themselves to the mind of the casual observer of the missionary work now being done by the coastwise mission-; which appeal strongly to the various societies to extend their work Interiorl. The first is that the Gospel has been sufficiently preached to the people in the Coast Towns, and it should now simply be left with them to carry on for themselves, for if the coast towns now are in the dark, it is mostly because they will not fully accept the truth not because they have not heard, for it has been preached to them, and one can easily perceive their knowledge of if not indeed in their piety then, in what is more sad —in their hardened unbelief, or useless delay of putting it into practice.

The second reason is that there are sufficient means in the hands, or at the Command of the people on the coast to carry forward what remains of the work to be done among the many heathen tribes, yet remaining along the Seaboard. In other Words such centers as Freetown and other civilised Towns and Villages of the various colonies, and even scattered abroad in most of the river districts, there are enough African Christians, who can read, and expound the word of God sufficiently, well to deliver these land with the Gospel.

The third reason, I may mention is that the Interior offers a better field for operations in the line of missionary Work, because of the greater numbers that can be reached in their larger and more populous Towns or Groups,—more properly speaking of Towns—as it is nearly always found that several towns are joined together; and travellers all agree in telling the one story that these interior places are populous and have in them hundreds of entitlen, many of whom, all the missionaries that have ever visited these places, believe could be gathered into mission schools for training

The fourth, and strongest reason, which I can now adduce, is that the people of the Interior are without the Gospel and are perishing for the want of light, and no man careth for their souls.—J. A. E.

ST. MATTHEW'S CHURCH.

Dear Mr Editor,

The treatment of the Church Authorities in Freetown to St Matthew's Church in Bonthe is unbearable It is now over twelve months since Pastor Nicol died and no pastor is sent to take charge of the parish; everything in connection with the church is left to take its own course. The Catechist in charge is known to be well qualified to raise subscriptions and no more; no person he is leser with that work for which he has great Tact.

I cannot understand why any subscription should be raised when the church has been so utterly neglected. Hopes were at one time entertained of the Rev. G. J. Macauley coming to take charge of the church but we are now assured that that Revd Gentleman has refused to accept the Post, no doubt the athorities imagine that the congregation feel satisfied with a catechist of the antediluvian age, who is placed in charge as a figurehead. It is well to let them know that the present state of the church is causing much dissatisfaction, and that unless a capable pastor be sent in time to set matters to right, great difficulties may accumulate, sufficient to tax the strength of the strongest man.

Bonthe, Yours truly,
11th Nov. '89. A Member.

NEWS ITEMS.

S. S. "Simoon" called in at Manoh Salijah Himsward bound on the 31st ult. and after taking cargo from that place proceeded to Freetown.

S. S Gabon, Captain Munro, outward bound with mails, was at Livanah on the 1st inst. and after landing a considerable amount of cargo for the Palma Trading Co. Proceeded to Sulymah and Manoh the same day.

S. S "Niger" Captain Batray homeward bound was in Livanah on Sunday the 3rd inst., after taking produce from that place proceeded to Freetown.

Missionaries Arrived.—In Freetown by the s. s Calabar Revd. E. Leversuch and Miss Dunkley for the first time, also Miss Bissett who has been here already for many years before.

Died.—Revd. F. Nevill M.A. of Fourah Bay College on the 2nd inst and was buried on the 3rd, this is a sad loss to the cause of Education in this Colony.

Died.—Also Revd. R. B. Morgan of the Pongas Mission on the 2nd., and was Interred on the 3rd inst.

S. S. Erna Woermann left on the 2nd inst with mails for Freetown. Also passengers among whom was Comdt. C. H. Harley Moseley Esqre of this District.

Boat Victory for Freetown on the 1st with Revd. H. J. Weeks of Avery station as passenger, who proceeded to Freetown by the same conveyance on the 2nd inst.

3. Nov.—Two Sermons were preached at the Wesleyan Chapel by Rev. J. C. Thomas and J. M'Cauley Catechist of No Moseley.

Captain Power arrived at Lavanah on the 3rd inst., from Sulymah very sick and proceeded on the 4th inst., in the S. Launch for Bonthe

4th—Juvenile Anniversary of the Wesleyan Missions took place at 11. a. m, H. N. May Esq. occupied the Chair.

5th—Wesleyan Anniversary took place at 7 p. m.; W. S. D Pratt Esq occupied the Chair

7th—s. s. "Formoso" from Freetown with mails and the following passengers for this place. Comdt. Moseley, C. B Collier Esq and daughter from England, Messrs. Guinott and Remy, Mesdames Sackey and Macauley and others.

7th—Boat "Ellen" for Freetown with the following passengers:—Mrs. Bidwell Coker, Mrs. J. Winter Pearce, and a Miss Williams.

Rev. R. C. Taylor,—who is out on an Itinerating and Collecting Tour is reported to have been at Mosfunay in the Boom about the 7th inst and that he was meeting with success in his work. From the Boom he has since proceeded to the Kittim.

9th—Rev. J. T. Asgill, Pastor of Kent, arrived from Kent soliciting contributions for the repairs of the Church at Kent.

10th.—Rev Asgill preached at St Matthew's Church in the morning to a crowded congregation from Rom. 6 23. "The wages of sin is death &c." The preacher was very bold in his delivery.

10th—s. s. "Formoso" for Freetown with mails and the following passengers:—Rev. J. C. Thomas Messrs. C. Guinett C. Trinity Wilhelm, S. T. Cole. Police constables Sol. Coker, and Thos W. Cole, Mesdames Rose Davis, Warburton, Coker and several others.

Capt. Power,—of Sulymah returned again to this place, about the 5th inst on account of ill health.

Personal.

Mr. Hy. Burnett,—was here, he came per s. s. Formoso, on the 7th and called on us on the 8th inst. with Capt. Clarke. Mr. B. was looking the picture of good health.

Capt. F. W. Clarke S. S. Formoso made us a second interesting call on the 8th inst he seems a man of business, push and energy, and with all a gentleman of pleasant mien.

RETURN OF C. B. COLLIER Esq. AND DAUGHTER from EUROPE.

Among the passengers Per the S. S. Formoso which arrived in port on Thursday the 7th inst. were Mr. C. B. Collier and daughter from Liverpool via Freetown in excellent good health.

We must remark that Mr. Collier left these shores sometime in July this year 4 months ago on a visit to Europe in good health and we are more than glad to say that he has returned in good health as well as his daughter who has spent over a year in England.

Of Mr Collier's good qualities as a philanthropist & a gentleman, we need not say much as our readers and friends are better acquainted with him.

He is to be classed among those enterprising men who have risen by dint of perseverance and strict honesty in his dealings to the stand he now enjoys and we believe many there are who covet his position.

During his stay in Europe he has visited the Grand Paris Exhibition, and has seen much to captivate his attention and thus witnessed the skill & ingenuity of the French nation.

It is well to remark that while in England he was the guest of Messrs G. B. Olivant & Co., Manchester who are well known on the West Coast of Africa for their assiduity, promptness and exactness in the discharge of their faithful duties with their African clients all along the Coast.

We wish Mr Collier and daughter the blessings of long life and prosperity in our midst, and we also hope that the experience gained by them in foreign countries may be exhibited among their friends who are yet unacquainted with European life and that others who have enjoyed the same privelege as Mr. Collier may co-operate with him in the upraising of the Negro race. Com.

COURT OF REQUEST.

A case of considerable interest occupied the attention of the above Court on the 11th and 12th insts and was adjourned to Monday next the 18th inst.

It was a summons by J. B. Parkinson Esq. J.P., against a W. E. C Dixon for the recovery of a debt of £2. 17. 6.

The case came before C. H. Harley Mosely Esquire, Civil Commandant. Among the Items of claims presented by the plaintiff there was one for 50 shillings which the defendant has positively denied owing.

The circumstances connected with the case according to the evidences are as follows:—The defendant when in the employ of Paterson Zochonis & Co. of this place owed the plaintiff the sum of 50 shillings. On plaintiff applying for payment defendant gave a Credit Note for the Amount due which the plaintiff at the time accepted, (believing the same to be good.) It was shewn that this Credit Note was given to the plaintiff during the Agt (T. E. Macfoy) absence to Freetown, and without the knowledge and consent of the sub-Agent, (Mr. Campbell) then in Charge. On Mr. Macfoys return from Freetown and in examining the books, he found out that Mr. Parkinson had been credited and Mr. Dixon debited with the above 50 shillings. He thereupon disallowed it as he had no funds then due Mr. Dixon, and at once ordered Mr. Dixon, (being then the Book Keeper) in whose handwriting the entries were made to redebit Mr. Parkinson with the amount and to take it off from his (Dixon's) debit which was accordingly done.

Notice was therefore given to Mr. Parkinson that the Credit Note given him by Mr Dixon was disallowed. Subsequently Mr. Dixon received his full salary up to the time from Paterson Zochonis & Co., without paying Mr. Parkinson the amount due. Mr. Parkinson therefore took steps to recover the fifty shillings, including other items of accounts by issuing a summons against him in the Court of Request. The case was called on the 11th, but was adjourned to the 12th, for the production of Account Books

On the 12th Mr Parkinson produced his pass book and Mr Macfoy produced his Ledger, &c, which shows that the entries made in the Ledger and in Mr Parkinson's pass book have been at variance as to date.

The Commandant, however held that in a Commandant's point of view, inasmuch as Mr Macfoy had allowed the entries to remain unaltered in his books for a considerable length of time, Mr Dixon was free from Mr Parkinson's debt, and that Macfoy should sue Mr Dixon for the recovery of this amount as it was not paid to Mr Parkinson

T. E. Macfoy sworn Immediately as I saw the entries in the books I at once ordered Mr. Dixon to redebit Mr. Parkinson with the amount as I did not approve of it, and it was done, and subsequently I paid him his wages to the time he left, hence our firm is no more responsible for this amount, nor is Mr Dixon responsible to the firm for the payment of this amount, but to Mr Parkinson.

Comdt to Dixon—Why did you alter the entries by redebiting Mr. Parkinson with this amount and at the same time taken it off from your account.

Dixon,—I cannot very well remember sir.

Comdt.—You should remember. The entries are in your handwriting in black and white.

Court adjourned to Monday the 18th inst.

Messrs. J. N and H. C. Crowe beg to return their sincere thanks to their numerous friends for kind sympathy expressed on the occasion of the Death of their father, James Crowe at Waterloo on the 27th. Octob 1.

The Early Dawn.
BONTHE, SHERBRO.
NOVEMBER 15, 1889.

WHAT ABOUT OUR MAILS?

Are we to have no kind of Communication between this and Freetown? except that afforded by the occasional voyages of the Branch steamer Formoso; which however kind of the steamship Company, is nevertheless very uncertain, and extremely inconvenient for us at this end. And we regard it as a fearful imposition, on the part of Government that we are called upon to pay our duties and imposts for the support of such an inconsiderate institution, as the Freetown Government, seems to be, we say seems to be as, we can scarcely believe that the Authorities of Sierra Leone can possibly be so blind to their own interest as to allow this place to suffer at this time for want of Mail Communication So we shall hope when this matter shall come properly before them, they may take immediate steps to put things in proper shape, for the furtherance of better Communication between Freetown and Sherbro. As it is entirely out of the Question that we should get but a single Mail, in three or four weeks, as has been the case for sometime past.

THE WESLEYAN ANNIVERSARY

Services have been held in this place; on Sabbath the 3rd inst, Sermons were preached, by the able Pastor, Revd. J. C. Thomas, and Catechist Mr. J. M'Cauley at thier Chapel in Lime street, as had been previously announced in our Issue of the 31st ult. The sermons are reported to have been very able efforts, and in every way befitting the occasion. Monday the third was devoted to the Juvenile Sabbath School Anniversary as usual, and was quite a success, we believe. The Public Missionary Meeting was held at 7 p. m. on the 5th inst when the Choir was occupied by W. S. D. Pratt Esqre., who, on coming forward was loudly cheered by the crowded gathering. Mr. Pratt, on taking the chair remarked that it was rather an unusual thing for him to act in such a capacity as all knew, but that he considered it his duty to do so on this occasion, as he believed it to be the will of God; he also felt that he was honored by the position, and that what is worth doing at all, is worth doing well. The Chair on resuming his seat called for the Report which was read by the Secretary. It was rather striking for its brevity, and yet it contained all that was necessary to be said on & stated in such a paper. The usual resolutions were moved, seconded, and supported in a very befitting manner. The discussions were unusually practical, and to the point. Among the speakers we noted Revds. J. C. Thomas, and J. A. Evans, Messrs. M. J. W. Rocks, J. J. Warburton, I. R. May, F. E. B. Buckor, J. A. Williams, and others were on the Stand. A Collection was taken up. Votes of thanks were given to the Chair and also the preachers of the Sermons on Sabbath the 3rd inst.

After appropriate responses this Interesting meeting came to a close with Benediction by the Revd. J. C. Thomas.

ITINERATING

Much attention is, we are pleased to learn being given to this very important branch of the Missionary Work, of the various religious bodies operating in the Sherbro Districts. Rev. J. C. Thomas, Pastor of the Wesleyan Church of this place made an extended tour into the rivers, as we understand not only for collections, but with a view to extending the Gospel message. Since his return the Rev. R. C. Taylor Pastor of the U. B. Church of this place, has gone out to collect and to preach to those he may have opportunity. Mr. Taylor is accompanied by a young Itinerant, who will be of great assistance as a skilled interpreter. Mr. Pasha the able Catechist of St. Matthew's is also out as he informed us before leaving on an Itinerating tour of the adjacent rivers.

Mr. C. S. Brown of St. Luke's Bendeo, informs us also that the Itinerating branch of the work in connection with his church, is kept up with success. The news from most of the U. B. Mission Stations from the Pompeh to the Big Bargroo, is good.

THE MAIL SERVICE.

Merchants certainly have now reasonable cause to complain of the way they are being treated by the Government, as regards the Mail Service, between Freetown and Bonthe the principal places of Commerce in this Colony. It is of great importance to these Merchants, that we have a well established Mail Service for Regular and frequent Communication The present mode of waiting for the irregular visits of the s. s. "Formoso" to bring the mails whenever it may suit the convenience of that vessel to do so, is certainly shameful, to say the least of it. And must Merchants who support the Government put up with such treatment as this? Especially since we understand that the Steamship Company are willing to run the s. s. "Formoso" every week if the Government will give a subsidy. Why cannot this be done? And trade thereby facilitated, which really means an increase in revenue. We trust the Authorities will give this matter their earliest attention And thus assist our Merchants and the general Public.

THE TEMPERANCE ARMY.

Is a movement we believe destined to exert a strong influence for good in this place; and while there are those who have not much faith in the stability of Temperance, among a people so given to drinking as the masses are in these parts; yet it is pretty evident, to the most casual observer, that even these are not likely to oppose the Army movement and most especially when the Army shall have become fully organized and begins its advance in good earnest upon the foe of God and men,—striving into the latent forces of temperance that have so long been pent up for want of an opening, reviving the slumbering energies of the churches on the important work, of preaching and especially practicing righteousness and sober living. The army seems to us is the very means of giving energy to the cause of temperance in our community and as we expect soon to publish the Constitution and By Laws of the Army we hope all the lovers of the good will prepare themselves for a fair consideration of the utility of the Army as an Institution for the good of youth and old age in our midst.

The most sincere friends of Mr. W. S. D. Pratt & Wife have to offer sincere thanks for kind sympathy expressed on the occasion of the death of his Sister in law, Mrs. Mary Lewis which occured on the 25th ult. at their residence at Victoria Rd in this place

THE DEMAND OF TODAY.

Is evidently the extension of the Missionary work toward the Interior of Africa; Several reasons present themselves to the mind of the careful observer of the missionary work now being done by the contributor mission-; which appeal strongly to the various societies to extend their work Interior. The first is that the Gospel has been sufficiently preached to the people in the Coast Towns, and it is said now simply be left, with them to carry on for themselves, for if the coast towns now are in the dark, it is mostly because they will not fully accept the truth not because they have not heard, for it has been preached to them, and one can easily perceive their knowledge of if not indeed in their piety then, in what is more self—in their hardened unbelief, or success delay of putting it into practice.

The second reason is that, there are sufficient means in the hands, or at the Command of the people on the coast to carry forward what remains of the work to be done among the many heathen tribes, yet remaining along the Seaboard. In other Words such centers as Freetown and other civilized Towns and Villages of the various colonies, and even scattered abroad in most of the river districts, there are enough African Christians, who can read and expound the word of God sufficiently, well to disseminate such with the Gospel.

The third reason, I my mention is that the interior offers a better field for operations in the line of missionary Work, because of the greater numbers that can be reached in their larger and more populous Towns or Groups,—more properly speaking of Towns—as it is nearly always found that several towns are joined together; and travelers all agree in telling the one story that these interior places are populous and have in them hundreds of children, many of whom, all the missionaries that have ever visited these places, believe could be gathered into mission schools for training.

The fourth, and strongest reason, which I can now adduce, is that the people of the Interior are without the Gospel and are perishing for the want of light, and no man careth for their souls.—J. A. E.

ST. MATTHEW'S CHURCH

Dear Mr Editor,

The treatment of the Church Authorities in Freetown to St Matthew's Church in Bonthe is unbearable It is now over twelve months since Pastor Nicol died and no pastor is sent to take charge of the parish; everything in connection with the church is left to take its own course. The Catechist in charge is known to be well qualified to raise subscriptions and no more; at present he is busy with that work for which he has great Tact.

I can not understand why any subscription should be raised when the church has been so utterly neglected. Hopes were at one time entertained of the Rev. S. J. Macauley coming to take charge of the church but we are now assured that that Revd Gentleman has refused to accept the Post, no doubt the authorities imagine that the congregation feel satisfied with a catechist of the antediluvian age, who is placed in charge as a figurehead It is well to let them know that the present state of the church is causing much dissatisfaction, and that unless a capable pastor be sent in time to set matters to right, great difficulties may accumulate, sufficient to tax the strength of the strongest man.

Bonthe, Yours truly,
11th Nov. '89. A Mocagan.

NEWS ITEMS.

S. S "Simoon" called in at Manoh Salijah Homeward bound on the 31st ult. and after taking cargo from that place proceeded to Freetown

S. S Gibson, Captain Munro, outward bound with mails, was at Lwanah on the 1st inst. and after landing a considerable amount of cargo for the Palma Trading Co. Proceeded to Sulymah and Manoh the same day.

S. S "Niger" Captain Ratray homeward bound was in Lavanah on Sunday the 3rd inst., after taking produce from that place proceeded to Freetown.

Missionaries Arrived.—In Freetown by the s. s Calabar Revd. E. Leversuch and Miss Dunkley for the first time, also Miss Bissett who has been here already for many years before.

Died.—Revd. F. Nevill M.A. of Fourah Bay College on the 2nd inst and was buried on the 3rd, this is a sad loss to the cause of Education in this Colony.

Died.—Also Revd. R. B. Morgan of the Pongas Mission on the 2nd., and was Interred on the 3rd inst.

S. S. Erna Woermann left on the 2nd inst with mails for Freetown. Also passengers among whom was Comdt. C. H. Harley Moseley Esqre of this District.

Boat Victory for Freetown on the 1st with Revd. H. J. Weeks of Avery station as passenger, who proceeded to Freetown by the same conveyance on the 2nd inst.

3. Nov.—Two Sermons were preached at the Wesleyan Chapel by Rev. J. C. Thomas and J. M'Cauley Catechist of Mo Moseley.

Captain Power arrived at Lavanah on the 3rd inst., from Sulymah very sick and proceeded on the 4th inst., in the S. Launch for Bonthe

4th—Juvenile Anniversary of the Wesleyan Missions took place at 11. a. m, H. N. May Esq. occupied the Chair.

5th—Wesleyan Anniversary took place at 7 p. m.; W. S. D Pratt Esq. occupied the Chair

7th—s. s. "Formoso" from Freetown with mails and the following passengers for this place. Comdt. Moseley, C. B Collier Esq and daughter from England. Messrs. Gumott and Remy, Mesdames Sackey and Macauley and others.

7th—Boat "Ellen" for Freetown with the following passengers:—Mrs. Bidwell Coker, Mrs. J. Winter Pactee, and a Mr. Williams.

Rev. R. C. Taylor,—who is out on an Itinerating and Collecting Tour is reported to have been at Moffuny in the Rooms about the 7th inst and that he was meeting with success in his work. From the Rooms he has since proceeded to the Kittim.

9th—Rev J. T. Asgill, Pastor of Kent, arrived from Kent soliciting contributions for the repairs of the Church at Kent.

10th.—Rev Asgill preached at St Matthew's Church in the morning to a crowded congregation from Rom. 6 23. "The wages of sin is death &." The preacher was very bold in his delivery.

10th—s. s. "Formoso" for Freetown with mails and the following passengers:—Rev. J. C. Thomas Messrs C. Guimett C. Trinity Wilhelm, S. T. Cole, Police constables S. L. Coker, and Thos W. Cole, Mesdames Rose Davis, Warburton, Coker and several others.

Capt. Power, of Sulymah returned again to this place, on the 5th inst on account of ill health.

Personal.

Mr. Hy. Burnett,—was here, he came per s. s. Formoso, on the 7th and called on us on the 8th inst, with Capt. Clarke, Mr. B. was looking the picture of good health.

Capt. F. W. Clarke S. S. Formoso made us a second interesting call on the 8th inst he seems a man of business, push and energy, and with all a gentleman of pleasant mien.

RETURN OF C. B. COLLIER Esq. AND DAUGHTER from EUROPE.

Among the passengers Per the S. S. Formoso which arrived in port on Thursday the 7th inst. were Mr. C. B. Collier and daughter from Liverpool via Freetown in excellent good health.

We must remark that Mr. Collier left these shores sometime in July this year 4 months ago on a visit to Europe in good health and we are more than glad to see that he has returned in good health as well as his daughter who has spent over a year in England. Mr. Collier's good qualities as a philanthropist & a gentleman we need not say much as our readers and friends are better acquainted with him.

He is to be classed among those enterprising men who have risen by dint of perseverance and strict honesty in his dealings to the stand he now occupies and we believe many there are who covet his position.

During his stay in Europe he has visited the Grand Para Exhibition, and has seen much to commend his attention and also witnessed the skill & ingenuity of the French nation.

It is said to remark that, while in England he was the guest of Messrs G. B. Olivant & Co., Manchester who are well known on the West Coast of Africa for their assiduity, promptness and exactness in the discharge of their faith ful duties with their African clients all along the Coast.

We wish Mr Collier and daughter the blessings of long life and prosperity in our midst, and we also hope that the experience gained by them in foreign countries may be established among their friends who are yet unacquainted with European life and that others who have enjoyed the same trivelege as Mr Collier may co operate with him in the uplifting of the Negro race. Com.

COURT OF REQUEST.

A case of considerable interest occupied the attention of the above Court on the 11th and 12th insts and was adjourned to Monday next the 18th inst.

It was a summons by J. B. Parkinson Esq. J.P., against a W. E. C Dixon for the recovery of a debt of £2 17. 6.

The case came before C. H. Harley Moseley Esquire; Civil Commandant. Among the Items of claims presented by the plaintiff there was one for 50 shillings which the defendant has positively denied owing.

The circumstances connected with the case according to the evidences are as follows:—The defendant when in the employ of Paterson Zochonis & Co. of this place owed the plaintiff the sum of 50 shillings. On plaintiff applying for payment defendant gave a Credit Note to the Amount due which the plaintiff at the time accepted, (believing the same to be good.) It was shewn that this Credit Note was given to the plaintiff during the Agt (T. E. Macfoy) absence to Freetown, and without the knowledge and consent of the sub-Agent, (Mr. Campbell) then in Charge. On Mr. Macfoys return from Freetown and in examining the books, he found out that Mr. Parkinson had been credited and Mr. Dixon debited with the above 50 shillings. He thereupon disallowed it as as he had no funds then due Mr. Dixon, and at once ordered Mr. Dixon, (being then the Book Keeper) in whose handwriting the entries were made to redebit Mr. Parkinson with the amount and to take it off from his (Dixon's) debit which was accordingly done.

Notice was therefore given to Mr. Parkinson that the Credit Note given him by Mr Dixon was disallowed. Subsequently Mr. Dixon received his full salary up to the time from Paterson Zochonis & Co, without paying Mr. Parkinson the amount due. Mr. Parkinson thereupon took steps to recover the fifty shillings, including other items of accounts by issuing a summons against him in the Court of Request. The case was called on the 11th, but was adjourned to the 12th. for the production of Account Books

On the 12th Mr Parkinson produced his pass-book and Mr Macfoy produced his Ledger, &c, which shows that the entries made in the Ledger and in Mr Parkinson's pass book have been at variance as to date.

The Commandant however, held that in a Commissioner's point of view, inasmuch as Mr. Macfoy had allowed the entries to remain unaltered in his books for a considerable length of time, Mr Dixon was free from Mr Parkinson's debt, and that Macfoy should sue Mr Dixon for the recovery of this amount as it was no paid to Mr Parkinson

T. E. Macfoy sworn Immediately as I saw the entries in the books I at once ordered Mr. Dixon to redebit Mr. Parkinson with the amount as I did not approve of it, and it was done, and subsequently I paid him his wages to the time he left, hence our firm is no more responsible for this amount, nor is Mr Dixon responsible to the firm for the payment of this amount, but to Mr Parkinson.

Comdt to Dixon—Why did you alter the entries by redebiting Mr. Parkinson with this amount and at the same time taken it off from your account.

Dixon,—I cannot very well remember sir.

Comdt.—You should remember. The entries are in your handwriting in black and white.

Court adjourned to Monday the 18th inst.

Messrs. J. N. and H. C. Crown beg to return their sincere thanks to their numerous friends for kind sympathy expressed on the occasion of the death of their father, James Crown at Waterloo on the 27th. Octob. r.

LOST AND FOUND.

The traveler who overslept and awoke just in time to catch the morning train, was told that he had lost his breakfast by his foolishness. He insisted that there was untruth in his conception of the word but a man could not lose that which he never possessed. There are many who go through life making the same sad mistake in the journey. If they have had the money in their pocket when it was picked, or in the bank when it failed and paid no dividend, or have invested it beyond all hope of return, then they can see that they have lost so many dollars. If they had a friend who has become alienated, or who has passed out of the earthly life, they mourn in the fullest proportion as they valued the possession. If they have had a reputation for honesty and fair dealing, and men have trusted them because of it, and through some trickery in trade, or breach of trust in the hour of great temptation they have forfeited the public confidence, then they feel the loss most keenly, reckoning what they held and have been compelled to relinquish. Or after years of robust existence, during which they never asked any questions of stomach, heart or liver they find themselves dyspeptic, short-breathed or jaundiced, they admit the loss of health as a great and ever present misfortune.

But that which might have been is not so easily reckoned. The want of economy which is a positive loss of every dollar wasted; the failure to gain a friend who would have been a lifelong companion; the absence of a quickened conscience to arrest the hour of trial; the yielding of the vital powers to the dissipation that foretold the coming of disease—these are sad losses not easily entered in the ledger. It is true that some are haunted by the shadows of good things they have missed; treasures they might have seized if they had recognized their value when within their reach; turns of the road leading to honor or greater profit they would have taken if their foresight had been a little sharper; a favoring tide whose flood came in their idle hours, leaving them to the shallows in all their after life. These purposeless memories only lead to still greater waste. They place the gaze of life in the past, and leave the victim purposeless for the present and hopeless for the future.

Few mourn as they should over what has been their greatest loss—the neglected opportunities for doing good to others. These come to all men wherever their station or circumstances. The emperor who cried out that he had "lost a day" when he could remember no benefaction he had bestowed, need no more have entered such a record in all his life if he had been equal to his opportunities. The man who lives among his fellows neglects more chances of this sort than he grasps even when he does his best. And the infirm old man who lay alone on his pallet through all the weary hours, answered better than he knew when he replied to the question as to what he had been doing all the day, "I have been praying for the world!" The loving heart that has its window open heavenward will have for its feeblest utterance the ear of One whose hand is the treasury of the universe.

The omnibus on Mortague street in Brooklyn takes from every hour more or less passengers that go from the Wall Street Ferry up to Court street. The five cents fare is dropped in the box, and those who have not the change must obtain it from the driver. As the first part of the journey is up a very steep ascent, there is some difficulty and always some delay in procuring this accommodation. A gentleman who rides up every afternoon is in the habit of holding his own five cent piece in the open palm, and receiving such as may be offered from others, thus providing the means of making the necessary change without troubling the man who is guiding the horses up the hill. The other day he had five faces in his hand, but seeing a lady approaching just as the vehicle was starting he waited to see if she would ride. She beckoned to the driver and became the sixth passenger. She held out her quarter of a dollar to pay the fare. "I was waiting to see it it could not help somebody else," said the gentleman, taking her piece of silver and handing her back two dimes he had already exchanged for the proper fare. One of the passengers quietly remarked, "A man who is looking for an opportunity to help somebody always finds it."

This was simply said as if it had been a mere commonplace, but it was a grand sermon in itself, and has been the inspiration of what we have written. It is the secret of noble living. What is thus found is the greatest treasure that can be garnered from the fields of earth. To miss this is to lose inestimable wealth; to find it is to gather that which moth and rust cannot corrupt, and to place it at the instant of possession beyond the reach of human greed. Golden opportunities these, and offered to every searching hand. Easily overlooked they are by the selfish & the reckless in their mad pursuit of the good they covet! but they are right in the way of those who are looking for them. Unlike all other treasures that mock the disappointed hopes of the seekers, they multiply to meet the earnest longing of all that value their possession. The supply keeps pace with the passion; no age or sex, or station is denied the priceless boon; and they are the most satisfying portion ever gained this side of the golden gates of Paradise. The Journal of Commerce. N. Y.

"IN A MINUTE',

If you asked Dora B——t do anything she would reply "In a minute." It was a bad habit. "Dora, please bring me a drink of water." "In a minute." "Dori, go up stairs, and bring me down my comb." "Yes, mother, in a minute." "Dora, come down to your dinner." "In a minute."

One day Dora's bird was hopping about on the floor. Somebody went out leaving the door open, just as "somebody" is always doing. Dora's mother said, "Dora, shut the door, or the cat will be after your bird."

"Yes, mother, in a minute," said Dora "I just want to finish this line in my drawing."

But the cat did not wait. In he came, and with one dart had the bird in his mouth.

Down went the slate on the floor, and away went cat bird and Dora. There was a wild chase in the lawn. "In a minute" Dora came back weeping with the dead bird in her hand

Dora cried, mamma was sad, but said, "A great many things may happen in a minute"

Dora has never forgotten that lesson, and never will. —The Free Methodist.

TO LET

The Wellknown Shaingay Mission stores, Wharf, &c. Situate at Shaingay, or Tasso Point, better known as Shaingay Mission, about 60 miles southeast of Freetown and 50 miles Northwest of Bonthe Sherbro: This is a well located property and commands a good Trade, and being on one of the most healthy Promontories of the West Coast of Africa offers special attraction, for European residence.

For particulars, Apply to"

J. A. EVANS

Bonthe Sherbro

3rd Aug '89. W. C. Africa.

PUBLIC NOTICE.

S M MISSION STORE.

We now offer for sale the Best BRANDS of FLOUR In Bbls. & Half Bbls.

ALSO

SUGAR, KEROSINE, FLORIDA WATER in Bbls & Cases,

Provisions

Of the freshest Kind and in good variety.

Best Tea, Coffee, Lard, Butter, Milk, Cocoa & Milk, Vinegar, Sauces, Mustard, Pickles, Tomatoes, Peaches, Tapioca, Sago, Pearl Barley, Potted Meats, Pilchards, Baking Powder, Chocolate and Milk, Split Peas, Pears, Soups, assorted.

MEDICINES

(Patent and Proietary)

A SPECIALITY

Time Pieces, Watches, Sewing Machines, Watch Guards Sewing Machine Needles.

N.B. We Pay CASH for Palm Kernels.

J. A. Evans.

'Early Dawn'

PRINTING OFFICE,

Job Work Done at short Notice.

Enquire of G. M. Cowan Printer.

The Early Dawn

"The Morning Light Is Breaking, The Darkness Disappears."

VOL. VI. BONTHE, SHERBRO, WEST AFRICA, NOVEMBER 30, 1889. No 23.

The "Early Dawn."

Published Semi-Monthly, At

BONTHE, SHERBRO.

under the Auspices of the Board of Missions of the

U. B. IN CHRIST.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION

One Year by Mail,	£0	6	0
Delivered in Bonthe,	0	5	0
Half yearly by Mail,	0	3	0
Ditto. deliv'd in Bonthe	0	2	6

ADDRESS,—Communications to J. A. EVANS, Editor & Publisher, Bonthe, Sherbro, West Africa.—

Subscriptions to be sent to Rev. D. F WILLIAMSON Shaingay, Mr. E. A. LEWIS, Freetown, West Africa. Rev. WM. MCKEE Dayton, Ohio, U. S. A. or to the Editor.—

DIRECTORY.

Commandant. C. H. Hanley Monie

Coroner. The Commandant.

Chief Clerk. M. J. W. Bonthe

Interpreter J. D. Rogers.

Bailiff. F. E. B. Buchner.

Sub Treas. & Col. Chief Clerk J. D. Macauley.

Tide Waiters. J. T. Crown, J. B. Thomas, J. J. Warburton.

Asst. Exmng. Officer Sulyman Jasper Coulker

Assistant Col. Surgeon. M. L. Jarrett, M. R. C. S.

Dispenser Rowland May

Postmaster. H. S. Williams.

Inspector of Police. M. E. Bate,

Harbor Master A. A. Deanie

Overseer of Roads. A. O. Walker.

Religious Directory.

St. Matthew's Church, Victoria Row Pastor, Vacant.

Wesleyan Methodist, Lime Street Pastor, Rev. J. C. Thomas

Mendi Mission. (Congregational.) Good Hope

Pastor, Rev R. C. Taylor

Training School Square, Shaingay Mission. Nov. 18, 89.

Rev J. A. Evans

Dear Bro.—I herewith enclose you an Essay that you will please publish in the 'Early Dawn' It was delivered by Mr. E. C. Bickersteth before the "Christian Temperance Army of this place, and on a motion made and carried it was to be sent to the "Dawn" for publication by the Corresponding Secretary.

Sincerely Yours

H. J. Williams.

AN ESSAY.

By Mr. E. C. Bickersteth.

Mr. Chairman & Friends of the "Christian Temperance Army"—I am here to read you an essay on the Temperance and Intemperance of Scripture. I feel myself unable to grasp the subject with that amount of interest it requires so as to do it that justice which a subject so interesting demands. I shall however essay as far as I am able to devote a portion of my time to the good duration thereof.

Temperance, as is defined by a distinguished lexicographer, is the moderate indulgence of the appetites or passions; and vice versa Intemperance is the immoderate indulgence of the appetites and passions; hence excess in eating or drinking, particularly the excessive use of intoxicating liquors; which is the principal subject of our consideration to night.

If it be admitted criticism gives to the mind clearness and distinctness of thought, then I feel myself justified in entitling the term Temperance as is used to indicate a total abstinence from the use of intoxicants. Taking the Scriptures as our infallible and authoritative rule of faith to practice, we find its teachings every where in direct opposition to intemperance of every kind. The example of Noah as he drank of the grapes of his vineyard and was drunken, is surely not penned down for our imitation. Nor if we were to think of Lot when enticed to this sin and the effects that followed it, would we form any favorable opinion of it. The wise excellent Solomon in the xxiii Proverbs verses 19-21, he says, "Hear thou my son and be wise and guide thine heart in the way. Be not among winebibbers, among riotous eaters of flesh: for the drunkard and glutton shall come to poverty, and drowsiness shall clothe a man with rags." In verses 29-30 also we find, "Who hath woe, who hath sorrow, who hath contentions, who hath babblings, who hath wounds without cause, who hath redness of eyes? They that tarry long at the wine; they that go to seek mixed wine. Look not thou upon the wine when it is red when it giveth its color in the cup, when it moveth itself aright. At last it biteth as a serpent and stingeth like an adder. Thine eyes shall behold strange women and thine heart shall utter perverse things. Yea thou shalt be as one that lieth down in the midst of the sea or as he that lieth upon the top of a mast. They have stricken me shalt thou say and I was not sick; they have beaten me and I felt it not; when shall I awake? I will seek it yet again." In the above we have a caution as from a father to a son whose heart he craves. A fearful secret is told. "The drunkard shall come to poverty." And this he does by wasting his property either by the foolish and mischievous bargains he makes during the hours of intoxication, or in the amount he expends in the purchase of intoxicants. And when we think of the many woes, contentions, babblings, wounds without cause, redness of eyes, all which are the effects of intemperance, we cannot but form a just conclusion, that anything that is capable of producing anyone if not all the above evils should by every rational being be totally deprecated. Intemperance leads to a waste of money. Intoxicants are not necessary for any man's nourishment. We could live and that to a very good old age without the use of stimulants. It satisfies not the appetites of those who take it; the more they drink it the more they feel an increased desire after another and another glass, so that like Tantalus' cup it only touches the lips of its victim and comes him to writhe in the torture of a more burning thirst How very forcible are the words of the Prophet Isaiah Wherefore do ye spend your money for that which is not bread, and your labour for that which satisfieth not?

Whatever leads directly or indirectly to injure or to impose unnecessary the social burdens on men, as individuals and society, we are bound to abstain from. Pain sorrow and diseases are the inevitable followers of this cursed, habit which excites to a high degree of intemperance most of the revenant passions of man particularly anger and lust. The reason by it is long the power of conscience laid asleep, and the poor victim is ever ready to take every occasion place conversation to quarrelling, and quarrelling leads to fighting which terminates sometimes in broken limbs, bloodshed and death. A large part of the murders which have existed in this world have grown out of intoxication. And as such we cannot but conclude that that which is productive of such evils, cannot be taught by the sacred Scriptures the standard of our rule of faith and practice.

As followers of Christ we are bounden to be examples of uprightness. As lights of the world the command is given, "Let your light so shine before men they may see your good works and glorify your Father which is in heaven." The light that comes from one who is an inebriate must at least be an impure light. We are thought to abstain from that which is evil, and so know to the world how to live right & who that has learned to be many evils within this practice brings, does not see that is in contrary to the Word of God? So directly opposed to the Scriptures against this sin, that Moses tells us in Deuteronomy XXI 20 that children who were drunkards & would not be reclaimed were to be stoned to death that evil might be put away from among the children of Israel. And we specially angry with the drunkard. Is. Is. XXVIII. 1-4 we read how God treateth Samaria for their pride & drunkenness. "Woe to the drunkards of Ephraim whose glorious beauty is a fading flower which are on the head of the fat valleys of them that are overcome with wine! Behold the, Lord hath a mighty & strong one, which as a tempest of hail and a destroying storm, as a flood of mighty waters over flowing, shall cast down to the earth with the hand.

The drunkards of Ephraim shall be trodden under foot etc.

In Is. v. 22 the prophet denounces the judgment of God on those who are given to impiety in strong and violent drinking. "Woe he says unto them that are mighty to drink wine and men of strength to mingle strong drink etc."

Verse 2. "Woe unto them that rise up early in the morning that they may follow strong drink, that continue until night that wine inflame them."

Not only is the drunkard denounced but those who cause men to be drunk are also under the curse of God. Hab II. 15. "Woe to him that giveth his neighbor drink, that puttest thy bottle to him and makest him drunken also" And in the New Testament Scriptures it is no less spoken against. The Apostle Paul in his Epistle to the Romans xiii 13, says "Let us walk honestly as in the day not in rioting and drunkenness not in chambering and wantonness not in strife and envying."

In Ephesians 5. 18 we find a positive command when "Be not drunk with wine wherein is excess"— and when we come on to look at the moral effects which proceed from the ward of God were it is plainly written that drunkards shall not inherit the kingdom of God, we cannot but conclude that the advice of Paul to the church at Colloseae was most applicable & appropriate "Touch not, taste not handle not."

Alcoholic in temperance, says the Rev. Ambrose, is consumed by christendom be-

Whereas we do you spend your money for that which is not bread, and your labour for that which satisfieth not?

Whatever leads directly or indirectly to injure or to impose unnecessary the social burdens on men, as individuals and society, we are bound to abstain from. Pain sorrow and diseases are the inevitable followers of this cursed, habit which excites to a high degree of intemperance most of the revenant passions of man particularly anger and lust. The reason by it is long the power of conscience laid asleep, and the poor victim is ever ready to take every occasion place conversation to quarrelling, and quarrelling leads to fighting which terminates sometimes in broken limbs, bloodshed and death. A large part of the murders which have existed in this world have grown out of intoxication. And as such we cannot but conclude that that which is productive of such evils, cannot be taught by the sacred Scriptures the standard of our rule of faith and practice.

As followers of Christ we are bounden to be examples of uprightness. As lights of the world the command is given, "Let your light so shine before men they may see your good works and glorify your Father which is in heaven." The light that comes from one who is an inebriate must at least be an impure light. We are thought to abstain from that which is evil, and so know to the world how to live right & who that has learned to be many evils within this practice brings, does not see that is in contrary to the Word of God? So directly opposed to the Scriptures against this sin, that Moses tells us in Deuteronomy XXI 20 that children who were drunkards & would not be reclaimed were to be stoned to death that evil might be put away from among the children of Israel. And we specially angry with the drunkard. Is. Is. XXVIII. 1-4 we read how God treateth Samaria for their pride & drunkenness. "Woe to the drunkards of Ephraim whose glorious beauty is a fading flower which are on the head of the fat valleys of them that are overcome with wine! Behold the, Lord hath a mighty & strong one, which as a tempest of hail and a destroying storm, as a flood of mighty waters over flowing, shall cast down to the earth with the hand.

The drunkards of Ephraim shall be trodden under foot etc.

In Is. v. 22 the prophet denounces the judgment of God on those who are given to impiety in strong and violent drinking. "Woe he says unto them that are mighty to drink wine and men of strength to mingle strong drink etc."

Verse 2. "Woe unto them that rise up early in the morning that they may follow strong drink, that continue until night that wine inflame them."

Not only is the drunkard denounced but those who cause men to be drunk are also under the curse of God. Hab II. 15. "Woe to him that giveth his neighbor drink, that puttest thy bottle to him and makest him drunken also" And in the New Testament Scriptures it is no less spoken against. The Apostle Paul in his Epistle to the Romans xiii 13, says "Let us walk honestly as in the day not in rioting and drunkenness not in chambering and wantonness not in strife and envying."

In Ephesians 5. 18 we find a positive command when "Be not drunk with wine wherein is excess"— and when we come on to look at the moral effects which proceed from the ward of God were it is plainly written that drunkards shall not inherit the kingdom of God, we cannot but conclude that the advice of Paul to the church at Colloseae was most applicable & appropriate "Touch not, taste not handle not."

Alcoholic in temperance, says the Rev. Ambrose, is consumed by christendom because of the following proposition, which are incontrovertibly true.

I. It creates a great and unnecessary waste of money.

II. It is unquestionably the cause of the greater part of such a criminal population and misery.

III. It irreparably injures body and mind of all its victims.

IV. It brings untold misery and suffering upon helpless women and children.

V. It robbes God and degrades the race through the laws of heredity."

If it degrades the moral nature of all its victims, alienating them from God and all that is good what else it renders any of them the subject of the latter or the most necessary be in antagonism to our pure and holy religion and must be condemned.

The religious sentiments of christendom today is against anything and every thing that intoxicates and so far as could be gathered from the teachings of scripture. Better not touch, taste or handle them do these to the loss of property, good name and eternity your soul is at stake.

George Washington as a Boy.

He was a careful painstaking boy. In the State Department at Washington there is a large room filled with things relating to the Father of his Country. Among them are two hundred bound volumes of his correspondence, and a large box full of his more personal and private writings, some of which were written when a boy. These manuscripts are yellow and dusty, the paper is perishing, and the ink is pale; yet they were all executed with care and pains. There is no slap-dash about them. The drawings are neatly done and everything is orderly and systematic.

He was a thoughtful, intelligent boy. It is evident that although there were few books within his reach he was a diligent searcher after such wisdom as a boy could understand. It is certain that he reflected on life and duty. He wished to know for what a boy was born upon earth, what it became him to do, and by what course of conduct he could avoid evil, gain favor and become good and useful to others. The "Rules of Behavior in Company and Conversation," which he drew up at the age of thirteen years, would be enough of themselves to show how much he thought of such things. There were his own composition, but he copied and adopted them as rules to live by.) And now excellent most of them are! "Show not yourself glad at the misfortune of another, though he were your enemy." "Take all admonitions thankfully, in what time or place soever given; but not before others, nor when you are angry lest you speak unadvisedly to your hurt." "Undertake not what you cannot perform, but be careful to keep your promise." "Labor to keep alive in your breast that little spark of celestial fire called conscience." "Let your recreation be manful, not sinful." These are believed severity and rigidity of those rules in the collection, all in a similar strain of conscientiousness and consider ation for others.

At the same time he was a boy fondly developed in a physical sense—an excellent and bold rider, a good swimmer, a good shot, a splendid thrower, and the best runner in the country.—Ed.

The Early Dawn.
BONTHE, SHERBRO.
November 30 1889.

THE MAILS

We are please to insert in this Issue, a Correspondence between some of our leading Merchants & the Authorities on the subject of the "Irregular Transmission of the Mails" from this District, and by reference to these letters, published in another Column of this Issue, it will be seen that the Authorities have given us every reason to feel that we shall be better favored in the near future as regards this Important Service.

CANABALISM

Considerable notice has already been taken of this matter in our columns and yet not that amount of interest has been aroused that ought to be in reference to such brutality, by a christian Government lying in direct contact with barbarous pagan tribes, some of whose people are indeed subjects proper at least resident within the limits of the jurisdiction of this Government and who are doubtless cognisant of the guilty perpetrators of this brutal practice above refered to, and it is strongly surmised that some of these are aiders and abettors of these crimes and if so they shelter themselves from punishment in such cases under British laws. Again the influence of the Government is greatly in the way of the punishment of canabals in places out of jurisdiction owing to the fact that canabalism is punishable with death, as we understand under native rule, and it is understood at present that Native Chiefs under treaty have not the power of life and death; hence they fear to punish Canabals, and thus it is they are allowed to make such sad havoc in the surounding districts. But the worst of the matter is that this already sad state of affairs is likely to increase, and to interfere with the Trade of the Community as much as the Wars of the past years have done, if indeed, as some think now, it does not really lead to War itself. Of course we are aware that the Govern't does not in any way wish to interfere with the proper punishment of evildoers, but to prevent barbarity being practice'd; however, there ought to be some means provided for the arrest and proper punishment of those who will insist on catching and murdering men and women for the purpose of eating them. And we do most assuredly hope that steps will be taken at once for the arest of some of those canabals, and they be so signally punish'd as to strike terror into the hearts of the others.

THE RELIGIOUS ACTIVITY

Of the Sherbros, is really improving and has already, we are glad to note reached a commendable standard, nearly, if not, every, one of those employed, or engaged, in religious pursuits are trying their best to work up the Religious life of the people and by every laudable means to increase the numbers of their respective communions. And surely if this continues we shall see blessed results in the near future.

Sherbro,
21st. Oct. 1889.

His Excellency
Major S. Foster
Acting Administrator of the West Africa Settlements
&c. &c. &c.

Sir,

We the undersigned Merchants and residents of the District of Sherbro beg most respectfully to bring before your notice the great inconvenience we have been put to through the delay of the delivery of mails in this district: during the last 21 days we have been without any communication from Free town whatever.

This is not the first time this thing has occurred during the past few months.

We therefore beg to call your attention to the great amount of inconvenience to us by the frequent non delivery of our correspondence from Europe and Sierra Leone.

We trust therefore that you will see your way to alleviate the long felt want of a regular Weekly communication between Sierra Leone and this district.

We have the honour to be,
Sir,
Your most obedient humble Servants,

Fisher & Randall Ltd.
T. Dalton Agt.
Paterson Z-chonis & Co Ltd
T. Macfoy Agt.
Cie Francaise De L'Afrique,
C. Barthelme Agt.
J. B. Parkinson,
&c, &c, &c.

Commandants Office
Bonthe 12 November 1889

Irregular Transmission of Mails.

Gentlemen

I have had the honour of transmitting to Freetown your letter dated 31 October addressed to His Excellency the Administrator on the above subject.

I am requested by the Honorable the Colonial Secretary to inform you that

The Merchants and Traders Bonthe, Bandoo, York Island, Sherbro, that letter will be submitted to His Excellency on his return to Freetown.

I have the honour to be
Gentlemen,
Your obedient servant,
C. H. HARLEY MOSELEY
Civil Commandant.

York Island Sherbro
November 27 1889

Rev. J. A. Evans
Editor of "The Early Dawn"

Dear Sir

I here with forward you a further communication on "The irregular transmission of mails" received from the Civil Commandant and hope you will publish same in your next issue together with the former ones sent you for the information of the public.

With kind regards
I remain Yours truly,
T. Dalton.

Commandant's Office,
No. 109. Bonthe 23 Nov. '89.

Irregular Transmission of Mails.

Gentlemen

In continuation of my letter No. 108 of the 12th Instant on the above subject His Excellency desires me to inform you that the matter is under the consideration of the Secretary of State but that in the meantime arrangements have been made which it is hoped will prevent a recurrence of such delay in future.

I have the honour to be Gentlemen
Your Obedient Servant,
C. H. Harley Moseley
Civil Commandant.

FACTS FROM SHAINGAY

Dear Editor.—As we have now entered the dry season, it is with joyful hearts that we are animated to write these lines. We herewith give expression of our feelings in congratulations to our worthy and indefatigable Chief who has used his prerogative towards the repairing of Batchelloh bridge, and the thorough cleaning of the road from Mo-Tucker to Shangay town.

There is mirth and gladness all around on account of the bountiful harvest in this part of country by which we are blessed. Our greatest joy was to hear last Sabbath that Thanksgiving offerings are being made by the full members of the church and seeker members too. It is always our pleasure to see the people of Cattah and Debia on Sundays wending their way through State Road to Flickinger Chapel. This makes us to know that Conah Yaney, Head woman of the Village of Cattah & Mrs. Lucia Caulker of Debia, are putting forth untiring efforts in order that their people be brought to the saving knowledge of God. Their influence among their people are for good. It is well that every individual knows that he is responsible, and will be called to account on the day of Restitution for the influence he is now exerting. We are glad to mention that itinerants are receiving the very best of hospitality they would like to have, even in the form huts. The main road lately made, requires some attention as we think it will (if received proper attention) facilitate in a great measure the itinerating work. How much we were scratched by briers and brambles in our last itinerating trip. It is indeed miserable that after one returns home from a wearisome journey & having suffered under the pelting heat of the sun, he must needs scratch feet and hands the whole night. The Shangay, that seat and centre of light and civilization from which light and knowledge radiate all over this country, is making head way in religious matters is evident. We congratulate Mr. H.P Humphrey, Itinerant and head teacher of Kwolopuge station for the two simple and instructive sermons that he preached here two weeks ago. May his life be prolonged to work for the Master. We notice that petty rum-sellers are multiplying in our midst; and it makes us feel like giving them a few thoughts that we think they ought to have. To them we would say, Mark well the words of Christ: "With what measure ye mete, it shall be measured to you again." Ye are making inebriates, bloated sots and miserable homes by your diabolical business. Ye are partakers of sins miseries and ruin of the drunkard and his family, and you are directly in instrumental in furthering the cause of Satan. Thanking you Mr Editor for space occupied in this your valuable journal, you will hear from us again

Smallhw and J.

Shangay, October 23, 1889.

Mr G. N. Cowan our foreman has been ill unable to attend duty for some time past, hence we are late this issue.

Mr. T. E. Macfoy returns his sincere thanks to his numerous friends for kind sympathy expressed on the occasion of the death of his father Geo. T. Macfoy on the 17th inst.

NEWS ITEMS.

Nov 17— Boat "Ellen" from Freetown, with Mrs. Bidwell Coker and Daughter also Mr. H. A. N. Davis.

18— Mr. G. T. Macfoy father of Mr. T. E. Macfoy and brother to S. B. A. Macfoy Esq. died at Bonthe this day and was buried at 4. p. m.

21— Boat "Ellen" for Freetown with mails.

23—"Formosa" from Freetown with mails and following passengers:—Rev. J. C. Thomas, Messrs. R. H. Pearson, Theo. Jarrett, Mesdames Joah, Reynold and Pratt.

26—s. s. "Formosa" for Freetown

Large steam launch "James" left this day with the following passengers. C. B. Collier Esq. for Mosate, Capt Le Power, Messrs Anthony W. Elliott, Theo. Jarrett for Layauah.

News reached us per the "Formosa" of the arrival of Mr Garrett from England, and is now in Freetown, but will proceed to the Salymah District by overland route.

From Mattru——near Bendumah we hear that the New Chapel there is in a great condition.

Danville——near Gbanghiah reports greater interest in the Mission work since the opening of the New Chapel.

Canabals——are becoming very numerous in the Gbangro, and unless steps are taken to prevent, the evil is likely to increase.

Bengalol——reports a case Canabals killing a woman about the 16th inst.

Thanksgiving Service.—held by the U. B Church of this place on Thursday the 28. inst, was well attended and interesting. We believe it was the first of the kind held in this place.

Personal.

REVD R. C. TAYLOR—returned from the Kittam about the 16th inst, he visited 46 Towns and places, held 20 services, Quarterly admitted preached to 1580 persons and Collected a good sum for missions

Revd S. B. Morrison,—of Avery station was in the place this week on business we were pleased to hear from him that the Mattro Chapel, is under roof and that the people that way are much encouraged by the success.

To the Editor of the "Dawn."

Dear Sir,—I am sincerely sorry that the Case of J. B Parkinson Esq. J. P. versus W. E. C. Dixon was so ill represented in your Journal of the 15th inst. The most important facts connected with the Case in favor of the defendant were omited. The questions put by the defendant to to the Plaintiff and his excellent Witness, with their respective answers were not dealt with. They were specially omited to carry out the personal interest of those whose aggrandisement and Toady like pedestal of self shrunk in Court to the little measure of sepan. "Surely, Mr. Editor, discretion is the better part of valour."

The rather interesting case which was again adjourned on the 16th inst, was called on the 19th inst. His Worship, the Civil Commandant after having carefully and most judiciously canvassed the evidences, decided in favor of the defendant W. E. C. Dixon. The Plaintiff with reference to the item of £2. 10 0. the subject matter of contention was non suited. This is an illustration of the fact that the law holds good for all classes of men; it has no regard to their social positions. In the eyes of the law the right of Her Majesty's subject are equally protected; there is certainly no distinction, and to all intents and purposes there is a liberal view in the tendency which it embodies. As such, men of keen sagacity, acute discrimination, and high toned respectability, have generally guided their public actions on this simple home rule, "Those who live in glass houses should not throw stones."

Thanking you Mr. Editor for inserting this,
I remain,
Yours truly,
A. SPECTATOR.

Bonthe,
Nov. 25th '89.

COURT OF REQUEST

Parkinson Versus Dixon

The above interesting case which was adjourned on Friday last the 12 inst was resumed this day before His Worship C. H. H. Moseley Esqre.

The Commandant asked Mr. Parkinson if he had brought his Pass Book as he would like to have it in evidence. The Pass Book was produced and given in evidence. The Commandant further asked Mr Parkinson if he had any more witnesses to produce, when he replied that he had no more. The Commandant then said that he has gone through with the matter so far, and that he sees no reason why he should alter his decision. He said that the 50 shillings was still owing to Mr Parkinson but not by Dixon. That P Z & Co should pay Mr Parkinson. He said further that Mr Macfoy's evidence was quite foreign to the claims in question and therefore he would pay no attention to it.

Judgement was therefore given to Mr Parkinson for 7 6 6 pence and Cost of Summons.

Mr Parkinson said, in that case he would apply for a summons against P Z & Co for the recovery of the 50 shillings His worship advised him not to take out a summons, but that Mr Parkinson when settling his account with P Z & Co should pay them less the 50 shillings

APPOINTMENTS,

QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Mendi Mission District.

Good Hope.	Dec. 8th	J. A. Evans
Avery Station,	" 15th 16th	W. S. M.
Mattro,	" 17th	"
Danville	8th	S. B Morrison
Komoonsay	" 22	J. A. Evans
Mendo	Jan. 5th (90)	J. A. Evans

Shalegay District.

Kwolopuge } Bomptook }	Dec. 8th & 9th	J. A. E.
Bemboo	" 8th & 9th	D. F. W.
Mambee	" 9th	" " "
Manoh	" 9th & 10th	J. A. Evans
Mocodee } Mopkee } Mangeang }	" 10th & 11th	D. F. W.
Tongkolah } Charmay }	Dec. 11th & 12th	J. A. E.
Shaingay	Dec. 15th & 16th

Dear Mr. Editor—Permit me to inform the public about the crime that had been perpetrated at Gbanghiali, on the 7th instant, at noon day two little boys left their Home in search of food the distance being one tenth of a mile from the mission House so they were in the field each of them was trying to make some effort by digging some bush yams for their evening meal being thus employed and were seperated not far from each other they rejoiced that they were successful in the field but unbeknown of any evil thing to befall either of them. A sudden grasp fell on one, and a cry was heard by his companion who saw the shaking of the Bush, and heard no more. He with all speed hasted home and reported what had taken place, at five after two, a man came to the mission House and informed me that Leopard had taken one of Sandoo's sons to sing no time I dispatched a boy from the school with a note to the serjeant in Charge he without delay dispatched three of his men to advance in front while he with the other man in the rear proceeded with the advance guard each one having his rifle prepared. As we reached to the spot, where the deed had taken place we met a few yams, and mat rial used for digging up the yams lying on the ground with abundance of Blood, we traced our step forward following the blood drops which was quite fresh proceeding on, there are some places where the ground seems to be soft, we saw the prints of Human feet going on by a winding course; we reached a place where they had cleared & rest, not far from this place a bone was found, a little further the body was discovered, the left arm had gone it was cut off at a joint near the shoulder blade and was awfully butchered by the beast; it appears that the weapons used were small for I have seen how they had been endeavouring to remove the head, but they were not allowed to have their desire accomplished. Part of their plans had been frustrated, The poor boy had no thought of death. He was calculating to have a good evening repast, & some enjoyment in time, but he was suddenly removed from all on earth by wicked hands, his sun went down while it was day. How true are the words of the apostle, we die daily I trust that Christians in all parts of the world will lift up their hearts unto God in prayer so that the eyes of the Authorities may be opened and proper steps taken to check this evil practice.

If no steps be taken to correct this deed of Darkness I am afraid that some of her majesty's subjects will be carried off in this way for God hath made all men a under the face of the Heaven to be of one blood. It is a Fact that we must die but not by such violent hands.

Thanking you Mr Editor for space occupie

I am yours
W S M.

TO LET

The Wellknown Shaingay Mission stores, Wharf, &c., Situate at Shaingay, or Tassoh Point, better known as Shaingay Mission, about 60 mile, Southeast of Freetown and 59 miles North-west of Bonthe Sherbro. This is a well located, property and commands a good Trade, and being on one of the most healthy Promontories of the West Coast of Africa offers special attraction for European residence.

For particulars, Apply to

J. A. EVANS

BONTHE, SHERBRO.

3rd Aug. '89. W. C. Africa.

PUBLIC NOTICE.

S. M. MISSION STORE.

We now offer for sale the Best BRANDS of FLOUR In Bbls. & Half Bbls. ALSO SUGAR, KEROSINE, FLORIDA WATER, in Bbls & Cases,

Provisions

Of the freshest kind and in good variety.

Best Tea, Coffee, Lard, Butter, Milk, Cocoa & Milk, Vinegar, Sauces, Mustard, Pickles, Tomatoes, Peaches, Tapioca, Sago, Pearl Barley, Potted Meats, Pilchards, Baking Powder, Chocolate and Milk, Split Peas, Pears, Soups, assorted.

MEDICINES

(Patent and Proietary)

A SPECIALITY

Time Pieces, Watches, Sewing Machines, Watch Guards Sewing Machine Needles.

N.B. We Pay CASH for Palm Kernels.

J. A. Evans.

'Early Dawn'

PRINTING OFFICE.

Job Work Done at short Notice.

Enquire of C. M. Cowan — Printer.

MACE FOUND HER.

BY CHARLOTTE F. HAMMOND.

Among the annals of Middlesex County, Massachusetts, we find the following interesting incident:

Some years ago, when the town of R—— was not so large as at present, the people were startled one evening by an unwonted ringing of church-bells. Wondering what it meant, men and women came out from their houses and hurried towards the church. The exciting news soon spread through the village, "Tom Reed's little girl is lost!" She had strayed away in the afternoon, no one knew where. Her parents had been unable to find her, hence the ringing of the church-bells to summons others to assist in the search.

The Reeds lived on the outskirts of the village. The little three year old girl was their only child, and the parents' terrible anxiety over her loss may be imagined.

At mid-afternoon the little girl had been playing in the yard before the house. Mrs Reed who was busy with some dress-making, had glanced from the window from time to time seeing that the child was all right.

At length she missed the little one, and went to the door to call her; but she was nowhere in sight, nor did she answere to her mother's repeated calls. It was after five o'clock when Mrs. Reed began her unavailing search of the premises. She ran to the neighbors on either hand, but they had not seen the child. Mr. Reed came home from his work, and together she father and mother searched till dark, in vain.

Search parties were organized, and till mid night lanterns and torches flashed in the fields and woods in the vicinity, and cries of "Mary!" "Little Mary, where are you!" resounded from time to time.

When at mid-night no trace of the lost child was discovered, the search was given over by all save the distracted parents, who continued their hunt thro' the weary hours of the night.

The next forenoon the search parties were again out, the river was dragged, but little Mary was not found. It was then quite generally conceded that the child must have been kidnaped, and with sorrowing hearts the poor parents were forced to acquiesce in this view.

That afternoon a Mr. Harwood from a neighboring town drove to one of the village stores. He was accompanied by a handsome pointer dog. He heard the story of the lost child. He was naturally interested in the sad tale, and made many inquiries.

Suddenly he exclaimed, "If that little girl is in these parts I'll bet Mace can track her.

Come on! show me where she lived, and I'll try him."

Mr. Harwood, accompanied by several of the villagers, Mace (the pointer) at their heels, was soon at the Reed home. Their errand was quickly explained: and hope revived a little in the parents' breasts.

The mother gave Mr. Harwood a dress of the little girl. He showed it to the dog, which snuffed at it curiously.

"Now, seek her, Mace!" was the master's command.

The intelligent animal looked up at his master questioningly.

The command was repeated. Then the dog started off, nose to the ground, smelling eagerly.

He trotted about the yard out into the road, zigzagged to the right and to the left, a little uncertainly, then went through some bars into a field back of the house.

"He's wrong!" exclaimed one of the men who watched him; "we've searched every rod of that field."

"No he ain't!" cried his master with assurance. "He knows what he's about."

The dog kept on running in a nearly straight line across the field, through another pair of bars into a large pasture known as the "Swamp," from its containing so much wet, marshy land. The search-parties had been along the edge of this swamp and had called the child several times; but Mace did not go along the edge, nose to the ground. He pushed right into the marsh.

Ten minutes later an eager baying arose from the pointer.

"He's found her!" exclaimed Mr. Harwood, "or he's found something belonging to her, you may be sure."

With wild excitement several rushed into the swamp to the place where the dog stood excitedly barking.

And there was little Mary Reed, found at last! Poor child! she was in the mud and water up to her arm-pits, and was so weak and exhausted that she could only sob and moan faintly.

Mace had saved her life. But for him they never would have found her. There was great rejoicing over the little girl, and Mace noble fellow! was praised and petted as he never had been before in his life.

It was a mystery to the people how the little girl had wandered so far into the swamp, but it was supposed, from her own story that she was chasing a butterfly, and got into the soft, wet ground before she knew it, and then in trying to get out she got farther and farther in, and finally sunk into the soft soil, as she was found. —Sel.

SNOWDRIFTS.

Listen to the plaintive stories
Sung by moorland winds today!
Dirges sung o'er vanished glories,
Love and hope have flown away.
Where are summer's airy minstrels,
Where our warblers' debonair?
Can they sing one strain prophetic,
Can they consolation bear?
Guild of faith! what promise golden
Nestles 'neath your drooping wing?
We would hear its balm enfolden
In our hearts on it the spring.
Saith it, "Not sparrow falleth
On the dreary, dreary snows,
But its story to heaven calleth
And our Heavenly father knows."
I am caught in crystal showers,
Feathery flakes and fairy blooms,
Winter flings her scentless flowers
O'er her dark, unlovely tombs!
Airy whispers float around me,
"Trust his love and perfect rule,
Though his keenest arrow smite thee,
Lo! he giveth snow like wool.
Royal touch and flashing token
Kingly presence here reveal
Faith in Him may be unbroken,
Love may smile in woe's ordeal.
By the splendor of his pathway—
Diamond flash in trigray—
Sure I am that he is near me,
That a King hath passed this way!—Sel.

The Early Dawn.

"The Morning Light Is Breaking, The Darkness Disappearing."

VOL. VI. BONTHE, SHERBRO, WEST AFRICA, DECEMBER 16, 1889. No 23.

The Early Dawn.

Published Semi-Monthly, At BONTHE, SHERBRO.

Under the Auspices of the Board of Missions of the U. B. IN CHRIST.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION

One Year by mail, 5s 0d
Delivered in Bonthe, 0 4 0
Half yearly by mail, 0 3 0
Ditto, delv'd in Bonth, 0 2 6

Address.—Communications to J. A. Evans, Editor & Publisher, Bonthe Sherbro, West Africa.—

Subscriptions to be sent to Rev. D. F Williamson Shaingay, Mr. R. A Lewis, Freetown, West Africa, Rev. Wm McKee Dayton, Ohio, U.S.A. or to the Editor.—

DIRECTORY.

Commandant, C. H. Harley Moseley
Treasurer, The Commandant.
Chief Clerk, M. J. W. Rocke
Commissioner, J. D. Hargreaves
Bailiff, F. E. B. Buckner

Sub Treasurer & Collector of Customs, J. D. Macauley.
Chief Clerk, J. D. Macauley.
Tide Waiters, J. W. Cockell, J. B. Turner, A. J. Williamson.
Acting Commissioner of Lands and Jasper Caulker
Assistant Col. Secretary, M. L. Barrett, M. P. C.
Postmaster, Sierra Leone, Stamp Master, H. R. W. Harris.
Inspector of Police, M. C. Jones.
Gaoler, J. A. Thomas.
Overseer of Roads, A. O. Walker.

Religious Directory.

St. Matthew's Church, Victoria Road Pastor, Vacant.

Wesleyan Methodist, Lumley Street Pastor, Rev. J. C. Thomas

Headi Mission, (Congregational.) Good Hope
Pastor, Rev B. C. Taylor.

Dear Bro. Evans,

Your ever welcome letter of Sept. 12th came duly to hand, that for so good and full an account of the work on Shaingay District. May Heaven's choicest blessings rest on our Mission work in Africa, our fraternal Editor of the "Early Dawn", his wife and children.

I am on my way back to Dayton from a trip to Cedar Rapids, Iowa. My wife is with me. I have two brethren living there; I have not been there many hours before I was called on by a Rev. J. K. Statten, he is a live, United Brethren Preacher, he elected me to talk to his people on Friday, whilst here, I took a run over to the Des Moines Conference at Decorah, gave the people there a little talk on Africa. Our African work has many fine friends there, they gave me one of the best collections, I have had in this country and promised to send clothes for our children, which they will surely do, as the ladies are at the head of it. Brother Statten introduced me to the Official members of the Y. M. C. A., so that after I had talked for his people in the morning I spoke in the Y. M. C. A. hall to a great crowd in the afternoon, and again at night I showed pictures in the U. B. Church, and as these dark eyes are a passion to poor people, and the Gospel saith that you reflect as in your self in day in Christ. So. When leaving Cedar Rapids We gave us a basket of provision to last into Dayton. I partook in the office of the hotel where we slept in Cascade, the next morning it could not be found. Fortunately I had two sisters living here, and I had a hope that they would fit us out again, they both live on farms, and have turkeys, ducks, geese and chickens and have told them of our trouble and hoped plenty speedily.

On the 4th inst, Mrs Gomer and I hope to sail from New York for Dayton and about the 2nd we hope to sail from New York for Shaingay. We hope we shall have your prayers; my prayers have do to all the dear people.

Yours,
Battle Creek, Mich. J. GOMER.
Nov. 2nd. '89.

PHILANTHROPIC ELECTRICITY.

Petty feud and national thirst for the aggrandizing of wealth by despotic power, have been for centuries the bane of the whole continent of Africa. This trait, so cursed and deplorable, has given cause to the advancement and intrusion of many a nation—mightier and powerful, some indulging in the coastal traffic of the human slave-trade, others, like vampires, wrenching out blood out of their victims, wielding the sword of brutality and vengeance—having Mumbo Jumbo in their bosom to immortalize an infernal thirst, and a third more humane and pitiful to benefit a degraded race have used the most energetic measures, in fostering peace and tranquility, in order that a country so blessed by nature and essentially under the control of a Mighty cause, should 'Arise' of that miasmatic wretchedness to envelope its inhabitants, embraced a standard of royalty to the furtherance of a prospective cause yet in embryo, and at best, binding forth in balsamic glow of hope and success. These distorted permutations mingled with lustrous effusions, are flowing and ebbing like streams of water from a fluctuating fountain. Pretty fair and truly as a retrospect of the past, have emerged as into a labyrinth fulsome and pleasant, when a Fowell Buxton, a Wilberforce, and a Granville Sharpe stood like triumphal cords in philanthropic zeal to defend the cause of Africa and the Africans. In the triumvirial conclave as it were, a field vast with ponderous arguments awoke the din and quietude of christian England, to rescind the incarnate plans of Don Pedro and his Sandich comrades—plans baneful, direful, and vengeful. Think you they would create no effect, in aerial flashings like an electric shock of rapid velocity floating over the mighty main of old, dreary Ocean—John Bull startled out with regard to Iniquitous barques, dusky and strong, bearing with them the flag of the Almighty Victoria, to emancipate the degraded continent fraught with human blood and tinged with blasphemy and ignorance. In voluminous rolls copious after echoes flashed over the mighty and vast Atlantic, and vessels majestic and strong pursued, Spain and Portugal burning with chastisement and saddened with the blood of the slain. They in defiance confronted the grand Ethic of humanity set up by John Bull looking out the boisterous and poignant assertions—We will enslave no whole of Africa." These loud-lisped taunts were intercepted and exchanged by the intervention of the hand of an Almighty fiat, insomuch as the numerous and infricate coils domed with deep chasms of human trade, began—barracoons they name them, were distrolled and crushed to atoms.

The morning once glowing with blithesome and gold-tinged smoke, now began to beam gloriously and luminous and settlers, emigrants from this New-nation shores lead the shores of Sierra Leone domed with lush forests and resplendent luscious fruits and flowers fringed with that balsamic exudation. To foment this coalition of philanthropic sorts, issued into a castle session and of acute precision, pursued and unbroken the task. Governors and other officials, to view the boundaries of the her flourished lands for the just improvement of the new comers. Blood, and flow, and with an thousands land houses were built and villages domed upon. The tiny and gallant emancipators soon grew and increased, nations of varied ramifications fine united, and then a glimmer of a light more intense and powerful ushered in this juvenescent cause heard of on every foot of every finite possessors—Germans and English bathing with cruelne blood for the civilization of the west coast, until the strain. The parents and the dismal, was now replaced with a golden hue and a repentance strain of angelic tones, sound to heaven echoed a harmony of joy for the emancipated—hailing, Blessed Peace.

Let my gleanous morning dawn. These primeval ideas equating with the governments, mutually, inimitable most dangerous by adopting the same just and lawful measures for the acquisition of knowledge as well as to the training up and of mechanical arts and economy consistent with a civilized life. Reciprocal equality to we see them paid with the sincerity flowing oil across the light inundating from a cause emanating the source of generation. This gigantic cause of emancipation then extended and agitated by gallant gentlemen, was crowned by consummate the most plastic and durable, has astounded and is electrifying the minds of three dominions-courts of human kind—Spanish and Portugese troubling this sublunary earth.

Briefly, it would be tedious or irksome to dilate on so portentous a subject wholly confined to a single sphere, a retrospect glancing before to Sierra, a country to the south of Sierra Leone, and throw us into a forcible glow of this philanthropic electricity. Still disseminating its radiance into the very recesses of neath-dark and mirk-ridden unfusing lustre and golden rays to the civilized world. Sustained and supported by the din of war, impressive ignorance, the whole country was deluged by incessant internecine wars, on one hand by the unpreventable fury of the Quakers and Tuckers swayed by the thirst of blood and the increase of wealth, and on the other by Spaniards and Portugeese without very strange and deportment is a panel-mania of incarnate sickening, swam and overran the Island. Steps both aggressive were soon undertaken. With such superiority of thought as I adjust, the

Continued on the last page.

A QUEEN'S THOUGHTS.

Have you ever wished you could know what kings and queens thought about? It hardly seems possible that the cap have a quiet, private view of their own, apart from the high official duties and constant appearance before the public. Not long ago Queen Victoria allowed portions of her diary to be published, and these extracts show her to be very much like other good, gentle, motherly women. Here is her account of a Sunday in the Highlands, in 1868:

"SUNDAY, October 15, 1868.—At twelve we went to the kirk, where dear Dr. McLeod performed the service more beautifully than I ever have heard it. The sermon was touchingly simple, most striking and earnest, and touched and struck all to the heart. The text was from Genesis 28: 16, 'And the Lord God said, Surely the womin, what is this place? how dreadful is this!' and then he showed how we all had a sacred life which no one knew but God, and showed the frightful danger of living a life of deception, till you deceived yourself, and no longer knew right from wrong. I wish I could repeat all he said; but it was admirable. Then in his beautiful prayers he brought in a most touching allusion to Lord Palmerston, and prayed for him."—Sel.

TO LET

The Wellknown Shaingay Mission stores, Wharf, &c., situate at Shaingay, or Tasoh Point, better known as Shaingay Mission, about 60 mile, Southeast of Freetown and 50 miles Northwest of Bonthe Sherbro. This is a well located property and commands a good Trade, and being on one of the most healthy Promontories of the West Coast of Africa offers special attraction for European residence.

The particulars, Apply to

J. A. Evans

Bonthe, Sherbro,

2nd Aug. '89. W. C. Africa.

PUBLIC NOTICE.

S. M. MISSION STORE.

We now offer for sale the

Best BRANDS of FLOUR

In Bbls. & Half Bbls.

ALSO

SUGAR, KEROSINE, FLORIDA WATER,

in Bbls. & Cases,

Provisions

Of the freshest kind and in good variety.

Best Tea, Coffee, Lard, Butter, Milk, Cocoa & Milk, Vinegar, Sauces, Mustard, Pickles, Tomatoes, Peaches, Tapioca, Sago, Pearl Barley, Potted Meats, Pickards, Baking Powder, Chocolate and Milk, Split Peas, Pears, Soaps, assorted.

MEDICINES

(Patent and Proietary)

A SPECIALITY

Tune Pieces, Watches, Sewing Machines, Watch Guards Sewing Machine Needles.

N.B. We Pay CASH for Palm Kernels.

J. A. Evans.

'Early Dawn'

PRINTING OFFICE,

Job Work Done at short Notice.

Enquire of C. N. Cowan — Printer.

MACE FOUND HER.

BY CHARLOTTE P. HAMMOND.

Among the annals of Middlesex County, Massachusetts, we find the following interesting incident:

Some years ago, when the town of R—— was not so large as at present, the people were startled one evening by an unwonted ringing of church-bells. Wondering what it meant, men and women came out from their houses and hurried towards the church. The exciting news soon spread through the village, "Tom Reed's little girl is lost!" She had strayed away in the afternoon, no one knew where. Her parents had been unable to find her, hence the ringing of the church-bells to summons others to assist in the search.

The Reeds lived on the outskirts of the village. The little three-year old girl was their only child, and the parents' terrible anxiety over her loss may be imagined.

At mid-afternoon the little girl had been playing in the yard before the house. Mrs. Reed who was busy with some dress-making, had glanced from the window from time to time seeing that the child was all right.

At length she missed the little one, and went to the door to call her; but she was nowhere in sight, nor did she answere to her mother's repeated calls. It was after five o'clock when Mrs. Reed began her unavailing search of the premises. She ran to the neighbours on either hand, but they had not seen the child. Mr. Reed came home from his work, and together the father and mother searched till dusk, in vain.

Search parties were organized, and till mid night lanterns and torches flashed in the fields and woods in the vicinity, and cries of "Mary!", "Little Mary, where are you!" resounded from time to time.

When at mid-night no trace of the lost child was discovered, the search was given over by all save the distracted parents, who continued their hunt thro' the weary hours of the night.

The next forenoon the search parties were again out, the river was dragged, but little Mary was not found. It was then quite generally conceded that the child must have been kidnaped, and with sorrowing hearts the poor parents were forced to acquiesce in this view.

That afternoon a Mr. Harwood from a neighboring town drove to one of the village stores. He was accompanied by a handsome pointer dog. He heard the story of the lost child. He was naturally interested in the sad tale, and made many inquiries.

Suddenly he exclaimed, "If that little girl is in these parts I'll bet Mace can track her.

Come and show me where she lived, and I'll try him."

Mr. Harwood soon, aided by several of the villagers, Mace (the pointer) at their heels, was soon at the Reed house. Their errand was quickly explained and hope revived a little in the parents' breasts.

The mother gave Mr. Harwood a dress of the little girl. He showed it to the dog, which smelled at it curiously.

"Now, seek her, Mace!" was the master's command.

The intelligent animal looked up at his master questioningly.

The command was repeated. Then the dog started off, nose to the ground, smelling eagerly.

He trotted about to the yard out into the road, zigzagged to the right and to the left, a little uncertainly, then went through some bars into a field back of the house.

"He's wrong!" exclaimed one of the men who watched him; "we've searched every rod of that field."

"No he ain't!" cried his master with assurance. "He knows what he's about."

The dog kept on running in a nearly straight line across the field, through another pair of bars into a large pasture known as the "Swamp" from its containing so much wet, marshy land. The search-parties had been along the edge of this swamp and had called the child several times; but Mace did not go along the edge, nose to the ground. He pushed right into the marsh.

Ten minutes later an eager baying arose from the pointer.

"He's found her!" exclaimed Mr. Harwood, for he's found something belonging to her, you may be sure."

With wild excitement several rushed into the swamp to the place where the dog stood excitedly barking.

And there was little Mary Reed, found at last! Poor child! she was in the mud and water up to her arm-pits, and was so weak and exhausted that she could only sob and moan faintly.

Mace had saved her life. But for him they never would have found her. There was great rejoicing over the little girl, and Mace noble fellow! was caressed and petted as he never had been before in his life.

It was a mystery to the people how the little girl had wandered so far into the swamp, but it was supposed from her exhaustion that she was chasing a butterfly, and got into the soft, wet ground before she knew it, and then in trying to get out she got farther and farther in, accidentally sunk into the soft soil, as she was found.

—Sel.

SNOWDRIFTS.

Listen to the plaintive stories
Sung by moonland winds today!
Dirges ring o'er vanished glories,
Love and hope have flown away.
Where are summer's airy movements,
Where our warblers debonair!
Can they sing one strain prophetic,
Can they voice a lovely hope,
Light of faith! what promise golden
Nestles 'neath your drooping wings?
We would hear its balm enfolden
In our hearts us in the spring.
Sabbath, "Not a sparrow falleth
On the dreary, dreary snows,
But its cry to heaven calleth
And our Heavenly father knows."
I am caught in crystal showers,
Feathery flakes and fairy blooms,
Winter flings her seedless flowers
O'er her dark, unlovely tombs!
Airy whispers float around me,
"Trust his love and perfect rule,
Though his keenest arrow smite thee,
Lo! he giveth snow like wool.
Regal touch and flashing token
Kingly presence here revere!
Faith in Him may be unbroken,
Love may smile in woe's own weed.
By the silver lyre of pines
Diamond flash in crystal ray—
Sure I am that he is near me,
That a King hath passed this way!

—Sel.

The Early Dawn.

"The Morning Light Is Breaking, The Darkness Disappears."

VOL. VI. BONTHE, SHERBRO, WEST AFRICA, DECEMBER 16, 1889. No 23.

The "Early Dawn."

Published Semi-Monthly, At BONTHE, SHERBRO,

under the Auspices of the Board of Missions of the

U. B. IN CHRIST.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION

One Year by mail,	50	0	0
Delivered in Bonthe,	0	5	0
Half yearly by mail,	0	3	0
Do. do. delivered in Bonthe,	0	2	6

Address.—Communications to be addressed J. A. Evans, Editor & Publisher, Bonthe Sherbro, West Africa.—

Subscriptions to be sent to Rev. D. F. Winebrenner, Secretary, Mr. R. A. Lewis, Publishing Agent, Dayton, Rev. Wm. McKee Dunn, Corresponding Secretary, U.S.A. or to the Editor.—

DIRECTORY.

Consulate. C. H. Harley Moodie

Factory. The Commandant.

Custom House. M. J. W. Rocke

Treasury. J. D. Brown

Bank. F. B. H. Parkinson

Messrs. A. & C. Co.

Store Clerk. J. D. Macauley.

The Wharves. J. P. Thomas, C. H. Turner, A. A. Macauley.

Assistant Engineer. Jasper Caulker.

Assistant Commissioner. M. L. Jarrett, M. A.

Assistant Treasurer. Mr. Kay.

Assistant Collector. H. F. A. Davies.

Assistant Collector at Bonthe. J. P. Thomas.

Assistant Collector at Shaingay. A. D. Yorke.

Religious Directory.

St. Mary's Church, Victoria Road Parish. Vacant.

Wesleyan Methodist, Lower Street Parish. Rev. J. C. Thomas.

Bandi Mission, (Congregational) Good Hope

Pastor. Rev. R. C. Taylor

Dear Bro. Evans,

Your very welcome letter of Sept. 11th came duly to hand. Sad to read and tell on account of the week on Sunday. Bonnett. May He work a mighty blessings rest on you and those in Africa, not forgetting those of the "Early Dawn", the weekly.

I am very busy in Dayton and a part of Trotwood. Last Sept. 11th I

The Early Dawn.

BONTHE, SHERBRO.

DECEMBER 16 1889.

THE MISSION FIELD

Arrangements were made by the Presiding Elders of the Shaingay and Mendi Districts of the U. B. C. Missions to hold four Quaterlies on the same Sabbath, at the following stations, Good Hope [Bonthe] Danville, Otterbein, and Mamboe. These arrangements were, we believe duly carried out on the 8th inst with good effect. It was however only the privilege of the writer to attend and hold the services, in Otterbein station (Bompehtooke) where the attendance was large and the interest very good indeed on sabbath evening and also on Monday morning. The reports of Otterbein and that Koolonge stations showed the Workers had been doing their work earnest & with success. On Monday evening at a very late hour the writer held the Manoh Quarterly and administered the Communion to a few persons. The conference business was also attended with considerable interest. Reports were good; Bro Taylor is doing good work, but has some difficulties to meet, and he is trying to meet them, and the work is prospering.

Koolonge holds its Quarterly jointly but we spent two days at the Station to attend to some writing, Report making &c, which we had previously intended to do at Manoh.

Koolonge Station is looking indeed very nicely, but of course the Mission House like most of our Houses needs thorough repairs, other buildings need some attention. Mr. and Mrs R. G. Caulker with Mr and Mrs Humphrey are in charge of the Work and seem to be doing well, they treated us most hospitably indeed during our visit and we wish them every happiness in life Tongkolloh was our next appointment; it is perhaps, about thirty miles from Koolonge, by water, the way we traveled. We reached Tongkolloh about 1½ a. m. and after some rest and sleep we attended the Morning Prayers, and later on, held service, received the Teachers Report, and after a little further conversation, we left about 10 a. m. on the 11th inst. We called a few minutes on Mr S. B A. Mactor's agent at Tombay who treated us very nicely. Leaving Tombay we found our way, after some difficulty to Charmany Mission Station, here we arrived about ½ p. m. on the 11th inst. We had a walk through the Town, and about the Mission Premises, confered with Teacher in charge on his work, which he reports favorably, he has not been well during the year, has on that account, not been able to do all that he, otherwise, could have done. We held night service in the Open air, when the writer preached to a good gathering, that seemed very much and deeply interested. Later on the same evening, we held a sacramental service in the Mission House where 8 persons partook of the Emblems of our Lord's death. From N Charmany we returned to this place where we arrived about 9. p. m. on the 12th inst, and left for Shaingay on the 13th inst.

MEMORANDUM ON CHRISTIANITY

Wanted

This question is one of great importance in Africa; almost anywhere one may chance to wander, and not to be lightly passed without notice; and more especially, Christian Missionaries, should consider the question, as the followers of the prophet, are everywhere present in Pagan and Christian communities and are more or less active, and among pagans they are leaders, in thought and not unfrequently rulers of the people. They too posses a religion easier subscribed to by the pagan, because less removed from the natural tastes and feelings of men; seeks on a reform and not a radical transformation of the lives of men, its devotion is to form rather, than diety; its work is superficial and not deep, outward and not inward. Its asperations are pride rather than humility of spirit; its means of propagation rather coersive than pursuasive; its end earthly rather than heavenly. But above all it does not satisfy the longing of the human soul like the religion of Jesus the Christ. Especially in the last hour when earths scenes fade from the dimming vision. Somehow it has not recounted so many of those lovely death bed experiences as the Christian religion. So we ask the question, of every one, of these two religions which would you choose? remindingat the same time every one that a religion that will not help them in the hour of death is not worth living.

SCHOOL TEACHING IN SHERBRO.

The above, like all other important engagements in life, presents two side; the bad and the bright side. The educational question, so far as Bonthe is concerned, is fraught with difficulties. Irregularity. This is a gigantic evil, with which managers and teachers have had to contend, and would have been more easily remedied, were it not that it comes from four different directions.

(1) Parents, and these are divided into two classes, Intelligent and ignorant. (2) Guardians. "godly & ungodly" Two of the four can be easily dealt with by teachers and managers. But they have been hitherto unsuccessful in devising schemes to obtain the co-operation of the other two, which is very desirable. It does not require strenuous efforts on the part of the teacher to enlist the sympathy of Intelligent parents, with respect to their children's education, seeing, that it, under God, is calculated to be of great benefit to their children in after years. It is equally easy to enlist the sympathy of godly guardians. But the two other classes " They baffle all skill.

A roving disposition, is another serious hindrance. You cannot rely on the one half of the childrn, who like birds of passage' only stay for a season. You may secure their attendance for a short time, but when you expect to see the fruit of your labor, they are gone to some of the rivers, where ninety-nine percent turn out wreckless characters, who help to swell the wretched hords of depredators. Another serious drawback is, that a portion of a school may be of native children who enter the school at the age of 12 or 13 years, amidst many difficulties. He has to provide for his own support and must of necessity be employed at a very large and popular factory in this place, for a few yards of cloth and many times he receives a bottle of gin of the lowest kind as wages for work faithfully done by him' and so the child form an early habit of drinking, which neither, the example nor the precept of the teacher, nor both put together can break; and as a rule he makes very poor progress in his studies.

Tardiness, is another discouraging feature which upsets all plain, however well laid by the teachers for the advancement and well begin of the scholars; and this is traceable, with very rare exceptions, to the same source with irregularity.

Home influence is another together with many others which not only beset the path of teachers to a successful working of their schools, but seem to tie their hands behind their backs' so that they can only look, lament, and go on planning to no purpose.

But there is the bright side The thought of the responsible position which he holds rouses the teacher from despondency, and bids him look forward with hope. His is indeed a very great responsibility. Responsible to God & man In fact, men of all classes. The parents and relatives of the children look up to him. The state looks to him. Society look to him. The church looks to him. He is indeed a representative man. Then teachers cannot be too faithful in the discharge of their duties, facing their individual difficulties bravely and undauntedly, though the salary with but one or two exceptions is simply deplorable, yet the time is not distant when parents, society, the state, the Church, and manager of schools' well send forth a unanimous and effectual cry, which will be wafted on the wings of the wind, from one part of the West Coast of Africa to the other part, and will finally be adopted by the community of Sherbro at large "Pay the masters better salary"

Dec 16th 1889. Lelken.

Pernicious Exposition Of Scripture

An old preacher was once explaining the parable of "The rich man and Lazarus." After telling them of the purple robe and fine linen and sumptuous diet of the rich man; he then told of Lazarus at his gate full of sores and desiring to be fed with the crumbs which fell from the rich man's table, then came the latter clause of the 21st verse. "Moreover the dog came and licked his sores." The preacher said, moreover was an ancient dog about 10 feet high and very fierce looking, but at this time was so mild as to lick the sores of Lazarus.

The following Sabbath he surprised his audience still more, by telling them that our Lord whilst on Earth drank wine so much that he made himself his [silk hat] of it. Hence He was called wine bibber. His audience became drunkards.

Ken.

NEWS ITEMS.

1st Dec. The Church at York Island was kept closed throughout the whole of this Sabbth day by the agent in charge of that station on account of some disturbances between the agent and the members.

3rd.—Thieves break through house of one Mrs Catherine Illiams of Nathan Street.

5— Fomoso from Freetown with mails and passengers; among the passengers were the Venerable Archdeacon J. Robin.

"S S" Olympia from the Leeward Coast.

6th. Mr. W. D. Pasha Catechist of st. Mathew Church returned from the Rivers.

7th— The Archdeacon with Rev. J. T. Argill, W. D. Pasha Cat. and C. S. Brown junr. left for York Island and reconciled matters between the Catechist of that place and his members. The Catechist occupied the new pulpit on Sunday morning the 8th, and the Rev. J. T. Argill occupied in it the afternoon of the same day.

8th "S S" Fomoso for Freetown with mails and passengers, Mrs Catherine Williams etc, etc.

10th—"S S" Olympia for Hamburg via Freetown with mails.

Wesleyan Sunday School.— The Anniversary of the above Institution will be celebrated as follows. On Sunday December 22nd 1889. Two Sermons will be preached in the Weslayan Chapel that in the morning at 11 a m by the Rev. J. C. Thomas, and in the evening at 7 p m by the Rev. R. Cookson Taylor of the (U. B. C.)

In the afternoon of the same day an address will be delivered to Parents Teachers and Scholars, by Mr. M. J. Rocks.

On monday evening the 23rd inst a public meeting will be held at 7 p m when addresses will be delivered by several gentlemen, chair to be taken by C. H. Harley Moseley Esq Civil Commandant.

A Collection will be made at the close of each Service in aid of the School fund.

Tuesday the 24th inst; there will be a pic-nic gathering to be composed of Ladies and Gentlemen in connection of the Anniversary of the Wesleyan Sabbath School.

The Educational Meeting— of the U. B. Board of Education which was to have been held about the 15th ult. will be held at Rotafunk the 17th inst.

The Annual Meeting—of the U. B. C., already announced for the 12th inst, will be held at Shaingay about the 23rd of January, 1890, at which time the Rev J. Gomer, Genl Superintendent, and wife, are believed, will be here.

Continued from the first page.

Time rolled on and on and a new epoch dashed in with an unswerving velocity to synchronize with the early dawn of civilization in Sierra Leone. He who had super induced by his Almighty fiat all things and brought to being a creature like to Himself, again touched the cords of philanthropic electricity, the hearts of the sons of the New World. Gradually and successively, cogent and energetic plans were mooted. The year 1839 down to 1842 pinnacled like a gigantic tower, and pyramid like gleamed marvellously and serenely with zealous workers from America. With undaunted courage they proceeded in disseminating the seed of life among the aborigines, and progressively stretching themselves onward, on the confines of both the Small and Boon Fails where they met with the warmest reception. Lawanah and Mo-Tappan on the Big Boom and Kay-Mendi on the Small Boom, were stations occupied then. These giant herculean minds with one tentative effort from their friends, resolutely cohere in moving away the tawdry and burnt mass of ignorance once pervading its inhabitants for centuries untold. God be thanked that the heaven of philanthropic electricity that had been moving on so imperceptibly for series of years, is now glowing with an effulgent lustre. The horizon is quivering with a glorious light. The unprecedented course undertaken of late years by the Imperial Government, is doing a great work. The dingy hovels once inhabited by the natives, are being converted to sumptuous dwellings. A debris of once famous town of whose dismantled tops recently or rather a few years ago could be pointed out, are now superseded by stately humble dwellings coincident with a rustic village life. Mullany on the Boom and Bandajumah on the Kittam, towns on the confines of both rivers have had each a citadel for the adjustment of matters for the natives. Sergeants and under officials are stationed in each of them for tranquil purposes. We Ken, in a Kaleidoscopic aspect, the future of this philanthropic, electricity, and in silent tone, the answer comes back to us that the grand elixir has penetrated into the far South East and North East of Sherbro with genial fumes converting the garden of them into that of roses. Inadvertently, our theme closes with two contrarieties—both in antagonistic dispositions —Anthropologists on the one and philanthropists on the other. These negotiating their fellows and call them unproved apes bereft of tails they, again lapsing into the Biffo-Darwinian theory, have suggested themselves to vagarial solutions in quest of the ideal formation of the Negro who stands in symmetrical beauty with the Caucasian or the Mongol. These "apes divine" have merged into a labyrinth, astounded by human thought being superseded by philanthropic congestions, decimating that pandemonic gallery formed by a coalition of matter-minds in literary lore. These adopting the benign name of philanthropists have on the other, gained the inglorious laudation as the saviors of mankind. The philanthropic trait enhanced, has enabled, the savage tribe, the rude barbarian just coming from barbarism, the degraded negro whose swarthy and dark contour have made him the ridicule of a thousand to stand a wonder to the civilized world. The one society aims at vague and effete idea leading down-ward to atheism because it annerates the creative cause—and the other the prospective upward cause leading heaven-ward because God is love. This leads to misery, that to life and peace. This to destruction and woe, that to eternal godliness. Philanthropy alone and alone influences the sympathetic cause for our fellow men. This course is it that has induced the Imperial Government to stretch humanity still forth or indeed in order to protect the ceaseless gunboats and bickerings in terrent in the Mendi and Bullom countries as also to serve the belligerents from ravaging, pillaging, and plundering excitement with their tribes. We close with an appeal and prayer that unbounded success may attend the Government scheme so that thereby-ward "Voulome will no more be heard in fair lands wasting our detraction within our boarders for that shall call thy walls salvation and thy gates praise."

Thanking you for space accorded I.

I am Mr. Editor,
Yours truly,
Credenda sæ faciendo.

A Strange way of making money.

There lived in the city of F— two last friends of the same nationality, and moral and social standing; but unfortunately one was blind.

The blind man took ill one day and was confined to his bed. His friend called at breakfast time to see him, and finding him looking ill, he expressed great sympathy, and laying aside his hat and cane went to the kitchen, kindled the fire, get some water warmed and taking it to the Bath room came to his friend and kindly invited him to take a warm bath which he said might do him some good The poor blind thanked him and acted according to his advice. After bathing he told him to put on a clean white morning gown, lie down quietly and take a nap.

To finish his act of kindness, he put a clean-linen band round his jaw and asked him to be supinely with his hands folded across his breast. All these the poor blind man followed to the letter. He then took his hat and cane and told his friend that he will be back in a short time, went to the house of a rich man of the same nationality, and feigning to be truly sorrowful, said "good morning Mr. B.— I come to inform you of the death of my dear friend Mr. G.— as you know I am not in position to see him decently buried I come to ask your kind assistance Oh! I sympathize with you Mr R—take this seven' saillings and six pence to assist you in burying your friend I'll see what I can do later on.

"Thank you." He then went to a second gentleman from whom he received five shillings.

He next went to Mr. F. who gave him seven shillings and six pence and promised to give orders for the coffin.

Whilst he was gone to a fourth, Mr F. thought he should drop in to see the old man decently dressed and laid out, whilst the the coffin is being made. But strange to say when he came to the house he found all was still and quiet. He went into the palour quietly finding no one but the poor man lying on the sofa he stood at a short distance from him and said sorrowfully, "Ah! Poor old man how much do I— He he was startled and instinctively bounded across the room to a safe distance, looking so frightened to hear the dead man say "Who is that Mr F—, are you come? Do you see my friend Mr R. he told me he was coming soon. Mr F. took courage and went nearer and learnt the whole story. What will not some men do to get money.

LELKEN.

A NOBLE BOY

I am going to tell the readers of Kind Words a true story of how a boy kept a pledge made to his dying mother even at the peril of his life.

Frank Spencer's mother died when he was ten years of age. At her bed-side Frank made a pledge to her that he would never touch a drop of intoxicating liquor. Some years ago he was working on a cattle ranch in Texas. The men and boys he was compelled to work with were very rough, ungodly people. One day Frank and three other boys about his age were riding thro' a small town, and passing a whisky-saloon the three boys reined up their horses and said, "Let's take a drink."

Frank sat perfectly still, almost holding his breath. He knew if he firmly refused to drink with his companions they would ever afterward scorn him & have their fun expense. But to remembered his pledge to his mother, so in a clear, steady voice he said," I can't, boys. I promised mother when she died I never would."

His companions greeted his noble refusal with shouts of rude laughter.

"I say," said the oldest, "let's try our pistols here on spooney if he won't come 'round."

Frank sprung from his pony, threw off his coat, and with a very pale face but ringing voice said, "Shoot me if you like, but I'll keep my pledge to mother."

Missionary Visitor—

THE SILVER AND GOLD.

With the organization of [illegible] for the purpose of giving the gospel to heathen women a new life into the Church. One sister, a few days ago, said, "What would we talk about if we had not our work as the theme of conversation? how poor we should be." With this new thought and prayer has come a deeper consecration. Our young people are preparing themselves by training for missionaries. Many hearts have been touched into new activity by the departure of our four young ladies to foreign fields, and they are saying, We will help support them. Others are waiting to be sent. There is another step forward we must take to keep abreast of our opportunities. There must be a property, silver, and gold consecration. A lady in Minneapolis pledged to the Presbyterian board $500 a year for ten years, with money for medicines, to send out a medical missionary. Our church now furnishes the missionary. Years ago, when our work was young, there came a letter from Minnesota from a bright young girl, offering herself for our work We did not have the money, and could not send her The Methodist church was looking for workers and Miss Abbams was sent to Bombay, India, where she is doing a good work. Now I am persuaded that there are women in our ranks that could have this grand privilege of supporting a missionary alone, if they but considered the question what more blessed than to have a representative on the side of the globe at work for Christ while you are asleep! For what nobler purpose could the steward use his Lord's money? "The silver is mine, and the gold is mine, saith the Lord of hosts." How much greater the satisfaction to thus use it than to make disposition of it when our selfish wants are gratified, and we can no longer keep it! Does some one say, We worked too hard for our money to spend it so lavishly! The scripture idea is, "Let him labor, working with his hands the thing which is good, that he may have to give to him that needeth?" It should be our aim in all our accumulation of property "to give to him that needeth." Who so needy as the one without a knowledge of Christ, with no hope of heaven. We began on the new year to urge larger contributions of money. One brother without solicitation, offered $100 for the support of our young ladies. A lady from the far West sent a contribution of $35 for China, showing an increase of interest in giving.

In the theological seminary and our colleges there are possibly a score of young people whom the Lord has called to foreign work. Does he not, by the knowledge of these facts, call to a score of others to contribute the means for there going out I know of individuals who are able to do this. Then there are families who, together, could support one. I believe God would be more honored by the sending of a dozen missionaries to China, and they would do better work in strong communities than in a small group.

When we were in London we learned something of what the "out and out" Christians were doing for Christ. So great was their love for the Lord's work that they sold the family plate, their horses and carriages that they might have to give to the needy ones. Oh that such a spirit may come into all our homes! It seems to be the plain teaching of the Bible that we may so use the materials gifts of God to us, as to promote our spiritual interest, or we may so abuse the use of these as to lose our souls.

Jesus said, on one occasion, "Make to yourselves friends of the mammon of unrighteousness; that, when ye fail, they may receive you into everlasting habitations." In Timothy we read, "Charge them that are rich in this world . . . that they do good that they be rich in good works, ready to distribute, willing to communicate; laying up in store for themselves a good foundation against the time to come, that they may lay hold on eternal life."

K.

CITY OF NEW YORK FAST VOYAGE

The Inman line steamer city of New York' which arrived last evening, broke her own record from Queenstown by an hour, making the run of 2 777 miles in six days, four hour and seventeen minutes. The best day's run was on Monday, September 9, when 493 miles were covered. She passed the steamer Teutonic while steaming out of Queenstown harbor and left her far behind.

The steamer city of Rome left the same port six hour ahead, but the city of New York left her in the rear, too. She carried 737 cabin passengers and 383 people in the steerage and every available room in the vessel was occupied. The storm was not left untill the steamer was within two hundred miles of this port, and even then the heavy sea only was left.

Among the passengers were senator and Mrs. John Sherman Miss Mary Sherman, Congressman and Mrs. W. C. Oates; of Alabama; Miss Louise Burge and Miss Annie Burge, ex-Congressman A. S. Willis, and family and Miss May Delaney, of Louisville; Mrs. J. R. Hawley and Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Griscom, of the Inman line. Sel.

Notice.

THE

Undersigned

A WRITING CLERK & ACCOUNTANT

Begs again to inform the Public of Bonthe and the Rivers that he is prepared to do all

WRITING JOB WORK,

as follows:—

STOCK TAKING,

MAKING UP ACCOUNTS

WRITING LETTERS, &c.

Charges Moderate!

FOR further particulars apply at his Residence, Williams St. abreast the Wesleyan Church, or by letter.

He solicits their patronage.

W. BIDWELL COKER

Bonthe,
August '89.

TO LET

The Well known Shaingay Mission stores, Wharf, &c., Situate at Shaingay, or Fascoh Point, better known as Shaingay Mission, about 60 miles Southeast of Freetown and 59 miles North-west of Bonthe Sherbro. This is a well located property and commands a good Trade, and being on one of the most healthy Promontories of the West Coast of Africa offers special attraction for European residence.

For particulars, Apply to

J. A. EVANS

BONTHE, SHERBRO'

3rd Aug. '89. W. C. Africa.

PUBLIC NOTICE.

S. M. MISSION STORE.

We now offer for sale the

Best BRANDS of FLOUR

In Bbls. Half Bbls.

ALSO

SUGAR, KEROSINE, FLORIDA WATER,

in Bbls. & Cases,

Provisions

Of the freshest kind and in good variety.

Best Tea, Coffee, Lard, Butter, Milk, Cocoa & Milk, Vinegar, Sauces, Mustard, Pickles, Tomatoes, Peaches, Tapioca, Sago, Pearl Barley, Potte Meats, Pilchards, Baking Powder, Chocolate and Milk, Split Peas, Pears, Soups, assorted.

MEDICINES

(Patent and Proietary)

A SPECIALITY

Time Pieces, Watches, Sewing Machines, Watch Guards Sewing Machine Needles.

N.B. We Pay Cash for Palm Kernels.

J. A. Evans

ADVERTISEMENT SCALE

Reduced rates.

(FOR EACH INSERTION)

A whole page	£1 10 0
A whole column	0 15 0
Half a column	0 8 0
One fourth of a column	0 4 0
One eighth of a column	0 2 0
Marriage	0 2 0
Births and deaths	0 1 0
Domestic servants wanted	0 1 0
Servants wanting situations	0 1 0

Each notice should not exceed 4 lines. Every additional line or part of a line 3d extra.

Early Dawn

PRINTING OFFICE.

Job Work Done at short Notice.

Enquire of G. N. Cowan — Printer.

The Early Dawn.

"The Morning Light Is Breaking, The Darkness Disappears."

VOL. VI. BONTHE, SHERBRO, WEST AFRICA, DECEMBER 31, 1889. No 24.

The "Early Dawn."

Published Semi-Monthly, At

BONTHE, SHERBRO.

Under the Auspices of the Board of Missions of the

U. B. IN CHRIST.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION

One Year by mail,	£0 6 0
Delivered in Bonthe,	0 5 0
Half yearly by mail,	0 3 0
Ditto. deliv'd in Bonthe,	0 2 6

ADDRESS.—Communications to J. A. EVANS, Editor & Publisher, Bonthe, Sherbro, West Africa.—

Subscriptions to be sent to Rev. D. F WILBERFORCE Shaingay, Mr. E. A Lewis, Freetown, West Africa. Rev. Wm. McKee Dayton, Ohio, U.S.A. or to the Editor.—

DIRECTORY.

Commander-in-Chief — C. H. Harley Mounsey

Governor — The Comptroller.

Chief Clerk — M. J. W. Smith

Interpreter — T. D. Rogers.

Bailiff — F. S. G. Buckner.

Sub Treas. & Col. Chief Clerk — J. D. Macaulay.

Tide Waiters: J. M. Gomez, J. B. Turner, J. J. Warburton.

Asst. Treas. Oliver Solomon, Jasper Caulker

Assistant Col. Surgeon, R. C. S. — M. L. Jarrett, M

Dispenser — Rowland May

Postmaster, — H. R. Williams.

Inspector of Police. — M. E. Beale.

Gaoler — J. A. Dennis.

Overseer of Roads. — A. O. Walker.

Religious Directory.

St. Matthew's Church, Victoria Road Pastor. — Vacant.

Wesleyan Methodist, Pastor, — Lime Street Rev. J. C. Thomas

Heath Mission, (Congregational.) Good Hope Pastor, — Rev R. C. Taylor

Revds. J. A. Evans, & D. F. Wilberforce.

Dear Brethren,

We beg respectfully to submit to you the report of Rem see Station for the year ending December 31st 1889, and feel to offer up our thanks to God the giver of all success. For in spite of many difficulties and discouragements which the enemy of Souls brought forward to hinder the progress of the Word it has nevertheless advanced though slowly, yet it is to be hoped that the work will surely continue to progress.

The leaders of the believers, and Seekers classes have been enabled to prosecute their duty with zeal and energy.

Number of members in the church stands the same as reported last year.

At the beginning of the year eight persons joined to the Seekers, class; added to the old number, making total of 24. Of these some are fully prepared to be recieved into the church.

The average attendance at divine Service on Sunday mornings is 61, and 94 in the evenings. Communicants numbers 13. And school children 11. Classes are from 3rd Reader downward The children are improving Itineration.— On the latter part of August last, seven new towns were hunted and found out by us, at different times of visits, where the religious word has never been preached before. In these towns we were most kindly welcomed, the head men and people being so desirous of hearing the word of God. They requested us to visit them always. Seekers classes were organized; in two of these towns and others remained until they have a better understanding of it.

Tissanah was repeatedly visited by Mr. William Martin during the year. He reports that there is always a nice gathering there every Lord's day evening, whenever he visited them. And when absent or visiting other places, Mrs. Emily Lake, who was appointed by the late Joseph Gomer, conducts the service to the natives in the Sherbro language to which they listen very attentively.

There are 34 members on roll and the averge attendance during the year is 23.

Other places on the plan of itinerating were visited six or eight times during the year. The reports are very good and encouraging. Some are prepared to give something for the "Thank Offering gift" which will soon reach me.

There has been an increase of seekers during the year 54. Total 177. &c. Failing health and other circumstances have tended greatly to prevent my visiting far distant places, but I am thankful to be able to state that I have endeavored to visit them on our plan.

all these places our people listened with great attention to the message of salvation.

I have had a conversation with George Lackah and some of the leading men of Rembee about the "Porroh Bush" they have decided that it will be cut down next year (February 1890,) and that a Barn will be erected on the very spot for the cause of our Savior I hope the time is not far distant when other places will imitate the example of these brethren.

It has escaped me to mention about the week day morning prayers kept at Rembee by Mrs. Dixon The meeting is still good and inviting many to attend.

May the Lord give us more of his grace to accomplish the great work cosnitted to our hands so as to do well, and go on until, and end well.

Yours in the Master-vineyard

F. C. Dixon.

and

William Martin.

REPORT OF MANNOH STATION

For the Year Ending.

December 31, 1889.

Our work in this circuit during the year is such as to awaken in our hearts emotions of the liveliest gratitude to God Though we cannot record any extensive revival of religion, yet we can rejoice in the fact that the ministration of the truth has been blessed to the good of souls; and often we have had to exclaim truly God is in the midst of us. Our efforts here during the past year have been attended with much blessings and signs of good following the word preached: backsliders have been reclaimed, and many sinners long unconcerned have been led to consider their ways, and have become earnest seekers after truth. Our people are watchful and earnest, and although in some cases we deplore some want of progress, we are grateful and thankful that nothing serious has happened to the Society during the past forth from darkness to marvellous light. Persistent and general effort to bring the backslidden people to God's house, and to seek after and edify those who have become careless. The Sunday and week day services, have been well attended throughout the year, and with great results. The people here are poor, but it seems they are among the best in this Sherbro country, and should not be forgotten.

The numerical accounts as stated in the statistics is poor, and the financial results also showing that our people though poor yet they are willing to receive the gospel. Our present number is 10 believers, and 161 seekers showing an increase of 51 new seekers in the year. Last year the amount of £3 7 0 has been collected from our few people, to show gratitude to God. From the preaching of God's word explained in full. Our people gave freely of their substance.

The School.—Here we cannot boast, but we have been trying to do the very best we can. Though we have to complain of fluctuation, and would to God that this state of things should come to an end. Our present number is 10 Boys and 6 Girls.

Last year we presented the importance of having foundation boys and girls, on Mission support at least for a year. And unless this is done, and thus making Mannoh as one of the most principal Stations, we will never see the fruits of our labours.

The Sunday School— Mrs. Taylor has been hard at work, because I have always been out itinerating. We hope soon to see some good result in this department.

The Mission House— is in a dilapidated state requires new [illegible] and a little repairs. We have [illegible] all our [illegible] the [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

The Early Dawn.

BONTHE, SHERBRO.

DECEMBER 31 1889.

THE MISSION FIELD

At our last writing we were just leaving this place on the 14th inst for Shaingay Station where the writer, after a short call on the 14th inst at Konoinge, arrived on the afternoon of the 14th inst, and commenced Quarterly service on the 15th inst, at 11 a. m, when a large gathering were present to witness the Baptism of more than twenty-five persons, & to listen to a sermon, by the writer, on "the Man of sorrows" 3 persons were received into full communion by Prof. Wilberforce who assisted also in administering the Holy Communion to quite a large number after the sermon. The services were interesting indeed. In the evening the services were continued at Zion, and were quite largely attended, Rev. D. F. Wilberforce was the preacher, and he delivered a grand discourse on the "Loving up of the Son of Man" On Monday 16th at 7. 30 a. m, the writer held the quarterly conference of Shaingay Station which was interesting and report showed that a good work had been done during the quarter. At 5 p. m. Professor Wilberforce and the writer left Shaingay for Rotafunk and reached that place the next morning at 3½ a. m. but did not go up to the Mission Station until about 5½ o'clock when we had Prayer Rev. West's while the Chap l Prayer service was being conducted; after which we were introduced to the New Missionaries Misses Groundyke, and Williams, with whom we were favorably impressed, at the time, and more so as time passed on. We were pleased to hear that they were not afraid of the fever, and determined, only to succumb to it when they are compelled to do so.

The Board of Eluction met at 9. a. m., and organised, Prof. Wilberforce of "CLARE" occupied the chair and Rev. W. S. Sage was elected Secretary four members,—D. F. Wilberforce, W. S. Sage, R. N. West, and J. A. Evans,—were present & one—Rev. R. C. Taylor was absent. Misses Groundyke & Williams were granted advisory seats. The first session of the board occupied about two hours and after preliminaries was given chiefly to the discussion of the practicability of a Teachers Examination at the next meeting in connection with the Normal Exercis s, but a decision was not fully arrived at, yet it was fully decided that the normal Exercises should be conducted for at least two days if at all possible at the next meeting to be held at Shaingay and to commence January 23rd in connection with the Annual District Meeting. The afternoon and last session of the Board opened informally about 12 noon D F. Wilberforce presiding Board in Committee of the whole proceeded to and prepared a programme for next or Annual meeting. The further discussion was on the subject of uniformity of methods, Text Books &c, this was a difficult subject but revealed the fact that the Board are in harmony on the matter, yet that other circumstances may have their bearing otherwise. The meeting adjourned about 3. p. m. to meet D.V. at Shaingay January 23rd 1890 at 7. a. m.

On further visit of the next day was very pleasant with the Bompeh Missionaries, now six in numbe. We should not fail to mention the highly pleasing musical Entertainment of the evening of the 17th inst conducted by the accomplished Misses Groundyke and Williams in Rev. W. West's Parlor The hostibality of our Rotafunk Mission was unbounded, and we enjoyed it hugely. Wednesday afternoon at five o'clock we left Rotafunk on our return and reached Shaingay the next morning at 4. a. m., making the run in just eleven hours.

At Shaingay the writer finished up the fourth round with the Shaingay Circuit Quarterly Conference held informally at Easthourne Grove on the Morning of the 19th inst. Later on we attended to further financial matters looking up accounts &c. At 5. a. m. on the 20th the writer left Shaingay and reached this place Bonthe at 8. p. m. finding plenty of work here & all which he could if it until P. 30. the 21st when he passed on to Konoinge where we arrived about midnight on the 22nd, the writer held the Quarterly Communion services and Baptized 1 child. We had altogether a grand day at Konoinge and left there on our return at 9. p. m. the 23nd and reached this place at 9.30. a. m. the 23rd tired and ugly.

ROTAFUNK STATION

Ol' Bompeh Mission is fast becoming one of the leading Stations of the U. B. C. Missions, and the Wesleyan Missionary Association are to be highly congratulated up on their success so far in the management of their Mission, without doubt, and yet they have hardly arrived at the age of finality in their operations where debts are likely to be incurred, that time is yet ahead, and still it is to be hoped that they may escape such embarrassments, as usually all the other Missions have had to meet in their work after their Missionaries, Stations &c, have increased to larger proportions. Rotafunk is well planned and is being very well improved indeed There are nearly two square a residences or houses for Missionaries, this provides well for the two families that have been on the ground, and also with a little change that Mr West is intending to make, will accommodate the two young ladies lately arrived The New School building now being erected by the Rev W. S. Sage to accommodate their large and ever increasing day school, will be an ornament to the station, which is already a gem in appearance, as well as a real light to that part of the country. I was also much pleased with the piece of work of the Mission, the continuation of effort and consolidation of work—larger community of Mission aides and larger collection of children and young men.—The Mission land is also being enclosed with a barbed wire fence, which will no doubt prove to the best protection for crops from man and beast. It may be a question however as to whether the fence should be of Rotan as will be of country durable, but it seems to be the most convenient as stone, and some iron fastenings.

J. A. E

The Wesleyan Sunday School in this place celebrated its anniversary on the 22nd and 23rd inst with no little interest & enthusiasm. On sunday in connection the 22nd the little church was densely crowded, and the songs which must have taken up a considerable length of time in processing for the occasion, were delightfully rendered; and the preliminaries being over, the Rev. R. C. Taylor announced Rom. 8. 17 as his text, and ably, yet elaborately explained its import. The sum and substance of this discourse was that each scholar of this school, as well as every member of the church, had to lose privileges in this life, namely that of being glorified with Christ, but that such privilege was contingent upon one's conversion, which, he deemed his duty as the aim of the teachers, so far as the instructions which they had been imparting to their scholars were concerned For none but those who were converted and regenerated would have such a privilege, that all the children of the congregation may be members of the school and yet may not be the children of God For preacher is closing, warned the school of the danger of assuming so great a privilege, concluding in condemnation and a move has been planned to bestow upon mankind

The address in the afternoon which was delivered by Mr M. J. Rogers was an overwhelming audience, and which was simply sublime and impressive, was worthy of the occasion. It contained several important suggestion and instructions to Parents Teachers, and scholars which if adhered to would not be a few advantage to our school result.

The Easter school on the right attended to on the occasion by several the Rev R. C. Taylor in the evening at 7. 30 selected his text from Gen 7. 1, 2 Taylor's well prepared sermon was practical and to the point. He gave a few touching illustration of early piety which was brought about by example of pious mothers The public meeting on the 23rd inst which was well attended was presided over by M. J. J. Warburton the superintendent of the school in the absence of the Civil Commanding who was expected to be present with us, and regretted not to be present but the illness of general work was at home in his family and the audience interest was profitable attention.

On the whole these services on the 22 and the public meeting on the 23 rd were a complete success. The only regret expressed on every occasion was that of rain. It is to be hoped that the difficulties in general in the way of the Wesleyans (who are always characterised as being a zealous people) in erecting a new and commodious place of worship will not be insurmountable, and that the friends and parents of the children whose spiritual welfare they are endeavouring to enhance will receive their labour of love with fresh zeal & power, resolving to practice what they have learnt from the preachers and speakers on this occasion to be forgotten anniversary. A picnic for the amusement of the children on the Mendi Mission grounds with tea in the evening of the 25th brought the anniversary to a close

Lines On The Passing Year

Lo! on the rapid wings of Time,
Another passing year is flown,
While notice in our world unknown
Records it as her fateful crime.
Of endless sound O empty cloud!
How quickly my shadows disappear,
Words farther sink beneath the stream
The records of a dying year.

While thou-and-here have ceased to play
Their part upon life's tossing stage,
Are in its current swept away,
Oh swift and quick departing age,
We rise to play their acts again,
Upon their feint scenes appear,
And take their our world by reign
May end before another year

May peace her blessings throw around,
As we succeeding page s turn
Of life. O may we ever resound,
May freedom's lamp for ever burn
O may the child of love below
With his delighted smile appear!
Diffusin life's ripples as they flow
In joy and hail the coming year.

How rapid Time—as the wing,
How quick the various seasons fly!
May kind experience ever bring
Her gracious aid to you and I.
Then, when appears the last to part,
And gray with age our locks appear
May brighter pleasure come at last,
A glorious never ending year.

Farewell to thee, O sinking year!
To every Members of thy train
Fleet farewell. What has Time spared
If in the record of thy reign
O let me scan in wondrous page
Of life me run its glories over,
Before thou quit the conquered age
Of human life, for ever more

A NEW CHURCH SESSION.—In further ance of the pass of this Excellency Sir James S Hay for the pacification and continuance of the tranquility of the country around, we are pleased to note the arrival of our old friend Rev. F. J. Aldridge as a Travelling Commissioner, and we trust our friends of all shades of political faith will ere long see clearly the wisdom of Sir James' Policy.

NEWS ITEMS.

Dec 18—S. S. Mandingo for Free Town with mails.

20—Forados from Free Town with mails and following passengers F. J. Aldridge E Traveling Commissioner Rev. C. Manly (Dentist) R Mather J. H. Pratt and several others.

24th. Merry-Go-Round placed at Victoria Road opposite Thomas Street in which there was a Considerable gathering.

28—Formosa for Free Town with mails and following passengers, Mr Randolph Thomas, Miss Elliott, Miss Nancy Belford &c, &c.

28—Colonial Steam Launch from Free Town with mails

29—She left this day with mails to Free Town.

Mr. George Manly a passenger per the Formosa has opened Druggist shop near the residence of C. J. Cole Esq Victoria Road.

25 Cricket Match given by a select Number of Young Gentlemen at the Mendi Mission field; Cricketers composed of promiscuous and several others that went on invitation.

T. J. Aldridge Esq who arrived per S. S. Formosa on the 20th inst left on the 23 on Sulyma District overland.

Bert Cassandra for Free Town on the 29th.

Mr J. N. Crown of the Customs and family left for Free Town the 28th per the Government Steam Launch.

30.—Mr Varyn husband of Mrs Sarah Varyn was brought down from the river on the 29th inst and died on the 30th inst

REPORT OF AVERY STATION SUNDAY SCHOOL MISSION for the QUARTER ENDING 30th NOVEMBER 1889.

Mr. President, Sir,

In presenting this my report for the year to you my feeling should be one of unmixed thankfulness to God for mercies vouchsafed through the wet season. The changes, trials, and afflictions, which hovered over its like clouds of darkness, but through the gracious providence of Heavenly Master, disappeared, and we are saved.

Since the last quarterly session there has been in this station a large attendance at the means of grace on the usual. The word has been preached throughout the District, and listened to with marked interest. Revival and one special meetings have constantly been held, and it is to our satisfaction to report spiritual success.

The Lovefeasting work which had been a great and important among us, we regret to state, had been much hindered. The almost every day dawn of cannibalism which caused a general confusion throughout the District, and induced many to flee to other rivers, seriously reduced the number in our Society classes. Some of the nearer Towns, Kortumahoun, Kpe town, Kaw-Mendi &c, have all been vacated so that under the present horrible condition of things, it is difficult to report much progress in this department.

At Matru the work is advancing gradually. It is interesting to know that a wood Chapel for school and regular sunday service has been commenced in this place, measuring 20 x 30 feet in length and first favorable steps are taken towards its completion. With grateful hearts we recognize the interest manifested by kind friends and the people who are willing to do and to give freely.

Death has again removed from us an aged Itinerant to join the company of immortal spirits; this loss we hope sanctified gain.

Number of seekers' classes 16, Members 250 Communicants 30. Total 310.

Day School. There is an increase of one in this department. The Teacher reports improvement as well as persistency, independent of irregularity which is due to the indifference of some parents, who keep their children at home on every trifling excuse. In connection with this a first class school, comprising 26 children has been commenced at Mo-Sipoh, under the care of a member in that

No. of both sexes, Avery 43 Mosipoh 6 Total 49.

Sabbath School is nevertheless encouraging. No of both sexes 42 Teachers and Officers 3 Total 45

Mite Collection	£4	5. 9
Class peace	0.	15. 8
Legal Expense	0.	8. 4½
Previous Sab	1.	0. 8
Sabbath School Co.	0.	0. 10
	£6.	9. 3½

S. B. Morrison

CHRISTMAS AT BONTHE SHERBRO.

The Christmas season has been one of merriment at Bonthe, for the season commenced with the Anniversary of the Wesleyan Sabbath School which was celebrated on Sunday the 22nd inst., when two sermons were preached by the Rev J. C. Thomas Pastor in charge, and the Rev. R. Cookson Taylor of the U. B. C.

In the afternoon of the same day an able and elaborate Address was delivered by Mr. M. J. Rogers of the Commandant Department when the Teachers and Scholars of the St Matthews and U. B. C. Schools were invited and they paraded in fine of twos

A Public Meeting in connection with the above was held on Monday the 23rd inst, when the following gentlemen addressed the Meeting.—C. S. Bowan Junr., E. W. Parkinson, A. W. Elliott, J. H. Pratt, and J. Wisner Pearce. Of all the speeches delivered, that of Mr Pearce was the most amusing; for he carried the audience spell bound with its usual "Come to stand point," which created a good deal of laughter.

In consequence of the absence through ill health of the Commandant the Chair was offered to and accepted by M. J. J. Warburton Superintendent of the School, who performed his duty to the general satisfaction of the meeting.

On Tuesday the 24th there was a Grand Picnic given to the Children in connection with the above school, at the Mendi Mission field, in the Evening several ladies and gentlemen of very demonstration in this place were invited by the Teachers and Officers of the above school to an Evening Party at the Residence of J. A. Whitaker, Esq. where every one did ample justice to the what was set before them.

Many pleasing and special due to Messrs. Warburton Supt. and [illegible] See'ty of the School who have laboured very hard to bring about such success as evidenced during the Anniversary season.

And it is to be hoped that as they have begun they will continue every year to encourage those in connection with their Sunday School

Thus closed the Anniversary of Wesleyan Sunday School.

MERRY-GO-ROUND.—The enjoyment of the place was kept up by the introduction of the Merry-Go-Round constructed by Mr. Horatio C. S. Jenkins School teacher of Bendu, and which was fixed in Thomas Street where were to be seen a good gathering of people all classes who went to witness and to patronize the constructor in his scheme. This wonderful contrivance of Mr. Jenkins supported the belief that with a little advantage Africans are not behind hand in the scale of Civilization and advancement, but it is much to be regretted that those who should be forward in extending their their patronage to this ingenious young genius were not to be seen on the spot, excepting a few gentlemen among whom was our noble and patriotic Commandant Woseley, who paid for two children to ride. The Merry-Go-Round is still kept up and will continue to be till the Regatta is over. All praise is due to the Constructor and Manager of the wonderful machine.

CONCERT.—On Wednesday 25th Christmas, a Grand Concert was given at the Court Hall, where there was a good gathering and all left pleased to have been there.

REGATTA.—The Regatta is to take place on the 3rd proximo. We wish it all possible success, and we hope the promoters will treat the people as they were treated last year, irrespective of distinction.

PROGRAMME.

Educational Meeting of Annual District Meeting of U. B. C.

To be Convened at Shaingay, January 23rd 1890.

Thursday, Jan. 23rd.

7. to 2. 30 a. m. Business
[illegible] p. m. Reading by Prof. D. F. W.
2 p. m. Address by Rev. R. N. West.
3 to 4. p. m. Open discussion and questions in the School.

Friday, January 24th.

[illegible] p. m. Business
[illegible] p. m. Reading by Rev. J. A. Evans.
[illegible] p. m. Address by Rev. W. S. Sage.
[illegible] p. m. Open discussion and questions on the lesson day by Rev. Groundyke.

Collection £4 5. 9
lass peace 0. 13. 8 ght Expense 0. 8. 4½ reckons Sale 1. 0. 8
bath School Co. 0. 0. 10

£6. 9. 3½

S. B. Morrison

RISTMAS AT BONTHE SHERBRO.

The Christmas season has been a time of merriment at Bonthe, for the season combined with the Anniversary of the Wesleyan Sabbath School which was celebrated on Sunday the 22nd inst., when two sermons were preached by the Rev J. C. Thomas Superior in charge, and by the Rev. R. Cookson Taylor of the C. M. S.

In the afternoon of the same day an able and elaborate Address was delivered by Mr. M. Brooks of the Commandant Government when the Teachers and Scholars of the St Matthias and U. B. C. Schools were invited and they paraded in force of two Public Meeting in connection with the above was held on Monday the 23rd inst., when the following gentlemen addressed the Meeting.—C. S. Wilson Jun'r., E. W. Parkinson, A. W. Hunt, J. H. Pratt, and J. Wisner Pearce. Of all the speeches delivered, that of Mr. Pearce was the most amusing for he carried the audience spell bound with his usual "he to stand point," which called a good deal of laughter.

In consequence of the absence through ill health of the Commandant the Chair was taken and accepted by Mr. J. Warburton Superintendent of the School, who performed his duty to the general satisfaction of the meeting.

Tuesday the 24th there was Tea and Public gathering in connection with the above school, at the Mission field, in the evening several ladies and gentlemen of every denomination in this place, were favoured with the Teachers and Officers of the above school to an evening Party at the Residence of Mr. A. Williams Superintendent of one did not fail to do justice to the occasion was set before them and all appeared to enjoy themselves. Warburton the Superintendent of the School who have laboured very hard to bring about such success as evidenced during the Anniversary season. And it is to be hoped that as they have begun they will continue every year to encourage those in connection with their Sunday School

Thus closed the Anniversary of Wesleyan Sunday School.

MERRY-GO-ROUND.—The entertainment of the place was kept up by the introduction of the Merry-Go-Round constructed by Mr. Horatio C. S. Jenkins School teacher of Bendoo, and which was fixed in Thomas Street where were to be seen a good gathering of people all classes who went to witness and to patronize the constructor in his scheme. This wonderful contrivance of Mr. Jenkins supported the belief that with a little advantage Africans are not behind hand in the scale of Civilization and advancement, but it is much to be regretted that those who should be foremost in extending their patronage to this ingenious young gentleman were not to be seen on the spot, excepting a few gentlemen among whom was our noble and patriotic Commandant Woseley, who paid for two children to ride. The Merry-Go-Round is still kept up and will continue to be till the Regatta is over. All praise is due to the Constructor and Manager of the wonderful machine.

CONCERT—On Wednesday 25th Christmas, a Grand Concert was given at the Court Hall, where there was a good gathering and all felt pleased to have been there.

REGATTA.—The Regatta is to take place on the 3rd proximo. We wish it all possible success, and we hope the promoters will treat the people as they were treated last year, irrespective of distinction.

PROGRAMME.

Educational Meeting of Annual District Meeting of U. B. C. to be Convened at Shebroy, January 23rd 1890.

Thursday, Jan. 23rd.

7. to 8.30 a.m. Business
10 a.m. Reading by Prof. D. F. W.
2 p.m. Grammar by Rev. R. M. Wood
3 p.m. System and Organization in the School.

Friday, January 24th.

9 a.m. Prolusories
10 a.m. Address by Rev. Cross
11 a.m. Geography, J. A. Evans
2 p.m. Mensuration of Quadrilaterals
3 p.m. Arithmetic
3.30 p.m. Grammar
4 p.m. Outlines of Physiology, including on the human body by Rev. Cross.

ABOUT THE NEW PREACHER.

"How do you like Brother Jones?"

This was what Solomon Smith asked me, I having accepted his invitation to go and hear the new preacher in Smithville. I replied that I like him very much, for he preached an earnest gospel sermon.

"But did you see how awkward he was? Why, he knocked the hymn-book off the pulpit with one of his clumsy gestures. And then he used any amount of bad grammar. You did not like that did you?"

Of course not. But in spite of, these little infelicities of manner and style, he is a grand preacher and I will tell you why. First of all, he doesn't preach himself. He seems to forget all about himself. He talks and acts like an embassador who has been sent on a mission, and who claims attention in his own name, nor by reason of any skill that he has in presenting his message, but on account of the message itself and the dignity and claims of the sender. There is nothing so trying to me as self-consciousness in the pulpit. Better any awkwardness than that. In the second place, I like Mr. Jones because he believes in God. You can see that everywhere in his prayer. He talks with God just as Abraham did when he stood before him pleading for Sodom. He evidently realizes that the church is God's house, and that God himself is there in some special manner to welcome his people, and to hear what they have to tell him. Such prayers make me feel that I am at the feet standing by Jacob as he wrestles with the angel of the Lord.

It is a great thing, I tell you, for a preacher to have such faith in God's presence as Mr. Jones has, to be able to stand before a congregation so absorbed in communion with God that he hears all else in the house of his devotion.

"If like Mr. Jones is the third place because he believes that all and are sinners, and he is not afraid to tell them so.

How pat and emphatic and how tender and loving was his outcry at that the whole head is sick, and the whole heart faint! I tell you, Solomon, unless a preacher is thoroughly versed in depravity, he knows so much good.

You need not be more realize that they are sick before they will apply to a physician. You must convince them before you can get to come a Savior.

"My fourth reason why Mr. Jones is the preacher in the Bible. He is constantly using the law and the gospel. His sermon brimful of illustrations. They were not the theologians and poets, but from nature and God. When he finished with the Lord's prayer was satisfied, and his hearers ought to be sick of this rationalistic preaching We have in the pulpit messages but messages from God to hear a preacher who speaks with authority as an ambassador speaks the words of his master and mine. However much learned men may prove that which is declared as true in the book!

"My fifth reason why Mr. Jones as a gospel preacher that he evidently has the assurance of his calling. He thinks that if people are not converted they ought to be and be happy in the knowledge. He has no sympathy with the moping, melancholy of christians who think they have a hopeless case if they only knows whom they have believed and is persuaded that he is able to keep him against that day. He would have some knowledge of conversion.

"I have many other reasons for liking Mr. Jones, but I will give you only one more. He is as indignant with the christian who continue in sin that he is with the sinner himself bound. He believes that God is holy God we worship must be like him. He believes that we ought to be pressing forward to the mark for the prize of our high calling; that we must work out our own salvation with fear and trembling. Holiness in the heart. I tell you, Solomon, there are many ptilosophers and too many poetical preachers and too many pictorial preachers. What we need is a sounding world to be earnest, pungent preaching. And where in the pulpit will God had sent to a perishing world exercise his grammatical tures; I honor his office as ambassador of my God.

DAWN.

"whence I disappeared."

FEBRUARY 26, 1890. No. 8.

Annual Meeting At Shebroy

At different times of the day, on Jan. 23rd, boats could be seen sailing their way into the Shebroy harbour, bearing brother United Brethren members and other workers to attend the fourth annual meeting of the Shebroy, Bendi and Bompeh mission. Some of these workers felt that they were going here, others were going to a place made familiar by previous visits; while some were going to Shebroy for the first time. All were glad to see together, where the interests of the Master's vineyard were to be considered. And all were pleased to greet the Superintendent, Rev. J. Cooper and wife, who had so recently returned from America. Those faithful workers seemed glad to be back to their old field of labor, though their remarks had been short and had brought them little rest. Any one who heard the earnest speeches of Brother Cooper in the forenoon, could not but feel that the hope for the future and his desire to see souls in Africa had become greatly intensified.

At a previous meeting, the Board of Directors had prepared a two days' programme for the annual interruption, which was carried out on Thursday and Friday. On the first day, Business was principally transacted, and a sermon preached by Rev. R. M. Wood. Three subjects were discussed in an enthusiastic manner by a number of the teachers. In the evening an interesting and practical paper was read by Rev. R. M. Wood, on «School Organization and Success." The paper was followed by some animated discussion.

On Friday morning the Conference began with Scripture and in the afternoon, Rev. J. A. Evans taught the geography. After the evening the whole session of only for the purpose of the Educational meeting all united at 4 P. M. Immediately after the exercises, Conference convened. Rev. J. C. was president. He read as a Scripture lesson, Psalm cxxxiii. and made fitting remarks on the same.

In the evening the Temperance Army Band, dressed in their bright band costumes and gets their white ribbon badges on, marched through the streets, making merry music, thus calling the people to Presbyterian chapel. At the Chapel the people began to assemble and interesting addresses were delivered by Rev. Thompson, by, "The Effects of Alcoholism and Intemperance on the Human Body."

The next day was taken up in the reading of Reports by the Presiding Elders and Secretary. These were all very interesting. And while they showed that the work on the interior was not what they could wish, they also showed that the work of the Lord was moving quietly on, and that in some instances complete victories had been gained.

On the next evening speeches were made on Temperance matters to a large gathering, and on Sunday morning, the people gathered in the chapel to a late hour meeting

(Continued on Page 8.)

DAWN.

...known Disappears."

...RUARY 28, 1890. No. 3.

Annual Meeting At Shaingay

At different times of the day, on Sat. 22nd. boats could be seen making their way into the Shaingay harbour, bearing Brother United Brethren preachers, teachers and other workers to attend the fourth annual meeting of the Sherbro, Mendi and Bompeh districts. Some of these workers felt that they were going here, others were going to a place made familiar by previous visits; while some were going to Shaingay for the first time. All were glad to see the season, where the interests of the Master's vineyard were to be considered. And all were pleased to greet the Superintendent, Bro. J. Jones and wife, who had so recently returned from America. Three faithful workers seemed glad to be back to their old field of labor, though their countenances had been short and had brought them into rest. Any one who heard the earnest speeches of Brother Jones in Timbonian, could not but feel that the time for the work: and his desire to see souls in Africa had become greatly intensified.

At a previous meeting, the Board of Education had prepared a two days' programme for normal instruction, which was carried out on Thursday and Friday. On the first day, Reading was taught by Professor Whitestone and Grammar by Rev. S. H. Ware. These subjects were discussed in an enthusiastic manner by a number of the teachers. In the evening an interesting and practical paper was read by Bro. S. H. Ware, on «United Organization and Union.» The paper was followed by some animated discussion.

On Friday morning the Committee on night Arrangements met in the afternoon, Bro. J. A. Evans taught the couples. After concluding the duties of early for the evening prayer Educational meeting all served at 8 P. M. Immediately after prayer, Conference convened. Bro. J. A. was presided. He Read as a Scripture lesson, Psalm cxxxiii, and made some remarks on the same.

In the evening the Temperance Band Band, dressed in their bright band costumes and gave their white ribbon badges on, marched through the streets, calling every where, thus calling the people to Preaching chapel. At the Chapel the people listened to an interesting and instructive lecture by Bro. Thomas Lyle, «The Effects of Narcotics and Stimulants on the Human Body.»

Most of together was taken up in the reading of Reports by the Presiding Elders and Secretary. These were very interesting. And while they showed that the end was not to come they were cheered that the work of the Lord was moving quickly on, and that in many instances souls were gained.

There were stirring speeches were made on Brother pressing in regard to carrying the work further into the interior. And as before every workman seemed more impressed for the importance work of Bro. Wilberforce, then will lead to more fruitful results.

Sunday morning, the people gathered in the chapel to a love feast meeting.

(Concluded on Page 2.)

ABOUT THE NEW PREACHER.

"How do you like Brother Jones?"

This was what Solomon Smith asked me, I having accepted his invitation to go and hear the new preacher in Smithville. I replied that I like him very much, for he preached an earnest gospel sermon.

"But did you see how awkward he was? Why, he knocked the hymnbook off the pulpit with one of his clumsy gestures. And then he used any amount of bad grammar. You did not like that did you?"

Of course not, But in spite of, those little infelicities of manner and style, he is a grand preacher; and I will tell you why. First of all, he doesn't preach himself. He seems to forget all about himself. He talks and acts like an embassador who has been sent on a mission, not who claims attention in his own name, nor by reason of any skill that he has in presenting his message, but on account of the message itself and the dignity and claims of the sender. There is nothing so trying to me as self-consciousness in the pulpit. Better any awkwardness than that. In the second place, I like Mr. Jones because he believes in God. You can see that especially in his prayer. He talks with God just as "Abraham did when he stood before him pleading for Sodom. He evidently realizes that the church is God's house, and that God himself is there in some special manner to welcome his people, and to hear what they have to tell him. Such prayers make me feel that I am at Bethel standing by Jacob as he wrestles with the angel of the Lord. It is a great thing, I tell you, for a preacher to have such faith in God's presence as Mr. Jones has, to be able to stand before a congregation so absorbed in communion with God that he forgets all else in the fervor of his devotion.

"I like Mr. Jones in the third place because he believes that all men are sinners, and he is not afraid to tell them so. How plain and emphatic and how tender and loving was his statement that 'the whole head is sick, and the whole heart faint!' I tell you, Solomon, unless a preacher is thoroughly orthodox on depravity, he wouldn't do much good. You must make men realize that they are sick before they will apply to a physician. You must convince them of sin before you can get them to welcome a Savior.

"My fourth reason for liking Mr. Jones is that he believes in the Bible. He is constantly appealing to the law and the testimony. His sermon bristled with quotations. They were not from the theologians or from the poets, but from the word of God. When he found a 'Thus saith the Lord' for anything, he was satisfied, and insisted that his hearers ought to be I am sick of this rationalistic style of preaching We don't want in the pulpit messages from men but messages from God. I like to hear a preacher who speaks with authority because he speaks the words of his master and mine. How absurd for the most learned men to try to prove that which God has proclaimed as true in his holy book!

"My fifth reason for liking Jones as a gospel preacher is that he evidently believes in the assurance of faith. He thinks that if people are converted they ought to know it and be happy in the knowledge. He has no patience with the moping, sighing sort of christians who hope that they have a hope He evidently knows whom he has believed and is persuaded that God is able to keep him, and he thinks that we all ought to have the same knowledge and persuasion.

"I have many more reasons for liking Mr. Jones; but I will give you only one of them now. He is as indignant as Paul was with the christains who continue in sin that grace may abound. He believes in our showing our faith by our works. He believes that if we love a holy God we will want to be like him. He believes that we ought to be pressing toward the mark for the prize of our high calling; that we ought to work out our salvation with fear and trembling, to perfect holiness in the fear of God. I tell you, Solomon, we have too many philosophical preachers, too many poetic preachers too many pictorial preachers. What we need in this age of a abounding worldliness is plain, earnest, pungent gospel preaching. And when I hear a man in the pulpit who speaks as if God had sent him to try to save a perishing world, I dont criticise his grammar or his gestures; I honor him as an embassador of my Lord."—Sel

TO LET

The Wellknown Shaingay Mission stores, Wharf, &c., Situate at Shaingay, or Tucoh Point, better known as Shaingay Mission, about 60 mile, Southeast of Freetown and 59 miles North-west of Bonthe Sherbro. This is a well located, property and commands a good Trade, and being on one of the most healthy Promontories of the West Coast of Africa offers special attraction for European residence.

For particulars, Apply to

J. A. EVANS

BONTHE, SHERBRO,
3rd Aug. '89. W. C. Africa

Notice.

THE

Undersigned

A WRITING CLERK & ACCOUNTANT

Begs again to inform the Public of Bonthe and the Rivers that he is prepared to do all

WRITING JOB WORK,

as follows:—

STOCK-TAKING,
MAKING UP ACCOUNTS.
WRITING LETTERS, &c.,
Charges Moderate!

FOR further particulars apply at his Residence, Williams St threat the Wesleyan Church, or by letter.

He solicits their patronage.

V. BIDWELL COKER

Bonthe,
August '89.

PUBLIC NOTICE.

S. M. MISSION STORE.

We now offer for sale the Best BRANDS of FLOUR

In Bbls. Half Bbls.

ALSO

SUGAR, KEROSINE, FLORIDA WATER,

in Bbls. & Cases,

Povisions

Of the freshest kind and in good variety.

Best Tea, Coffee, Lard, Butter, Milk, Cocoa & Milk, Vinegar, Sauces, Mustard, Pickles, Tomatoes, Peaches, Tapioca, Sago, Pearl Barley, Potted Yeast, Pilchards, Baking Powder, Chocolate and Milk, Split Peas, Pears, Soups, assorted.

MEDICINES

(Patent and Proprietary)

A SPECIALITY

Time Pieces, Watches, Sewing Machines, Watch Guards Sewing Machine Needles.

N.B. We Pay CASH for Palm Kernels.

J. A. Evans.

ADVERTISEMENT SCALE.

Reduced rates.

(FOR EACH INSERTION.)

	£	s	d
A whole page	1	10	0
A whole column	0	5	0
Half a column	0	3	0
One-fourth of a column	0	2	0
One eighth of a column	0	2	6
Marriage	0	2	6
Births and deaths	0	1	0
Domestic servants waned	0	1	6
Servants wanting situations	0	1	6

Each notic should not exceed 4 lines' Every additional line or part of aline to be extra.

'Early Dawn'

PINTING OFFICE.

Job Work Done at short

Notice.

Enquire of G. H. Curran—Printer

To Subscribers.—Please send in your Dues to this [EarlyDawn] Office at once as we are much in need of the amount Due us to pay printers.

The Early Dawn.

"The Morning Light Is Breaking, The Darkness Disappears."

VOL. VII. BONTHE, SHERBRO, WEST AFRICA, JANUARY 16, 1890. No 1.

The "Early Dawn."

Published Semi-Monthly, At
BONTHE, SHERBRO.

Under the Auspices of the Board of Missions of the
U. B. IN CHRIST.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION

One Year by mail,	£0	6	0
Delivered in Bonthe,	0	5	0
Half yearly by mail,	0	3	0
Ditto. deliv'd in Bonth,	0	2	6

ADDRESS,—Communications to J. A. EVANS, Editor & Publisher, Bonthe, Sherbro, West Africa,—

Subscriptions to be sent to Rev. D. F WILBERFORCE Shiangay, Mr. E. A LEWIS, Freetown, West Africa, Rev. WM. MCKEE Dayton, Ohio, U.S.A. or to the Editor.—

DIRECTORY.

Commandant.	C. H. Harley Moseley
Treasurer.	The Commandant.
Chief Clerk.	M. J. W. Rocks
Interpreter	J. D. Rogers.
Bailiff.	F. K. B. Buckner.
Sub Treas. & Col. Chief Clerk	J. D. Macaulay.
Tide Waiters.	J. N. Crown, J. B. Turner, J. J. Warburton.
Asst. Examg. Officer	Sulymah Jasper Caulker
Assistant Col. Surgeon.	M. L. Jarrett, M. R. C. S.
Dispenser	Rowland May
Postmaster.	H. R. Williams.
Inspector of Police.	M. E. Bettie,
Gaoler.	J. A. Dennis.
Overseer of Roads.	A. O. Walker.

Religious Directory.

St. Matthew's Church, Victoria Road
Pastor,	Vacant.
Wesleyan Methodist,	Lime Street
Pastor.	Rev. J. C. Thomas
Mendi Mission,	(Congregation a Good Hope
Pastor,	Rev R. C. Taylor

Constitution and By-Laws

OF THE

CHRISTIAN TEMPERANCE ARMY.

PREAMBLE.

We the people of——having met together and knowing the evils that Intemperance is worikng in our midst, unite ourselves for the purpose of devising plans and methods, in order to discourage the use of, and traffic in intoxicating liquors, do hereby adopt the following Constitution.

I. NAME.

This Society shall be called "The Christian Temperance Army."

OBJECT.

The Object of this Society shall be to discourage the use and traffic of intoxicating liquors, to reclaim those who are indulging in strong drink, cultivate the mind, and give opportunity for the discussion of literary subjects.

III. OFFICERS.

The Officers shall be a President, 2 Vice Presidents, one Recording Secretary, one Corresponding Secretary, a Chaplain, Treasurer, Critic, Librarian, and two Serjeants-at-arms; also an Executive Committee. The Officers shall be eelcted for a term of one Year.

IV. Duties of Officers.

The President shall preside at all meetings of the Society and shall have power to fine members for any misdemeanor or neglect of duty at any meeting of the Society. He may at any time, with the consent of the Society asess each member a sum not exceeding two shillings. Such funds to be used to meet the wants of the Society.

The Vice President shall preside in the absence, or at the call of the President. The Recording Secretary shall record minutes and perform all duties that pertains to the office of Recording Secretary. The Corresponding Secretary shall have charge of all correspondence pertaing to the Society.

The Chaplain is to conduct the Devotional Exercises at every meetiug of the Society, and install members when elected to office.

The duties of the Critic shall be those that are common to that office.

The Serjeants-at-arms shall at any time of the meeting of the Society see to to the cleaning and lighting up of the place of meeting, and also keep order during the sessions of the Society.

BY-LAWS.

1. Any person may become a member of this Society by petitioning through one or more of the members, paying an innitiation fee of 6d. signing the Constitution and following Pledge:—

"For my own good, and the good of the world in which I live, I agree and promise that by the help of Almighty God, I will not use, make, buy or sell any intoxicating drink as a beverage, and will use my influence to discourage others from the use and traffic in the same."

2. This Society shall meet each alternate evening at 7. P. M.

3. Any person living at a distance may become an honorary member by paying the amount of Two Shillings.

4. Any member may be elected to honorary membership by a vote of the majority of the members.

5. The Funds of the Society shall be in the hands of the Treasurer who shall give Security in a Bond of five pounds, recieve all monies collected by the Secretary and give a Reciept for the same.

6. No money shall be paid by the Treasurer for Articles purchased for the Society without a Voucher signed by the President and Countersigned by the Secretary.

7. Any member who fails to pay his fees or fines, shall be denied the previleges of the Society, until such fees or fines are peid.

8. Any member failing to perform the part in the Literary Exercises assigned him by the President, shall for Such neglect pay a fine not exceeding six pence; repeated neglects to result in expulsion by a vote of the Society: Provided however that reasonable excuse be Considered by the President.

9. Members absent from a regular meeting of the Society shall be fined two pence: provided however that if such member gives a reasonable excase for such absence, he may be excused Absence from the neighborhood is in itself a sufficent excuse.

10. Members shall not leave their place or speak to one another during a Session of the Society without permission from the President.

11. The Executive Committee shall Consist of the President, Vice President, Treasurer, Secretary and two unofficial members.

12. This Constitution shall not be Changed unless by a two-thirds vote.

13. The Executive Committee shall appoint such committees that may be needed from time to time for the carrying out of the plans of the society, provided however that this does not interfere with any Committee that may be called for at any meeting of the society.

14. The male members of this Society shall wear the blue ribbon and the female white ribbon of the World's Christian Temperance Union.

15. Any person may become a member of this Society by paying an initiation fee of sixpence, signing the Constitution and Pledge, provided however, that if such person does not wish to be considered as an active member, he may be placed upon the roll of non-active-members. Any person or persons who shall absent themselves for four Consecutive meetings of the Society, and who shall fail to attend the meetings or give satisfactory excuse after being notified, or who shall fail to pay their fines or dues, shall after such notice be dropped from the list of active member shall be debarred the privileges of the Society, and their names placed upon the roll of non-active-members.

16. The following order of Exercises should be observed:—

1. Devotional Exercises
2. Roll Call
3. Reading of Minutes
4. Reports of Committees or unfinished business
5. New business or motion
6. Literary Exercises
7. Open'g of question Box
8. Report of Critic
9. 2nd Roll-Call
10. Announcement of Programme for next meeting.

11. Adjournment,

17. Ammendment to this Constitation and By-laws shall be presented in writing and read before the Society; but shall not be acted upon till the succeeding meeting.

Cm1 2 3 4 5
Ins. BRITISH MUSEUM

The Early Dawn.

BONTHE, SHERBRO.

JANUARY 31 1889.

THE MISSION FIELD

ARRIVAL OF REVD J. GOMER

We are pleased to note the arrival of Revd J. Gomer, from his leave of absence, to America, be with Mrs Gomer and his neice,—Miss Clark—landed in Freetown about the 7th inst, but have since come out to Shaingay Mr Gomer resumes the General superintendence and agency of all the Sherbro Mendi Missions schools &c as will be seen from the Order of our Executive Committee which we give below. It is to be hoped that great success will attend his administration.

Dayton Ohio, U. S. A.
Nov. 29th 1889

In order to concentrate our business in the Missions in Africa, prevent misunderstandings, secure uniformity of administration and harmony, and Co-operation among all our Missionaries, and employes in the Sherbro and Mendi Fields. It is hereby agreed & ordered by the unanimous vote of the Executive Committee, that the Rev. J. Gomer should be our accredited Superintendent and Financial Agent for all the Sherbro and Mendi Missions, schools, Buildings, farms, and other property, and general affairs of said Sherbro and mendi missions, and he is hereby appointed as said Superintendent and Agent.

EXECUTIVE CMMITTEE.

VISIT TO JAMAICA

Few persons that have not actually visited this place know the peculiar beauty or adaptation for years we have passed and repassed the place, and have always regarded it as a low swamp retreat, and have not unfrequently wondered why Mr S. B. A. Macfoy should have built such a Mansion as his in such an out of the-way and solitary place; But a visit to the spot and brief inspection of the land convinced us of Mr Macfoy's wisdom in the choice of the location; whether he had originally intended it for residence or aguculture or for both he was fortunate in his selection & bustle of business it is a Capital place. But what struck us most forcibly on our recent visit was the great expanse of arable land of sufficient elevation to cultivate and drain with ease and yet presenting a surface, almost as even as a prairie. At present of course there appear a few marshy spots and low reaches, but these only enhance the beauty, and in time to come if properly managed will greatly add to the utility of land. It is begining of late perhaps to be known that Mr Macfoy has opened a large plantation at Jamaica, but we very much doubt, whether many persons have an idea of the extent or success so far of these operations; & from what we have gleaned from a prominent correspondent respecting the place we further doubt whether many are prepared to measure accurately and appreciate this laudible undertaking. Yet to us we confess that the success and extent of the venture at this time are of the most encouraging nature, But now let us look at a few details in this agricultural enterprise, a Thousand or more Cocoa Nuts Plants, several hundred Kolar Trees of considerable size. Thousands of Cocoa Trees or Scyons in field and Nursery for ty six Thousand Coffee Trees transplanted and sixty five Thousand Coffee Scrons in the Nurseries. Over 200 acres of Casada are now ready for use and of the finest quality. Other things in the line of products might be mentioned, but sufficient has been said to give an idea of both the extent and success of the undertaking. The plantation is quite well laid out as to roads and otherwise. The Buildings large extensive and subtantial so far are well loeated and the soil is in every way well adapted to Coffee and in fact for a large variety of other products, so that so far as we are able to judge there is every prospect for continued and abundant success, it all goes well in the near future (say five to ten years)

THE MANOH

Of all the Tributtries of the Big Gbargroo is the most beautiful. Entering it one is not at first impressed, even favorably for it appears but a simble turn into a larger open. ous Mangrove forest that lines every dull and sluggish punkie of this Mighty stream.

Yet as you pursue your course in a short time higher and higher, grounds are observable until the once but rolling surface lifts itself into first hillocks, then hills culminating further on into considerable Mountains which not like others, that seem to be thrown together at random. These apperr orderly built, with secure foundations in the everlasting hills. The stream itself, widens until forms a small Lake in the vicinity of Manoh Town. This sheet of water is one of the gems of beauty of this pisturesque river. Passing up out of the lake, you next encounter a considerable rapids of descent; this presents different aspects in the dry and rainy season, during the drys the water falls over the rapids very gently, and at low tide it becomes almost a a bridge across the stream, exposing a huge mass rocks. In the rains the current rushes over these rapids in a most terriffic manner, and with a noise that is akin to fearful. Passing this lower rapids the broad river spreads itself, it possible over a larger area and as you stem its impetuous current upward, you encounter another rapids of less descent, but from the number of canoes capsized in it, one is led to believe that it is more dangerous. In the year 1884, the writer witnessed many accidents and great loss of human life on the Manoh, the major part of which occurred at this second rapids;—not less than 3 canoes containing 12 or 15 persons in all, capsized in a single day and but a few escaped. On the lesser Bluffs of the west side of Manoh River between the rapids above discribed is loeated the the Avery Station of the Mendi Mission consisting of a residence Coffee Orchard, Farm, Church, Saw-Mill, Stores, Sheds &c., which is a site admired by all visitors. Above the Avery Station, on the same bank of the river, Mr. E. A. Lewis has a nice place, where too, beautiful Coffee Trees may again be seen in bearing. The eastern bank of the Manoh has even a more picturesque appearance than the West or rather North-west side, of the river, for the hills rise more aqruptly from the waters' edge, and to a greater hight and present even a more majestic appearance as they pile themselves ridge on ridge far away in the distance. The river may be traced many miles interior. The Sinkim falls, some ten miles above Avery, being the most conspicuous of all the rapids or catteracts along its course. The noise of the water over these falls & rapids is something terrific during rains, especially is this the case at Avery. It reminds the traveller of the roar of Niagara, as he is obliged to shout to those to whom he speaks, in order to make them hear. But more of the Manoh especially of land, again.—EVA.

WHERE THE QUESTION HINGES!

We know that the last Merchents Regatta and Entainment did not come up to the status of 1889 although more money was Raised; the cause they say is due to the non-arrival of the steamers with the necessaries for the only gand day in the year at Bonthe.

When all to a man gave much of their little and prepared a fortiori with panting breath for the day's enjoyment.

We are rightly informed that the Fireworks, Tickets, Programmes, Refreshments &c, are all come.

The question that interests the Public now turns up especially considering the scanty and paltry repast of that evening when only the Big men tasted or rather quaffed of the few cases of Champagne, the Extreme dulness of the music much to the dissatisfaction of the majority of subscribers; the importaut question in the mind bursts forth with vehemence.

What is to be done with the remaining funds?

That they should stand till the next year's sport, is an extravagant and repulsive idea. The subscription as it stands is almost an entailed property. The Bonthe Mutual Association has a share in it.

But we are not afraid as we know the Committee composed of sound thinking and judicious men. Mentes sanae in sanis corporibus, whose highest motives are to give the Public satisfaction once a year, and not only the sprinkling few of the "Big Men."

We like Monte Cristo, wait and hope
Le Revoir pour la present —VESPUCL

To Subscribers.—Please send your Dues to this [Early Dawn] Office at once as we are much in need of them to pay Printers

NEWS ITEMS.

A Grand Entertainment was given at the Court Hall by the St. Matthew's day school presided over by C. H. H Moseley Esq Civil Commandant, on the 2rd inst; The programme contained 20 selected pieces, consisting of Recitations, Dialogue, and songs which was well rendered by the pupils.

Mr. G. P. Wilhelm who was formerly Head master of the Wesleyan Day School in this place, arrived from Bathurst Gambia on the 3rd inst., on a vacation tour, after spending 3 days with his friend Mr Bidwell Coker he left on Sunday the 5th inst for Bathurst Gambia via Freetown.

Mr. Thomas, cook at Ghundamah Factory died on suddenly on Monday the 6th inst., and was buried the same day at 4. p. m.

On Friday 10th inst a Quadrill party by a select number of gentlemen was given at the former residence of I. Porter Esq. honored by Mr. J. D. Meauley and Miss E. Norman s chaperons. it was an agreeable gathering.

New Year's day, at 7 p m Mr Roland May entertained a number of his relatives & selected friends to an evening party, it was a very pleasant gathering the friends separated by wishing him a successful new year.

7—Boat "Ellen" for Freetown with general cargo— Mr. J. W. Creighton supercargo. Shetonk a lot of passengers from this place.

8—Mails sent to Freetow per P. Z. & Co. Boat—Mr. Danner left for Freetown.

9—s s. "Susu" from Freetown with mails and the following passengers for this place. Rev. O. Moore, Messrs Maillat, Zochoris, Parkinson, James Brown E. C. Davis, Mrs York, Misses Henrietta Williams, Hume, Jarrett, and Collier.—

10—S. S. "Foulah" from Marlies Via. Freetown.

11. S S. "Susu" for Freetown with mails and following passengers. Messrs Maillat Zochonis, Macfoy, G. A. Taylor, etc.

15—S S. "Foulah" for Freetown with mails

16—S S "Formoso" arrived from Freetown with mails and general cargo and the following passengers Messrs A. W. Elliott and Manly.

THE SIERRA LEONE NATIVE PASTORATE CHURCH CONFERENCE

On Thursday evening the 2nd January 1890 a conference of members of St Luke's Parish met by invitation of the Ven. Archdeacon Robbin in St Matthew's Church at 7. p. m:

The Ven. Archdeacon occupied the Chair, He selected for a lesson Phi. 2nd chapter; after which he offered an affecting prayer: He said that he summoned the meeting for the express purpose of discussing matters affecting the native Pastorate Church at Sherbro, and that he was specially asked by the Bishop before leaving for the Coast that he should come to this place to sympathize with us and to give us all possible encouragement.

He said that he regretted very much that we have been left without a pastor for so long a time but explained that the committee in Freetown has still our interest at heart but for want of funds and other untoward circumstances they could need not help us.

The principal subject laid before the members for discusion was about the delapidated state of the Mission House which is at present unfit for habitation, He assures us that the time is not far distant when we shall be privileged to welcome a resident Pastor in our midst:—and that is after the Revised Article of Arrangement shall have been confirmed by the authorities in England and that in the interim the station will not be left without a clergyman who will be visiting us.

The whole of the members present were glad to have such an assurance from the Venerable Arch deacon and every one promised to give as much he was able, which promises for that evening amounted to about 22, conspicous amongst those who promised are Messsr C. B. Collier £5 5 4 R. T. Collier £3 3 0 M. Z. M'caulay £2 2 0 C. J. Cole £2 2 0 &c, It is to be hoped that this total amount of £100 estimate for the thorugh repairs of the Mission House will soon be collected and that the work begun in time before the return of the Bishop from the Coast and the appointment of a Resident Pastor. We are thankful to the Venerable archdeacon for having spent such fine time with us, especially during the Christmas holidays season: We hope the change will do him muct good and that he may continue to enjoy the blessings of sound health.

The old man has been laboring very hard since his arrival amongst us, for now and again, he is to be found at York Island and Bendoo, Victoria, performing his sacred duties especially so on Fridays Sunday morning Classes. He has given a good deal of encouragement to his parishioners.

Yours
A Churchman

Bonthe Jan. 3rd 1890.

THE REGATTA AND ENTERTAINMENT.

Although it had the unanimous and hearty support of all Classes and ample fund subscribed, and every possible arrangement that a far-seeing and wide-wake Committee, could make Yet it met with sad drawbacks such as the Failure of the S. S. Formoso to arrive. The unfavorable Tides and almost no wind, However all in all no one was to blame for any of these drawbacks, and we must say the Managers did nobly under the circumstances and although the grandest success did not Crown their efforts, yet the public must feel to accord to them the praise they so richly deserve for their untiring efforts to Entertain the Community friendly not a little of which entertainment they did actually give us at the Grand Stand at Medina Street Bridge and also in the extensive Parillion in the French Company beautiful premises.

But there is now the questions that arise what is to be done with materials purchased for the entertainment but ther did not arrive in time for use? what of the surplus funds? We suggest that materials be sold? that the surplus with proceeds of sale of Materials be either held over for another year or appropriate to the Benefit of the helpless poor. The holding over of the funds with to organizing a more permanent affair would seem the best thing; which could operate more certainly and by holding a fair for the exhibition of all classes of products; Mechanical, Agricultural, Horticulural &c to gether with the ordinary regatta such an enterprise would grow to be both entertaining and useful to our community; let our "Big men" as they are termed, give this matter a serious thought for the good of Sherbro.

OUR TARDINESS AND ERRORS.

Are we conless, almost beyond bearing, to our subscribers and the public as they view them from their side of the matter, But possibly a word of explanation will be read by some at least, that will show that the fault largely lies with the compositors staff, that have not been able to get on with their Work, either of getting out the paper or propely correcting the Type page. These matters have pained the Editor and publisher no little, but he has been unable to remedy the matter so far. Yet hopes to do so in the near future, and having the promise of several more able contributors, as well as the most expectation of some better Type, with more time to devote to the work, hopes to be able to give better satisfaction.

PROGRAMME.

Educational Meeting of Annual District Meet'g of U.B.C,
To be Convened at Shaingay,
January 23rd 1890.

Thursday, Jan., 23rd.
7. to 9. 30 a. m. Business
11 a. m. to 1 p. m. Reading, by Prof. D.F.W.
1 to 3. p. m. Grammar by Rev. R. N. West.
7 to 8. 30 p. m. System and Organization in the School.

Friday, January 24th.
7 to 8. a. m. Preliminaries
8 to 9 30 a. m., Arithmetic by Miss. Greendyke.
11 a. m. to 1. p. m. Geography J. A Evans
1 to 3. 30 p. m. Discussion of Queries relating to School Work.
3 30. to 5. p. m. Business.
7 to 8 30 p. m. Effects of Narcotics & Stimulants on the human body by Miss. Greendyke.

A GOOD HINT.

A Clergyman and Garrick the tragedian, were spending an evening together; and among other topics that of delivery was introduced. The man of the pulpit asked Garrick, "Why is it you are able to produce so much more effect with the recital of your fictions, than we do by the delivery of the most important truths?" The man of the stage replied "My Lord you speak truths as if they were fictions", we speak fictions as if they were truths. Sel.

To Our Readers.

While we very much regret our inability in issuing several late issues of the "Dawn"; yet we must be understood that the blame does not altogether rests on the Compositors as it appears, though not on the Editor, inasmuch as we have been very laborious, and even given a few extra hours of work to the Office. One of the causes of failure being that we had indeed almost too much to do, most of which were for the enjoyment &c., of our people here.—

THE COMPOSITORS STAFF.

Editor of the "Early Dawn."

Dear Sir—I have great pleasure in reporting to you my latest visit to the stations, and the success I have met with in reference to the good work.

On Sunday morning Dec. 15th the blessed message of Christ was declared at Avery Station to good congregation, which numbered 112. Four persons were Baptized and 26 Communed. The Evening service was well attended; thus making the Sabbath one to be long remembered.

"Thus let all our Sabbaths prove, Till we join the Church above."

On Monday at 8 A. M. the Quarterly Conference was held. It opened with singing and prayer by the Rev. S. B. Morrison. The writer occupied the Chair, read a portion of the 2nd Chapter the Epistle to the Hebrews. The Roll having been called the Minutes of the last Quarterly Conference were read and approved. Member's moral character examined and found satisfactory; matters introduced and discussed. The Meeting adjourned at 10. 45 A. M. with Benediction.

At 9. 30. a. m. on Tuesday I left Avery the tide being in our favor. We got to Mattro at 3. 15 p. m. After few minutes rest, we went round on a visit to the people till we come in sight of the New Church here, which is made of wood strongly built, and nicely situated. We held service here also, & a goodly number of persons were present. After closing we started for Konconany, having the tide much against us and arrived there at 7. 15 p. m. Here we were nicely entertained by Mrs Cole. In the morning the Rev. S B Morrison held prayers and exhorted the people from the 16 Chap. Acts. His audience being much interested.

Leaving here about 10. a. m. we returned to Avery landing there at 4. 30. p. m.

Thanking our heavenly Father for kind protection during our journey. I close with due respects.

Yours truly,
W. S. Macauley.
Dec. 31. '89.

A Happy New Year!

Whatever their station, wherever they meet,
In the market, the forum, the church or the street,)
At home or abroad, be it early or late
The rich man, the poor man the lowly, the great,
In employ the same formula, use the same

To friend or acquaintance, to all and to each
As with grasp of the hand, and in tone most sincere
They wish one another
A happy new year!

Yes, this is the greeting we now use each day,
As we meet one another, and pass on our way;
And yet, sad to say, when these words have been said
And the wish from men's lips has instinctively sped,
They take little heed to their daily life change,
Nor their actions henceforth so to try and arrange,
As to give good effect to their words of good cheer,
And to bring to their brothers——
A happy new year!

Tis a mere form of speech glibly uttered at most,
Like the meaningless words of some mere formal toast,
And even whilst the wish reshapes still in the air
So little do men for its true meaning care
That their fends still go on, bitter quite as before,
And their enmity rages as fierce as of yore;
And they're all just as grasping, as harsh, and severe,
As though they'd ne'er talked of——
A happy new year!

Aye e'en while the bells rang of peace and goodwill,
Men were eagerly trying men's life blood to spill;
Whilst the carols of christmas yet gladdened the night
Christians still were divided byblighted spite,
And throughout the whole land, much to christendoms shame,
Extortion and cruelty went on the same,
And the world was as wretched, and wicked, and drear,
As though we'd never heard of
A happy new year!

And so it has been, and so still it must be
Till a change vast and potent around us we see,
And till nations resolve that no steel of black shame
Shall be done in the world in then much abused name
Then when a free people's no longer coerced
And the land is no more by black ignorance cursed;
When our statesmen to truth & to justice adhere,
We may get what we have wished for
A happy new year

When the church more concerned with its spiritual cares
Thinks less of its property, more of its prayers;
When the law to the rogue is no longer a friend
But the poor and the helpless is swift to defend
When commerce no more is to gamb ling debased
And the city by legalised frauds not disgraced;
When Religion is pure and when Paty's sincere
We may hope to at last get—
A happy New Year.

When Art from the canker of gain has been freed,
And Charity's wholly unshacked by greed;
When Society too shall to virtue incline,
And worship no more at Sensation's base shrine;
When the world shall have ceased at what's noble to laugh,
And shall seek to do something in Sorrow's behalf;
When Wealth shall be ready Poverty to cheer,
Then, then may we hope for
A happy New Year!

When Love is not bought, and when Brides are not sold,
When Cupid by Plutus no longer's cajoled,
When the warfare of Party less vicious shall be
And from Malice and Slanders wholly set free;
When Riches no more are the object of life,
And the Rule of the Sword shall no longer be rife;
When jobbery gross and corruption shall end
And might shall the Right, and that only defend!
Then tis, and then only we may without fear
Dare to hope for the dawn of—
A happy new year.
VES.

TO LET

The Wellknown Shaingay Mission stores, Wharf, &c.. Situate at Shaingay, or Tassoh Point, better known as Shaingay Mission, about 60 mile, Southeast of Freetown and 59 miles North-west of Bonthe Sherbro. This is a well located, property and commands a good Trade, and being on one of the most healthy Promon tories of the West Coast of Africa offers special attraction for European residence.

For particulars, Apply to
J. Gomer
Shaingay
3rd Aug. '89. W. C. Africa

Notice.

THE Undersigned

A WRITING CLERK & ACCOUNTANT

Begs again to inform the Public of Bonthe and the Rivers that he is prepared to do all

WRITING JOB WORK,

as follows:—

STOCK-TAKING,
MAKING UP ACCOUNTS,
WRITING LETTERS, &c.
Charges Moderate.

FOR further particulars apply at his Residence, Williams St abreast the Wesleyan Church, or by letter.

He solicits their patronage.

W. BIDWELL COKER
Bonthe,
August '89.

PUBLIC NOTICE

S. M. MISSION STORE.

We now offer for sale the Best BRANDS of FLOUR

In Bbls. Half Bbls.

ALSO
SUGAR, KEROSINE, FLORIDA WATER

in Bbls. & Cases,

Povisions

Of the freshest kind and in good variety.

Best Tea, Coffee, Lard, Butter, Milk, Cocoa & Milk, Vinegar, Sauces, Mustard, Pickles, Tomatoes, Peaches, Tapioca, Sago, Pearl Barley, Potted Meats, Pilchards, Baking Powder, Chocolate and Milk, Split Peas, Pears, Soups, assorted.

MEDICINES

(Patent and Proprietary)

A SPECIALITY

Time Pieces, Watches, Sewing Machines, Watch Guards Sewing Machine Needles.

N.B. We Pay CASH for Palm Kernels.

J. A. Evans.

ADVERTISEMENT SCALE.
Reduced rates.

(FOR EACH INSERTION.)

A whole page	£1 10
A whole column	0 5 0
Half a column	0 3 0
One-fourth of a column	0 2 6
One eighth of a column	0 1 6
Marriages	0 1 0
Births and deaths	0 1 0
Domestic servants wanted	0 1 0
Servants wanting situations	0 1 0

Each notice should not exceed 4 lines. Every additional line or part of a line 3d. extra.

'Early Dawn'

PINTING OFFICE.

Job Work Done at shor

Notice.

Enquire of G. N. Cowan—
Printer

The Early Dawn.

"The Morning Light Is Breaking, The Darkness Disappears."

VOL. VII. BONTHE, SHERBRO, WEST AFRICA, JANUARY 31, 1890. No 2.

The "Early Dawn."

Published Semi-Monthly, At
BONTHE, SHERBRO.

Under the Auspices of the Board of Missions of the
U. B. IN CHRIST.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION

One Year by mail,	£0	6	0
Delivered in Bonthe,	0	5	0
Half yearly by mail,	0	3	0
Ditto. deliv'ed in Bonth,	0	2	6

Address,—Communications to J. A. Evans, Editor & Publisher, Bonthe, Sherbro, West Africa,—

Subscriptions to be sent to Rev. D. F Wilsonforce Shaingay. Mr. E. A Lawin, Freetown, West Africa. Rev Wm. McKee Dayton, Ohio, U.S.A. or to the Editor.—

DIRECTORY.

Commandant.	C. H. Harley Mooley
Coroner.	The Commandant.
Chief Clerk.	M. J. W. Rocke
Lamplighter, Bailiff.	J. D. Reeves. F. E. B. Buckner.
Gun Tender & Col Chief Clerk	J. D. Macaulay.
Tide Waiters.	J. W. Crown, J. B. Turner, J. J. Warburton.
Asst. Examg. Officer	Sulymah Jasper Caulker
Assistant Col. surgeon.	M. L. Jarrett, M R. C. S.
Dispenser.	Rowland May
Postmaster.	H. R. Williams.
Inspector of Police.	M. F. Betts.
Steeler.	J. A. Dennis.
Overseer of Roads.	A. O. Walker.

Religious Directory.

St. Matthew's Church, Victoria Road
Pastor, Vacant.

Wesleyan Methodist, Lime Street
Pastor, Rev. J. C. Thomas

Mendi Mission, (Congregational
Good Hope
Pastor, Rev R. C. Taylor

Herbert St Dublin

Bananas January 13th 1890

Dear Brother Evans.

I am very sorry to inform you about the death of my dear father Mr. John Johnson which took place on the 5th of December 1889 his severe illness hastened me here 6 days before his death.

I would have writen you ere this but for want of conveyance. I therefore beg to insert its announcement in your valuable journal for distant friends as you please. Aged 88 years.

I shall leave this week for Palli D. V. With sincere regards to self and family in which Mrs J. joins

Your bereaved Brother,
J. R W Johnson

PUNROHISM.

Dear Editor—The above is a familiar term by which some of the secret societies of the Sherbro and Mindi Countries are designated. We cannot very well give its correct definition at present. It is however an undeniable fact that one or other of the various secret societies of the land has a direct or indirect bearing on the native government. They have their legislative as well as executive councils of which we would be very glad if some abler men would take up the subject and give it a thorough ventilation.

It is a Subject that has been well handled previously but it is, indeed a pity that your correspondents have only dealt with it from a religious point of view. I presume it would be well if some of the Shaingay Wendi Mission boys who are of Sherbro or Mendi Extract, trained and Christianized by the Mission, would take up this very important subject and deal with it as it deserves; unravelling the mysterious part of it and treating it from a political standpoint therefore throwing some light on this still mysterious subject

Poor Rus.

True Story of a Boy.

He was a large fellow in frame for one of his years, and was considered a dull boy and very slow to learn. His parent were quite poor, and lived in a humble log-cabin in the woods, but were in every way honorable and upright. By industry and economy they were able only rather scantily to maintain themselves and their children, of which they had a number, this boy being the eldest. He was compelled to labor to help keep the family which he was very willing to do. He was kind and obedient, always ready to go cheerfully at the bidding of either father or mother. He sometimes had to go poorly clad, with patched clothes. His feet also at times would press through the holes in his shoes until they touched the frozen ground and snow (for boys knew nothing about boots in those days).

He went to a country school when he could be spared from home, amounting to two or three months in the winter season.

He was a good student when he got started, and learned very rapidly. By and by, after hard study at home and at school, he became scholar enough to teach school.

In the winter he would teach and do odd jobs between times, and work on the farm in the summer. In this way he earned a little money, which he carefully used in seeking further education, and finally graduated from a leading college, was an instructor a number of years, studied law, was a successful attorney, was made president of Christain college, and was useful and happy. the pride of his parents and the joy of his brothers and sisters. Before he reached forty years of age death found him busy and successful, and carried him away to where all good people go, to the great rich family that live on the other side of the river. A good boy, a wise and successful man, though he died early he filled a useful place in life, set an example worthy of imitation and showed what goodness and perseverance may accomplish in a short life, and leave behind at death an influence to encourage others in the struggles and trials of life, and to stimulate them to noble deeds.

This is a true story of a boy. Sel.

God will Take Care of It

Some persons object to giving on the ground that they do not know how the money will be used, and some doubt it being used in a proper manner.

Especially is this the case in giving money for the support of the missionary work. This may be urged as a plausible excuse for not giving, behind which in reality is to be found an unwillingness to give.

Some persons may have an honest objection to giving founded upon this doubt; but they surely can have but little confidence in the superintending care of God over the gift of his people. He sees the honest purpose of the giver, and will most surely direct it in the proper channel. He is better able to care for our gifts than we are to care for them, however honest and anxious we may be about them. We should be willing to trust our money to his care. Then if we give with a proper motive, we will receive our due reward, whatever may become of our gifts. "Verily ye shall not lose your reward."

It is our duty to give freely, largely, and carefully, and then trust the results with God, and our reward will be sure. Then it is unquestionably true that no money is more carefully, economically, and honestly expended than that given for the cause of missions. Missionary Visitor.

The Tobacco Habit

Prevails very largely, as is well known among the natives of this West Coast of Africa, and as its effects upon the system or bodies of men have been proving conclusively, to all unbiased minds, by those versed in science, to be injurious tending rather to destroy than to build the constitution. And more than this it costs a good deal to most users and something to every one who indulge in the Habit. And again it is undeniably a filthy weed, and most persons make a more filthy use of it, & seem really unable to do other wise. Would it not be wise to cease from the use of such an article; as only destroys the health eventually and uses up our money consantly! E.

The Interior.

On this continent, is now attracting the attention of all Enterprising Missionaries, as a field of operations being it is believed, freer from the contaminating influence of civilized vices than the Coastline.

TO SUBSCRIBERS

Those who are in arrear to the "Early Dawn" will kindly send in their subscriptions due.

When the Printer will go round to collect we trust there will be no trouble in making good the payment of subscriptions due to him. Ed.

The Early Dawn.
BONTHE, SHERBRO.

JANUARY 31, 1890.

THE REASON AND THE PROSPECT

We have been absent a good deal lately, and so very busy when here, with other duties, that work on our Journal has been much neglected. The future promises better on this line and we have hope of securing a more efficient staff and to make our paper better than ever before. But in order to succeed in our attempts at success, we must have the sympathy and co-operation of our friends, especially subscribers and contributers. And we believe that we shall have both if we make the effort for improvement.

THE SEVENTH VOLUME.

Of our paper, the Early Dawn, began with the last Issue. And we feel rather proud of being able to continue for so long a time. But we regret very much the dearth of the past year, which while our efforts have not been relaxed, have militated against us as well as the fulness of the paper, however, as stated above, we hope to do better and to make this, our seventh year, better, than the preceding and that future years may be crowned with greater success than we have hitherto enjoyed.

What We Want,— Is news fresh and sparkling with life, something every person will be benefited by reading; articles on live subjects of interest to the general public. Papers on Morals, Religion, Agriculture &c, are in demand. Something to make men better.

The Demand of today is Purity and Earnestness of purpose, clean hearts, clean hands, and an earnest all-absorbing determination to do right to obey God and keep his Commandments.

The Bible, "Book divine," as it has been called, bids us fear God and keep his Commandments, as our whole duty in this life.

God is love,—that is, he is the embodiment of the highest principles of the purest charity, then, who would not love and serve Him with their whole heart.

A FEW DAYS AT SHAIGAY.

We were called forth from the seclusion of our sanctum on Tuesday the 21st inst, at the early hour of 12: 30, a.m. to go forth to Shaigay on a visit to the Superintendent of the Sherbro Mendi Missions. We spent 30½ hours in the passage, and expenced a few of those inconveniences incident to Sea travel in an open boat. Reaching Shaigay just a day in advance of the Annual gathering of Ministers, Teachers, and Lay-workers of the U. B. C. Missions, we found the Supt. busily engaged, in preparation for their Entertainment which, at a glance we could see, would be sumptuous. much has been said, by many, of the beauty of Shaingay, and the site is a marvel of beauty. But it is not the natural with which we were most impressed on our recent visit; it was rather the artificial; it was the writer's lot to be a resident of Shaingay almost a score of years ago, when all was very much different to the present. At that time Shaingay town was cloistered about with a thick forest, only, broken here and there, by the annual practice of making farms. The mission consisted of a single standing building, a square stone dwelling and a few huts for laborers, around these, there were about five acres of open land that opened to the sea westward. But how different, now, open lands greet your eye on every hand about the town and the Mission. Besides this, the Mission House has been greatly enlarged by extensions. A Stone Chapel, The Rufus Clark School building, Store Keepers House with Stores and Warehouse have all been reared, besides the Boys Home, & Large House for laborers. At a short distance from the Mission premises is now to be seen the commodious Stone Mansion known as the Eastbourne Grove, a little further on a southeasterly direction, is Mr. S. B. A Macloy's Framed Factory. Between and connecting all these adorned in many places, with handsome cactus & Heliotrope hedges are fine roads. On the Mission Farm, may be seen several hundreds (perhaps thousands) of Coffee Trees, these are now loaded with a splendid crop of ripe Coffee. Almond, Guava, Cocoanut, and other fruit Trees are growing beautifully. Around the Mission House a well sat lawn has taken the place of the naked ground. Eastbourne Grove is being delightfully improved also. These premises being adapted to the sea are specially attractive.

During our stay of several days at Shaigay, we were privileged to attend the meetings of the Board of Education and also the Annual District meeting of the U. B. C. Missions and in these, to, we beheld progress as we noticed the Board held a Normal Institute, which is a useful feature of the Educational work. The Board of meeting and Institute were presided over by Prof. Wilberforce. The annual meeting presented an increased number of workers of the true and the tried. We noted a greater disposition than usual to maintain Decorum in business and correctness of statement in report. Rev J. Gomer presided with great ease and ability, but we shall have a full report of these meetings for our next or a future Issue so we refrain for the present.

SHERBRO ISLAND

Attention was called, some time ago, in these columns, to this important Island; on which we live, and which in dark days of past years served as a refuge to time of War or Asylum in time of severe illness & destitution. It has been pretty well ascertained by observant Travelers and intelligent persons that there is a much larger population on Sherbro Island than was for many years Conceded The estimates are of late years from Ten Thousand to Twenty Thousand. The higher estimate of 20,000 was lately given to the writer by an intelligent gentleman that is well acquainted with our Island and the writer from his personal knowledge of the facts in the case, after a residence of nearly six years, here on the Island, is of the opinion that the above gentleman's is about correct. And holding this view of the matter has been struck with the paucity of places of worship on the the Island, there not being half a dozen dedicated places or houses all told, and perhaps only one held exclusively for divine services, while others serve the double purpose of Chapel and school House. The number of nominal Christians cannot be much less than One Thousand five hundred of whom at least six hundred, are church members, most of whom belong to the three principal denominations and a few to the fourth operating here. But what are these to the teeming Thousands of Pagans around us! Ought not the Christians of this Island to be up, and doing; in order to convert the heathen people that come to us from the interior, & also the heathenish contingent that are sent to us from civilized lands, year after year, to make a living, by a hateful traffic in liquid death? Yes we think the christians should arise as one man and lift up the banner of the Cross and preach a Crusade against Pajanism Rum and Adultry on this Island and save the people.

From The Million.

WHAT IS DEATH?

Oh! what is death that the mortal should shudder
When the air from the untrodden shore fans his cheek,
When the future wells up a vision before him,
And his eyes behold wonders his lips may not speak?
Then lo! through the darkness, a friend, that departed
When together their feet touched the brink of life's morn,
Comes back to the verge of this life still to linger
By the side of the dying, beckon him on.

Death's but the breaking of life's fond illusion
When the curtains roll back from the windows of time
And the spirit speeds forth, as a bird from its eyrie
To bask in the rays of some happier clime.
Then the groanings of earth are lost and forever
Are sunk in the strains of an heaven-born song
Whose music floats out on the star tide of glory
And the echoes caught up by the beautiful throng.

'Tis a clearing of mists, like fog from the ocean
When the flashes of sunshine have pierced its dark breast.
'Tis ceasing from suffering, from weeping and moaning,
And the heart-broken child smiles at midnight in rest.
'Tis a cure for all ills that flesh can be heir to
When it flows o'er the body a wonderful calm.
It smooths out all wrinkles, those snow drifts of sorrow,
While it heals the life's wound as a magical balm.

Who can deem it not good for death to reign o'er us,
Since it opes to our feet the sweet doorway of light!
It tears from the prison the veil that now hinders;
And the land of true bliss lays revealed to the sight.
'Tis a beautiful thing, this death and this dying
'Tis a bursting of doors and a breaking of bars,
The spirit, unchained from the clay that here binds it,
Flies to seek its new home in the realm of the stars.

NEWS ITEMS.

Jan 17—S.S. "Sunu" from Freetown

Sailed [illegible] Free town with Mr. R[illegible] (owner) Mrs [illegible] &c. &c.

S.S. "Anna Woermann" arrived.

18—Schooner "Lillie" Randall from Freetown consigned Fisher and Randall.

S.S. "Formoso" for Freetown with mails & the following passengers from this place Messrs. R. T. D[illegible], and N. Collier, Hollbein C. Crown' Mrs R. T. Collier, Master Melville and Miss Collier and Miss Williams, Revd moore Master Parkinson and several others.

"Anna Woermann" sailed from Port this day.

19—Countess of Derby with His Excellency Col. Maltby from Freetown. She left immediatly after for Freetown.

21—Brig "Elten" Creighton master for Freetown with general cargo of African produce.

Gallen—an old resident a mason, died sudd nly on saturday morning 25th inst and buried same day.

The case of Theophilus J. Williams Cub agent at the French Company at Mocoan who was arrested in December last for Embezzling monies belonging to that Company, was heard before His Worship C. H. Harlay Mosley Esq Civil Commandant on Monday the 20th instant and was discharged for want of evidence.

Jan 26—The Ven. Archdeacon Robbin preached at Mokate Church.

Two interesting and affecting sermons were preached at St. Matthew's Church in the morning and evening by Mr W. D. Pasha the Catechist from 2 Samuel 12 chapter 13 verse and 1 John 3 chapter 9 verse.

27—S. S. "Sunu" from Freetown with mails and the following passengers, Rev Father Banchet of the Roman Catholic Mission, Mrs G. V. Manley, and nurse, and several other passengers for this place.

A new printer, is expected to take charge of our printing in a short time.

Bonthe
Jan. 21. 1890

Dear Mr Editor

As the year begins, I make bold to ask for a Place in your valuable column where I shall endeavour from time to time to insert articles, wails and Snaps, Tittle-Tattle Odds and Ends &c that will be of inestimable interest to the Public generally and raising up the lethargic tone of this place.

That I shall discard all prejudice, un called for Personal attacks and whimsical caprice of some of your hitherto hesitant and malevolent correspondents, you and the Public will testify from my article.

I hope this attempt will not be fatil and only spasmodic but will continue with the warmth I now feel and will receive the sympathy and acquiescence of your subscribers and you will allow me to appear only in the nom de Plume of Regnius. I shall and trust there will be some one to reply

1. Why is it that our streets are filled with decayed vegetable matter and allowed to rot, much to the detriment of Peoples health while the authorities are cognizant of the fact.

2. Why is the Sherbro Literary Association now unheard of though there is a quorum of intelligent men forming the Committee.

3 Why is the Native Church Parsonage left to fall into ruin and money was raised for its repair!

4. Why is St Matthew's Sabbath School in a comatose condition!

5. Why is the building for our poor sick in such a delapidated and comfortless condition!

6. Why are the young men here all talk and no deed and they are the hope of the community when the fathers have all passed away.

Yours,—VESPUCIL

THE LOVE OF JESUS.

STRONG as death is the love of Jesus—it is as coals of fire, a most vehement flame, so that "many waters can not quench love, neither can the floods drown it." In these words is described the true and unshaken love of Jesus in contrast with our faithlessness. As to our love to the brethren, it is indeed but scarcely worth mentioning—but a glimmering spark, to quench which many waters are not needed. Some little coolness, some one offense, some slight inconstancy, on the part of those we love, and the fire of our love is quenched or at least burned to the very embers. Such waters it cannot bear. And then our love to the Lord? Let but the Lord cease for a moment to lay on fresh fuel—let him but delay sending to us times of refreshing, and giving us sensible and palpible manifestations of his grace—and our love is soon but a flickering flame. The waters of this world's allurements need only roll in upon us a little more strongly, or the floods of affliction and trial break in upon us; the Lord need only let us wander for a little season in darkness, so that we lose the vivid perception, test upon experience and pious trouses; for then when we felt our hearts cold & destitute as death, and we could have no hope. Not one promise upon which we could rest that love of his was not quench. It rests upon love which loves the sinner all his wanderings and brings him through all his deviations; which bears with all his infirmities, and stands firm where he would give way. His love to us is our trust, the foundation ground of our peace. It is the support by which we raise ourselves when we fall, and the firm staff upon which we lean in our pilgrimage, through this vale of tears. It is the source of our joy the well-spring of our consolations. It is our sanctification and our life. And what have besides it in the [illegible] Jesus, who can tell?

Take thou, then, thy stand upon redeemed of the Lord, embraced in the everlasting arms of love, and open thy mouth with the sweet psalmist of Israel: "How excellent is thy loving-kindness, O God! therefore the children of men put their trust under the shadow of thy wings. They shall be abundantly satisfied with the fatness of thy house; and thou shalt make them drink of the rivers of thy pleasures for with thee is the fountain of life: in thy light shall we see light.' (Ps. 36: 7-9) —Sel.

What of your vows?—Most men have made some good vows as this year came in, the important question now is, are they keeping them? Reader, are you keeping your's?

Do you go to church, or do you stay at home and prevent others from going?

Riches or Wealth, Fame, and Glory, are the greatest desires of our Race. Then why do we not seek the most substantial; those offered to us in the Gospel of our Blessed Redeemer! Who will give everlasting rewards to all his faithful ones.

An Accident, has changed our heading in most of this issue; and from the nature of the case, the change is likely to continue. Yet if possible we will improve it after the arrival of our new foreman Mr Raymond G. Coulter

WORKING FOR CHRIST.

The great need of the Church today is active, efficient workers for Christ—workers who will put the same energy, thought, care, and common sense into their work for Christ that they do in their worldly enterprises. Each member should be such a worker. This does not imply that each one must abandon his worldly pursuits and devote himself exclusively to church-work, but it does imply that every church-member should devote a little of each day to devising or executing some good plan for reaching and saving some one who is known to be unsaved.

The mission of the Church is the salvation of the world. This can only be accomplished by the individual members of the Church devoting themselves to personal, individual effort among the unsaved.

To-day the work done by the Church is by far too general; the preaching is too general; the praying is too general; the scripture-reading is too sepulchral, lifeless, and general; the singing is too formal and general, and the social work of the members is by far too lony and general. The efforts are too much like a shot from a blunderbuss—scattered in every direction and hitting nothing. What is needed is a specific personal work—not merely by the pastor and class leader, but by every member of the Church.

The gospel is a specific, personal message. "I bring you tidings." "Thou art the man" "Repent and believe the gospel and thou shalt be saved and thy house." Suppose each member of the entire Christian church were to single out one person for whose conversion he would earnestly work during the next month,—that he would go to work earnestly, prayerfully, to devise ways and means by which to win that soul to Christ, and begin immediately to put into execution the plans determined upon, & go at it, and stick to it as though his own soul's salvation depended upon the salvation of the one singled out,—what would be the result? Why in the next two months there would be a million souls won to Christ in the United States. Such concentrated personal effort with the heart of the worker all aglow with love for God and human souls, would reach and conquer the hardest heart.

Brothers, sisters why not engage in this personal work? Rest assured it is necessary to bring your unconverted neighbors to Christ. In a few years you will meet those neighbors at the judgement seat of Christ. How can you confront them there if you have never spoken to them warmly, pleadingly, tearfully about their souls' salvation. Think of this question.

Two men, one a devoted and exemplary Christian, and the other unconverted, but a kind man, lived neighbors to each other for number of years.

They associated freely, often exchanged work, toiled together in the havest field, and eat at others' table. Peace and good-will existed between them. After having lived thus for nearly ten years, one cold winter night the Christian man awoke about midnight, and he thought of his kind neighbor, and especially of the fact that he had never spoken to him personally of his soul's eternal interests. The thought, "If he or I were to die thus, how could I face him in the judgment?" so harrased him that he arose, dressed himself and proceeded through the drifting snow to his neighbor's house and called. Having been admitted, he was asked the cause of his untimely call, when he proceeded as follows: "Why, sir, I have come to make an acknowledgment and beg your forgiveness. I have done you a great wrong; and on awaking an hour ago, I thought of my conduct, and the more I thought of it the more I became worried, until I resolved to proceed to your house, acknowlege my wrong and beg your pardon." The neighbor protested that he had always treated him very kindly, and that so far as he knew, he had never wronged him. "Ah," said the distressed man, "but I have wronged you greatly. You know that I am a member of the church; that I pray, speak in meeting, and profess to believe that the salvation of the soul is of infinitely more importance, than all earthly treasures, and yet I have lived neighbor to you all these years, knowing that you are not a Christian, and have never once spoken to you personally about your soul's salvation; and now, neighbor, I humbly ask your forgiveness, and beg of you the privilege of kneeling with you here and asking God to forgive me and save you."

The prayer was made; in an earnest, tearful tender prayer, and he returned to his home: but the untimeliness of the visit and the evident sincerity and kindness of the visitor so impressed the unconverted man that in a few days both he and his wife were brought into the fold of Christ. "Go thou and do likewise." Carry your religion, warm, sincere, earnest, into the homes of your unsaved neighbors; plead with them to accept Christ, and by the blessing of God you will be instrumental in their salvation. —Religious Tleescope.

TO LET

The Wellknown Shaingay Mission stores, Wharf, &c., Situate at Shaingay, or Tassoh Point, better known as Shaingay Mission, about 60 mile, Southeast of Freetown and 59 miles North-west of Bonthe Sherbro. This is a well located, property and commands a good Trade, and being on one of the most healthy Promontories of the West Coast of Africa offers special attraction for European residence.

For particulars, Apply to

J. GOMER
SHAINGAY
3rd Aug. '89. W. C. Africa.

Notice.

THE Undersigned

A WRITING CLERK & ACCOUNTANT Begs again to inform the Public of Bonthe and the Rivers that he is prepared to do all WRITING JOB WORK,

as follows:—
STOCK-TAKING,
MAKING UP ACCOUNTS
WRITING LETTERS, &c.

Charges Moderate!

FOR urther particulars apply at his Residence, Williams St abreast the Wesleyan Church, or by letter.

He solicits their patronage.

W. BIDWELL COKER
Bonthe,
August '89.

PUBLIC NOTICE

S. M. MISSION STORE.

We now offer for sale the
Best BRANDS of FLOUR
In Bbls. Half Bbls.
ALSO
SUGAR, KEROSINE,
FLORIDA WATER
in Bbls. & Cases.

Povisions

Of the freshest kind and in good variety.

Best Tea, Coffee, Lard, Butter, Milk, Cocoa & Milk, Vinegar, Sauces, Mustard, Pickles, Tomatoes, Peaches, Tapioca, Sago, Pearl Barley, Potted Meats, Pilchards, Baking Powder, Chocolate and Milk, Split Peas, Pears, Soups, assorted.

MEDICINES

(Patent and Proprietary)

A SPECIALITY

Time Pieces, Watches, Sewing Machines, Watch Guards Sewing Machine Needles.

N.B. We Pay CASH for Palm Kernels.

J. A. Evans

ADVERTISEMENT SCALE.

Reduced rates.

(FOR EACH INSERTION.)

A whole page	£1 10 0
A whole column	0 8 0
Half a column	0 5 0
One-fourth of a column	0 2 6
One eighth of a column	0 1 6
Marriage	0 5 0
Births and deaths	0 1 0
Domestic servants wanted	0 1 0
Servants wanting situations	0 1 0

Each notic should not exceed 4 lines Every additional line or part of oline 3d extra.

'Early Dawn'

PRINTING OFFICE.

Job Work Done at short

Notice.

Enquire of G. M. Gowan—
Printer

THE EARLY DAWN.

"The Morning Light Is Breaking, The Darkness Disappears."

VOL. VII. BONTHE, SHERBRO, WEST AFRICA, FEBRUARY 28, 1890. No. 3.

The "Early Dawn."

Published Semi-Monthly at Bonthe, Sherbro. Under the Auspices of the Board of Missions of the United Brethren in Christ.

TERMS.

One Year by mail,	£0 6 0
Delivered in Bonthe,	0 5 0
Half yearly by mail,	0 3 0
Ditto. delivered in Bonthe,	0 2 6

Address — Communications to J. A. Evans, Editor and Publisher, Bonthe, Sherbro, West Africa.

Subscriptions to be sent to Rev. D. F. Wunderson, Shaingay. Mr. E. A. Lewis Freetown, West Africa; and Rev. W. M. McKee, Dayton, Ohio, U. S. A.

DIRECTORY.

Commandant,	C. H. Harley Hawley.
Coroner,	The Commandant.
Chief Clerk,	M. J. W. Rocke
Interpreter	J. D. Rogers,
Bailiff.	F. C. S. Barbour
Sub-Treasurer and Col. Chief Clerk,	Commandant. J. D. Hawkesley.
Tide Waiters,	J. H Crown, J. B. Torney, J. J. Warburton.
Assistant Col. Surgeon.	M. L. Jarrett.
M. R. C. S.
Dispenser,	Rowland May.
Postmaster,	H. R. Williams.
Inspector of Police,	M. E. Betts.
Mariner.	J. A. Douglas
Secretary of Roads.	A. O. Walker
SOLDIERS.
Asst. Enseig. Officer.	Jasper Coulbor.

Religious Directory.

St. Matthew's Church,	Victoria Road,
Pastor,	Vacant.
Wesleyan Methodist,	Lime Street,
Pastor,	Rev. J. C. Thomas.
Mendi Mission,	(Congregational,) Good Hope
Rev R. C. Taylor,	Pastor.

The Greatest Question

Of this life, it really seems to me, is whether am I a true child of God or not? To me personally it does not matter what others are, or what they think of me or my piety. But it is important for me to know that I have been born a second time; that I have become a new creature in Christ Jesus; that old things have passed away; that I have in my breast the witness of my acceptance with God; and that He owns me for his child; an heir of the kingdom, a partaker of his holiness, purity and love.

E.

School Teaching in Sherbro

In an article that attracted my attention in the issue of the EARLY DAWN for December 15th 1889; and I quite agree with the writer in reference to many things he has stated in the article, and sympathize greatly with poorly paid teachers. More than this I would say that there ought to be an improvement in this matter, and that our teachers and preachers ought to be paid better for their services. But the great question is who is to do this: whether is it expected of the people of the Sherbro community, who are the parents and guardians of the children? Or the government of the Colony that now stands by with a few pounds of grants in aid of such schools, as may by any means meet its benignapprobation? or does the writer of the article refered, do expect the increase of teachers pay to be made by Missionary Societies? It seems indeed that parents ought to be willing to contribute to the support of those who labor to instruct their children, especially in cases where they know that the teacher only receives a pittance for his services. And do one who has seen a little of the World, and what facilities are offered by various Governments, it does seem that this Colony ought at least to relieve Missionary Societies of at least the necessity of supporting the primary schools, and let whatever means or energies these Societies possess be directed toward higher education. Of course, denominational prejudice may seem to offer a barrier to Government Schools' but this may be easily overcome by the Government opening good schools properly furnished with qualified teachers and such other things as are necessary to the running of a good school, then compel intelligent people to send their children to school a reasonable portion of the time. Further as a protection to real teachers, the authorities should require every private school to be licensed, and every master to be confirmed, whether teaching for the Government or otherwise. Such an arrangement would, in a few years revolutionize the whole school system and secure better pay for Teachers and better results to the people.

Yours,
L. A. BERTAN.

Teaching School

Has, now, pretty generally begun throughout the country. And most masters, it is to be hoped, are now endeavoring to so begin, as that their work may be a success. Well, there are just a few things that I would like to suggest to each teacher as very necessary to the desired end. First, acquaintance with each pupil, however small, dull, or sickly that any one may be. Second, be kind to all; whether you like their parents or not, use persuasion not coercion, on all possible occasions. Third, use pure good language in your intercourse with your pupils. Fourth do not reprove a pupil in anger, for wrath sorts the lips, lets out ugly words, which are not proper to schools. Sixth, have order in everything, among the books and slates as well as the children. Besides the above as it is expected that every male teachers will preach as well as teach; it is scarcely necessary for me to say that every teacher must be a true christian of large faith, much patience, and very zealous and prayerful.

Yours truly
J. ANON.

Will Farming Pay?

Is an important question in this part of the world where agriculture is so little known in its improved or even civilized modes. Hitherto preaching, teaching and trading have so monopolized the energies of all classes of civilized life and the filling of the soil has been left to the evil genuius of the savagery about us. No one that had a smattering of the rudiments of an elementary education could go dirty his hands by filling the soil.

The same too, may be said of such as by any means came into the possession of a little money and in by-gone years these all succeeded in a measure at least as well as to disdain the farmer, and as things have gone until at length we awake to the fact that the times have so greatly changed. And there is no alternative except for the women to seek some other pursuits than those which have answered the fathers. So we guess, reflect and think until we hear of speculators, the long live leaves look beautiful, we pronounced it, and are persuaded of its beauty as a theme, then we want to discuss it and the question of our caption comes up "Will Farming pay?" will digging and ploughing and hoeing give a sufficient return to remunerate to a man for his toil and privation? Will sowing and gathering bring money to a family? Well it seems to be a fact established beyond the shadow of a doubt that farming will do all these in other lands even in parts of the dark continent. In South Africa farmers are becoming wealthy. And just a short time ago the writer visited a farm here on Sherbro Island and was showed a field of more than 300 acres of Cassada, which is estimated to be worth more than £1000. 0. 0 (Two thousand pounds sterling) at even less than Market value.

This sounds like big money for Cassada, and yet we are assured that such is the yeild of a single farm, and that too, in Sherbro. And as the outlay for such a crop can scarcely have one fourth or twenty five per cent of the value of the crop. I feel that it fully answers the important question of our caption in the affirmative,—i. e. that Farming will pay. More again.

J. ANSON.

The God of Wealth

or riches is, I believe, generally thought to be a heathen deity; and it is said that the male Chinese pay their greatest devotions to this god and the reason is obvious. But are not thousands of devotees to this god among the professed followers of the lowly Christ? surely there are a host of men and women in Christendom, yea, I will say more, in the Church of Christ, whose whole hearts and affections are set on the riches of this world—money, houses, lands, clothing—the perish by using. Do not these as truly worship the god of wealth as the heathen Chinese?

Bear.

Annual Meeting At Shaingay

At different times of the day, on Jan. 22nd, boats could be seen making their way into the Shaingay harbour, bearing thither United Brethren preachers, teachers and other workers to attend the tenth annual meeting of the Sherbro, Mendi and Bonpeh missions. Some of these workers felt that they were going home, others were going to a place made familiar by previous visits; while some were going to Shaingay for the first time. All were glad to see one another, where the interests of the Master's vineyard work were to be considered. And all were pleased to greet the Superintendent, Rev. D. Sower and wife, who had so recently returned from America. Those faithful workers seemed glad to be back in their old field of labor, though their sunshine had been short and had brought them little rest. Any one who heard the earnest speeches of Brother Gower in Conference, could not but feel that his love for the work; and his desire to save souls in Africa had become greatly intensified.

At a previous meeting, the Board of Education had prepared a two days' programme for normal instruction, which was carried out on Thursday and Friday. As the first day, Reading was taught by Professor Wilkinson and Geography by Rev. R. H. West. These subjects were discussed in an enthusiastic manner by a number of the teachers. In the evening an interesting and practical paper was read by Rev. R. H. West, on "School Organization and System." The paper was followed by some animated discussion.

On Friday morning the Geography lesson was taken up and in the afternoon, Rev. J. A. Evans taught Geography. After announcing the course of study for the ensuing year the Educational meeting adjourned at 2 P. M. Immediately after adjournment, Conference convened. Rev. J. Gower presided. He Read as a Scripture lesson, Psalm cxxxiii, and made fitting remarks on the same.

In the evening the Temperance Army Band, dressed in their bright band costumes and gilts their white ribbon badges on, marched through the streets, making merry music, thus calling the people to Fleshman chapel. At the Chapel the people listened to an interesting and instructive lecture by Miss Gammon-lyle, "The Effects of Narcotics and Stimulants on the Human Body."

Most of Saturday was taken up to the reading of Reports up the Preaching Places and Stations. These were all very interesting And while they showed that the work was under strong difficulties, they also showed that the work of the Lord was moving steadily on, and that in many instances complete victories had been gained.

Some very stirring speeches were made on Saturday evening in regard to carrying the work further into the interior. And we believe every worker received some inspiration from the enthusiastic words of Rev. Wilberforce, that will lead to more faithful service.

Sunday morning, the people gathered in the chapel to a love feast meeting.

(Concluded on Page 2.)

The Early Dawn.
BONTHE, SHERBRO, FEB. 28, 1890

EDITORIAL.

ANOTHER thousand and more have been added to the membership of the U. B. Missions during the past year.

THE WORLD for Christ, is now the war song of the army of our Blessed Redeemer, and the louder we sing the more courage we shall have for the conquest.

THE FUTURE to the present has always been desirable to the majority of mortals, perhaps, since the world began. Man has ever been want to know what is to come. And when, whatever, is to come, shall come what will it bring to him. Oh he exclaims at times if I could but know what is in store for me. But God has not made it possible to know the details of the future. Yet he has granted us a greater privilege. That of making the future a life of everlasting peace joy and felicity.

WEALTH for the million is placed with in the reach of all men of every race, kindred and tongue on the face of the earth, no matter how poor the man may be today, or when he may feel to make an effort, to secure this great and important treasure, unlimitted riches; far excelling the wealth of Creasus or the glorious Solomon of ancient times. And moreover this wealth, of which we speak, that is obtainable by the reader of these lines, is enduring wealth, of the most desirable kind; consists we are told of a Crown more beautiful than the stars of the sky: a robe of lustrous white, a mansion of pure gold, in a great city with towering and lofty buildings, based on foundations of finest gems; with gates of pearl and streets paved with transparent gold, watered by a river of living water having on either side of it trees of life. In that beautiful city there is no sickness, sorrow, pain or death. No darkness, no tears. Thieves never enter the city; so your treasures are always secure. To such wealth, in such a city, we invite the attention of all men and point to Jesus as the Life and the Way: and to the blessed Bible as the guide-book and prospectus of the unlimited wealth offered freely to whosoever will avail himself, today, of the opportunity of securing eternal riches in Heaven.

A Distinguished Negro.

Colonel Geo. W. Williams, Author of the History of the Negro Race in America, 1619-1880, Two Vols. History of the Negro Troops in the War of the Rebellion, 1861-1865, One Vol. History of the Reconstruction of the Insurgent States, 1866-1885, Two Vols, now representing the Associated Library Press of America and the "London Times" on a tour of inspection of the Congo State, recently gave a call at our Mission House in Freetown. Col. Williams goes on his mission to the Congo, under the special patronage of the King of Belgium. He was born at Bedford Spring, Bedford County Maryland U. S. A., in 1849.

He ran away from home and enlisted in the Army when only 14 years of age. At the close of the Rebellion, he enlisted in the regular Army, and rose to the rank of Lieutenant Colonel. He was converted whilst a soldier and afterwards became a minister in the Baptist Church which he served in Cincinnati and Washington D.C.

Mr. Williams has also held various offices of trust. And is an efficient worker in the Temperance Cause. We wish him a successful tour, and hope to hear from him again.

(Continued from page 1.

Rev. E. C. Bickersteth led the meeting; and some warm testimonies were given.

At 11 o'clock, Rev. Gomer preached an earnest sermon from Philippians iii. 12. At the close of the sermon, he baptized several children and sixty-two persons gathered around the communion table to thus confess their Lord. They have a live Sunday School at Shaingay which is well attended. In the evening Rev. R. C. Taylor preached an earnest and practical sermon to an attentive congregation at the barra in Shaingay.

The closing sessions of conference were held on Monday.

The hospitality of Rev. Gomer, Rev. Wilberforce and their wives could not be surpassed. They entertained us in a royal manner.

On Tuesday we left these kind friends and departed for our different homes, and to our work, praying, that He who was the first missionary, and who had said to us "Go," to give us success in his work. FRANCES WILLIAMS.

Minutes of the Board of Education.

FIRST DAY—Morning Session.

The Board of Education met at Fitchinger Chapel at 2.30. A. M., Jan. 23rd., 1890, and was called to order by the President Rev. D. F. Wilberforce.

Devotional exercises were led by R. N. West. The roll was called and the minutes of the last meeting were read.

The President made an explanation as to the relation of the Board of Education to the Annual District Meeting. On motion Rev. J. Gomer, Miss Williams and Miss Grannedykie were admitted to advisory seats.

The Chairman was empowered to call for each exercise regardless of the time as indicated in the regular programme.

An explanation was made as to what kind of questions should be put into the question box, and by motion it was decided that persons appointed to answer said questions were limitted to five minutes each, and that not more than three persons be permitted to speak on one question.

The Chairman appointed R. N. West and J. A. Evans as a committee to prepare a programme of exercises for the next Annual Meeting. Adjourned on motion.

Afternoon Session.

The Board of Education met in afternoon session at the Chapel of the Training School building. Meeting was opened with singing, and prayer by H. J. Williams.

The first subject of the programme was "Reading," which was taught by Professor Wilberforce. Following the lesson Mr. C. A. E. Campbell and Mr. Doumbakiey were called upon to give examples in reading. This subject closed with an excellent rendering of a recitation by Miss Grannedykie.

The subject of "Grammar" was then taken up by R. N. West, who discussed "The Sentence and its Component Parts" giving outline of same on the blackboard. A half hour was then spent in answering questions and in general discussions.

Adjourned with singing Doxolgy.

Evening Session.

Meeting was called to order at 7:00. P. M. After singing and prayer, the roll was call-ed and all the members of the Board were present.

The principle exercises of the evening consisted of the reading of a paper by R. N. West on the subject of "Organization and System in the School." Then followed a general discussion of the subject. The question "Is Corporal punishment justifiable?" was pronounced and called out a lively discussion.

Adjourned with benediction by J. Gouss.

SECOND DAY—Morning Session.

Meeting was called to order by the Chairman—A hymn was sung and prayer was offered by W. S. Macaulay. Roll was called and minutes read and approved.

Committee to propose a programme of Exercises for the next Annual Meeting read their report as follows.—

Teacher's Course of Study for 1890.

I Reading—The general principles of reading as found in McGuffy's 5th Reader with exercises as follows:

Articulation—Lesson 9, Verses 5 to 9 and Lesson 8 First 10 Exercises in Articulation Page 12.

Inflection—Lesson 10, Lesson 29 begining at the 10th verse.

Emphasis Lesson 63 and 68

Monotone Lesson 64, Hamlet on the Skull of Yorick p. 31.

Practice Pause—Lesson 3.

II. Spelling The elementary sound and diacritical marks with lessons to illustrate the rules for spelling.

III. Penmanship, Principles of Spencerian System.

IV. Geography The British Isles and Europe.

V. Grammar, The parts of Speech.

VII. Arithmetic From compound numbers through common fractions to Exchange of currencies.

At eight o'clock the Subject of Arithmetic was presented by Miss E. Groom-dyke who Explained and illustrated the best methods of teaching the fundamental rules.

Adjourned with Doxology.

Afternoon Session.

At 11 a. m. the meeting was called to order and fifteen minutes were spent in devotion.

The next subject of the regular programme was Geography which was presented by J. A. Evans. After the lesson a few minutes was spent in general discussion.

On motion it was decided to close the afternoon sessions not later than two o'clock.

A short time was spent in answering questions.

Adjourned to meet at Flickenger Chapel at 7 p. m.

Evening.

The lecture of evening was delivered by Miss Groom-dyke on the "Effects of Narcotics and Stimulants on the Human Body."

A vote of thanks was tendered to the lecturer for the able manner in which the subject was presented and on motion the lecture was requested to have the paper published.

Minutes of the days sessions were read and approved.

The Secretary was ordered to record the Minutes in a proper book and preserve the same as property of the Board of Education.

Also to prepare a synopsis of the work of the Board and present same to the Annual District Meeting.

Adjourned to meet at the call of the President. Benediction by J. A. Evans

D. F. Wilberforce, President.
W. Sanford, Sec. Sec.

A Rural Scene.

Having to spend a sabbath in one of the towns of the Cockborrow district where a little school is being taught, I was awakened early by the ringing of a bell, learning that there was to be an inquiry meeting of the heathen people that was in training for church membership, I felt a desire to go and see how it was managed I was forcibly reminded too of my boy-hood days, when a mother now in heaven used to make several mischievous little ones wash their hands, face, and feet, and march off to sabbath school and to church. By following some children I found the place where the meeting was held it was an open barra there was a large number of children and perhaps 12 or 15 adults present, the catechist, was a man of perhaps 40 years of age evidently a native of Sierra Leone as he spoke altogether in English, a native boy took up each sentence and turned it readily into the native language, they sang the very familiar hymn—

Jesus loves me this I know,
For the bible tells me so.

Nearly all the children joined in the singing which was hearty, after this the catechist read a lesson from the Bible where it says God so loved the world and sent his Son to save the world, or something like that, then he made some remarkes about as follows, he said oh I am so sorry you do not understand that hymn, I like that hymn very much, because it tells how God loves me and not only me one but God like you all and so the bible talks too far: so I just read for God send his Son to die for we all. All the wickedness that you and all, we, have done, God Son, suffered and died to pay for that and mine you must thank God for that and beg him to take that heart away altogether and give you a good heart, so you cant vex God, he told them of one man that came and asked Jesus what he must da to be good Jesus told him, ye must be born again, and so to all of you if you want to be God's Children, you must be born again, after this he said, any one could talk or pray; several of the children asked, and some of the adults, but I could not understand what they said as they spoke in Sherbro.

I was pleased with what I saw and heard for [illegible] and the [illegible] spoke they were in earnest.

A TRAVELLER.

NEWS ITEMS.

Feb. 5—Formoso from Freetown with Mr. A. Fitzjohn, Mrs Barnister and several others.

Feb. 7—Formoso for Freetown with Rev. J. C. Thomas, Father Blanchet, master Theo. Jarrett and Mrs. Oriely.

Feb. 14. Drowned—Mr. Jere Beckles a well known trader at Goree in the Big Boom River was drowned at Shaingamah on his way to Bendoo.

Messrs J. B. Wright (J. P.) and G. R. L. Thomson arrived here on the 16th the former from England and the latter from Freetown.

A club was organised by the young men in this place for the purpose of enlivening the community in general, we wish the promoters sucess in their undertakings.

We regret very much to learn that our friend Mr. Bidwell Coker has been suffering for some weeks past with a severe abscess on his right arm. We wish him a speedy recovery to health.

Sherbro Revenue Report.

Imports 1888, £59,290 *s*11 *d*8
" 1889, £64,437 *s*15 *d*i
Increase, " £9,248 *s*3 *d*3
Exports 1888, £65,681 16*s d*6
" 1889, £85,985 *s*19 *d*10
Increase, " £21,805 *s*11 *d*11
Receipts 1888, £13664 *s*3 *d*4
" 1889, £16174 *s*12 *d*1
Increase, " £2510 *s*8 *d*9.

A Social Gathering
AT MR. ROLAND MAY'S.

On Tuesday the 4th inst, Mr. Rowland May entertained at his residence, in Medina St., quite a number of people to participate with him in enjoying themselves on the occasion of the "eve" of Mr. D. L. Collier's marriage which was to take place in Freetown the following day.

At 7- p. m., the hour appointed for the occasion, the house was quite full and every one seemed very merry and cheerful. It must be remembered that Mr. Collier is brother-in-law to Mr. May, hence this grand undertaking which at once proves for itself that these two gentlemen have been living in perfect harmony and in the bond of brotherhood, which noble example should be imitated by those who are thus circumstanced.

The women who are always jolly on such occasions, danced from 7. to 12 p. m., when the company seperated.

On Wednesday the 5th inst, the day the marriage was celebrated in Freetown, a concourse of women assembled at Mr. May's to do a "big cooking" in honour of the occasion; Cooking utensils of enormous sizes were to be seen finding their way to this gentleman's residences. After cooking was over, all with one accord did ample justice to what was provided; then followed the different native dancings, which gave satisfaction to all present. Dancing continued till late at night, when all went home satisfied.

"AN EYE WITNESS."

Feb. 7th., 1890.

Our New Edition.

The "EARLY DAWN" has been in existence for the last time about 7 years.

It first saw the light under the Mendi Mission control, and then ceased until it was again issued first by the Rev. D. F. Wilberforce in February 1884.

It has not yet accomplished its mission. Whilst we are thankful for the support that our friends have given us, we come now to make a new bargain with you. We want each old subscriber to be an agent to get new subscribers; we are too poor to offer premiums but a kind Father in Heaven will reward you. We intend to change the tone of it somewhat and make it a mission paper with Africa for the principal topic. We shall not discuss politics or personal matters; but Religion, Industry, Temperance and whatever will lift up and benefit the human family will have a hearing. People abroad have no idea of the trouble worry and disadvantage of publishing a paper here in West Africa: 1. Experienced workmen are scarce. 2. Materials are hard to get and high in price. 3. Very few people will subscribe for a paper. 4. Scarcity of news; all of the news comes from Europe or America, and it is quite stale before it gets here. 5. Our energies are greatly paralyzed by the climate.

We hope our friends across the water as well as here will bear with our infirmities and give us their support. Our chief aim shall be to show the actual condition of the people among whom we live; their wants and their capabilities, the the industries of the country, what they are and what they can be made by persevering industry, also we shall try to shew to the christians the duty they owe to Africa. The other nations have claims, but what nation have such strong claims as Africa; what nation has been imposed on, what nation has been so degraded and when educated and civilized; what nation has brighter talent. We shall prove without controversy that Africa is a splendid field in which to invest missionary money. J. G.

Shaingay, Feb. 1890.

On Vacation.

It has been my custom for some years, to spend the school vacation season, here, among relatives, and if time permits, make a visit into the adjoining territories. In the year 1885, I visited the late chief of Manoh, Carjoe, and in 1888, and 1889 I went into the Mo'Bantha territory. These visits were very short but resulted in an urgent request on the chief, to open a Mission in his town, promising that he would build a house for the purpose.

These visits have revealed to us, districts of countries remarkable for scenery, and resources, and crowded populations; locations, "beautiful for situation" for the worship of Jehovah our God, but which have been devoted to devil and spirit worship. I scarcely think that the church is justified in devoting all its energies in the sparsely settled districts of the sea-coast. I fear that the present methods of Mission work in most churches, have tempted many to take their "ease in Zion," thus disregarding th command of our Master, "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature." Can any other, than Apostolic method of giving the word to the world gives the desired and long prayed-for results of Mission ary work? With our schools, by which the rising generation is brought under our influence, an l special messengers of truth, whose work must be to "go" and preach every where, greater will be our success.

On my way to this place two weeks ago, I was accompanied by Rev. W. S. Macaulay of Danville Station. We arrived at a town about this place about midnight. We had barely water enough given us to wash our feet. We were told that water was very scarce, and the people had to wait till the tide ebbed to get fresh water. About 5 a. m. I was awakened by a voice calling upon the occupants of several houses to go to the spring, as the water was low. Soon, girls and women were running about with kettles, and pots, and available utensils, which being filled, must serve till the next ebbing of the tide.

At daylight I proposed to the people that if they do not go to farm work next day, I would help them dig a well.

They thought it a big undertaking. But when I showed them how they would be situated should fire break out at night or any time, and no water on hand, they agreed to try. They worked hard the next day, and obtained water.

I came on to Danville and have spent two sabbaths with the people of this place. Among items of interest here, was the attendance of Mohamedans at the various meetings. Last sabbath morning a Mohamedan priest, a very intelligent man attended the meeting. He was very attentive during service, but complained that the school children troubled him too much. They would have him take his cap from his head and kneel during prayers, and added, "I been want to complain but I no want to make noise because I fear the book from which you talk because nar God book." We appointed an afternoon meeting in the town. Another attendant at morning service and other meetings was a Soosoo trader. He now closes his store on Sunday and promised me he will always do so. He went with us to the afternoon service. On the way, we met a man and a woman cruelly tied with rope. They were in charge of a man, who explained, that they were runaway slaves. Our trader stepped up to him and said, loose them! 5. These people cry to me to help them. I no want for see person so today, loose them, and go tell their masters he must come to morrow, I will pay him." I have seldom if ever, seen a more immediate answering to prayer. The most striking it is, when it comes from a Mohamedan trader. An interesting service, during which several chiefs were present, closed my second sabbath here.

D. F. WILBERFORCE,
Danville, [illegible]

From the Million.

No Night There.

"There shall be no night there." Revelation xxi. 25.

The unsaved world is a perfect contrast with the present world—just the very opposite of this world. Here we labor; there we rest. Here we have war; there is peace. Here we mourn; there we meet. Here we die; there we live. Here we are poor; there rich. Here humiliation; there exalted. Here in bondage; there in freedom. Here we have night—darkness; there we shall have light—eternal day. If it were not that sleep—or rather that night produces sleep, and sleep rest, without which no human or animal life could exist, it would be far better to have no night here; for, truly, it is unpleasant during the greater part of the year. It is only in mid summer that we welcome night as the messenger of relief from the sultry and the oppressive heat of the day. The rest of the year night is an intruder, except for the purposes above mentioned. The night also destroys the beauty of things on earth. The green fields and woods, the great variety of the most beautiful colors of flowers, and thousands of pleasant objects, are all turned to gloom by the shades of night. But, most of all, night is the time for the commission of crime. It is in the dark, black night that the thief and robber, the fornicator and the adulterer, the assassin and the murderer go forth to gratify their worst passions and commit the foulest, most horrid and shocking crimes of earth.

No night! No night! No night there!!! No dark! shadows, gatherings in the west, no evening twilight merging into the gloom of night, no summer sunset rays fading too soon, no threatening clouds by tempest chased athwart the noonday sky. No night there "All tranquil days, transcendent light a sacred chain, link after link, each locked in each," extending through eternal ages, amid the ceaseless hallelujahs and loud exclamations of unnumbered hosts of saints and angels there. "No night! no night of sorrow there, no midnight cry for dawn of day; for there day never dawns but ever, and never ceases but but only rolls, nor never loses in night a single ray. Happy place!

"O'er all those wide extended plains
Shines one eternal day;
There God the Son forever reigns,
And scatters night away."

"No night! no night with mantle dark to cover sin. No in to hide! Ecstatic thought! No ill to shun!" Endless day! begun—day, world without end, Amen! Then, for the first time, shall be sung in understanding, "As it was in the beginning, is now, and ever shall be, world without end, Amen!"

"No night! no night!! No traveler shall grope about to find his way;" for He whose visage marred" when incarnated—all glorious now—"the Light of Day," shall lead the heavenly traveler far over the fields of living green and everlasting day. Pilgrim traveler, take courage and travel on. Though tired and weary and ready to falter, you ask "Watchman, what of the night! Watchman, what of the night!" The Watchman replies, "The morning cometh;" the day too, the eternal day of rest and heaven. Soon you will reach the shining shore. The last song of your pilgrimage will be, "Farewell, mortality! Farewell, ye shades of night!" Soon you shall stand upon the "bright morning hills of the new world, welcomed there by those who passed on before you, through earth's weary night, up to celestial day. We speak of pain suffering and distress as night. And how many exclaim with Job, "O when shall the night be gone?" or with David "Weeping may endure for a night: but joy cometh in the morning." So, also, the night of pain suffering and tribulation will have an end. It may be a long dark night; but the morning will come, and the great the glorious and everlasting joy. Even the night for the patient, suffering followers of Jesus shall have signs of promise,

Dear reader, has your way been dark and gloomy? Has your life been more night than day? Falter not; the more night you have here, the more day you will have there. Is your night one of poverty—are you poor? Do those around you live in splendor? Have they more than heart can wish? Envy not their dainties. You will soon be richer far than all earth's wealth combined. Your splendor will eclipse that of the nations of the world. The Golden City is yours. The ceaseless, countless treasures of of heaven will be laid at your feet by the King, now invisible, but who has all power, glory and dominion. "For all things are yours; whether Paul, or Apollos, or Cephas, or the world, or things to come; all are yours; and ye Christ's; and Christ is God's" 1 Cor. 3: 21. 22, 23. O! happy state of the children of God! What an inheritance!

The begining of human life is a fair morning and bright day; but ere noon clouds and night obscure it. "Let us cast a wistful eye back to the period of childhood." How well we remember the old fields over which we roamed; the brooks on whose velvety banks we played on a bright summer's day; the hills, high and steep to or childish fancy, whose sides we climbed either in search of the earliest wild flowers in the spring time, or merely to exhaust the exuberance of a childish glee." Then all of life was bright and fair. No cloud was seen in the most distant part of the sky. And in youth there was, comparably, freedom from anxiety and care. It seemed not to border closely on sadness. Then there were pleasures obtained from the world which have no relish now; then fields had a freshness, and the sky an azure by the day and a spangled brilliancy by night which are not consciously noticed now; then society had attractions and amusements were participated in and enjoyed, for which there are now no affinities."

May those who are walking in the gloom of night and in the valley of the shadow of death see the morning light of an eternal day. It is just at hand, dear friends—companions of a night journey, bound for the land all fair and immortal, where no stormy clouds nor gloomy nights can ever come. As we are now in the midst of the time of the year when we have more night than day, and the night is long and dark and stormy, let us often think and talk of that land where there is no night. Let our conversation be in heaven, from whence we also look for the appearing of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, at whose second coming the world we now inhabit shall be transformed into a new world, with no night to shade the beauty and the pleasures of the day. O, let us journey on through the night, far from the old home, and the quiet country church-yard, where we laid down to sleep our mother, sister, brother.

And in the silent night, as we dream of home again the vision tells us to be brave.

Though we may never see that dear place again, we will wait a little while—only a little while, and we shall see them all again. "For if we believe that Jesus died, and rose again, even so them also which sleep in Jesus will God bring with him." No night! No night there! No night in heaven!

J. M. Gregory.

What Shall I Do To Be Saved? Is indeed an old question, it well sit upon from a multitude on the day of Pentecost, who gospel arrows, of searching truth had pierced, the obdurate hearts of three thousand persons, under the powerful sermon of that memorable day.

Again we hear it, as it were sounding out on the stormrent air this night in Philippi when the earthquake shaken loose the fetters of the Lords Ambassadors and burst wide open the prison doors of the Jail. Indeed it has been heard all along the line of history of the redeemed Church.

It has ever worked the arrest in wander souls return from the prodigal life of sin. No words perhaps have fraught with greater energy than these as they have escaped the lips of a deeply convicted person, struck down under the potent influence of the Spirit of God, feeling that he must get help or sink into the dungeons of eternal perdition. And yet while this is true it is also true that nothing is better for the soul to gain than that it should reach this experience. E.

Smiles.

His Last Resort—Physician; "Now, Mrs. Smallstalk, will you let me look at your tongue?" Mrs Smallstalk (two minutes later): "Well, doctor, why in the world don't you look at my tongue, if you want to, instead of writing away like a newspaper editor? How long do you expect I am going to sit here wit my mouth wide open?" Physician; "Just one moment more please, madam. I only wanted you to keep still long enough so long that I could write this prescription."

—Sel.

THE
Early Dawn
PRINTING OFFICE.
PLAIN, ARTISTIC and CHEAP JOB WORK EXECUTED AT
SHORT NOTICE
ENQUIRE OF
R.G. Barker,
PAINTER.

THE EARLY DAWN.

"The Morning Light Is Breaking, The Darkness Disappears."

VOL. VII. BONTHE, SHERBRO, WEST AFRICA, MARCH 15, 1890. No. 4.

The "Early Dawn."

Published Semi-Monthly at Bonthe, Sherbro. Under the Auspices of the Board of Missions of the United Brethren in Christ. Rev J. A. Evans, Editor and Publisher, Bonthe, Sherbro, West Africa.

AGENTS.

United States.—Rev. I. K. Statton, Cedar Rapids, Iowa. Rev. Wm. J. Davis, Bestl, Ohio. Rev. J. T. Jenifer, Chicago, Ill. Rev. J. L. Hensley, Marion, O. Rev. J. S. Cleaver, Elkhart, Ind. Revs. R. P. Martin and D. K. Flickinger, Willoughby, O. Rev. H. Ellwell, Dayton, Washington, Ter., M. J. Stoner, Manheim, Pa., Master Charlie Howe, Manchester, Ind. Rev. G. W. Arnold, Eldorado, Ohio.

West Africa.—J. A. Richards, River Gambia. Rev. J. R. Frederick, Freetown, Sierra Leone. Rev. James Deputy, Marshall, Liberia, Mr. Moses Boyle, Liberia.

TERMS.

One Year by mail,	£0	6	0
Delivered in Bonthe,	0	5	0
Half yearly by mail,	0	3	0
Dito. delivered in Bonthe,	0	2	6

Minutes of the Tenth Annual District Meeting of the Sherbro Mission.

The Tenth District Meeting of the Sherbro, Mendi, and Bompeh missions convened in the chapel of the Training School Building at Shaingay W. A. Friday Jan. 24 1890, at 2 p. m.

The General Superintendent Rev. J. Gomer called the meeting to order and conducted devotional exercises.

Roll was called and the following members answered to their names

J. Gomer, J. A. Evans, D. F. Wilberforce, R. N. West, W. S. Sage, W. S. Macaulay, R. C. Taylor, S. B. Morrison, H. J. Williams, H. J. Weeks, and F. M. Stuart. Absent, J. B. W. Johnson, C T. Gray, J. C Sawyer, J. W. Pratt, and J. M. Lesher.

The conference was organized by the election of W. S. Sage as Secretary and D. F. Wilberforce assistant Secretary.

On motion it was agreed to hold the remainder of the sessions in Fiekinger chapel.

Mrs. Sage, Miss Groenendyke, and Miss Williams, together with all the regularly employed teachers who were not members of the conference were admitted to advisory seats.

The Chair then announced the following Committees: Devotion, Wilberforce and Sage, course of reading, West and Evans: Publishing Interests Morrison and H. J. Williams, Missions, Sage; Church Work How to reach the Woman and Girls of Africa Mrs. Sage, Day Schools Wilberforce and Miss Groenendyke, Sunday Schools, Miss Williams; Church Erection W. S. Macaulay. On applicants Wilberforce and West.

The following persons were appointed to correspond with the following papers, Telescope, Mrs Sage; Evangel, Miss Groenedyke, Early Dawn, Miss Williams; Weekly News, C.A.E. Campbell South Western Christian Advocate H. J. Williams.

Adjourned with prayer by Miss Groenedyke.

Second Day.—Morning Session.

Meeting came to order at 7.30. Devotional exercises were conducted by J. A. Evans.

Roll was called and minutes read and approved. The bar of the house was fixed and members requested to be seated within the bar.

Rev. J. A. Evans, S. B. Morrison, and R. C Taylor, were appointed committee on grievances.

J. A. Evans made his report as presiding Elder of Shaingay District, conference then proceeded with examination of the members of this district all of whom passed except Dr Berger whose name was refered to committee on grievances.

Chair then announced committee on boundaries, Wilberforce, Morrison, Luke, A. F. Campbell, stationing committee, West, Evans, Sage.

Adjourned with prayer by R.C Taylor.

Afternoon Sessions.

Meeting was promptly called to order at 11 30. a. m. A hymn was sang and prayer was offered by S. B. Morrison.

Chairman announced committee on resolutions R. C. Taylor, W. S. M'caulay and H. J. Williams.

The presiding Elder of Mendi District read his report and the Itinerants and Teachers, of this district were examined all of whom passed as to moral and official character.

The names of F. M. Stuart, C. T. Grey, and J. W. Pratt, were refered to the committee on grievance.

R. N. West, the presiding Elder of Bompeh District made the report of that district. His moral and official character passed as well as that of all the other members of Bompeh District.

In connection with the calling of the name of Rev. J. C. Sawyer, the Secretary was instructed to write to him expressing the sympathy of this body and to convey any contributions that might be made for him. The amount of £3 6 0 three pounds six shillings was received and forwarded by the secretary

The names of E C Bickerstetth, and, and C A E Campbell were presented as applicants for membership in the district meeting. The names were refered to the proper committee.

The report of committee on day schools was read and adopted.

An excellent paper was read on the subject of Sunday School work by Miss Williams the paper was adopted.

Chair appointed committee on Moral Reform C A E Campbell, Temperance, S. B. morrison.

The Secretary of the Board of Education made a report of the work of the Board for the past year and after considerable discussion the report was adopted. The following is the report:

The Board of Education would beg leave to submit the following report as a synopsis of its work during the year

The first meeting was held at Rotafank December 17. 89. And after due consideration of the work to be done a programme of exercises was prepared for two days normal work to be held in connection with the Annual District meeting. Lessons were selected and teachers appointed.

The Board again met in Shaingay January 23rd 1890 at 7.30 a.m. and carried out the full programme as previously arranged.

We would recommend that there be fewer schools and these schools be fully equipped with good teachers, black boards, maps etc, and that wherever practicable the teacher be required to give his whole time to school work during the school year.

On motion it was decided to continue the Board of Education as appointed at the last annual meeting for a term of four years from date, and to enlarge to seven members instead of five to include the general superintendent and any one that the Board might select.

A paper was read by mrs. Sage subject, How to reach the Women and Girls of Africa.

The paper was dopted. Adjourned with prayer by mrs Williams.

Evening Session.

Devotional exercises began at 7 led by R G Caulker.

Roll was called and minutes read and approved.

A finance committee was appointed to make assessment of the various fields of labor for the coming year. Chair appointed West, Wilberforce, and Evans, said committee.

The report of the committee on missions was taken up and after a warm earnest discussion was adopted.

Reports of the Committee on Church Erection moral Reform, and Publishing Interests were read and adopted.

Adjourned with prayar by J. Gomer to meet at 7.30. a. m monday morning.

Third Day.—Morning Session.

Meeting was called to order and a half hour was spent in devotional exercises conducted by W. S. M'Caulay.

Roll was called and minutes read and approved.

On motion the action of the meeting in referring the name of D. Berger to the Committee on grievance was rescinded as he is not a member of this body.

As the committees were not ready to report the meeting adjourned to meet at 11.30 a.m.

Afternoon Session.

Devotional exercises was conducted by W. S. Sage.

The committee on applicants or conference membership reported as follows:

Bro E C Bickerstieth, and Bro C A E Campbell appeared before your committee and were examined as per discipline.

They each gave very satisfactory answers in doctrine and were quite ready with scripture proof. Neither had pursued all the quarterly conference course of reading but as they have read other works covering the same subjects we recommend that they be admitted to this District meeting but that they be required to pursue the quarterly conference course of reading before taking up the Annual Conference course of reading

The report was adopted and the brethern were received.

The report of the committee on Temperance was read and adopted.

Committee on Boundries read the following Sherbro and Mendi mission.

Shaingay Station remain unchanged Tissanna and Senneboo District changed to Shaingay circuit to include the Party, Bondokoh, Tissanah, Cottah, Senneboo, Shoongeh, Tassah, Kangamah, go'Banneh, and go'Baily.

Yorgbafor Circuit, Yandahoo, go'-Yoor, Tegbeforon, Geebeenah, Cherbokoh Bereah, Yorgborfor Combay, Rongtoke manchegbar, go'Cauy, gokella, Wilberforce Village and Good Hope.

Manoh Circuit, Manoh, Thoombah, Bendoo Kooioonge and Bompehtooka to form one circuit but sub-divided as follows—

Bompehtooka Division includes Salt Pond, Boselaida, Paraywarboo, go'sara, Gaindarah Soomboyah wofiti, Mentibyo Geahoo, Gambia, Carmiloh.

N'Charmay circuit to remain as it is with Moharrah added.

Tongkolloh circuit remain as before and itinerants to visit as many towns as they like.

Rembee circuit also Mamboo unchanged.

Mo'Fuss circuit has Mo'will and Cancoloh added and as many towns as can be reached inland.

Mocobo circuit begins with golakhat Poonkey, Gaindamah, and towns along the river up to Mocobo and inland from Mocobo as far as itinerant can reach but not to take up towns on Matacong side.

Matacong circuit begins with Bendil matacong and Daaaboo including all towns now visited and as many more as can be reached.

Appointments on Mendi Mission District remains unchanged except that Mattro and its towns, be under Avery station and not under Koocoonay.

Bompeh mission—Appointments remain unchanged with such additions as may be made if opportunity offers.

Committee on second years course of reading made their report as follows.—

S. B. morrison appeared before us and was examined as per discipline.

He had read only a part of the books required. He appeared to be sound in doctrine, but does not sufficiently clear in statement nor grounded in the proofs of the doctrine and history of the Church and recommend that he be continued another year in the 2nd year's course of reading.

The following resolutions were read and adopted—Resolved that we most heartily endorse the action of the Executive Committee in the appointment of Rev J Gomer, as accredited superintendent and Financial agent for all the Sherbro and Mendi mission schools buildings farms, and other property.

Whereas Rev J. Gomer and wife have been safely brought to us again by the kind providence of our heavenly Father.

Therefore resolved, That we extend to them the hand of welcome and pray that they may be strengthened to labor a mong us for the conversion of souls and the building up of Christ's Kingdom.

(Continued from page 1.)

Therefore Resolved That we extend to them the hand of welcome and pray that they may be strengthened to labor among us for the conversion of sin and the building up of Christ's Kingdom.

That we most heartily appreciate the coming into our midst Miss Frances Williams and Miss E. Groenendyke who have lately arrived from America and hereby tender them and Mrs. Sage our thanks for the able papers which they have kindly prepared and read for the benefit of this meeting.

That we tender our heartfelt thanks to our beloved Superintendent for the kind and christian manner in which he has presided over the deliberations of our district meeting.

That we hereby return our thanks to Revs. J. Comer, and D. F. Wilberforce, and their wives together with Mrs. Biekersteth and other christian friends for the kind hospitable manner in which they have entertained us during our stay among them and pray heaven choicest blessings upon them.

Committee on grievance made their report which was refered back for definite instuctions.

Reports and Resolutions.

Presiding Elder's Report of Shaingay Mission District.

It is rather an unexpected duty that I am now called to perform in presenting this report to this meeting. Rev. W. S. Sage was appointed or chosen as presiding Elder of this district, and even in conjunction with Rev. D. F. Wilberforce accomplished the first second and third rounds when owing to other pressing circumstances, he was obliged to ask for relief which was granted by the Board of Missions and I was directed by their order to take charge of the District which I did on the 6th day of Oct. '89. But it was in November, before I was able to visit the district and commence active operations by which time the year was far spent: yet I found that the brethren had nearly completed the work of the year, and done it well, and I feel that much praise is due them for their efficient management of the work during the greater part of the year. The fourth round was made by the Rev D. F. Wilberforce and my self. We found the District every thing considered in fairly good condition, especially spiritually. I feel that Bros. W. S. Sage and D. F. Wilberforce should make some remarks in connection with this report as they had the work in hand during the earlier part, and the greater portion of the year.

J. A. Evans.

Mendi Mission District.

It is with mingled gratitude and regret that I appear before this annual gathering with this report; gratitude for blessings received from our God Heavenly Father but regrets for opportunities unimproved, especially for the glory of God and the good of men. Yet do these I may not dwell. The District as arranged at our last annual meeting consists of five principle and two subsidiary changes viz. Good Hope, Avery, Danville, Mandoe, Konoonany, Mosahlu South and Mattyo. These except the last were supplied at the annual meeting. The Brethren, all returned from the meeting in good cheer and determined on making a good year of it. Their reports to follow must show how they have succeeded, but viewing or reviewing from my stand point as Elder of the district taken as a whole the work has advanced on every charge, although there has not been an increase in members on all the charges yet there has been other, chiefly spiritual growth to compensate in a measure for lack of increase or even decline in numbers. Good Hope however presents spiritual, financial and organic development such as has never marked any previous year.

Everything has not been done that could have been, yet it is gratifying to note the vast improvement that has been made under the Rev. R. C. Taylor's pastorate.

One house of worship is far on the way in building in the limits of Bonthe, and materials are being gathered for a second at Bomplake, where Bro. Campbell has been especially laboring.

Avery has done well in a spiritual, sense has had severe trials. Several villages were destroyed by fire, and some Seekers Classes thus lost.

This in a measure accounts for the decrease in numbers, but not altogether as there were removals and deaths from other causes. Itinerating was hindered by cannibals that raged for a time throughout the rounds of the charge, also by sickness.

Danville, under W. S. MacCauley, prospered well, with increase of members but other work being built and dedicated. The use of worship which has given marked impetus to the work there.

Mando has just moved in numbers more than any other charge, but it has not had sufficient force, an assistant is greatly needed and the itinerant should be relieved from teaching. Konoonany was reached by the Elder during the early part of the year and Bro. Cole who had charge of the station was very ill for some time, infact we despaired of his life at one time, but by the mercy of our God in answer to many fervent prayers he was spared and returned to his work and by his energy and perseverance we have a good report from that station.

Mosahlu South was at our last annual meeting placed under the charge of S. E. Morris, son of Avery Station, by him the class was subsequently placed under the leadership of Bro. Marsden Brown and has done well. Matyo has also been under the supervision of Bro. Morrison, a boarding school has been erected there during the year which is nearing completion. In this connection I should state we were obliged to borrow under the legacy of Mrs. Johnson to the heirs she having deceased before signing the will. J. A. Evans.

Bompeh Mission District.

It is with feelings of love and gratitude to Almighty God and the dear Savior for His abundant mercies and blessings that I am permitted to meet with you again in annual district meeting.

The Lord has been very gracious to us in this Bompeh district. The health of all our workers has been preserved and we have had a year of earnest active work uninterrupted by wars or other disasters. There as been a good deal of opposition from the enemies of Christ, but the Lord has mercifully upheld us and the work has prospered. During the year Mr. Sage and [illegible] number of our mission boys made an interesting trip to the Mendi country. We were absent from home seventeen days, and extended our trip as far as Bo, a town of about 40000 inhabitants lying almost due east from Rotufunk and 150 miles distant. From our observation of the country and people we were greatly drawn toward them and feel that it is a rich field for missionary effort, and should be occupied at the earliest day possible. The Lord has at last answered our prayers for teachers for our school at Rotufunk by sending to us Misses Eliza Groenendyke and Frances Williams. These ladies have already begun their work of teaching though the pupils are dissheartened at the delay in the expected until the completion of a new school house which is now in process of erection. The distinctive work of these ladies is that of teaching and they will not be expected to do any other work. Should they however have time and strength to do any further work they can do house to house visitation and work among the sick.

At the annual district meeting last year the Palli school was stopped and the stations of Falli, Marmo and all of Bompeh except the town of Bompeh was united under the name of Bompeh Circuit and placed under the charge of J. P. W. Johnson. The town of Bompeh was made a station and both the school and pastoral work were placed under the charge of Rev. William Thompson.

This annual gathering is worked exceedingly well and the result has been that with only two workers engaged much more and better work has been done this year than any former year with three workers in the field.

The chart will show a gain in every item except in number of schools where there has been 5 Schools off of the year owing to the rearrangement of the district and in the number of scholars, where there is a seeming but not a real loss. The decreapancy arising from an error in the report of the teacher at Bompeh last year. The chart will also show a gain of one mission house and one chapel. These have been built during the year but have not been formerly reported for the reason that they had been originally provided by the people of the town and I had not regarded them as strictly belonging to the mission.

Our itinerants have during the year reached 122 towns. We have 82 regular appointments, there are two fully organized churches with 51 members, 35 seekers classes with 1369 members, making in all 1420 Members and Seekers. There are seven places for the year of 34 appointments, fully organized churches 22 seekers classes, 14 full members and 586 seekers; making 570 members and seekers in all. The collection for the year were £18 5 11. There are taken on the district 6 Telescopes, 1 Missionary Visitor, 1 Children's Friend, 8 Bible Teachers, 6 Bible Quarterlies, 110 Leaves for Little Ones, 1 Bible Lesson Picture, 10 Evangels and 3 Early Dawns.

Respectfully submitted, R. S. West.

Missions.

The key note of the church is found in the words of Christ when he said to his disciples "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature." With this command the word of God has been carried into almost every country and preached in many languages. For this purpose we labor.

Our work is supposed to be purely missionary. To this end we ought to think and plan. We should ever keep in mind the fact that the great object of the church is to win souls for Christ and build souls up in Christ. We live in the midst of a heathen people surrounded by thousands who are dying without a knowledge of Christ. Doors are thrown open and invitations come from far in the interior for us to come and tell them of God. Let us do all we can do ourselves, and encourage all the native agencies possible, such as aid Societies and itinerating bands and also urge the church at home to send men and means sufficient to occupy these already ripened fields.

As workers together with Christ we should seek the endowment of power such as comes only with the baptism of the Holy Ghost.

We are truly thankful to God that so much interest has been manifested during the past year by the church at home in the subject of missions. That the parent Board has been able to pay so much toward the liquidation of the mission debt and that the Womans missionary Association has been able not only to send reinforcement to the work here but also to open a new work in China.

We are glad that God has so graciously blessed our own work and we will continue to look to him who has promised to be with us even unto the end.

Church Erection.

Whereas, it has become necessary to build places of worship throughout the fields upon which we labor. Therefore Resolved 1st, that it should be the duty of the Elders and itinerants whose business it should be to impress the same upon the minds of the people as far as possible.

Resolved 2nd: That sincere prayer be offered to Almighty God for what has been done in the past and for his grace, so that each heart may feel their responsibility.

[to be continued next issue.]

The Early Dawn.

BONTHE, MARCH 15, 1890.

[EDITORIAL.]

Aim High is as good a motto in religion as physiography.

Keeping the heart cleansed is as necessary to godliness, as the keeping of the blood pure is to the health of the body.

"Watch and Pray" is an old and revered maxim, but for the exiegencies of the present church, it seems that it should be watch, pay and pray.

The visit of the Governor, Sir James S. Hay, on the 25th. inst. to this district so shortly after his return from England although not attended with any public demonstration or civic display of the populace of the Sherbro capital, was nevertheless an occasion of real rejoicing on the part of the people of this place; and his Excellency can feel assured that if any were remiss in formalities, that none were so in their devotion. His Excellency's early visit of several days to the district reassures us of his great interest in our general welfare.

The departure of Commandant Mosely, on the 3rd inst; on leave to England, is in a sense rather more significant, as it is expected that if he can secure promotion he will not return to Sherbro. In such an event his leave will be final; should it be so, we wish him all possible success elsewhere, if not a safe return.

The eyes of the commercial world are upon this dark continent and prospectors and explorers of almost every description are delving into the juicles of our dense forests, or roving over the extensive grass plains. Voyaging along our coasts or pushing their way through our numerous rivers all in search of valuable products to enhance the perishable wealth of this low ground sorrow where at best it can be enjoyed but for a little season by those who toil for it. But how strauge that the same energy and enterprise does not seem to be put forth by missionary societies in general. For it must be evident to the most casual observer that with all our boasted missionary energy, of this nineteeth century, we are not keeping pace with the energy and push of the mercantile world. Surely Christians should arouse from their present lethargic state, and make greater efforts since our cause is a highly worthy one, and the end songht is for the peace of earth, the joy of heaven where all shall be amply rewarded for all their labors. We have too, a decided advantage on our side, as regards materials; for we have no need of seeking scarcely, the materials for our work are at hand every where, myriads of degraded souls are present all over this broad land. In every hamlet the gospel hammer is sadly needed to break the adamant heart of viet and ignorance, and search for the diamond of virtue and wisdom with which to enhance the wealth of heaven.

Falconbridge Letters.—on the early history of Sierra Leone will appear soon in our paper

LOCAL NEWS.

From Bendoo.—A Mrs. Jones delivered of a daughter on the 22nd of February.

Feb. 21—A soiree given a select number of gentlemen in honor of the return of Messrs. J. B. Wright (J. P.) and G. R. L. Thompson, to Sherbro. The band of the Amateur club was in attendance. It was a nice gathering.

Feb. 28. Countess of Derby from Freetown with mails.

Feb. 28. S. S. Mandingue, for Freetown with mails; Messrs C. Barthelomew and Walter of the F. O. A. passengers for France.

Mar. 2. Countess of Derby from Freetown, with Rev. J. C. Thomas as passenger for this place.

Mar. 2. Countess of Derby for Freetown with His Excellency, Gov. Hay and suite. Also Commandant Moseley who leaves for England on leave of absence.

S. M. Bennett Esq., assumes charge of the District in the absene of Mr. Moseley.

Died—Mrs. Lucy During on the 4th inst. after a protracted illness, and was buried on the 5th.

Boat "Ellen," Williams master for Freetown.

Mar. 7. Mr. T. F. French, late of York Island, who was brought down from Koranko sick, died at Bonthe the 7th inst and was buried on the 8th.

Boat "Adeline," for Freetown with mails.

Mar. 10. A sailing ship arrived from Freetown consigned to S. B. A. Macfoy of Yelbana.

RIVER ITEMS.

From Shaingay.—We hear of the arrival of a distinguished guest, Mrs. Leavitt the great temperance advocate who has gone round the world.

It is also rumored that Rev. W. Vivian and Rev. Mr. and Mrs. R. N. West have recently visited Shaingay.

Mr. Claudius A. Clemens, son of Mr. J. A. Clemens of Bonthe, is on hand to assist Prof. Wilberforce in the Rutus Clark and Wife Training School.

Wounded Sevecely— Henry E. Tucker, a young man of Avery Boarding School at Manoh Gbargroo. The story is about as follows: Henry started out early on the morning of the 8th. to buy a plot of cassada, and and flesh being scarce for food took his gun along to try for a little game on the way. In firing the gun it bursted in his left hand and completely destroyed it. He was brought down at once and the Colonial Surgeon has amputated the mangled hand above the wrist joint.

Push It.—The new subsription of the Early Dawn, as we intend to make it a really interesting paper for 1890 and as soon new type can be had to give it an entirely new dress.

Communications.

Distinguished Visitor.

Mrs. M. L. Leavitt, the representative of the World's Womens Christian Temperance Union, accompanied by Rev. R. N. West and Wife of the Bompeh Mission, Rotofunk, landed at the Shaingay Mission about 10 p. m. March 6th.; they were just from Freetown. Mr. and Mrs. West had gone there to meet her. Mrs. Leavitt commenced her address on temperance on Friday night and closed Sunday night. She delivered four addresses in the Chapel, two meetings were held with only women present. A Womans Temperance Union was organized with 27 names.

One lecture was given Sabbath afternoon to the students of the Rufus Clark and Wife Theological Training School; and an address to the Sabbath school. Thus the Shaingay Mission has been favored with 8 addresses by this great and good woman on this all important subject, temperance. She is complete master of the subject; I have seldom seen such close attention paid to a speaker here there was that earnestness in her manner that carried conviction with every sentence. She is a good woman and God will bless her labors here. Shaingay has been greatly favored and we thank God for it.

J. Gomer.

Shaingay, March 10 '90

Indifference or Inability?

The Public no doubt will be able to unrival this problem that has long been a subject of deep consideration with me, and one which I am of opinion is important and proper food for thought and needs solving in its entirety.

Brooding on the history of Bonthe and Sherbro generally I have carefully noticed the advancement made in the country, and have been able to gather up facts and matter for deep thought with regard to the young men who are expected to take the lead and keep up the social, moral and literary tone of the place.

It little matters from what place each person is: he may have belonged to the much beloved and boasted capitals, Freetown, or the salubrious island of the sea, found in the Western Districts, or the zephyr-fanned and fine watering places of the Eastern or the stately romantic scenery and high towering splendor of the Mountain districts, or to this very district, rich in agricultural and, no doubt, mineral products; no matter what place may have been his nativity. Whilst he remains in and enjoys the privileges advantages of the district whether a resident, ab urbe Condita or newly arrived, he is a denizen of the place, and it should be his honorable and magnanimous desire to subscribe a sufficiency of his own time and ability towards the development of the community, and the raising of the mind to nobler deeds in all respects.

But is it not markedly noticed, at young men, the successors of their fathers, upon whom the hope of the country depends, are not alive to their duty? do we not not notice with deep regret the pusillanimity of their feelings?—a sort of inertia feasting on their very core, and imbedding its corroding and morbid effects in their bones and marrow a gangrenous ulceration of their vital principles; a sort of cribbed, confined, decrepit, condition and stinted narrow-mindedness which instils in them the bitter, unmanly and irrational desire to be selfish and concieted? a disposition to be comatosed and fast approaching the state of collaspe, the inevitable end of them, if things thus continue?

Yet each wishes to have a universal respect, each says "Give honor to whom honor is due", remains in his home unconcerned and regardless of his countrymen.

He makes no attempt bland-ish his sword in protecting his country, to apply his pen in the defence of his race, to use his tongue in support of his colour.

He lives well and happy who lives to a purpose—It is an appeal with great fervour to each of you young men here, either in the civil service, in the mercantile service, or in the educational and mechanical departments, yours is the duty as an intelligent and civilived beings to rise above the ignoble crowd; and to use the words of Longfellow say,

"Through every fibre of my brain
Through every nerve through every vein,
I feel the electric thrill, the touch
Of Life that seems almost too much.

There are among us men who are making themselves men who do not live in the ideal world whose language is not words but acts.

To be continued. Regulus.

SMILES.

To Church by Proxy.—"No," said Mrs. Lofticus; "now that Sunday breakfasts are so fashionable, I really don't get time to attend church any more; but I send one of the servants to sit in the pew and put my card on the plate.

I understand it's all the go now in Bosting."

"Yes," said a dry goods merchant, "I always mark the most expensive of my goods as 'sold.' Then when the women read the sign it makes them crazy to have the same article, and they are so disappointed that I finally promise to try and get them another. Oh it's a great scheme."

"Now, little boy, what is the meaning of the word hypocrisy? asked a Sunday-school teacher of her favorite pupil. "I cant explain what it is, but I know it all the same.'

'Give me an example of hypocrisy"

'When a fellow says he loves his Sunday-school teacher, that's hypocrisy.

Opera managers now pay distinguished singers a fixed sum for every time they sing. Formerly, when these famous birds of song were paid by the month, they were apt to be sick two or three times a week, so that they could not sing. But they were never too sick to draw their pay. Under the present arrangement their health is much better, and they can sing whenever required to do so.

A fine-looking well-dressed negro, as black as inK, entered a drug store and inquired confidentially of the clerk:

"Do you keep lampoiak?"

"I can give you some," was the reply; "how much do you want?"

"Well, you see, sah—sh—is it very nice?

I would like a little, sah, in a pretty box-like thoss," pointing at boxes containing toilet articles in the show-cases.

"Well," said the clerk, dubiously, "I dunno; what do you want it for?"

"For de toilet, sah; for my wite—she powders, sah."

Communication.

Sabbath Breaking.

DEAR MR. EDITOR,—At the Creation of the World God appointed one day in seven to be kept holy for religious purposes: he has required this in the law of Moses, Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy etc, and that it is required likewise in effect by Jesus Christ it is called the Lord's Day, so called in remembrance of his resurrection on that day, the Sabbath has been kept holy by Apostles and first christians, and in all the christian nations ever since.

It is therefore most evidently the day of every christian to observe it as a day of rest from work, buying, selling, and travelling, except in cases of great and unavoidable necessity. And from all kind of sport and diversion, and we are to empty this day in attending church both morning and evening; and sabbath school, reading the bible and other good books at home. But we find that so many christian (if such person deserve the name of christian) at Bendoo do not keep the sabbath day holy, instead of attending divine service and to all the duties of that holy day; may be seen spending the sacred time in amusements, idleness and in buying palm wine from the natives.

To all sabbath breakers at Bendoo, you are earnestly entreated to consider your duty and interest; immediately to leave off this pernicious practice of sabbath breaking, and apply yourselves vigorously to the proper duties of that day. For death will soon close (forever close) the day of grace and mercy. If you continue to profuse the sabbath, you bring more wrath upon yourselves, and if you now neglect, and especially after this faithful warning, the things which belong to your peace, they will then be hid from your eyes. You will hear from me again.

Yours truly,

TELL TRUTH.

Letter From Rev. J. C. Sawyer

DEAR MR. EDITOR,— Permit me through the medium of your valuable journal to express my unfeigned and hearty thanks to my fellow brethren and sisters of the Annual Conference meeting held sometime last month at Shaingay: who, in good and sincere Christian affliction, at once united to make supplications and prayers to Almighty God on my behalf during this one year and seven months I have been prostrated in the bed of languishing sickness.

The Gracious Lord in answer to their effectual fervent prayers, has restored me to a partial health and strength.

Experienced medical practitioners have certified me disabled for vigorous service in the mission field: yet in this I am confident in my heart and soul, that by the aid of the great Physician both of the soul and body, I may yet, contrary even to our sanguine expectation, be made useful in some way or other, to His praise and glory.

I recieved to day with unmixed joy and gratitude from the Secretary a letter of sympathy and an order to recieve the sum £8. 6. 0., (Three pounds six shillings,) the result of a self denying and cheerful contribution for myself and family: coupled with the assurance that such like favors will be sent from time to time to relieve not only my wants but also those of my wife and family after I shall have gone to yonder world.

May the Lord bless and prosper pecuniarily and otherwise every one of those who give of a willing-mind to this liberal contribution.

Besides the sum above-mentioned, the Finance Committee have paid my doctors' bill of £9. 0. 0. (Nine pounds) being the largest portion of the amount: and when I was in my greatest sufferings and extreme need last year, I receivd from Bishop Flickinger the sum of £1. 0. 0. At different times from the General Superintendent and his wife the sum of £2. 6. 0.: from the Rev. D F. Wilberforce £1. 15. 0. and from the Rev. W. S. Sage the sum of 5s. five-shillings.

It would be an unpardonable injustice in me were I to omit the following important facts, which by the way is a tangible-proof, not only that our labours, as Christian Teachers in the Shaingay mission fields, and among the generous and comparatively peaceful Sherbros, is not in vain, but that they do highly appreciate those works of faith and labours of love bestowed on them for from Bompehtooke, Koolounge, Mamboe, and in each of their farkies, prayers have not only been put forth for me to recover, return, and resume my spiritual work, but deputations have been now and then sent with supplies of food:—Consisting of, fowls, rice, foofoo, palm-oil etc, to meet us here in Freetown.

How forcibly are the truths of God's word exemplified in this case—" He that watereth shall be watered also himself."

Words are really inadequate to express my deep feelings of gratitude to Almighty God for these tokens of recognition of my humble services in the Shaingay Mission.

Only pray that I may also stand " Approved in Christ," In that last day of reckoning when He cometh to make up his Jewels.

Excuse me for occupying your valuable time and space.

Yours truly,

J. C. SAWYER

To Our Patrons.

I will call the attention of our patrons and friends to the following from Mr. D. F. Wilberforce.

We are exceedingly desirous to give to our readers and the public, a neater paper but our means and receipts do not justify an outlay for the materials needed.

I therefore call upon our friends and patrons in England or America to send us help. Any material sent us will be thankfully received. Send at once, by steamer. If from America send in care of Messrs Yates & Porterfield, 19 Williams Street, New York. And if from England, in care of R. P. Pooly Esq., Freetown Sierra Leone.

J. GOMER.
Superintendent of Missions.

THE EARLY DAWN PRINTING OFFICE.

Rev. J. Gomer:

Dear Bro.—In accordance with your request I made a visit to the above named office I found the Editor in his "sanctum" as busy as ever. Messrs R. G. Caulker, N. S. Thomas, F. Johnson, were hard at work in the type room. A number of "devils" were about seemingly at home in the office of a religious paper. An inspection of the work on hand showed, that these gentlemen were quite competent to get out a neat paper. But the office is poorly supplied with materials for work. The type now used, is old and worn. There are very few leads and rules and poor ones at that. To get out such a paper as is desired, I would suggest that you furnish the office with new type.

(Small pica, Long primer, and Bourgeois, are the types we should have) with sufficient spaces, figures etc, leads, brass-rules and composition for casting inking rollers. A new head for the The Early Dawn is needed. Wooden Quoins can be thrown in with type.

Cannot our friends and patons in England or America help us in this particular?

Respectfully submitted,

DantaF. Wilberforce.

Sometimes I compare the troubles which we have to undergo in course of the year to a great bundle of fagots, far too large for us to lift; but God does not require us to carry the whole at once. He mercifully unties the bundle, and gives us first one stick, which we are to carry to-day: and then another which we are to carry tomorrow, and so on. This we might easily manage, if we would only take the burden appointed for each day; but we choose to increase our troubles by carrying yesterday's stick over again to-day, and adding to morrow's burden to our load before we are required to bear it.—Sel.

A St. Louis drayman made his mule drunk the other day, and the mule exhibited his gratitude by eating three of his master's fingers. If all the two-legged donkeys had as much horse sense as this St. Louis mule, it would go hard with the dispensers of stimulant. —Sel.

To be poor in worldly goods and rich in heavenly treasures is far better than to be poor toward God and own the world.

"Lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven."

Hours mark to us the passing of time, and should be carefully employed for good.

THE
Early Dawn
PRINTING OFFICE.
PLAIN, ARTISTIC and FANCY JOB WORK
EXECUTED AT
SHORT NOTICE
ENQUIRE OF
R. G. Caulker,
PRINTER.

THE EARLY DAWN.

"The Morning Light Is Breaking, The Darkness Disappears."

VOL. VII. BONTHE, SHERBRO. WEST AFRICA. MARCH 31, 1890. No. 5.

The "Early Dawn."

Published Semi Monthly at Bonthe, Sherbro. Under the Auspices of the Board of Missions of the United Brethren in Christ

Rev J. A. EVANS, Editor and Publisher, Bonthe, Sherbro, West Africa.

AGENTS.

United States.—Rev. I. K. Statton, Cedar Rapids, Iowa. Rev. Wm. J. Davis, Basil, Ohio. Rev. J. T. Jenifer, Chicago, Ill. Rev. J. L. Hensley, Marion, O. Rev. J. S. Claver, Elkhart, Ind. Revs. R. P. Martin and D. K. Flickinger, Willoughby, O. Rev. H. Elwell, Dayton, Washington, Ter., M. J. Stoner, Manheim, Pa., Master Charlie Howe, Manchester, Ind. Rev. G. W. Arnold, Eldorado, Ohio. Rev. Wm. Mckee, Dayton Ohio.

West Africa.—J. A. Richards, River Gambia. Rev. J. R. Frederick, Freetown, Sierra Leone. Rev. James Dupuity, Marshall, Liberia. Mr. Moses Boyle, Liberia.

TERMS.

One Year by mail,	£0	6	0
Delivered in Bonthe,	0	5	0
Half yearly by mail,	0	3	0
Ditto. delivered in Bonthe,	0	2	6

In an Article on this page headed "the Amistad Captives" We propose to show how God does move in a mysterious way, his wonders to perform.

We shall show that the leaven has been and still is working and will continue to work inspite of all devices of the enemy. We shall have to continue the Article through several numbers of the paper but we believe it will be interesting to a large majority of our readers.

The main facts were taken from a pamphlet published by the American Missionary Association some years ago.

G.

The Amistad Captives.

There were 42 of them all told 38 youths and men 3 girls and 1 boy there was also among them a Spaniard, Pedro Montez, and Jose Ruiz, these twolatter claimed to be the owners of the vessel Amistad and its living freight. It was on the 26th of August 1839 when lieutenant Gedney of the United States navy captured the amistad off the east coast of Long Island, these Spaniards appeared to lieutenant Gedney for protection.

The schooner was brought into port at New London and after an examination of the case by Judge Judson of the United States District Court the africans were committed to jail on the charge of murder on the high seas.

The trial was set down for Sept. 17th 1839 at the circuit Court to be held in Hartford. The affair at once created to small stir among the ranks of anti slavery men. The latter had already begun their agitation of the subject of American slavery, and were not in a mood to stand by and see these Africans remanded to servitude, or condemned for rising up against their masters to regain their liberty.

Accordingly, at a meeting of the friends of freedom, held in New York, a committee was appointed to solicit subscriptions, employ counsel and do whatever was possible to secure the liberation of the Africans. It was a somewhat singular incident that from a British armed brig, then lying at New York, a native African interpreter was secured, and with his help the Rev. Mr. Raymond was designated to instruct the captives.

Among the latter was found almost every type of the African race. Some were intimated and repulsive in their looks, others intelligent, pleasing in appearance and, as subsequent events proved, capable of considerable moral and mental attainments. On the one side were arrayed the two Spanish officers, the Spanish Minister at Washington, and the United States Government, uniting in their efforts to have the Africans delivered over to the Spanish authorities. On the other was the council for the slaves, backed by the anti-slavery opinion of the North, opposing any such measure. After protracted litigation, the case on appeal was finally argued by Hon. John Quincy Adams and Hon' Roger S. Baldwin, before the supreme court of the United States; and on the 9th of March 1841 the former communicated to Lewis Tappan, a member of the above committee, the results of the legal efforts in these words:—

The captives are free! The part of the decree of the District Court, which placed them at the disposal of the President of the United States, to be sent to Africa, is reversed.

They are to be discharged from the custody of the marshal, free. The rest of the decision of the courts below is affirmed. "Not unto us, not unto us, etc., but thanks, thanks, in the name of humanity and of justice, to you."

It was now decided by the friends to whom the freedom of these late captives was due, to send them back to Africa, and with the funds in the Amistad committees' hand to establish a mission in that country. This committee was merged into the Union Missionary Society, the sixth article of its constitution giving the aim to the character and aim of the organization—that it would "disountenance slavery, and relieve the fruits of unrequited labor." This Society together with two other kindred ones, since jointly united to form the American Missionary Association.

-Extract.

Minutes of the Tenth Annual District Meeting of the Sherbro Mission.

(Continued from last issue.)

Moral Reform.

Whereas it becometh all christians to live a holy and righteous life and knowing the pernicious influence which mitigate greatly against the good work of lifting up the people. Therefore resolved 1st. That all Teachers and itinerants, make it their special efforts of showing the glorious gospel by their profession by their lives and conversation in living soberly righteously and godly as becometh Gods children. 2nd. That they may endeavor themselves to be morning and shunning lightness, foolishness and discontentious and all practices and influences that are contrary to God's word and manifest by their practices the truth of what they preach.

Publishing Interests.

Whereas the publication of the Religious Telescope, Missionary Visitor, Bible Teacher, Woman Evangel, Early Dawn, and other interesting papers of the U. B Church, have effected great good in the conversion of the sinners cause. Therefore Resolved 1st. That we sincerely thank God for past efforts by the publishers and we hope they may continue for our good and for the general interest of the christian world.

2nd. That we also rejoice at the success of the Early Dawn in the past and would suggest that the untiring efforts of its Editor be not relaxed to persuade subscribers with no appearance of the above named paper nearer than recently.

Day Schools.

Since the fact is apparent that the hope of this land is in the children and as no provision is made by the government and people for the education of their children, and since the work must be done by the church. Therefore Resolved. That we will use our efforts to make our schools effective and that the Board of Education devise such plans as will secure this end.

2nd. That special labor should form a part of the Education of the pupils in all the schools supported by our church.

Intemperance

Whereas reads the remarkable instructions on customary vices as penned down in the writings of Solomon and ponders the thrilling language of a father to his only child whereas doest observe the dreadful end to which he is brought by intemperance. Believing then that it chains a man out of his personal rights injures and exposes him to the destruction of both body and soul.

Therefore resolved, That it shall be the duty of all our workers to become total abstainers.

2nd. That it shall be the continual work of our teachers and ministers to co-operate with each other to put down this monster Vice.

3rd. That we recommend a serious examination of our consciences whether we as a christian body should in any way tolerate the use of liquor ordinarily in the face of the various miseries it is capable of producing.

4th That earnest prayer be made to Almighty God to enlighten our minds fully on this subject.

A paper had been read by Miss Groenendyke on the "Effects of Narcotics and Stimulant on the Human Body." On motion the said paper was requested to allow the publication of said paper in pamphlet form. Also the paper on "Sunday School Work" by Miss Williams be published together with the paper. "How to reach the Women and Girls in Africa" by Mrs. Sage in an other pamphlet.

The finance Committee was instructed to make assessments necessary to defray expenses of such publications.

The report of the committee on Temperance was read and adopted.

Committee on grievances again head their report which was adopted as follows:

We your committee on grievances beg to report, that we have heard Bro. F.H. Stewart and from the evidence we are convinced that there was some reformation but that it seems to have been somewhat relaxed owing to circumstances over which he seems not to have had sufficient control and we hereby recommend that he be admonished by the Chair to greater diligence in sustaining from the very appearance of evil and that his pension be lifted.

As touching C. L. Grey, and J. W. Pratt, we recommend that they having assisted themselves three consecutive conferences without expressing any desire to continue with us, that their names be dropped from the roll.

Report of Committee on Finance was then read and adopted as follows. We your committee on Finance met as per appointed and after careful consideration of the work to be done, beg leave to submit the following.

We would favor making assessments of the various fields of labor for 1st. Preachers Salary, 2nd Missions, 3rd Church Erections, 4th Sunday Schools, 5th Preachers Aid, 6th Beneficiary, 7th Presiding Elders Conth Bishops etc, to appoint parishioners to each of these field of labor the amount of these several assessments as requires more time than can now be devoted to it and we respectfully ask this body to allow us more time that we may carefully survey the whole field and publish through the Early Dawn not later than June 1st July the full report.

The Election of Elders resulted as follows

Shaingay District.	"	Rev J. Gomer.
Mendi Mission,	"	Rev. J. A. Evans.
Bompeh,	"	W. Sanford Sage.

Chair then announced the standing committees.

Applicants,	"	Wilberforce and Sage
1st. Years course of reading,	"	Evans and West.
2d	"	"
3rd	"	"
Day schools,	"	Miss E. Groenendyke.
Sunday schools,	"	" F Williams.
Church Erection,	"	" S. B. Morrison.
Temperance,	"	" R. C. Taylor.
Moral Reform,	"	" G. C Taylor.
Finance, C.A & Campbell and H.J Williams.
Missions,	"	" R. C. Bickerstetb.

On motion the minutes were ordered published in the Early Dawn. The editor of the Early Dawn was appointed to see to the publication of the conference papers in a pamphlet form.

Next annual district meeting to be held at Rotofunk the third Wednesday in January 1891.

Stationing Committee reported as follows.

Shaingay District.

Rev. J. Gomer,	"	" P. E.
Shaingay Station,	"	" R. C. Bickerstetb.
Mgnah	"	" G. C. Taylor.
Koolounge,	"	" Rev. J. C. Sawyer.
"	"	H. P. Humprey, Itinerant.
Otterbein,	"	" A. F. Campbell.
NCharmanay	"	" F. C. Dixon.
Pongolubu,	"	" John Lewis.
McCobo.	"	" Jno. T. Medegar.
Matakong,	"	" Frank D. Will.
MoFass,	"	" R. P. Luke.
Mamboe,	"	" W. A. Caulker.
Rombee,	"	F. M. Stewart and Martin.
Yorbarfore,	"	" H. J. Williams.
Senchoo and Tissanah,		D. F. Wilberforce.

Mendi Mission District.

Rev. J. A. Evans,	"	" P. E.
Good Hope Station,	"	R. C. Taylor.
Danville	"	W. S. MacCauley,
Avery, Mosoiula (south) Mattro,		S. B. Morrison, and T. B. Avery.
Kanconanny,	"	" Thos. M. Cole.
Mando	"	J. W. Domingo.

Bompeh Mission District.

Rev. W. S. Sage,	"	P. E.
Rotofunk,	"	R. N. West.
"	Circuit	" W. S. Sage.
Bompeh Station	"	Mrs J. Thompson.
"	Circuit,	" J. W. B Johnson.

The Superintendent gave the teacher and itinerants some very good instruction and many words of encouragement as they go out to the of another year.

Adjourned with prayer by J. A. Evans.

W SANFORD SAGE, } Secretaries.
D.F. WILBERFORCE, }

[For statistics see page 4.]

A Man's Soul Sold.

A gentleman who was very anxious about a man's soul, said to him one day, "I'll give you half a-crown, if you will promise me you will never pray again." Very willingly the man consented, and went home, and said to Wife, I have earned half-a-crown in the easiest way I ever earned money in my life. "To what way have you earned it?" asked his wife, rather astonished; "Why, just for not praying, and you know I never do that at any rate." "Surely surely you have not sold your soul for half-a-crown?" replied his wife. Next day being Sunday he went to Church. While the minister was engaged in prayer, he began to think "Have I really sold my soul for half-a-crown! He grew desperate; the thought was dreadful. What should he do? He never had such a strong desire to pray in his life. Going in haste to the gentleman who made him make the strange promise, he said: O! take back your money my heart is burning to pray." This ample method was the means of leading that man to Christ, and he subsequently led a life of prayer. Like Enoch "he walked with God."

N. S. T.

The Early Dawn.

BONTHE, MARCH 31, 1890.

[EDITORIAL.]

Let every man speak truth with his neighbor.

Unity, purity and virture, should be the aim and practice of all professing christians.

Africa has to-day more liquor dealers than missionaries, and they are better supplied with means to curse the people.

The hope of Africa is the children: then let every missionary, minister or teacher, do their utmost to bring them into the the fold of Christ.

Can the heathen be permanently christianized and civilized in Africa? yes, provided christian nations will cease to send their wicked men and fire-water among them.

Tapioca—We received through the kindness of Mr. S. B. A. Macfoy of Yelbanna, from his farm at Jamica, a sample package of tapioca raised and prepared on his farm; and he has since informed us that he is preparing a large quantity for shipment to Europe.

The aniversary of Good Hope auxiliary of Shaingay Mission Aid Society, held here on the 16 and 17this inst., was a grand success. More than forty two pounds had been collected by the society during the past year. It aids largely in the support of Kone many station, and is now building a neat board chapel in one of the farkies of Bonthe. We congratulate the Aid society, and wish it much greater success.

Printing.—We are much hindered in our work for want of suitable types to go forward with our work, especially in printing pamphlets; we have in hand some good manuscripts which we expect to get published at our earliest convenience; but which up to date we have been unable to accomplish for lack of sufficient type. However, with this explanation added to that of our agent, Rev. J. Gomer in our issue of February 28th, we hope our friends and patrons will try to bear with us a little both in regard to the pamphlets and also further improvement of the Early Dawn.

From a communication on the fourth page of this issue, it appears that the people of Rembee, a town in the Shaingay district, have really made a move to suppress the sale of spirits; this, although strange movement, for people in West Africa, is certainly in the right direction; and if the traders of that town will only see with the people, and adjust their business to this popular movement, get rid of their spirits, and substitute other and useful articles in its stead, they will ere long see a better business and more prosperous community, and that instead of a business of £456 per annum there will be more than four times that amount. For we are sure that the increase of industry among the people, when they have no rum or gin to drink will be such as to enable them to gather four times the quantity of produce that is now gathered in.

Street Pancans and Mad theorism, are becoming a nuisance in this place but especially along Victoria Road and through Monument Lane, better known as Baggar Town in the Yandahun Quarter of the Town, and we feel that the Authorities here ought to take some steps to enforce order in the interest of the peaceable portion of the Community. We were horrified with the abusive and wretched language of a profession-edly christian man, on the evening of the 24th inst, on Victoria Road, a little south of Monument Lane. And only a few hours later when, we had made safe our escape, we understand that another disturbances broke out a little further South on the same Victoria Rd.

Now these rows or whatever else you may call them, occuring so shortly after one of a whole nights duration, on the previous week, are indeed very disreputable to any civilized community, as well as disturbing to the public peace and should by all means be checked, or at men and women cannot be otherwise controlled they should be taken into public custody, where they could be secured under lock and key at nights and thus prevented from disturbing the public peace.

Correspondence.

Dear Mr. Editor:—You desired me to furnish your readers with intelligence respecting the religious condition of this part of the country. I am truly willing to do so as regularly as I can, overburdened as I am with work of all kinds. I sincerely wish you every success in the renewed effort of keeping your paper alive. I believe it will be a mighty engine if you could succeed to obtain regular correspondents in different places in our vincinity at least.

Truly the events of our day are so striking that they cannot be overlooked in any reference to the Kingdom which the God of heaven shall set up, which is to break to pieces and consume. Freetown for the past few weeks has been remarkably favoured with religious activity. The Wesleyan District Meeting with their usual rounds of interesting meetings has just adjourned. The U. M. F. Churches too had their Annual Meetings and as far as I am aware neither of these bodies made any important changes in their ministerial appointments. We're ngratulate both on the accession of the ministry by the ordination of the Rev. M. W. Randall of the Wesleyan, and the Rev. J. P. Coker, of th U. M. F. Churches. Faithful native ministers and missionaries, are what we stand most in need of in this country, may the Lord raise up such.

This town has been singularly privileged by the visit of the Rev. Mr. Selwyn, a London Clergyman of the Church of England, who having returned from Lagos some weeks ago has been holding a series of interesting meetings in St., George's Cathedral from Ash Wednesday 19th Feb., to the 4th March inclusive. On Sunday afternoons, special meetings were held for men only. At the meetings were crowded. I attended on 1 one, and I think it my duty to acknowledge the spiritual gratification which I received. I was deeply impressed by the earnest, and sincere longing after the salvation of souls, which undoubtedly is the basis of the Rev. gentleman's labor. Much good I trust has been done. I am sure however that the occasion will be long remembered by every one that devoutly participated in the various and highly appreciated religious exercises, which though not characteristic of the Church of England, were nevertheless, enjoyed by all the members of that Communion, who appeared to manifest as much interest and perfect pleasure in all that was said and done, in common with Dissenters, who always attended in large numbers.

After all there is only one way:—Except a man be born again he cannot see the Kingdom of God! I am so glad that Mr. Selwyn made this the whole burden of his message.

A church cannot exist without conversion. A good deal of what we ching to can well be dispensed with, but this one thing cannot be overlooked. I am so pleased that this fact is becoming more and more prominent and the people are getting to comprehend it more fully.

In my opinion we want more protracted meetings in our Churches; for those who have obtained the true life, the usual Sunday Services may perhaps suffice to keep them from falling away entirely, and may promote some growth in grace.

But after all, even this is a question for the large majority of our people read and meditate so little in private that what they acquire [illegible] naturally soon slip. The work one is ever too ready to each away that which was sown in the heart. But there is a greater difference still with those who are in a natural state. An isolated Sunday Sermon may awake them, and in a few cases may result in conversion but with many it is absolutely necessary that the truth after it has attracted their attention should be kept before them as constantly as possible. The first blow of the gospel hammer must be quickly followed up by more, so as to produce the desired effect. A single sermon may indeed make an impression, but an uninterrupted succession of Sermons may do more than merely impress

To be continued.

AFRICAN METHODISM.

Freetown 8. Leone 7.90.

Intemperance and Superstition

Dear Mr. Editor;—The subject mentioned above is such and important one requiring perfect attention and thought that in case the writer take too much space in your valuable paper, he begs to be excused.

In any pursuit whatever there are some obstacles in the way which makes and compels the aspirant to be careful in order to gain his desires. A man who wishes a good employment or any one at all, in going to the supposed employer tries to make himself respectable so as to be successful. A General makes his troops accustomed with different drills, prepares his army before he attacks or be attacked, and arranges everything in the line of war before any movement is taken. A man goes to a seminary, before anything is acquired, he watches the different symtoms of disease, studies the ins-and-outs of man, and then comes out as a doctor; if not he will be fit for naught.

Just the same with any other occupation. These are all surmountable difficulties in the way of the World And States; but in the church there are no said movements or routines between the christian and the heathen. The heathen sees no direct attainable result in the church, no good comes out (in his eyes of course) why he should be a christian, no advancement either pecuniary religious or otherwise (because the chains of sinful habit enwrap him) and he is perfectly satisfied to be wherehe is. The obstacle of the worldly man in his endeavonr to gain a certain position or height bears an unlike resemblance with the difficulties in the way of the church and the Mission Field.

It is the King and He alone who can touch our hearts yea even the hearts of the unprofessed church that will cause the eyes to see far in the days of Immortality, the glorious advantages of being a christian; the great privileges of being Christ's man: for the glories of this world fade away: because it is transcient; the sceptre of the earthly monarch and even his Kingdom crumble away: because they are earthy. The successive stages of pleasure below so vary, that the observer sings out,

"Tis Greece but living Greece no more."

Whilst the man tries and shapes himself for the occupation he intended to get, the Mission Work, cannot readily shape itself for the daily hindrances in her way; so that when the destroyer receives a hundred men, the church only has one. What! will not the Christians pray? Will the civilised man with religious advantages close his eyes, heart, ears, and efforts against the work of Christ in heathen lands?

Will the Brethren of the Occident and the New World lull sweetly in their couches and pay no attention to the Orient, Africa especially? Will they not pray that the evils and vice which hinder the rapid growth of the church in Africa be suppressed? God Grant so.

"We are thine, do thou befriend us
Be the guardian of our way
Keep thy flock from sin defend us, seek us when we go astray."

There are only two things in Africa which hinder christian progress. Intemperance and Superstition. In all things, great; religion, art, and science, Africa has mixed herself. When the babe Jesus was born, Africa gave him shelter; when Christ was carrying His cross, Simon the African gave him assistance. Learning or the seat of education had its birth from Alexandria; when Moses miraculously turned his rod to a serpent, we find the magi did the same. Truly this testimony is kept of Africa, "Salus populi, mundus est lux."

But today we are sorry to pen down against her, that she is one of the most Intemperate and Superstitious Continents.

Shall we not help in rescuing her from one and then the other? My dear reader (foreign especially) just see the amount of evils injustices, and wrongs that are yearly done to Africa. According to the 'West African Times' Dec. 31 1889, Germany sends to Africa thousands of gallons of rum, gin, etc, England and America so many and more of that liquid which is not fit for the brute creation.

Imagine if you cannot see the wrong done, and the state of intoxication where so many millions of gallons of Rum, Gin, etc, are in the heads of people when the year closes. Reflect a moment and see how the fruits of the Good Missionaries are hampered and destroyed!

Come over and see the hundreds of homes left neglected by fathers who would have been dutiful and loyal in all respects. Take the mind's eyes and view the many churches left vacant: the men being drunk must consequently be at home to get sober. The soil of the Missionary Fields must ever be hard and barren, if these fermented drinks continue to find their way to Africa. Unless you dear reader fight as it your yourself are on the Fields. Unless you assist by way of money which will help. We shall always complain of this and the other.

C. A. CLEMENS.

To be Concluded.

Visit of the Archdeacon at Bendoo.

The Venerable Archdeacon J. Robbin who came to Sherbro on special Mission visited this district and remained here for a few days before leaving Freetown. He administered the Lords' Supper on two occasions in Jan., and February last, baptized 22 children and 1 adult, and also preached here four times. The attendance at these services was good, the congregation comprising bota Sierra Leoneans and natives—

There can be no doubt whatever that these special Missions greatly tend to strengthen the hands of the solitary agent who has this wide mission field in charge.

Sunday and Week day Services and itinerating amongst the natives in their Farkies are still progressing.

But, Satan is nevertheless busy with his work of destruction and discouragement. On the night of the 21st inst. the mission premises were attacked by thieves, who after breaking through the Kitchen and finding no "booty," to remove therefrom flung a large stone through one of the windows of the house, smashed the glass panes, and doing other damages.

The Catechist in charge who was sitting at a short distance from the window, having just sent his children to bed after having family prayers with them, had a very narrow escape, for the stone fell just behind his chair, and would certainly have resulted seriously if not fatally, had it struck his head.

No motive can be attributed for the perpetration of this wicked act. All we can say is, that as the dark places of the earth are so full of the habitation of cruelty, all good christians should not cease to offer up their prayers on behalf of those who are laboring in such parts.

We hope Archdeacon J. Robbin will shortly renew his visit as the good he has done here is already bearing its fruits. The natives continue to attend divine service as usual, and we have occasionally large numbers of them as we had last Sunday. The Sermon preached on the occasion was interpreted to them so that all may understand in their own tongue the wonderful works of God.

Many of them signed during the interpretation which I think is an indication that the word of God went through their ears. We fervently hope and pray that this state of things will continue as heretofore and that many more will be added to the Redeemers' fold.

Bendoo,
25th March 1890.

Report of Jehovah Station

For the month ending Feb. 28th 1890.

Rev. J. Gomer:

My dear bro.—In giving a report of the work of this station we have great cause for rejoicing and of giving thanks for the way which he has led us as to us a marvel: for since we have been labouring in the Master's vineyard, we have never had an experience of the prosperity of his work and of our mission state charge. To all appearances this field was fully ripe for the gospel. When we wrote you in America, that a school ought to be established in this place, little did we expect that Providence had appointed us to begin this work. There are those here who were longing for the time when they would have some one in their midst to teach them continually the word of life. We commenced work with ten natives who had given up themselves to seek the Lord, and we were not in doubt that with these effectual work will come.

The first sabbath morning class, (that is first without since we took charge,) 25 persons gave up themselves to seek the Lord, on the second sabbath 16, and on the third sabbath 5, amongst whom is an old lady who had positively told us that she did not think she'll ever attend any of our meetings, but the Lord is with us and she is now one of the earnest and diligent seekers. We have now in the seekers class a total number of 46 souls here. We also established a regular weekly prayer meeting, and in the first meeting, as we were engaged in exhorting those present, a man who sat near us and whom we observed was paying close attention to what we were saying, rose up and commenced telling of the goodness of God. We were lost in wonder, love and praise to see a poor ignorant man moved by the spirit to talk of God's goodness and Mercy. It would have been good for you and other friends and patrons of this work to have been present. In that same prayer meeting four others participated in prayer.

We are happy to say that the members of the Seekers' class can now stand in the midst of their brethren and tell of the love of Jesus. The subject of baptism has been presented to those who are seeking the Lord, and the majority of them desire to be baptized. The sabbath is well observed to that extent to which they have been taught respecting it, and we need only to teach more respecting the observance of that day.

H. J. W.

(To be continued.)

NEWS ITEMS.

From Freetown.—The Death of J. B. Elliott, late Manager of Kent, is announced to have taken place recently.

s. s. Formoso arrived from Freetown on the 20th inst. with Mails and passengers, to the great joy of our whole community.

Messrs G. R. L. Thompson, C. S. Brown (catechist) W. Davies were nominated patrons and vice patrons for the Bendoo Amateur Club.

Messrs R.G. and B S.Caulkers made flying visits to Shaingay district on the 16th. inst; the former to Bompehtoke, and latter to Shaingay.

From Bendoo—A special sermon in behalf of the Sierra Leone Church Missions was preached at St. Luke's church by the catechist in charge.

Bendoo—the Sabbath school of St. Luke's church is losing its grounds fast; Superintendent shew yourself worthy of the name and work up your school.

From Bendoo—We hear of interesting services on the 23rd at St. Luke's many of natives were in attendance We congratulate Mr. Brown Sn'r., Catechist-in-Charge for continu- success.

s. s. "Formoso" left for Freetown on the 20th, with a large number of passengers. Among whom were Messrs. T. E. Macfoy, Sapsford, J. B. Wright, Mrs. Rev. J. C. Thomas, Mrs. T. F. French and many others.

Quarterly Communion,—Services were held in this place by the U. B. Church on the 23rd inst. by the Presiding Elder, assisted by Rev. W. S. Macauley of Dannville, and Rev. R. C. Taylor Pastor. It was an interesting occasion.

March 16. Mr. G. P. Wilhelm formerly head master of the Wesleyan day school in this place, arrived from Bartharst Gambia to resume his former post to commence on 1st. proxo.

21 Mar.—Cutter "Jersy" for Freetown with produce from Paterson Zochonis & Co. Mr. Theodore King was a passenger.

SMILES.

"Good day captain [captain gratefully answers] 'Good day' "Well, when will you leave the haven?"
"I guess I shall sail to heaven next Thursday."

Mother—Did you steal the cake, Johnny?
Johnnie—No, ma'ma. Did I, Maudie? Maudie (who got a piece of the cake!) No, deed, mamma I I saw him didnt.'

"Good morning Mr. Weatherock! warm day." "Yes, oh very warm indeed." "What is the temperatne?"
"Well I think it is Xerxes above Thermopylae, Mrs. Weatherhen."

Two very argumentative men casually met.
Mr. A. "Hallo Mr. B., how much will 2 and 2 be?"
Mr. B. "Well, I don't know."
Mr. A. "Why 4 aint it?"
Mr. B. "Oh, no; 2 and 2 make 22."

Leaving home for the office, the editor kissed his little four-year-old goodbye, saying to him: 'Be a good boy to-day. He somewhat surprised the family by saying: 'I will. Be a good man, papa, Sure enough. Papa is likely to need the exhortation more than the child does.

Said a little school girl to her teacher; 'Mamma gives me two cents every day for taking a dose of thoroughwort tea without making any fuss about it.
'Indeed! And what do you do with so much money?,
'Oh, mamma takes care of it for me, and uses it to buy more thoroughwort tea.

Our contributors will kindly bear in mind that we are not under any obligation to publish articles written on both sides of the paper; it is very troublesome to both editor and printer, especially to the printer. Write something short and interesting. Send your articles in time for publication. Spell your words correctly and you save the printers the trouble of running to Webster.

Communications

Rev. J. Gomer's Visit to Rembee.

On the evening of the 22nd inst., at 8. 30. p m., the Rev. J. Gomer, General Superintendent of the Shaingay and Mendi Missions entered the unfinished mission house at Rembee.

Just two days after the writer was sent to take charge of the Station. The Rev. gentleman found great inconvenience as the house was incomplete, and no room prepared for strangers, but as he is acquainted with such inconveniencies as a Missionary in Africa, his travelling mattress was thrown on an empty bed, and he went to sleep for the night. On Sunday morning the 23rd at 7 a. m., we had a class meeting in a small Barra, 56 persons were present. The Parable of the Prodigal son was read and explained a little by the writer and enlarged on by the superintendent. After which the leader Mr. Faux spoke of the love of the Missionaries for Africa, especially Rev. J. Gomer whom they rejoice to see in their midst, he also spoke of the circumstances relating to the hinderances of the completion of the new barra. At 11 a. m. divine service was held in the new barra, though not quite finished.

81 persons were present among these, were the principle men of the town viz:-Coug Boom, Bear Yammy, Gbannah Sobole, Moses Faux, and several others, who are taking great interest in the affairs of the church in this place. The Superintendent addressed the people from Eph 3 13-18. He spoke strongly of the Riches of Christ's grace, and the wonderful love which He has for the world. After the close of the service 16 persons, mostly natives, partook of the Holy Communion.

As soon as the Rev. gentleman and the writer returned to the mission house, they were followed by two of the head men, Gbannah Sobole and Mr. Faux. The latter related the circumstances of the station and work during the absence of the Superintendent to the U. S. A

After some conversation, the Rev. gentleman put before these men the evil of the rum traffic and how it ruins them both body and soul.

He then asked how many factories in the town that are selling rum, we come to know that there are five factories which sell at least five bottles of rum each per day at 1s. per bottle, that is £1 5s 0d per day, which brings £456 per year the superintendent then spoke of it before the people and showed them the amount of money that is paid by the little town of Rembee for such needless indulgence.

After a good talk on the subject, both by the Superintendent and mysell, it was agreed by the people through the advice of the Superintendent, that a paper be drawn prohibiting the sale of intoxicating liquor at the town of Rembee, and that it be read at the evening meeting and those who are in favour should sign it. The paper reads as follows:—Whereas it has been clearly shewn to us that the five trading factories at Rembee, actually sell to the people of this district not less than £1 5s 0d worth of intoxicating liquors per day making the enormous sum of £456 per year thereby impoverishing us the people, we are determined no longer to support them.

Therefore resolved, That we the head men and women of Rembee, do hereby pledge ourselves, not to consent for any person to engage in the sale, or in any traffic in intoxicating liquor in the town of Rembee.

And we do most respectfully request that neither our Chief at Shaingay nor the Authorities at Freetown, will insist that the trade in spirits be carried on here. We humbly ask that no grounds be given to erect any buildings in which to carry on the business.

The superintendent conducted the evening service at 6.30 p.m. the barra was more than filled with people, when he took for his text I John 5. 17

"All unrighteousness is sin."

After pointing several sins he came down on the Monster Rum, and then called the attention of he people to the enormous sum, that the five factories are making yearly by the cursed traffic.

After a few more words of encouragment and advice, he sat down, for others to give their opinion. I then spoke of what I saw in my former station, how two men lost their lives suddenly through the effects of rum, and with other words encouraging the movement of the paper. Gbannah Sobole said that he was now ready to sign. As it was getting late, and the tide was ready for the return of Supt., the meeting came to a close, and the paper was left with me to see the principal men individually.

"Down with the tyrant, the cruel usurper,
For millions of hearts will rejoice at his fall
To-day are waiting and eager to help you,
To banish forever king alcohol."

F. M. STEWART.

Indifference or Inability.

Continued from last issue.

Need I rush on to enumerate those now with us? What of our "John D" who sits there over his portefeuille; the able black sub-Collector of H. M. Customs, whose merits we hope will soon arrest the attention of the Authorities: of Terrence Cole who boasts in the Shakesperian couplet that "Honor and shame from no condition rise, Act well your part, there the honor lies."

Of Max. Thompson who is walking on in his fathers footprints left on the sands of time. Or need I go further to touch on T. E. Macfoy the people's "Tommie", the glory of Africans in this district who believes that "Thoughts are but dreams till their effects be tried" thereby striving to emblazon his name in the annals of his country.

Each like them can nail his color to the mast, can efflorescence from a bud into a rose, and with others form a brilliant bouquet in honor of his race and country

Robert Browning when away from his dear country, England, and composing his "Home thoughts from afar" was equally loyal and patriotic as Lord Wellington on the field of Balaklava with his six hundred, fighting for England's glory. We have each a destiny to meet. Nature bestows capabilities on us for our proper use; not for beautifying ourselves simply but for the framing of our minds, for making each nerve-fibre tenacious and unyielding to the untoward circumstances, that we come in contact with, circumstances that are tinged with the miasma of vice and selfishness; for building up our calibre and giving us more stamina that although we may have started in life under the influence of a gusty morning, we may make it subside into an afternoon of sunshine. REGULUS.

The Early Dawn ought to find a place in the home of every member of the United Brethren Church; whether at home or abroad.

Statistics.

Shaingay and Mendi Missions.

	1889	Reported last Year.	Gain.	1890	Reported last Year.	Gain.	Total in the Field.
No. Appointments	354	278	76	82	68	34	416
Itinerants	44	22	22	19	10	9	63
Organized Centres and Classes.				55	33	22	55
Communicants.	266	220	46	51	37	14	317
Members.	4374	3826	548	1369	813	556	5743
Day schools	13	15	2	2	3	loss 1	15
Day school ars	443	339	104	125	129	loss 4	568
sunday schools	11	9	2	3	3		14
s. s. Scholars.	451	350	101	148	156		599
Telescopes	26			10	8	2	36
Evangelists	2						2
Bible teachers.	22			8	8		30
Visitors	36			1	1		37
Quarterlies.	25			60	60		85
Our Little Ones.				110	100		220
Collections.	£126	13	9	£18	5	11	£144

Bonguh District.

The Rum Traffic.

It seems to be a real fact, we may use the expression that most men engaged in the African Trade think or believe that spirits are actually necessary, to at least a large business and indeed many seem to arrive at this conclusion from good reasoning; for instance the percentage of the imports of every extensive dealer, the tonnage of spirits in every cargo brought to the Coast, the number of Vessels almost entirely devoted to the Liquor Trade, then again the unlimited demand in these parts. The business man easily perceiving this and having an eye to these as his guide is persuaded, that without rum, gin, or something of the kind his trade would scarcely be worth the name, and really this does seem reasonable on a first thought.

But if we just look a little on the other side of the Question we shall see something else.

First of all it is readily observable that the more men drink the less they work, and that this impoverishes the community, and that it requires a larger number of poor men to buy out a stock of Merchandise than it would of rich men.

Again a man that drinks does not require much of anything else; so that as his wants are decreased by the consumption of Spirits his gathering produce will be proportionately decreased. It cannot be doubted that a lot of sober natives will gather more Palm Kernals and make more oil than a lot of drinking carousing fellows. And what may be said and is true of one community, is true of any community where there is a larger traffic in spirits than anything else. E.

THE EARLY DAWN.

"The Morning Light Is Breaking, The Darkness Disappears."

VOL. VII. BONTHE, SHERBRO, WEST AFRICA, APRIL 15, 1890. No. 6.

The "Early Dawn."

Published Semi Monthly at Bonthe, Sherbro. Under the Auspices of the Board of Missions of the United Brethren in Christ.

Rev J. A. Evans, Editor and Publisher, Bonthe, Sherbro, West Africa.

AGENTS.

United States.—Revs. B. F. Booth and Wm. McKee, Dayton, O. Rev. I. K. Statler, Cedar Rapids, Iowa. Rev. W. J. Davis, Bull, Ohio. Rev. T. J. Leafer, Calcutt, Ill. Rev. J. L. Hensley, Marion, O. Rev. J. S. Clever, Elkhart, Ind. Revs. R. P. Barton and D. K. Flickinger, Willoughby, O. Rev. H. Elwell, Dayton, Washington, Ter., M. J. Stover, Manheim, Pa. Master Charlie Howe, Manchester, Ind. Rev. G. W. Arnold, Eldorado, Ohio.

West Africa.—I. A. Richards, River Gambia. Rev. J. R. Frederick and Mr. E.A. Lewis, Freetown, Sierra Leone. Rev. James Dupuy, Marshall, Liberia. Mr. Moses Boyle, Liberia.

TERMS.

One Year by mail,	£0	6	0
Delivered in Bonthe,	0	5	0
Half yearly by mail,	0	3	0
Ditto. delivered in Bonthe,	0	2	6

Falconbridge Letters.

As promised in our issue of Mar. 15th we now commence with this issue, as an order the publication of the letters of Mrs. Anna Maria Falconbridge written by her from Jan. 5th. 1791 to Aug. 11th 1794 and which contain an account of the early efforts of the S. George's Bay Company, and afterward the Sierra Leone Company in planting the colony, and although it is but a reprint, we trust it may prove of great interest to our readers, and that we may be encouraged thereby to more extended efforts in historical research of this and other colonies.

Letter I.

London, Jan. 5th., 1791

My dear Friend: The time draws nigh when I must bid adieu to my native land, perhaps forever! The thoughts of it damps my spirits more than you can imagine, but I am resolved to summon all the fortitude I can, being conscious of meeting the reproaches of friends and relatives, for having hastily married as I did contrary to their wishes, and am determined rather than be an encumbrance on them, to accompany my husband even to the wilds of Africa, whither he is now bound, and meet such fate as awaits me in preference to any possible comfort I could receive from them. Mr. Falconbridge is employed by the St. Georges' Bay Company to carry out some relief for a number of unfortunate people, both blacks and whites, whom the government sent to the river Sierra Leone, a few years since, and who in consequence of having had some dispute with the natives, are scattered through the country, and are just now as I have been told, in the most deplorable condition.

He (Mr. Falconbridge) is likewise to make some arrangement for collecting those poor creatures again, and forming a settlement which the company have in contemplation to establish; not only to serve them, but to be generally useful to the natives.

Mr. Falconbridge, his brother, Mr. W. Falconbridge and myself, are to embark on board the Duke of Buccleugh, captain McLean, a ship belonging to Messrs John and Alexander Anderson, of Parliament Lane; these gentlemen I understand, have a considerable factory at a place called Bance Island. Some distance up river Sierra Leone, to which island the ship is bound.

The company have either sent, or are to send out a small cutter called the Leopard, to meet Mr.——, on the coast. She carries the stores for relieving the people etc. This is all the information I can give you at present, respecting my intended voyage, but as it is an unusual enterprize for an English woman, to visit the coast of Africa; and as I have ever flattered myself with possessing your friendship, you will no doubt like to hear from me, and I therefore intend giving you a full and circumstantial account of every thing that does not escape my notice, till I return to this blessed land, if it pleases him who determines all things, that should be the case.

I have this instant learned that we set off to-morrow for Gravesend, where the ship is laying, ready to sail; should we put into any port in the channel, I may probably write you if I am able, but must now bid you adieu.

March to the Conflict.

"In vain the furious heathen rage,
Against our conquring Lord.
In vain the darkness they engage
To set at naught his word."

On Monday the 10th. inst. Gbannah Sobole, Moses Faux, Bear Yamie, and the writer left Rembee for Gerhooyah, a town about five miles from here, to meet Coug Boom, the oldest of the head men of Rembee, to sign the paper drawn to prohibit the sale of intoxicating drinks in the town of Rembee. One of the natives, a Mohammedan man, who was previously acquainted with our going, sent before hand a case of gin, and went with us with a bottle of rum. What he was going for I do not know, but when I saw the rum with the man, I thought to myself, well we are going to a battle; my bible and paper in my pocket, going to oppose the cursed traffic, and this man with his rum, going to encourage it. I shall see who will conquer, vice or virtue. He was trying by the way to get the men's hearts against the motion. I put one or two questions to him of their own religion against rum, which kept him behind the remaining part of the way.

As soon as we reached, the rum and gin was given to the men, but what was said I do not know, for he took them aside. After they returned I read a letter to the people from the Rev. J. Gomer, on the very subject. One Pemh Bean, the landlord of the said trader being under the influence of the rum, opposed the motion. There was a great confusion, Pear Bean, the trader and two other men, said so many things which I can not mention. Bar Coug Boom, the old man, said nothing all this time. After they had talked on for a long time, he then called for audience, and said very coolly, "I really see with Mr. Gomer, that the rum traffic ruins the country, for most of the chiefs of countries, that were banished and hanged, if we consider closely the effect of their crimes, comes through the influence of rum. therefore I now put my hand to this paper, that no rum or any intoxicating drinks are to be sold in the town of Rembee." He signed, then followed, Gbannah Sobole, and others and with few words to Pear Bean the opposer he signed with the other two men, to the great shame of the follower of Mohammed, who returned with us without a single word as Last ends the battle.

"Down the tyrant the cruel deceiver,
And let not a sign of his traffic remain
Thrust him for out in the regions of darkness,
And sup out forever this terrible stain.

Mar. 14th. '90. F. M. STEWART.

Rembee Protest.

Whereas, it has been clearly shewn to us that the five trading factories at Rembee, actually sell to the people of this district, not less than one pound five shillings £1 5s. worth of intoxicating liquor per day, making the enormous sum of £456 per year, thereby impoverishing us the people, we are determined no longer to support them.

Therefore Resolved, That we the head men and women of Rembee, do hereby pledge ourselves not to consent for any person to engage in the sale, or in any way to traffic in intoxicating liquors in the town of Rembee.

And we do most respectfully request that neither our Chief at Shaingay, nor the Authorities at Freetown, will insist that the trade in spirits be carried on here. We humbly ask that no grounds be given to erect any buildings in which to carry on the business.

(Signed) Cong X Boom mark his " Gbannah X Sobole mark his
" Moses Faux his
" Bear X Yammy mark his
" Poar X Bean mark his
" Gbannah X Conny mark his
" John A. Davies his
" Qaiih X Tucker mark his
" I. B. Faux his
" Sale X Rabbie mark his
" Gbannah X Lobbah mark his
" Carrah X Lobbie mark his
" Humph X Yankeno mark her
" Quiah X Lucia mark his
" Bear X Lokkah mark his " Barrah X Canny mark his

Report of Jehovah Station

for Month ending Feb. 28th, 1890

concluded from last issue

Out-stations.—In order to facilitate our work we are trying to induce the people in three farkies (villages) not very far off to come to this place on sabbaths for divine service, and we have succeeded so far in getting those of two farkies who are coming regularly. We have visited all the towns in connection with this station and in our last visit we organized a class of 13 seekers in one of the towns. There is nothing to complain of at present. As one goes out to scatter the word of life, despite the work is an arduous one, yet the manifest interest of the people to hear the preached word stirs us up and makes us forget the long walk we sometimes make and the exposures to heat and cold we have to endure. The towns in the out-stations want more of our attention especially those in which we have seekers' classes; this we have not been able to do during the month that is passed from the fact that we were pressed in fixing up before the arrival of our family. We hope in the next to do more itinerating work if the Lord will

Day-School.—We began in this department with six children but now we have an increase of 11 more making 17 in all. The towns that these children put on help to stimulate others to send their children to school. Those who are strangers to the manners and habits of the people can not understand how it is, but we know you do.

To have a good school requires financial help, and to have the children properly trained means that we should get them solely under our control. The name two gave the School (Jehovah School) is an appropriate one, and we are looking to the Lord for its support.

We trust He will provide benevolent friends who will come to our help in educating the youths of the land who are the hope of the church. This being a good centre where a good number of children can be had, we therefore ask for aid in the support of the children till we are strong to be left to ourselves.

We trust the friends who are so interested in our country's welfare and are anxious for the salvation of the souls of our people, and have come up to the help of the Lord against the mighty, will not grow weary in well-doing knowing that what they have given is accomplishing grand work for God.

The present prospect is a hopeful one; and if the work continues to prosper as it is, we will look forward for grand results.

Yours in the service of the master,
H. J. Williams.

School Teaching.

Mr. Editor: No one but those who have tried it know the trials of school teaching, especially in the country where one is isolated, as it were, from all helpful society. Although he may enjoy the dignity of being even the first, or first gentleman in the village, and quietness may reign supreme about him, yet how lonely is the life! and what a dullness there seems to the silence, even of quietude. Yet those only know how tired of such a rural retreats, and long for a vacation is which he may take a little change, to whose life is more active. But while thinking on these things, there suddenly came to me as if in a dream a vision of the unseen. And these things were these: Why sit down and moan out the loneliness of solitude? why not find visit the nearest people, if in the town or by the farm near by. If then visit is not forth coming, or not to see, or pray with some sick one, or visit other farkies if these and many other thoughts came to me of which I must write again.

YRS. J. ANN.

Righteousness exalteth a nation; but sin is a reproach to any people. Prov. XIV. 34.

The Early Dawn.

BONTHE, APRIL 15, 1890.

[EDITORIAL]

Great deeds proceed out of great hearts.

My son, if sinners entice thee, consent thou not.

Make no friendship with an angry man; and with a furious man thou shalt not go.

Wine is a mocker, strong is raging: and whosoever is deceived thereby is not wise.

Seest thou a man diligent in his business? he shall stand before kings; he shall not stand before mean men.

Religion, whether false or true, requires the heart in it to make it felt in other hearts, but most especially does the religion of Christ requires the heart.

Our Creeds.—Good as we may admit them to be, are not perhaps after all, the most important thing in our religious life; for our salvation depends upon our faith in the Lord's Christ far more than upon the way we may be able to define our beliefs, or even the particular communion to which we may belong; for all the good that we can devise from either must depend on God through him. So that the more we consider the question of creeds the more we are led to believe that we may easily lay aside our objections to this or that one and go on to seek higher and greater perfection in a life hid in the glory of a Saviour's dy-love. And may heaven inspire our souls to higher and holier asperations.

The Police Force.—We have been cautioned, under the new arrangement, to keep as far from political matters as possible, however, we feel it a duty to call attention to the paucity of the Police Force in this place which gives opportunity to considerable disorder, and allows the pilfering fraternity to prey altogether too freely upon the properly of our citizens. And while we concede the greater importance of the frontier Police Force; yet we feel the necessity of a sufficient local force to preserve the peace and order of our large town.

And it does not seem possible to us that six or eight men can do this in a town like this of at least five thousand people, including natives of course, as they are the larger element, and ought to require the most attention. Of course our figures of population may not Tally with the usual estimate, but all we ask as vindication is a fair count of the people in the place.

Pious Meditation.—Seems to be but very little practiced by the professing christians of these parts or perhaps in any part of West Africa. And while our remarks, apply to native Christians, yet we regret to say that they are too largely applicable to all classes of Christians resident here, Missionaries not excepted However, a word of explanation is necessary, after making such a sweeping assertions as the above, first of all Missionaries are mostly overburdened with duties, second officials are largely engrossed with secular duties, third the enervating nature of the climate indisposes the mind as well as the body this last perhaps effects the nature rather more than the foreigner. Yet all should and must labor to overcome these difficulties, to a sufficient extent at least, to find time for religious meditation; for holy thoughts cannot prosper without serious meditation and without holy thoughts the soul cannot commune with God. It is in meditation on the blessed word of God that the soul grows in grace.

Hints To Correspondents.—Our space is of necessity limited and Articles ought to be short unless very interesting, not only to the writer, but to our readers in general. Half columns for letters, and not more than a column in other matter as a rule would suit as better, subjects of sufficient weight may be continued, at discretion and convenience of Editor. current matter as news reports etc, taking precedence of merely subject or ordinary Articles. Biography if of sufficiently interesting persons; would, it well and briefly written be acceptable, ravels especially inland on our own continent, if carefully written would no doubt be interesting. Zoology, something about the Animals of this continent Something also of Birds, Fish, Insects etc. would not fail to interest if written in a plain way not too much cumbered with scientific terms and big words. And again Articles should be sent in time, and must reach us, from five to ten days before the date of the Issue for which they are intended.

But, however, early they may be sent, all with us depends on their coming to hand in due time. Articles under no circumstances will cared, for if not accepted, they go forthwith to the "Waste Basket" as a rule.

Missioners here again.—It was our extreme pleasure to attend St. Matthews Church this place on the evening of the 10th inst., and witness the opening exercises of another special series of services of a revival character; which commenced on that evening.

We were favorably impressed from the very begining with the manner of the performance of the services of the first evening.

But there was one thing above all others that deeply impressed us; and that was the theme of the discourse "The necessity of the new birth," preached from John iii 3., by the Rev. Mr. Selwyn. Of course it is needless to say that we endorse fully every sentiment uttered by the preacher on the occasion; for it would only be to reiterate, a fact that is well known of all who have read our columns. We may only add that many were touched, deeply moved, under the potency of the prescient holy words of love and spiritual power. Our readers will no doubt be favore I with a fuller report of these services in our next Issue.

A Great Man Fallen!

John Backnor Elliott Esq., was the son of Rev. Anthony Elliott, one of the eleven hundred Nova Scotians who first landed here in 1792, and for many years pastor and Superintendent of Countess of Huntingdon Churches. His mother's name was Nancy Brasy, a devoted servant of God.

Mr. Elliott was born on the 28th of August 1822 at Freetown.—He obtained the very best education of the time, having had the advantage of the training of two of the most efficient masters then in the Colony—, Mr. White a European, and Mr. Geo. Faux, a native gentleman who was himself trained in England.

PUBLIC LIFE.

He entered the Government ser ice at the age of 18 years as a clerk in the Liberated African Department where he remained for a year and was afterwards promomoted to the Barracks, as Brigade Clerk, a post held for 25 years. He was appointed in 1863 Manager and Coroner of the Western District, and at different times with his own arduous duties, he acted in the same capacity in the Eastern District. For 20 years he held this position with great satisfaction to the succession of Governors during that period, and was only compelled to retire from active servic in 1883 when his health was completely shattered, and as a mark of high appreciation he recieved as a pension £200 per annum from Imperial and Colonial Funds. During these 46 years of public service, he only had eighteen months vacation. In 1851 for six months, which he spent in England in the interest of his Church. In 1861, he was forced to visit England again, where he remained for 9 months to recruit his health. During the time of his manugership he very often exposed himself to many daring exploits, capturing and rescuing large numbers of natives from slave canoes. The last occasion he rescued 123. The Government never had a truer and more loyal subject.

SOCIAL LIFE

He was married on the 27th Sept., to Susan the daughter of the Hon. William Cole Merchant of Freetown. She was an excellent woman. They both lived together happily for 32 years, and had 13 children 2 boys, and 11 girls. This marriage was the making of the man. "He that findeth a wife findeth a good thing." He was very fond of pleasure, and more inclined to flightiness and extravagance before marriage, but by the affectionate and gentle disposition of his wife, and her taste being entirely opposite, he was induced to settle down in domestic circle a real pattern to Society. On the death of his wife, he soon after found a partner in Elizabeth Quin a young widow. He often said, he married soon after his wife's death, so as to avoid any suspicion as is natural to men exposed as he was to so many temptations. In this wife he was again blessed with a loving and faithful companion.

By her he had 3 boys 2 of them with 6 of his first children survive him.

(To be concluded.)

NEWS ITEMS.

April 4th.—Capt. Le Power from Mullay.

Divine Services were held in Wesleyan Chapel at 11 a. m, and in St. Matthew's Church at 11 a. m. and 7 p. m., it being Good Friday.

6th.—Holy Communion at Wesleyan Chapel on Easter Day.

10—"Countess Derby" from Freetown with Bishop Ingham, Revs. Selwyn (Missioner) Liversuch also Dr. Ross, Col. Surgeon, Freetown.

10.—s. s. "Formoso" from Freetown with Messrs. C. J. Cole, J. B. Wright, Thompson Brothers and several others.

The first of a series of Evangelistic Services by Rev. Selwyn, commenced at 7 p. m. at St. Matthew's Church.

These services will continue to Sunday 13th. inst.

Holy Communion was administered in St. Matthew's Church on Sunday 11th at 8 a. m.

There was also a Confirmation Service on the same day at 3. p. m.

Dead and buried.—It is reported that Mr. Henry I. Graham, formerly a merchant and J. P. of Sherbro, died at Gbangbama and was buried at Bendoo-bah on the 28th inst.

Measles.—It is also reported to be prevalent in the Gorgroo, several cases in the Mano's district.

April 12 The s. s. Formoso left for Freetown.

Good Friday was a grand day at St. Luke's Church, Bendoo. There was an overflowing congregation in attendance; among whom were many natives.

The U. B. Church in this place held interesting services on the 4th inst., Good Friday. The pastor Rev. R. C. Taylor delivered a fine discourse to a good gathering of interested hearers.

Prohibition.—The authorities of Rembee town, Shaingay district, have signed a protest against the sale of intoxicating liquors, we believe this is the first of the kiad in West Africa, but more will follow.

Report of the Shaingay Missionary Aid Society Good Hope Auxiliary.

Read at the Anniversary Meeting
D. V. C. Bonthe Sherbro
March 17th, 1890.

Mr. Chairman Ladies and Gentlemen—Some introductory remarks seem rather necessary this evening, in order to set clearly before your minds the purport of this gathering; first of all it must be understood that we report upon the missionary collections of a single charge, and in this report, we do not include monies raised for other, than missionary purposes; so that in this our Anniversary, is unique in its nature from those of other connections. Second it should be borne in mind that the Aid Society raises its own funds and that these funds are used alone for the extending of the Gospel to the heathen, and destitute of Gospel privileges and that in every respect the Society is truly Missionary in its operations. Third I should remind you of what we said to you in our last report of this kind three years go, viz: that the Aid Society is not of foreign but of native Sherbro Origin and is in that respect a lasting monument to the praise of a handful of native christians in and about Shaingay. And now possibly you may bear with me a little while I reiterate briefly the Origin, History, and Aim of this humble Society.

Its Origin was the destitute condition of the outlying regions of country that the Parent Board of Missions in America was unable at the time to provide for. In one of these Districts known as Yondoo in the year 1878 or 79 there were being atrocious acts committed by Canabals upon human victims the news of which reaching the native Christians in and about Shaingay stirred them to action, the result of which was the organization of a Native Aid Society, with Rev. D. F. Wilberforce, a native Sherbro then lately returned from America, as its first President.

The object of the society was well indicated by that which gave it birth. Attention was given at once to the work of rescue which in fact brings us to the second point of discussion.

The History which although it has been repeated several times, yet will bear a repetition of interest to you here to night. From Yondooo, as I have before remarked the news came of Canabals eating people in that region, and Missionary Aid was needed to stay these ravages. The Parent Board could not respond to the cry of the people, who were actually sitting in Darkness and the Shadow of Death.

So the Native Aid Society, then in its infancy, bravely and sacriiicingly, responded to the call. Purchased a canoe, and hired an Itinerant to go over to Yondoo and preach.

The first man employed, I believe, and sent out to that dangerous field of labor, was the late Rev. Thomas Tucker a man of great faith, energy and zeal, but who subsequently died at his Post of duty on Mo'Fuss charge in the Kargboro river. After Mr. Tucker, others were sent until a station was opened there by Rev. W. S. Macaulay now of Danville Station. Under his Ministry the work progressed, rapidly, canabalism ceased, and many were brought to embrace, the truth. And the Work was eventually turned over to the Parent Board.

The Aid Society next sent out Itinerants in the Kargboro District where they met with much success and laid the foundation of the extensive work that is now being carried on by the Parent Board in that region from four principal Stations and reaching more than one hundred towns. The next work of the Society was on the North Branch of the Hyal Tucker; here it opened N'Charmmy Station and after getting it in successful operation the Parent Board took over the work and relieved the Aid Society which shortly after began operations in the Imperch in the vicinity of Gbangbish supporting a teacher at Danville, until that Station subsequently passed into the hands of the King Street, U. B. Church of Chambersburg, Pa., U. S. A. Since which time the Society has opened and principally supported a Station at Konconany which is now in successful operation.

It may be well to state here that this Society has operated so successfully, that it has magnified its name and office to such an extent that it has become the recognized channel through which the Missionary funds of the U. B. Church of this country are transmitted.

And in this way much help has been rendered to different religious enterprizes not mentioned in this report.

The Local Society of this, Good Hope, Station is Auxiliary to a an opposition to the many with the General Aid Society of Shaingay and is indeed one with it. The Society has been successful in raising funds and has raised from all sources since its organization in 1879 more than four hundred pounds sterling and would have raised far more but for the war and other troubles on the Shaingay District which for a time has almost paralized the energies of the Society on that side.

However we have been informed of late that the work of the Society in gathering funds on that District will be resumed with all possible speed.

On this side the Aid Society has been largely blest in its efforts, especially here and at Avery station. And we are glad to report for this station that the year just closed has been the best year for this Society.

The Aim of the Society is to collect funds for Missionary purposes only, with which to send out and support Missionaries wherever opportunity offers, to open when practicable stations to be afterward handed over to the Parent Board.

It will also for the present build or assist in building places of Worship to a limited extent, and send out prospectors into the regions beyond who will Itinerate and preach to as many in out of the way places as can be reached, and at the same time will be on the look out for good locations for stations. Thus we appeal to you for your patronage of an aggressive Missionary Work unencumbered by the operations of any local charge. Itinerants should aim to solicit funds at all times for the support of the Society which they report to the Treasurer and also to the pastor of the charge. The Aim of the Society being the spread of Gospel as rapidly as possible and for the salvation of the greatest number of souls. We appeal again to your sympathies for your prayers and financial support. You will now be favored with the report of collection.

Are We Protected?

Dear Mr. Editor.—For the past few months Bonthe has been left without any protection whatever and at the present moment the lives and property of its inhabitants are only left to the mercy of the natives who may bounce upon us at any moment and commit any havoc they choose when it is least expected there being only a handful of policemen (sometimes only two or three) to be found at the Police Station in the day or well on in the night.

Excuse me if I write for insertion in your valuable paper and redress my just, as you are always been the medium of communication between the people and the Government in this part. And we also trust you will use your influence in this particular in calling the attention of the Government to make a move for the protection of this place.

It is evident that the Revenue collected at Sherbro could pay for the services of 50 able bodied Police men to station at Bonthe for the protection of life and property. And why should we be denied such a privilege?

Instances are not wanting to prove that the absence of a sufficient number of Policemen at Bonthe has proved detrimental to the interest of the whole community.

I. In September last when the unfortunate Moosa was acquitted at Bonthe in open day no policemen could be found to leave the station to go to the scene; Boatmen were therefore substituted in lieu of Constables.

II. Only a few weeks ago, a man named Canray Lee was committed to the Gaol on a charge of assaulting and wounding at the Bargroo.

This man effected his escape from prison. A few nights after he entered the jail yard, where there was not a policeman on duty, (as on former times) and after he had broken open the cellar leading to the Office etc., and thereafter one can of Palm Oil, the property of the jailer. Having satisfied himself of the success achieved, he went upstairs and climbed over and was successful in taking away the cutlass with which he committed the assault, and afterwards quietly left the place. Although he was seen and pursued yet he made his escape and is now safe where he is. It might be observed that the jail office is adjoining the Treasury and Customs. Now, must this state of things be allowed to remain so?

Is it impossible for this same man to collect a number of men and come at night and do any harm he likes, after finding that we are not protected?

Mr. Editor the subject might appear strange but it is a reality; and as such we are not safe.

We therefore hope that the Authorities, into whose hands this might reach, will do their best by reinforcing the policemen at Bonthe, The interior is safe and we should also be safe.

Thanking you for space accorded,

I am, Yours Mr. Editor,

THE VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

Bonthe, 11th April 1890.

SMILES.

"Doctor, if a poor young man named Hicks or calls on you to-day for a prescription don't let him have it."

Why not?

He wants something to restore his appetite, and he boards at my house.

The little boy was on his knees in his night dress, saying his prayers, and his sister could not resist the temptation to tickle the soles of his little feet. He stood it as long as he could, and then he said:

Please, God, excuse me, while I knock the stuffing out of Nellie.'

Stranger (at the door): "I am trying to find a lady whose married name I have forgotten, but I know she lives in this neighborhood. She is a woman easily described, and perhaps you know her. She is singularly beautiful complexion, with pink and white embroidered cheeks, lovely eyes, and hair such as a goddess might envy."

Servant.—"Really sir, I don't.

Voice (from head of stairs).—"Jane tell the gentleman I'll be down in a minute.

Correspondence.

(concluded from last issue)

Until the heart is truly broken and contrite there is no true foundation laid. I am really convinced that the reason of this half-awakened, half-converted, neither cold nor hot condition of our Churches is the direct result of this neglect of the occasional application of protracted preaching for several days in succession. I take this opportunity of expressing my long-entertained and deliberate opinion, that protracted meetings being among those things which are essential to the proper discharge of the duty of stead-fast continuance in the apostles' doctrine might be of incalculable advantage to the prosperity of the Church.

The Holy Scripture, Church History observations and experience all combine to establish not only the usefulness but also the great need of such meetings. The practise of assembling the people for several consecutive days for prayer, praise, and preaching, which has fallen into disuse, we trust will be revived.

In other places it has continued with good success. What we need is a general revival of religion; this only can counteract the influences which are now paralising the energies of the church and every legitimate means should be employed to bring about this. Protracted Meetings are as old as the gospel itself and ought not to be lightly set aside. Special effusions of the Spirit the Church has a right to expect in every age, in proportion as she is found faithful to God's covenant and using the means of grace vouchsafed to her.

In our own department we have much to be thankful for. To give my impression of the spiritual state of affairs with us, I may be beguided into one extreme or the other. It is often the case. We have every reason however to state that the Lord has not utterly withdrawn his spirit from us. There has not been wanting evidences of awakening in our midst. During the past month we were blessed with evidences of 14 hopeful conversions, after a week of special efforts. But without doubt we have occasion to humble ourselves before the Lord and still to pray "Savior visit thy plantation."

Mrs. Leavitt the "World's Women Christian Temperance Organiser," is now visiting our city. She invited a meeting of the ministers and others instructed in gospel work in Wilberforce Memorial Hall last Saturday afternoon; over which the Bishop of S. Leone was asked to preside. In a very terse address to those present, she stated the object of her visit, and craved the co-operation of the various churches, in her endeavor to organize the Womans' Christian Temperance Union here as in other places she has done, in her tour round the world. A committee of 4 gentlemen and 4 ladies was formed, the Bishop being one, to make preparations so as to facilitate her in her work on her return from Sherbro. We are all intensely anxious for her success, and wish her God speed. Yours truly, 7th Mar., 90. AFRICAN METHODIST.

From the Weekly News.

Prince Bismarck On the Signing of Names.

Dear Sir,—I respectfully beg to enclose you a small newspaper cutting shewing the general order in which Prince Bismarck lately gave to the German officials respecting the illegibility of many of their signatures to the documents transmitted to the the imperial Chancellor and to ask for the memorandum a space in your valuable columns.

"Owing to the trouble given by the undecipherability of many of the signatures attached to the documents addressed to the Chancellor, the latter, on December 2nd, 1880 issued a general order on the subject. His admonitions appear not to have been forgotten, and, accordingly, the Prince has just repeated his official notice on the subject which is to the the effect:—

'Some of the gentlemen who send in documents to me sign themselves in such a way that their signatures while, no doubt, indicating their names to themselves, are unintelligible to others. This is absolutely impermissible. A legible signature is necessary, on the ground, not of official duty, but of simple courtesy. Every one who receives an official document has a right to be enabled without difficulty and without doubt, to determine the names signed below it without the assistance of Official Directory. It would be contrary to my wishes to be compelled to draw the attention of certain gentlemen specially and personally to the obligation, but I shall do so if occasion is given me. I demand officially that every official shall write his name so that not only it can be deciphered, but also read easily at first glance.'" Jan. 17, 1890.

It is evident, The order is interesting from whatever side it is viewed. I trust the officials of the Colony will not impose a similar task on the Governor's Colonial Secretary; as the practice of mystifying instead of signing names by some officials among us is increasing and is becoming more and more outrageous.

There is such a thing as the alphabet in the economy of the world and of words; the characteristic formation of each letter was happily not left to individual discretion or caprice. All mankind who know how to read or write have been taught to form these letters after the accepted and unchangeable particular fashion of nations; but some men either through pride or folly or both, think they are at liberty to transform the alphabet because they have to put together a few letters which represent the illustrious names by which they are called or known. Let these read what the most illustrious Statesman of the day has said to his officials and through them to all officers whether they be government officers or private persons.

Dear Sir, I trust you will lend me your valuble assistance in denouncing a practice so foolish and stupid which is becoming prevalent, of the mystification instead of the signature by individuals of their names.—I am dear Sir,

Yours respectfully,

DAR ES SALAAM.

Freetown, March 13 1890.

Sabbath Desecration.

Dear Mr. Editor: In your issue of March 15th something similar to the above named subject appeared from a correspondent of Bendoo about citizens buying and selling on the Lord's holy day. I therefore call the attention of the public of Bonthe as elsewhere on the same subject for the good of all.

In the commandment of God to the Israelites, (Ex. 20. 8,) he reminds them the importance of keeping the sabbath day holy; but I am quite sorry to say this has been reversed among us here. From Monday to Sunday you will see men and women lurking at the wharves buying and selling cassada, cocoa, etc., to one another in staunch defiance of the law of God and man. Are there no Sunday laws in this settlement that can be enforced by the authorities? Shall these natives be allowed to infringe upon our civilised laws, and thereby desecrate our Lord's blessed day? In a conversation with one of Her Majesty's employees the other day with regard to the police force who are to enforce these Sunday laws, I was made to understand that there was only six or seven police in this whole town! and that these six men can not see all the mischiefs going on the intown either week days or on Sundays. They have found that there are not enough police to keep them in awe of the law, hence they can do what they please on the sabbath day.

But there are always two sides to all questions. Why should we blame the natives alone, what do they know of the sacredness of the sabbath? Do not our intelligent class of citizens give the poor heathens tobacco and cash to buy for them at the wharf while they dress themselves grandly to attend divine services? Who can deny these facts! and yet this has been the state of things and even continues up to the present. If the authorities would take severe measures with these sabbath breakers, and also see to it that the peace of the town is maintained by enlarging its police force, I am sure that we will soon see better observance of our civil laws and that of our God. R. G. C

Church News.

Dear Mr. Editor,—It was a pleasing sight on Sunday morning the 29th inst to find about 50 natives attending service Upon enquiry why they were so many in church, I was informed that during the course of the week the Catechist was to be seen going about the surrounding villages, inviting the natives to the house of God hence we see this grand result.

We hope that the people may so continue, and that the word of God may have free course in their midst. After the preacher had finished his sermon a young man by the name of Hogan was called upon to explain to the people in the Mendi language, which was done to the general satisfaction of those present. Great praise is due to the Catechist for this work; we hope that christians in this place may exert themselves in like manner. For we do not well if we hold our peace and do not carry the glad tidings to our brethren who are perishing day by day for the lack of the knowlege of God.

I am Yours truly, FAGE.

Bonthe, 24th March, 1890

THE
Early Dawn
PRINTING OFFICE.
PLAIN, ARTISTIC AND FANCY JOB WORK
EXECUTED AT
SHORT NOTICE
ENQUIRE OF
R. G. Caulker,
PRINTER

THE EARLY DAWN.

"The Morning Light Is Breaking, The Darkness Disappears."

VOL. VII. BONTHE, SHERBRO, WEST AFRICA, APRIL 30, 1890. No. 7.

The "Early Dawn."

Published Semi-Monthly at Bonthe Sherbro. Under the Auspices of the Board of Missions of the United Brethren in Christ.

Rev J. A. EVANS, Editor and Publisher, Bonthe, Sherbro, West Africa.

AGENTS.

United States.—Revs. B. F. Booth and Wm McKee, Dayton, O. Rev I. K. Statler, Cedar Rapids, Iowa. Rev Wm J. Davis, Basil, Ohio Rev. J. T. Jenifer, Chicago, Ill. Rev. J. L. Hensley, Marion, O. Rev. J. S. Cleaver, Elkhart, Ind. Revs. R. P. Burton and D. K. Flickinger, Willoughby, O. Rev. H. Ellwell, Dayton, Washington Ter., M. J. Stoner, Mayberin, Pa. Master Charlie Howe, Manchester, Ind. Rev. G. W. Arnold, Eldorado, Ohio

West Africa.—J. A. Richards, River Gambia. Rev. J. R. Frederick and Mr. E. A. Lewis, Freetown, Sierra Leone. Rev. James Duputy, Marshall Liberia. Mr. Moses Boyle, Liberia.

TERMS.

One Year by mail,	£0	6	0
Delivered in Bonthe,	0	5	0
Half yearly by mail,	0	3	0
Ditto. delivered in Bonthe,	0	2	6

Falconbridge Letters.—

LETTER II.

Spithead,
January 12th, 1791.

My dear Sir:—Contrary winds prevented us from proceeding directly out of the channel, and made it necessary to put into this place. We have been here two days, but I am told there is an appearance of the wind changing, and that it is probable we shall make the attempt to get away some time this day; therefore I think it best not to defer performing my promise of writing to you, lest we sail and I be disappointed.

We embarked at Gravesend between eleven and twelve o'clock, the night after I wrote you. Every thing seemed in dreadful confusion; but this I understand is commonly the case on board ships when on the eve of sailing; besides the captain had several friends who came from London to bid him farewell.

You may guess that my mind, in spite of all the resolution a young girl is capable of mustering, could not be undisturbed; but I would not give way to any melancholy reflections, and endeavored to smother them as often as they did; although I must confess they sometimes caught me off my guard, and my heart for the moment was ready to burst with the thoughts of what I had to encounter, which was pictured to me by almost every one in the worst of colors.

However I went to bed, and being fatigued, was in hopes every care would be buried for the night in delightful sleep; but in this I was disappointed, for though my eyes were closed as soon as I got my head on the pillow, yet it was not of long continuance.

I had slept perhaps two hours, when the shocking cries of murder awoke me. I did not at the instant recollect where I was, but the first thoughts which occurred upon remembering myself on ship board were, that a gang of pirates had attacked the ship, and would put us all to death. All the cabin was by this time alarmed; the cries of murder still continuing while the captain and others were loudly calling for lights; and so great was the confusion, that it was a long while before any could be procured: at length the light came, when I found myself somewhat collected, and had courage enough to ask what was the matter.

My fears were removed, by being informed it was a Mr. B—, a passenger, whose intellects were a little deranged: he continued his disagreeable indications the whole night, and prevented every one from sleeping: for my part I scarcely closed my eyes after.

At breakfast Mr. B—apologized, by telling us that his wife had murdered his only child, for which reason he had left her. "And," said he "the horrid act has made such an impression on my mind, that I frequently think I see her all besmeared with blood, with a dagger in her hand, determined to take away my life also: it prays upon my spirits, for I want strength of mind to conquer the weakness"!

Mr. Alexander Anderson came on board, and dined, he politely enquired if I was comfortable; assured me, that everything had been put on board to render us as much so as possible.

In the evening he returned to town, and we got underweigh. Nothing occured on our passage here except such frequent returns of Mr. B's delirium, as has induced Captain McLean to put him on shore, from the opinion of his being an unfit subject to go to the coast of Africa.

I did not experience any of those fears peculiar to my sex upon the water, and the only inconvenience I found was a little seasickness, which I had a right to expect, for you know this is my first Voyage.

There is one circumstance, which I forbode will make the remainder of our voyage unpleasant. The gentleman whom Mr. Falconbridge is employed by are for abolishing the slave trade: the owners of this vessel are of that trade, and consequently the Captain and Mr. Falconbridge must be very opposite in their sentiments. They are always arguing, and both are warm in their tempers, which makes me uneasy, and induces me to form the conjectures I do, but perhaps that may not be the case.

I have not been on shore at Portsmouth, indeed it is not a desirable place to visit. I was once there and few have a desire to see it a second time. The only thing that has attracted my notice in the harbor is the fleet with the convicts for Botany Bay, which are wind bound, as well as ourselves. The destiny of such numbers of my fellow creatures has made what I expect to encounter, set lighter upon my mind than it ever did before, may nothing could have operated a reconciliation so effectually, for as the human heart is more susceptible of distress conveyed by the eye, than when represented by language, however, ingeniously pictured with misery to the sight of those unfortunate beings, and the thoughts of what they are to endure, have worked more forcibly on my feelings than all the accounts I ever read or heard of wretchedness before.

I must close this which is the last in all probability, you will receive from me, till my arrival in Africa, when if an opportunity offers, I shall make a point of writing to you. Pray do not let distance or absence blot out the recollection of her.

Who is truly yours,

The Amistad Captives.

(Continued)

Were now free to go where they pleased, their friends whom God had sent to espouse their cause felt for them, they were indeed strangers in a strange land, they could not speak the language of the people the kind of labor done in this country was all new to them they had no means of support, the climate was severely cold if they remained there they would surely perish, besides they would be a burden on the government so these God sent friends thought best to return them to their own country and to their own people and if they would not send them alone, but determined to send Missionaries with them who would teach them of the great God the white man's God. Having decided on this a public farewell meeting was held by their friends in New York in the Broadway Tabernacle sabbath evening Nov. 27th 1841 when instructions were given by Rev. S. S. Jocelyn to the missionaries under appointment viz., Rev. James Steel, Rev. William Raymond and Mrs Raymond and parting counsels were given the liberated Africans, some of whom took part in the services.

After a long passage, of some eighty days the party landed at Freetown in the colony of Sierra Leone Jan. 15 1842.

All their stores, tools and implements of agriculture were admitted by Gov. Fergusson free of duty, all needed assistance was most generously proffered, the impracticability of reaching the Mendi country, together with the fact that some of the "Amistad" captives belonged to the sherbro country, led, after some delay, to the selection of a site on small Boom River, 150 miles southeast of Sierra Leone and some 6 miles from the coast, near the village called Kaw Mendi. On their arrival here the King Henry Tucker, ordered a salute to be fired as a token of joy and a multitude of men, women, and children flocked about the newcomers, interested most of all in Mrs. Raymond the first white woman ever seen.

On the Lord's day, Mr. Raymond held a religious service which the king attended, seeming to be much impressed.

In 1845 a terrible war broke out in the Sherbro country and continued several years. Many towns were burned and hundreds fled to the mission for protection, which even amid these unfavorable circumstances, exerted a power for good. The persons and property of all connected with it were respected, while its character as a place of freedom, peace and temperance, was known far and wide. The Mission school was sustained at great expense for famine followed in the wake of war. Mr. Raymond redeemed a large number of children from bondage, and thus saved them from slavery or death. One of the English Missionaries at Sierra Leone Rev. Henry Badger, wrote to a member of the committee. Did you ever hear of a mission strengthened in the midst of war? Here is one, and it has advanced during the war more than previously. A school has been formed and is doing well. The mission establishment at first regarded with suspicion, is now looked upon with great respect. It is a sanctuary and while other towns and places are consumed by fire and their inhabitants destroyed by the sword or carried in to slavery, this flourishes and improves."

The mission kept enlarging its operations, new buildings were put up, and the number of scholars in the mission school constantly increased. Miss Harnden was the first to join it, reaching there in 1843, in company with Mr. and Mrs Raymond, who had returned for a visit to the United States. Mean while Thomas Bunyann a converted mendi who had previously acted as an interpreter and teacher, had become an efficient helper.

In February 1847 Mr. Garnick an Englishman, who had been some years in this country, joined the mission, but his career was early cut short by death July 10, 1847. Under the direction of Mr. Raymond who was a man of rare capacity for the work and had gained a wide influence among the people, the mission had made great progress. He had a broad conception of the kind of mission needed in that country, and had, from the start mechanical and agricultural departments with it.

All this increased its expensiveness, but the decided opinion of those now most conversant with the needs of Africa, is that only a mission thus arranged can become, in the largest sense successful.

Election at St. Matthew's Church Bonthe.

On Tuesday the 8th insant, an election of officers for the above Church for the present year, took place immediately after the service for Tuesday in Easter Week was over at about 8 p. m.

The Catechist in charged read a portion of Scripture from the Acts of the Apostles 1st. chapter from 22 verse,

After which he introduced the subject for the evening and that is, the Election of officers to serve in the church-ships of of paper were handed round to the male members (communicant) present, when the following gentlemen were selected by votes to serve in the following orders,

Committee Members

Messrs C. R. Collier.
" R. T. Collier.
" D. L. Colley, Pastor's Warden,
" J. D. Macaulay People's "
" H. R. Williams, Secretary
" J. B. Parkinson, Treasurer
" Dr M. L. Jarrett.
" S. B. A. Macfoy.
" T. E. Macfoy.
" M. Z. Macaulay,
" C. J. Cole.
" J. G. Williams.

Sidesmen Bidwell Coker. J. N. Cowen,

It is now two years since an Election took place in this Church and as it is believed that the District will soon be favored with a resident pastor, it is to be hoped that the gentlemen thus elected to the responsible and sacred offices they severally hold will prove true to their respective offices, and we hail the time when old Mr Pycha who has been in charge since the death of the late pastor Nicol will soon be relieved from his multitudinous and arduous duties.

Abstain from every appearance of evil.
Show yourself approved unto God.

Bonthe, April 11th 1890.

The Early Dawn

BONTHE, APRIL 30, 1890.

Christian Ministers must seek power from above if they would be effectual workers.

New hearts are more necessary than avenues for the Advancement of Christian Women.

Ye Must be Born again, was the great burden of the love, Mr. Selwyn's message to the Church of this place in his recent visit.

Our Streets,—are receiving due attention in nearly every part of the Town, but how about the fences are they all right?

Cannibals and Kannah.—It was reported to us about the 14th inst., that while the Kannah people were trying to detect the person or persons who caught a boy near Gbamgbiah some time ago. Another person was caught by the Cannibals casting a suspicion on the whole matter, as a failure at least in so far as the Kannah people are concerned as detectives. Of course we have not expected any great results from these magicians from the Interior, however we had trusted their presence would check the ravages of the man eaters. But this bold act hardly looks like it.

W. C. T. U. Press Work—of the Rotafunk Organization, with Miss E. Groenendyke at its head will occupy a column or more in our Journal in future and we entertain the hope that it will greatly enhance the value of the paper to our readers; most especially since the Subject of Temperance is now brought the front and is being so ably supported by the Bishop of Sierra Leone, the Church Missionaries, African Methodist Episcopal Church, and other religious bodies besides, our own which has ever stood firmly by the great cause of temperance in Africa and at Home.

We wish the Womens' Christian Temperance Union'ed the world great success and their work here a sweeping victory, under the Leadership of the earnest and thorough going Miss Groenendyke, over Intemperance, Impurity, and every degrading vice of this Dark Land.

The Regions Beyond—have in a sense ever been the consideration of the true Missionary of the Christian religion; while yet the Saviour was in the flesh he himself felt the necessity of reaching the other towns beyond where he had already preached, he made excursions himself and also sent out his disciples; on one occasion as many as seventy in number to Itinerate. The church at Jerusalem by some means planted another in Antioch, and from thence the Holy Ghost sent forth Barnabas and Saul to the regions beyond, until not only distant Roman Provinces were reached but Rome itself and more than this the great Missionary Apostle crossed the Ægean to regions beyond the sea, even to Macedonia and Achaia and planted the standard of the cross in voluptuous and Idolatrous Corinth. If then such was the character of the Church of this time, when it must be conceded that the christian religion is the grandest achievement of this, the most enlightened, age of the world. And indeed it is gratifying in a measure to observe that the great body of the Church of Christ, the Church in general is more than ever anxious to reach out to the regions beyond. And that indeed much is being done to push forward the work of evangelizing the World.

That great Missionary enterprize are at work; and that there are men and with hearts set [illegible] with holy zeal, going forth to the conflict with sin and error. But while it is true that so much is being done, by the church of today as it not also true, that much more could be accomplished if every division of the great army of Christ would push forward with the same energy that others are pushing. Then if every battalion and every company, or in other words, if every communion, and every local Society of Christians, could be so aroused as to put forth every effort in their power to send the gospel to the regions Beyond.

Should we not see a more rapid spread of the Gospel of Christ? Surely we would; and the earth speedily be filled with the knowledge of the Truth.

Egyptian Cotton.—We have received from the Colonial Secretary by the direction of His Excellency the Governor a Public Notice on the subject of Egyptian Cotton, a very superior staple, it is believed, and commanding a high figure in the markets. The reason for the circulation of the Notice is to call attention to its growth in this colony.

As we have not space for the notice we take this means of calling attention to the introduction and growth of this particular kind of Cotton, which sells for 6d., to 10d., per lb., while other kinds only sell for about 3d. per lb., seed may be had on application to Commandants Office in this place.

Pamphlets.—In a previous issue we mentioned that we expected to print two pamphlets. The first now ready on "Sunday Schools;" and "How to Reach the Women and Girls of Africa," 16 pages.

W. C. T. U.

From Rotofunk

(For the "Early Dawn.")

I know of no more interesting way of telling of the success of our branch of the World's Woman's Temperance Union, than of quoting from our first minutes, as read by our Secretary, Miss Frances Williams.

"March 11th and 12th of 1890 will be among the memorable days in the mission at Rotofunk, on account of the visit of Mrs. Clement Leavitt, the ("Round the world" missionary of the W. C. T. U. of America) who has for nearly 5 years been traveling around the world, talking and working in the interests of social purity and temperance, and seeking in every possible way to hasten the coming of our Lord, and prepare the nations of the for that coming."

Both of the mornings [illegible] was with us special meetings were held for women only. The first meeting was attended by 60 women and the second day there was a goodly number present.

As we listened to her words of truth, accompanied by the spirit of Him who had sent her [illegible] going forth to the conflict with sin and error. But while it is true that so much is being done, by the church of today as it not also true, that much more could be accomplished if every division of the great army of Christ would push forward with the same energy that others are pushing. Then if every battalion and every company, or in other words, if every communion, and every local Society of Christians, could be so aroused as to put forth every effort in their power to send the gospel to the regions Beyond.

Should we not see a more rapid spread of the Gospel of Christ? Surely we would; and the earth speedily be filled with the knowledge of the Truth.

Egyptian Cotton.—We have received from the Colonial Secretary by the direction of His Excellency the Governor a Public Notice on the subject of Egyptian Cotton, a very superior staple, it is believed, and commanding a high figure in the markets. The reason for the circulation of the Notice is to call attention to its growth in this colony.

As we have not space for the notice we take this means of calling attention to the introduction and growth of this particular kind of Cotton, which sells for 6d., to 10d., per lb., while other kinds only sell for about 3d. per lb., seed may be had on application to Commandants Office in this place.

Pamphlets.—In a previous issue we mentioned that we expected to print two pamphlets. The first now ready on "Sunday Schools;" and "How to Reach the Women and Girls of Africa," 16 pages.

W. C. T. U.

From Rotofunk

(For the "Early Dawn.")

I know of no more interesting way of telling of the success of our branch of the World's Woman's Temperance Union, than of quoting from our first minutes, as read by our Secretary, Miss Frances Williams.

"March 11th and 12th of 1890 will be among the memorable days in the mission at Rotofunk, on account of the visit of Mrs. Clement Leavitt, the ("Round the world" missionary of the W. C. T. U. of America) who has for nearly 5 years been traveling around the world, talking and working in the interests of social purity and temperance, and seeking in every possible way to hasten the coming of our Lord, and prepare the nations of the for that coming."

Both of the mornings [illegible] was with us special meetings were held for women only. The first meeting was attended by 60 women and the second day there was a goodly number present.

As we listened to her words of truth, accompanied by the [illegible] us of what an organization consisted kind of the work of Unions that she had organized. Mrs. West then made some earnest and fitting remarks. She stated plainly that all who came into the organization pledged themselves to neither drink nor trade with, or palm wine or fermented liquors of any kind.

Mrs. Leavitt then gave an invitation to all to take the pledge and join the Union.

The result of this invitation was that 19 women signed the total abstinance pledge and became members of the Union.

With these members the organization was partially effected. Miss Groenendyke being elected president. Miss Williams, secretary; Mrs. West vice president, and Mrs. Sage, treasurer.

On the evening of the 25th the organization was completed by taking up the following departments of work and electing Superintendents of the same:

Organization. Ellen Groenendyke; assistant, Miss Williams and Mrs. Ta[illegible] ...enile Work. Miss Groenendyke; Temperance Literature, to be supplied; Press Work, Miss Grace Groenendyke; Portuguese Rules, to be supplied; Mary Parks; Medical Temperance, Miss Williams, [illegible] Eng. Miss Williams; [illegible] Rosse [illegible] Sarah A. [illegible]

I [illegible] apart from time to time to [illegible] each of these departments. We [illegible] no active work as yet except to organize Local [illegible]

[illegible] intoxicants [illegible] and probably missing at least 50 persons in our little town who do not use intoxicants. We think there are more than this number who are genuine teetotlers for which we thank God and take courage.

ELLEN GROENENDYKE.
Supt of Press Work.
Rotofunk W C T U

REPORTS.

Passion Week.

Divine services were held at 7 a. m. every day, from the commencement of Passion Week to the end of Easter.

These Services were well all attended, especially when it was taken to consideration the nature of the employment of most of our people necessitating their being away from town on week days to earn their livelihood elsewhere. The natives still continue to attend our services in large numbers, stimulated by the exertions of some of our brethern who visited them in their various Fi kies urging them to come.

The interpretation of the Sermon into their own language immediately after the English portion of it is over, is also I believe a source of encouragement to them. When requested to ask any questions they would like on the subject of the discourse, they sometimes ask some suitable ones and also some very childish ones.

The Catechist answered all these in good grace and to their satisfaction.

These are encouragements in themselves as they manifest a desire of knowledge of the [illegible] as it is in Christ Jesus.

May the time soon come when this knowledge shall cover the earth as the waters do the mighty deep.

The texts from which Mr. Brown the Catechist preached during the week are as follows: Monday 31st March, Mark xiv: 1—2. Tuesday 1st April, Mark xiv: 44; Wednesday 2nd April Luke xxii: 31—32; Thursday 3rd April xxiii: 27—31; Good Friday 4th, Matt. xxvii: 29 (Morning); Luke xxiii: 42-43 (Evening); Easter Day 6th John xx: 20 (morning) Luke xxiv: 34. (Evening)

The discourses were both practical and edifying, and I do not think even the most critical could have anything to say against them, as they were most suitable for the occasion and easily comprehended by every member of the congregation. The childrens meeting which was also largely attended by adults, was conducted at 3 p. m. on Easter Day, when they where addressed in very simple but explicit language by Mr. Brown from Matt. xxviii 1-10. Questions bearing on the resurrection of Christ were put to them to which they gave very satisfactory answers.

There was a marked feature in the observance of Good Friday this year which is worthy of attention. Having been warned by the Catechist to keep the day as holy as the Sabbath, those of the Natives who attended church informed their friends of it and there was not a single instance of drum beating and dancing as has been usual in former years.

This was also the first occasion on which divine service was conducted here both morning and evening on Good Friday. Let us now hope that having "Onward" as our motto we may continue to progress heavenward as time rolls on.

Bendoo, 10th April 1890

Dannville Station.

Dear Brother—I am thankful to Almighty God for mercies vouchsafed to us in the past.

That amidst the many discouragements and distress of mind as also sickness in our midst, yet the Lord has led us through and we are previleged at this time once more to have our place among the living.

The attendance on public worship every sabbath is encouraging many of the natives generally attend to hear the word of life dispensed to them our Mohammedan friends also are prompt in attending the means of grace. The sabbath that was once disregarded and polluted by them is now kept sacred.

I regret to state that the many Towns I have visited in the past Quarter has not been visited since the beginning of this Quarter owing to want of interpreter.

The sabbath school is increasing, the native young men are endeavoring to make improvement, nevertheless we shall with joy look forward to the time when all shall be able to learn of Jesus and his word.

Day school is showing some signs of improvement although many had left us and gone away owing to want of means yet there is some parents who are looking for the future, they send their little ones to be trained and we believe that good will redound to the glory of God, may the great Head of the Church preserve his little flock.

Sister Macauley has organized a seekers class which she holds every sabbath at noonday may our loving Father in Heaven prosper her labour.

Number of Towns	"	16.
Believer's Class,	"	1.
No. of Mem. in Believers	"	8.
Seekers Class	"	7.
Number of Members	"	56
Day School,	"	24
Sunday School,	"	40
Itinerants,	"	1

Amts. collected the 1st Sunday in every month. £0. 8. 3.

Communion Service held at Gbamgbiah Sunday April 20th 18 persons communed, the service was interesting and will be long remembered by all who were present.

I am your Bro. in Christ,
W. S. MACAULAY.

April 20th '90.

From Jehovah Station.

The first quarterly meeting of Jehovah Station was held in the Piazza of the Teacher's house April 12 1889.

An appropriate sermon was preached by the Presiding Elder [Rev. J. Gomer] from Matt. 3 : 1–2. The Presiding Elder made a verbal report of his work, and his character was passed, morally as well as officially. The Preacher in charge gave a verbal report respecting his work which was very encouraging and his character passed. Mrs Elizabeth Fry Williams, the class leader was called upon and she reported favorably of her class. She also remarked that she organized a Women's Prayer Meeting which meets every Monday morning, and in this prayer meeting the women are learning to pray. Her character was passed. The presiding elder asked the people whether any one had anything to say respecting the work. Three natives rose up respectively and expressed how glad they are in that they have the gospel in their midst and they appreciate it as a great gift from God. They also thanke the American people who hired missionaries, and also thanked Bah Gomer for sending to them one to teach them, and one who is urging them to accept Christ. They said further that they love their teacher, but he never gives them time because he keeps meeting three times on Sundays. Mr. H. P. Humphrey of Kooloong station made some interesting remarks which drew the attention of the people.

On the next day morning (sabbath morning) the Seekers' class was crowded to the full. There were 86 persons present, 8 of them prayed and talked of "Jesus and his love." At 11 A. M., we assembled for divine service conducted by the presiding [illegible] who preached a soul [illegible] sermon taken 10 chapter latter crosse of fifth verse. After [illegible] 10 children were presented for baptism, and two adults [illegible] of about 40 and 53 years presented themselves for the Sacrament of the Lord's supper, was administered to Superintendent. After the ordinances of the Lord's supper and baptism were duly attended to, the natives could not keep their seats, but managed to get near so as to see how they are performed: this being the first time that these ordinances were done in the presence of of most of them. The evening service was conducted by Mr. H. P Humphrey. He preached from Dan. 3 : 17. The sermon was plain and practical, and every body went home satisfied. We were highly gratified to see how the people turned out. We trust they were benefited by these meetings and that such a visit of the Presiding Elder, Mr. H. P. Humphrey and wife may bring about a glorious result.

A FRIEND.

Jehovah Station,
Yorgborfor, April 14th '90.

NEWS ITEMS.

Scarcity of Food:—Still prevails in the Manoh Gbagroo.

From Gbamgbiah—We learn that Mr. S. B. A. McFoy is opening a large plantation.

Danville Station:—Near Gbamgbiah, Imperch land, held its Quarterly Communion Services on the 20th inst. It was an interesting occasion.

Koconany:—Police Station has of late been favored with a large Canoe for conveying persons across the rivers at that town. This is a good thing for which the thanks of the people are due to the Government.

Failure of Coffee Crop:—Has been reported from Avery Station farm of the Mendi Mission. This is the sadder as this farm supplies a large district with Coffee for home use.

Mr. A W. Elliott feels thankful to many friends for their many expressions of sympathy with him in the loss by death of his grandfather, J. B. Elliott, late of Freetown.

Quarterly Communion—Services were held at Avery Station on the 13th inst., and a conference on the 14th inst., by Rev. J. A. Evans presiding elder of the district.

April 12th—The following were the passengers per s. s. "Formoso" for Freetown:—Dr. M. L. Jarrett, Capt. Le Power, Sergt. D. S. O. Pratt, (who leaves finally) Mrs. W. A. John and daughter, (the latter to remain for schooling) and several others.

13—Evangelistic services by Rev Selwyn closed this day.

14th—"Countess of Derby" for Freetown with Bishop Ingham, Revs. Selwyn and Leversuch and Dr. Ross.

A meeting for the election of Delegates for the Native Pastorate Church at Sherbro, took place at St. Matthew's Church at 7 p. m. Rev. O. Moore and W Hughes Esq., Freetown were elected.

15th—"Formoso" from Freetown with mails, and passengers. viz.
Dr. Jarrett, Mrs. Thomas, wife of the asst. Printer of the "Early Dawn" and others.

17—"Formoso" for Freetown Mr. J. V. Pratt ex-schoolmaster of the Wesleyan connection was a passenger.

23—"Formoso" from Freetown with the following passengers:—Messrs. John A. Williams of P. Z. & Co., Danner, Mrs. Peter Johnson and others.

25—"Formoso" for Freetown with mails and passengers.

The Mocolo Road is under going proper repairs and will be completed, shortly.

Several cases of influenza and fever are reported to be raging in Freetown, on account of which the Female Institution was advised to be closed earlier than usual.

The Missioner—Rev. Mr. Selwyn, we understand, left for England per s. s. Lagos on the 19th inst. We wish him a safe and pleasant voyage home.

Burned.—Moyampie near Avery Station, and one of its flourishing villages has been entirely destroyed by fire.

(concluded from our last.)

A Great Man Fallen!

He had a passionate fondness for his family, which he made it to appear that he lived only for them, and perhaps this was his greatest weakness.

RELIGIOUS LIFE.

His father and mother were eminently pious, and by their exemplary life and earnest endeavors they were instrumental in bringing their son to Christ. He was wonderfully converted in 1841 in Zion Chapel. After this he became an active worker in the church, increasing in zeal and usefulness till the moment he laid his armour down to die. He filled every position in the church.

Sunday School teacher and Superintendent, Class Leader Exhorter, Local Preacher, and on the death of his worthy father, he succeeded to the General Superintendence of the Churches of the Lady Huntingdon Connection. During his services as Manager and Magistrate he delegated his power to his late brother Richard Elliott, but as ever was deeply interested in the prosperity of Zion, and at the same time, the Wesleyan and Free Church pulpits in the District were frequently favoured by his ministrations. Retiring from secular work, he resumed his regular duties and through much bodily sufferings and many adverse circumstances he continued at the head of affairs, endeavoring meanwhile affect the union of his church with some well established evangelical body, and succeeded in 1887 to amalgamate and transfer by legal documents the church and property to the African Methodist Episcopal church in America, when the Rev J. R Frederick was sent out to take charge of this long isolated church. He however continued to preach and to use his influence in the upbuilding of the A. M. E. church. He was an able preacher, with a powerful voice, and without doubt one of the best public speakers in the colony. He could always present his subject in such a way as to interest his hearers. The Bible was his study and delight. He searched the word of God and knew how to apply it and was always deeply concerned at the prevailing spiritual destitution of the people and ever solicitous for the revival of vital godliness in the land. Never did he lose a chance of bringing the subject of religion into prominence. He was sound in doctrine. We may safely reckon him among the old fashioned believers. He had the deep conviction of the depravity of human nature, and the need of the new birth, and simple faith in the atoning blood.

He was eminently a man of prayer. Always in his element in the prayer meeting. Zion Church will long feel the loss of this great man.

The distressing affliction which prostrated his health, and rendered him unfit for Gov't work could not be arrested, and during the last 4 years he was scarcely ever well. Though his health was delicate the hope was cherished that his life would be longer spared, but he gradually grew worse till Sunday 23rd March it was observed by his friends that he was sinking. His spiritual needs were well attended to during the absence of his pastor. And having declared his firm trust in his Redeemer, said "I am waiting for the tide." The last person he desired to see was his pastor, was soon after bourn down the stream, and at 3 30 A. M. on Monday 23rd March he entered the harbour of eternal rest.

As a proof of the high esteem he maintained in the community, the funeral service that afternoon was numerously attended by the most respectable citizens of Freetown; among them were noticed the Hon. Major Crooks, who represented His Excellency who was then absent in the interior, his Lordship the Bishop of Sierra Leone. The funeral service in the Church was conducted by the Rev, G. C. Nicol, retired Chaplain of the Gambia, an old friend of the deceased, and at the grave by the Rev. J. Augustus Cole and the Rev. J. C. May. May he rest in heaven.

MEMORIAL SERVICE.

A Memorial Service was held to improve on the death, on Sunday, the 30th when in the morning the pastor of Zion A. M. E. Church the Rev. J. R Frederick preached to a crowded, and respectable congregation from the text, "As the man is so is his strength"–from which he tried to impress his hearers more particularly on the life of the deceased. In the evening of the same day long before the service commenced the church was well crowded, and the Rev. J. Agustus Cole preached–His subject was "J. B. Elliott's last moments–" choosing for his text Gen. 49 33–No wonder that a life so remarkably characteristic should close so grandly+ "Them that honor me, I will honor" has been verified in the life and death of this remarkable man.

Freetown, 8th April 1890

Max O'Rell's Lecture.

The audience laughed immoderately Sunday night when Max O'Rell, in the course of his lecture in the Boston Theatre on "John Bull and His Son Jonathan," said in his inimitable manner that the former had given the British Isles the queer name of the "United Kingdom. He continued by saying that John Bull was the largest landowner in the world. The East Indians blacked his boots and were happy. In America he did not possess as much as he used to. [Much merriment.] He had acquired all this territory at the expense of little bloodshed. It was all the gift of a friend. He considers himself the master of the seas as well as the land. "You in America, if I am to believe the statement of Chauncey M. Depew, are invincible in peace and invisible in war. French men fight for glory. Germans for a living. Russia to divert attention from home affairs and England to develop trade.

[Laughter] John Bull is a queer mixture of the lion, the mule and an octopus. [Great applause and laughter.] He has no equal at making bimself at home. At prayer time he is a man who looks a little uncomfortable. The Frenchman proclaims that France is the light of the world; but he says it in such a way as to show he has a lurking suspicion that he may be mistaken. The English man is absolutely sure that England is all that and more. It is so much a settled fact that he does not think it worth while to discuss it.

His geese are all swans, and he knows beyond doubt that the kingdom of heaven is one of the British possessions. The English are philosophers. Their philosophy is of the kind which teaches them to be content with what they have when they can not get what they want.

"In France, if a Republican meets a Monarchist they glare at each other. In England, when a Liberal meets a Conservative they greet each other, shake hands, and chat like old friends, because they know the political doctrines of both are all humbug. The Scotchman is different. If you mistake him for an Englishman he will draw himself up proudly, and say, 'Excuse me; I am a Scotchman.' For convenience we will call the Scotchman Sandy MacGregor. I have never known a christian so confident of going to heaven, and less eager to set out. His religion teaches him to trust in God and rely upon his own resources.

[Laughter] It is always more dangerous to deal with one who believes that one day a great deal will be forgiven him. However, in business he is circumspect, and in conversation insinuating. In love even he will not lose his head.

He has a way of treating his Maker like his next door neighbor. If he in prayer uses a far fetched or dictionary word, he will explain its meaning to the Lord. The Scotchmen are the sinew of the British Empire.

The greatest man of the future of the Anglo Saxon race is Jonathan. That is a name for the American people. There is no typical Americans. The race is going through an evolutionary process and by-and-by the man Jonathan will disappear.

You are not all beautiful in America, but you are intelligent. [Laughter.] A person who looks intelligent can not look plain. Jonathan is the man who enjoys all liberties, including those he takes with you. The typical American is yet to make his appearance.

The Anglo-Saxon race is the only one that can supply men who sing hymns and play poker with equal facility and gusto. I suppose woman in America are allowed almost every liberty—and they take the others. [Applause and laughter] What America has done in one hundred years makes no future, however grand, impossible to her."—Cincinati Gazette.

O music! thou that bringest the past and the future with their flying flames so near to our wounds art thou the evening breath of this life, or the morning air of the life to come! —Sel.

THE
Early Dawn
PRINTING OFFICE.
PLAIN, ARTISTIC and FANCY JOB WORK
EXECUTED AT
SHORT NOTICE
ENQUIRE OF
R. G. Cankler,
PRINTER.

THE EARLY DAWN.

"The Morning Light Is Breaking, The Darkness Disappears."

VOL. VII. BONTHE, SHERBRO, WEST AFRICA, MAY 15, 1890. No. 8.

The "Early Dawn."

Published Semi-Monthly at Bonthe, Sierra Leone, Under the Auspices of the Board of Missions of the United Brethren In Christ.

Rev. J. A. Evans, Editor and Publisher, Bonthe, Sherbro, West Africa.

AGENTS.

United States.—Revs B. F. Booth and Wm McKee, Dayton, O. Rev. I. K. Statler, Cedar Rapids Iowa. Rev Wm J. Davis, Basil, Ohio. Rev. J. J. Jenifer, Chicago, Ill. Rev. J. L. Mersey, Huron, O. Rev. J. S. Culver, Elkhart, Ind. Rev. R. P. Burton, Peru Ind. D. K. Flickinger, Willoughby, O. Rev. H. Elwell, Dayton, Washington, Ter., M. J. Stoner, Manheim, Pa. Master Charlie Howe, Manchester, Ind. Rev. G. W. Arnold, Eldorado, Ohio.

West Africa—J. A. Richards, River Gambia. Rev J. R. Frederick and Mr. R. A. Lewis, Freetown, Sierra Leone. Rev. James Dyson, Marshall Liberia, Mr. Moses Boyle, Liberia.

TERMS.

One Year by mail,	£0	6 0
Delivered in Bonthe,	0	5 0
Half yearly by mail,	0	3 0
Ditto, delivered in Bonthe,	0	2 6

Falconbridge Letters.

Letter III.

Bance Island Feb 16th 1890.

My Dear Friend—We sailed the very day I wrote you from Portsmouth, and our passage was unusually quick, being only eighteen days from thence to this place.

The novelty of a ship ploughing the trackless ocean, in a few days became quite familiar to me: there was such a sameness in every thing (for some birds were all we saw the whole way) that I found the voyage tiresome, notwithstanding the shortness of it. You will readily believe my heart was glad-dened at the sight of the mountains of Sierra Leone, which was the land first made.

Those Mountains appear to rise gradually from the sea to a stupendous height, richly wooded and beautifully ornamented by the hand of nature, with a variety of delightful prospects. I was really pleased while sailing up the river, for the rapidity of the ship through the water afforded a course of new scenes almost every moment, till we cast anchor here. Now and then I saw the glimpse of a native town, but from the distance and new objects hastily catching my eye was not able to form a judgement or idea of any of them; but this will be no loss, as I may have frequent opportunities of visiting some of them hereafter.

As soon as our anchor was dropped, Captain McLean saluted Bance Island with seven Guns, which not being returned I enquired the cause, and was told that the last time the Duke of Buccleugh came out, she, as is customary, saluted, and on the fort returning the compliment, a ball was drove by the force of the sea breeze upon the roof of one of the houses (which was then of thatch) set fire to the building, and consumed not only the house but goods to a large amount.

When the ceremony of saluting was over, Capt. McLean and Mr. Falconbridge went on shore but it being late in the evening, I continued on board till next day. Here we met the Lapwing cutter. She sailed sometime before us from Europe, and had been arrived two or three weeks. The master of her, and several of the people to whose assistance Mr. Falconbridge is come, and who had taken refuge here came to visit us. They represented their sufferings to have been very great; that they had been treacherously dealt with by one King Jemmy, who had drove them away from the ground they occupied, burnt their houses, and otherwise devested them of every comfort and necessary of life; they also threw out some reflections against the Agent of this Island, said he had sold several of their fellow sufferers to a Frenchman, who had taken them to the West Indies.

Mr. Falconbridge, however, was not the least inclined to give entire confidence to what they told us; but prudently suspended his opinion until he had made further enquiries. Those visitors being gone, we retired to bed–I cannot say to rest, the heat was so excessive that I scarcely slept at all.

The following day we received a polite invitation to dine on shore, which I did not object to, although harassed for want of sleep the night before. At dinner the conversation turned upon the slave trade; Mr. Falconbridge, zealous for the cause in which he is engaged, strenuously opposed every argument his opponents advanced in favor of the a[illegible] the gentlemen growing warm round, and the gentleness growing warm I retired immediately as the cloth was removed. The people on the Island crowded to see me, they gazed with apparent astonishment—I suppose at my dress, for white women could not be a novelty to them, as there were several among the unhappy people sent out here by the government, one of whom is now upon the Island. Seeing so many of my own sex, though of different complexion from myself, attired in their native garbs, was a scene equally new to me, and my delicacy, I confess, was not a little hurt at times. Many among them appeared of superior rank, at least I concluded so from the preferable way in which they were clad, nor was I wrong in my conjecture, for upon enquiring who they were, was informed one was the women or mistress of Mr.—, another of Mr. B—, and so on, I thus understood that every gentleman on the Island had His lady. While I was this entertaining myself with my observations, two or three of the gentlemen left their wine and joined me among them was Mr. B—, the agent, he in a very friendly manner begged I would take a bed on shore.

I thanked him, and said, if agreeable to Mr Falconbridge, I would have no objection, however, Falconbridge objected, and gave me for a reason that he had been unhandsomely treated, and was determined to go on board the Lapwing, for he would not subject himself to any obligation to men possessing such diabolical sentiments. It was not proper for me to contradict him at this moment, as the best of argument and the judgment of an over portion of wine had quickened and disconcerted his temper; I therefore submitted with out making any objections to come on board this ten of a vessel, which in point of ease and cleanliness, comes nigher a hog trough than any thing else you can imagine. Though I resolved to remonstrate the first convenable opportunity, and to point out the likelihood of endangering my health, should he persist to keep me in so confined a place.

This remonstrance I made the next morning, after passing a night of torment but to no purpose, the only consolation I got was,—as soon as the settlers could be collected, he would have a house built on shore, where they were to be fixed.

I honestly own my original resolutions of firmness was now warped at what I foresaw I was doomed to suffer, by being so much in [illegible] for God knows how long, as a prisoner disgusting as this was, in my opinion, at that time.

Conceive yourself pent up in a floating cage, without room either to walk about—Stand erect, or even to lay at length, exposed to the inclemency of the weather, having your eyes and ears momently offended by out of jealousy, and language too horrible to relate add to this a compliation of filth, the stench from which was continually assailing your nose, and then you will have a faint notion of the impending Critter.

However, upon collecting myself, and recollecting there was no remedy but to make the best of my situation, I begged the master [who slept upon deck in consequence of my coming on board] to have the cabin thoroughly cleaned and washed with vinegar, entreated Falconbridge to let me go on shore while it was doing, and hinted at the indecencies I saw and heard, and was promised they would be prevented in future.

With these assurances I went on shore not a little elated at the reprieve I was to enjoy for a few hours. The gentlemen received me with every mark of attention and civility, indeed, I must be wanting in sensibility, if my heart did not warm with gratitude to Messrs Ballingall and Tilly, for their kindnesses to me; the latter gentleman I am informed will succeed to the agency of the Island, he is a genteel young man, and I am told, very deserved ly, a favorite with his employers.

(To be continued.)

Help Yourselves.

In a letter received from the Treasurer of our Missionary Society a few days ago, the sentence occurs, "The African Mission is needing money more than anything else just now." Today the Early Dawn of Jan. 31, 1890 came to hand, and reminded me that, its Editor asked me sometime ago and that I had promised to do as he requested, viz. to write an article for publication in its columns.

The subject is Help yourselves. The pressing necessity for this, is that help from other sources is not so abundant as formerly in behalf of that missionary work. There has been in connection with the Mendi, Sherbro missions, first by American Missionary Association, and later by the United Brethren Missionary Society large sums of money expended in Africa since the year 1850. The results of the work done have not at times been very satisfactory, but, at other times abundant success has attended the efforts put forth.

The Mission stations commenced, and Farms opened, the Saw Mill, and Ginnerating, which have been successfully operated, the Day and Sunday, schools, conducted, including the Rufus Clarke & Wife Theological Training School, altogether have been doing good work in promoting the civilization of the people being in the bounds of these various operations.

Owing to various causes not necessary to mention in this paper, less money is available for the further prosecution of this mission than formerly, and hence the people within its bounds ought to do all they possibly can to help themselves. For their own good, the good of their children, and of their country, they ought to bestir themselves to the utmost extent of their ability, to keep the good influences which have been put into motion in their midst, continue, and even make them more potent for good [illegible] in the past. YAH BUTTON

There is not a single interest in civil or commercial affairs, to say nothing of religious, but what will be helped and made to redound to the good of the people, by supporting the work done by the mission.

It is to the advantage then of all the people in the territory occupied by these missions, to help themselves, and assist to give money to the support of them. This is the best way to interest those abroad in continuing their patronage. May God's richest blessing rest upon the friends and helpers of his cause, so that is being carried forward, in connection with our work in Africa. D. K. FLICKINGER.

March 26th 90

"Neither the world nor the things of the world can ever give the soul of man rest. Soul rest can be found alone in God."

The Amistad Captives.

There are several things in this part of Africa that militate against mission work that other heathen nations do not have to contend with.

1st. The frequent country wars that keep the country in a constant state of ferment, in consequence of which the population is continually changing so that it is next to impossible to build up a society of Christians, on a solid foundation i. e. with tried and trusted members for pillars, and these are indispensable in a properly organised Church.

2nd. Great hindrance to progress is the great number of dialects spoken each by a few thousand people only frequently two and three dialects will be spoken by the people of one village, so that the missionary must reach them through an interpreter in this way the message loses much of its power.

If the missionary decides that he will study the dialects, he must learn at least 2 or 3 before he can accomplish much in the way of preaching in the native dialect and the climate is so unhealthy that before this can be accomplished the missionary might die or have to quit the field to go and recruit his health as very many are doing every year.

3rd. Great hindrance to the progress of Mission Work is what is known as the white man's rum. I might say much under this head, but its evils can never be told, so I will stop before I begin, all of these and many other obstacles stood in the way of the success of the new mission, though the society sent out noble men and women as leaders, many who fell at their post and were buried on Africa's soil Mr. Raymond the boss and muscle of the mission who had interested agriculture and a mechanical department into the mission died Nov. 26th 1647 in him the mission lost its leading spirit one who had wisely shaped its development thus far, who was an enthusiast in his work and eminently fitted for; his place. Mr. Sanyans was left in charge until the first reinforcements arrived from the United States in the persons of Rev. George Thompson and Anson I. Carter who reached Kaw Mendi July 1848 they were received with every expression of joy, though coming in the midst of war and before Mr. Carter died 6 days after he reached the mission and his loss was most passionately deplored by the natives. His associate Mr. Thompson attributes his death not so much to the climate as to causes which had greatly impaired his health and would have resulted in death almost anywhere else.

Under Mr. Thompson the mission made steady progress though till in the face of adverse circumstances owing to the yet continuing war. In Nov. 1849 Mr. and Mrs Brooks and Miss Hatch Rixon (May God who was one of the Amistad Captives) arrived from New York to join the mission. Mrs. Brooks died of the African fever before reaching Kaw Mendi.

The Early Dawn.

BONTHE, MAY 15, 1890.

[EDITORIAL.]

It is better to say little and do much, than to promise a great deal and fail to fulfil.

WHY THEY DIFFERED.—About the Early Dawn, the first gentleman said it is of no use; the second said it is an improved paper. By further conversation they found that the first gentleman does not read it, while the second does and hence the difference. So we say, rather beg the public to give our little journal a trial; read it and judge of its merits.

Itinerating,—needs to be pushed as much as possible by every worker now, as the rains are coming upon us, and will soon hinder us much. Class rolls or lists as they are usually called, should be carefully kept and as far as possible every member seen and spoken to by the Itinerant, we must by some means become more fully acquainted with all our members, and enquirers should have the closest care as they are under the more special instruction of their Teachers.

But as has been observed by Professor Wilberforce, to us several times, all our Classes in the Itinerating towns, need more frequent visits of the Itinerants, who on such occasions should hold prayer and class meetings and instruct the people more on the lines of practical piety.

Certainly our people whether believers or seekers, ought to have frequently opportunities of relating their experience, not in a mere formal manner as is often the case, with more intelligent Christians, but let them tell their feelings without restraint and then the leader should make it a point of duty to speak a suitable word to each member of the class present and to openly in the meeting enquire in a kindly manner, for those who may be absent.

Every Itinerant in his rounds should so arrange that now and again he can hold meetings for social Worship as above stated, and endeavor in these meetings to exhibit a warm interest in all the members of his classes. And everywhere try to find a suitable leader for the class and instruct that leader in all those duties of his or her Office. We are aware that that our suggestions in this paper involve much labor and study but they are useful and will greatly advance the development of piety not only among our members, but in the communities where our societies are established.

Echoes from the Country.

The country we are told is quiet from north to south save perhaps now and then a little bush palaver or something of very minor importance. The frontier Police Force is beyond doubt the happiest thought hit upon by the Authorities and ought to be kept up; even if it should require some additional expense to the Colony. But we hear now and then a murmur about some of the Force and suppose that Frontier Police like other men are not always perfect in their views of matters and sometimes mistake a man's wife for his slave. And some it is thought do not impress the people favorably as regards the government these evils with others that come to our ears from the country, are possibly some of the necessary evils with such an institution as the frontier Police, however, in noting these or any other facts about those matters we do hold ourselves responsible for these reports.

Hail—commonly called ice—has fallen in some places of late and the weather prophets have been interpreting these Hail storms to be harbingers of a fruitful Harvest. But whether Hailstones will give us plenty of rice or not we cannot tell yet we are sure that the frequent rains of the last few weeks are giving us plenty of grass, which will, especially, need to be carefully watched in town and country otherwise our fine streets and roads will soon be filled with it, to the great inconveniences of all classes, both as to health and travel.

It has also seemed to us that if chiefs and headmen in the country could be induced to clear away the bush for a few paces around the out side of their towns and especially from the Landing places or Wharfs along the Rivers; that it would be a preventitive of theives escaping so easy with their booty, and also of that form enssbalism that disguises itself under the form of Alligator and Leopard.

The frequent fires that occur in the country Towns and villages destroying the little effects of many persons leaving them destitute, seem to suggest very strongly that something ought to be done to regulate the handling of fire for it does seem too bad that so much damage should be done from sheer carelessness.

The Rum Traffic.

This subject of the traffic in alcoholic beverages, is one of so much importance to the people of this continent that it should receive the greatest attention of all classes of men and women, for is a subject that needs to be studied very closely, especially by the commercial public, who now seem to feel that it is against their interest to say a word against this commodity of trade. To them it seems to be a settled fact, that rum, gin, and a uch like spirits are really necessary to the life of commerce; not, they say, from the direct profits on the drink itself, but on account of the activity or life it gives to business. But, really, there perhaps was never a greater delusion than that involved in the notion that spirits give life to trade; for they do not, but only stimulate it for a time as they do a man and then die away, leaving the trade weaker and weaker just as alcohol does the system. And to stimulate the trade again more spirits must be used with the same weakening results, and as a result of this we see the trade of today far weaker and less productive than years ago; to say nothing of the almost countless numbers of persons, who, too weak to resist their appetite for strong drink have become wrecked in business. These things ought to be well considered by the business man of today who is now handling the very stuff that has wrecked the fortunes of so many that have preceded him on the commercial stage. And this seems the more important, when it is admitted, by so many, that there is little or no profit in the liquor trade. In another paper, I hope to speak of the influence of The Spirits Trade on Religion and Morals in our communities. E.

(Selections)

Confessions of the Infidel Rousseau.

"I will confess to you that the majesty of the Scriptures strikes me with admiration, as the purity of the Gospels hath its influence over my heart. Peruse the works of our philosophers: with all their pomp of diction how mean, how contemptible are they, compared with the scripture. Is it possible that a book, at once so simple and sublime, should be merely the work of man? Is it possible that the sacred Personage whose history it contains, should be himself a mere man? Do we find that he assumes the tone of an enthusiast or ambitious sectary? What sweetness, what purity in his manner. What an effecting gracefulness in his delivery. What sublimity in his maxims. What profound wisdom in his discourses. What presence of mind, what subtility, what truth in his replies. How great the command over his passions. Where is the man, where the philosopher, who could so live, and so die without weakness, and without ostentation?

"When Plato described his imaginary good man, loaded with all the shame of guilt, yet meriting the highest rewards of virtue, he describes exactly the character of Jesus Christ; the resemblance was so striking that all the fathers perceived it.

"What prepossession, what blindness must it be, to compare the son of Sophronicus to the Son of Mary. What an infinite disproportion there is between them. Socrates, dying without pain or ignominy, easily supported his character to the last: if his death, however easy had not crowned his life, it might have been doubted whether Socrates with all his wisdom, was anything more than a vain sophist. He invented, it is said, the theory of morals. Others however had before put them in practice. He had only to say, therefore, what they had done, and to reduce their examples to precepts.

"Aristides had been just, before Socrates defined justice; Leonidas had given up his life for his country before Socrates declared patriotism to be a duty; the Spartans were a sober people before Socrates recommended sobriety; before he even defined virtue, Greece abounded in virtuous men.

"But where could Jesus learn among his competitors, that pure and sublime mortality which he only hath given us both in precept and example?

"The greatest wisdom was made known among the most bigoted fanaticism, and the simplicity of the most heroic virtues did honor to the vilest people on earth. The death of Socrates, peaceably philosophizing with his friends, appears the most agreeable that could be wished for; that of Jesus expiring in the midst of the most agonising pains, abused, insulted, and accused, by a whole nation, is the most horrible that could be feared. Socrates, in receiving, the poison, blessed indeed the weeping executioner who administered it; but Jesus, in the midst of excruciating tortures, prayed for his merciless tormentors.

"Yet, if the life and death of Socrates were those of sage, the life and death of Jesus are those of God. Shall we suppose the evangelic history a mere fiction? Indeed, my friends, it bears not the marks of fiction; on the contrary the history of Socrates, which nob ody presumes to doubt, is not so well attested as that of Jesus Christ.

"Such a supposition in fact only shifts the difficulty, without obviating it: it is more inconceivable that a number of persons should agree to write such a history." —Millon.

NEWS ITEMS.

FROM GAMBIA RIVER.

Mr. Rose, the well known colored Evangelist arrived here per S. S. Africa, from Sierra Leone on the 3rd. instant, looking hale and hearty. His advent caused a great deal of surprise as it had been reported sometime ago that he had joined the majority and was no more. No doubt some like Herod thought that the beheaded John the Baptist was alive again.

He was holding a very successful week night services in the parish church of St. Mary's of which the Rev. N. S. Davis, B. A. is the distinguished pastor.

April 17.—On Thursday the 17th. inst. Mr. Nathan C. Nathan, Auditor's clerk of this colony and late of the establishment of S. B. A. McFoy Esq., prince Merchant of Sherbro was married to Miss Emelia Henrietta Ogoo, in the parish church of St. Mary's.

Many of your readers will remember the bride-groom in connection with the name of the late Mr. Nathan who was a very successful merchant and resident of Sugrbro for several years.

Freetown.—Mr. Geo Zechonis, (of Paterson Zechonis& Co.) left Freetown on the 9th inst. per s. s. Gaboon for England.

SHERBRO.

April 28th—s. s. "Susu" from Freetown with Messrs Tambacci general agent for Fisher and Randall, and T. E. Macfoy agent P. Z. & Co. Sherbro.

30—Cutter "Jersey" from Freetown with Mr. W. A. E. Wray clerk to P. Z. & Co.

30th—"Susu" for Freetown with mails and passengers viz, Mr. J. N. Hamilton of P. Z. & Co, and Mrs. J. A. Williams.

May 2—Mr. S. B. A. Macfoy was a passenger per s.s. Formoso for Freetown on April 25.

May 2.—s. s. Formoso from Freetown with Mr. W. B. Campbell of Surveyors' Department, Freetown.

Cutter Jersy for Freetown with general cargo of African produce from P. Z. & Co.

Boat Marrie, Devel master from Freetown consigned to W. D. Pratt.

May 3.—Mr. H. N. May, photographer returned from his tour to the Boom River.

May 6.—Formoso for Freetown with mails and passengers as follows: Messrs W. B. Campbell, H. N. May, W. S. D. Pratt, J. E. Macfoy and H. Morgan Lewis.

Rev. J. Gomer, General Supt. of the Sherbro and Mendi Missions with his Neice Miss Fanny Clark were in this place from the 6th to 8th instants they were both in good health.

May 12.— Cutter Empress cleared for Freetown with general cargo of African produce.

May 7.—Boat Marie Dewvre master for Freetown.

May 10.—Colonial steamer, Countess of Derby from Freetown with mails and the following passengers:— M. V. D. Stuart collector of customs, Freetown; Major J. J. Crooks, col. treasurer, Freetown; Major Moore Inspector general of Police and F. Burman Agt. Pickering & Berthoud.

Cutter Empress from Freetown with general cargo of clean rice consigned to Messrs Pickering & Berthoud.

Mr. S. B. A. Campbell Agt. for French Co. at Mesnah arrived on the 10th inst. and left on the 12th.

May 11.—Countess of Derby for Freetown with mails and Messrs Stuart, Crooks, Col., Treas. and Burman.

It is rumored that a telegrah cable will soon be brought to Sherbro, how true this rumor is we can not say at present.

Major Moore who arrived here per Countess of Derby on the 10th proceeded to the Bargroo to take the overland route to the different police stations.

May 13.—s. s. Formoso from Freetown with passengers and freight and will proceed on to Sulimah.

We regret to learn that Copl. Sepwen who left here sometime last month for Freetown is sick and will be leaving shortly for England on sick leave of absence.

From Big Boom—We hear of another theft. 69 pes cotten and other valuables taken from the stores of Bondukoh Factory belonging to G. R. L. Thompson Esqre of Bendoo. It is however further reported that the theives were apprehended at Moffuay with a part of the stolen goods It is to be hoped that they may be punished for their misdoing.

From Koncohany.—We hear from Mr. T. M. Cole, the teacher that interesting sermons were preached there on the occasion of the Quarterly Communion services by the presiding Elder of the District, the Rev. J. A. Evans of Bonthe, he only regrets that the attendance was thin. However, three children were baptized on the occasion, and the Lord was present to bless his people.

Merry-Go-Round—for the amusement of the public on the 24th instant Corner of Victoria road and Thomas Sts.' Mr Jenkins the proprietor will be pleased with a large patronage on Her Majestys birth day.

Mando Station—We learn that Mr N. O. Thompson, formerly an asst of Rev H. J. Williams at NCharmany, has been appointed to the charge of Mando. We wish him success in his work.

Otterbein Station,
Bompehtook, May 10th, '90.

Dear Bro. Evans:— As you would like to hear from us frequently as possible, I take this opportunity to send you a few jottings that may be of interest to your readers.

Two weeks ago the Town of Mosam on the Tucker river was burned, from the burning of a little farm of Chief Mallegesa, near that place. On the 7th inst Maupoo hiet Bassays own also was accidentally burned by a child about three yars old. You will be pained to learn that the kitchen adjoining the Mission-house of Koolonge Station was blown down by heavy Tornado, which passed over that place on the 9th inst.

A little girl of Mrs Sawyers had a narrow escape from the falling building; but was taken unhurt from the ruins. A Miss Nancy Caulker one of ourchurch members, daughter of Mary Freeman of Gaindamah, died a christains death, and was buried in like manner on last sunday. May all our people exemplify the christain life as she did and their end be as peaceful as hers. Kambeh Hannah of Mosam also a member of our church died recently a geahoo; her remains were brought to Bompehtooke, by the purroh, and of course were not permitted to have a christian buial; yet from what I have known of her life, she was saved through the grace of God. Today (10th inst) Mrs Jannie Caulker and Mrs Bettie Caulker of Shaingay left here for their homes after a few days visit to J. Ben. Williams Esqre, chief of Bompehtook, who has been quite sick for some time past. Rev J. C. Sawyer the aged pastor of Kooloonge, is with us and trying to further the best plans for carrying forward the work for the enlightenment elvation and conversion of the people among whom we labor you will hear from me again.

Yours. A. F. Campbell

Formalism.

Mr. Editor: Permit me to offer a few thoughts on the above named subject, with a view solely to benefit those who are the professed followers of Christ. As I understand it the term formalism means a dependence in religious practice upon certain formulas, by which the worshiper hopes to be benefited, but to come more into favor with the Maker and savior a thing which I am persuaded can never be accomplished by mere forms. And yet from observation of the lives and conduct of very many Christians it is evident that they are merely formal worshipers their prayers are set forms of words, in as true a sense as any found in a prayerbook, but often less appropriate in sense to say nothing of their awkward diction. Those also formal, and as truly of the letter that killeth, as if they had been printed forms. But of this class of formality there is much current among us, too many people say their prayers, i. e. repeat their formulas—but such is not praying, in the sense that will help the soul and bring down blessings from above. Now it will be seen that my objections are not to the prayerbook, to a heir proper devotion, far from it, read, study, use anything you can to dispose the mind upright, inflame holy passions, but do not I plead upon any form, either, your own or the greatest living writer for soul inspiring aid. No forms of worship can change the heart of man but true seeking after God through his beloved Son Jesus Christ, not by any particular form but in sincerity and truth willeffect a change of heart. Formalism is the repeating, in devotion, of any on of more words, however sacred, without the heart being engaged. And however beautifully performed, it can not meet the requirements of God who asks of every man his heart "son or daughter give me thy heart" is the sacred injuction. While God seriously objects to those who draw nigh with their lips while their hearts are far from him. It was this formalism that the prophet Isaish so strongly inveighed against in the children of Israel as may one may read by turning to Isaiah 29th chapter, tenth to fifteenth verses.

And from which scripture it will be easily perceived that the Lord is not at all pleased with the mere formalist and does not wish such in his house, for he says (Is. 1: 12-15) "When ye come to appear before me who hath required this at your hand to tread my courts: bring no more vain oblations, incense is an abe mination unto me; the new moons and sabbaths, the calling of assemblies. I can not away with; it is inquity, even the solemn meeting. Your new moons and your appointed feasts my soul hateth: they are a trouble unto me; I am weary to bear them. And when ye spread forth your hands, I will hide mine eyes from you; yea, when ye make many prayers, I will not hear; your hands are full of blood." J, Anna.

FROM AVERY STATION.

Mr. President:—The work under my charge throughout this extensive field, I am glad to report has grown prosperous, independent of heart rending scenes of distress and other changes, by which it had been faced during the quarter. The congregations, especially those of Sabbath mornings are good, their intercessions show, how much they desire the preaching of the Word.

Our monthly prayer meetings, and the womans' Friday gatherings have effected much spiritual benefit to the conviction of a few. The week-night services have not been attended as much, as desirable: but in spite of these, there is a lively growth in our gatherings, and the presence of God has been felt among us.

A good work has been done in the itinerating department; 60 towns have been visited, and in these 1322 persons have assembled to hear the precious truth of Jesus. But from the scattered condition of the population, we pray for a further increase of our staff to carry the work on successfully. The work at Mattro is incomplete for want of means to get on, still we look to the Lord for help before the heavy rains set in. It is sad to mention that our little Barra in which we held meetings at MoPampi was burnt down by a fire which was accidentally lighted and destroyed the entire village, in the early part of March.

The want of food and clothing consequently, has since increased the anxieties and troubles of our members in that place. Most earnestly we recommend the conditions of our people to the merciful consideration of kind hearted friends. "Blessed is he that considereth the poor: the Lord will deliver him in time of trouble." Ps. 40: 1. Number of seekers' classes, 16; Members, 266; Communicants, 50; total, 316.

Day Schools.—The work in this department is progressing in spite of a slight decrease in the number of scholars. Three of the mission boarders have left us abruptly; being influenced by their parents. Henry Tucker's mishap has already been mentioned in the issue of the DAWN 15th March. He is still under medical treatment in the Colonial hospital at Bonthe; and is rapidly improving. Henry is perfectly resigned to the will of the Master; in a conversation with him when I visited the hospital, he said "O sir, it is better to be in heaven with an amputated hand, than to be cast into hell with my two hands."

No. of both sexes, Avery, 40; MoSalpeh, 6; total 46. The Sabbath school continues and interesting. No. of teachers and officers 3; scholars 42; total 45. Missionary Aid Society 7. £2 1s 6d; class pence, 16s 10d; Light 5s 6d; Sabbath schools, 2s; preachers salary, 7s 6d; total £3 13s 4d; (three pounds thirteen shillings four pence.) Humbly submitted, 10th April 1890. S. B. MORRISON.

The Liquor Traffic.

Dear Mr. Editor—I am really surprised to find that since you have been writing on the subject of Intemperance in the issues of your valuable and esteemed journal no one in this place has ever yet written to support you. Is it because no interest is manifested towards the canse of Temperance by men in this community or what is it?

However as no one has been kind enough to write on the subject I therefore take upon myself the task.

The question of the Liquor traffic has engaged the attention of the civilised world at the present moment, and more so at Shilingay where Temperance Societies have been formed and is making rapid progress as reported in the issues of your valuable journal—

I was more than glad when I read in your issue of the 15th April the protest made by the people of Rembee (one of your Mission Station), prohibiting the sale of spirits in that place.

I admire the courage with which the scheme has been brought about through the influence of your writting and evangelistic Supdt. Rev. J. Gomer and Mr. Stewart.

If such effect could be produced on the minds of the natives, how much more ought it to be in the minds of christians who indulge in the sale and use of this Liquor a hydra headed monster which reduces its victim to the level of a brute.

In reading the African Times of May 1st. 1888, I came accross the following—

"A native King wrote begging that the Rum traffic might be stopped. If not his people would have to abandon their towns and go into the desert to avoid the white man's Rum."

What a noble example for Christians to copy.

The paper read by the Rev. J. A. Evans, on Intemperance at the Mends Mission School Room a few months ago is full of much useful advice, also that of Mr Binkersteth, and notwithstanding all that is read and heard Bonthe is still the same; for here and there are to be found drunken men and women loitering about the Grog shops especially so is this to be found among professed christians.

May I ask, Why do not the ministers of religion preach special sermons to their members who indulge in the use and sale of Spirits.

I am afraid that this town (Bonthe) is demoralized by the overflowing of Grog shops owned by members of church.

If the 'ministers would adopt the plan laid out by Mr. Gomer I believe there will be a great change at Bonthe, much praise is due to Miss Groenendyke for her success in the cause of Temperance. Who will follow the example of Mr. Gomer and Miss Groenendyke.

Yours,—TEMPERANCE.

Bonthe May 12th, '90.

Mohammedanism in Africa.

It has been thought by some that the religion of Mohammed opens the way for the gospel of Christ, and others have trusted or rather hoped that it might, and in fact perhaps, it is but christian charity to hope for this end. The question, however, that arises is, whether the religion of the false Prophet does in any way facilitate the the work of christianity! To this it may be replied that it does seem to help; yet it is rather more in the negative than the positive sense.

For as a rule Mohammedans while teaching the worship of God, teach it in rather a unitarian sense leaving out thereby not only the doctrine of the Trinity, but two important persons, the Son and Holy Ghost, of the Godhead. Hence as these are both essential to Christianity and are not known to Mohammedanism, it follows that whatever that religion teaches in common with the christian religion is only partial, negative, and incidental. In Africa, too, Mohammedans while opposing, Idolatry, encourage devilism, by their Fetish which they practice among the heathen.

But this inconsistency of theirs on the advent of the Christian Teacher usually turns in favor of the latter faith, for charms are exposed as a cheat and a swindle which the follower of the prophet is too often made to confess, to the great advantage of the cause of Christ, this too it will be readily, perceived is a negative rather than a positive help.

But Mohammedan Teachers admit at times that Jesus Christ was a prophet, and some say equal to Mohammed. This admission if it was general among Mohommedans, and the christian faith regarded as on a par with Mohammedanism, would not be sufficient to constitute Mohomedanism positive help to the Spread of the Gospel. For the Gospel holds up it's Christ as superior to all others and the only Saviour of men, its Faith as the only Salvation for the world, its claims are the heathen for Inheritance and the Ends of the Earth for a possession. With such sweeping tenets as these it can scarcely be possible for Mohammedanism or any other religion to facilitate its progress unless in a negative or incidental manner and such is truly the way that this religion of the Prophet may be today facilitating the religion of Lord's Christ on this continent; for I have, for nearly Twenty years, carefully and observingly studied this religion, and its bearing on and toward the christian faith and have found it essentially, and diametrically opposed, to it. In its approches toward the Christian faith and the recognition of Christ, it fails to admit our claims and degrades him to the Level of a merely human Prophet and exalts an impostor to an equality with the Savior of the World.—E.

"Shall I spend all my money for a shoping bag and carry it home empty, or buy other things and carry the bundles in my arms?"

The young lady who lives in the vicinity of Madison Square and sings "No body loves me" every evening after dinner in the boarding-house parlor has no one to blame but herself.

THE
Early Dawn
PRINTING OFFICE.
PLAIN, ARTISTIC and FANCY JOB WORK
EXECUTED AT
SHORT NOTICE
ENQUIRE OF
E. G. Caulker,
PRINTER.

THE EARLY DAWN.

"The Morning Light Is Breaking, The Darkness Disappears."

BONTHE, SHERBRO, WEST AFRICA, MAY 31, 1890. No. 9.

The "Early Dawn."

Published Semi-Monthly at Bonthe Sierra Leone. Under the Auspices of the Board of Missions of the United Brethren in Christ.

By J. A. EVANS, Editor and Publisher, Bonthe, Sherbro, West Africa.

AGENTS.

United States.—Revs. B. F. Booth and Wm Keen, Dayton, O. Rev. I. K. Statler, Cedar Rapids, Iowa. Rev. Wm. J. Davis, Basil, Ohio. Rev. J. T. Jenifer, Chicago, Ill. Rev. J. L. Gundey, Marion, O. Rev. J. S. Cleaver, Elkhart, Ind. Rev. R. P. Barton, Peru Ind. D. K. Flickinger, Willoughby, O. Rev. H. Eilwell, Day View, Washington, Ter. M. J. Stoner, Manheim, Pa. Master Charlie Howe, Manchester, Ind. Rev. G. W. Arnold, Eldorado, Ohio.

West Africa.—J. A. Richards, River Gambia. Rev. J. R. Frederick and Mr. E. A. Lewis, Freetown, Sierra Leone. Rev. James Dennis, Cape Mount, Liberia. Rev. Mosses Boyle, Liberia.

TERMS.

One Year by mail,	£0	6	0
Delivered in Bonth,	0	5	0
Half yearly by mail,	0	3	0
Ditto. delivered in Bonthe,	0	2	6

Falconbridge Letters.

LETTER III. (CONT'D)

Mr. Falconbridge this day sent a message to Elliott Griffiths, the secretary of Naimbana, who is king of Sierra Leone, acquainting him with the purport of his mission, and begging to know when he may be honored with an audience of his Majesty. In the evening he received an answer, of which the following is a copy:

Robsons Town.

KING Naimbana's compliments to Mr. Falconbridge, and will be glad to see him tomorrow. Signed,

A. E. Griffiths, Sec.

Such an immediate answer from a king, I considered a favorable, omen and mark of condescension in his majesty, but the result you shall hear by and by; in the mean while, I must tell you what passed the remainder of the day at Bance Island, and give, as far as my ideas will allow me, a discription of this Factory. We sat down to dinner with the same party as the first day, consisting of about fifteen in number; this necessary ceremony, ended, and towards the cool of the afternoon, I proposed walking for a while: Mr Tilly and a Mr Barber offered to accompany and show me the island, which not being objected to, we set out. Adam's town was the first place they took me to. It is so called from a native of that name, who has the management of all the grasmattos, or free black servants, that is under the control of the Agent. The whole town consists of a street with a row about twent five houses on each side; on the right of all is Adam's house. This building does not differ from the rest, except in size, being much more spacious than any other, and being barracaded with a mud wall; all of thatches, wood, and clay, something resembling our poor cottages, in many parts of England. I went into several of them saw nothing that did not discover the occupiers to be very clean and neat; in some was a rock or two of wood, which served for a chairn, a few wooden bowls or trenches, and perhaps a pewter bason, and an iron pot, completed the whole of their furniture. In every house I was accosted by whoever are found at home, in the Timmany language "Carra Yes," which signifies "How do you do, master!" the most respectful way they can address any person.

Leaving the town we proceeded first to the burying ground for Europeans, and then to that for the blacks, the only distinction between them was a few orange trees, that Shaded two grave stones at the former, one in memory of a Mr Knight, who had died here after residing fifteen years as agent; the other on the supposed grave of a captain Tittle, who was murdered by one named Domingo, a native chief, for as (Domingo asserts) being the cause of his son's death. The circumstance leading to the murder, and of the murder itself, has been represented to me nearly in the following words: "one day while the son of Domingo was employed by captain Tittle, as a grasmatto, or pull-away boy, * Tittle's hat, by accident blew overboard, and he insisted that the boy should jump into the water and swim after it, as the only means of saving his hat. The boy obstinately refused, saying, he could not swim, and he should either be drowned, or the sharks would catch him: upon which Tittle pushed him into the water, and the poor boy was lost; but whether devoured by sharks, or suffocated by water, is immaterial, he was never heard of, or seen after. The father, though sorely grieved about his son's death, was willing to consider it as accidental, and requested Tittle to supply him with a small quantity of rum to make a cry or lamentation in their country custom. The captain, by promise, acquiesced to the demand, sent a cask, but instead of spirits, filled with emptyings from the tubs of his slaves. As soon as Domingo discovered this insult and imposition, he informed Tittle he must either submit to the decision of a palaver, or he would put him to death if ever an opportunity offered; but Tittle laughed at these threats, and disregarded them, vaantingly threw himself into the way of Domingo— while the trick played upon him, and the loss of his son were fresh in his memory. The African, however, instead of being daunted at the sight of this headstrong man, soon convinced him that he was serious: he had Tittle siezed and after confining him some time in irons without food, ordered him to be broken to death which was executed under the inspection of the injured father, and to the great joy and satisfaction of a multitude of spectators." Not a sentence or hint of the affair is mentioned on the tombstone; the reason assigned for the omission, was a wish to obliterate the melancholy catastrophe, and a fear that the record might be the means of kindling animosities at a future day.

Now, although I can not without horror contemplate on the untimely end of this man, yet he assuredly in some degree merited it, if the account I have heard, and just related to you, be true, which I have no reason to question, for he who unprovked can wantonly rob a fellow creature of his life, deserves not life himself.

From the catacombs which lay at the southeast end, we walked to the opposite point of the Island; it is no great distance, for the whole island is very little more than a fourth of a mile in length, and scarcely a mile and a half in circumference.

Several rocks lay at a small distance from the shore at this end; they are by the natives called the Devils Rocks—from a superstitious opinion, that the old gentleman resides either there or in the neighborhood. Sasmo, king of the Bullums comes to this places once a year to make a sacrifice and peace offering to his infernal majesty. From this king Messrs Anderson hold all their possessions here and I understand they pay him an annual tribute—but to what amount I can not say. The king comes in person to receive his dues, which are paid him in his canoe, for he never ventures to put his foot on shore, as his gree greems or fortune tells-s have persuaded him the island will sink under him, if ever he lands. I am told at one time he suffered himself to be dragged up to the factory house in his boat, but no argument was strong enough to seduce him to disembark, for he did not consider he incurred the penalty his prophets denounced while he continued in his canoe; though he could not avoid showing evident tokens of uneasiness, till he was safe all at again.

We now returned to the factory, or as it is otherwise called Bance Island House. This building at a distance has a respectable and formidable appearance, nor is it much less so upon a nearer investigation: I suppose it is one hundred feet in length, and thirty in breadth, and contains nine rooms on one floor, under which are commodious large cellars and store rooms, to the right is the kitchen, forge, etc. and to the left other necessary buildings, all of country stone, and surrounded with a prodigious thick lofty wall. There was formerly a fortification in front of those houses, which was destroyed by a French frigate during the last war, at present several pieces of cannon are planted in the same places but without embrasures or breast work, behind the great house is the slave yard, and houses for accommodating the slaves. Delicacy, perhaps, prevented the gentlemen from taking me to see them, but the room where we dined looks directly into the yard. Involuntarily I strolled to one of the windows a little before dinner, without the smallest suspicion of what I was to see;—judge then, what my astonishment and feelings were, at the sight of between two and three hundred victims, chained and parcelled out in circles, just satisfying the cravings of nature from a trough of rice placed in the center of each circle.

* African term for an un-man.

Ximorating.

Left mission wharf at 6 a. m. arrived at Yonie 9 a.m. with a favorable tide. Preached to 32 attentive hearers. No seekers, some of the people being Mohammedans and the rest strangers Left Yonie 9:30, at and arrived at Deina 8:25 a.m. proceeded to 31 services and attentive hearers, 10 of whom enrolled as seekers, may God help them. Left at 9:27 under fast sailing arrived at Bambah at 10:45 a.m. this is the first time we visited this place whose people are fawners for dewi ewi. All strangers landing here must be warned, we would have been glad for the opportunity of telling them of the Saviour but they were all gone on a visit to the surrounding towns and villages. We met only a man and a boy to whom we announced the object of our visit. Left at 10:45 a.m. and reached Bonthe at 12:55 p.m. David Rodger interpreted. We praise the Lord for what has been done.

R. Dodson Taylor.

18th May, 1890.

Results of Peace.

Mr. Editor, —It is truly pleasing to contemplate the present condition of the country, or perhaps I should say of the surrounding countries. Peace prevails everywhere and the waste places are being built up, and towns devastated by the wars of past years are nearly everywhere being result, and new towns I am told in some cases are being laid out. Farming in the ordinary country way is being prosecuted with vigor people seem to feel assurance in the peace that has been brought about by the successful policy of his Excellency Sir James S. Hay. And feeling this confidence are settling down to the duties of life, as they understand them in earnest. A gentleman who has had occasion to travel pretty well over the adjacent territories, assures me that no war is possible under the present policy of Sir James; and that the dragged up to the factory house in his boat, but no argument was strong enough to seduce him to disembark, for he did not consider he incurred the penalty his prophets denounced while he continued in his canoe; though he could not avoid showing evident tokens of uneasiness, till he was safe all at again.

We now returned to the factory, or as it is otherwise called Bance Island House. This building at a distance has a respectable and formidable appearance, nor is it much less so upon a nearer investigation: I suppose it is one hundred feet in length, and thirty in breadth, and contains nine rooms on one floor, under which are commodious large cellars and store rooms, to the right is the kitchen, forge, etc. and to the left other necessary buildings, all of country stone, and surrounded with a prodigious thick lofty wall. There was formerly a fortification in front of those houses, which was destroyed by a French frigate during the last war, at present several pieces of cannon are planted in the same places but without embrasures or breast work, behind the great house is the slave yard, and houses for accommodating the slaves. Delicacy, perhaps, prevented the gentlemen from taking me to see them, but the room where we dined looks directly into the yard. Involuntarily I strolled to one of the windows a little before dinner, without the smallest suspicion of what I was to see;—judge then, what my astonishment and feelings were, at the sight of between two and three hundred victims, chained and parcelled out in circles, just satisfying the cravings of nature from a trough of rice placed in the center of each circle.

Formalism No. 2.

Mr Editor,—Since writing or rather since your last issue May 15th was placed in hands of the public, I am truly glad to say that I find the sentiment of my last article on the above subject finds a response in the hearts of some of your readers. And hearts of some of your readers. And that it has at least caused one among the preachers of this place to cry against the deadly formality that is sapping the life out of our Churches. I am glad in resuming the pen again on this subject, I pray God to so direct the words that they may be understood by all who read them, and that they may arouse a new life in those who hitherto have depended on the set formulas of worship. That it may bestir men and women to think earnestly on the subject of how they should worship God, on what He is likely to accept and to bless.

It is not true that we are to please God and his sons not as man seeks for man, looking on the outward appearance, and so looking he may applaud beautiful forms, fine words and easy delivery But God who seeth the heart, and weighs the motives of the worshipper, is not with the manner of the worship, but with the spirit and will not bless the man or woman who will not heartily worship him, no matter how beautiful the expression of devotion as long as the heart, the will and the life is not engaged in the service rendered. Every thing in religion, depends on the heart, if the heart is right all will go right, and we can confidently go forward on our journey toward the goal and be assured of eternal life as the reward of our patience and toil. Let us as pray for a clean heart and a right spirit of earnest and sincere devotion to God and his cause, more again.

J. Anon.

GOVERNMENT NOTICE.

His Excellency the Governor directs that the following opinion of the Director of the Royal Gardens at Kew, on the Ocala and Annatto Seeds and the Wild Sarsaparilla plant, be published for general information.

By Command, (Colonial H Higgins) Secretary

Colonial Secretariat.
Freetown, Sierra Leone.
6th May, 1890.

KEW GARDENS TO COLONIAL OFFICE.

Royal Gardens, Kew.
9th April, 1890.

* * * *

The "Wild Sarsaparilla" proves to be a species of Agave very closely allied, if not identical, with forms of Agave Rigida, Mill yielding the Sisal hemp of commerce. The presence of this plant in West Africa is very interesting. It has no doubt been introduced like all members of the Agave family from the New World. If it is widely distributed in the Sherbro some attempt might be made to utilize it for fibre.

* * * *

The "Reddish Brown Dye" in a fluid state is the colouring matter of the well known Annatto [Bira orellana]. Usually the seeds themselves, covered with a reddish waxy substance, are imported to this country; or in some cases the colouring substance is removed and made into a paste or hard cake.

Annatto seeds are now worth about 2½d. to 3½d. per pound if of good quality. Paste or Flag Annatto is worth from 5d. to 1s. 8d. per pound. The demand in both cases is limited and it is impossible that it would pay to cultivate Annatto plants in West Africa. On the other hand if plants are already abundant and will the question of profit will entirely depend upon the cost of collecting the seeds and shipping them to this country. It is likely however to be more advantageous to prepare paste or flag Annatto on the spot.

The "Oil and Seeds" are obtained from the "Owala" of Gaboon and Upper Ochoia of the Eboe country (Pentaclethra Macrophylla.)

The seeds are said to be used as as food on the Niger. The oil has been fully investigated in this country and it procurable in large quantities it might be used for soap making and lubricating purposes.

I am &c.,
(Sigd) D. Morris.

The Honorable
R. H. Meade, C. B.
"Colonial Office."

Industrial Work A Necessity.

My experience for the past nineteen years with our African work, many of these years, actually spent in the field and in charge at different times, of some of our most important stations—Shangay, Avery, Good Hope, is that industrial work must be carried on in connection with our religious and educational work whatever may be the cost of it, for it is simply useless for any set of missionaries to labor to convert men and women from heathenism while they do nothing to remove the pagan surroundings. A mission needs a civilized house to build up a christian home in a pagan district; the house becomes at object lesson and speaks or appeals to the sense of many with which the missionary may never come in contact at all but it also attracts the attention of casual passers by and leads them to enquire of the purpose of this innovation, sometimes, indeed of ten, a visit to the man of God, who may speak a word that will follow the individual to his distant home and not return void, but accomplish that where unto it was sent, even the salvation of that soul. To erect the house we must employ workmen of different crafts and each must work hence the necessity of industry to open up the mission work. After building a house, however plain it may be there are many other requirements—as a yard, fences, fowl coops, pigstyes, and many other such like things to make the wilderness bloom or desert blossom as the rose.

Agriculture must be taught in order to get a living from the soil which is the simplest, if not the surest, means of subsistance, then tools or implements are required such as axes to tell the trees hoes, if not ploughs, to dig the earth rakes, if not Harrows, to smooth and prepare the ground, but in Africa especially, there is no Village with its Store, Blacksmith Shop Wood-Work shop and the like, where the missionary has to begin his labor hence his supply of tools as well as provisions at first must be obtained from a distance, this he may manage if he is well supplied with means, but how about repairing his houses his tools, hoes, axes, etc, for a carpenter you must send from Twenty to one hundred miles if it be only to repair a roof broken by a storm of the night previous, or to make a coffin for one of your converts or may be your child or your wife or a fellow Missionary if the carpenter cannot be had in a short time in the latter cases you must bury as the heathen do around you. For a Blacksmith to weld a simple Iron Instrument you must send along distance twenty to sixty miles and pay his price, then, as there may be no choice.

As with the above workmen so with almost everything, you must either provide for it in your mission or go a long distance for it and be assured that you will not travel by either stage or Rail Train but usually in a row Boat or Canoe or on foot speaking of Boats and Canoes brings to mind a further necessity of Industrial application, one which we here by the water side, are indeed never suffered to forget, and that is the work of building and repairing boats and canoes as these are our Waggons and Carriages they require the presence of workers in Iron and wood with supplies of Iron, Timber, Boards, Oakum, Tar, Putty, Oil, and Paint; the Oakum require skill the latter stands hence directors overseers, and clerks The only way to get any of these near at hand is to locate your mission near a Factory, or provide for them within your mission, if you locate near a Factory then you must contend with all the baleful influences of the worst vices of civilization, with but little power to counteract them, then again it is not often that you can locate your mission without inconvenience near a great Factory or even one large enough to be of any considerable help to you in the way of supplies hence then the necessity of everything even Trade within your own mission. In a civilized land a preacher goes to a village or Town and finds there on the ground the appliances of civilized life and Society Nominally christian, men and women live much as he does except the presence of true piety or it may be religious organization he can rent a house and begin his work of preaching the word of life, can eat the same as they eat, dress the same as they dress, (save it may be following the fashions) but in Africa it is not so, The Village or Town as the case may be is only a smaller or larger collection of mean huts of mud with a ground Floor of dirt without chimneys or flues and generally without ceiling usually smoked and filthy.

These huts are huddled close together and without streets with an extent of from a half acre to perhaps six or seven acres in the whole town or village platt surrounding this is a heavy forest underset with a dense undergrowth known in all tropical countries as jungle to one side or the other of many of these towns is what is called the purroo or devil bush into which the uninitiated are not allowed to enter. In no town is there a store or shop of any kind is to be seen: there may be often is a rum hole where you can buy gin, pipes and tobacco, but you need not apply for any useful article. Society is of course thoroughly pagan, in the yards about the doors are devil and twin houses, within the huts greegrees and charms of various kinds, a large portion of the people wear little or no clothing and can not well understand why they should wear any more. You may be able to obtain a hut in the town for a short time and if you wish to trade may be without much palaver (talk) as they can understand why you should come among them for such purpose.—J. A. E.

(To be continued.)

The Early Dawn

BONTHE, MAY 31, 1890.

REV. J. A. EVANS, - EDITOR.

[EDITORIAL.]

Let love be without dissimulation.

As ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them.

The great subject of study in this life should be how to obtain the next life with the fruition of eternal bliss

Christ taught that men should bless those that curse them, but some professed christians curse those who bless them

Beauty of character far excels beauty of countenance, and is obtainable by every one, while beauty of feature, is restricted to the favored few.

The Laborers Are Few.—In the great ripening field of missionary lands, and while to some extent this may be owing to unavoidable circumstances, yet in very many cases it is because of the indolence of many professed christians. There are among us many ministers, but often these are not laborers, do not feel that they should work hard, but form a sort of spiritual peerage, who are rather ornamental than useful. That the laity do not feel to work as a rule, but depend on their spiritual guides to go forward in every enterprize. The laborers are few because too many seem to not like to work, especially for or in the church, they are ready and willing to work elsewhere but not in the great whitening harvest fields of souls that spread out before us on every side. Will not the true followers of our Lord and Master arise and get to work for the salvation of perishing souls? For the fields are white already to harvest. "And he that reapeth receiveth wages, and gathereth fruit unto life eternal."

Help Yourselves—is the rather striking title of an article, in our last Issue by Dr Fincking, our old and esteemed friend for so many years connected with our Mission Work. This article is a timely utterance, not alone as showing that our American friends have expended so much money for Africa that there is not so much now available as before for these Missions. But it is also timely in that it urges the people of this country to an important duty to meet the exegencies of the future from other than the American quarter as may be readily seen from the difficulties just now confronting the Church Pastorate and would tie the same with the Wesleyans were it not that they have so wisely anticipated the difficulty by self help which is but another term for Help Yourselves.

It is not the Congregational and U. B. Churches that have felt that their African Missions should help themselves but the Church of England, Wesleyans, and other connections feel the same. And there is not as much obtainable to help these Missions as in the past.

Then again the work is enlarging more men are to be engaged in, the Work from year to year more Houses of Worship are needed more Schools and Colleges must be erected, the regions beyond are open for operations and the work must go forward and there seems no other way than that we must help ourselves.

No Pillars In The Church.—One of the perceptible disadvantages observed by some of the earlier laborers in the American Mendi Mission in this country was that the unsettled state of the people in districts where the Mission operated was such as to give little hope of building up permanent organizations, as it allowed no opportunity for men and women to grow up under the influence of the church; it was then thought that nothing like pillars of the society would be possible. And very truly has this been fulfilled for of the numbers gathered into the Church in those earlier years we have now only a very few and these few are a "feeble folk" old and childish knowing very little of the Doctrine or polity of their Church, having never been accustomed to take any active part in matters of the Church.

Being poor have never contributed to the support of the church financially, but worst of all they have never been dedicated to the duty of giving, and hence regard, the introduction of any system of contribution as an inovation, and are equally averse to any kind of Church work these are not supports to the Church but hinderances or in other words we have no pillars in the church as yet for all the labors of the past forty eight years in Mendi Mission, and largely owing to fact that the population has been so unsettled that there has scarcely been time to receive persons into the Church before they would be compelled to remove to other parts; even barely a knowledge that they belonged to the Mission Church. But some will be inclined to ask if the same has not been true of other religious bodies? to which we answer no; for other connexions started among the settled inhabitants of Freetown and branched out to the villages, and eventually to the rivers, and especially Sherbro some of whom were members of these Churches from infancy so that when other connections commenced operations here at Sherbro they found many that were already members of the same church in Freetown or some of the villages raised up to pay and labor. And moreover from year to year others came from the same places and united with the infant Churches many of whom were people of age and experience not only in religion, but in Church usages; and became Pillars of strength in the new Community. We must however add that a few years with the unsettled population will tell a very different story and will in the years to come give the Church same strong out cluster to the real work of the Church in all its departments so let no one be discouraged but give us a hearty support at this crisis in our formatory period and the friends of the Mendi Mission will yet see their hearts desire—a well established Church

A holy life has a voice. It speaks when the tongue is silent, and is either a constant attraction or a continual reproof.

Divine grace, even in the hearts of weak and sinful men, is invincible. Drown it in the waters of adversity, it rises more beautiful, as not being drowned indeed, you only washed; throw it in the furnace of fiery trial, it comes out purer, and loses nothing but the dross.

Here is a standard of character. We are not to gauge ourselves by our neighbors, seeking to be as good as others, or up to the average, but our ideal is to be as to the Lord.

NEWS ITEMS.

May 19— Sergt Fitz Gibbon Hamilton of the Police Force died at Bendoo and was buried at Bonthe on the 20 inst.

post mortem was held and it was found that he died of heart disease from which he had been suffering for a long time.

19 May— T. J. Alldridge Esqr Travelling Commissioner arrived from the river.

Error in our last issue instead of the new Coprl Seprawn Capt Le Power.

25—Mr. W. S. D. Pratt return from Freetown.

26— Mr Goldstone Macaulay who left here 3 years ago returned from the Boom river in excellent health.

It has been announced that a pastor has been appointed for the Native pastorate church at Sherbro.

In consequence of the illness of the Rev J. C. Thomas; Mr. Macaulay the Catechist of Mo Moseley has been sent for and is now conducting the devine services at the Wesleyan Chapel. We hope the Reverend gentleman may soon recover from his illness.

Mr. J. Ability Coker agent for C. B. Collier in the Boom river arrived on the 28th. inst. on a visit to his family.

From Manoh Gbargroo.—We learn that something, whether small or large we are not informed, nor does it appear to be known, is rooting up the rice to such an extent that it is feared that the crop in that region will be greatly shortened if not entirely consumed.

New Chapel.—It is reported that the Wesleyan Connection of this place, are preparing to build a new Chapel: many of the stones have already been brought to this place. This is a great undertaking in these hard times, but it is likewise a worthy move in the right direction, and we wish it success.

The Mails.—Tardy again. What can be the Trouble at Fort Thornton? Can it be that Sherbro is forgotten up at headquarters? If so then let this serve as reminder that we need a better Mail Service.

Avery Saw Mill.—Is undergoing repairs so that no lumber is being made consequently boards and sawed stuff generally is very scarce in the district.

Thieves Visit the Parson.—On the night of the 26th inst. thieves entered the house of Rev R. C. Taylor in this place, by digging under the wall; and doubtless would have carried off a fine lot of valuables but for the fact that Mrs. Taylor saw them too soon, however they took a good heavy shawl ot hers from one of the rooms and departed without saying good bye.

A New Factory.—Is now being erected in this place by Messrs. Thompson Brothers, who propose now to extend their flourishing business, which they are carrying on successfully without spirits.

We are glad to be informed that the Mocolo road, so much complained of in our journal is now completed and travellers who pass to Mocolo are now safe. Much praise is due to Commandant Bennett for his exertion in the matter as also to Mr. Walker the overseer of works.

Pamphlet.—Now ready at this Office; It contains the two papers read before the Annual meetings of the U. B. Church, held in Shangay, Jan. 25th, 1890; by Miss. Frances Williams & Mrs. E. B. Sage of Wesleyan Mission, Rotunk, West Africa

St. Matthew's Church.

Dear Mr. Editor,

You will kindly permit me space in your valuable journal for publication of this article which I trust will interest your readers one and all.

When men are placed in position of honor especially those who are in the ministry, they are required to discharge their duties fearlessly without any special regard to men of wealth or position, and that they have a clean and undefiled conscience, and the blessing of God upon their labours: but when they are partial in the discharge of their sacred duties by not only countenancing but by encouraging sin in every shape and form, through fear of losing the patronage of those they so encourage, they generally meet with failure in all their ministrations, and also lose the respect and confidence of those by whom they were respected.

Such is the present state of affairs in our Church, and however much the praise that was accorded the Agent in charge through the medium of your journal, so should he be censured whenever he acts contrary to the dictates of his own conscience and the rules of the Church to gratify charitable desires of the select few whom he is afraid to reprove for "Charity covereth a multitude of sins" as says St. Paul.

This gentleman has been using a bitrary and domineering influences of late over a few of his people by suspending them from Church membership upon charges which he has not taken the trouble to investigate; hence the present dilemma in the church and until the resident pastor who is expected from Freetown is here to arrange and set matters to right, things will continue to be in confused state.

On Sunday last the 18th, in order to exhibit fully his usurped authority, he announced from the pulpit that "the Sunday Morning Class for Males, being composed of three different characters, in order to distinguish them" he shall hold the male Class for Backsliders etc., every Monday at 4 p. m, but "the Class on Sunday morning shall be only for Male Communicants.

Now Mr. Editor, this announcement sounds very strange to an intelligent ear for what right has the gentleman to make or alter the Rules of the Church when he is not delegated with such authority.

In Section 2 of the Rules for the better discipline of St. Luke's Parish, the Sunday morning Class shall be for Male Communicant members and also Candidates." These were the rules laid down by the late pastor Nicol on the 27th May 1888 (just two years ago) and now these rules are to be altered by an unauthorized agent. This will not do. May I ask: Is the agent strict in carrying out Sections 6 & 9 of the Church rules, as regards the Moral unfitness of members attending the Holy Communion etc? I doubt it; and if not why not?

Lastly—He has often been too harsh to his members when speaking to them in his class meetings on Friday the 2nd and 23 inst. He should know that a minister who is harsh to his members can never effect the desired end of his ministry and that is, to save souls. Permit me to quote for him the words of Rev. McCheyne from his own ordination sermon. "Above all mens minister need love that suffer long and is kind. Sometimes when sinners are obstinate and hard-hearted we are tempted to give up in despair, or to lose temper and scold them, like the disciples calling down fire from heaven. But we must be of another spirit. The wrath of man worketh not the righteousness of God. Only be filled with the spirit of Christ. and it will make us patient toward all." I here quote also an extract from the Early Dawn of July 15th 1889, in corroboration of the above subject. "Surely a christian community like this should be loud in its cry against such brazen faced outrages on society, committed by one of its prominent members, who is likewise a member of St. Matthew's Church Bonthe. Cannot the Catechist in charge deal with that member according the Government of the Church? and the suspension from the Class which that member necessarily deserves, if the St. Matthew's Church will do her duty impartially!

Every member of that church should not cease to cry for justice till it be impartially administered.

I trust that the Agent will endeavor to cultivate new principles for the consolidation of the church, so that when the newly expected pastor shall be here, he may find the church in proper working order and all will be Peace and all indifference shall cease is the prayer of Yours Mr. Editor,

A Churchman.

Bonthe, 27th, 5 90

Two sailors once went with a tame parrot to a show in Tokio, Japan, where a Japanese was giving an exhibition of sleight of hand tricks. At the end of each one the sailors said, "Now, isn't that clever? Wonder what he'll do next?"

The parrot heard this so often that he picked it up. Presently the Japanese, while trying to keep in the air a number of bamboo sticks lighted at both ends, dropped one on a heap of fire crackers, which exploded and sent the parrot up about one hundred yards. As the bird came down it shrieked "wasn't that clever! Wonder what he'll do next."

Correspondence

(For the "Early Dawn.")

Dear Sir, I take the liberty of inviting the attention of the members of the Wesleyan Church, to the abuse of the privileges conferred on a certain few, who are chosen to assist the minister in holding Divine Services.

The Pulpit appears to be used expressly by them for the purpose of airing their grievances and of giving side thrusts to other members of the congregation, who may have incurred their displeasure.

The texts selected on such occasions are so very suggestive, that their very announcements usually excite the risible faculties of their hearers—who of course anticipate the preacher the sermons therefore (which illustrate the utterances of a mind conscious of guilt but yet endeavouring to assert its innocence) such have failed to bestow the intended benefits on the listeners. How long is this to continue? It would appear to every true christian that the preaching of the gospel is not so much of urgent importance as the living up to the requirements of gospel privileges.

Are there any rules in Methodism that compel the intelligent members of that connexion to preach, though (even to themselves, much more to the public) their inconsistent lives appear so glaring? And may I ask my friends who are so dotingly fond of preaching what are the advantages gained by being practically dishonest to one's self, to ape a christian when in the Pulpit, and out of it to appear, without scruples, in true color? Why incur such grave responsibilities? Why practice such unnecessy formalities? Why exhibit such mean subtleties? They are unworthy of manly courage.

I hope young men will profit by the friendly criticisms herein offered, and bear in mind that the age is becoming so intelligent, that they cannot palm off on the community in such a manner, without detection; and that such a step certainly excites the just wrath of their friends and welwishers and lays them open to the severe censures of the community.

It is after all a poor consolation to those who adopt the course above indicated, to disseminate in self defence—when they are tackled—such views as appear to give a momentary satisfaction to their perturbed consciences-quoting some passages of scripture which they mis-interpret to suit their own fancy-telling the public "man must not judge let God judge" apparently oblivious of the fact that the Omniscient sees far more than human beings.

May I ask these mistaken souls how do their consciences Judge them? Yours truly,

A Devoted Member.

Bonthe, 19 May 90

Mohammedanism in Africa.

That the religion of Mohammed has gained a strong foothold on this continent; must be admitted, by every one who has any knowledge of the various tribes and peoples inhabiting the continent, you meet it everywhere, and it seems to thrive more readily than any other foreign religion, it has doubtless cost less to plant and train it, than it has to establish the Christian faith on these shores. This fact has led a great philosopher a scholar of the present age to say that it is better adapted to the African race than the Christian religion.

Of course that sage finds in it, less of the objectionable race prejudice, and holds that, as I understand his theory, to be a chief reason for its easier dissemination among African Tribes. Now on this point I am obliged to differ with the learned doctor; for if anyone will carefully examine the reasons of the more ready acceptance of the Mohammedan than the Christian religion by the African. It will readily be perceived that it is not so much the absence of race prejidice as it is the absence of transforming truth. The African likes that which requires the least change in his life, hence Mohammedanism being less removed from Paganism than Christianity, he naturally prefers it; for instance a pagan desiring to become a Mohammedan need not put away any of his wives, can have as many slaves as he chooses, need not humble himself at all may be as proud as he desires to be, need not put away Fetish or Medicine, in fact he need only outwardly conform to certain rites without any inward change at all and by strict observance of certain forms become a sincere Mohammedan.

Such a religion is easier in every way for the natural man, and then need we wonder that the African more readily accepts or that he accepts it because of the absence of certain race prejudices, I trow not, but rather because it is easier to practice a superficial faith than a heart-deep religion.

The more dignified and manly bearing of Mohammedans, it has been argued is an evidence of the faith of the prophet, for the elevation of the African race than the Christian faith, not a few persons have remarked upon this, without wishing to give precedence to Mohammedanism, but who have been struck with the superior manliness of many Mohammedans.

But several things are here to be considered.

1 The tribal relations of these men which are as a rule strangers in our borderlands of the coastline they have come or descended from some superior interior tribe, and hence their manilness is not due so much to their religion as to their blood.

2 Another consideration is the effect that Mohammedanism has had upon the baser coast tribes, what has it done in elevating the Sherbros? or what has it done to counteract, the heathenish influence of European vices? from the facts in case I must answer nothing. For while the Mohammedan religion is opposed to the liquor Traffic its votaries yield so readily to the behests of King Alcohol that their opposition is not felt.

3 It should also be remembered that the Christian faith has produced some not only fine men in physical appearance, among the African, race, but it has trained and equipped some fine intelects, produced some scholars whose learning and influence have gone far beyond the Dark Continent. But where are the Mohammedan Africans to compare with these eminent products of the Christian faith? In future papers I shall give other considerations on this Important subject and to show that Mohammedanism cannot in any way compete with Christianity and that the latter must ultimately supercede the former even on this Continent and that in fact the day is at hand when Christ is to prevail. —E.

Dr. Joseph Parker, in his sermon on "The Outpouring of the Spirit," says: "The difference between one man and another is the difference of heat. Heat, or fire, is the secret of all things. God is fire. It is so in all things. The difference between one reader and another is a difference of fire; the difference between one musician and another is that one man is all fire, and the other man all ice. The difference between one preacher and another is a difference of fire."

Selections.

The Syrian Modes of Baptism.

In the Syrian Catholic Church (Jacobite Catholic) the baptism is similar to that of the Maronites.

The priest takes the child from the hand of the godfather and mother in the door of the church, and carries him into the church, lays the child on a white veil on the floor, then prays over a handful of salt, puts salt into the child's mouth.

Then he pinches the child's nostrils, saying, "Open ye nostrils, and inhale the heavenly odor."

Then he takes the child to the front and hands him to the godfather, who repeats the creed.

Then the priest asks him, "Do you repudiate the devil and all his works?" Answer, "Yes." "Do you believe in God the father, Son, and Holy Ghost?" Answer. "Yes." "Do you believe in the incarnation and death of Jesus Christ and in the articles of faith in the Roman Catholic Apostolic Church?" Answer. "Yes."

He then asks the name of the child, and does he wish to be baptized? "Yes."

Then he prays over the water in the font.

Then he drops three drops of melted wax from the lighted taper into the water, for the three persons of the Trinity.

Then he makes the sign of the cross with the candle in the water, saying, "God commanded four rivers to water the four quarters of the globe. Thus God blessed you, O waters of the wedding in Cana of Galilee," etc.

Then the priest puts his hand into the water three times, then drops three drops of oil into the water. Then he repeats the question, "Do you wish to be baptized?" "Yes. I wish to be baptized according to the baptism of the Catholic Apostolic Petrine Church, and unite my intentions (purposes) with yours."

The priest then takes the child under his left arm and holds his head over the font and pours three handfuls of water on his head, in the name of Father Son, and Holy Ghost.

There are three things, which if christians do, they will prove mistaken.

1. If they look for that in themselves, which is to be had in another, viz: rigtheousness.

2. If they look for that in the law, which is to be had only in the gospel, viz: mercy.

3. If they look for that on earth, which is to be had only in heaven, viz.; perfection.

THE EARLY DAWN.

"The Morning Light Is Breaking, The Darkness Disappears."

VOL. VII. BONTHE, SHERBRO, WEST AFRICA. JUNE 15, 1890. No. 10.

"Early Dawn."

Published Semi-Monthly at Bonthe Sherbro. Under the Auspices of the Board of Missions of the United Brethren in Christ.

BY J. A. EVANS, Editor and Publisher, Bonthe, Sherbro, West Africa.

AGENTS.

United States.—Revs. B. F. Booth and Wm McKee, Dayton, O. Rev. I. K. Statton, Cedar Rapids, Iowa. Rev. Wm. J. Davis, Basil, Ohio. Rev. J. T. Jenifer, Chicago, Ill. Rev. J. L. Beasley, Marion, O. Rev. J. S. Chaver, Elkhart, Ind. Rev. B. P. Barton, Pera Ind. D. K. Flickinger, Willoughby, O. Rev. H. Ellwell, Dayton, Washington, Ter., M. J. Stoner, Manheim, Pa. Master Charlie Howe, Manchester, Ind. Rev. G. W. Arnold, Eldorado, Ohio.

West Africa.—J. A. Richards, River Gambia. Rev. J. R. Frederick and Mr. E. A. Lewis, Freetown, Sierra Leone. Rev. James Doputy, Marshall Liberia. Mr. Moses Boyle, Liberia.

TERMS.

One Year by mail,	£0	6 0
Delivered in Bonthe,	0	5 0
Half yearly by mail,	0	3 0
Do. delivered in Bonthe,	0	2 6

Falconbridge Letters.

Letter III. (cont'd)

Offended modest rebuked me with a blush for not hurrying my eyes from such disgusting scenes; but whether fascinated by female curiosity, or whatever else, I could not withdraw myself for several minutes—while I remarked some whose hair was withering with age reluctantly tasting their food—and others roughless from youth, greedily devouring all before them; be assured I avoided the prospects from this side of the house ever after. Having prolonged the time till nine at night, we returned to our floating prison, and with the assiduity of the master in removing many inconveniences, my mind being more at ease, was at rest for two nights, and somewhat fatigued with the exercise of the day, I thank God, slept charmingly, and the next day we set sail for Robana, where we arrived about ten o'clock. I think it is called nine miles from Bance Island. We went on shore, and rather caught his Majesty by surprise, for he was quite in dishabille; and at our approach retired in great haste. I observed a person pass me in a loose white frock and trousers, whom I would not have suspected for a king! if he had not been pointed out to me. Mr. Elliotte and the Queen met us: and after introducing her majesty and himself, we were then conducted to her house. She behaved with much politeness—told me in broken English, the king would come presently, that was gone to physician woman gone to dress himself. After setting for half an hour, Naimbana made his appearance, and received us with seeming good will: he was dressed in purple coloured coat, white satin waistcoat and breeches, thread stockings, and his whole ambiance with a flaming star. Things to be sure were Earliquined by number of holes in the stockings, through which his black skin appeared. Compliments ended, Mr. Falconbridge presented him with his errand by a recital of what he wrote the day before; and complained much of king Jemmy's injustice, in driving the settlers away, and burning their town. The king answered through Elliotte (for he speaks but little English) that Jemmy was partly right—the people had taken part with some Americans, with whom Jemmy had a dispute, and through this means drew the ill will of this man upon them, who had behaved, considering their conduct, as well as they merited; for he gave them three days notice before he burned their town, that they might remove themselves and all their effects away; that he (Naimbana) could not prudently re-establish them, except by consent of all the chiefs—for which purpose he must call a palaver or court; but it would be seven or eight days before they could be collected, however he would send a summons to the different parties directly, and give Mr. Falconbridge timely advice when they were to meet.

Falconbridge perceived clearly that nothing was to be effected without a palaver, and unless the king's interest was secured his views would be frustrated, and his endeavours ineffectual: but how this was to be done, or what expedient to adopt, he was at loss, for he considered it impolite to purchase his patronage by heavy presents, lest the other great men might expect the same; and he had it not in his power to purchase them all in the same way, as the scanty cargo of the Lapwing would not admit of it. At length, trusting that the praiseworthy purposes he was aiming at insured him the assistance of the King of kings, he resolved to try what good words would do. Having profaced his arguments with a small donation of rum wine, and cheese, and goldlaced hat, (which Naimbana seemed much pleased with) Falconbridge began, by explaining what advantages would accrue to his Majesty, and to the inhabitants round about, by such an establishment as the St. George's Bay Company were desirous of making;—the good they wished to do—their disinterested aim in point of obtaining wealth, and concluded by expostulating on the injustice and imposition of dispossessing the late settlers of the grounds and houses they occupied, which had been honestly and honorably purchased by Captain Thompson of the Navy, in the name of our gracious Sovereign, his Britanic Majesty. That it was unusual for Englishmen to forgo fulfilling any engagements they make; and they held in detestation every person so disposed. He then entreated the king would use all his might to prevent any unfavorable prejudices which a refusal to reinstate the settlers, or to confirm the bargain made with captain Thompson, might operate against him in the minds of his good friends the king of England and the St. George's Bay Company. The king said he liked the English in preference to all white men, though he considered every white man as a rogue, and consequently saw them with a jealous eye; yet, he believed the English were by far the honestest, and for that reason, notwithstanding he had received more favors from the French than the English, he liked the latter much the best. He was decidedly of the opinion, that all contracts or agreements between man and man how ever disadvantageous to either party should be binding, but observed that he was hastily drawn in to dispose of land to captain Thompson, which is fact he had not a right to sell, because says he, "this is a great country, and belongs to many people—where I live belongs to myself—and I can live where I like, nay, was appropriate my uninhabited land within my dominions to what use I please. But it is necessary for me to obtain the consent of any people, or rather the headmen of every town, before I sell any land to a white man, or allow strangers to come and live among us."

I should have done this you will say at first—granted—as it is doubtless my subjects by suffering your people to take possession of the land without their approbation, from which cause I was not able to protect them, unless I hazarded civil commotions in my country; and as they have been forced away—it is best now that they should be replaced by the unanimous voice of all interested. I am bound from what I have heretofore done, to give my utmost support, and if my people do not acquiesce it shall not be my fault." Here Falconbridge, interrupting the king said "The king of the English will not blame your people, but feel yourself with the stigma; it is king Naimbana who is obstinate to king George—and I hope king, you will not fall out with your good friend." This being explained by Mr. Secretary Elliotte his Majesty was some moments silent—when clapping Falconbridge in his arms, told him "I believe you and king George are my good friends—do not fear, have a good heart, I will do as much as I can for you."

to be Continued.

Oh Israel thou hast destroyed Thyself.

Here we read it "O Africa thou hast destroyed thyself." If you ask me how? I answer by spirits, rum, gin and etc., you reply so, the white man has done it; but who I ask, carries it up in the rivers and peddles it out by the bottle, who I ask sits about in all the small villages and factries and exchanges it for the peoples produce, palm oil, palm kernels, rice and gums? "Oh, you answer the Creoles do that," very true, and I are they not Africans? but we are not heathen say they; worse than heathen says I, for you are enlightened and can read the word of God and know well, that the drunkard is shut out of Heaven, and yet these African creoles go on manufacturing drunkards out of their own countrymen by the thousands, taking the rich produce given them by a kind Heavenly Father, and give them in exchange what will destroy soul and body.

The Africans have already lost more than half of their country; the richest and best country under the canopy of heaven gone into the hands of European powers and the signs of times are that soon the other half will be gone, and what will the African have to show for it? a lot of empty demijohns, and glass bottles, and who has done the business? her own sons and daughters, as I say daughters, I hide my face for shame, but is it not the women that peddle out the vile poison? In a paper in front of me as I write, I see that from one single town in Germany 6000 tons of spirits are shipped to the African coast each month in the year, and another 10,000 tons each month, and beside this just think of what America and England, France, Spain, and Portugal are doing, but what could those nations accomplish if Africa's own sons and daughters did not lend a willing and a helping hand? J. Gouna.

Bsingay, May, 1890.

Native Colonial Officials.

Mr. Editor:

From other than merely race considerations, it is pleasing to contemplate the policy which brings into effective service in high positions the natives of any country; for it certainly must raise that people in the scale of general usefulness in the upbuilding of humanity and every such step in the progress of the raising of man must to a less or greater extent honor God and alleviate the moral condition of the world. Not that official promotion improves the moral tone of men, but that which prompts the hearts of rulers to a just and impartial administration of the laws of the land, especially in the encouragement of right doings and honorable living before God and man; must certainly eventually lead to greater charity and fairer dealing among men as well as greater honor in the acknowledgement of God as the great benefactor.

But however promotions or uncertain this might be in its effects upon other races of men; I am inclined to feel that it is likely to operate favorably in the African who has been downtrodden for so many ages, and regarded as scarcely equal to the responsibilities of high official position. The tendency of the present administration seems to be to utilize all the native ability that can be made use of consistent with the welfare of the colony. And while it is encouraging to the race, it is also hopeful for the economy of the management and maintainance, of good and proper government. It will work as a great incentive it is to be hoped to every native official to do his utmost to prove himself worthy of the confidence reposed in him; to clerks and others in every rank to seek promotion by application to every duty, however, trivial it may seem for the time. E.J. Bayas.

Bonthe, 6-6-90

Evangelical Work.

Mr. Editor: It is not often that I trouble you especially of late since I see that your columns seem to be rather for religious contributions than otherwise, which is no doubt all right in a mission journal, but as I have hitherto given my energies to the promotion of secular interests, I may now be permitted to write on religious topics also occasionally as opportunity may offer.

That which now seems to me of vital interest to the Christian church is the work of Evangelizing the world. For this work we need evangelists such as have existed in all times in the past, persons of large revival experience and great faith in God and his promises, especially those refering to the extension and sway of the Messiah's kingdom. In my humble opinion it is into that is greatly needed to do the work of an evangelist successfully, and that it is this kind of self-sacrificing effort that is so much needed to-day every where, it is quite true, but especially in many of our foreign mission fields, where revival influence is is greatly needed, to quicken and give impetus to the work, to strength en the hearts of the pastoral missionaries in their labors. In my mind, nothing could be more helpful to missionaries than the periodical visits of real live evangelists to help in a thousand and one ways, which such experienced men or women can aid. And here I would like to emphasize the utility of holy women in this particular line of work and that they ought to be employed as far as possible to do such work, they have great er faith in most instances than men, and will hang on, often when men will falter, will go when men will sit down. Now I would not be understood to say that the settled missionaries are to be displaced by the introduction of evangelists, not by any means, but I say they need to be supplemented in their work by them. The evangelists should do their work and go on, while the regular missionaries remain to cultivate the seed the evangelists have sown: to keep the fires he has kindled alive on the altar of each heart, to nourish the young lambs of the flock. A great and responsible work indeed, is that of the pastoral missionary, in a heathen or semi civilized land, where there are so many obstacles in the way of a true life of piety. But great as the work of the settled missionary, yet there is a sense a greater work to-day in all mission fields for the evangelist, a specialist in faith, labor, love, devotion, piety. We need flying heralds with torches of heavenly fire, that passing through the the land will "kindle a flame of sacred love, in these cold hearts of ours." More again. Yours truly, J. Albert.

The Early Dawn

BONTHE, JUNE 15, 1890.

REV. J. A. EVANS, - EDITOR

[EDITORIAL.]

The Rains—are now very heavy in and about this harbor, and as a result Bamboo and Shingles are in demand.

"He who becomes truly good will assuredly behonored, if not in this then in the next life which is much longer.

Ardent Spirits,—retard the reign of the messiah to-day more than did the Devils of old.

The Best—Thing we have heard lately, is the conversion of a rum seller, by Miss F. Williams of the Womans Mission Rotafunk.

Explanation,—of why we have a three Column Article on our fourth Page—It is because communications were as usual too late. We hope our correspondents will save us this necessity in future.

Why do Christians, who denounce the slave trade, encourage the more baleful Rum Traffic?

If Drunkards can not enter heaven, then what will become of those who make drunkards, by selling gin and rum to them?

Literary Journal,—The enterprizing firm of Rudolph Keifer & Co. have added another spicy little eight Page paper to the literature issued from their presses, it is called the Literally Journal and is published by the Ciceronian Literary Society of the Shenandoah Institute Dayton Virginia U. S. A. we welcome the Literary to our Table and wish the Editor Mr. C. A. Fankhouser success in his effort.

Teaching How To Pray—was the rather striking subject of the Sabbath School lesson for the 8th. instant, and as we studied and thought over it very much, it occurred to us that there is a very great need of much teaching yet on the duty and manner of praying. And that it is just as necessary to-day to ask the Lord to teach us to pray as it was eighteen centuries ago. For when we look about us and see how great a Multitude of men there are in the world that do not pray and then how few there are who can pray—i. e. know how to pray,—how ignorant in fact the majority of Christians are on the subject of Prayer.

We cannot but feel that they need to be taught to pray. It is no doubt largely because of our ignorance on this subject, that we are not more largely blest in our religious experience; that men are often discouraged and cast down. And assuredly it must be lack of knowledge of the manner or mode of praying, that prevents so many persons from participating in prayer-meetings.

Then let us ask the Lord to teach us to pray.

A Mistake.—It was the opinion of one of our readers, connected with the U. B. Missions That the writer of "No Pillars In The Church," in our last issue virtually said that forty eight years of labor in the Mendi Mission had done no good. Now we want to say that is a Mistake and that we did not wish to convey any such idea, and scarcely believe that our readers in general, will understand it so, yet lest they do, we make speed to explain that we meant only to give the reason why the Churches of the Mendi Mission have not become stronger than at present, and further to refer to the fact that this had been foreseen by those who labored here years gone by as will be seen by reference to the Annual Report of May 1st 1889 under the heading of "Amistad Captives" where the following words appear. "1st, The frequent country wars that keep the country in a chronic state of ferment, in consequence of which the population is continually changing so that it is next to unpossible to build up a society of Christians, on solid foundation [as with tried and [united members for Pillars, and these are undispensible in a properly organised Church." Now these words were written many years ago and seemed so much of a mere Prophecy that we were led to write "No Pillars In The Church. But certainly never thought of the idea, ever even occurring to any one, that we implied thereby that no good had resulted from the labors of the Mendi Mission, far from it. For there has been untold good accomplished by this Mission, more in fact than can be fully estimated. It is however admitted on every hand that the Mendi is the Pioneer Mission of the Sherbro, and opened the way for (if it has not fostered) the other Missions and has continued up to this present to lead in the in the real Missionary work, that of reaching the heathen. The Itinerants of the Mendi Mission visit more than one hundred Towns and villages in which [has more than fifty organized classes with an aggregate enrollment of about fifteen hundred members.

We believe that all will agree with us that since the transfer, and the more settled state of the population of the District that commendable progress has been made in every department of Church work. And as it is now to be hoped that internecine wars have come to an end we may safely expect that substantial progress will be far more rapid than ever before and for the encouragment of any whose faith may be faltering, we can say that we are by God's help rearing up "Pillars In The Church," for its future strength and support.

The Mission Of The Seventy—It was a grand company of Missionaries that was sent forth by our Saviour when he commissioned seventy disciples and sent them out two and two into every city and place whither he himself would come. Such an enterprize is seldom equalled in these latter days of Missionary enterprize where now is the Supt. of Missions that could appoint and send out half that number at once in the enlargement of his operations? But if he could would they go out on the same conditions? Without any outfit without shoes and without money? Scarcely can we believe that any such number of men could be found to embark on such an undertaking. That they were successful is evident from their glowing reports on their return and we hear of no complaint about how they fared among the people, but on the contrary they rejoiced over their success. And does not the success of that and other New Testament Missions suggest the thought, at least, that we in our operations depend too much on Money? And that possibly what we regard as improved missionary operations are after all not as good as those of the first Century of Christianity? And certain it, seems, that those to whom the missionaries are sent are in duty bound to not only receive but to support them.

"For" the Saviour declares "the laborer is worthy of his hire."

W. C. T. U.

ROTOFUNK.

The W. C. T. U. is a union of christian women for the education of the young; forming a better public sentiment; reforming the drinking classes; transforming by the power of Divine grace those who are enslaved by alcohol, and for securing the entire abolition of the liquor traffic.

Our Loyal Temperance Legion held a rousing meeting on the evening of May 26th

The meeting was presided over by George King one of the Mission boys. The Secretary is one of the girls, Mary Sowers, from the "Girls Home."

This in its self was an inspiration. William Jackson recited "One Hundred Thousand Men" with telling effect. Four of the smaller boys recited "Not I! Not I!" in such a manner that convinced you that they were not the boys who would ever make, sell or drink rum. Three new temperance songs were learned for the occasion and were sung with an enthusiasm born of the fact that "Our God is Marching On" Therefore, "We have faith to do and dare." When we sang "Good-by Old Bottle" the enthusiasm ran high, all perhaps remembering the pouring out of the rum, down the banks of the Eompeh, the day before.

We have now sixty eight members in the Legion who are pledged against the use of intoxicating liquors, tobacco and profanity. May God make this little army a mighty power against the strong hold of Satan.

Our W. C. T. U. meetings are well attended by the members and all seem very much interested. The women work well in committees and are willing to do all they can.

Since the planting season began the attendance at our mother's meeting has been few, but there is much interest manifested and good is being accomplished.

We are greatly rejoiced to hear of the victory over rum at Rembee. We long to say as much for Rotufunk. I long to see the people so aroused, and so many towns driving out the rum, that the Governments of the world will blush for shame and stop the intoxicants to Africa.

Since the World's W. C. T. U. petition to the Governments of the world, asking for the prohibition of the manufacture of intoxicants, is to be closed on the last of July, our committee on petitions is rapidly securing signers and many of Africa's daughter are crying out against the inhumanity of civilized countries

ELLEN GROENENDYKE,
Supt. of Press Work,
Rotofunk, W. C. T. U.

Read before the Rotofunk W. C. T. U. May 29th, '90.

Mothers' Meeting.

From the W. C. T. U. Annual Leaflet, I quote these words, "The aim of this department is to develop and dignify the office and ministry of motherhood; to emphasize its spiritual, moral, and intellectual side. . . . Mothers' meetings should be organized in every community; and they should be the central feature of the local work." It has been suggested that something be said to-night about the method by which this department of Christian work is carried on in a home mission field.

The mothers' meeting in which it has been my privilege to work, have been of three kinds. One was held among colored women, who had been slaves, and who, of course, were deprived of educational advantages. They were very poor, were living in narrow dirty alleys, in buildings that had been built for stables, and some of them had been used as such. With comfortless homes, with tired bodies and aching hearts, these women had the great need of the "Friend that sticketh closer than a brother." In doing house to house visiting, I learned of their condition, and offered to teach them to read. They were glad and grateful. In a few days we met for our first lesson; an hour was given to the reading lesson, at the close of which we had a scripture lesson and prayer-meeting. During the two years that this meeting was held, some of the women were greatly helped. They not only learned to read the Bible, but laid hold on its promises and thus found the soul rest they so much needed.

Another of my weekly meetings was among women who had not the privilege of attending church services. This was a meeting for scripture study, conversation and prayer. Here the mothers told their sorrows and troubles, and were counseled and directed to the great burden-bearer. The woman that consented for this meeting to be held at her home, had not been to church for years. As she listened to the reading of the Bible, and the singing of the good old hymns, she was reminded of the good meetings she had attended when she was young girl, with holy influences around her. She was led to renew her covenant with the Lord, and gave room given her to erect a family altar, where she offered prayer for her intemperate husband, and for her children.

In a few weeks her prayers were answered, and that husband who for years had drank rum daily, gave it up, sought the Lord, and gave evidence of conversion. The children were taken to Sunday school, and a complete revolution came into that family, for which every member thanked God.

The mothers' meeting that was most effective in good results of any I have seen, was one in which among other things, the women were taught to cut and sew garments, also to mend and make over clothing. When the work was made ready, and given to the women, some one would read a chapter from the Bible and explain it-always encouraging the women to ask questions. At times when it would not interfere with the work, the organ was played and the women were taught to sing Gospels songs. We also sang old ones, which often brought up memories to these sorrowing mothers, of brighter and better days, and of beloved ones some of whom they had left at the old home in a foreign land, while some had gone to their long home.

During the sewing hours, there were talks given setting forth the best methods of dress for women and children, and on preparing simple and wholesome dishes for the table. And we usually read a tract, or a story with a good moral to it, to the women while they sewed. One attractive feature of these meetings for the women was that they could bring their children with them. And these little ones were not neglected in the meetings. Those that were old enough were taught Scripture texts, and the babies were given pretty things, with which they amused themselves. The presence of the children often gave opportunities to give to mothers instruction about the care of the children. At each meeting effort was made to lead these women to Christ.

And more than one low, vile ad drunken woman has staggered into that meeting during the last five years, and been helped to a higher and better life, and we trust will be kept to the end.

FRANCES WILLIAMS.

(To be continued.)

CORRESPONDENCE.

FROM BENDOO.

Mary Brown, the first fruit of our native Converts here died on Wednesday last the 4th instant, and was buried at 8 a. m. on the following day.

She was coverted under the ministration of the Missioner the Rev. James Johnson in May 1886 whilst that gentleman was conducting Special Services here.

She joined the Catechumen's Class immediately afterwards and after religious training for some time was baptized by the late Rev. G. G. M. Nicol of blessed memory, and was married in the same year.

She was confirmed by Bishop Ingham in 1888, and since then she became a full member and a Communicant. She led an exemplary life and induced many of her country people to attend church. She was visited several times during her illness by her spiritual Guide when she expressed her hope and confidence in her Saviour.

Her funeral was well attended by both Sierra Leoneans and Natives; and the latter seemed to be deeply impressed by the address of the Catechist in charge, on the occasion. We sincerely hope that many others will endeavor to follow the example of this truly christian woman. She was about 70 years of age. "This is the Lord's doing, and it is marvellous in our eyes.

7th June 1890. A. CHURCHMAN.

In and About Shaingay.

"Give us a live paper, teeming with fresh news" so writes a friend; how can we furnish fresh news when often our mails lie three and four weeks in Freetown, before it is sent to Shaingay; and as for local news, every day is but a repetion of its predecessor. Occasionally there is a little variation; for intance, a few weeks ago the people of the town of Mannoh and Yorborfore got into a dispute about the landmark, it was claimed that the Yorborfore people were trespassing on Mannoh territory, the big people, Thuah Barley and Sey Longoh settled the matter, yet some mischievous persons stirred up the Yorborfore people to fight for their right, they went to the disputed line and met some of the Mannoh people. Some angry words ensued, then help was called for on both sides and there was a general pitched battle Henry Williams, the teacher of Yorborfore hearing of the fight went and commanded a halt, and both parties withdrew as the fighting was done with sticks, stones and fists. No one was killed, though some were pretty severely bruised. The matter is now being talked at Shaingay by Chief Neal Caulker; though chief is not well he has forced himself up to judge this case. Any kind of fighting is severely punished here.

Just now a man brings me a snake in a small bag to sell, but I want no snakes; the old serpent has injured my family too much already. A Mr. C., a merchant in the Cockborow river, who for many years has been poisoning the people of thatdistrict by selling them German gin and American rum lately made a trip to the Bompeh to buy rice, and while at Rotofunk came in contact with Miss Frankie Williams, who opened his eyes to the fact that he was not only destroying his own country and sending his soul to hell, but that he was sending multitudes of others there, and that in the day of judgment all these would rise up against him. He saw the point and was honest enough to own up and obeyed her instructions by pouring out all his remaining spirits on the ground. Which spirit dealer will be wise enough to do likewise? A couple of Mohammedan Fodays with flaming robes and snow-white turbans, and their bodies decked with inumerable charms and most skillfully wrought, sandals on their feet, and beads or tessabeas on their necks, called at the mission residence and met there a little daughter of a brother Mohammedan, after enquiring very particularly as to how she came there, and what she was there for, and learning that she was there to learn the white man's book, the chief one called the child to him, spit three times on her head and then rubbed it well with both his hands, what the effect will be remain to be seen.

Shaingay, 4-6-90.

Let Us Aim.

In every thing under the canopy of heaven, there must be a beginning and an end, and also an aim. If I wish to shoot at a bird, deer or any thing, I must first take an aim or there will be no success to crown my effort. Now, so is this with a great many people in this world of ours. But there is no doubt in this fact; that men without aim in the world will never make an end. The success of a country depends largely upon its people, this fact is maintained in all civilzed communites. History has given us the fact even in ancient times and we will not deny the truth. To prove these facts let us turn, briefly to the histoy of Rome and we will learn the truth by her mighty works! such as the Forum, the huge columns and many gigantic buildings, all these bespeak the advancing spirit of the people.

Look at those mighty pillars, the pyramids of Egypt, the stately obelisks, and many similar objects of superior workmanship. Let us learn a less on from these oriental people; they had an aim in view; they were all aiming at the attitude of superior workmanship, civilzation and in learning; and I am conscious of the fact now, that these are the aims of all the civilized nations. But as I am an African, this article will be limited more fully to Africans.

The ignorance of our country is known throughout all the civilized nations. Vasco De Gama, in his discovery of Natal, south Africa, made known the barbarous character of the natives by his own personal experience. Dr Livingstone in his travels in Africa, tells us very vividly in his writings, of how he has been several times at the mercies of the wild tribes of our country. Stantley confirms the statements of Dr. Livingstone very strongly, and several travelers say the same thing And it is not a day that you pick up a news paper but what you read fresh news of cruel Africans against travelers etc.

Now is it not time that we as Africans, make desperate efforts to suppress these bad reports of our country? let us make it our aim to develop the country in some way or other. We must be civilzed, christionized, or we must perish by our own superstition, vice and ignorance. R. G. CAULKER.

(To be continued.)

NEWS ITEMS.

May 30—Boat "Marie" Deval master for Freetown.

May 31—P. Z & Co's boat "Telegrah" for Freetown with mails and the following passengers—Messrs C. W. Edwin ... Customs Freetown who arrived here per s. s. Formoso on the 13th May and I. M. Peters of P. Z. & Co.'

Cutter Empress from Freetown with general cargo consigned to Pickering & Berthoud.

June 2—Major Moore Inspector General of Police arrived from the rivers.

Several persons enlistad in the Frontier Force.

Cutter Empress for Freetown with mails.

Mr. Goldstone Macaulay left for Boom and J. Abillty Coker.

June 5—Countess of Derby from Freetown with mails and Mr. M. J. Marke, Sub-Inspector of Schools. She left same day with mails and the following passengers, Major Moore, T. J. Alldridge Esq. Travelling Commissioner on sick leave. Mrs. Serjt. Hamilton. Mrs. Serjt Pratt, Jackson, Liverpool, and several others.

Barque 'Nolia' from Freetown consigned to F. A. O.

June 6—s. s.—from Marseille via Freetown French Com.

6—Boat 'Victory' for Freetown with freight and passengers.

6—Boat 'Telegraph' from Freetown.

Mr. A. Walti agt. for French Company at Bermaney arrived on the — instant sick, Mr. Winter Pearse of Ghundumah Factory is sent to have temporary charge during Mr. Waltis' illness.

6—A little school boy, Bob Davis (son of police W. H. Davis now in Freetown) Died at Bonthe on Friday the 6th inst. after few hours illness, leaving a sure testimony that he is "Safe in the arms of Jesus" May all school children follow the example of this little boy to learn Early piety from their youth.

9—Mr. Inspector Marke inspected the Wesleyan Day School this day.

June 12—Steam Launch Lavanah with several boats arrived here today for cargo, for the Palmer Trading Company.

From Rotofunk;—We hear Good News, much revival influence in operation. On the 25th May 28 persons were at the altar for Prayers. Many professed Christians are seeking and some have receive more light.

Temperance too is having a boom too at the headwaters of the Bompeh, a Trader recently poured out his rum into it and quit the business the vile stuff.

COMMUNICATION.

Industrial Work A Necessity.
(Continued.)

But if on the other hand you desire only to sit down in the place to Preach and Teach they may have to hang their heads (consult or think)over the matter first before, you get an answer which may requite some time and after all if by a proper amount of presents and patient waiting consent is given a place outside of the town will be given you in the bush where you must build for yourself as soon as you can hence it makes one smile when they read of a Missionary Treasurer saying in a public meeting that Mission money is not appropriated, and contributed for building Houses for it is very certain that every Missionary should have a house to live in and it is about as evident that he or some one else must build that house and that too by his own or the Society's contribution and appropriation; and since goods are generally what is required, to pay for ordinary Labor and material the money must be used first in the purchase of these goods which is just as necessary as it is to exchange American Money for English currency before sending it to the Missionary.

Industry is then necessary to erect your house to live in to open up a yard about it, to plant garden, to clear a field to keep and till them; to repair your Boat to make chapel and school desks and benches to go after your supplies of books and stationery, to exchange your cash for country currency (Goods) so that you can purchase fowls, fish, rice, cassada, sweet potatoes, pepper, Garden eggs, hens-eggs, cocoa, etc, for your own subsistance, then too a Missionary has been used to eating bread and feels very much the need of flour, but there is no Mill in the Village nor store from which to buy, so he must send a long way for that article.

Industrial work is necessary to give employment to those, however few they may be, that you wish to train up whether they are to become teachers or preachers in the time to come they ought to be taught some handicraft, by which in the event of not being employed as teachers or Preachers they could make an honest and religious living for as it is now, as a rule only two classes of employers are to be found one is Missionary and Religious, the other is Mercantile and non-religious; when a young man is out of Mission employment as a rule he must enter the Mercantile and then his religious life is put in danger at once for he is exposed to all manner of persecution by his fellow-laborers and his employers, and whether it should or should not be so, it is a fact that very few men are able to stand the ordeal and they are lost; hence the plea for Industrial Missions, a sort of religious communities in which persons may be able to earn an honest living without being thus exposed to the taunts of of the godless men who throng the Mercantile houses. It is not a question of the amount of salary so much that carries men into the Factories of Traders as it is a necessity that compels them to enter for some employment that will enable them to get a living befitting the Station they occupy as enlightened and civilized men for christian Training increases the necessaries of life does enlarge the desires, a savage may have a desire for Power and possession or he may wish to revel in abundance; but a christian and civilized man has a sense of needing clothing such as a savage could never feel the necessity of, in fact nothing is more obvious in the real progress of any Mission than the real growing love of dress. Bring in a bushman from the Ito-bungo (Timber Woods) and place him in the Mission but for a time as laborer and if there is any manhood in him how soon you will to see him putting on piece by piece of civilized clothing and if he continues for a length of time he will if industrious soon doff hat, shirt, trousers, and and some day when you want to keep quiet it may be you will hear the heavy Tread of Shoes and will be surprized to see Kong in a full suit of Tweed from head to foot crowned with a black felt and white kerchief cropping out of his breast pocket approaching and saluting you in a most genteel manner even lifting his hat, for these articles of dress he has labored hard and feels that as he is in Mission Employ he really needs them, Mission children grow up to love clothing even to be proud of them and want nicer and nicer ones as they increase in years and toward maturity; hence again the necessity of some kind of industry, some real profitable kind of employment, something that is of a nature to humble in some degree the feelings of the rising son, if it were even digging the earth in Agricultural pursuits, plowing, hoeing rooting up vegetables something to soil the hands bring the sweat from the brow, not a kind fancy two hours a day farming.

A sort of coursary rotine of regular farm drill that would get a youngster in a tight place where he would be obliged to dig in and to root out again such Industrial work is really necessary to discipline boys for the rough and tumble of life and to checkmate youthful pride. But as I had started is out to say it is necessary to have something at hand that can be given to boys and girls to do that will enable them to earn something for themselves and in some way lead them little by little to work for what they want, not only show them how they should dress, but that good things cost labor and care which is often as necessary after a thing has been abtained, in order to its retention as it was in the acquisition of it.

It is further necessary that proper value may attach to possession, as it is a law of our nature to value that the most which is the most difficult, as a rule, to procure, hence we seldom give a Mohammedan a Bible but sell it to him that it may be the more prized by him. Too much giving by Christians not in America (where they give the dimes to the Church and the dollars to the saloon and rum holes,) or England where in a large degree the same disposition is shown but by the Real Lovers and promoters of Mission Work they have meant well but have over reached their objects, in that they have not seen well to it that those helped were at the same time helping themselves, and as far as possible others more needy, if this duty be properly looked after munificence can never be too great, for as it increases and one is filled it flows over and on to others like a great refreshing stream through a dry and thirsty land.

While well directed giving may or can never be too great for the wants of Mankind yet there may be and generally is a limit it can never exceed the source of its supply, which in some cases may be very limited.

to be continued. J. A. E.

Visit To Bompehtooke 18 Years Ago.

It was perhaps on Wednesday that all was agreed upon, for the Tour, and on Saturday the little Boat Sandusky, then new and in fine trim, was made ready and the writer, with an Interpreter, Two or three school boys, and five Boatmen, set out on our journey to Bompehtooke fifteen miles from Shaingay, but the tide failing us we landed one mile from the shore at or near Koolonge, and perhaps two or three miles from Bompehtooke, under cover of a slight African shower, sufficient however to soak our clothing pretty completely.

We all waded ashore through the mud, which (as nearly all our Missionaries now know) about knee-deep to a six-footer (like the writer,) but success depended on going down only half way, at a time, and this one who has to coon African mud banks soon learns to do, as we did in this case. We at length reached the shore at Koolonge, then a fine country town sequestered away among a grove, or rather a thickly studded, forest of Palms and Monkey Apple, with here and there a gigantic Plum, with a stately Baobab standing as usual in Western Africa, at the Wharf or landing, underneath this forest of higher trees was a more dense undergrowth of young Palms, Moss Ferns and endless variety small bushes and vines; through these wound the zigzag pathway, of several hundred yards, which we followed into the town all astir with busy life, (but alas! it was slave labor.) The Headman was not at home, but his seven wives were there, the Headwife had been trained up in Sierra Leone, and also a sister of the Headman, they both spoke the English language well; to These and others the writer was introduced and made his Cosanony— i. e. told what he had come for, the present in this case being either excused or very trifling arrangements were made at once for Services in Koolonge that evening and a messenger dispatched to Bompehtook for the double purpose of informing the principal Chief of that District of our arrival and also announce and make arrangements for services there on the next day Sabbat. It should perhaps be stated here that writer was constantly engaged in prayer during these preliminaries, and learned then, as never before, how it is possible, to pray without ceasing; for every breath not employed in directing the business in hand was used in silent prayer to God.

—E.

THE EARLY DAWN.

"The Morning Light Is Breaking, The Darkness Disappears."

VOL. VII. BONTHE, SHERBRO, WEST AFRICA, JULY 16 1890 No. 11

The "Early Dawn."

Published Semi Monthly at Bonthe Sherbro. Under the Auspices of the Board of Missions of the United Brethren in Christ.

Rev. J. A. Evans, Editor and Publisher, Bonthe, Sherbro, West Africa.

AGENTS.

United States.—Revs. B. F. Booth and Wm. Mickey, Dayton, O.; Rev. J. K. Statler, Cedar Rapids, Ia.; Rev. W. J. Davis, Bucyrus, O.; Rev. A. T. Bender, Chicago, Ill.; Rev. G. L. Mowday, Denver, Col.; Rev. J. S. Clemens, Lebanon, O.; Rev. R. F. Barnes, Portland, Or.; Rev. Jesse Gilbert, Dallas, Texas; Rev. J. Weaver, Huntington, Ind.; Rev. W. H. Elwell, Dayton, O.; Rev. J. J. Glossner, Mohawk, N. Y.; Rev. J. Hott, Mt. Pleasant, Pa.; Master Charlie Howe, Manchester, Ind.; Rev. D. W. Arnold, Eldorado, Ohio; Rev. A. Ahlum, Rock Island, Ill.; Rev. C. Kumler, Kansas River, Kans.; Rev. J. R. Lyon, Leavenworth, Kans.; Rev. J. Evans, Sierra Leone, Mrs. Sarah Dupuis, Monrovia, Liberia; Mr. Wm. Boyle, Liberia.

TERMS.

One Year by mail,	£0	6	0
Delivered in Bonthe,	0	5	0
Half yearly by mail,	0	3	0
Ditto delivered in Bonthe,	0	2	6

Falconbridge Letters.

LETTER III. (CONT'D)

They then shook hands heartily, and Nambana retired. I suppose to his Pe yiahbee woman's house but presently returned dressed in a suit of black velvet, except the stockings, which were the same as I saw Coker had on before. But was fearful least my needless blunder into his Magesty's leg, might start the blood, for drawing the blood of an African King, I am informed whether occasioned by accident or otherwise, is punished with death, the drawer of it only excepted me. We were now invited to walk and see the boat, while dinner was preparing. It consists of about twenty houses arranged in a semi-circle of the same material as the Governor was in those of Annah Town, and the whole of them are either occupied by the King's wives, and his Pesinkee women is a most beautiful young girl of about fourteen. Some of them are filled with the appellation of Queen but the oldest, who I was introduced to, and by whom the King has several children, one of the daughter's named Clara, is wife to Elliotte, and a son named Bartholomew, is in France for his education. In different parts of the boat, I observed some rugs stuck on poles, at the foot of each were placed—perhaps a fine cotton, some pieces of looking glass, with a pewter bason, containing a liquid of some sort.

Mr. Elliotte apologized after dinner, that for want of sugar they could not offer tea or coffee. The tide serving, and approaching night obliged us to return back and return to this place. On the whole I was much pleased with the occurrances of the day, indeed, muthinks, I hear you saying, "Why the world must of this paltry girl will be spoiled." As the courtesy and attention paid her by such great folks" but let me say, it will never weigh, or will never weigh, of self-conceit. I may have been fatigued by actual fatigue, overpowering sleep prevailed and clouding all my [illegible] I awoke next morning with [illegible] to search out remains of fancied imposition.

The news of our arrival having by this time circulated through different parts of the country, we found several who either excited by curiosity or some other cause, had come here to pay their compliments, or as the Africans term it, make service to us but there was no fish nor meat or quality worth naming among those visitors, except an elderly man called Pa, or Father Bason, who is the headman of a considerable town about fifty miles up the river, and who guided by the influence of a good heart, invited the wearied exiles in the hour of distress to refuge at his place, which was accepted by the greater part, who have again landed and proceeded ever since my the adventurous lands of this good old man; he was habited in a white linen surplice, and a cap of the same, I made I assure you a reverential appearance—I am told that this is the dress of a nation in the interior country called Mundingoes, but Pa Bason is not a Mudingo himself. He respectfully accosted me in broken English, and bending his knee, offered me his right hand supported under the elbow by his left. I held out my hand which he forcibly touched, and then repeated the same to Falconbridge, the one now invited to be seated under the awning we had erected over the Lipton's deck—which he detailed a most pitiable account of sufferings and hardships which the unfortunate people had undergone, but he said there were many bad people among them, who had abused his kindness by ingratitude. Falconbridge and myself endeavored what [illegible] so him that we were highly pleased with his behavior, but as ours are not sufficient to convey the kind acknowledgements in this country. Falconbridge confirmed the assurances we were by a present of a some months ago in a short time would be [illegible] and a promise to represent his conduct to the St. George's Bay Company, in a proper light, which he was certain would induce them to make a more ample recompence at a future time.

Well pleased with his reception, and some what enebriated—with the effects of repeated glasses of spirits he had taken, Pa Bason left us, but first promising us faithfully he would befriend us all in his power at the palaver he intended with such seeming consequence, his cause was longer than our cutter, and my self with fourteen people, viz: ten out-men, a cook-swain two pregnant boatmen and another who beat time on a flat sounding drum to a song given out by the cookswain, and re-echoed by the oarsmen; they I am told was expressive of praises to their, chief, and of their satisfaction for the treatment they had received from me. The day following we visited a small island named Tasse, opposite to Bonge Island, at about one mile and a half distance. This is a well wooded Island and I suppose if cultivated would be a fruitful one. * It supplies Bance Island with water, which is remarkably fine, and at present the holders of the former claim a right to this also, but upon what grounds I cannot say. Approaching there I saw many monkies playing on the beach, and catching small fish at the edge of the water, but they all ran away as we drew near, being informed that there was no danger to be apprehended from wild beasts of prey, we penetrated some distance into the woods. In our way we saw many pine apples and lime trees, the spontaneous production of the country, and a variety of birds beautifully plumed, but none that sang. We were also made [illegible] perfumes of fragrant aromatic plants and indeed were vastly delighted and entertained, though I felt fatigued, with our peregrination.

* A small part of this Island is now planted with cotton, coffee, and sugar cane, for account of Messrs Anderson.

The Amistad Captives.

(Continued.)

In 1817 the church that had been organized numbered 33, a time of increasing religious interest encouraged the missionaries. One woman came 12 miles to hear the gospel, she had said, every day for 18 th, kept the Sabbath and told all to the people concerning the great salvation; a whole town stood out, on the side of Christ, through the preaching of one who invited Mr. Thompson to come or send the gospel. The leaven spread and the work went on; other out-stations were sent out, several new stations were opened an church good aged was seen. Another of the Amistad Captives became a very earnest evangelist with among his country men. Some of the Amistad Captives were employed by the mission and served as a foundation for the work, several years ago I visited Kaw Mendi and there saw the only one of the original captives, that was in the country, an aged woman, others had been scattered because of the persecutions that arose but the seed that had been sown was not all lost, for as has since been ascertained some died strong in the faith, after seeing their children educated and enlisted in christ's service, one wrote some months ago to Lewis these words:

"My Dear Sir: I shall be most thankful if you can employ me in the Mendi Mission, either as a school teacher or a Catechist. I never school position where I was as a Catechist, as I can better pay that I want, you may give me what you please. I long to work for the society that has done so much for my parents and my country. All that I can [illegible] were in the Mendi Mission. I wish to prove my gratitude."

This young man is a noble worker for the Master, another we do me as follows I copy from his own letter, "It has always been my intention to work in the mission field where my mother once labored and I know truly that the Lord will bless me if I am only faithful, it was only through misunderstanding that kept me from coming before. I feel that I should labor for this mission as long as my life lasts. This young man teaches school, five days in the week and itinerates in a number of villages on Sunday, preaching and praying to his own mendi people in their own language.

We would dare to say that God has put, through the agency of the capture of the Amistad, and all else not, are all the fruits engaged part of the mission that was planted. But it is safe to say that many souls have been won for Christ through the planting of that mission and many more will be won, and the value of every one of soul can not be estimated. Let us now suppose for a moment that God is going to allow Satan to defeat his purpose His Word shall not return unto him void.

Shaingay 6 July 90. —J. Gomer.

A New Organization in Freetown.

On the departure of Mrs. Leavitt, the Secretary of the Worlds Woman's Christian Temperance Union, a committee of representatives of the various Christian denominations was organized in Freetown. The first meeting was convened at the Bishop's Court on which occasion the members of the committee were kindly invited by the Bishop to breakfast with him. Preliminary arrangements being then entered upon, in their ext meeting held at the residence of the Rev. J. R Frederick in Howe St, the committee after a long and careful discussion unanimously adopted the name of "The Evangelical Reform Association." The Bishop of Sierra Leone being appointed president of the Association and chairman of the Executive Committee, and the Rev. J. C. May, the principal of the Wesleyan high school secretary and treasurer.

The object of the Association is to promote a healthy state in religious, moral and social affairs and in particular to use all fair means to influence the British and foreign governments in prohibiting the liquor traffic in the colony and on the West Coast of Africa. Any person desiring to become a member of the association, and signing either the total abstinence or the purity pledge is enrolled, as an associate; by signing both the total abstinence and purity pledges is enrolled as a full member. The Association is under the management of an Executive committee, consisting of the Right Rev. the Bishop of Sierra Leone, the Revs. W. H. Johnston Wm. Vivian, J. May, E. Leversuch, J. C. May, O. Moore, and J. R. Frederick.

The first public meeting was held in Wilberforce Memorial Hall on the 6th May, and the Bishop presided, and the Revs E. Leversuch J. R. Frederick J. C. May, addressed the meeting, after which a large number of persons came forward and signed the pledge, some of girls, and others both the pledges. The members now meet at the Bishop's school for [illegible]

The Early Dawn

BONTHE, JULY 16, 60

REV. J. A. EVANS, EDITOR

[EDITORIAL]

Execution of Cannibals.

The execution of a number, some say 20, persons, for Cannibalism at Gangahmah in the Imperah by the Native Authorities is in itself a horrible thing, for even the contemplation of the merely civilised, if it had taken place far Interior, and where the British Government has no influence at all. But how much more horrible for a Christian Community to behold at our very doors this brutal dispersal of even Ten of our fellow beings. Admitting that every victim had been guilty, which is questionable, of the crime of eating men,

Would it not have been, at least humane on the part of the Authorities, to have interfered as arbitramen and thus restrained, to some extent this wholesale slaughter of human beings!

Certainly this matter of cannibalism needs looking into and especially the Trial of those supposed to be guilty.

The fault that we find with that Gangahmah proceedings is first of their removal from Ghangbiah, and second the manner of investigation and third the immediate execution of those convicted all of these appear to have been irregular, even according to country custom or usage in such cases.

Another Break,—In our Issues, by an unavoidable circumstauce—the lack of Printing paper—we have been compelled to omit the Issue of one paper on the 30th of June

Our stationary had been ordered in due time but failed to reach us early enough even for the timely Issue of the present number. We trust with this explaination our Subscribers and others will bear with us for both the Omission and Tardiness of the present Issue.

The Avery Saw Mill—belonging to the Mendi Mission, we understand, from Posters about Streets and also later advices, is now doing good work again the Lumber making and offers to cut to order all kinds of lumber at short notice,

This is good News to the Sherbro Community as lumber has been very scarce.

Wars and Rumors,—of Wars is informed are to be of the last day's of this ours, but we are not informe how long before these signs are to take place. However, we cannot think that the petty intertribal Wars of our vicinity can or do in any sense indicate the end of world and yet it is a serious fact that we do not relish the late rumors of Wars though they be petty that have been reaching us from Konconany; yet we are glad that His Excellency Sir James Hay is doing everything in his power or the power of the Goverament to quiet disturbances in all parts in general and those refered to in particular and we have therefore every reason to hope for Peace and quietude in the near future.

His Excellency Governor Hay K.C.M.G. arrived at Shaingay on the morning of the 15th and remained over the 16th. He was accompanied by the new inspector of police also Mr Parkes. They together visited the Mission premises went over the farm and through the buildings visited the school heard the children recite and sing then delivered to them a neat little address. He then held a council in Shaingay with the chiefs About 5 P.M. His Excellency went on board of his steamer again to return to Freetown. The Mission girls accompanied by Mrs. R.G.Caulker and Miss. Clarke were allowed to go on board; and His Excellency himself kindly showed them over the ship. The little ones were filled with wonder and surprise at the magnificence of the vessel and had much to say of of the kind treatment they received from His Excellency and the Inspector of Police it is most gratifying to find one occupying such a high position that will stoop to shew kindness to such as these, long may he live to rule and govern this people,

W. C. T. U.

Read before the Rotofunk W.C.T.U. May 20th 1860.

Mother's Meeting.

Continued from the last Issue

When the time came to get away the roll ing. Bibles were passed to all who could read; and the chapter for the day was read alternately. Not all of the women could read English; but the Germans, Swedes, and Norwegians all read in their own tongues the news of full and free salvation through our blessed Redeemer. After reading, before uniting in prayer, the women would give their requests for prayer. The following requests will give you some idea of those that were given each week. "Pray that I may find work to earn bread for my children." "Pray for my husband who has de lirium tremens." "Pray for my and who is in prison." "Pray for my husband without work, and who was in liquor." "Pray for my husband without work, and who was in liquor."

Some of the women were their un to attend regu meets are allowed to attend [illegible] account of the m old city.

This class com ly for the bread of life. One woman walked four miles to the meeting; and another worked most of the night preceding the meeting so she could have her day's work done in time to attend the meeting.

At the close of almost every meeting, some one would remain to tell her tale of woe, which was always so bitter, that even now the memory calls them up, my heart aches for the poor sufferers. Those who attended the meeting were not only urged to read the Bible daily, but also to commit a scripture text which they would repeat every day, and by which they sought to have their lives governed. I never saw better illustrations of the truth of these words, "The entrance of thy words giveth light," than those among the women in these meetings as it penetrated their sin darkened homes and hearts. One seeking to live a Christian life is persecuted by her unbelieving neighbor who lives across the hall, and by her catholic neighbor in the rear of the house. She is tempted to wreak out vengeance on her persecutors, but is restrained by her daily text, which says, "Be ye kind one to another, tender hearted, forgiving one another, even as God for Christ's sake hath forgiven you. Another burdened with the cares of a sick husband and six children finds comfort and encouragement in her text, "Casting all your care upon Him for He careth for you." Still another watching and praying for the return of him who promised to love and protect her. In the small hours of the night, she heard his heavy step on the stairway stairs, and soon saw his staggering form, and hears the thick and angry tones threatening to kill her unless she gave him money to buy rum. Rushing down the stairs she took refuge in "a dark corner of the lower hall. There alone with Him, who is omnipresent, the words "Let not your heart be troubled; ye believe in God believe also in me", lead her to pray on and to trust in Him whose word endureth forever.

It is a settled fact these mothers' meetings are one of the most effective means of reaching and helping women in the United States. And if they are a potent factor in Christianizing and civilizing women there, they may be such here in this country. The question may arise, as to how we can begin these meetings. We must first get the mothers together. And in this part of the work will meet with difficulties. Husbands who are intemperate and unbelieving often object to their wives going to the meetings. Then the women will doubtless offer many excuses. We remember that in the time of Christ, the invitation to some was given but one had to go to his farm, another must prove his oxen, and another had married and must attend to home duties.

Frances Williams.

to be continued.

CORRESPONDENCE.

What is Sin.

There was a [illegible] from Rembee and [illegible] that the people are very busy on their farms, and there is no fear of war now, but the cannibals are frightening the people. A number of people have been caught in the neighbourhood of late, and though the chief men are on their look out, and have others on the watch as yet, they have not been able to get hold of any one; they are determined to make short work of who ever one they may catch

The people of Timenah are still calling for a teacher they say they want their own school and their own preacher, they would gladly give their children to the Mission, but Mr Stewart wont take them. Plenty of Sundays they sit down all day and look road for the man to come and keep meeting for them, but no one comes. Mr Fox, Bannah Sobel and Beah Yeamy, are on the watch constantly to see who will sell or who will buy Rum, they are determined to make an example of the first one they catch

The grog sellers are very cunning, and manage, to make [illegible] occasionally A woman's child died the mother thought she must have rum to bury it, and managed to get some from one of the traders, shortly after the mother was taken sick and was suffering severely when the rum seller appeared suddenly on the scene and demanded his pay for the rum furnished for the child's funeral and would not leave until the pay was forth coming. The poor woman was so distressed it is to be hoped that she will profit by the lesson.

There was a very interesting meeting of the temperance army in the Rev. Clarke and Wife Training School building a few evenings ago, on which occasion Rev Wilberforce delivered an address on the state of the country, it was a review of the past as compared with the present religion, politics, and education were presented in a very interesting manner, some facts were rather disagreeable to the taste and hard to swallow, but they were facts and could not be denied the workers in the field have abundant cause to be thankful and take courage — At another meeting how ought we Africans to dress was fully discussed by the whole society the Training School Students taking the lead: the majority favoring the adopting altogether the native dress of a flowing gown with short trowsers some however insisted on the european custom claiming that we should do so out of respect to them for bringing us the gospel, one said he had been born and raised in the Mendi country his father had never shown him about God The bible, nor Sunday; he only show foolish, he will not follow any of the country fashion, but that what he sees the white people do he will do.

Regent chief Thomas Neal Caulker has presented the children of the Shaingay Mission with a large field of cassada and a bunchy of rice to help them out for food as cassada is their main dependence Africans to dress was fully discussed by the whole society the Training School Students taking the lead: the majority favoring the adopting altogether the native dress of a flowing gown with short trowsers some however insisted on the european custom claiming that we should do so out of respect to them for bringing us the gospel, one said he had been born and raised in the Mendi country his father had never shown him about God The bible, nor Sunday; he only show foolish, he will not follow any of the country fashion, but that what he sees the white people do he will do.

Regent chief Thomas Neal Caulker has presented the children of the Shaingay Mission with a large field of cassada and a bunchy of rice to help them out for food as cassada is their main dependence and none was planted on the mission farm last year, this was a most timely contribution, indeed it was an answer to earnest prayer. The children will pray God bless the king.— Mrs R. G. Caulker has been spending a few days at shaingay mission & has made herself generally useful in every department of Mission work. J. G

Mission Office, Shaingay, June, 1860.

Wesleyan Sabbath Schools, Bathurst.

The 13th [illegible] versary of the above Schools, viz Dobson St, Stanley St., and Hill Street, was celebrated on the 18th and 19th inst.

On Sunday the 18th two sermons were preached at Dobson Street Church on behalf of Sabbath Schools that in the morning at 11 o'Clock by the Rev. J. W. King native assistant missionary, from Prov. xxii 6 and in the evening by Mr. J. G. Prophet, Catechist, from 1 Cor. xv 58 both were interesting and edifying.

In the afternoon of the same day at 3· 30. o'Clock a very able and instructive address befitting the occasion and worthy of the the addresser was delivered by Mr. V· A. Harding. Schoolmaster based on the words "And they mayest add thereto."

On Monday the 19th a Public Meeting was held in the same place at 7 p.m over which Edmund Thomas Esq. a distinguished citizen presided. Very able and interesting Speeches were delivered by Messrs Solomon N'Jie, D. Leigh and A. T. George, teachers in connection with Dobson Street Sabbath School

The service of Songs, interspersed with readings, entitled "Elijah" was rendered with good effect.

Mr. J. A. Richards, Secretary reader and Mr. S. J. Auber [illegible]

Mr. V. A. Harding directed the There was also an [illegible] Clarionet and Trombone [illegible] the music very excellent and [illegible]

The Report [illegible] a nett increase of 30 Scholars i.e 310 against 487 of the previous year.

Bathurst Gambia. May 31st 1860. Editor

A Native Colonist Officiates

Dear Mr. Editor,—I have read with marked interest and pleasure the article that appeared in your last issue under the above heading—perhaps its value is enhanced in my individual estimation, at all events, I think it worth the opportune to re-echo in your [illegible] sentiments of the writer for I believe, an expression of such philanthropic views, through the medium of newspaper correspondence, can never wholly fail to inspire courage and quicken zeal, in the minds of subordinate officials.

A contemplation of the vast changes that have taken place recently in the presentation of well deserving natives to higher positions of trust, which appointments were originally intended to be occupied by their more favoured brethren, and which a few years ago, it was considered heinous in a native to aspire to for fear of increasing the velocity of the current of prejudice against him, which in his inability to stem, may drift him headlong to oblivion-should serve as an incentive to draw forth the exercise in full play, of the latent talents and energies, that may have hitherto remained dormant. The circumstances attending the promotions are replete with encouragements, and help our intellects to form a just conception and a worthy appreciation of the laudable spirit of ambition, which highly recommends itself to every youthful aspirant

"Honor and shame from condition rise Act well your part there all the honor lies."

The spontaneous and unanimous motion in the right direction of a host of subordinates must surely attract the due attention of those who hold it in their power to bestow the benefits for which the former crave

An administration that seeks the interest of the governed, and encourages merit, no matter in whom it is found, will certainly in the end win the esteem and applause of all under its dispensation, they well prognosticate that the [illegible] despite the hurtful criticisms of detractors, will still continue higher and higher in the royal favour of their country, until they may be called upon to [illegible] demonstrate their ability to administer its [illegible] affairs—of course, this ultimatum appears to be a remote contingency, the necessity for the accomplishment of which may never arise but the unexpected often happens and who knows what's in the bosom of futurity?

It hoves those who have succeeded in taking the lead, though [illegible] the capabilities of the race are being tested, the constituted bearers of our race to be keenly alive to the responsibilities of their positions, and act with firmness and decision. The duty of fulfilling the obligations imposed by the [illegible] of their onerous [illegible] and their most serious attention to the utility of meriting the confidence and identifying themselves with the multitudinous interests of the noble phalanx of subordinates, should not be out of sight of.

I am,
Yours truly
VERITAS.

AMERICAN HOLIDAY AT THE AMERICAN, SHAINGAY MISSION.

Shaingay—It has been my pleasure to reside for a few weeks at Shaingay. I have made the acquaintance of the missionaries here and especially with the Principal of the High school, and I have met the old gentleman several times; it seems to be a nice old man to their American holiday here, they had a very high time. In front of the Mission house they had up a large American flag; and the pupils that [illegible] the males were all dressed with red jackets and blue trowsers [illegible] pass with white turbans around them. [illegible] to the music of fife and drum, and they marched around the flag, and then into the town of Shaingay, the then on their return they played base ball, but grandest of all was the play at night.

The principal of the high school the Rev. D. F. Wilberforce, has written a play taken from the book of Daniel, which he calls the "Sensualist's Doom." It is in three acts; it is all about king Belshazzer's feast, though it opens up with King Nebuchadnezzar with a lot of his followers they enter singing a song of triumph, he makes a proud speech and tells how he has humbled proud Judah, Daniel and his three companions are brought in and given in charge of a Eunuch, to [illegible] properly [illegible] then comes in dispute about [illegible] and this is the object of the play to show up the evils of intemperance [illegible] there many scenes in the play which was enacted in the school building; there was [illegible] and a large curtain that was so arranged as to roll up and down at will and there were screens to slide back and forth at will and all worked like a charm the school boys and girls and the teachers all played a part and played it well before each scene was to be played the old gentleman [illegible] Mr. Gomer would step to the front and explain what the scene was to be and tell where it was to be found in the bible, Daniel was the great hero of the night, he interpreted the Kings dream after [illegible] of his wicked [illegible] and ladies and gentlemen were seated at the table the vessels of gold and silver that was taken from the temple in Jerusalem are brought in and whilst the party are drinking the room is suddenly darkened a light is thrown against the wall and a hand is seen writing some unknown character the hand disappears consternation that this creates [illegible] wonderful there remains the writing on the wall, the wise men are sent for they cant make it out, then the queen tells the King of Daniel, he is brought in and reads the writing, the King has scarcely put the chain of gold [illegible] Daniel's neck when the armies of the medes rush in, and the king is slain, then the whole company sang "The hand on the Wall."

Everything in this was arranged all planed by Mr. Wilberforce, only the costumes were made by a Mrs. Caulker I heard that she is an American lady. J. L. Mc'CAULAY.

NEWS ITEMS.

June 13.—s. s. "Formoso" for Freetown with mails and the following passengers.—Messrs. J. B. Wright, E. A. Lewis, G. V. Manly, S H Jones, M. J. Marke, Prophet Brown, Mesdames J. B. Parkinson, G. V. Manly, A. L. Williams, Sarah Martyn, Charlotte Coker, Bobb, Mesdamesvilles Jane Parkinson, Maria Brown, Cecilia Macauley, Jane Garber, Nancy Belford and several others.

15.—An Inquest was held on the body of a man drowned at Manoh Gambia and sent to Bonthe by Mr. J. A. Williams—Adjourned to the 25th instant for want of evidence.

17—S. S. "Susu" from Freetown with mails and passengers,—Rev Father Lobel [R. Catholic] and Mr. Isaac M. Peters.

18.—Kong Government boatman [illegible] arrested on a charge [illegible] murder committed [illegible] little boy named Joe aged 4 years.

They have since been sent to Freetown to await their trial, at the Supreme Court to take place in Freetown in September next.

27—s. s. "Susu" from Freetown with mails and passengers;—Master J. H. Pratt of the Fourah Bay College, Freetown, Mrs. Inspector C. N. Taylor and Mrs J. A. Williams.

8—Miss. Mary Ann Collier who was brought from Gbangbatook sick, died at the residence of Mr W. D. Macauley, and was burried on Sunday morning the 29th inst at 8 a. m.

28—s. s. "Susu" for Freetown with mails and passengers—Rev. Father Lobel and Mrs. Hannah Jones.

July 2—s. s. "Formoso" for Freetown.

6—Holy Communion at the Wesleyan Chapel.

7—Mr. Henry E Williams a trader arrived from the Boom River.

s. s. 'Mandingoe' for Freetown.

8—A special meeting was held at St. Matthew's School Room for the purpose of reorganising the St Matthew's Sabbath School. Several gentlemen addressed the meeting; there was a good gathering of ladies and gentlemen.

s. s. "Footah" from Freetown with Mails; and left with mails the next day for Freetown.

12—s. s. 'Formoso' from Freetown with mails and the following passengers—Messrs. E. A. Lewis, Fred Lewis, Mesdames Annie L, Williams, Patience Brown, and several others.

14—A daring robbery of twelve shillings and ten pence in a bag, in a mourner's house at Medina street on Monday afternoon the 14th inst, by a painter, T. B. who gave an acknowledgement in writing.

15—s. s. Formoso for Freetown with mails and passengers

From Bathurst Gambia:—Mr. George Rose the Travelling Evangelist who has spent a profitable season at Bathurst R. G. is expected to leave in the "Teneriffe" now overdue, on a visit to America Via England, on or a about the 3rd June, Mr Rose is a selfsacrificing man and deserves the sympathy of all classes of Christians.

Per the s. s. "Formoso" which arrived on the 12th inst brought the sad intelligence of the death of Mr. J. Alphonso Reffel formerly a Merchant in Sherbro and father to Theodore Reffel took place in Freetown on the 11th instant.

CORRESPONDENCE.

What Did It?

Did what? your answer. Well listen gentle reader to my tale woe and suffering.

In a beautiful town of more than twenty thousand people some years ago, was born a babe son to a thrifty enterprizing man of means, a contractor, I believe whom for the convenience of our story we shall call Mr Hagar, his business was flourishing and he was respectable and like most fathers was proud of his first born son: already he had daughters older, he was baptized and called James. Years rolled on as they ever have since creation's dawn. James Hagar grew from a healthy handsome infant to a well developed young man of fine appearance liked, yea beloved, by his parents and a host of friends, such as ever cluster around the hoodstone of fortune. Affluence and plenty smiled on James Hagar's youth, and the death of his father placed the boon of a rich fortune in his hands in early manhood.

This circumstance of course increased the number his admirers. But being prudent and a young man of discretion and though nursed in the lap of fortune had been well reared and educated; to manage a liberal inheritance; had it not been that his father had allowed a poisonous serpent to be kept in the house, the sting of which was very deadly, but the harm or bite of this serpent was not immediately felt. And strange to relate the thing seemed so inoffensive that it was handled and fondled by all that met it without the least suspicion of danger. But unfortunately it bit most of the children besides hundreds of visitors to Mr Hagars and alhh the effect of the first bite would not have proved fatal, yet such is the influence upon most persons that they do not percieve the bite until the work of ruin is effected, by which time they seem prone to go in its way and thus they are ruined for life in fact for ever. James Hagar was bitten badly by the serpent and a few years after his father's decease he was incapacitated for the management of his affairs and began to lose in his business transactions, until house after house in town and country passed out of his hands and he was compelled to take up his abode in an old horse stable in the country and there with his wife child and serpent he continued to dwell, in the most wretched rags, poverty, and filth, with no one to love, or even, it would seem; to pity them in their misery and degradation.

And now I may tell you strong drink did it. E.

The Spirits Trade.

Has reacted so fatally upon all legitimate enterprizes, in Africa that its pernicious effects, are becoming obvious to all. And unscrupulous business men of the world can offer but little in palliation of such a ruinous factor in trade, beyond the fact that it sells; for it is admitted now on all sides that its sale in the trade of West Africa is without profit. The question then arises why is it continued by the commercial public if far seeing business men are convinced of its paralizing influence upon even the very trafic of which it is regarded as a staple factor and other men of business see no profit in it? Well there seem to be two answers to this question; first men in christian lands are manufacturing a great deal of the poisonous stuff which manufacture is largely profitable to them, and more so when there is a foreign demand, hence they are interested in encouraging the sale of it on these shores; and as we they expect do their best to urge dealers here to handle it. A second reason that the sale continues; is because it receives so little opposition from people on this side. The churches, although, most if not all of the m, have rules against the sale and use of intoxicating liquors, are so silent on these points as to become practicably effete. The pulpit is altogether too silent on the subject of intemperance there is too little said to the people on the pernicious influence of gin and rum. The Press too is some what to blame it does not do all that it might to arouse a sentiment against the shiploads of liquid death that are constantly arriving on these shores. And since all departments Industry, Religion, and Commerce, are now suffering, and indeed are doomed unless something is done to stay the tide of Intemperance. Why do we not awake from our lethargy and cry mightily against a traffic that is destined to destroy our last hope for all time! If it is to the interest of capitalists in other countries to Manufacture a commodity that is of profit to them it is equally to our interest in this country, or these African countries, to refuse to purchase that which is not only of no profit, but is a damage to us.

Why should we whose lots are cast in Africa suffer loss to build up the fortunes of men in other lands? certainly there is no reason, and we ought to arise as one man and swear eternal destruction to the Rum Traffic. J. A. E.

Queen Victoria and the Sabbath

There are many persons who think they must take a portion of the Lord's time to attend to their secular business affairs.

We have seen professing christians whose business correspondence is by no means large, who go regularly to the Post Office on Sunday morning for their mail.

There are many too who would like to be called statesmen who attend regularly to business matters on the Sabbath. We wish all such persons could be influenced by the noble example of the great queen of England as illustrated in the following story.

The religious feeling of her majesty was evidenced soon after her ascent to the throne, in the case of a certain noble lord occupying an important post in the Government, who, late one Saturday night arrived at Windsor with some State papers.

I have brought, said he, for your majesty's inspection some documents of great importance. But as I shall be obliged to examine them in detail I will not encroach upon your majesty's time to-night but will request your attention tomorrow morning. Tomorrow morning, repeated the queen, tomorrow is Sunday my lord. True your majesty but business of the state will not admit of delay.

I am aware of that, replied the queen and as of course your lordship could not have arrived earlier at the palace to night, I will if these papers are of such pressing importance attend to their contents after service tomorrow morning.

In the morning the queen and her court went to church and much to the surprise of the noble lord, the subject of the discourse was the sacredness of the christian Sabbath.

How did your lordship like the sermon asked the queen.

Very much indeed your majesty he replied.

Well then added the queen I will not conceal from you that last night I heard the clergyman the text from which he preached. I hope we shall all be improved by the sermon.

Not another word was said about the state papers during the day but at night when about to retire the queen said, to-morrow morning my lord as early as seven o'clock if you please we will have into the papers. I can not think, was the reply, of intruding on your majesty at so early an hour. Nine o'clock will do as well.

No no my lord As the papers are of importance I wish them to be attended to very early. But if you wish it to be it is so.

At nine the next morning the queen was seated at the table ready to receive the noble man and his papers.

Contributed for the Early Dawn.

A New Organization in Freetown.

The temperance cause which has been considered so unpopular is showing a number of great importance with us A few years ago there was only one Christian Temperance Organization in Freetown, and that was the Juvenile Band of Hope of the Wesleyan High School; and to-day we can boast of three. The Gospel Temperance Union, organized by Mrs Amanda Smith. The World Women's Christian Temperance Union and the Evangelical Reform Association though the direct effect of Mrs L. Lavis. We may hope that if the work can only be vigorously pushed forward, and a single aim kept in view, a mighty power of practical usefulness will be exercised not only here but all the West Coast, and no doubt shall we see in our time a result we now dream possible of the bold words of God's promise to his Son, "I will give Thee the heathen for Thine inheritance and the uttermost parts of the earth for thy possession."

A. M.

From wm. Issue 4th.

THE
Early Dawn
PRINTING OFFICE
PLAIN ARTISTIC and FANCY WORK
EXECUTED AT
SHORT NOTICE
ENQUIRE OF
J. G. Caulker
PRINTER

Colonial Institute

THE EARLY DAWN.

"The Morning Light Is Breaking, The Darkness Disappears."

VOL. VII. BONTHE, SHERBRO, WEST AFRICA. JULY 31 1890. No. 19

The "Early Dawn."

Published Semi-Monthly at Bonthe, Sherbro. Under the Auspices of the Board of Missions of the United Brethren in Christ.

Rev. J. A. Evans, Editor and Publisher Bonthe, Sherbro, West Africa.

AGENTS.

United States.—Revs. B. F. Booth and Wm McKee, Dayton O. Rev. I. K. Statler, Cedar Rapids, Iowa. Rev. Wm J. Davis, Buell, Ohio Rev. J. T. Jenifer. Chicago, Ill. Rev. J. L. Bentley, Marion, O. Rev. J. S. Cleaver, Elkhart Ind. Rev. R. P. Burton, Perry Ind. D. K. Flickinger, Willoughby, O Rev. H. Eitwell, Dayton, Washington, Tenn. M. J. Stoner, Manheim, Pa., Master Charlie Howe Manchester, Ind. Rev. G. W. Arnold Eldorado, Ohio. West Africa.—J. A. Richards, River Gambia. Rev. J. E. Frederick and Mr. E. A. Lewis, Freetown, Sierra Leone. Rev. James Deputy, Marshall Liberia. Mr. Moses Boyle, Liberia.

TERMS.

One Year by mail,	£0	6 0
Delivered in Bonthe,	0	5 0
Half yearly by mail,	0	3 0
Ditto, delivered in Bonthe,	0	2 6

From the musical million.

PRODUCERS.

The mission of life is production. Some one has said that "he is the benefactor who makes two blades of grass grow where only one grew before." It was he that who went and traded with his talents and 'made them other talents' that his Lord said; 'Well done, thou good and faithful servant.'

Who that has the faintest conception of his mission and destiny can be content to go through life sponging on the world and 'dead-beating' his way to eternity? Such an one contravenes the purpose of his creation, and the only useless thing in the universe of God.

The material to be manipulated and fashioned are near at hand and abundant in supply No man need complain of want of opportunity or capacity. If he cannot be a Shakespeare or a Milton, he may be a Watt or a Stevenson, if he cannot be a poet, he may be a plowman; if he cannot be a lord, he may be a tacker. He can produce something, either with his brain or with his brawn, either with his head or with his hand.

What wealth might we boast if all our people were producers! How would the dead stones that lay uncut in our quarries breathe with the images of life, or grace the columns and arches of mighty edifices and monuments? The ore of our mountains touched by the alchemy of genius and industry, would be transmitted into ten thousand implements, utensils and machines, promotive of the progress and prosperity of the race. Our forests of oak and pine would be fashioned by skilled and cunning workmanship into places of splendor and beauty—the houses and homes of rich and happy people.

Industrial development of our country is indeed wonderful. Nothing like it has ever been known in the annals of human progress and achievement. But marvelous as it is, it is nothing like it might be if every man was a productive factor, and added his individual increment of effort to the industrial forces at work in the land.

Every man owes it to God and society to produce something—to give the world the benefit of some thought of his brain or some strokes of his hand—to write a book to drive a nail, to lay a brick, to plow a furrow, or fell a tree. Everything he produces, whether it be a blade of grass or ear of corn, a yard of cloth or rail of steel, promotes progress and civilization and helps on humanity to a higher and happier destiny.

All honor to the patient, toiling producers! Their fidelity and unwearied industry have given the world all it enjoys of comfort and happiness. Thanks to Elias Howe, the noble inventor, whose genius emancipated woman from the bondage of the needle and extracted all the pathos from the world famed "Song of the shirt." All praise to those immortal benefactors who have made life worth living, and struck from the barren rocks gushing waters of refreshing sweetness and dug from the empty fields bread for the hungry and the perishing. There are other and richer fields than those of mere industrial activity in which men may produce something stamped with the touch of eternity. To lodge within a human mind a thought worthy to live to put into a human soul the smallest seed wherein lies folded the germ of immortal good; this indeed is a work which will remain when all the monuments of human skill and genius shall have perished, and over their blight and decay men shall stand still for lack of work to do."

Could we grow a generation of producers we would do a worthier work than the emperor of Germany, who taxed his subject to support two millions of idlers—an army of consumers who absorbs all the wealth of the nation, and will nothing either to the happiness or the industrial development of his country.

We need to foster and not despise toil and enterprise, to respect and not disdain the laborer and the wage earner.

We need a public sentiment that outlaws the loafer and the vagrant—that values as a worthy and reputable citizen the honest and faithful workman, and rewards, either to the rock-pile or the cotton patch, that numerous family of dudes and deadbeats who suck their living, like the vampire, from the sweat and blood of the honest sons of toil.—Ex.

The Summons.

A Vision of the night camesupon me
In my dream I stood looking at the western sky, and my eyes were curiously fixed upon a star. Somehow, to me it had an apparent motion, and I gazed long and earnestly upon it. It seemed to be hurrying in from some limitless ocean of space hastening on through interstellar and inter-planetary spaces, and the wonder came upon me. "How near will it come to me, how far will it pass me by?" It was swift in its motion, even as the prayer of a child, that in a moment of time reaches up through all the depths of existence to the great heart of an infinite God. In it there was not so much of a physical force as the quick movement of thought; and its light and its glory were white, even as the splendor of the robes of the immortals. And still it swept toward me and still I wondered but there was no fear within my heart; and then, as I gazed, a transformation came and behold, it was a white dove, which was swiftly winging its way toward me, and again I wondered, how near will it come to me, how far will it pass me by?

And even as I wondered it swept close to me, and then in a moment it was fluttering on my breast nestling in my arms, and I placed my hand upon it, and stroked its soft plumage, and then the great truth burst in upon my being, it is God's messenger, and he is calling you home. And still there was no fear within my heart, and I could only wonder at the depth of that infinite love which cared so much for one of the least of his, that a white winged messenger should be sent, bidding him to the home of many mansions! And then from his banks of eternal light a great joy pulsated down through the azure, and enwrapped my being, a new life glowed in every vein, and great and exceeding happiness came unto me, as if already the hand of the master was on my forehead in a benediction that should last through all of God's undying years.

But the morning came, and behold it was only a dream! But when my eyes close to the lights of earth, and I awaken in the glow and glory of an immortal day, God grant that his peace may be upon my soul, even as it was in this vision of the night. Sat.

Trip to Bambah.

Left M. station wharf 6.30. A. M. with favourable tide. Landed at Yonnie 9. 15. A. M. Thirty persons readily gathered in the United house to whom we spoke from Rom. Ch. 10 Left at 9. 15 A. M landed at Dublin 9. 25. A. M. and in less than 5 minutes 30 persons assembled at the usual place waiting to hear the word; and though we occupied a little over 40 minutes in speaking at each of these two places yet the people were not weary but seemed glad to hear more of the Blessed Word of life Left Bambah 12.30. with favourable wind and tide and sailed to Mission wharf in 2:30 hours. Had a very heavy rain which lasted a little over an hour. Boat being without awning we were drenched to skin but we say Never mine to this portion of the trip and prais the Lord for what was done.

Rogers interpreted.

29th June 90. B. Cookson Taylor.

Rembee, June, 30, '90.

Dear Bro. Gomer:

I am thankful to the Lord for his mercies vouchsafed to us, for the short time, we have been laboring in this part of his vineyard. I can say with feelings of gratitude and praise that the Lord hath done great things for us, whereof we are glad. Since our entering into this Station, there has been signs of marked changes in the spiritual state of the natives around this place. They I, rejoice to say, have always listened to the preached word with attention, they rejoice to receive the gospel, and throughout, the different villages, where I have been endeavoring to sow the spiritual seed, I have been well received.

The work here on the Station is good, our Sundays and Weeknight Meetings, attendance is good we have from 30 to 40, in the morning and from 70 to 100 in the evening. We are now holding meetings in the new Barra built by the people, in which can be seated about 150 persons. The outstations are also encouraging 17 towns have been visited and in those towns where there is no Barra, the people promise to build one for worship as soon as planting is over.

Among these, there are two, that has never been visited, One of these Gbamso, is worthy to be noted, for the people give great encouragement, the first time I went there, it was hard work to get the people together for meetings, and the few that came, refused to give their names as seekers. The Itinerant visited them twice and the next time I went there as soon as I was seen entering the town a woman ran and swept the barre, and by the time I was walking round to say how-do, the barra was crowded with people, after the service, 20 gave their names as seekers, and promise to build a larger place for worship.

The Sabbath also is observed in the town.

Tissanah in the Bompeh River, is also a place where the word of life is taking effect.

The first time I went to this town we had about 120 persons present in the meeting and received 13 persons into the seekers class making a total of 47 members in the seekers class in this town.

Day School—In this department we have every thing to encourage as we try to gather as many children in the town, and have got 21, 12 boys and 9 girls. The Sabbath School, under Mrs. Stewart, is progressing, she reports favorable, with 25 member.

Number of	Towns visited	17
"	Believers Class	1
"	Members in Class	17
"	Seekers Class	47
"	Members in Class	276
"	Day School Children	21
"	Sunday School	25

For the present the prospect is hopeful and we look forward for a grand results.

Yours in Christ,—F. M. Stewart.

The Early Dawn

BONTHE, JULY 31, 1890.

REV. J. A. EVANS, = EDITOR

[EDITORIAL.]

"Remember The Sabbath Day, to keep it holy" is just as binding now upon men as in the Days of the Exodos.

Religion has of late become too much of, a garment of righteness, we fear, which it is becoming fashionable to wear only to church and religious meetings.

Honesty is the best Policy, as a motto, has become stargely a thing of the past, it would seem, as so many have entirely discarded it in their practical lives.

The Sensualists' Doom,—Is a new Drama from the Book Daniel, written by Prof. Wilberforce, of the Rufus Clark, in the interest of Temperance.

Like Beasts,— is an Expression found in the Pamphlet published at this Office on "Sunday Schools and How to Reach the Women and Girls of Africa" the phrase 'like beasts' occurs on the 15th page and is an error, which we indeed regret very much. The sentence should read "The object being to so train up these children that they will be able to reach and teach their own people who will accept truth from their hands more readily than from the Missionaries themselves."

The Mendi Mission.

Possibly our readers will indulge a few lines about, this the oldest established of the American Missions, in these parts.

It was founded in 1842 at Kaw Mendi, and subsequently established several stations in the Boom and other Rivers extending its influence to a considerable distance interior at quite an early date.

But its operations altho, successful, in greatly benefiting the heathen populations, of the various districts, were hindered much by native Wars and death of many of its early Missionaries.

In fact all the older stations, have seemingly had to be abandoned for one cause or another in former years. But within the last five or six years the progress of real Missionary Work has been marvelous, and the Membership has increased nearly ten fold. However, little or nothing has been ed in the way of even repairing buildings which have really suffered much from decay, but it is pleasant to contemplate the vast increase in living Temples, during the Last few years; and we verily feel that surely such a Mission ought to receive the favorable consideration of its' old friends for what it has already accomplished. But when we see the vast prospects just before this Mission of Spiritual, and Material progress it does seem that it should be helped to reap the Rich harvest already White to be gathered in. We have called, and now we cry aloud for assistance to put in the sycle into the golden grain. Will not some one come to the rescue of the perishing, to care for the dying? Thousands of souls can now be saved, if the means will only come to feed the Laborers as they go forth. Ye men of God, in home lands will you stand and hear, unmoved, the piteous cry of the heathen thousands, yea millions, sinking down to eternal night and not lend a helping hand to save them! While the words of the great commission of our Lord, "Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature," still ring in your ears.

Morning Prayers.

By Morning Prayers we mean the prayers that are usually conducted in more less public places; generally in village chapels in every place where there is a school master or catechist. These services were commenced by the early missionaries and by most if not all of them were held for the purpose of teaching their people to pray, and to wait as the Psalmist has it, upon the Lord. But from our own experience and what we can learn from the teaching of other Missionaries, it was never designed that these public prayers should be kept up after the practice of Prayer had been established among christians, but that private family altars should take their place hence for more than a year the chapel prayers have ceased to be held in this place by the Mendi Mission and are only kept up in the Mission house as family prayers alth ugh conducted by a leader. And it is urged by the U. B. church that family worship be established and maintained in every house so that the whole family may have access to its benefits. And although we are not familiar with the teachings of all our local Societies of other connection in this place, yet it is, we believe time that every house of a communicant member of any church had established a family alter morning & evening prayer to which it should invite every servant in the house and invoke the Blessing of God upon them all.

W. C. T. U.

Read before the Rotofunk W.C.T.U. May 20th 1890.

Mother's Meeting.

Continued from the last Issue

To-day we hear the same excuses. Last week I asked some women why they were not at the mother's meeting. One said she had to go to the farm, and another was married and said she had to sweep the house. Now we will all agree that the farming and the house-work must be done. But it should not occupy all the time, and thus exclude higher and more important work. And these women must be taught the necessity of choosing "the better part." It will require oft repeated visits, much urging, and faithful praying to overcome these excuses and other impediments that obstruct the way. But we must remember the words of the Lord to Joshua, "Be thou strong and very courageous." We must do all we can to hold up before the women the possibilities that are before them. Some of them have been taught that they are of little consequence-that their minds can not be developed as the minds of their brothers; and that they have no souls. I can not help contrasting the idea of the weakness of women, that prevail among the men of this country and that of men in other lands. In a Christian land where the gospel has exalted woman to her proper place, she is considered weaker than her brother only in her physical nature. But in Africa, her physical strength is considered the greatest, for that is the only part of her nature that has been developed. But as opportunities are given her, she will convince her brother that she is equal intellectually and spiritually. In America the majority of the day school teachers Sunday school teachers and home Missionaries and Temperance workers are women. And now the doors to the ministry, to medicine and law are being opened to women; and they are entering these doors of usefulness; and proving that God has poured out His spirit upon both sons and daughters.

In mother's meetings in America we need to teach the women how to dress, but in this country we need to go back further and teach them to dress. I have been impressed with this duty as I have gone from house to house. Some times we see the men well dressed, perhaps with unnecessary clothing on, while the woman will have only a country cloth on, and sometimes without even a country cloth on. I know not why this is, unless it is because the man has come into closer contact with civilization than the woman. While this distinction exists man can not advance so rapidly, and he will never reach that plain of usefulness and happiness which his Creator has designed he should. Man and woman must rise or fall together. It is said that a woman lost us Eden, and she alone can restore it. One wise man says, "Every great man has had a great woman for his mother."

Africa will not have many great sons until she has some great mothers. "Mother Home and Heaven" are three of the sweetest words in the English language. The truest mother is necessary, is indispensable, to the model home, and in this home she can lead her family to heaven.

We trust that all who are interested in the uplifting of the women in this place, will lend a helping hand toward making this department of work a success. In my report of two weeks ago, you were told that in our meetings, we purpose teaching reading, writing, health and heredity, and sewing. We also hope to teach the woman Bible truths, and by practical suggestions help them in their daily duties and give them higher ideas of life. At every meeting we urge on the women, who have not with us for the first time and all others who have not taken the total abstin nce pledge, to do so at once. We pray and trust that all the women of Rotofunk, yea the women of all Africa, may be brought into faitaful Christian service, so that it may be said of each of them as it was of Mary of old. "She hath done what she could"

Frances Williams.

To be concluded.

Childrens Column.

Every now and then there are letters sent to us from Children, which seem to be out of place for our paper unless we open a column for such matter, as with this Issue we start this as a Children Column and hope for Success. So we say now for it Boys and Girls let us see what you can do.

Some Big-People may write letters for this column too; but they must not copy them out of the dictionary, as it will be too hard for the children to read them.

Boys and Girls when you write you must write about such things as you understand, as your School, your books or play things or about your Schoolmaster or Sunday school and Teacher; but letters must be in plain handwriting so we can read them.

Waste Basket—we have a big Bly, with a Small mouth under the Table, and all the letters, which humbug us too much we just put them in that Bly which we call a Waste Basket but if you little people will send us nice letters, we will print them in this Column.

Shaingay Mission Office,
July 2nd '90.

Dear Mr. Evans,

I am going to write you a piece to print in the Early Dawn and I hope you will tell Mr. Remmie Caulker to print it, as he did not print Mrs. Benson's paper.

Mr. Gomer said I could write a piece if I wanted to, and he would send it to Bonthe when he sends letters. I am going to write of our trip to Martin, with the most Solem; when we got there it was three o'Clock, and we had meeting the same night. Sisney and Gomer and I all went to sing. When the meeting was over I went with Sisney to see his people who live in Karray Samaranah. There is plenty of water in the road. His people are Murray people and they pray with the Testeboa. They gave us some clean rice and two fowls when we were leaving. On Sunday morning we went back to Martin, where we again had another meeting; the people were not many as on Saturday night. The people here want to have their own barra for their school, and agreed to build it. They have given thirty shillings for a bell and another money for a clock.

We left the next day and came home again.

Gordon Shelby.

Composition.—An ambitious boy contemplated a prize poem, and he had indited the first line, "The sun's perpendicular rays illumed the depths of the sea" when he was called away, and left the paper exposed on the table. An older boy came in and seeing the line, continued thus: "The fishes, beginning to sweat, cry, 'Gracious, how hot we shall be!'"

His View of the Dog.—Mother explained to small boy the meaning of the word [illegible] ed. A few days later he ran in to his mother rather excitedly, exclaiming: "Oh, mamma! There's a detailed dog out here on the [illegible]

CORRESPONDENCE.

Native Colonial Officials.

Dear Mr. Editor,—The premises advanced in my article in your last issue, were not intended to insinuate that the administration such as it is, has already attained to that state of perfection and absolute desirability—that "ne plus ultra" condition—but to convey our best-felt expression of gratitude for the comfortold measure of success achieved, & our sincere appreciation of the commendable efforts put forth, in the recognition of native merit and talent. Surely it is advisable to continue to adopt the course hitherto pursued, which has been productive of such grand results in excess of our anticipations, and may the mute but effective appeals silently put forth, but so evidently manifest in the faithful satisfactory, and efficient discharge of the duties attached to the various subordinate positions which are filled by natives, utter demands, bespeak their wishes, and proclaim their needs.

I regret to remark that with very few exceptions, there is too much vanity shown in the acquisition of that spirit of unanimity and philanthropy, which is necessary to ensure continued success. Nature does not appear to have lavished it in a becoming manner on the natives. Our natural impulses do not appear to tend to the edification and mutual benefit of each other; similarity of positions does not in any way create the sympathies and antipathies, nor does it even kindle the remotest spark of friendship. There is too much of the ardency portrayed characteristic of deep seated egotism. The spirit of the illogical motto "Every man for himself, God for us all" permeates our entire systems and renders even our public actions disservicable. Assistance from the influential and wealthy—no matter how urgent and deserving the demand—is not to be expected and had to obtain; if rendered it is often prompted by base motives, very seldom from philanthropy. Man does not feel for man

"That natural Bond
Of brotherhood is severed as the flax,
That falls asunder at the touch of fire."

Disagreement and feuds between native officials, and even amongst the small number at Bonthe, a number just lately, enough for the incipient practice of the spirit of unanimity, are palpable.

The causes are evident, and I here subjoin a few. 1. A selfish contrivance to rise on the ruins of others. 2 A malicious contribution towards the assurance of other's fall. 3. An ambitious desire to be thought superior in the exercise of manly virtues, and therefore idly and falsely representing others in a more odious vicious light. What an egregious error! instances are not wanting to illustrate the fallacy of this course for how soon does the tide of fortune, which in its flow, brings them to their untenable positions, which have been obtained at the expensive sacrifice of their companions, ebbs and leads them away to an oblivion of long duration, despicable as it is permanent.

It is gratifying however, to think that things are begining to mend and circumstances are transpiring that point to the fact that our moral tone is undergoing a gradual but perceptible development indicative of this spirit of unanimity. The very inveterate tribal distinction which used to be a formidable barrier in the way of unity, is dying a natural death, and natives of various grades are credibility endeavouring to shed their racial prejudice and recognise in each other that sympathetic connection of the friendly attitude of [illegible] May their kindred native [illegible] the spirit of the age, and labour to adopt such methods as are, calculated to impart at least to aid in the growth of this spirit of "philanthropy."

I am, yours truly,
Veritas.

Administration of Justice.

Sherbro

Dear Mr. Editor—It is a long time since I have written for your paper. The reason is, that I have been trying to gather some spicy articles that would interest your readers; However I have before me many such articles all of which are of vital importance, but the most important of all is the one which bears the above heading which I trust will be read with interest.

That government or ruler who administers justice impartially to its subjects without any special regard to race, or position in the most respected and honored, and it gives an opportunity to the governed to be more loyal toward their Chief. You will I am sure be glad to learn that there is at present a systematic form of administering justice in the Police Court and also in the Court of Requests by the present Acting Commandant S. M. Bennett Esq.

At present, suitors are satisfied with the decision or judgment given in cases taken before him whether the decision or judgment is for or against them, for he has often taken the trouble to listen to the evidences given on behalf or against prisoners or defendant.

He has also adopted the system of taking the declaration of a defendant (which system was not in force here) and the pernicious habits that prevails here of persons taking false oaths in Court is taking another turn, as the Commandant never fails to warm witnesses in the Box that there is such a law as Perjury against persons who swear falsely, and will be punished with imprisonment, this is especially the case with the natives who do not know the sacredness of the oaths they take in Court.

The impartial decision given in the case of Hogan vs. Parson for larceny, which resulted in the acquital of the latter, and also of Venn vs. Hogan for Debt and which also resulted in a judgment for the plaintiff, and several other instances, are sufficient proof of the impartiality of the Commandant regardless of race distinction etc.—Further still, he is to be seen in the Court House as late as 9 p. m. with lighted lamps dispensing justice equally to all, concerned with out being tired.

Such characteristics in the worthy energetic and indefatigable Commandant is highly commended by the general public. The fact of this officer not being a novice in the Government Service but has served for a considerable period in almost every department, and is thoroughly acquainted with native habits and customs, renders him fit for the post he holds as Acting Commandant.

I shall write you more on his other efficient qualities in other department in this place. Meanwhile—

I am,
Yours Mr. Editor,
Justitia.

Bonthe July. 27 90

Visit To Bompehtooke.

10 Years Ago.

In the issue of the Dawn for June 15th I wrote of my visit to Bompehtooke eighteen years ago, giving an account in that article of the visit up to Saturday afternoon and as that seemed of interest I now proceed with the narrative.

On Saturday evening the writer with a quartette Choir held a Service in which song or singing was an important part, and it seemed that the Gospel song had as potent effect upon a well filled house, as that preached for every one listened in rapt silence while the beautiful notes of song rolled forth from the four trained voices, as a few others tried to and did seem to harmonize most beautifully, especially in spirit and herein lay the sequel of the power that held that heathen audience spell-bound in the presence of the master who was evidently there in our midst to bless to all his word by a feeble servant and a little group of four singers. The Service opened with Songs, followed by a brief extempore Prayer, the master came and manifested his gracious presence by his spirit in convincing many of their sins through short Sermon of the writer; after which a song followed and benediction, but many anxious enquirers remained to ask after the way of life of which, most of them, had heard for the first time. It was a late hour before those enquirers could be prevailed with to leave the place. Night past and sabbath morning came, but oh! how early the people came, to enquire again of the way of life eager to hear the Word again, it was sweet to them, and although it reproved them of Sin, which was anguish to the Soul, yet it told of a Savior to heal and save. Morning Service consisted of prayer conference and praise, and was indeed a precious season, I can never forget the calm of my own soul on that glorious initiatory sabbath of Gospel Work, in the Vicinity of Bompehtooke.

It was in the month of Aug. (25th 1872) but no rain fell that Sabbath and at 10 a. m., we,—the writer an interpreter and three School boys,—left Kooloonge for Bompehtooke with a great many people from Kooloonge and neighboring villages we passed other places and our train swelled until on reaching N'Charunge N'Charunge we had a great gathering to which I preached at 11 a. m. with much liberty, and from the Barra we proceeded to Chief Bah Mattie's house whither a long train of people followed and we had a short service with the infirm old Chieftain who rejoiced for the day the Gospel had even come to him a poor old lame man. And truly the Lord had sought and found his long lost sheep; for as many now know Bah Mattie became christian and continued in the faith until he died. Of the further proceedings of that Sabbath I may only relate that I returned to Kooloonge in the afternoon but went back again to Bompehtooke in the evening and held an interesting Service with an overflowing audience, in the evening returning again to Kooloonge to sleep and that wherever we went crowds of eager listeners followed us and the word seemed blessed to every soul. More Again. E.

To be Continued

NEWS ITEMS.

16—s s "Munroe" from Freetown consigned to Fisher & Randall.

17—s s "Susu" from Freetown with mail and the following passengers J. E. Macfoy W. H. Davis (ex police constable) and Master Parkinson.

19—s s "Susu" for Freetown with mails and passengers Master Parkinson and a number of police constables.

23—s s Formoso from Freetown with mails and the following passengers Rev. Cookson Taylor, Mrs. Charlotte Coker, and several others.

25—s s Formoso for Freetown with mails and Mr Randolph Thompson who is leaving for England per steamer via Freetown.

—The inquest which was adjourned the 25th of June last came to a close on the 16th inst. The jurors brought a verdict that the deceased whose name is unknown came to his death by drowning in the river.

—An inquest was held on the body of a man who was drowned at Bonthe on monday the 21st inst.

The public market which was in a dilapidated condition is in rebuilding.

The bridge to Beah St Roy Farkie which was impassible some time ago has been thoroughly repaired under the direct supervision of Constant Bennett.

Mr J. A. Pratt of the Fourah Bay College was a passenger for Freetown per s s Formoso which left here on the 25th inst.

The study of Phonography or short hand writing has been engaging the attention of some of our young men here of late the originators being Messrs N. & R. May, and we hope they will continue.

The Death,—of Rev. J. W. Timbo from the Coast.

CORRESPONDENCE.

African Idols

From Many years of observation reading and careful study of the religious systems, if such they may be called, of this part of the West Coast of Africa; I am pursuaded that Images as Idols are comparitively few; among the people of these parts; it is true quite a number of resemblances, have been secured by persons in quest of such things and palmed off on the curiousity, or credulity of Europeans and others for real Idols, but the truth appears to be, that the pagan natives are somewhat like their christian compeers, they manufacture that which will sell, or is in demand consequently many an Idol seeker has been furnished with rather an article of Trade than an object of worship; while the very few real Image Idols have rarely been parted with, except in possibly a few instances where persons have been converted and given up their Images. I have met with but few consecrated Images, and so far as I have had reliable reports, others have not been more fortunate than myself.

Three or four weeks ago a friend sent me what I believe, to be a real Image Idol stolen by him or some one else, from some very degraded devotee of Idolatry. Many have declared it to be the most beastly thing of the kind that they ever saw. Its form is that of a man seated on a pedestal, with only stubs of legs, the arms have been broken off but his body and head are perfect, except a few bruises; evidently, it is not the work of the present, or even immediate past age, and may be possibly a thousand years old, I am now of the opinion, of many others, who have seen it that it is made of stone instead of clay, as I had at first supposed. It is blacked over, and has evidently been annointed with oil, and most likely very often. The form is nude to a shameful degree. I at first thought it one of the ordinary clay Images frequently met with in the Gbargroo Country, only that it had been used by some one as an Idol of worship, but I am now persuaded that it is something quite different from anything I have ever met with, and in itself not only a Curio, but an object of interesting study Illustrating most strikingly the Darkness of this land and the gross darkness of the people. J. A. E.

Dear Mr. Editor,—The thought has often occured to me that Protestantism testily acknowledges 'penance' though when the question is discussed there is always a direct denial of its teaching.

Having the priviledge of reading two letters in your contemporaries, the 'Artisan' by 'Modestu' and the 'Weekly New' by 'Sabbaticus'

I came to the conclusion that either 'penance' is indirectly encouraged in our churches (Protestant) or there is that want of feeling and sympathy on the part of those who alter the spirit letter and intention of the Liturgy with regard to our Sunday Morning Service

As each Protestant church committee is composed (for this is our belief) of right thinking and clear-sighted men, the clergy and the laity, they do not intend an infraction of the rules of the Liturgy, it is then either a long standing oversight or 'Penance' is positively meant.

I remember His Lordship the Bishop once addressing the congregation of St. Georges' Cathedral on the subject of devotion in church amongst other things remarked that the use of the fan is quite an established principle in church which he considers a levity. The choristers, were admonished to show the example by discontinuing the fan Practice.

Ministers complain of the listlessness and inattention in church just after the preliminaries are gone through when Morpheus gives soothing breezes to the congregation and lassitude and sleepliness pervade. These faults are more noticed in the 'Noon-day' Service at 11 to 12 30. when the air in the church is quite charged with carbonic acid gass without a sufficient oxygen gass which is condusive to life.

Now church goers must have to break off the luxurious use of the fan, must have to bear patiently the fumes of a noxious gas despite the density of the atmospheric pressure on the nasal organ and ultimately the brain producing its toxic effect, and to worship God with all decorum and cheerfulness of spirit.

Does this not put us in mind of the days when sinners were to walk bare-footed on spikers with sharp points up, as expiation for their sins! In the churches here, I have seen people leaving the service either after the Confession and Absolution or at most after the Prayers, not waiting for the sermon. They could remain no longer. Unproductive labor is much to be avoided in the animal economy.

A friend once remarked that barring other reasons, if nothing would make me a member of the Church of Rome, it is the proper hour of their morning service when I could worship without Physical Pain.

With regards to the horrid singing and lethargy in church, I leave to the experience of the sufferers, but can only ask that the Committees of our Protestant Churches proceed to remedy the evil of the present system by changing the hour for morning service.—It will be a pity should they refuse to budge an inch in this direction till the irresistible force of public opinion makes it unentable for we can be no longer hoodwinked by a taoit acknowledgement of Penance in our Churches.

Yours truly,
SERVIOUS.

July 14, 90.

The Judgement Day.

Mr Editor,—Many years ago in a far distant land from this, when but a little boy I was taught to believe the Bible to be the best of all books, and possibly its value was enhanced to me by the teachings of a pious family circle where the father and mother united their efforts to impress the doctrines of that blessed Book, in fact they had but few others; and altho' my father used to preach yet he prezed himself chiefly from the Bible, and for pastime he read from that Book or sung Hymns and spiritual Songs that were filled with the doctrines of the Bible. But of all that I used to hear read from the Bible or sung in the Songs and Hymns nothing so impressed me as the Day of Judgement, the thoughts of such a day would always make em to think deeply of the future and of what I ought to do to escape the punishments of the wicked; of my Sins I had no doubt, and that I should be judged I was fully certain, then I feared and dreaded the banishment from God and heaven. These thoughts, the fear of death and Judgement, sent me early to my own Knees, that if haply I, in some way, might escape punishment at the great Judgement Day; when, according to my early teaching and belief, I expected to give an account of actions in this life. Years have flown and I am yet living in anticipation of that notable Day when the Lord Christ shall return again to earth "with Ten thousand of his saints to execute judgement upon all, and to convince all that are ungodly among them of all their ungodly deeds which they have ungodly committed, and their hard speeches which ungodly sinners have spoken against him"

But I often wonder if every professed Christian, even thinks of that day and considers where he is likely to stand, whether on the right or left hand of the judgement seat is that great day Reader have you a Bible, and have you read it? Do you believe it? If so what think of you Judgement?

Yours truly—J. ALBERT.

Becoming Like Christ.

A beautiful statue stands in the market-place. It is that of a Greek slave-girl, but she is well dressed, tidy and handsome. A dirty, forlorn, ragged slave-girl passes by. She sees the statue, stops and gazes at it in rapt admiration. She goes home, washes her face and combs her hair. Another day she steps, in passing to look at the statue. The next day her tattered clothes are washed and mended. Each day she stops to look at the statue and each next day she has imitated some of its beauties, until the dirty, ragged slave becomes completely transformed; she becomes another girl. This is the way Christ teaches. He does not hurl his own individuality upon others; he simply lives and works and loves before men, not to be seen of them, but to inspire them to holy emulation.—Sel.

Thanks be to God, there is something beyound the philosophy of the men who see no providence, know no Savior, and trust no God. Where Philosophy sits down baffled, Faith gets up and goes to work; and when man is helpless, God is a present help in every time of need.—Sel.

THE
Early Dawn
PRINTING OFFICE
PLAIN ARTISTIC AND FANCY JOB WORK
EXECUTED AT
SHORT NOTICE
ENQUIRE OF
R. G. Caulker.
PRINTER

THE EARLY DAWN.

"The Morning Light Is Breaking, The Darkness Disappears"

VOL. VII. BONTHE, SHERBRO, WEST AFRICA, AUGUST 16, 1890. No. 13

The "Early Dawn."

Published, Semi Monthly at Bonthe, Sherbro. Under the Auspices of the Board of Missions of the United Brethren in Christ.

Rev. J. A. Evans, Editor and Publisher
Bonthe, Sherbro, West Africa.

AGENTS.

United States.—Revs B. F. Booth and Wm. Ecker, Dayton O. Rev. I. K. Statler, Cedar Rapids, Iowa. Rev. Wm J. Davis, Basil, Ohio. Rev. J. T. Demter, Chicago, Ill. Rev. J. L. Buckley, Marion, O. Rev J. S. Weaver, Elk hart Ind. Rev. R. P. Burton, Penn Ind. D. K. Fisher, Willoughby, O. Rev. H. Ellwell, Dayton, Washington. Rev. M. J. Stoner, Manheim Pa., Master Charlie Rhoes Manchester, Ind. Rev. G. W. Arnold, Eldorado, Ohio.
West Africa.—J. A. Richards, River Gambia. Rev. J. R. Frederick and Mr. E. A. Lewis, Freetown, Sierra Leone. Rev. James Deputy, Marshall Liberia. Mr. Moses Boyle, Liberia.

TERMS.

One Year by mail,	£0	6	0
Delivered in Bonthe,	0	5	0
Half yearly by mail,	0	3	0
Ditto, delivered in Bonthe,	0	2	6

Possible Clue To Sudden Deaths.

It has been asserted by some Medical Men that the use of Narcotics and Stimulants are injurious to the human system and that they tend to debilitate rather than Invigorate the Physical organization. Not that the first applications are not, seemingly, helpful, but that afterward there is a reaction so that the subject is weaker after the power, or strength of the Stimulant has been exhausted than he was before taking it. By this I mean that the organization is weaker attempting for the time the person may have recuperated in the general way of speaking—may have temporarily gained in strength—yet it the organs of the body could be examined close enough it would be found that they had lost by the action of the stimulant, and that the same quantity of the same stimulant will not again produce the same effect, and although the difference for a while or several times may be imperceptible, yet it exists and the work of debilitation continues. The stronger the stimulant or the more frequent the use the more rapid will be the decay. From this then, may we not get a clue to the cause of the sudden deaths that often occur among us, especially when we consider what a large percentage of the people are in the habit of using alcoholic stimulants,—some as a beverage and others as medicine—Do these not eat away the foundations of life gradually until a sudden collapse is the final result. Miss Gracecandeke in her able lecture on the "Effects of Narcotics and Stimulants on the human system—has expressed very satisfactorily the action of alcohol on the heart in producing overwork to that organ, with which I feel so many persons—other like appetently well—have more or less trouble, which I am now convinced is the overworking of the heart, which has been principled by drink in most cases, but I would suppose that a person must be a drunkard, to incur this penalty, in the use of alcohol, for he need not be, moderate drinking will produce the effects refered to. But let every consumer of alcoholic stimulants be assured that he is gradually, but surely injuring his nervous system and that the tendency is to the wreck of body and mind, and in many cases to sudden colapse, truly this may not always be observable, as in many cases some other cause may be appermost as the patient may be brought down with fever to his bed, but might recover if the constitution had not been undermined. Such as may often be observed fail to receive the the proper benefit of remedies used for fever and although at times get better, but afterward suddenly die, of course we say from fever because they are known to have fever but the real cause of collapse is doubtless due to something else, which I am strongly persuaded to believe is the use of stimulants.—J. A. E

Let us Aim.

In my first article I have tried to show what our aim should be; and how other people and natives are trying to aim at better ways. Why should we not try then and aim like other civilized nations? We have the same chance, same opportunity, same mind No, I am sorry to say here that it is in the blood the African blood! How often have I heard with horror people to say that they are up to all the signs of the times which sounds in my ear as if an awful cyclone was passing from north to south; and which I never like to hear.

What I want my readers to do is to practice what they preach i. e. practice what you appear to be on the public streets, foreigners are watching us, I was quite surprised (and ashamed) to hear from a European one day, that he only came out to make money in Africa do not care for nobody Africans, for you cannot make anything out of them' they dress like gentlemen' says he but devils at home.'

Now my dear reader what can we say to that, is it not true? are we not devils at home? It is the candid opinion of a European. Hence I am led to say here, that we should practice what we appear to be, we are not aiming for high or civilization, instead of that we are aiming for the knowledge of the heathen superstitions, which are practiced by the educated class as well as the uneducated.

I have of en heard with disdain how preachers of the Holy Christ resort to these means so as to be more eloquent and famous preachers than others, only a few days ago I heard of a preacher who was tricked by his interior because he was a well educated and fine preacher, he was not able to say a word to his congregation, because there was medicine buried some where in the church. It speaks bad for us who profess to be such civilized people.

Civilized people are those who are civil, gentle, polite, calm in language as well as in character, will not resort to any fetish practice, or anything that is unbecoming to gentleman or lady. will not put on their Sunday gentle Meeting clothes to show off (for it is correct nic among Africans) will not go about the streets to beg and say, best of all know not what superstition is and will not resort thereto.—R. G. Caulker.

Mandoo Town
June 28th 1890

Rev. J. Evans,

Dear Sir,—To give that portion of your readers who take an interest in mission work an idea of the success the good work has met with in the District of Mandoe. I beg that the following may find a place in your columns.

Leaving Bonthe on the 18th instant we arrived at Bompehtooke on the 21st where we spent but a short time. With Mr. Domingo as my guide, I went to know for the first time the burial place of my beloved mother who about 20 years a go departed this life. At 2 p. m. the same day we left Bompehtooke arriving at Mandoe at 6 p. m. It being Sunday no sooner had I put my foot into my father the Chief's house, than he sent to tell the school teacher of that place Mr. Thompson that I had come, who in less than fifteen minutes I saw coming, followed by a number of children with his bible in his hand. By this time the people of the town had assembled in the Chiefs residence for meeting. That evening Mr. Thompson spoke to a gathering of not less than fifty.

The Sunday following, I accompanied Mr. Thompson on an Itinerating tour visiting in all about twenty-nine villages in each of which I interpreted for Mr Thompson while he preached. We left about 8 p. m. for home arriving at 6 p. m. At 7 o'clock the same evening the people gathered for meeting; and Mr. Thompson asked me to speak to them.

Of course though fully conscious of my inability to do much in this line, yet I consented and spoke to them on the subject of "Trusting our Heavenly Father," telling them in conclusion to ask God to teach them to pray. I then asked what would be their feelings should the Revs. Gomer, and Evans, close their station giving them no more a school master to preach to them. Their answer was they would not like to see that part of the work closed, as they cannot part with such a good and Blessed work.

I hope you all will pray for that part of the Vineyard, so that the works of the the master may take hold forever amen.

And that God may keep them going on as they are trying to do.

Thanking you for space occupied.

Yours Truly J. Kendoh

Mohammedanism In Africa

In a former paper on this subject, I have pointed out that the most probable reason, of the superior appearance, of many Mohammedans, is due to racial or tribal superiority rather than religious culture and that in this respect Mohammedanism has had the advantage of Christianity, has had so far, better Material to work upon—for the Mohammedan Missionaries have advanced at an earlier day farther interior, and have found as I have before stated, less to hinder their progress, not so much from their lack of prejudice as from the similarity of their faith and especially practice, to that of the various forms of Paganism, with which it came in contact; it coerced fewer heathen customs and hence it met less opposition, and naturally gained adherents more readily by pursuation. But more than this it must be admitted from both the teaching of the Koran and the practice of Mohammedans that they use other than persuasive measures to bring men and women under the influence of their faith.

If then the sword, is not the more suitable means of converting and civilizing Africans, then certainly Mohammedans are not the most suitable for the attainment of religious advancement even among the sons of Ham. But possibly our Philosophic friends, and admirers, of the majestic forms, flowing robes, and manly bearing of a few peaceful followers of the Prophet of Mecca on the borders of our Christian Civilization; have never thought of the coercive proclivities of these Saints of the Orient. Nor have these ever considered the cause of the alarm given to the Christian world, but a few years ago by the success of the Madi, or later on and nearer, by the feelings aroused by the approach of Sammodoo to these shores. Of course some will say what harm came of either to Africans? For your answer I only refer you to the thousands that perished along the track of the latter.

If Human slavery, as I certainly believe it to be, is a Relic of the barbarism of past ages, and in itself a calamity to the race, then certainly Mohammedanism cannot be the most suitable religion for the African, because it upholds the most cruel form slavery known in Africa, such a religion can never build up our social status to that height attainable by the Pacific doctrines of the Lord Jesus or the influence of that civilization, which is the result of that Peaceful Religion, taught from the New Testament, a religion that has toned down the savage natures of the Islanders of the South-sea, and elvated the natures of the lowest or basest tribes of men, not merely physically, but spiritually, which is the hardest to accomplish.

See page 4.

The Early Dawn

BONTHE, AUGUST 16, 1890.

REV. J. A. BYARD, — EDITOR

[SUPPORTS IT.]

Perseverance is that which will at length secure success in almost any laudable undertaking, and without it very little may be accomplished in anything.

The Demon of the Age.—Is evidently more loth in Jesus Christ, for he beyond a doubt religious and commercial success, are to-day that the one cannot scarcely succeed without the other.

To The Interior.—Seems now to be the watchword of every enterprising mission, and missionary and we think too it is time for some advance to be made in that direction. But it will require money and men to make that advance; for it is quite evident that the Work of the coast line is a burden upon the present Missions.

Why Not? Increase the Tariff or Duty on spirits and make it help to fill the Government Chest. We have to pay more now on the useful articles of life and why not make the useless things pay the cash? We say double the Tax on spirits, or else reason on Sugar, Tea, and Clothing surely our Governor and Council do not wish to see the Community drunken and naked.

The Bompeh Mission—is a laudable enterprise of Womans Missionary Association, of the United States. Rotofunk Station at the town Rotofunk on the North Branch of the Bompeh river and at the head of canoe Navigation is the Headquarters of the Mission. Rev. Richard Nelson is the Superintendent of the work assisted by Rev. W. Sandford Sage, and others. Of late years several schools has been established in the town and many persons are coming to Christ. The Presbyterian work too is being taken by the Ladies of Mission, an inner head of W. C. T. U. and also an article on Bompeh mission work by Rev. W. S. Sage.

Water Dull Again.—Every now and again complaints of a rather dull season for Trade, come unbidden to our ears, and while we have been of the opinion that this distress would wear away in the advance of the season we have although been compelled to admit that Trade is not dull it is very slow in coming around which amounts to nearly the same thing, for the present, although the former, may be better as we have every reason to believe it will be. And very much better it our Merchants will just see with us and abandon the spirits. As it is the prospect is, that the Trade will become better as soon as the people in country can turn their attention fully to gathering and preparing produce for the Market.

Sunday Morning Prayer.—In our last we spoke on the subject of morning prayer, but some one seems not yet satisfied, and possibly we should say a word in reference particularly to sub both morning prayer, as we believe the unpardonable desecration of the sabbath by many among us to be largely due to the fact that our Christians do not attend to their prayers, as they should do. And while we believe that it is more profitable to hold class and conference meetings on sunday mornings than merely what is known as morning prayer: yet we are of the opinion that to not attend either class or morning prayers or even prayer in time, which to say the least of it is not right and is sin and a shame to professing Christians.

The Rum Question.—is still instrumental against the sale of Spirits and the Dealers have been compelled to Stopper the business in the Town, but doing on the Sly in the Parlies, but the leading Gentlemen are determined to put a stop to it.

Rotofunk—Bompeh mission reports a great religious revival, thirty nine conversions. Another meeting also to be held at Potti Station.

Turnarounds.—who this as well as the subject of religion some of our readers find fault, no say that there is too much of it, and that they do not believe in temperance and say, and a bit more on the score of their unbelief etc., very well agreed that you do not believe it is then our business to try to convince you of your unbelief by an earnest and consistent attempt to live out that in word and in conduct a writing on those subjects. We believe and therefore have spoken, that the most of our readers and all in this Quad are persons that do believe in Temperance and Total Abstinence and as a proof of it have what others have to say about it, you refer to Sierra Leone Weekly News of the 26th inst. and you will find the following. In the district, or to be more correct, the residents of Bandasumah Station, were called upon to do service on the remains of the Queen of that Town, late Nyah Kai, on sunday the 22nd June last. It is said that she had an attack of Diarrhoea on the night of the 21st, early next morning she was taken ill and in her last moments, at death, drank a bottle of Gin, which unfortunately appeared on the scene and celebrated Dr. Accordingly the Queen expired. We quote from the same subject on the pernicious influence and poison of gin and rum, from an article copied by the Liverpool Examiner The Sierra Leone Times, on the Christian Work which is as follows "The Black book of Sierra Leone records as matter of history, scenes in which native Chiefs were plunged by Drinks of gin and the goddess of rum. Mr Colonel Crawford, in writing to Governor Hay, states that he has just made a present to leading natives of Fantown, consisting, for which he expects official thanks. If Mr Colonel Crawford presented the assembled chiefs with a dozen bottles of rum and we presume that even Governor Hay would condemned. And yet, when we look around the other drinks, the drunkenness, the debauchery, the waste of money among the natives by the use of liquor imported to their regions, we really cannot see that there is very much difference between gin and poison. The last is all the more potent, as being the statements of no less a personage than Lord Wolsely expressed he has at Church ceremonial, as we understand it, and will we dare to question his judgement on the matter? Certainly no one when they consider his extensive knowledge of the maddrunkeness the utter demoralisation the wasting disease spread among the natives by the use of liquor imported to these regions. But Merchants seem to have the wrong idea of your good intentions in the advocacy of temperance. They seem to feel that we are aiming to damage their business prospects, but this is not true, we only want to point out to them the deadly factor to their business, that is rapidly paralysing their prospects, Ruining the Morals of the Community, destroying the Churches, and sending the souls of men to eternal destruction.

W. C. T. U.

Since my last report we have had two excellent meetings of the Loyal Temperance Legion, and one meeting of the W. C. T. U.

At the last meeting of the Union Mrs. West began a series of papers on "Health and Heredity."

The first paper has aroused comment and we are hoping for good results from these papers.

Our attendance at these meetings is increasing. At first there were few in attendance except mission people. At our last meeting the house was almost full.

Our L. T. L. Meetings are a great success, each be open out a full house. At the meeting of the 6th we had a "Sister's Song" we rendered by Miss Koster. It was an object lesson, pieces of the pupils could read.

In our meeting of August 2nd three little boys sang "We are Coaling, gave a declaration of L. T. L. principles. Three little girls sang a Hymn composed by one to say. "No." Tax system of the little girls about six years of age, and the other ten in the meeting seven months the other six. The visit did not cost a penny. Our Queen of England when she wants "Send F. Beer to give us" The beer in a bottle in England and France to the delight and we hope the edification of the audience.

The Chief was so pleased with the exercises that he made a speech. He said on up the use of rum and tobacco gave the latter as a present to the Queen of that Town, Lady Nyah Kai. He said, it will be only right to make him a member of our Legion. We have just received over 30 members and are ready to begin study in earnest.

E. GOODSAVAGE.

Rotofunk W. Africa.

A Crusade

The next time we wish to mention meeting place and crowd by the words "Rum Hall." When he returned, in attempting our speech which began his text day after holiday on the rum and at once the meeting broke up, was blessedly quiet.

Frances Williams.

Our Work At Bompeh

For the past sixteen months our work at Bompeh has been under the care of Mrs. Juliana Thompson whose labors have been greatly owned and blest of the Lord. When she first took charge of this station only a few people attended the Sunday Services and not a dozen children could be found in the school. At present the little chapel is scarcely able to contain the many who come to hear the "God Word." And the school has steadily increased until there are now more than forty regular scholars all of whom are fed and clothed by their own people. But I want to tell you something of the Special Services which we have held there during the past two weeks.

While we were having revival services at Rotofunk last month Mrs. Thompson was with us a part of the time. On her return to Bompeh she found the people anxiously waiting to hear from her something about the meetings. After she had related all to them, they said "We want such a meeting at Bompeh," and she began to interest and prepare them for the special services. Then I went down and we began holding services each morning and evening which continued thirteen days. From the very first service the Spirit of the Lord was manifest in wonderful power. Bro. West was with us on the third day of the meeting. The same evening we gave the first invitation to the people to come to the alter for prayer and in a few minutes more than a score of anxious sin burdened men, women and children were kneeling at the alter pleading for mercy. Bro. West and I did all we could to direct them to Jesus, but what could we do among so many. The next day we sent back to Rotofunk for more help and in response Miss Groendyke, Mrs Williams, and two of our best interpreters come to our assistance. Later in the week Mr. J. B. W. Johnson and his interpreter and Mrs. West came. The Services were continued in the Chapel as usual and a noon day prayer meetings many names were presented for special prayer and there were some speedy and really remarkable answers to prayer.

The Chief GBanah Will Caulker sent out official messengers to call in the big people, especially the members of the Caulker family to hold a council to decide what to do with this God palaver for it was "too strong." In response to his call his people came together on Thursday, the 17th they gathered about noon just at the time of our prayer service. And while we prayed they were in secret council. About three hours later we were called to go to the council room to hear the result. After all was quiet the Chief took up the matter and presented it to the people and the word was turn to me. In reply I told them that God had now sent us as his messengers and the Gospel was now within reach would they now within reach would they receive it as individuals? The reply was that the Chief said that they would receive it and that anyone who would to leave his charms and country fashion could join us. That same evening the Chief braved at the alter denouncing his former applications and declaring that he henceforth he would [illegible] a christian. [illegible] several of his [illegible]. One was [illegible] town and [illegible] of the Purse [illegible] harder case and more difficult to reach was [illegible] was formally the [illegible] house of the [illegible] more than [illegible] was the door [illegible] rightly make fine [illegible] graves and [illegible] assurances which were [illegible] to the dead. We [illegible] a special subject of prayer and he persons convicted of [illegible] and [illegible] all and came to Jesus. The Chief and the [illegible] and the Chief [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

The Early Dawn

SOUTH, AUGUST 16, 1890.

REV. J. A. BYARD, - EDITOR

[EDITORIAL.]

Perseverance in that which will at length secure success in almost any laudable undertaking, and without it very little may be accomplished in anything.

The Demand of the Age.—Is evidently more faith in Jesus the Christ, for he—yond a doubt religious and commercial success, are so related that the one can scarcely succeed without the other.

To The Interior.—Seems now to be the watchword of every enterprising mission, and missionary and we think too it is time for some advance to be made in that direction. But it will require money and men to make that advance; for it is quite evident that the Work of the coast line is a burden upon the present Missions.

Why Not? Increase the Tariff or Duty on spirits and make it help to fill the Government Chest. We have to pay more now on the useful articles of life and why not make the useless things do the same? We say double the Tax on spirits, or else increase our Sugar, Tea, and Clothing surely our Governor and Council do not wish to see the Community drunken and naked.

The Bompeh Mission—Is a laudible enterprise of Womans Missionary Association, of the United States. Rotofunk Station at the town Rotofunk on the North Branch of the Bompeh river and at the head of canoe Navigation is the Head-quarters of the Mission. Rev. Richard N. West is the Superintendent of the work assisted by Rev W. Sanford Sage, and others. Of late much revival interest has been manifested in the work and many persons been converted to Christ. The European work too is being pushed by the Ladies of the Mission, see under head of W. C. T. U. and also an article on Bompeh Mission work by Rev. W. S. Sage.

Trade Dull Again.—Every now and again complaints of a rather dull season for Trade, come unbidden to our ears, and while we have been of the opinion that this distress would wear away with the advance of the season we have at length been compelled to admit that if Trade is not dull it is very slow in coming around which amounts to nearly the same thing, for the present, although the future, may be better as we have every reason to believe it will be. And every month better if our Merchants will just see with us and abandon the spirits. As it is the prospect is, that the Trade will be some better as soon as the people in country can turn their attention fully to gathering and preparing produce for the Market.

Sunday Morning Prayer.—In our last we spoke on the subject of morning prayer, but same one seems not yet satisfied, and possibly we should say a word in reference particularly to sab both morning prayer; as we believe the unpardonable desecration of the sabbath by many among us to be largely due to the fact that our Christians do no attend to their prayers, as they should do. And while we believe that it is more profitable to hold class and conference meetings on sunday mornings than merely what is known as morning prayer: yet we are of the opinion that [illegible] do not attend either class or morning prayers or even pray at home; who[illegible] say the least of it is not right and is sin and a shame to professing Christians.

The Remisso Protest.—is still maintained against the sale of Spirits and the Dealers have been compelled to Support the business in the Town, but doing on the Sly in the Farkies, but the leading headmen are determined to put a stop to it.

Rotofunk—Bompeh mission reports a great religious revival, thirty nine conversions. Another meeting also to be held at Palli Station.

Temperance;—with this as well as the subject of religion some of our readers find fault, saying that there is too much of it, and that they do not believe in temperance any way, and a lot more on the score of their unbelief etc, very well agreed, that you do not believe it is then our business to try to convince you of your unbelief by an earnest and constant statement of facts and that is our aim in continuing writing on those subjects. We believe and therefore have spoken, that the most effective spirit to sell on this Coast are poison to the people and that it does them great injury and as a proof of this hear what others have to say about it, just refer to Sylvani Jottings in the columns of our esteemed contemporary, the "Weekly News" of Sierra Leone dated July 26th where you will find the following. "The District, or to be more correct, the residents of Bandasmah Station, were called upon to do service on the remains of the Queen of that Town, lady Nyaboh, on Monday the 23d June last. It is said that she had an attack of Diarrhœa on the night of the 21st, early next morning (Sunday) she was up and in her feeble state of health, drank a bottle of, trade gin, which undoubtedly aggravated her pains and accelerated Death. About 2 p. m. she expired.. We quote further on the same subject of the pernicious influence and poison of gin and rum; from an article copied by another esteemed exchange The Sierra Leone Times, from the The Christian World which is as follows "The Black Gold of Sierra Leone" recounts as matter of course several cases in which native Chiefs were plunged by Dozens of gin and demijohns of rum. Mr Copland Crawford, in writing to Governor Hay, states that he has just made a present to leading natives of fourteen cases of gin, for which he requests official sanction. If Mr. Copland Crawford had presented the assembled Chiefs with a dozen bottles of prussic acid we presume that every Governor Hay would have demurred. And yet when we hear [illegible] the most drunk-ness, the most demoralising, the wasting disease spread among the natives by the vile sort of liquor imported to these regions, we really cannot see that there is very much difference between gin and poison. This last is all the more potent, as being the statements of no less a personage than Lord Wolsely, expressed by him at Church ceremonial, as we understand it, and will any dare to question his judgement on the matter? Certainly no one when they consider his extensive knowledge of the mal-drunkenness the utter demoralisation, the wasting disease spread among the natives by the vile sort of liquor imported to these regions. But Merchants seem to have the wrong idea of our good Intendens in the advocacy of temperance. They seem to feel that we are aiming to damage their business prospects, but this is not true, we only want to point out to them the deadly factor in their business, that is rapidly paralizing their prospects, Ruining the Morals of the Community, destroying the Churches, and sending the souls of men to eternal destruction.

W. C. T. U.

Since my last report we have had two excellent meetings of the Loyal Temperance Legion, and one meeting of the W. C. T. U.

At the last meeting of the Union Mrs. West began a series of papers pu "Health and Heredity."

The first paper has aroused comment and we are hoping for good results from these papers.

Our attendance at these meetings is increasing. At first there were few in attendance except mission people At our last meeting the house was almost full.

Our L. T. L. Meetings are a great success, each brought out a full house. At the meeting of July 6th we had a ch[illegible]racter song well rendered by Geo Koister. It was an object lesson, while all the people could read.

In our meeting of August 3rd three little boys sang "We are Coming, giving a declaration of L. T. L. principles. Three little girls sang 2. Have courage my boy to say, No. No. The chorus of two little girls about six years of age, [illegible] in the mission seventh months the other six. The last did not know one word of English when she came. Daniel F. Reeder gave us "The man in a bottle" in English and Timne to the delight and we hope the edification of the audience

The Chief was so pleased with the exercises that he made a speech. He has given up the use of rum and tobacco but gives the latter as a present to the people. When he decides to give up the last named, it will be our delight to make him a member of our Legion. We have just received our literature and are ready to begin study in earnest.

E. Groenendyke.

Rotofunk W. Africa.

A Crusade.

Reference has been made in your columns to a crusade at Bglenbuk.

It may be that some of your readers would be interested in hearing some of the particulars of this to them very novel occurrence. Mr. Coker, a native, came to our town to live. He attended church service with his family, and had been quite regular in attending during the time he lived here. He did not drink, but was the liquid seller in his neighbourhood. As he was a regular member of our Sunday School I became interested in [illegible] that time with the [illegible] of the rum traffic. At one of these visits, when Heb. 2 15 was quoted to him that [illegible] by fear of death, that parable was explained to him, and the opportunity [illegible] was given him. He acknowledged he was convinced that he should not sell the poison anymore. But he did not see how he could quit at once. He thought he could keep some on hand to give to persons with whom he had business relations. Then he thought he could not afford to throw away what for which he had paid money. But all these objections and others were removed by God's Word and the Holy Spirit. He sent for man to carry the rum from the house, and threw it away. It took a little time to convince the man that Mr Coker was in earnest. When they had placed the demijohns and gin cases on the heads we started toward the wharf, and soon the poison liquid was running down the river bank, while men and women who had gathered around, begged piteously for "just one bottle." When they began gathering the bottles from the river bank, even boys were [illegible] I considered a policeman that he was to see that every bottle was emptied then and there.

After returning to Mr. Coker's house, we had prayer and sang a hymn to the praise He had done. Our congregation kept increasing, and every one looked surprised, if not bewildered. After taking a little while, we came very hastily, the [illegible]

The chief and many of the people would hardly believe the news, but the odor of the rum was convincing. One only cooked [illegible] Mr. Coker's heavy face to be remembered that "to obey is better than sacrifice," and that in the days of daily we are blessed.

The next week, he went to another trading place, and cleared up the other rum business. When he returned, in attendance service which began the next day after he threw away the rum, and as one of the morning hymns he was blessedly saved.

Frances William.

Our Work At Bompeh

For the past sixteen months our work at Bompeh has been under the care of Mrs. Juliana Thompson whose labors have been greatly owned and blest of the Lord. When she first took charge of this station only a few people attended the Sunday Services and not a dozen children could be found in the school. At present the little chapel is scarcely able to contain the many who come to hear the 'God Word,' and the school has steadily increased until there are now more than forty regular scholars all of whom are fed and clothed by their own people. But I want to tell you something of the Special Services which we have held there during the past two weeks.

While we were having revival services at Rotofunk last month Mrs. Thompson was with us a part of the time. On her return to Bompeh she found the people anxiously waiting to hear from her something about the meetings. After she had related all to them, they said "We want such a meeting at Bompeh," and she began to instruct and prepare them for the special services. Then I went down and we began holding service each morning and evening which continued thirteen days. From the very first service the Spirit of the Lord was manifest in wonderful power. Bro. West was with us on the third day of the meeting. The same evening we gave the first invitation to the people to come to the alter for prayer and in a few minutes more than a score of anxious souls bowed men, women and children were kneeling at the alter pleading for mercy. Bro. West and I did all we could to direct them to Jesus, but what could we do among so many. The next day we sent back to Rotofunk for more help and in response Miss Groenendyke, Miss Williams, and two of our best interpreters come to our assistance. Later in the week Mr. J. B. W. Johnson and his interpreter and Mrs. West came. The Services were continued in the Chapel as usual and a noon day prayer meetings many names were presented for special prayer and there were some speedy and [illegible] work in the past and now since he has openly professed faith in Christ with so many of his people we believe he will do more. The outlook at present is certainly very encouraging.

Your Bro.

W. SANDFORD SAGE.

June 30 '90

CORRESPONDENCE.

Temperance.

(A Paper read before a Meeting of the Temperance Army of Shaingay by Mrs. Mary Bowden, and published by request of the Meeting)

Dear Friends,—I think myself flattered, by having a subject of such great Importance, given to me one of such feeble ability; for I do not feel, in the least, able to deal justly with such a subject, yet God helping me, I shall try my best with it. However before going into details, allow me to first define or give you the meaning of the word temperance. It means habitual moderation in regard to the indulgence of the natural apetites and passions, restrained or moderate indulgence.

There are then many things, in which we are to be temperate, in eating, in working, in our tempers or whatever we do in this World. And lastly we are to be temperate in our drinking. In some part of the scripture it is said, I cannot give the exact words, "Rise not in the morning to follow strong drink". What meaning would you draw from this; undoubtedly, some of you might answer, that it means we should not drink to excess; but I would say it means to abstain from drinking anything that contains alcohol. Some persons have also argued that the word Temperance, does not mean total abstinance, and also that in some part of the scriptures I Timothy 5: 23, it says "Use a little wine for thy stomach's sake;" and many other passages have they urged upon, which if closely examined, would totally destroy their arguments. To you mothers, I would say, should you teach your children, to take a little you will find that not all of them will come to manhood. Therefore, "touch not taste not, handle not, should be the lesson, that you mothers ought to teach your children. For no sooner does the vile stuff touch their lips than it creates an appetite for strong drink; and then from one step to another they descend to the depths of destruction. Just consider what sad havoc, rum produces in individuals, in families, tribes, nations, Kingdoms and Empires. Consider a sensible handsome man when he is sober, and withal, what a pleasing disposition he possesses; but on the other hand how changed when he becomes a drunkard, what ghastly, salow appearance he exhibits, his face bloated, lips red, system weakened, form emaciated; withal resembling a brute more than a man.

Mothers would you desire to behold such spectacles in your room? Is it not appalling to think of or behold the savages rum has produced in the country I and then to see your children being dragged into everlasting destruction by the same vile stuff. Then, "Train up a child in the way, he should go, and when he is old he will not depart from it" as we are enjoined to do by the holy scriptures. For should you teach your child to take a little, little by little he will be taking until he attains, the lowest pitch of drunkenness but should you teach him total abstinence, the result will be health, beauty, [illegible] dom [illegible] May [illegible] carry [illegible] pelling [illegible] Drink, [illegible] breakin[illegible] fetters [illegible] the divil, [illegible] present, [illegible]

Shaingay S[illegible]

S[illegible]

Dear Edi[illegible] -W[illegible] ly oblige m[illegible]
your valua[illegible]
Journal to ma[illegible]
enquiries.

1—Wh[illegible] ma[illegible]

2—[illegible] ordinance ma[illegible]y G. Havelock been repealed, [illegible] if so, when was it repealed.

3—It not repealed, why do not the police constable arrest and impound all pigs found in the public streets.

Mr Editor—As you are aware, this is a sickly season, and to allow these filthy creatures to go about the streets, following the sir with their obnoxious excrement, there by adding more disease to what we are experiencing now, is unbearable. I hope therefore that Commandant Bennett will give strict order to the police constable to arrest and impound all pigs found astray.

Yours, Health.

NEWS ITEMS.

Mendi Mission.—Saw Mills at Avery Station Mason Gbergroo are reported at Work as the Manager Revd. S. B. Morrison offers to execute Orders on short notice for the public.

Much excitement prevails it is said in Freetown over the municipality Bill, but we fear that it is much of the same kind that often prevails in other places; neither much to the purpose or very intelligent.

Rains,—yes they had abated, but with the coming in of this month they have commenced again with renewed vigor.

Trade has been and continues fearfully dull, on the whole, in Sherbro a few people, as we say, do a little, but the others are waiting for the season.

Our Mails,—Come now think and fast and for a week or so past we have been having them so often that we could hardly keep track of when to post our letters.

A New Hospital, is now the rumour, but we shall not say much until we see more signs of it.

Tobacco—It is reported here [illegible] over 2 cents per [illegible] in America in consequence of a great fire in Louisville Kentucky U. S. A. so the [illegible] own merchant have agreed to [illegible] a half penny on [illegible]

[illegible]—It reported from [illegible] which [illegible] countries [illegible] which of [illegible] Friday the [illegible] S. [illegible] and S. S. Farmo[illegible] arrived here [illegible] on the same hour with Passengers, Mails and Freight.

For Freetown,—The Footah left York Island on the 10th with Passengers and Mails. And the Formoso left on the 12th with Mails Freight and Passengers.

PERSONAL.

Mr. Henry Bennett—Was here with Formoso and give us a look in on the 11th he is the wide awake and enterprising Agent of the Sierra Leone Coaling company.

Mr. C. B. Collier—Was down from Mokate and gave us a call on the 12th inst he informed us that the waters had commenced to abate in the Boome in July owing to the cessation of the rains.

CORRESPONDENCE.

Dear Mr. Editor,—You and your many readers no doubt will like to hear from us, as to what effect, the protest against the sale of spirits in this town, made in the minds of the traders and people in this place. After a letter was written to each of the traders, by the head men telling them to quit the traffic, of rum and gin etc, etc.

Two of the traders (Mohammedans) came to me, and used so many words against myself and the Rev. J. Gomer, as the means of this new law and daring any one to stop them from making their money, and that God said, anything a man may do to get money, he may steal to prosper, and will surely get to heaven. I need not say what passed between us, but they went away, with an impression, that I trust will not soon be forgotten by them. After this, rum was brought into the town by these very traders.

The Christain traders took their rum into the fakies. Afterwards we came to hear that they are selling secretly the head men set watch but in vain. We learn that the people measured their produce in the day and went for the rum in the night. How long this continued, I do not know. On Sunday the 6th of July I thought to speak on the subject of intemperance, and the evil of the rum traffic. I therefore announced it in the class and morning service, accordingly in the evening the barra was crowded with more than 120 persons when I took for my text Hosiea 13 chapter 9 verse.

Some of the traders were present. The two Mohammedans, mentioned above, stood outside, just behind where I stood, that not a word escape them.

I spoke about three quarter of an hour, showing how Africa is distroying herself by the evil of the rum traffic, and the evil practice of intemperance. I then read the Rev. J. Gomer's article in the "Dawn" of June 15th on the same subject, which made a great impression on them. After I had finished speaking, Mr. Faux one of the head men, spoke lengthily on the secret selling, and the foolishness of drinking and dancingfor the dead. The result was, although they were preparing to buy rum and have a good dance over a dead woman that was brought to the town, that morning, that not a drum has been heard untill now. Every man and woman was sober and buried their dead quietly. Since then I am having a slight persecution by these Mohammedan traders, but that only makes me to press forward. I earnestly ask all those who are advocating the cause intemperance to aid me in their prayers against these foes of the Cross.

Yours in Christ,—F. M. Stewart.

Rembee Station,
July 21st, 90.

Mando Station
June, 17 '90

My Dear Friend Burton:—I will give you briefly, an account of our work here, and also the success that has attended our feeble efforts. As to Itineration, I endeavored to give as much attention to it as possible. I visited several towns, and villages, dispensing the word of God to the people. At first when I come, I could hardly find people in the villages, as it was then working time. But their farm houses, were not neglected. I go into the farm houses, and as many people as I could find, there in a homely way, I preached the word of life. The people at Gbana Bomo, and Bembelloh express their sincere thanks and gratitude to the American Missionaries, in that they are always remembering them to send teachers to teach them, the way of salvation, and also the love they they have for Africa, by which they had become stimulated to to have strive and still striving with might and main, to emancipate her poor sons and daughters, from the cruel bondage of heathenism, and superstition regarded as a monster of inequity. Into whatever towns or villages I entered. I always find some one who would be in readiness, to interpret for me. So that I am not at all hindered for not having one. Hereto fore said the people, they had in some measure been neglected; but now new coals are put into the fire, and it is all well. The people seemed to be very willing. Where ever we go, before entering into the town, the people used to cry out meeting! I am also filled with joy to report this, as a token of the word of God, working in the hearts of the people. Leaving Mando 6. 30. o'clock on Sunday morning the 25th May, I proceeded on the way to Bembelloh. Having preached in all the villages I met, I at last got to upper Bumbelloh. After addressing them as in other places, I was invited by one man to go to a town called Sanglah, two miles off. As soon as as I arrived there, the first object that struck me was, a man dreadfully tied to a palm tree, for having stolen a leaf of tobacco. It was then about 2 o'clock. I solicited that they should forgive the man. All I could say by way of solicitation was to no purpose. And there I stood upon my legs beseeching these men till about one full hour before they would listen. Let me hint out to you the secret why they refused to lose the man. They said the man should pay four bottles of gin; as that is the law, for every one who steals. Under such a horrible condition, none understanding his could dare to raise a voice, against an atticles recently published, in the Early Dawn. Oh Africa, thou hast distroyed thyself. Yes! yes! I reply, Africa has distroyed herself. Her inhabitants allowing themselves to be come suffocated and unfeited with that deadly poison called the liquor traffic the import of rum and gin, which deadly stuff ruins our country. I then become almost disheartened to preach to them. But I though that it was time for me to discharge my duty; after giving them a short adress I turned my steps to lower Bembelloh. The road from Sanglah to this place is all intested with mud, and here I travelled knee deep in mud for the space of 15 minutes. At last I came to a river.

Right on my way, lies the tracts of Aligators which no doubt have just gone down into the river. What am I to do? Cross I must; the tide was fast flowing and it was getting late. I called for canoe on the other side, but all in vain. At last in despair I plunged into it, and got to the other side safely, but quite soaked up. Few minutes walk more I reached lower Bembelloh, at a quarter after six. The people were then pulling their porroh boys to do the same. I then gathered them both men and women and expounded the word of God to them.

Brother Thompson is also an earnest zealous worker; and we are both working hand in hand together. We are trying to add more towns to the circuit. As we have determined to make an exploration inland. Hoping I shall be able to give you some more interesting account of our work here. God help me so to do.

I am dear sir your humble servant. Thomas D. Chambers.

Mohammedanism In Africa.

Concluded from Page 1.

Mohammedanism has yet to show by actual test its power to elvate, the baser sorts among the tribes on this coast, to convert wild a warlike Medies into Peaceable Subjects to the same extent, or anything like the same extent that Christianity has done.

And certainly it is not because it has not been at work among these people; for almost everywhere one goes among these people he can meet with Mohammedans, but are they not rather degrading than elevating them in the scale of Man being And while we do not deny that there are christians whose lives are demoralizing rather than elevating to the heathen; yet it is in no case the result of their religious teaching nor a defect in either the quantity, or quality of the litterature of the christian faith, both of which are confessedly, yet really, elevating to the African as the facts in every settlement along the Coast abundantly show And while the results of christianity are not all that we could desire, yet who, but can readily see that they are incomparably in excess of those of Mohammedanism? certainly no one, yet I would not be understood as looking upon Mohammedans with any other than the most charitable feelings, and as objects of the greatest consideration Nor am I averse to a fair and impartial discussion of the religious doctrines and to admit any truth that may be found therein; yet I am opposed to anythingslooking to toward the substitution of any other religious system for that of christianity.—E.

Missionaries should now push for the interior as rapidly, as possible as it is now every inducement.

THE EARLY DAWN.

"The Morning Light Is Breaking, The Darkness Disappears."

VOL. VII. BONTHE, SHERBRO, WEST AFRICA, AUGUST 31, 1890. No. 14

The 'Early Dawn'

Published Semi Monthly at Bonthe, Sherbro. Under the Auspices of the Board of Missions of the United Brethren In Christ.

Rev. J. A. Evans, Editor and Publisher
Bonthe, Sherbro, West Africa.

AGENTS.

United States.—Revs. B. F. Booth and Wm. Hicks, Dayton O. Rev. I. S. Statler, Cedarville, Iowa. Rev. Wm. J. Davis, Bull, Ohio. Rev. T. Jenifer, Chicago, Ill. Rev. J. L. Hensley, Marion, O. Rev. J. S. Clearer, Fleetwood, Pa. Rev. P. Burton, Penn Ind. D. E. Fisher, Wilkesbby, O. Rev. H. Eidwell, Dayton, Washington, Ter., M. J. Stone, Manheim Pa., Master Charlie Howe Manchester, Ind. Rev. G. W. Arnold, Kilbuckle, Ohio.

West Africa.—J. A. Evans, River Gambia. Rev. J. R. Frederick and Mr. E. A. Lewis, Freetown, Sierra Leone. Rev. James Deputy, Harrisville Liberia. Mr. Moses Boyle, Liberia.

TERMS.

One Year, by mail,	£0	6	0
Delivered in Bonthe,	0	5	0
Half yearly by mail,	0	3	0
Ditto, delivered in Bonthe,	0	2	6

Report of Shaingay Station, for Quarter ending June 30, 1890.

Mr. President.—The close of this quarter brings us to the middle of the year. Looking back at the events over which we have been providentially taken, we find abundant cause to be thankful to God for the many tokens of his presence among us; the hearts of many of our people are being better impressed with the message of salvation and I am glad to report that application for baptism have been made by those who were once totally against the performance of this rite.

The being the busiest time among the people, a they are required to keep very late hours in their plantations we were anticipating a decline in the worship of the sanctuary on the Lord's day, but this we are glad to report we have not realized although a few are missing, yet their absence has been scarcely perceivable, and can now say the attendance at the means of grace on the Lord's day has continued to be as good as usual.

The Week night services have not been such as could be desired, the people not coming for the evening forms have to be postponed their study a little and this would account for the seeming neglect of those who were once very regular in attendance. On the whole we can say the department pretty good success.

The classes have been regularly kept and the leaders endeavoring to do their duty. We had difficulties when the class Payment system was introduced, every one should pleaded poverty, but by patience and perseverance we find that we are bound to succeed. Making them to understand that they can give as payments whatever they could get, some have brought us eggs others palm oil, chickens etc. These we have converted to cash and placed to their credit in the class roll. Amount collected last quarter sixteen shillings and one penne halfpenny, this quarter we pound seven shillings, making a difference of one pounn three pence half penny this quarter more than last. For this we thank God and take courage.

Day School—With the help of Bro. Clemens and some of the senior students of the A. C. and W. Theological Training School, we are glad to state that the day school is encouraging. We were visited on the 16th. ult. by His Excellency Sir J. Hay, accompanied by the Inspector of Police, and Mr. Parkes. His Excellency's impression was favorable. In a neat, concise, and decent speech he commended the children to a right and proper appreciation of their present advantages that they might not in future years regret having wasted these opportunities. We noticed how very pleased he was on examining the Gula Needle and Fancy Work, knowing from the mistress that they were taught to cut and mend and do other work besides, he congratulated the school for having, as he said, "the right person in the right place."

Sunday School—Since the return of the general superintendent from America who is very much interested in Sabbath schools; the numbers have greatly swollen to 155, with the promise of a grand treat, and the distribution of clothes to the naked ones among us of both sexes we are having fresh numbers continually. We deeply regret in having to record the loss of one of our most faithful and regular members, a teacher in this school, and one who had given himself over to Bro. Wilberforce as an itinerant, Charles J. Freevine. The first sabbath he was appointed out met him in heaven having got drowned whilst returning from the Plantain island. Taking the scriptures as our guide, and being taught that Christ's disciples are to be known by their fruits, we feel justified to say he is in heaven.

A great battle is being fought with the monster drink. A drama instituted the "Sensualist Doom," prepared by Prof. D. F. Wilberforce of the Training School, on behalf of the Young Men's Christian Temperance Army, exhibited the great evils of intemperance and the establishment of a Woman's Christian Temperance Union in this place whose members are engaged in giving lectures etc. on intemperance, canvassing the towns, and getting signatures to a petition against the trafficking of intoxicating drinks within 15 miles in and about this place, are efforts which under God must succeed, if not in our day yet in some time ere long.

We have cause to thank God that notwithstanding the prevalence of fever here, we have not cause to sustain any loss by death of those among us here, one infant however, died, and a man in the town, but no church members. With regret we have to state that this man had been spoken to by every missionary who has been here, and that he treated every one indifferently. There is yet much to be done in this place, whilst we are thankful for what has already been achieved we do pray for more strength to labor and more of the spirit's power to accompany the seed sown that Satan's kingdom be entirely demolished and the kingdom of Jesus established throughout this land.

Shaingay Believers Classes	1.
Members in Believers class	62.
" Seekers "	81.
Day School children,	111.
Sunday School scholars,	153.

Amount Collected.

Chapel,	£3	2	0
Class.	2	18	84
Missions.	2	11	9
Aid Society.	3	0	0
Total	£11	7	5

Faithfully submitted,
E. C. Bickersteth.

P.S. Since writing the above fever has made its appearance and attacked the superintendent, wife and niece, Mrs. Wilberforce and child, and others about the mission; may God help us is my prayer.
E. C. B.

Avery and Danville Mission Stations.

Dear Mr. Editor,—While spending a few days of vacation on the Mendi Mission District, I was requested by the Presiding Elder to hold quarterly meetings at Avery and Danville Mission Stations.

The meeting at Avery Station was held on the 20th and 21st of July, and opened with an Experience meeting on sabbath morning led by the pastor Rev. S. E. Morrison. The experiences given by native Mendis in their dialect, and others, was clear and convincing. Several, had been able to trace the hand of God in many events of their lives. One, was led through affliction when every source that opened to him failed, to trust in God, and now he has a firm trust in God and will praise him. A Sister knows now, why she was led away from her home in the Timnee country where wickedness and evil practices reigned supreme; she sees clearly how troubles and afflictions led her to look to God who did not disappoint her. Ought she not, she asked, praise God, and tell of his goodness? As I listened to these experiences of these illiterate Converts, and compare them with the Experiences that may be heard in class meetings in England or America I realized more forcibly than before, the truth of the Common fatherhood of God, and the brotherhood of man. And that in all lands, the children of God whether Timnee, Mendis, Akus, Sherbros, Caucasians or whether they are, all are taught and are led by the same Spirit, into all truth.

"For there is no difference between the Jew and the Barbarian, for the same Lord over all, is rich unto all that call upon him."

Several persons participated in the Communion which followed the eleven o'clock preaching service. Another preaching service at 5 p m., closed the sabbath work.

On Monday morning the quarterly conference was convened, and reports made of the work done during the quarter. Members of the conference were examined as to moral and official character. The following is the Statistical report for the quarter ending June 30th.

Number of Towns visited	68
" " Classes "	16
Total Membership . .	316
Sunday School Scholars	40
Day " "	48
Collections . .	£3 4. 8.

During the quarter, no less than 1105 persons have received the message of truth.

We visited the Saw-mill and saw the the recent repairs that have been made under Bro. Morrison's supervision and management. He deserves much praise, as does also Bro. W. S. M'Cauley who had charge of the work on the wall, which exhibits good masonery.

Saturday July 26th we held the conference at Danville Station. The report shows—Appointments 16, membership 56, Sunday School Scholars 60, Collections 6s. 6d.

Female class meetings are held and led by mrs. Macaulay. As our time was limited, I arranged with the pastor Rev. W. S Macaulay to hold the Communion service. With hopes that these reports will prove incentives to increased zeal and effort.

I remain. Yours etc.,
Dan'l. F. Wilberforce.
Shaingay 5th Aug. '90.

A Visit to Rembee station.

Dear Mr. Editor,—Being asked by the Superintendent to visit the Station of Rembee, I started from the Pier head of Shaingay Wharf about half past five of Saturday the 19th inst. Every one almost assured me that with the breeze in our favor as it then was Rembee would be reached in less than two hours. But we found it otherwise. The tide not being sufficiently up, we got aground on the mud bar. The boat men straggled with their oars but found it impossible for us by that means to get in; they then plunged into the water and dragged the boat over till she was again afloat. On reaching the narrow creek, it was found difficult to row down in full and we had to close our oars by the boat side and gently draw on to the shore—

Whilst waiting for the boat unladen I had the opportunity of holding a short talk with a young woman and was agreeably pleased to find at this distance one able to converse freely with in the English language. She pointed to me the spot where a boy had been lately caught by the shark Leopard that was reported sometime ago as prowling and where he was killed and whither the repast had been in preparation when frightened by the approach of people the Cannibals had to escape for their lives and left their dinner untasted. This was a surly inhuman act most horrible to think of, it is certain that had for not these Cannibals heard of the steps taken at the Impereh to discover and burn those there, lives would be still very unsafe in these parts. Wading through a small brook waist deep, and with a short walk of ½ of an hour, we were in the Mission house and found our Agent here just gone in to bed at 9 p m. Hearing our voices he came out and welcomed us heartily and with the generous provision of Mrs. Gomer who furnished my Canteen before leaving shaingay, we had a hearty repast and turned in to bed. Not having made our Konany to some of the residents of the place (the mosquitoes) they seemed quite versed with us and came in great numbers and kept us up all night our welcome visitors they were, and I could not help out being vexed at their annoyance and called them pestiferous vermin. When at last the day dawned, we felt ourselves greatly relieved from them as they skidel away without taking leave of us and there again I think very unmannerly. At 7 a m. we went to the morning meeting and had a goodly number present judging ac-cooling to the season, how that people are mostly engaged in driving birds away from their plantations ! say the number thirty-two as it then was very good.—Bro. Stewart conducted this meeting and by request I gave a short address. Preached at 11 o'Clock to as good a gathering and at 7 p. m. to a full house. It is cheering Mr. Editor to notice the interest taken by these people in the hearing of God's word, and I thank God for thus honoring his cause amongst those who a few years ago were destitute of the knowledge of the way of Salvation. Never before was there a more ready disposition on the part of the Natives to accept of the religion of Jesus Christ than at the present and I truly feel pained at heart if our most have to beat 'a retreat' as it has been doing lately for want of means, rather than obey the command "Go forward."—

Shall we whose souls are lighted,
With wisdom from on high,
Shall we to men benighted
The lamp of life deny ?
Salvation ! O Salvation !
The joyful sound proclaim
Till each remotest nation
Has learn'd Messiah's name.

Started 4 p. m. on Monday the 21st inst. and reach home at 2 p. m. under inclement weather. The breeze rendered progress impossible and we were consequently drenched, we earnestly hope some good, kind friends of Jesus will undertake to plead for down trodden Africa that the work of God may continue to prosper in our midst and that the Kingdom of Satan thus assailed may give way to gospel gallantry and Jesus reign victorious over all the earth.]

—Apologie ng for occupying so much of your space and unwilling to encroach any further

I must close—E. C. BICKERSTETH.

The Manse,
Shaingay, July 24th '90.

Intemperance.

An address delivered to the Members of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union at Shaingay.

By mary A Bickersteth, President.

My dear friends:—I desire to speak with you this evening for a short time on the temperance cause,—a cause which is to day engaging the attention of men and women all over the world. It is for the purpose of arresting the progress of the monster vice—drink; and to save the souls and bodies of those in our midst who are given to that evil habit, that we are met together, pledged ourselves not to touch, taste or handle the accursed cup, and to do our utmost to stop the progress of its spread in our midst.

When we think of the many homes made miserable by it; of wives and children rendered unhappy by a drunken husband and father,—of the bloated countenances of those who are under its influence and power, we cannot but see and feel that a great work is before us.

Even now as I am speaking to you, there are around us in this little place, those who are indulging in drink and that excessively too, those who are selling, and those who are buying and drinking; that which will send them down to a drunkard's grave, to spend an eternity with the devil and lost spirits in hell. How must this evil be checked. We must work fearlessly against its use, and try to effect the discontinuance of this trade in and about this place.

It is really hard to make a drunkard realise his position.

He thinks he is not too far gone in the habit, and that he can give it up at any time he likes ; but this is a mistake.

A habit once acquired is not so easily forsaken. He cannot of himself give up the habit without a large measure of help granted him from heaven.

Many a man has shamefully disgraced himself by it, who in his sober moments had resolved not to touch another glass. What has become of their resolutions ? they feel themselves quite unable to keep them; they are the slaves of a habit that has become their master.

They want help ; they need help. Shall we not pray God to have mercy on them and grant them strength to overcome this evil ? All we do let us never forget to pray that God may have mercy upon the Drunkards and deliver them from the iron grasp of King Alcohol.

The Early Dawn

BONTHE, AUGUST 31, 1890.

REV. J. A. EVANS, - EDITOR

[EDITORIAL]

It seems so natural for us to Magnify the evils of others and mimify our own.

Abusive language is most too common on our streets and it would seem that there ought to be a law to punish the parties.

We understand that there is an effort being made in and about Shaingay to prohibit the sale of spirits.

Don't—Talk so long when opening a prayer or class meeting, for it often makes people sleepy.

Visit to shaingay, It was the fortune of the Editor of this Journal to have a little outing under the precarious weather of the present month, rather by constraint, of course, than by choice; for no one would choose to venture out such weather. But whether or not we left Mendi Mission Wharf Bonthe at 8 a. m. on the 16th inst. in an open Boat and reached Mission Wharf Shaingay at 4 p. m. We were heartily received by the Gen. Superintendent of the mendi and Sherbro missions the Rev. J. Gomer on landing and proceeding with him toward the Mission house were met by the Revd. Mr Bickersteth the genial Pastor of Shaingay station also his amiable wife and nice little children at their gate near the corner of Smith and Gomer streets. Arriving at the Mission House in Howe street we met Mrs Gomer and Miss Clark, wife and niece of the Supt. who welcomed us most heartily, and treated us subsequently to the best of Viands.

We were sorry however to note that the health of the Supt was quite unsatisfactory, and that Mrs. Gomer, and Miss Clarke, had also been feeling the effects of fever. On Sabbath it was the writers privilege to attend at 6. 30 a. m the Seekers Class conducted by the Pastor at Zion Chapel sixty-five persons were present and some eighteen or more participated in the speaking service, all had a part in the devotion, and the interest was grand. At the same hour other Classes met at their respective places and as I understood had good meeting.

The writer occupied the pulpit at 11 a. m. at Flickinger where a large gathering listened attentively to the Word. The Sabbath School at Rufus Clark was a grand treat ; Mr. C. A. Clemens is the Supdt. assisted by an able Corps of Officers and Teachers the attendance was large for such unfavorable weather.

At 5 p. m. Mr. Clemens preached at Zion and the gathering was a good one for that hour Monday was with Tuesday devoted Conference Counsel and business. We had a walk each day and on Tuesday made several calls in the town of Shaingay.

Wednesday the weather prevented us from leaving on our return, but Thursday being fair we left Shaingay and 8 a. m. and reached this place at 10 p m feeling well but weary.

Self-Supporting Missions.

Is such a thing possible ? as missions that are able to support themselves ! We have heard much of such a thing in the world, but have failed so far to really see one of these most desirable kind of missions. Indeed we have tried on a small scale to build up such missions in almost every possible way, but as for our experience has been about like the mans that tried to carry himself too much of a load. Of course we have not been connected with any of the large schemes of self-support but have tried in various ways to supplement a meagre support, but every considerable effort has receded upon the private purses of the poor Missionaries. And only last week we heard an able and farseeing Missionary of nearly a score years experience in the Mission work of this continent give it, as his experience that self supporting Missions are impossible in this part of Africa. And he gave as much from the best planned self-supporting Mission; such as the renowned Bishop Taylor's missions in the Congo and showed us very conclusively that the Idea, so far as Africa is concerned is absurd. Now it was hard for us to be convinced of these tiings, for our hopes and desires, yea and our faith, notwithstanding our own failures along the line, has been that some how or in some way self-support was possible. But surely it begins either to dawn or darken upon us that it is not. Yet we are open for a discussion of the subject

Industrial Work a Necessity.

Industrial work is necessary, to prevent a draught on the productive portion of Society, in many cases the persons, children especially, are drawn from the laboring classes, into the Mission Establishment, with a great number of laborers, who before being drawn into the mission were engaged some in tilling the soil (in a rude way it may be and is true, yet they were getting a sustenance from it, others were engaged in gathering the spontaneous products of the country. But the missionary enters with his work, employs the father as a laboret and engages the child as a pupil or a servant, diverting both from their former pursuits; and makes them dependent on him or his establishment for support and thus producers become consumers, unless the mission establishment be a productive one; which without some industrial department it cannot be, in a material and very important, sense of giving a support to those engaged in its work. This necessity, would not arise where in the progress of the Mission work you can get wealthy men to convert, who then can become contributors to the support of the Mission and assist in swelling the contributions of the poor, who make up the greater part of the Membership of Mission Churches ; for a long time in many localities especially if the heathen are the people sought after, in such territory as this part of Western Africa presents society being as made up here of classes, whose native requirements are but few, but who when they become christians feel the need of much more, especially such as are trained up in Missions hence they cannot easily, or scarcely at all, return to their former employment. and if they could it would take more to support them, in even what we consider the necessaries of a christian life—food and clothing—these alone would cost more than his rudely cultivated patch would yield, or he would be able to gather and break Palm Nuts to pay for, unless he employed some one to help him, that could do without clothing.

Industry of some kind is therefore necessary to the perpetuity of the Mission. That it may continue work without becoming overburdensome to the Society that established it. For what Society can afford to rear up 100 children or even 50 children to Man and Womanhood Marry off and settle them in such way as to obtain a living without some industrial work in, which to employ such a number of persons ? and if the Society did, at great expense what would then become of the children of these fifty or more families without some means of learning to labor with their hands as not all will be suitable for Teachers or Preachers, and if they were them so, ciety could not employ all of them, and other societies have their own to provide for, while under such a order of operating the native christians would be too poor to support their fellows as Ministers and Teachers, so they would be forced to dig or beg either of which would be unfortunate ; as the first, to dig they could not for want of a knowledge of that homely Art, and to beg would be to burden Society with a recruit of paupers.

It is however fortunate that missions have in so ne instances met in a measure this necessity of the industrial perforce of circumstances ; as for instance they have given employment to tradesmen, who have had Boys in training under them, and who through the patronage of missions have been enabled even to increase the number of the apprentices in the Several Trades requisite to erect Residences, School Houses, Churches and Chapels. These have been Carpenters, Masons and Painters principally, and which have gone forth into the world at length to try for themselves, and succeeded well for their opportunities. But how much more effectually would these have blessed the world if Missionaries had themselves in person been teachers of Trades, and have trained these Boys the better use of tools and Machinery, and at the Same time taught them by example, as well as precept how to serve God.

Men would have been raised up master of Machanics, Saw Mills would have been heard in the work of Converting the Kings of our African forests in to lumber of all discriptions. And the forests Removed the agricultural Missionary with his Boys would have ploughed the earth into a fertility unknown to the present digging or Scratching process practiced by the natives of today. more again.

J. A. E.

CHILDREN'S COLUMN.

Boys Printing.

Eleven years ago there were thousands of boys' newspapers in the United States, and the interest was so great that a National Amateur Press Association was formed. These papers exchanged with each other. Each boy thus had a chance to see what his brother publishers were doing, and the desire to excel was so great that many of the papers were brightly edited and handsomely printed.

The boys of that decade have grown to larger duties, and the interest in boys' papers has diminished, though there are still boys' printing-offices. Some who then took up printing as a pastime are now owners of news papers or printing-offices, and I am convinced that a much larger number who are now engaged in other occupations, are doing better work because of their experience with types and presses.

One can not estimate the value to any boy of work which requires the united action of head and hands; and printing is excellent work for boys, because it makes exacting demands upon so many faculties. There is also a fascination about printing which takes the whole boy captive.

It is no insignificant part of education for a boy to know how books and newspapers are made. Boys' printing is not only a primer to such knowledge, but it induces the boy to visit the newspaper offices and the printing-offices to see with understanding eyes how the work is done there.

Printing gives a boy practice in the use of words and in the arrangement of words, and also in spelling and grammar.

The handling of types also makes a boy desire to put his own thoughts on paper for the public eye, and the boys are few who engage in printing and do not become authors in a small way.

The boy-printer becomes proficient in the much-slighted art of punctuation.

Punctuation points mean something to him; for he has handled them. He thus gets a practical knowledge of a subject which is often slighted by men who are in other ways well educated.

Printing cultivates patience. It can not hurried; it will not do itself. It cultivates skill; a clumsy, blundering boy can not set types or put a form to press. It cultivates exactdess every line must be of the right length; every form must be perfectly true, every space of the exact size, and every letter in its proper place.

The printing-boy has constant demands upon his taste in selecting type and in arranging the lines. A well printed sheet is a work of art, and so, also all other arts, printing offers unlimited opportunity for study and development. The boy-printer becomes a critic and every scrap of printing which comes under his eye is approved or condemned.

Boy's printing calls so many faculties into action that it has a valuable educational influence independent of other work.

Its best service to a boy is, however, to supplement his work in school; and I am sure it will be found an excellent time for the boy who, through too long or too mechanical application, has lost his appetite for books.—Sel.

Essay On Parrot.

There was once a parrot that was living in the Mission House She was fond of sitting on the railing in the piazza. As she was sitting one evening on the railing unexpectedly there came to her sight an extraordinary Lizard which through its ugliness and ridiculous shape made the parrot to laugh.

What are you laughing about said the Lizard ? dont you observe your lip how it bends under your mouth like a hook ! Well said the Parrot I was a little afraid of telling you about y ur buteful looks but now I think I am at liberty to do so. Kindly dont come here with your humpback flat head short tail and coarse skin. You old ugly creature, are you not ashamed of coming into this respectable house with such a looking head as yours. Upon which this the Lizard was speechless and went away totally disgraced by the parrot.

MARTHA VINCENT.

NEWS ITEMS.

From River Gambia.

The Ladies of the "Wesleyan Sewing Meeting" held two evenings Bazaar at the Dobson Street School Room on the 12th and 13th inst., under the patronage of His Excellency G. T. Carter, C. M. G., and the Hon. members of the Legislative Council, also C. F. Napier Esq. B. L, and Dr. A. W. Heron, Colonial Surgeon.

The proceeds which amounted to over £ 80 0 0 was handed to the Rev. C. Feneley, Supt. Minister to help liquidate a heavy debt under which the Society has been laboring for several years.

Mrs. S. J. Forster-President Mrs. E. A. Melbury Secretary and other ladies who have contributed to the success of the Bazaar deserve much praise.

Lt. Col. Tighe arrived per s. s. 'Landana' on the 13th inst. and has since been gazetted as Supt. of Police and Sheriff of the Colony.

The Hon. H. H. Lee Collector of Customs, and the Rev. C. Feneley European Wesleyan Missionary are expected to leave for England by the s. s. Sherbro ' early in July.

SHERBRO.

Aug. 2nd—An inquest was held on the body of a woman brought from Gbamghatook who was said to be killed by human Leopard.

A man was drowned in the river at Bonthe, in a canoe which was loaded with mangrow post. The body has not been found.

Palli Station—Bompeh Mission has been blest with a grand awakening 35 conversions are reported fuller account to follow in our Next Issue.

Danville Station—Gbangbiah Mission. Reports Interesting Communion Services on the 20th inst. Report to follow.

Died—at Mosekah, Manoh Gbargroo Fengra Waneh principal woman of the place.

Castor Oil Plant—Government Notice No. 90 of August 15 90 invites special attention to the Cultivation of the Castor Oil Plant, to facilitate which His Excellency the Governor has been pleased to place Seed and Copies of Instructions at the disposal of Planters who may receive the same by application to the Commandant's Office in this Place, we trust the enterprize may meet with Success.

Aug. 18—Countess of Derby with Mr. Brett, Acting Queen's Advocate, and a lot of policemen from Freetown. She also brought mails, and a new bailiff to succeed Mr. Bucknor arrived.

19 The Queen's Advocate left for Gbamgbiah this day.

Aug. 19—s. s. Formoso & Susu, arrived from Freetown with mails—Messrs. E. Mosse of the French Company, S. B. A. Macfoy, and Fitzjohn.

20 Susu with mails for Freetown.

" Formoso " for Freetown with mails and S. B A. Mcfoy and Mrs Hannah Cole Passenger for Freetown.

Countess for Freetown with Mr Brett and F. E. B Bucknor ex Bailiff promoted to the Registra's office in Freetown He is relieved by a Mr from Freetown.

An inquest was held on the body of a man found dead at Bendoo and from the medical evidence given, the jurors brought a Verdict of Death from Bright's disease or disease of the kidney

J. S Cuthbert was imprisoned for two months in default of his paying the sum of £ 5. demanded from him by the court, in the matter. He is now in prison.

Aug 29—Footah from Freetown with mails and passengers.

Correspondence.

Mandoe Station.

Dear Sir:—It is now one quarter since I was called to take charge of this station, and I am constrained to say that God has favored us with golden privilege to labor in his vineyard; and with rapture I add that scenes of plenishtness have faced us; although the people with whom we live and labor have not arrived at a real stage of Christianity, yet we are trying to show them the need of a Savior. Really, we met them very careless and indifferent in attending the house of God, our hearts ached, and filled with sympathy; we made fervent prayers to God to change their hearts and " renew right spirits within them." The prayers are wonderfully answered. We are cheered with enthusiasm to say that many are led into the fold. They are trying pray, some could stand and tell the unbounded love of the Savior. The first two weeks among them were very discouraging, but it turns now to great encouragement.

Very good attention is given to the villages. Six towns are added to the Circuit and seeker's classes have been organized. We made rounds in 46 towns the first month. In one of the rounds, I met a man who asked me for the deadly poison, Rhum. I was profoundly struck with amazement and stood in a dilemma. I told him that I brought something preferable for them to the miserable demon. He called the people together in a house, and I spoke soulstiringly to them. I also made them to understand that rum is a monster evil and if any one insists on it, will surely ruin him. They assured me, that they will try to reform Gambia, Lanthi Bole, N'Kolleh and Prawarhoon, are very small towns, but their marked attention and love for the gospel give us much encouragement to work. Yet some of the villages are full of gospel tired people, they dont like to have the word too often, but we are trying to unfold Christ richest to them nevertheless, as oft as we can. I am thankful to have an assistant Itinerant in the person of Bro. Thomas D. Chambers. He is a very good worker and has a burning zeal for the work. Bro. R. Cookson visited us on the 15th inst. and encouraged the members to hold on in this good noble work. Mandoe is a good field to labor in, notwithstanding the pernicious work of the evil one, yet brighter success is hoped for. We met the chapel in a delapidated condition and solicited aid and thatched it. A bell is needed for the chapel also a few hinges to hang some fallen windows. The mission house is very comfortable. The doors and windows are neatly painted to prevent bugs, from destroying them. My predecessor J. W. Domingo, did remarkably well in the work. We are trying our very best to make an itinerating trip as far as the lower Bargroo, trusting that He with whom we have to do will enable us to march forward.

Yours Truly,

N. E. Thompson.

August 13, 90.

SELECTIONS.

What is Right ?

A great statesman once said, " It is better to be right than to be President," and today we learn from God's word that it is better, far better to be right than to be vice-president, provided that the vice president own a house that is licensed to sell that which daily sends two hundred souls to perdition, for God's word says, " woe unto the man that giveth his neighbor drink, that puttest the bottle to his mouth and maketh him drunken.

Is it right to derive a revenue from a traffic which no Christian man can defend ? Is it right to build churches to save men and license shops to destroy them ? Is it right to license a man to sell alcohol to make a man drunk, and then punish the man for being drunk ? Is it right, ah, is it right for a man to frequent the dram shop during the week, and then represent to the congregation on the next Sabbath that he is a follower of the Lord Jesus Christ ?

Is all this right when we read, " Now, therefore, beware, I pray thee, and drink not wine or nay strong drink." [Judges 13. 4.] Again, we open the Bible and read, " Do not drink wine or strong drink, thou nor thy son with thee, when ye go into the tabernacle of the congregation lest ye die."

Is it right for a man to argue that there is no harm in taking a glass occasionally, when God's word tells us, " Touch not, taste not, handle not, the unclean thing."

Again, " But they also have erred through wine, and through strong drink, and are out of the way." Is it right for a man to profess to be living a Christian life, and daily frequenting these places of drink, when we read, " Ye can not serve two masters, for either ye will hate the one and love the other, or else ye will cling to the one and despise the other Ye can not serve God and mammon." Is it not plain that if every man who professes to be a Christian were truly a Christian, that this traffic would not stand twenty four hours ?

Is it right to license a man to make paupers and tax sober men to take care of them ? Is it right to license a drink-shop to teach vice, and tax people for schools to teach virtue ? Is it right to teach your boy not to drink, and then license a place where he may be taught to drink? Is it right to take care of your own boy, and vote to license a place which will ruin your neighbor's boy ? Is it right for fear of being called cranks for us to remain silent on this subject when we read in God's word, " Cry aloud, spare not, lift up thy voice like a trumpet and show my people their transgression ! " Never should we fail to proclaim his word while the yearly expediture for alcohol is nine hundred millions of dollars. Never should we fail to proclaim his word when we read, " Wine is a mocker and strong drink is raging." Never should we fail to proclaim his word while we read, "No drunkard shall inherit the kingdom of heaven."—M. E. P.

Another Observation Party.

A writter in Good Housekeeping writes of a good way for the exercise of the five senses, as follows:

That Observation Party by Florence Lee is delightful, as I know by experience, but it reminds me so forcibly of an elaboration of the same idea which was once given at a little party that I would like to tell about it The invitations were sent in the ordinary manner with the three little words, "The Five Senses," mysteriously placed in the lower lefthand corner. Some twenty five or thirty bright and lively young people being present the game proceeded in the following manner:

First, a table was brought into the center of the room, on which were twelve articles—a bell, a directory, an orange, etc. The party stood in a circle gazing at these objects for three minutes, then the table was removed, and five minutes were allowed in which to write all that could be remembered of what had been observed during that intensely exciting three minutes.

Next, the leader entered with a basket containing five articles, that is, a cake of soap highly perfumed, a box of sage, an onion, a small quantity of coffee, a bit of heliotrope. Requesting the players to close their eyes he proceeded to allow each one in turn to smell each of the five articles in the basket, then, as before, five minutes were allowed for writing — many of the guesses being somewhat ludicrous, as when one young lady called the cake of soap a slice of pineapple.

Next came the sense of touch, and again the party was politely requested to sit with closed eyes while five articles were passed in a basket and each one allowed to feel just long enough to be able to make a guess. The articles in this case were as follows: A sponge, a mustard plaster (one purchased ready made), a peice of oiled silk, a rough stone, a small piece of tin-foil.

Next was the sense of hearing, and our leader stood in an adjoining room with door almost closed, while he produced the following sounds: Striking a tumbler with a silver knife, waving a branch of rustling leaves, tapping on a tin pie-plate with a piece of wood, pouring water from a pitcher into a cup, tearing a piece of cloth.

Lastly came the sense of taste. With closed eyes each player tasted of three articles just touched to his or her tongue by their trusted leader, that is, a bit of flour, a touch of baking-soda, a tiny taste of ground mace. Then the papers were collected and read, and prizes awarded. There were many laughable mistakes, as when one young man who prided himself on his knowledge of culinary matter, called the soda, cream of tartar, and the flour, borax. As he was preparing himself to take the position of cook on the next summer's camping expedition, there was a hearty laugh all round at his expense.

Extras.—We have reduced the Price for Printing at this Office and trust our many Patrons will avail themselves of the lower rates.

THE EARLY DAWN.

"The Morning Light Is Breaking, The Darkness Disappears."

VOL. VII. BONTHE, LIBERIA, WEST AFRICA, SEPTEMBER 15, 1890. No. 15

The 'Early Dawn'

Published Semi Monthly at Bonthe Sherbro. Under the Auspices of the Board of Missions of the United Brethren in Christ.

Rev. J. A. Evans, Editor and Publisher, Bonthe, Sherbro, West Africa.

AGENTS.

United States.—Rev. B. F. Booth and Wm. Baker, Dayton, O. Rev. L. S. Stafford, Cedar Rapids, Iowa. Rev. Wood Davis, Basil, Ohio. Rev. J. T. Jenifer, Chicago, Ill. Rev. J. L. Hamilton, Marion, O. Rev. J. S. Cleaver, Elkhart, In. Rev. R. P. Burton, Peru, Ind. D. K. Flickinger, Hillsboro, O. Rev. H. Eckell, Dayton, Va. Washington, In. M. J. Stoner, Manchester, In. Master Carlie Howe, Manchester, Ind. Rev. G. W. Arnold, Eldorado, Ohio. West Africa.—J. A. Richards, River Gambia. J. R. Pendergast and Mr. E. A. Lewis, Freetown, Sierra Leone. Rev. James Doputy, Monrovia, Liberia. Rev. Moses Bovie, Liberia.

TERMS.

One Year by mail,	£0	6	0
Delivered in Bonthe,	0	5	6
Half yearly by mail,	0	3	0
Do. delivered in Bonthe,	0	2	9

Palli Station, Bompeh Mission

The work at this town was began early in 1881 by Rev. J. B. W. John who was still in charge of the station. The history of the work at this place has certainly been a varied one. In the beginning the work being new to the people it was not very well appreciated. Then Palli was one of Satan's strongholds, the home of the "medicine man" and "devil doctor." At times however there were evident marks of prosperity, the school and Sabbath Services being well attended. Then again it seemed as if the powers of darkness had risen up against the work. Truly the heathen did rage and the King set himself, and the rulers took counsel together against the Lord. The people became scattered the school was all but deserted, and finally closed and the teacher went out to labour in the surrounding country.

But God had something yet to be done at Palli.

One of our boys who resided here, Richard Caulker, got into trouble with the government officials and was removed to another part of the country. Many of the people came back to the town and built new houses. The devil house which had stood for many years near the church was burned down.

On our arrival there two weeks ago to begin special services we found the town nicely cleaned and the people being already somewhat acquainted with these revival services were quite prepared for our coming.

We began by telling them that the time was fulfilled, the Kingdom of God is at hand ; and that they should "Repent and believe the Gospel." We urged the people to make an immediate surrender of all to the Lord Jesus Christ. As Jesus himself says " He that heareth my word and believeth on him that sent me, hath everlasting life and shall not come into condemnation but is passed from death unto life." Christ always promised a present salvation, and a salvation from all sin. At the first invitation which had been prepared for an after were filled, and many knelt at their seats lifting up their hearts unto God saying " Lord what must I do to be saved." and like one of old we directed them to Jesus who not only had power to heal the man sick of the palsy but also had power to forgive sins. Many believed the word and received the witness of sins forgiven. Quite a lot of medicine and country fashion brought and burned in the mission yard. One man dug up an iron pot and a gun barrel which he had buried for 'saraca' another pulled down the pole he had put up beside his door for the same purpose. During our ten days meeting there were thirty-three conversions. May the Lord continue the good work till it shall spread from farm to farm, from town to town till all shall know him.

For in the knowledge of God there is salvation.

W. Sandford Sage.

Rotutunk Aug. 13th 90.

Mohammedanism in Africa.

But to return to the subject more closely, of Mohammedanism in Africa, and to consider it first as a religion and second as a civilizer. As a religion much has been anticipated in my former papers, yet I should perhaps deal more systematically with such an important phase of the subject before us. Hence I may proceed to discuss the religion of Mohammedanism spiritually, socially and Morally ; of the spirit of this widespread faith, as seen exhibited, by those we should judge, to be most intelligent, and thus the best prepared to exhibit in their real animus of their religion ; we are compelled to call it pride, which seems to be indeed the true spirit of the religion of he prophet Mecca, not to say that forms of humility are absent, but that the worshippers are proud of the very humility they seem to exhibit. The independence of bearing so marked, in Mohammedans, is doubtless more due to the spirit of inbred pride than to simple manliness of disposition There reticence is doubtless more often due to a high opinion of their own importance hence they do not feel to condescend to speak freely with many with whom they come in contact. Who with the least careful observation of the Mohammedan, does not behold in him the very imprint of that pride, which persecuted and finally crucified the very son of God? such a spirit can hardly be calculated to prepare men for a better life in this world or that which is to come, for such pride as it produces only tends to the increase of the difficulties of this life rather than to resolve them. For the greatest end, for which religion is of use to men, that of giving assurance of rest in the future, comfort to the soul of the afflicted and dying, Mohammedanism seems altogether too silent, both in history and tradition, for any can pretend to show from either that Mohammedanism gives that comfort to soul for which the human heart yearns or that assurance in death that christianity gives.

However, supposing the forms of the faith in question there always appears a want of inward enjoyment, such as is a want of inward enjoyment, such as is a want of inward enjoyment, such as is

The Early Dawn

BONTHE, SEPTEMBER 15, 1890.

REV. J. A. EVANS, - EDITOR

[EDITORIAL]

Righteousness is a rare Jewel of the divine setting.

Life in this world is the middle position that man occupies to make choice for eternity.

That the Wages of sin is death, no one pretends to deny, but many go heedlessly on working for such wages.

The heavy Rains of August, with their damp and chill, have bequeathed to the present month the Legacy of many aches and pains.

Jesus as the Light of the world was never more plainly visible, than on this continent today; for wherever a ray of the gospel light, has fallen upon the shades of Pagan night it has chased the darkness.

Falconbridge Letters.

These are a number of very interesting letters written, more than ninetynine years ago, by Mrs. Annie Maria Falconbridge and relate to the early settlement of Freetown. We began the publication of these letters in our issue of the 15th April of the present year. By reference to that issue it will be found that letter 1 bears date of London Jan. 5th 1791, it promises if possible another letter before final departure for Africa; which second letter was duly written seven days later from Southead England, it appeared in our issue of April 30th it shows the writers gift not only in letter writing, but in resolution of purpose, as well as observation of persons and things, characteristics we manifest all through out the narative. Her third letter is the first from Africa, and was commenced in our issue of May 15th and continued in May 31st June 15th & July 15th then we were obliged to discontinue for a time this very interesting narative of the eighteenth century. But with this issue we resume and continue Letter III dated Bance Island Feb. 10th 1791 ninetynine years ago the past Feb., yet in many things how much it reads like some letter would read today, in others it seems to revive an age forgotten. But to resume, our last we left with a description of Jasso, an island near Bance, and claimed by the same Prom., which visited by Falconbridge had visited, and was much pleased with its scenery although fatigued by her work over it. The letter continues as follows.

The next day, we went up the river about twelve miles, to see the settlement of factory belonging to Messrs. Gilbert & Co called Morre Jasso, which is situated on a very pleasant spot on the banks of the river, and consequently had no mosquitoes to disturb their repose. After landing we walked about a mile on a narrow path through the thick woods to the settlement, which we reached as soon as the inhabitants were at their work. We were kindly received by them, and were soon shown to their apartments, which were neat and convenient, and furnished with every thing necessary for our comfort. We were four in number, viz. the master of the factory, a black man and myself, and we had to content ourselves with one bed, on which we all slept—they would not listen to the proposal of our sleeping in hammocks, and said if we did not return immediately to their way we could. It is a custom for you to imagine what has been the reason I have occasioned them for me to point them out.

Finding argument fruitless, we put to the right about, and hastened to our boat; they following, thanked us on each side of the road, heartily observing our courage till they saw us clear off, when as a mark of esteem they discharged their muskets over our heads, and made the woods ring with peals of triumphant clamor. Returning from my frolic a little, I could not help, you may suppose, exulting (though in a different way) as well as the savages. My heart overflowed with gratitude to the author of its creation, for our Providential escape. In returning down the river, we observed numbers of orange trees, a cluster of them was well-laded with fruit, invited us on shore, and after gathering what we choose, made the best of our way, and arrived here before night.

Three days have now elapsed since our ex pedition to Marco Banjo, during which time I have confined myself mostly on board, occupied in writing this letter. It has been really a fatiguing job, being confined to sit in bed with a book placed on my knee, which serves for a writing desk, but I was determined whatever the inconveniences might be not to let slip an opportunity, as I find they but seldom offer. I lament the pa lavor is not over, that I might give you my account of an African Court, but my time will remedy this loss. Mr. Falconbridge has intimated to me that he will be at Robana the day after tomorrow, when Falconbridge is desired to attend; I shall accompany him, and long to know the result.

Adieu, Heaven bless you, &c. &c.

Thus closes the third Letter, written from Bance Island Sierra Leone River and dated Feb. 10th 1791. the Palaver than Mrs. Falcombridge laments her inability to report upon is mentioned in the earlier part of this letter and was a court in which the Chiefs with King Naimbana were to decide whether the Settlers were to be allowed to remain or not

The following letter from our faithful Preacher at Jehovah Station shows that the labors of the Itinerant is not in vain in the Lord, it shows also the ability of having christian teachers stationed about through the country to point anxious seekers to Christ as they draw nigh to the river. Mrs. Stivers was for some years a scholar in the school at Bonthe, where she was married, converted and held her church member-ship for some weeks she had been out of her mind, we trust it is well with her.

Jehovah Station,

Yorgbor for, Sept 4th 1890.

Rev. J. Gomer:

My dear bro.—Just a line or two to inquire after your health and that of Mrs. Gomer. We heard that you were down with fever. A member of the Methodist class at Manobangah was here seriously ill just a few days after my arrival from Shaingay. We visited him, prayed with him and encouraged him to trust firmly in Jesus. On asked as to whether he was ready prepared to die, He said; he was only prepared to die, but he was willing for Jesus to come and take him home. He requested me he should be given a christian burial at his death and this we gladly did in the presence of a large gathering of people from different villages and farkies. We were pleased to know that some were interested with the burial services. On sunday last we went to Greebeenah for the purpose of having a prayer-meeting with the members of the two Mrs. Stivers was present. We sang, prayed, exhorted from the word of scripture and exhorted those present to be at Jehovah an hour after we left.

There is increasing interest in our work and no cause to complain. Our congregations are always the Lord. Yesterday was a blessed day to me. Mrs. Stivers is increasing too. Our love to Mrs. Gomer.

I remain,

Sincerely yours,

H. F. Williams.

CORRESPONDENCE.

Missionaries.

Missionaries as far as I have very much like other people their different temperament appointed of God to the several fields for labor, and are in every sense adapted to their calling, they let their moderation be known to all men, these are the men that move the world quietly and noiselessly they do their work.

Then I have seen another class that I imagined had too much enthusiasm, this was my impression I may have been mistaken, but as a rule these are short lived, I have learned from experience that heathen countries cannot be evangelized in one generation, the children of Israel under Joshua did not utterly drive out the Canaanites but they died in the land.

The writer came out as a missionary a score of years ago with more zeal than knowledge, but experience has taught him that the race is not to the swiftest nor the battle to the strong, but they that hold out faithful to the end.

Then there is still another Class of missionaries, that to all outward appearance lack enthusiasm, I believe I would prefer that a man have too much rather than not enough, they have no zeal whatever, they remind one of the filling of the mason put in the stone wall that the stones are only useful as such, they will never be accused of turning the world upsidedown, all of these are useful in their place, we have to deal with a variety of natures, hence there must be teachers to suit these different natures.

This I have learnt in the score of years that I have been in the service, that the most successful missionary in the mission field is the one that has the largest share of the love of God in his own soul, the Love of God in the soul keeps people humble, he is not continually reminding the people that they are heathen and that he is a Christian and has made a great sacrifice to come and try to civilize them but has found out that he has a big job on his hands, the successful missionary becomes as it were the people, he has a people to him, he has a love for them, both old and young the sick and well for, both old and young the people as well as the prince he carries in a way of sunshine wherever he goes, and is not afraid to sit down in a mud hut and speak words of cheer to the inhabitants, though it is below he not dark.

Mr. Editor this mission work here needs men like Stephen of old full of the Holy Ghost.

J. G.

Quarterly Conference Held At Danville, July 1890.

Opened at eight thirty with singing and was led in prayer by Andrew Wilson after which the Secretary was Elected as secretary for the meeting. The following delegates were appointed for the meeting and the class leaders, Trustees and Sabbath school superintendent and the exhorters, Stewards and Local preachers were examined. The preaching Elders and those who were not on the District of the Church. The pastor present, that during the quarter there was a lively spiritual interest in the Church, many souls were converted during the quarterly services, and the Church was blessed with the spirit of the meeting, many came to hear the word of God and to as many as came the Blessed message of the cross was proclaimed and they listened to with marked attention, there had been a decrease in the two classes as also in the day sabbath school, the result of removal but we feel thankful to Almighty God that none have been removed from our midst by death.

The Itinerant work has not been faithfully prosecuted owing to want of an interpreter to explain.

No. of Towns,	16
Believers Classes,	1
No. of Believers,	6
Seekers Classes,	1
No. of Members,	50
Sunday School,	30
Day School, Children,	12

Amount collected 1st Sunday in every month. Total——£0. 8. 6

Communion service held at Gbamgbiah on sunday Aug 17th in 4 persons communed the Rev. S. B. Morrison preached an interesting sermon on the occasion and all were present were edified.

W. S. Macauley.

26. 8. 90.

Lost or the Experience of an Itinerant.

The Students of the Ruths Clark Training School, have a number of times to wait for Boat crossings and extensions to the people. The principal of the school and tutor have a place on the itinerant plan. One of our villages is so situated that itinerants generally avoid it. Upon crossing the river of M'B——e one [illegible] and a half swamp is to be waded one easter deep and cold. This was repeated when I heard the thought which appeared admissible, that I would not visit that town myself. Some months after I left Shaingay for the village of Mo'B—I had been told by many the place is not fat, one young boy is particular said «On the place is just a short distance over the ridge of [illegible] We walked as far as I—village and then through a long grass field, about [illegible] (a serpent may be near [illegible]) caused a shudder, but I rather accelerated movements than otherwise, so that I soon found myself on solid ground where I could ride my horse.

But no village appeared, only a little boy who accompanied us as a messenger, as might was approaching. I proceeded about the little farm house and found pots &c., but no water so passed on and came to a second [illegible] and on to a third.

Our suspicions that we were lost were by this time confirmed. I concluded to retrace our steps, we did not [illegible] and I found ourselves in the thick bush. We wandered about quite a while and came into a path [illegible] of the town. We made up our minds to spend the remainder of the night. We had no sooner settled ourselves to enjoy the comfort (?) of our situations when myriads of Mosquitoes attacked us. The little boy who had taken shelter in the [illegible] of an a looming rice house, now came to me and calling to me said «please sir, you get any room up there for me sir, mosquitoes want to kill me sir» I replied from my perch, that I had lively room for myself, and that the mosquitoes were attacking me quite briskly. That was a night long to be remembered.—We hailed with joy the dawn of day, when we were enabled to start home. We did not get to Mo'B—but we crossed the dismal swamp and settled the question of the possibility of reaching that village I might add that the next saturday I made an earlier start, and found the road leading to Mo'B, and had interesting meetings. The fact that we had been lost in try to reach the people added much to their interest in the services.

D. F. Wilberforce.

Itinerating in an about Shaingay

I have been asked to write something on Itinerating

My manner of itinerating is perhaps different from most people as I never had any rule by which to work; my work has always been of such a nature in the Mission, that I never could work by a regular [illegible] down plan; we never can tell today what we may have to do tomorrow.

My first attempt to do any thing [illegible] on work was in the village of Shaingay Febry. 3rd 1871; it was with the old Chief Thomas Stephen Caulker and a few of his friends. It was the first day I landed at Shaingay. I made him a present of 8 yards of shirting, 2 lbs. tea Biscuits and a New Testament; I told him that God loved him that the Christians in America loved him, and he should be a Christian; this being my first attempt, my speech was short; I scarcely know what I should say the next time, and ever wondered why God had sent me here to do this kind of work, when I had no liberty of speech.

Mr. D. W. Barton, for many years the General Superintendent of the Mendi Mission, had accompanied me here and introduced me to the old Chief, Febry. 5th Sabbath, I accompanied Mr. Barton to the Barra in Shaingay at 12 o'Clock; the old Chief sent about the Town, and quite a respectable congregation was gathered. Mr. Barton first addressed the people, warning them strongly of their duty to God and themselves, also to myself their Missionary.

This subject gave me a text, and I was able to deliver a address perhaps ten or fifteen minutes long assuring them that I was simply a messenger sent by the great King of heaven, their God and my God, their Father and my Father, I should endeavor to be faithful to my trust, I hoped they would give me all the assistance they could, for we were one people their interest was my interest, and my God must be their God.

I had pleaded with God in prayer to make plain my duty, and shew me what to speak to the people. We put up at a small village in a Creek, quite a train of Boondo girls headed by a Sooko woman, i. e., "big mammy" serenaded us. I asked the headman to call all the people of the town, and let me tell them of the white man's God, and what his orders were; I read a portion of Scripture and explained their relation and duty to God, as a matter of course the people were very attentive as this was all new to them; they were living quite back in the bush, and as their headman said, no person ever came there to tell them word like that, I was much concerned to know if the people would believe what I told them, and act on it, so I watched to see if this effort was to bear any fruit. The headman's wife swept my room and made my bed and cooked for me. She said to my Interpreter, that the words I had talked made her heart feel bad, she was willing to pray, but she did not know how, I taught her a short prayer, and told her, she must pray that prayer until I come again—J. G.

To be Continued.

COMMUNICATION.

The Marriage of J. De'Gray Jones, Esq. to Miss. J. C. Warburton

At Bathurst Gambia.

On Tuesday last the 2rd inst. a select number of Ladies and gents assembled at the residence of Mr J. Jones Warburton in Medina street, in response to invitations to a Quadrille party in honor of the marriage of his sister Julia, to J D'Gray Jones Esq. Merchant of Bathurst Gambia which took place on the 27th July last at the Wesleyan Church in that place.

The house was tastefully decorated with evergreens &c, and the light was very bright.

Between the hours of 7 & 8 p. m. are to be seen Ladies & Gentlemen from every corner wending their way to the house of the above Gentleman.

When a sufficient number of the invited were present, the business of the evening commenced when many busy feet took charge of the floor under the sweet and melodious music performed by Mr Tillotson Johnson, to the satisfaction of all present.

The Programme which was well arranged was nicely carried out.

Refreshments were well provided especially the usual refreshing and invigorating cups —Th se who did not dance took part in the Chess and other games. Among those present were Messrs J. D Macauly (chief clerk of Customs) I. Max well Peters, Bidwell Coker C. T. O'connor-Davis S. P. Wilhlem S. Macauly [of the Commandit Dept.] Wilmot Quaker, S. Lemuel Foule, C. S. Brown, jr F. W. Parkinson, Rowland May [Dispenser.]

Among Ladies were Misses Jowett, C. Macauly, M. Coker, R Pratt, C. Hughes, C Davis.

In consequence of the inclement state of the weather many ladies were prevented from attending.

Much praise is due to Mr. Warburton for the courtesy displayed on the occasion by entertaining so respectable a gathering and it is to be remembered that this is the second time we have witnessed such manifestaton of family love between brothers and sisters or otherwise as was the case of Mr Dispenser May who also had given a party in honor of the marriage of his brother in law Mr. D. L Coller in Freetown in the early part of this year.

This interesting gathering came to a close at 2. a m. on the 3rd inst.—Communicated.

Bonthe Sept. 12 '90

Aground,— The s. s. Susu enroute from Freetown for this place with the mails went aground we understand some where about Macauley's Island on the 9th inst and was only able to get clear on the 12th late in the day. This is the more remarkable from the fact of the Small Size of the vessel and the skill of the Captain; who we believe is a master of more than ordinary Ability

The passengers must have been no little inconvenienced on such a sized vessel under the circumstances.—TALKER.

ADVERTISEMENT.

MR ALFRED A LEWIS,
Jeweller
AND
Electro Metallurgist

begs to inform the Public, of his having established at Otto Street, Bonthe, a workshop wherein the best and choicest workmanship in Gold, or Silver, at shotest notice and for very reasonable prices.

Please send your old Silver candlesticks, Trays, etc, and they will be polished as new, or your English Gold Guard etc, for polishing or Galvanized Bangles and they will be converted.

Your Clooks too can be repaired at moderate prices.

You have only to apply at the Workshop, Otto Street, Corner of Victoria Road, Bonthe.

Apprentices wanted —conditions understood on application.

Bonthe Sherbro.
Sept. 3rd. '90

NEWS ITEMS.

Brig Manson,—American vessel belonging to Messrs Yates and Porterfield left New on saturday the 30th ult for Sierra Leone. The New American consul and wife are Passengers Rotafunk,—at our latest advices about Sept. first Rev & Mrs Sage were expected to leave for Freetown, Mrs. Sage not being quite so well, other Missionaries reported well.

Konconany,—Mr. Cole Reports good for the past month of his work, but his family absent for Medicine and change, he would like some better plan or arangement by which himself and others on the frontier could be supplied with Medicine.

Returned,—From England, S. H. Jones Esq. Agent of the Palma Trading Company Lavanah. He arrived here on the 12th inst per s. s. Susu and gave us a pleasant call on the 13th Mr. Jones is looking fresh and fine.

Sept. 1 s.s. 'Mandingue' from Marseilles via. Freetown consigned to French Company.

A sailing ship arrived with general cargo from Hamburg and consigned to S. B. A. Macfoy.

3—s. s. 'Formoso' arrived from Freetown with general cargo and passengers Messrs J. B. Parkinson, and Mr. and Mrs. Manly.

An inquest was held on the body of a little child who was drowned in the river at Bonth

PERSONAL

Prof. D. F. Wilberforce arrived here on the 5th and left on the 6th for the Impereh.

Capt. Penchoen,—of the s. s. Formoso our old friend gave us a look in on the 5th inst.

Revd. J. Gomer,—Gen'l supt of the Mendi and Sherbro Missions was in this place a few days he left on the 8th inst. for Manoh Gbargroo.

CORRESPONDENCE.

Truth.

The word truth is indeed, but a little one yet it expresses a great principle, too often wanting in many that would have us to believe in their integrity. Truth must be in us in order to be exhibited in our lives for it is a principle that must be as certainly acted as the word is spoken. To speak one thing and act another is not truth. But men are so apt to do this that they do it almost unconsciously; for instance a man is in your employ you ask him if he would like a change to some other place he will usually say yes, while the truth is he does not want to change at all. You meet a man who has recently secured the change of place and employers, which he had long desired, but which he has found to be very hard for him indeed and that he heartily wishes himself out of again; and yet ask that man how he likes his new situation, he will tell you he likes it well. This is said to be for want of courage to speak the truth, but really the greater part of the falsehoods that are told by men are from the same cowardly source and have ever been. Adam out of fear would have made the Lord God to believe that it was not his fault that he had taken the forbidden fruit, but that of Eve, the woman God had given him. Abram was afraid of being killed for Sarah his wife so he said she was his sister, which was explained later on. Isaac said of Rebecca "She is my sister; for he feared to say she is my wife." Jacob told his father that he was Esau because he feared if his father knew that he was Jacob he would have cursed, instead of blessing him.

Knowing this propensity in man the Psalmist's prayer is for truth in the inward parts. Pilate the Roman Governor of Judea was so astounded at the idea of a man speaking the truth, when the Savior of men, testified before him that he came to "bear witness unto the truth" that he (Pilate) retorted "what is Truth?" evincing his own conviction that it was absurd in man to profess to speak the truth. And really when one considers the amount falsehood, there is in all that is spoken by men in their intercourse with each other, he must be struck with the fact that there is but little truth in men, and I doubt not will be convinced that the mere little silver thread of truth that is observable is the devine nature that has been imparted to man by him who in the days of his flesh witnessed a good confession before Pontius Pilate on that morning before he died to save the World.

But this is indeed just the evidence he bears of himself that he, Jesus, is himself the truth, the embodiment of the true-just as man is false by nature and will lie every one to his neighbor; So he is full of truth and will impart of his truthfulness unto everyone who will seek unto him for the Truth. Then let us seek him and receive his truth that we may cease to be false to our fellow but we may be enable to speak the truth; that the Truth make us free.

Yours, J. ALBERT.

Bonthe 3rd 90

SELECTIONS.

My Body-Guard.

It is because I am far removed from those who knew me when I was a boy that I have the moral courage to write the following details of something that occurred in my youth. I should not care to meet the jeers and gibes of my old friends, who will recall as well as I do the humiliating incidents I am about to narrate.

The scene was rural district in a Western State. affair was the result of attempt to play

I was sixteen years old time, and the young lady I favored with my attention a year younger.

There was to be a party a farm house in the neighborhood to which my brother Frank and I had been

I conceived the idea of putting behind me cuffed and of figuring at a party as gentleman by escorting Miss Jessie Sharpe to the party Tarrants.

Miss Jessie sat just across the aisle from me at the school country school, so that was easy enough to me known my desire to her, which I did by wiping my slate very clean, and drawing a variety of queer-looking flowers around the edges, with a supposed turtle-dove in each corner.

In the center I wrote:

Miss Jane: Compliments of the season from Mister Silas B. Darby to Miss Jane Sharpe.

Desiring the pleasure of her society to the Party tonight. Let me know on the other side of the slate, when the teacher is not looking.

When I slyly slipped the note across to Miss Jane, she glanced at it, read the lines, and was at once seized with a violent and prolonged fit of giggling. [illegible] again read the note, peeped slyly at me over the slate, her bright blue eyes twinkling merry, ducked her head under the desk, leaned half-way across the aisle and whispered: "Are you ashamed of your self, Si Darby?"

Nevertheless, when she came back to me there was scrawled on it the words:

Miss Sharpe accepts the compliments of Mr Silas Darby, with thanks for the same.

Then Miss Sharpe turned her back upon me, and again fell to gigging, and did not glance toward me again that day.

Now, while I was not a cowardly boy, there was one animal of which I was mortally afraid, and that was a dog. I never could overcome my fear of a savage dog. The bark of one made my blood run cold, and I could not be induced to go to a house where one was kept. The ugliest little cur could easily put me to flight, and I never could be made to believe that there were dogs which would not bite.

Ten minutes after Miss Jane had sent me her note accepting my company, there flashed into my mind the sickening recollection that Farmer Tarrant [illegible] an ugly, mongrel dog, of which [illegible] afraid, although [illegible] been told that [illegible] giving verification [illegible] and saying that [illegible] never bite."

[illegible] an evil looking [illegible] that I had no [illegible] nature was [illegible] I could not [illegible] being torn at [illegible] a feeling of horror.

Now, of course, Frank was [illegible] dogs. He was fond [illegible] and had a Carthaginian [illegible] as [illegible] them at once [illegible] dogs. If they [illegible] and vicious to [illegible] to a soft voice, carrying [illegible] he had, he could [illegible] at them, and [illegible] out, "Begone" [illegible] way that all ways put them to flight. [illegible] all envied him [illegible] over dogs, but never so much as on the day I asked Miss Jane to accompany me to the party.

Believing Without Explaining.

A man brought a difficult passage to Mr. Moody with "How do you explain that, Mr. Moody?"

"I don't explain it."

"Well, how do you interpret it?"

"I don't interpret it."

"How do you understand it?"

"I don't understand it."

"Well, what do you do with it?"

"I don't do anything with it."

"You don't believe it, do you?"

"Certainly I believe it. There are lots of things I believe that I don't understand. There are a good many things in astronomy, a good many things about my own system that I don't understand; yet I believe them. I am glad there are heights in that Book that I have not been able to climb. I am glad there are depths that I have not been able to fathom. It is the best proof that the Book came from God."

"But you don't believe in the Old Testament it just as you do in the New Testament?"

"Yes, I do. We have one Bible, not two. There very many things in the Old Testament that men cavil at the most today are the things the Son of man set his seal [illegible] when he was down here; and it is not good policy for a servant to be above his master. The Master believed these things.

Let us resolve, first, to cultivate the grace of silence; second, to dream all faultfinding that does no good a sin; and to resolve, when we are ourselves happy not to pierce the atmosphere of our neighbors by calling upon them to remark every painful and disagreeable feature in their daily lives; third, to practice the grace and virtue of praise.

Extras—We have reduced the Prices for Printing at this Office and trust on many Patrons will avail themselves of the lower rates.

THE
Early Dawn
PRINTING OFFICE
PLAIN ARTISTIC and FANCY JOB WORK
EXECUTED AT
SHORT NOTICE
ENQUIRE OF
N. Samuel Thomas,
Caterer.

THE EARLY DAWN.

"The Morning Light Is Breaking, The Darkness Disappears."

VOL. VII. BONTHE, SHERBRO, WEST AFRICA, SEPTEMBER 30, 1890. No. 16

The 'Early Dawn'

Published Semi Monthly at Bonthe Sherbro. Under the Auspices of the Board of Missions of the United Brethren In Christ.

REV. J. A. EVANS, Editor and Publisher, Bonthe, Sherbro, West Africa.

AGENTS.

United States.—Revs. B. F. Booth and Wm. McKee, Dayton O. Rev. I. K. Statton, Cedar Rapids, Iowa. Rev. Wm J. Davis, Basil, Ohio. Rev. J. T. Jenifer, Chicago, Ill. Rev. J. L. Bromley, Marion, O. Rev. J. S. Cleaver, Elkhart in. Rev. R. P. Burton, Pennfield, D. K. Fike, Williamsburg, O. Rev. H. Elwell, Dayton, Washington, Ter., M. J. Stoner, Manheim, Pa., Master Charlie Howe Manchester, Ind. Rev. C. W. Arnold, Eldorado, Ohio. Rev. Wesley Addison, A. Richards, River Gaine, Liberia. Rev. J. R. Frederick and Mr. E.A. Lewis, Freetown, Sierra Leone. Rev. James Dempsey, Marshall Liberia. Mr. Moses Boyle, Liberia.

TERMS.

One Year by mail,	£0	6	0
Delivered in Bonthe,	0	5	6
Half yearly by mail,	0	3	0
Ditto. delivered in Bonthe,	0	2	0

EULOGY ON THUAH-NAMAH.

By a Student of the R. C. & W. Training School.

It is most pitiful for an individual, much more for a nation to be illiterate. Historians have recorded mighty displays of valor and genius. Generals of different nations, and different ranks have risen, and have been gifted more or less of these two things.

For some daring act many acquired fame; Others for some vigilance excited attention. In the current revolutions, a figure appears to us in Sherbro history, that stands most conspicuous.

This figure is the person of Thuah-Namah. Though illiterate, yet he was a man of extraordinary genius. For valor and character, I would call him Alexander; but no! For this was a character superior to that of the great monarch. For military talent, I would call him Hannibal, the great Carthaginian; but no! For Hannibal was a disciplined and lettered soldier. Can I compare him with Napoleon Bonaparte? No! For Napoleon was a tyrant and a usurper.

His fame rang through the woods, and through every village of the Sherbros and Mendies. Methinks I hear songs of triumph sung by the breeze over the spot where lies that champion. O! civilization, art and science, why hide ye your faces, I and are partial, that many a native taste not of your pleasures. Here lies a character, whose name would have thrones or emblazoned pages of history. Whose monuments here and there, the rise of which would fill our hearts with ecstasy. Whose name would glow in the rhyme of Poets and become immortal. He treads the gory field of battle as a lion rampant for its prey he pounces on the enemy amidst the hot [illegible] of the field: his sturdy blows could be heard above the din of battle.

In the heat of action, his weapon glitters like a flash of lightening. Men in nations world face him in the front at break of day, but ere evening, where are they? On the lonely fields, they lie mangled, as if taking a repose. Like Hannibal on the plains of Italy, stood this prodigy on the fields of Sherbro. A terror to nations was he; a defender of truth and peace was he; he sought not only the aggrandizement of his home but his nation and his country. Fraternal affection he owned. But Ah! Then with what rewards are great men rewarded for their mighty actions! A few have tasted pleasure to the end. Like many others, he fell a victim to hatred. Calumny led by venomed monsters he was betrayed to the grave and summoned to the most ominous punishment.

His body was mangled, with swords and sticks, cut in [illegible] like the basest culprits at though born mirable, he died a hero.

Itinerating in and about Shaingay

(Last Issue.)

In a [illegible] to bring [illegible] meeting when [illegible] the [illegible] I found a poor sick [illegible] was literally covered with sores [illegible] for the love of Jesus, [illegible] and eyes, she said, she never knew Jesus, and she could not pray [illegible] to teach her, but I must stay. I had gone there to buy rice, I loaned my boat and came a way, I did not get there again until 1878. I had gone out on an itinerating tour; the village was all changed, the old mud huts had given place to new ones, my meeting was held in a different part of the town, I spoke from the piazza of a hut; a large number of people paid good attention, one woman left the crowd while I was speaking, after I had finished, I enquired [illegible] of the headman and his wife Yeakin I was told he had been dead several years and that Yeakin had left the meeting whilst I was speaking. I sent for her, the messenger met her bringing me a large portion of cooked fowl and rice, in answer to my question, if she was praying yet, she said she was praying till now. The people in Shaingay especially the slave portion, did not attend the sabbath services as well as I thought they ought to, so I used to take an Interpreter and go in the village, and stop a man on the street and ask him why he did not attend the meetings in the barra, while talking to him, others would be passing; I would ask them to stop as the word was for them also; sometimes I would get quite a crowd collected, I would explain to them, why I came to their country viz—The Great God had sent me with a message to them, his love for them their duty etc; I must do my duty and then I would be free, and the case was left with them and God; if they hold the word I told them all right, and if not, I had no business there again, they must settle as best they could with God.

When I was at home, nearly every day I would call to see the old Chief and do a little itinerating on him. He soon began to take an interest in what I told him; he said a Captain of a man of war ship had once read to him out of the Bible, and had told him the same word that I told him, and now he believes it is all true but what can I do? he asked; I am only a poor old heathen. I told him, it made no difference with God, if he believed the word to be true, and would do as God's book told him, he could be a Christian and would get to heaven. He believed and was saved; there's no doubt of that. August 15th 1871. the Master sent for him to come up higher. The old Chief's son was his successor; I tried Itinerating on him, but without success; he had received a fine English education; had spent 8 years in England; and I could tell him nothing that he did not already know: he had Lords many and Gods many in his slaves and wives; he was asleep and could not be awaked, so that for want of the Chief's influence our meetings were very poorly attended. I took to itinerating in the farms; these were scattered about from half to five miles away in the bush from Shaingay. From early morn to late at night, the people are in their farms six months of the year. As the slaves were far the larger portion of the population, and seemed to me to be the most needy, and very few of them attended sabbath services, more of my time was given to them than to the free born; this was quickly noticed by the minority and a jealousy sprang up. I was accused of not caring for them that I wanted the domestics (as they call them) to be free &c. Not wishing to create any offence, I had to use caution: sometimes I have visited 50 & 60 farms on our itinerating trip: I have at times had the people on 2 or 3 farms together. I never attempted to preach to them: I would simply read a portion of God's word I have frequently told them, it was a letter from their Father in Heaven to them; I would explain the Scripture, read and pray with them to show them how to pray; one of their great excuses was they did not know how to pray; another was, they no sabbie English. I made them to understand that God can understand Sherbro and all other languages. I always request the people to ask questions and to express their views, many strange questions have been asked and some strange views expressed. A woman wanted to know if she must put away her old people that minded her, meaning two stones that represented her father and mother that were dead. These stones she kept in her hut, and cooked for them. Another said she did not need a God to take care of her; the old people minded her. I asked where the old people were? she said "look um, 'pointing to a small new hut by the side of her own hut, inside on the ground was spread a piece of white cloth, on which was placed several husk-kook shells. A man once wished to know if God can see in the dark. Many say, God is there for the white people but not for the black. I believe that itinerating in the farms can be made very profitable, for there is a better chance to draw the people out than in public Meetings, and then we can explain better to them the folly of their charms, their medicines, and their sacrifices.—J. G.

To be continued.

Canabalism Tangible.

Whenever a case of cannabalism is brought up in the civil courts the tangibility of the facts are desired and it is difficult to obtain evidence that can be accepted in the case against the party accused, in fact it usually occurs that the most tangible evidence acceptible in a civilized Court, is the body of the victim when such has been secured, but examination has never failed to discover that the wounds on the person of the deceased have been inflicted by cutting or other instrument and that such have not been made by either the Claws or Teeth of wild beasts. Now to me it would seem that such incisions in the flesh of the victim are sufficiently Tangible in themselves to cause an investigation to be made, as in the case of any other Murder, for the perpetrator of such assault on the body of the Deceased person.

And further it seems easy enough to to institute such an investigation in the following manner. After the Coroners Jury have decided as to the manner that the deceased has come to his death, let a measurement be taken from the place where the body was found to the nearest town or village and the people of the same be held for this deed and proper enquiry made by authority into the matter at once on the spot and parties found guilty as principals or accessories should be tried for Murder. And while it is possible that it might inconvenience the Manager, Commandant,or Commissioner a little to repair in person to these places to inquire into such matters it would at the same time be the better for such to make all such enquries on the spot in person, and there is not the slightest doubt but that in most cases sufficient evidence could be obtained to convict the guilty parties. Which being done promptly a few times, would in a short time greatly lessen the number of depredations, if it did not altogether put an end to such crimes. E.

Dear Mr. Editor,

We have very much to regret the fearful act of cannabalism recently perpetrated in one of the adjacent villages connected with our district.

On Thursday the 16th inst. a woman was caught by Leopard in the cantee of a village, called Mo'Canry Sumanah.

Chase however was made after this carnivorous animal; and it was pursued in every nook and corner. But sad to say, that the pursuers, making more haste than good speed, lost sight of the animal, and away it went with the woman. After further enquiry I was made to understand that the perpetrators of this shocking act, and the woman on whom this ferocious assault was made are people living in the same village. And that it is customary with this people when ever they would per form any atrocious deeds, to disguise themselves in the form of any animal they please: so that being under such a disguise, they might not be detected is it not indeed a wonder that human beings are gifted with such supernatural power of changing themselves from men to brutes? such is the state of things at present in this benighted village. But we hope that the [illegible] will soon penetrate into the breasts of these people; and that the time is not far off, when cannibalism, and [illegible] ism, will be utterly abolished from these shores.

Faithfully Yours,—T. D. Chambers,
Mando Station.

August 30th 90.

THE CAUSE OF MISSIONS—Should now engage the hearts of men, because of the fact that almost every interest in this life, depends upon the good behaviour of mankind.

The Early Dawn

BONTHE, SEPTEMBER 30, 1890.

REV. J. A. EVANS, - EDITOR.

[EDITORIAL.]

Rembee Gone Dry.—In the United States when a town or District votes against the sale of liquor, it is said to have "gone dry," hence the above in reference to Rembee, a town of the Shaingay District, that has suppressed the sale of spirits.

Hurrah for Rembee.—this country town near to the mouth of the Bompeh River, in Regent Chief T. N. Caulker's territory has actually put their foot on the sale of all kinds of spirits no trader is allowed to sell and no citizen is allowed to buy spirits in the town. The town people have built a nice place for worship and furnished it with wooden seats and made a pulpit that is far more useful than ornamental. I went over with several others from this place to attend the Sabbath Service 28 persons were baptized and several that applied were refused 9 were received into the church. Rev. F. M. Stewart is the man in charge of the Station.

Filling Up The Ranks.—We understand that other Missionaries of the Y. M. C. A. are expected, and also another lady for the Bompeh Mission, if so these will fill the places that have just been vacated, so the work moves on.

Good News.—Rev. H. W. Johnston's mission in Freetown, we are pleased to learn, appears to be bearing fruit he has had several conversions recently and expected others, we wish him every success.

The Y.M.C.A. Missionaries,—or some of them at least, are expected to start inteior, although the actual field of labor has not yet been decided upon. May the Lord of the harvest direct them.

Falconbridge Letters.

At the close letter III. Mrs. Falconbridge informs the Chiefs were in town on the 12th of Feb. 1791, at Robana the seat of King Naimbana, and that Mr. Falconbridge was desired to be present, to hear the matter of the reinstatement of the Settlers discussed by the Chiefs.

But before proceeding with her fourth letter it may be well to remind the readers that Mr. Falconbridge had already secured the promise of help in this Palaver from King Naimbana, and also the Boom an influential up river Chief so that he had good reason to hope for a favorable result however let us proceed with Letter IV. which is as follows—

Granville Town,
Sierra Leone,
May 13th 1791.

My Dear Friend,—Occasional visits to Banse Island, unattended by any important occurrence worth troubling you with, and a continual concourse of strangers, making them African compliments engrossed two days interval between the date of my last letter, and our second expedition to Robana, when we set out in a Boat and four hands, taking with us plenty of spirits for the common people, and a little wine for the King and his associates. When we came in sight of the Town, multitudes of people thronged to the Beach. Mr. Elliotte met us at the boat, and the crowd formed an avenue, through which he conducted us to the Queen's house. Amidst such thundering acclamations, that it was almost impossible to hear one or the other speak. The King and Queen met us at the door, and seemed to give us a hearty welcome. We were then ushered in, and introduced in general terms to the company, consisting of the parties who were to compose the Court, (and a multiplicity of women,) their wives, daughters, and attendants. Having seated ourselves, and wasted almost an hour in receiving the civilities of shaking hands with every individual in the room, the mem court then took their seats, a table we dined off, when the table was now covered with a green cloth. The King sat at the head of the table in an old arm chair, on his right was his Secretary, and on his left his Palavar man; or as the office is termed in England, his Attorney General, the other Chiefs appeared to seat themselves by seniority; the oldest next the Throne, if I may so term the old chair. The King wore his hat, which was the gold laced one Falconbridge gave him. On the table was placed wine and rum, of which every one helped himself plentifully. I was astonished to see, not only the men, but women drink rum in half pints at a time as deliberately as I would water.

After Amusing themselves sometime in this way, Mr Palaver Man got up, bonding his right knee, presented his Majesty with some Cola from the Crown of his hat, then retired to the opposite end of the Table, when he opened the business of the day, by a speech of at least an hour and a half long, it being in their own language, I of course, did not understand a word, but during the time he spoke, there was the greatest silence and attention observed. The next spokesman, was King Jemmie, who previously went through the same ceremony his predecessor had done, whether this man's language was eloquent or not I cannot be a judge, but his vociferation was enough to deafen one; though I had reason to think that what he said gave great satisfaction to the bystanders, who frequently interrupted him by clapping of hands and shouts of Ya Hoo! Ya Hoo! Ya Hoo! and others tokens of applause.

My heart quivered with fear least they might be forming some treacherous contrivance, I could not conceal the uneasiness I felt, my countenance betrayed me, a shower of tears burst from my eyes, and I swooned into hysterics. Recovering in a short time, I observed every one around, treating me with the utmost kindness, and endeavoring to convince me that neither insult or injury would be offered us: but by fears were not to be removed, or even checked hastily, for I had scarcely got the better of my fright at Mano Bump, however I struggled to awaken my resolution, and collected enough, after a while to affect composure, but believe me it was mere affectation; Night was drawing nigh, and I solicited Falconbridge to return as soon as possible, he urged the Court had been impeded by an awkward situation my fears had thrown me into; but he would set out time enough to reach Banse Island before dark.

The Assembly now resumed their business. One or two members offered Cola to the King, which he refused: a grey headed old man then made the offer, and it being accepted, he took the foot of the table, and a few words completing what he had to say.

Mr. Elliott intimated that King Naimbana intended to give his sentence; upon which every member rose up, and the King continuing in his chair, delivered his speech in a concise, clear and respectable manner. After this Mr. Elliotte acquainted Falconbridge the Court could not come to one mind that, day but it was generally understood, if he would give fifteen hundred Bars they would confirm King Naimbana's engagement with Captain, and re-establish his people.

Such is Mrs. Falconbridges' account of the Palaver refered to in our last issue. Of course it will be observed that the Palavar was not finished, but rather adjourned until the next day and as we shall hereafter find that the matter produced for many days at Mr. Falconbridge's Expense. The trouble in this appears to have been threefold; first King Naimbana had disposed of Lands in the first instance without the usual ceremony with the chiefs, second he had only received a trifling amount for the lands as may be seen by reference to the Official records of Sierra (Treaty No. 1 of Aug 22nd 1788) and third the bad conduct of the settlers. The foot notes of Mrs Falconbridge explaining the Cola, to be a bitter fruit of Africa; as also another showing the indefinite value of the African Bar seem unnecessary at this age, hence we omit them. But one would scarcely be surprized at the chiefs feeling justified in asking the sum of fifteen hundred Bars to confirm the engagement which King Naimbana had unlawfully entered into, without their formal consent, bartering away the whole of Peninsular Sierra Leone for; one embroidered bersode coat, waistcoat, and Breeches, a crimson satin embroidered waistcoat, a lead-colored satin coat, a second waistcoat, a mock diamond ring two pairs Pistols one tel escope two pairs of gold ear rings with necklaces and drops, eight dozen bottles of wine, one puncheon of rum; a tierce, or three hundredweight of pork; one box of smoking pipes; seven muskets; Twenty pounds of tobacco, one piece of fine white calico; 10 lbs of beads in lots, two cheeses weighing 28 lbs: 200 gun flints: and one dozen bottles of red Port wine.

Temperance Again.

It is pleasing to the friends of human liberty, to contemplate the advance being made in cause of temperance, in our various Communities, for where men are temperate in drinking the fact is they are pretty likely to be, in other worldly necessities, and this being the case; it seems to us the best policy to remove the drink, and then the other concomitant evils resulting in very large measure from this source will naturally cease of themselves; or falling of this we shall turn our batte les upon them and fight them as we now fight King Alcohol. Friends of Temperance in the Sherbro Country will no doubt be glad to learn that on yesterday the ground. The Wesleyan Christian Temperance Union, has secured an actual footing on this coast and we are pleased to note that there have now 4 Unions in these Settlements, located in Freetown, Shaingay, and Rotafunk, as the result of Mrs Leavitt. Visit to this Colony. Besides this we understand, that there has been arrangements made for further organization of Unions under the direction Lady Ingham, and the work thus enlarged. How we can scarcely refrain from expressing our feelings of jealousy that Sherbro is not made to the front in organizing a Union in this place; especially since our town is the next in size to Freetown and of Considerable Commercial importance and with a very much in need of an organization of some kind among the Women.

The progress of the Temperance is very noticeable at Shaingay and is perhaps largely due to the effectual working of the Temperance Army that has been in operation there for several years. There is now also a W. C. T. Union to aid in the good work at that Place. A Petition has also been circulated for the Suppression of the liquor traffic in the vicinity of Shaingay and really received a good number of signers we believe. But Bombee so far leads the van in the Temperance Reform as will be seen by reference to An Article on our fourth Page. Rotafunk is doing well too and has been the scene of well fought battles in the good Cause.

CORRESPONDENCE.

Agriculture.

Mr. Editor— This Subject is now an grossing more than ordinary attention in and around these Settlements; it seems now no longer a question as to whether it will pay, for it is generally believed that it will yield a living in all cases, and that in many cases a profit may be realized by careful and persistent effort on the part of the farmer. And owing to the almost general conviction that trade at best is very doubtful as to profit and will not pay in many cases at all, many men who hitherto would not think of planting or the tilling soil are begining to cast about at least for suitable situations for at least a try Added to those who are thus openly in sesarch of lands for agricultural purposes, are quite a number who are much inclined to the idea and it is quite probable that the next decade will witness a greatly altered complexion in our various communities and that agriculture will engage the attention of hundreds yea thousands now solely engaged in a precarious Trade.

I am not of the opinion that this revolution, is to be brought about by the choice of those who are to figure in it for the years to come, but indeed by circumstances that are now already begining to shape the furture of many who for the present are still clinging to the wreckage of a shipwrecked Trade.

And I am further of the opinion that agriculture is not only a necessity, but a moral obligation binding upon the people of every clime in proportion to their opportunity for pursuing the same and that when, and wherever the soil is neglected men must and will suffer the punishment of God for such neglect and herein, I have for a good many years believed, lies the trouble in a large measure with this part of Africa. Civilization has tried to establish Religion and commerce on a neglected soil, and this God has not been pleased to permit, nor do I believe he will ever permit and the hope of Africa for the future lies in the expulsion of the spirits Traffic the Establishment of Agriculture, legitimate commerce and pure Religion.

Yours Truly
J. ALBERT.

A trip to Shaingay.

Dear Mr. Editor

On the 8th inst in company with the Rev. J. Gomer Superintendent of the Shaingay Mission, I left the Mendi Mission pier, after fare well greetings of loved ones and kind friends. After a short rowing down to Bomp-Lake point, the South winds veered round to a precinct of west and unanimously made up the South west winds which expanded the canvas of our craft, and enhanced its speed in bearing us away to Avery Station, where the Superintendent had intended passing for Shaingay. I had been invited for a short visit.

The space I intend to fill will not permit my giving a detailed account of the various objects that meet our gaze while riding along the river. The tall majestic mangrove forests with their lively denizens sometimes known as springing mutton; the mud monsters with their elongated snouts; the pestilentious visitors in the mangrove flies.

The exertion made either to destroy, or to drive away this last named unpleasant visitors recommended our attention to the Canteen which by some unaccountable oversight was almost freightless. However, we found some relief from the native adage "Crab's hole never dry," and from collections of very little, we had all things common". About 3 p. m. Avery was reached. I was much taken up with the grandeur and beauty of this place. And while I scanned over the tract of rich and fertile soil which lay untouched by cultivation, I saw some causes why hardness of time is so prevailing. But I am only telling of a trip The next day we left for Shaingay; we had a pleasant ride in rowing down the river, and was anticipating being at Shaingay by the next morning, and so in time to attend the Temperance Society. But it was destined to be otherwise.

Mr. Boreas was in to take the initiative, and give commands for future action. One of his freaks removed little Gordon's (one of Mr. Gomer's boys) cap, and carried it off; and although Gordon supplemented it with earnest tears, yet Boreas was not appeased; and we had to spend pretty near three days in viewing his jury; and about 1 p.m. on the 11 inst. we had him behind us, and landed at the Shaingay Mission pier. Having landed, it was unnecessary to recommend rest for every one felt his need of it. The Revs. Messrs Sage and West with their wives were here on their way to Freetown; the former with his wife, (whose health was in a precarious condition) on their way for America. I was glad to be here on the Sabbath.

It was a wet morning—but notwithstanding this, the classes, three in all, were well attended; the Itinerants under a drenching rain, went their rounds. The writer attended the Barra Seekers class, and it was gratifying to hear the little ones speak of the goodness of God, and their duty to christ—there were some timid ones; but these were roused into action by a stirring appeal from the Rev. D. F. Wilberforce and the leader Rev. E. C Bickersteth: and the result was good. The 11 a. m service was conducted by Bro. G. C. Taylor late of manoh, but now acting as chief in the agricultural department. His discourse from Num: 21: 9. was bold and soulstirring. The 5. p. m. service was also well attended although the evening was cloudy.

The Sabbath School was also well attended, and interest good. Signs of the "Drama" are yet to be seen in the auditorium of the Training School

Really, "They are doing a great work here. I almost wished I could dwell here, just to revel in these enjoyments but I must refrain, or some of your readers will think of planting

"You lay at the catch," at me; as Christian influence, and not personal enjoyment, was laid down to be the grand end of true christian excellence.

The business of my visit being completed, I left Shaingay for this end on the 16th. at 7. a. m. Mr. Boreas was making arrangements for his day's duty and about 10 a. m. off Yainkain's Point, he made his appearance, apologised for past treatment, we became friends, and then rendered his energies to bring us home. He was too energetic abreast Tucker River, Mando, and Bembelloh, and almost suspected he would play me his tricks; but after all it was pleasant, and I reached home, in safety at 9 30.p.m.

Thanking you kindly for space granted.

Yours,
EARNSHAW C.

COMMUNICATION.

Current Topics.

In our Sherbro District, as almost a matter of course, trade occupies the uppermost place in the conversation of nearly all classes. This is because of the fact that nearly everybody trades, of course all do not have shops or stores, but we may say every one even to the poorest native has something to exchange for something else, however there are a few exceptions to the rule found among the Government Officials who we believe are obliged to abstain from the general habit of trading, and it may be some persons connected with the religious establishments are to be excepted, but not all of the Latter for so general is the practice that persons are obliged to barter for their very eating. The few persons that do not trade are familiar with it as a topic and as it affects every interest here, even from the Government House to the poorest hut in the native Fakies, every body very naturally talks about it, but of course all are not intelligent yet each one knows his or her own wants and judges the trade accordingly.

The more inteligent do little better for almost all see through their own environment and speak freely their hopes and fears according to appearances. Hence it is very difficult to from any correct judgement of the real condition of things form what any one or a dozen say about it, but we are obliged to listen to many and afterward draw our own conclusions, in most cases. However, it seems to be the feeling of the large Majority, that a larger vessel should be employed in the Mail service, between this port and Freetown to prevent monopoly in Trade and which will greatly lessen the same, by preventing European houses from enjoying the opportunity of selling to a larger number buyers who would ultimately increase the demand for European fabrics. It is also pretty evident that the present arrangement of transit is likely to reflect upon the exchequer by diminishing rather than increasing the agregate Traffic of this District. And as it can be of no advantage to the Government to lessen the trade of Sherbro; it would seem wise for the Governor and Council to be sure, that in effecting a small saving in the Mail service that they do not thereby throw an obstacle in the way of the developement of Trade. Much is just now being said about new houses, opening or to be opened here, and the many lines of steamers running or to be run between this Coast and Europe, all are regarded as hopeful omens of the future, and yet there seems a felt want of something else, for the masses to depend upon besides the Trade. Agriculture is much talked of by a great many, but it is yet the great untried experiment and the question with many is how shall I get at it? how must I begin this work? almost daily these questions are discussed in some way, more or less by some one.

Education receives a share of the attention of a few but not by any means that consideration it ought to have; for the patrons of Schools—i. e. those who send their Children think too little of how their Children attend or whether they learn as fast as they ought or not.

One thing is easily observable almost everywhere, and that is that pupils do not advance as they ought, few master are satisfied with the progress and success of their Schools.

Religion is rather too much of a Sunday Topic, with us; men seem averse to having this Sacred Subject discussed in secular places, and as some seldom attend the places of worship they are not conversant with this Subject and prefer to talk Trade even on holy-days and Sundays, however, there are blessed exception, to the rule, and we do see, and hear of something good being done.

Yet there is a felt need of more workers in the churches and better directed effort toward the encouragement of true piety among the people.

Other topics of course are discussed, but the ones we have mentioned occupy the most attention.

J. A. E.

PERSONAL.

Dr. Alice Harris,—We are pleased to learn, is succeeding well in Medical practice in Freetown and from what we can gather is withal a brilliant member of society.

Mr. Cecil S. W. Pooley,—Son and assistant of Mr. Rob. P. Pooley agent Yates & Porterfield Freetown is expected out by the Bark Liberia appointed to sail from New York Oct. 5th proximo.

Rev. and Mrs. W. S. Sage—We regret to note have been recently compelled, by the failing health of Mrs. Sage, to return to America.

Capt. F. W. Clarke,—who won such favorable popular notice, in the rescue of the Kinsembo, last December; now the afable master of that Veteran Coast Steamer the Susu, gave us a look in on the 20th. and subscribed for Two Copies of the "Early Dawn".

S. H. Jones Esqr—agent, Palmer Trading Company, just before leaving for Lavanah on the 20th. inst. subscribed for a second Copy of our Paper to be sent to England.

An Elaborate address was delivered by A. G. Tilly Esqr. on Sunday the 14 to the members of the St. Luke's Sabbath School Bendoo. Great praise is due the addresser for the able manner in which he has delivered his address.

J. B. Williams Esqre.,—chief of Bompehtooke Shaingay District, we regret to learn continues quite ill.

Mr J. B. Parkinson J. P. of this place has been seriously ill, so much so at one time, that life we understand was dispaired of, he now we are glad to note, recovering.

neral of the Court,) their Hav. almost ities of eel in court e ta- which cloth table in was his Palavar n Eng- other lives by Throne. r. The e gold m- On um, of plenti- ot only in halt I would metime got up, ated his e Crown opposite hed the th of at it being arse, did ring the greatest d. The ne, who ne cere- , whether quent or n voici- n one; at what t to the errupted hout of nd othact they ous con the un- betrayed oom my ce. Re- observed with the ring to r to in- y fears k check- get the up, how- resolve a while re me it e a draw- bridge r argued by the thrown time e- f before d their s offered ised a ade the break the ls com-

g Nam- ments ; up, and covered e, clear ter this bridge ne mind borrowed, ks they engage blish his

Such is Mrs. Falconbridges' account of the Palaver refered to in our last issue. Of course it will be observed that the Palavar was not finished, but rather adjourned until the next day and as we shall hereafter find that the matter pended for many days at mr. Falconbridge's Expense. The trouble in this appears to have been threefold ; first King Nambana had disposed of Lands in the first instance without the usual ceremony with the chiefs, second he had only received a trifling amount for the lands as may be seen by reference to the Official records of Sierra (Treaty No. 1 of Aug 22nd 1788) and third the bad conduct of the settlers. The foot notes of Mrs Falconbridge explaining the Cola, to be a bitter fruit of Africa; as also another showing the indefinite value of the African Bar seem unnecessary at this age, hence we omit them. But one would scarcely be surprized at the chiefs feeling justified in asking the sum of fifteen hundred Bars to confirm the engagement which King Naimbana had unlawfully entered into, without their formal consent, bartering away the whole of Peninsular Sierra Leone for; one embroidered bersode coat, waistcoat, and Breeches, a crimson satin embroidered waistcoat, a lead-colored satin coat, waistcoat and breeches a mock diamond ring two pairs Pistols one telescope two pairs of gold ear rings with necklaces and drops, eight dozen bottles of wine, one puncheon of rum; a tierce, or three hundredweight of pork; one box of smoking pipes; seven muskets; Twenty pounds of tobacco, one piece of fine white calico; 10 lbs of beads in lots, two cheeses weighing 28 lbs: 200 gun flints: and one dozen bottles of red Port wine.

Temperance Again.

It is pleasing to the friends of human liberty, to contemplate the advance being made in cause of temperance, in our various Communities, for where men are temperate in drinking the fact is they are pretty likely to be, in other viscious propensities, and this being the case; it seems to us the best policy to remove the drink, and then the other concomitant evils resulting in very large measure from this source will gradually cease of themselves, or failing of this we shall turn our batte ies upon these and fight them as we now fight King Alcohol. Friends of the Temperance Cause, push on you are gaining ground. The Womans Christian Temperance Union, has secured an actual footing on this coast and we are pleased to note that we have now 2 Unions in these settlements, located in Freetown, Shaingay, and Roxbank, as the result of Mrs. Leavitt Visit to this Colony. Besides this we understand that there has been arrangements made for further organizations of Unions under the direction Lady Ingram, and the work thus enlarged. But we can scarcely refrain from expressing our feelings of jealousy that no effort has been made up to date to organize a Union in this place; especially since our town is the next in size to Freetown and of Considerable Commercial importance and with all very much in need of an organization of same kind among the Women.

The progress of the Temperance is very noticeable at Shaingay and is perhaps largely due to the effectual working of the Temperance Army that has been in operation there for several years. There is now also a W. C. T. Union to aid in the good work at that Place. A Petition has also been circulated for the Suppression of the liquor traffic in the vicinity of Shaingay and really received a good number of signers we believe. But Rombee so far leads the van in the Temperance Reform as will be seen by reference to An Article on our fourth Page. Rotafunk is doing well too and has been the scene of well fought battles in the good Cause.

CORRESPONDENCE

Agriculture.

Mr. Editor— This Subject is now engrossing more than ordinary attention in and around these Settlements; it seems now no longer a question as to whether it will pay, for it is generally believed that it will yield a living in all cases, and that in many cases a profit may be realized by careful and persistent effort on the part of the farmer.

And owing to the almost general conviction that trade at best is very doubtful as to profit and will not pay in many cases at all, many men who hitherto would not think of planting or the tilling soil are begining to cast about at least for suitable situations for at least a try. Added to those who are thus openly in search of lands for agricultural purposes, are quite a number who are much inclined to the idea and it is quite probable that the next decade will witness a greatly altered complexion in our various communities and that agriculture will engage the attention of hundreds yea thousands now solely engaged in a piccarious Trade.

I am not of the opinion that this revolution, is to be brought about by the choice of those who are to figure in it for the years to come, but indeed by circumstances that are now already begining to shape the furture of many, who for the present are still clinging to the wreckage of a shipwrecked Trade.

And I am further of the opinion that agriculture is not only a necessity, but a moral obligation binding upon the people of every clime in proportion to their oportunity for pursuing the same, and that when, and wherever the soil is neglected men must and will suffer the punishment of God for such neglect, and herein, I have for a good many years believed, lies the trouble in a large measure with this part of Africa. Civilization has tried to establish Religion and commerce on a neglected soil, and the God has not been pleased to permit nor do I believe he will ever permit and the hope of Africa for the future lies in the expulsion of the spirits Traffic, the Establishment of Agriculture, legitimate commerce and pure Religion.

Yours Truly
J. ALDIS.

A trip to Shaingay.

Dear Mr. Editor

On the 5th inst in company with the Rev. J. Gomer Superintendent of the Shaingay Mission, I left the Mendi Mission pier, after farewell greetings of loved ones and kind friends. After a short rowing down to Bomp-Luke point, the South winds veered round to a precinct of west and unanimously made up the South west winds which expanded the canvas of our craft, and enhanced its speed in bearing us away to Avery Station, where the Superintendent had intended passing for Shaingay. I had been invited for a short visit.

The space I intend to fill will not permit my giving a detailed account of the various objects that meet our gaze while riding along the river. The tall majestic mangrove forests with their lively denizens sometimes known as springing mutton; the mud monsters with their elongated snouts; the pestilentious visitors, in the mangrove flies.

The exertion made either to destroy, or to drive away this last named unpleasant visitors recommended our attention to the Canteen which by some unaccountable oversight was almost freightless. However, we found some relief from the native adage "Crab's hole never dry," and from collections of very little, "we had all things common". About 3 p. m. Avery was reached. I was much taken up with the grandeur and beauty of this place. And while I scanned over the tract of rich and fertile soil which lay untouched by cultivation, I saw some causes why hardness of time is so prevailing. But I am only telling of a trip. The next day we left for Shaingay; we had a pleasant ride in rowing down the river, and was anticipating being at Shaingay by the next morning, and so in time to attend the Temperance Society. But it was destined to be otherwise.

Mr. Boreas was in to take the initiative, and give commands for future action. One of his freaks removed little Gordon's (one of Mr. Gomer's boys) cap, and carried it off; and although Gordon supplemented it with earnest tears, yet Boreas was not appeased; and we had to spend pretty near three days in viewing his jury; and about 1 p. m. on the 11 inst. we had him behind us, and landed at the Shaingay Mission pier. Having landed, it was unnecessary to recommend rest for every one felt his need of it. The Revs. Messrs Sage and West with their wives were here on their way to Freetown; the former with his wife, (whose health was in a precarious condition) on their way to America. I was glad to be here on the Sabbath.

It was a wet morning—but notwithstanding this, the classes, three in all, were well attended; the Itinerants under a drenching rain, went their rounds. The writer attended the Barra Seekers class, and it was gratifying to hear the little ones speak of the goodness of God, and their duty to christ—there were some timid ones; but these were roused into action by a stirring appeal from the Rev. D. F. Wilberforce and the leader Rev. E. C Bickersteth and the result was good. The 11 a. m service was conducted by Bro. G. C. Taylor late of manoh, but now acting as chief in the agricultural department. His discourse from Num: 21: 9. was bold and soulstirring. The 5. p. m. service was also well attended although the evening was cloudy.

The Sabbath School was also well attended, and interest good. Signs of the "Drama" are yet to be seen in the auditorium of the Training School

Really, "They are doing a great work" here. I almost wished I could dwell here, just to revel in these enjoyments but I must refrain, or some of your readers at that end will point

"You lay at the catch," at me; as Christian influence, and not personal enjoyment, was laid down to be the grand end of true christian excellence.

The business of my visit being completed, I left Shaingay for this end on the 16th. at 7. a. m. Mr. Boreas was making arrangements for his day's duty and about 10 a. m. off Yainkain's Point, he made his appearance, apologised for past treatment, we became friends, and then rendered his energies to bring us home. He was too energetic abreast Tucker River, Mando, and Bembelloh, and almost suspected he would play me his tricks; but after all it was pleasant, and I reached home, in safety at 9 30.p.m.

Thanking you kindly for space granted.

Yours,
EARNSHAW C.

COMMUNICATION.

Current Topics

In our Sherbro District, as almost a matter of course, trade occupies the uppermost place in the conversation of nearly all classes. This is because of the fact that nearly everybody trades, of course all do not have shops or stores, but we may say every one even to the poorest native has something to exchange for something else, however there are a few exceptions to the rule found among the Government Officials who we believe are obliged to abstain from the general habit of trading, and it may be some persons connected with the religious establishments are to be excepted, but not all of the Latter for so general is the practice that persons are obliged to barter for their very eating. The few persons that do not trade are familiar with it as a topic and as it affects every interest here, even from the Government House to the poorest hut in the native Fakies, every body very naturally talks about it, but of course all are not intelligent yet each one knows his or her own wants and judges the trade accordingly.

The more inteligent do little better for almost all see through their own environment and speak freely their hopes and fears according to appearances. Hence it is very difficult to from any correct judgement of the real condition of things form what any one or a dozen say about it, but we are obliged to listen to many and afterward draw our own conclusions, in most cases. However, it seems to be the feeling of the large Majority, that a larger vessel should be employed in the Mail service, between this port and Freetown to prevent monopoly in Trade and which will greatly lessen the same, by preventing European houses from enjoying the opportunity of selling to a larger number buyers who would ultimately increase the demand for European fabrics. It is also pretty evident that the present arrangement of transit is likely to reflect upon the exchequer by diminishing rather than increasing the agregate Traffic of this District. And as it can be of no advantage to the Government to lessen the trade of Sherbro; it would seem wise for the Governor and Council to be sure, that in effecting a small saving in the Mail service that they do not thereby throw an obstacle in the way of the developement of Trade. Much is just now being said about new houses, opening of to be opened here, and the many lines of steamers running or to be run between this Coast and Europe, all are regarded as hopeful omens of the future, and yet there seems a felt want of something else, for the masses to depend upon besides the Trade. Agriculture is much talked of by a great many, but it is yet the great untried experiment and the question with many is how shall I get at it? how must I begin this work? almost daily these questions are discussed in some way, more or less by some one.

Education receives a share of the attention of a few but not by any means that consideration it ought to have; for the patrons of Schools—i. e. those who send their Children—think too little of how their Children attend or whether they learn as fast as they ought or not.

One thing is easily observable almost everywhere, and that is that pupils do not advance as they ought, few master are satisfied with the progress and success of their Schools.

Religion is rather too much of a Sunday Topic, with us; men seem averse to having this Sacred Subject discussed in secular places, and as some seldom attend the places of worship they are not conversant with this Subject and prefer to talk Trade even on holy-days and Sundays, however, there are blessed exception, to the rule, and we do see, and hear of something good being done.

Yet there is a felt need of more workers in the churches and better directed effort toward the encouragement of true piety among the people.

Other topics of course are discussed, but the ones we have mentioned occupy the most attention.

J. A. E.

PERSONAL.

Dr. Alice Harris,—We are pleased to learn, is succeeding well in Medical practice in Freetown and from what we can gather is withal a brilliant member of society.

Mr. Cecil S. W. Pooley,—Son and assistant of Mr. Rob. P. Pooley agent Yates & Porterfield Freetown is expected out by the Bark Liberia appointed to sail from New York Oct. 5th proximo.

Rev. and Mrs. W. S. Sage—We regret to note have been recently compelled, by the failing health of Mrs. Sage, to return to America.

Capt. F. W. Clarke,—who won such favorable popular notice, in the rescue of the Kinsembo, last December; now the afable master of that Veteran Coast Steamer the Susu, gave us a look in on the 20th. and subscribed for Two Copies of the "Early Dawn".

S. H. Jones Esqr.—agent, Palmer Trading Company, just before leaving for Lavanah on the 20th. inst. subscribed for a second Copy of our Paper to be sent to England.

An Elaborate address was delivered by A. G. Tilly Esqr. on Sunday the 14 to the members of the St. Luke's Sabbath School Bendoo. Great praise is due the addresser for the able manner in which he has delivered his address.

J. B. Williams Esqre.,—chief of Bompehtooke Shaingay District, we regret to learn continues quite ill.

Mr J. B. Parkinson J. P. of this place has been seriously ill, so much so at one time, that life we understand was despaired of, he now we are glad to note, recovering.

CORRESPONDENCE.

Rembee Protest, Again

Dear Editor,—I wrote you sometime ago, the effect, the protest the sale of spirits made in the minds of the people and traders of this place, and how they were buying secretly, also the persecution we were receiving from the Mahommedan traders. I am now glad to say that all have come to an end. Sometime in the month of July, there was some irregularity in the town, which I called the head men's attention to. And it was decided to see Kong Boome to call a meeting to regulate the town better. So on saturday July 26th, Sobole, Faux, Bear Yemmy, and myself went to Kong Boome. After telling him about the disorder in the town, the matter of the rum traffic was put before him that the people were buying secretly, several other things said and it was shown by one man, how that some of the traders came to him with a piece of cloth to buy medicine to kill me, for putting a law not to sell rum. And although they tried in many ways done proved, successful, ("For my life is hid with Christ in God") One of the traders told me afterwards that they have met together in council several times against my life, but it is only God who was with me or I would have been dead by this time. Our meeting with Kong Boome was adjoined to meet in the town on Thusday the 31st. Word was sent to all the different Fakies connected with Rembee to meet on that day. On wednesday he came, and sent again, that all the people should meet the next day. Accordingly all came; and a proclamation was made on Thursday evening, that no one should go to farm the next morning. After prayers on Friday morning all gath'rd at Kong Boome's The first thing that was taken up was the rum matter, and it was discussed very strongly. After all it was said that if the people do not respect the law, because it was done in white man's way, by writing, they will turn it to the black man's fashion, Purrow Law. A stick was brought, and the Purrow was put on it. After saying all that was necessary against the sale of rum, gin, etc, etc, in the town of Rembee, the principal men took the stick and drove it firmly into the ground, when all the people shouted, "Amen! the law is firm." And so ends the rum traffic in this town.

Those traders that had rum on hand sent it to other towns, God's name be praised for such a triumph. We hope that other towns may follow the example of our people here and drive away "King Alcohol" from their midst. The Mahommedans who were bitterest against me are now my friends. One of them who exposed their former attempts against me, who also can read and write in English is now attending our meetings. He came to me two days ago to borrow a scripture history, which he said that he wishes to peruse to get a better understanding of the christian religion. May God bless the sacred truth to his heart.

F. M. Stewart.

SELECTIONS.

My Body Guard.

Continued.

My anxiety grew greater as the day wore on, and when evening came I had made up my mind to do a very humiliating thing. I would ask Frank to go with me as a sort of body guard, keeping at a respectful distance, as body guards should do.

Frank was a good-natured, fun-loving boy, and he mortified me very much by bursting out a roar of laughter when I made my appeal to him on our way home from school that night.

"O he had to take the boys along to keep the dogs away!" he shouted, changing a line of an old rhyme to suit the occasion, and dancing up and down before me in the road.

Then, taking advantage of my necessity, he began making hard terms with me, insisting on having my handsome pair of new skates in return for his old ones— terms that I agreed to on condition that he kept absolutely silent regarding his part in the affair, and did not desert me at the critical moment. The truth is, Frank was inordinately fond of a joke, and I was careful to guard against his playing one on me this time. But he promised to settle any dog that made his appearance, and "crossed his heart" in token of absolute secrecy.

Frank was not to act as an escort to any young lady. I had an idea that he intended offering his services to Miss Janie, and chuckled to myself when I thought how I had got ahead of him, not forgetting however, that it was good of him to do what he was doing for his successful rival.

I was to go on ahead, while Frank kept in the rear, and if the dreaded dog did not make his appearance, Frank was to keep out of sight. If on the other hand, the dog did appear, Frank was to come boldly forward and drive him away, as if he merely happened to come along just then.

Janie was ready when I called for her, and we started away, both feeling very awkward and embarrassed at the novelty of our position, for Janie had never before had an escort, and it was the first time a lady had ever taken my arm.

It was but a short distance to Farmer Trufant's house, and we were soon at the gate. My hand was on the latch when Old Tobe came bounding around the corner, barking furiously and making straight for the gate.

On he came, but Frank did not appear. I drew back trembling while Janie clung to me. It seemed to me that I could have faced a bear or a panther more easily than I could face that howling, hideous, open-mouthed dog as he came on in the moonlight, snarling and growling.

Still Frank did not appear, and unmindful of my duty to Janie, unmindful of everything but my own cowardly fears, I suddenly mounted the fence and swung myself up among the branches of a tall maple tree that stood by the gate. Then Frank suddenly appeared.

"Get out!" he cried, opening the gate and giving Tobe a kick that sent him howling away. Then, to my amazement, he gallantly offered to Miss Janie his arm, which she instantly accepted, and they walked into the house, leaving me up in the tree.

I was about to descend and follow them when old Tobe attracted by a slight noise I made, again appeared, barking as loud as before, and in my terror I clambered back into my perch.

Tobe growled under the tree for a while, and then, to my dismay laid down by the gate, glared up at me and backed as if he had had "treed" game which he certainly had done. I could not, I dared not, descend while he lay there, and he showed no disposition to go away. Others came to the party, but Tobe did not mind them. He was too much occupied with the game he had already treed. Time passed. From my perch in the leafless tree I could look into the large old farm "living room," the window shades of which were not lowered, and see the merry makers, every one of whom I knew engaging in a game of "weevily wheat" Janie and Frank taking the lead. There I saw them "wading the swamp" together, after which Janie kept "post office," and had letters for no one but Frank, while they "were measuring tape" together it was now almost time for the party to come to an end a rabbit darted lightly out from a covert of brush near by and ran across the road. Tobe gave chase over the snow. This gave me a chance of escape, and I hastily descended and ran home.

Of course I could not go to the party at such an hour. How chagrined and angry I was! emotions could not have found vent in words. I pretended to be sound asleep when Frank came in an hour later, but I was really wide awake, and when he lay down by my side chuckling and giggling, he gave me a nudge and asked "High Sile, are you awake" "O you'll find out whether I am or not, if you say much to me!" I said crossly. "I suppose you think you're very smart, but before I'd do anything as mean as you've done, I'd climb a tree, eh!" said Frank, with a chuckle.

"Well now, wasn't it a good joke, Sile, Janie and I laughed about it all the way home. And they laugh about it yet every time I go to visit them, for Janie has been my sister in law for fifteen years.

ADVERTISEMENT

MR ALFRED A LEWIS,
Jeweller
AND
Electro Metallurgist

begs to inform the Public of his having established at Otta St. a workshop wherein the best and choicest workman ship in Gold or silver can be obtained, and Galvanized work performed either in Gold or silver at shortest notice and for very reasonable prices.

Please send your old silver candlesticks Trays etc., and they will be polished as new, or your English gold Gafrds etc., for polishing. Galvanized bangles and they will be converted.

Your clocks too can be repaired at moderate prices.

You have only to apply at the workshop, Corner of Victoria Road.

Apprentices wanted—conditions under on application.

Bonthe Sherbro
Sept. 3rd 90

THE EARLY DAWN.

"The Morning Light Is Breaking, The Darkness Disappears."

VOL. VII. BONTHE, SHERBRO, WEST AFRICA, OCTOBER 16, 1890. No. 17

The 'Early Dawn'

Published Semi-Monthly at Bonthe Sherbro. Under the Auspices of the Board of Missions of the United Brethren In Christ

Rev. J. A. Evans, Editor and Publisher, Bonthe, Sherbro, West Africa.

AGENTS.

United States.—Revs. B. F. Booth and Wm. McKee, Dayton, O.; Rev. Wm. J. Davis, Hagerstown, Md.; Rev. J. C. Bender, Chicago, Ill.; Rev. J. L. Kephart, Mt. Morris, Ill.; Rev. J. L. Martin, O. Rev. J. S. Weaver, Elkhart, Ind.; Rev. R. F. Barnes, Peru Ind. D. K. Flickinger, Willoughby, O. Rev. H. Eckwell, Dayton, O. Rev. Wm. Hanby, Washington, D.C. Rev. M. J. Shoop, Mt. Pleasant, Iowa. Rev. Master Charlie House Manchester, Ind. Rev. G. W. Arnold, Eldorado, Ohio. Rev. Jno. Arthur, A. Richards, River Gaboon, Africa. Rev. Frederick and Mrs. E. A. Lewis, Sierra Leone. Rev. James Dennis, Sierra Leone. Mr. Moses Boyle, Liberia.

TERMS.

One Year by mail,	£0	6	0
Delivered in Bonthe,	0	5	0
Half yearly by mail,	0	3	0
Do. delivered in Bonthe,	0	2	6

Constant Giving.

How often do the pastors hear the complaint, "There are too many collections—too many money calls. Why, we have to have his hand in his pocket nearly all the time," etc. Well, there are a good many money-calls in the church—that is a fact; and they do not seem to be diminishing a bit. "Yes" they were made last year, and have been repeated this year, and they are sure to come next year—money for the pastor money for the presiding elder, money for the Bishop, money for the missionary fund, money for church erection, money for the college, money for Union Biblical Seminary, money to pay the debt on the church, money, money, money, everlastingly asking for and having to give money. I am tired of it. I wish I belonged to a church somewhere that got along without money."

Hold on, brother; don't get sour now. It is true these money-calls are numerous. But what is money for? Is it not to do good with? What are we in the world for? Is it not to do good? The dear Lord came to the world not to get a vast fortune and become a millionaire, but to give his life a ransom for us. And that the generations might be partakers of the benefits of his death, he established a church and in the course of time through his people and the operations of his church, which can not be run successfully without money, mind you,—you and I have heard the glad tidings, have hope of eternal life, and have been called into his church to do what we can (on by what we can, mind you) to keep the Church working for the salvation of others and extending these glad tidings further and farther. Now, this is our high privilege and calling in Christ Jesus. Ought we not to be glad that we are thus favored, and honored instead of whining about having to give money? Think you that Paul regrets that he gave all he had and died poor that the blessed gospel might be preached? Think of the good, for time and for eternity, that comes to you through the church of Jesus Christ. Think of this every time you are asked to give a little to keep it going, and then it won't hurt you so much to give.

Remember that giving is the very genius and spirit of the gospel. It was first introduced into the word by Christ giving himself; and he has said it is more blessed to give than to receive.

Remember, too, that giving all the time is a law of life—of existence. We can not live without receiving, and we can not receive unless somebody gives. The sunshine and the rain, the wheat and the corn the water and the fruit all these and even life itself, and health (without which life is a burden)—all these are the gift of God. Think how bounteously and constantly he is giving. Can we be his children if we are stingy?

Think how we would fare if God should become stingy. Suppose he should get tired giving, and conclude to quit for just one year. How would it be with us? no sun, no rain, no air, no water, no church, no savior, no eternal life? Would life then be worth living? Oh, how thankful we should be every day that God does not tired of giving; and how willingly we should be to give a little now then as the Lord hath prospered us, and in imitation of his counteous giving, to keep the gospel-car moving.

He whose christian life is healthy is asking God for something every day—in fact, he never expects to be done asking. "Lord, increase my faith; Lord give me grace; Lord, give me daily bread; Lord, lead me not into temptation; Lord, save me, save my family, save my friends; Lord help me to work out my salvation." Thus the christian asks every day, and expects God to give, depends on his bounty, draws on his benevolence. Brother, sister, have you ever thought of this when grumbling because there are so many money-calls in the church? Only when we are willing to give to His cause as he has prospered us, can we wish faith and a clear conscience ask Him to give us. Oh! not until we can live without depending on God for anything not until then should we get weary of giving to sustain his cause.

Just as God has for good and wise purposes arranged things so that we must labor for our daily bread co-operate with him to produce wheat and corn,—so has he for the best of reasons established his church in the world which can not prosper without money.

He has designed through the word of the church, through the foolishness of preaching to save them that believe. But preachers can not preach except they be sent and supported the preaching of the gospel can not be carried on without church-organization, meeting-houses, and missionary societies and to sustain all those requires money: and that the money must be forthcoming: some-body must give, and give all the time.

Do not get weary, brother, sister; In due season you shall reap if you faint not you will cease. God will lift the curtain seperate between the seen and the unseen. He will say it is enough. You may not die rich in this worlds goods but then you will not need any gold or silver. For you the pearly gates will swing open and you will walk up the streets of the New Jerusalem; and the King will say Inasmuch as you have done it unto one of the least of these my brethern you have done it unto me.

Enter thou into the joy of thy Lord. That will be enough Thank God for the Previlege of giving.—Telescope.

Itinerating in and about Shaingay.

(Continued.)

I have had trouble in this respect. The people have a great fear of what they term country medicines which it often a bottle with some sort of a mixture in it, this bottle is hung to a bush or stick on the farm. Some times the medicine is a broken dish setting on an ant hill, or it may be some writing in Arabic from the Koran, wrapped in a bit of Cloth and placed perhaps under a little shed, or in some conspicuous place on the farm. These medicines it is claimed catch people that come to the farm to steal; the medicine will cause the thief to get some bad sickness, and perhaps they may die. People frequently pay large sums of money to get medicine made to put on their farms to prevent stealing. When on my itinerating tours, I have tried to discourage belief in these medicines, some removed their medicines, others would not.

On one occasion on passing a man's farm, I saw a little bamboo shed with cassava medicine fixed under it; with my cane, I tore down the shed and scattered the medicine I did not see the owner of the farm nor anyone else, the next day however, the owner was reporting me to the Chief, when I entered the Chief's apartment. The man asked that I be made to pay for spoiling his medicine, that he had paid Vandy for in Cloth. The Chief said I had done right and that he had no right to deal in medicines after I had told them not to. I visited a farm where the owner was building his house with a large thick ant hill just in front of the door. I said it is a shame for you to put trust in such things, said he "but this can mind person." I kicked it over, he looked at me for a few seconds and then said "if you were a black man, you would not dare to do that, for it will surely catch you."

How very low the human mind must be, how graded, how completely under the power of the Prince of Darkness, to stand in fear of such ridiculous things!

Whole tribes of people are held securely bound in Chains of darkness: when people are thus securely held with falsehood, why can't we hold them with the truth!

They can't understand why God should love them since they is nothing loveable about them. Truth is stranger than fiction.

King Allimammi Lahie of Kamba said to me after telling him and his people of God's plan of Salvation, "If you will come and sit down close me and tell me this word every day, I will hold it but except that, I can't hold it" the truth of it was, that he was surrounded by Mohamadans that influenced him, and as soon as I was gone, they would sow tares, where I had sown good seed.

At Mo' Tinkle Bah Shiarkah's town the man a Mohamedan said to me, "we all own Sunday: is no use again, for all we people must hold your own Sunday and we can't agree for two Sundays."

The people were slaves and hour literants were preaching on Sunday in his town and the slaves would attend the meeting.—J. Gorrie

To be Concluded.

Sherbro Island.

Mr Editor.—I am obliged to inform you of what you are doubtless already aware, that this Sherbro Island extending from Shebar, to N'Damah some 30 miles with a varying breadth of from three miles to more than Ten miles, and a population of at least ten Thousand to fifteen Thousand souls; is really destitute in a large measure of the Gospel, there being but very little attempted outside of this place, Bonthe, to give the Gospel, to the people. That this is deplorable no one can deny and that it is a fact equally true, must be admitted. But just the reason of this state of things, may not be so certainly perceived; yet it would appear that the various missions operating here have not properly estimated the importance of the island population and have not; with perhaps a single exception made much effort to labor on the Island outside Bonthe Victoria and Jamacia, and the efforts in Bonthe have not: with a single exception: been made so much to save the natives as to foster religion among christians from peninsular Sierra Leone a population more readily reached and more able to contribute to the financial support of the work. Possibly I should not criticise what wiser heads have done and yet I must say that it seems to me that several great mistakes have been made and worst of all are being persisted in with regard to the Mission Work in Sherbro. The first is that of the feeling that the work here should support itself in any of the Missions here; the policy is absurd in the Extreme And will hinder the progress of the work; by making the church too dependent on an unsettled population. The second and very great mistake is to reach out to other regions and neglect the thousands on this and the adjacent Islands since especially if the work was properly supported on the Islands and was what it should be the influence would flow out to the river districts.

Another mistake is that those laboring as ministers in Bonthe do not push out over the Island more than what is now done of course the meagre support and paucity of laborers offers some excuse for this but not sufficient reason for several persons to be engaged in of a single Chapel during whole day on sabbath and that too among intelligent professing Christians who ought themselves to be able to go among the heathen that are literally perishing at our doors. Will not our Ministers and others interest themselves in the matter of saving the people—heathen people—on Sherbro, Island.!—Yours, J. Albert.

LEAVING THEM TO GOD.

A society in England has started a school for native children in West Africa. One day in that school a little girl struck one of her school—mates. The teacher found it out and asked the child who was struck, "Did you strike her back again?"

"No ma'am" said the child.

"What did you do?" asked the teacher.

"I left her to God" said she.

A beautiful and most efficient way to settle all difficulties, and prevent all fights among children and men. We shall never be struck by others when they know that we will not return the blow, but (leave them to God) Then whatever our enemies do or threaten to do to us, let us leave them to Him, praying that He will forgive them and make them our friends.—Ed.

The Early Dawn

BONTHE, OCTOBER 16, 1890.

REV. J. A. EVANS, - EDITOR.

[EDITORIAL.]

Falconbridge Letters.

By reforance to our last we see that we omitted Thompson after the word Captain in the last full line of Mrs. Falconbridge's letter which occurs at the bottom of second Column on the second page, but the reader can now supply the same from this correction. We now resume letter IV Dated at Granville Town, Sierra Leone, May 13th 1791 and which is as follows.

Falconbridge, whom you know is naturally of an irritable disposition, quickened at Elliotte's information; but had prudence enough only to say, he should consider such a demand very extravagant, and his small cargo, which he was desired to appropriate another way, would not permit him to pay so much, if he had the inclination.

We then made our congees, and took leave of African gentry; and indeed it was high time, for the liquor they drank began to operate powerfully; Mr Elliotte and several others accompanied us to the boat: in our walk thither, he much admired a handsome fowling piece of Mr Falconbridge's which Falconbridge without hesitation requested he would accept, thinking such an immediate shew of generosity might have a favorable tendency. Both of us promised to be down again the following day, when it was expected the palaver would be finished, but I must be honest and tell you, I was resolved not to visit Robana again, while this mock judicatory lasted.

About seven o'clock we reached the Cutter. I was almost famished with want of food, for I had not eat a morsel the whole day, there was not a thing on board, but salt beef, so hard, we were obliged to chop it with an axe, and some mouldy, rotten biscuit, however, so great was my hunger, that I could not help satisfying it with some of this beef and bread, uncouth as it was. In the morning I feigned sickness, and begged to be excused from attending Falconbridge, he therefore set out, reluctantly leaving me behind; when he was gone, I went on shore, and spent the day in comfort and plesantry, under the hospitable roof of the Bance Island house; where I related the adventures of the proceeding day, which afforded, much with glee to the company. I met one Mr. Rennien [a Frenchman] there; he has a factory at a small Island, called Gambia, up another branch of this river, named Bunch River, whither he politely invited me, and made a tender of anything in his power to serve us. Before Falconbridge returned, which was not till between eight and nine o' clock at night, I had not only got on board but in bed and as he did not ask how I had spent the day I did not inform him he was vexed and out of humor, said he thought the wretches were only bamboozling him, he believed they would do no thing, but drink the liquor, while he had a drop to carry them, for he was no forwarder than the day before. In this manner he was obliged to repeat his visits for five successive days, before he got their final decision which, however, was at last tolerably favorable on side. They consented to re-establish the people, and to grant to the St. Georges' Bay Company, allthe land King Naimbana had formerly sold Captain Thompson; for a paltry consideration of about thirty pounds, and for the good faith and true performance of the contract, the King said he would pledge his second son John Frederick, whom Falconbridge might take with him to England. In answer to this offer, Falconbridge told Naimbana, he would be very glad to take his son to England, where he was sure the Company would have him educated and treated kindly without considering him a hostage. This pleased the old man vastly, and it was agreed. John Frederick shall accompany us, when we leave Africa.

(To be Continued.)

Sorrow.—Is the legacy of sin bequeathed to us by our common maternal ancestor Eve; who purchased it at the expense of transgression in the garden of delights. Since its entrance into the world it has been handed down from generation to generation with increasing volume it has expressed an ocean of tears from human eyes and caused a multitude of sobs and sighs from hearts of men. On every hand, it environs us; in every clime under all skies it is felt; by all classes from Monarch or, his throne to the beggar on the dunghill. What then must we do with it? where shall we escape from it? the poet says—

"Go bury thy sorrow the World hath its share
Go bury it deeply go hide it with care
Go think of it calmly, when curtained by night
Go tell it to Jesus and all will be right."

Pastime,—that which beguiles the hours away, without allowing us to feel the burden of their moving; as such is not natural to this life we are compelled to devise artifical means of whiling away the time; interesting reading has always been a favorite among lettered peoples, and among the many kinds of reading story and verse have ever been seeming ly the most suitable.

A Powerful Sermon. It is reported that Rev. R. N. West Supt. Bompeh Mission preached a most powerful sermon at Rev. H. W Johnston's [St. Johns] Church Freetown on the evening of the 28th. ult. We are pleased to hear such praise, of our good Brother, and congratulate the Rev. H. W Johnston on his opportunity in securing his services.

Grand Rally,—at the New Mendi Chapel in the Farkies of this place, there was a large gathering of more than Two hundred persons, on the 5th inst.; about 150 of whom were natives mostly Mendies, all of whom listened attentively to the preaching of the word.

We understand that this was the first preaching in public service held in this Chapel and that here after services are to be held every Sabbath Native Class at 6.30 a. m. and preaching at 3 p. m.

A Worthy Enterprise.—We learn from Freetown, that Rev. H. W. Johnston has decided to erect a Chapel and school for the religious instruction of natives; especially such as are attracted to Freetown for trade or other motives. This special effort in the Metropolis of our Colony; so rapidly filling up with natives, from the surrounding districts, is a worthy one and deserves the help and favorable consideration of all as well as the Prayers and contributions of Christians and we wish it every success.

The Work of Mendi Mission.

As all most every one is aware, all has not been fair sailing in the Mendi Mission for the present year, it has had its severe trials, is almost every respect but especially has this been true of the work in this town. But it is pleasing to note that while the Mission has suffered and is suffering fearful financial embarrassment and stations and buildings are not in the trim that they ought to be. Yet the Spiritual Work prospers and there is success in the most important department of Missionary Work—i. e. of saving men and women from sin [illegible] tion—and as this work is really progressing under the present severe embarrassments. Will not the friends of Missions give this Cause a helping hand?

CORRESPONDENCE.

Canabals Again.

My last Article in the Dawn of the 30th ult. headed Canabalism Tangible seems to have been opportune for scarcely had the paper gone forth than reports of depredations by that wretched Fraternity, were reported from Gangahmah; where we are informed that two persons were caught by Canabals and fatally wounded, but of course both of the persons were found hence an opportunity for investigation by the Means or is the way suggested in my former paper. And I greatly fear that with the Check already given by the Government to the Native Authorities, that if some Steps are not speedily taken to prosecute and punish the perpetrators of the late murderous as sault of upon the bodies and lives of inofensvie persons that matters will turn out serious and the peace of the country be seriously disturbed by either bushwhacking parties of revenge or Bands of Murderous those Canabals seeking the lives of their fellow men. Either of which will greatly diminish the trade of the country. Already persons feel insecure in parts of the Imperch because of canabals ravages.

Can our Authorities afford to wink at the murder in cold blood of peacable men and women and children by either single individuals or bands of blood thirsty Savages? I am too sure they cannot.

E.

Are We Protected? No.

Dear Mr. Edit

The attention of the Acting Commandant has been called to your issue of the 14th April 1890 to the unprotected state of this place, through the insufficiency of men in the police force to protect the lives and properties of its inhabitants, but it is to be fregretted that to the present moment no steps whatever seems to have been taken to afford us the least protection.

But it is high time now that we should again call the serious attention of the Commandant to the present distressing state of affairs in Bonthe and which we trust will be speedily remedied.

During the past month this place (Bonthe) has been and is still infested with burglars who go about at night digging and entering into people's houses and carrying off property to a considerable amount without any dread or fear of being caught feeling assured that there are no policemen to be found on duty at night, as was the case of a prisoner who deserted from prison and carried away from the Gaol yard, 4 cans of Palm oil, the property of the Gaoler which was repacted in your journal of the date qoated above, yet nothing has ever been done by the Government.

It is really astonishing and annoying to think that the Government from whom we claim protection would be inclined to leave us to the mercy to those uncalled for night vistors without any effort being put fourth to remedy the evil.—

However as the acting Commandant may not have been aware of the report here complained of it is to be hoped he will use all means in his power to prevent a continuation of such diabolical deeds by ordering a night patrol of the policemen in the district whose presence would be the means of arousing fear among these lawless night visitors.

We await to see what steps our worthy Commandant will take in the matter, that may leave a lasting impression in our minds of the good deeds done by him during his brief stay among st.

We are, Mr. Editor
The People.

Bonthe Oct. 10 90

Arrival of the Rev S. Hughes the newly appointed Pastor for Native Pasterate Church sherbro

The Rev. S. Hughes—The newly appointed pastor for the Native Pasterate Church at Sherbro, arrived par s. s. 'Susu' on the 8th inst. and on Sunday the 12th Baptism was administered at ten thirty a. m. at St. Matthew's Church and the Holy Communion immediately after the close of the morning service.

The Rev. gentleman occupied the pulpit in the morning when he delivered an elaborate and touching address to a crowded congregation. The subject was 'Love to God and Love to our neighbor.' It is well to remark that the Rev. gentleman used every nerve in his power to impress on the minds of the congregation the importance attach'd to the word Love. He made special reference to the treatment received by a Levite from a Samaritan and strictly enjoined us to love one another.

In the afternoon of the same day the Rev. gentleman left for Mendi where he will administered the Holy Communion. On monday evening there was a gathering of the Committee members who with'd on him and among other matters, an investigation was made on matters in connection with a member who was suspended and which was reported in your issues some time ago after a thorough investigation of the matter, the pastor ordered the action of the agent and reinstated that member to the full rights and privileges of a member in addition to which he is to perform the duties of his office in the Church.

We are glad that that time has come when peace is about to be established in the Church.

We hope the spirit which actuated the Rev. gentleman in dealing so fairly in the matter above refered to may be continued. Meanwhile I must close. Yours-A Churchman.

Bonthe, October 14th 90.

Dear Mr. Editor—I learn in reading 'The Early Dawn, that there is a constant fight between The Sherbro Mission This Shangay Mission and Rembee or F. M. Stewart, and King Alcohol.

I mourn the fact, that my fellow creatures are thus contaminated, having all hopes of Eternity buried in the English, American, and French Rum keg. O! Missionaries, O! Native and Foreign Pastors and Christian workers.

Shall we, on whom the salvation and civilization of West Africa largely depends hold our peace concerning this Diabolical thing King Alcohol or shall we, like God commandeth Cry aloud, and Spare not. Hath God let us taste of his amazing grace that we might sit still and see others, with souls as precious as ours, lead captive Satan Ruined by the Wiles and who have made himself of low reputation and their souls 'Buried' off to a Rum Drinker's. Hell by a tormentor. Oh! God hath he put it in the heart of his Ambassing grace that we might be instrumental in bringing others to taste also of his grace! let this churches answer. It is detrimental to every intelligent whether he use little or much it is first stupefying second it is demoralizing and gradually bringing men to the grave of poverty. Prov. 23 21. I am acquainted with Strong drink and its effects.

By faith Moses, when he was come to years refused to be called the son of Pharaoh's Daughter; choosing rather to suffer affliction with the people of God than to enjoy the pleasures of sin for a season. By faith West Africa can deliberately divert the Rum Trade choosing rather to be wise than to be damned therefore

O! France, O! England; O America where I was born, O! White man, thou that liv'est in a gospel land. How long will thou deceive and oppress my people? cannot thou set till thy pocket in thine own country? Will thou not cease to force thy Rum and Gin into my people? Forbear; and let Africa first know God's will.—James A. Trice.

Y. M. C. A. Mission to the unevangelized

The stony hear t must be taken out of you. Nothing else will do. You may put a stone in fire or water. You may paint it or break it but it is still a st one. So it is with your heart. It must be taken out and a new one given.—Sel.

Communications.

Current Topics.

Since my last on this subject or rather under this heading in the Early Dawn of 30th ult. I have not been favored with any comment on my remarks hence no rejoinders to make at present. As a matter of course the talk about trade for the reasons last stated continues to be uppermost in the principle circles, but with few exceptions men have, as a rule very confidence in our present trade; for although the larger firms have about succeeded in Monopolizing the proffits if there are any on the trade, and have goppled up a great many of the best up river trade sites, yet the matter of proffit remains still an open question which it remains for time to decide. Every body wants Bangor (Palm Nuts) so there is a strife for this single commodity, which has greatly enhanced the presents on the Barter Trade, which ought to please the man who brings in the Bangor as on the small lots he gets, as the custom now is, his pay for the Produce, and then a well assorted present for his being so kind as to bring it that particular Factory rather than carrying it to some other. But really in many cases the man is not satisfied, because he feels often that he ought to get more Bonyah or present, and while he rarely makes palaver about the pay, he gets angry about the present. I was one morning standing by when a man came in and told the Gentleman of the Factory, that he had come with Bangor and when asked how much he answer'd rather indefinitely the gentleman had to give him a present of perhaps a shilling to unload, when it turned out that three persons had about five Bushels of Palm nuts, one of which had less than a bushel, however, the gentleman proceeded to pay them, this was easily done but when it came to the present, then there was palaver.

And the Factory man did his best to satisfy them but to no purpose, although first and last he had given them five or six shillings worth of present on 20 shillings worth of Palm Nuts. Such is the present mode of trading that men are obliged to discuss the matter of Presents, and the best and the most satisfactory way to dispense this odd charity to the Bangor Pickers. But to one like the writer, dull of, it may be, comprehension, it would seem that this whole System is wrong and while it is true for the present that Pay and presents on Palm Kernels do no exceed or even reach a fair price per Bushel, yet it must work ill in many ways if not now, then in time to come; for while the Governors and highends can work a double System of dealing crooked, it is pretty certain that there are many under them who cannot calculate so well, and if they could with the data before them, they certainly cannot under the present System, hence I am sure, that unless indications are not real, that trouble will come out of the present mode of trading.

It is, I believe, generally believed by every intelligent dealer that the present upward tendency of the Produce Market in Europe is only speculative and that it will not continue and that there will be a big Drop before long; this general feeling prevents any attempt at Speculation on the part of Merchants and keeps down any considerable excitement in the Market. Everybody is, seemingly disposed to keep the Ball of Trade moving by forwarding their Produce as fast as possible to Europe; in this they are doubtless wise for unless in very exceptional cases it is Rarely Profitable to Store Palm Nuts or Palm oil, as they are very hard to keep from deteriorating and that rapidly too.

Religion, is not forgotten among us, by any means, at least as a topic of conversation, but as every one knows it is easier to talk Religion than to practice piety hence all are not as good, perhaps, as they Say.

Yet we observe much is being attempted for the furtherance of Good and I am glad to say that something is being accomplished. I was indeed pleased to hear only this week that the good work began by the late Rev. G. G. M. Nicol is still going on among the Children of the P. E. Ch. Pastorate of this place and that the Children are quite active. And although I have not been specially informed Recently but have every reason to believe that the Wesleyan Children are being well cared for Religiously.

A good work has been going on among the Women of the U. B. Church here for over a year and begins now to extend its' influence to others and it is to be hoped all the Women in the different connections here will unite in this good work of helping and saving the Women and Girls of this place.

The young men and Boys of Yandahoo have regular Religious Services every Friday evening and The Young women and Girls on Sabbath afternoon at Mrs. M. Curtis' House. At a recent Official Meeting of the Good Hope Station (U. B. C.) the subject of Farkie work among the Mendies was discussed, and as a Result a Crowded Service was held among them on Sunday the 5th inst over 200 persons attended the New Mendi Chapel on that occasion. More might be said of Streets, and Roads, Schools, Chapels the New Church Pastor &c. &c. But time fails for the present.—J. A. E.

CHILDREN'S COLUMN.

Dear Mr. Editor—Finding a space in your Children's column I send you this article to let your readers know how our school is getting on.

The U. B. C. Day School Bonthe is making great progress; the Pedagogue is trying his very best to teach us and to point us the living God. Last year and part of this year we have as the highest class the Fifth Reader class and after an examination this year another class was made which is the Sixth Reader class and some of us were transferd into that class.

Our teacher was absent from us for sometime being on a visit to Shaingay and the School was left in charge of our School mistress and one of the senior boys as an assistant, who tried his very best and he hopes the Lord will help him to teach his companions in the absence of his master. Our teacher often says to us that he longs for the time when a boy will occupy the post he is now occupying, may the Lord help us.

Thanking you for space occupied.—Yours Truly,

HENRY J. WILLIAMS.

HOW RELIGION HELPS CHILDREN

Religion helps children to study better and to do more faithful work. A little girl of twelve was telling in a simple way the evidence that she was a Christian.

"I did not like to study, but to play. I was idle at school, and often missed my lessons. Now I try to learn every lesson well to please God. I was mischievous at school when the teachers were not looking at me, making fun for the children to look at. Now I wish to please God by behaving well and keeping the school laws. I was selfish at home—didn't like to run errands, and was sulky when mother called me from play to help her in work. Now it is a real joy to me to help mother in any way, and to show that I love her."

Such a religion is essential to the best interests and moral growth of youth, and will make life sunny and cheerful.

NEWS ITEMS.

Oct. 1— s. s. "Munroe," from Liverpool consigned to Fisher and Randall.

"—5 s. s. "Susu" for Freetown with mails and Passengers Dr. M. L. Jarrett, E. C. Davis, and Rev. J. C. Thomas.

"— s. s. "Munroe" for Freetown with C. W. Betts Passenger.

8— s. s. "Susu" from Freetown with mails and the following Passengers, Revd. S. Hughes (newly appointed Pastor for the Native Pastorate Church at Sherbro) Dr. M. L. Jarrett. Mrs. Eli C. Davis, A. E. W. Quaker and several others.

PERSONAL.

Capt E. E. Plummer—, of the s. s. Munroe, with his Chief Engineer, Mr. Frank Walker gave us a call on the 2nd. inst. We were much pleased with our first acquaintance of these gentlemen.

Capt. Clarke,—has placed us under renewed obligations, by bringing in and introducing to us Capt. Plummer and Mr. Walker who subscribed for three Copies of the "Early Dawn" to be sent to England.

Mr. James A. Trice,—of the Y. M. C. A. Party of Missionaries, was in this place and spent the day of the 11 inst. as guest of the Editor of this Journal. He left during the night with Prof. Wilberforce for an Itinerating tour in the Imperch.

Rev. W. S. Macauley, of Danville, was in this place and Preached at the New Mendi Chapel (U. B. C.) in the Farkies of this place on the 12th inst at 3 p. m. to 200 people.

Rev. S. B. Morrison, was also in this place on the 12th preached a fine discourse at Good Hope Chapel at 11 a. m.

tion—and as this work is really progressing under the present severe embarrassments. Will not the friends of Missions give this Cause a helping hand!

CORRESPONDENCE.

Canabals Again.

My last Article in the Dawn of the 30th ult. headed Canabalism Tangible seems to have been opportune for scarcely had the paper gone forth than reports of depredations by that wretched Fraternity were reported from Gangahmah; where we are informed that two persons were caught by Canabals and fatally wounded, but of course both of the persons were found hence an opportunity for investigation by the Means or in the way suggested in my former paper. And I greatly fear that with the Check already given by the Government to the Native Authorities, that if some Steps are not speedily taken to prosecute and punish the perpetrators of the late murderous as saults of upon the bodies and lives of inofensive persons that matters will turn out serious and the peace of the country be seriously disturbed by either bush whacking parties of revenge or Bands of Murderous those Canabals seeking the lives of their fellow men. Either of which will greatly diminish the trade of the country. Already persons feel insecure in parts of the Imperch because of canabals revages.

Can our Authorities afford to wink at the murder in cold blood of peacable men and women and children by either single individuals or bands of blood thirsty Savages? I am too sure they cannot

E.

Are we Protected? No.

Dear Mr. Edit

The attention of the Acting Commandant has been called to your issue of the 15th April 1890 to the neglected state of this place, through the insufficiency of men in the police force to protect the lives and properties of its inhabitants, but it is to be regretted that to the present moment no steps whatever seems to have been taken to afford us the least protection.

But it is high time now that we should again call the serious attention of the Commandant to the present distressing state of affairs in Bonthe and which we trust will be speedily remedied.

During the past month this place (Bonthe) has been and is still infested with burglars who go about at night digging and entering into people's houses and carrying off property to a considerable amount without any dread or fear of being caught feeling assured that there are no policemen to be found on duty at night, as was the case of a prisoner who deserted from prison and carried away from the Gaol yard, 4 cans of Palm oil, the property of the Gaoler which was repeated in your journal of the date quoted above, yet nothing has ever been done by the Government

It is really astonishing and annoying to think that the Government from whom we claim protection would be inclined to leave us to the mercy to those uncalled for night vistors without any effort being put fourth to remedy the evil.—

However as the acting Commandant may not have been aware of the report here complained of it is to be hoped he will use all means in his power to prevent a continuation of such diabolical deeds by ordering a night patrol of the policemen in the district whose presence would be the means of arousing fear among these lawless night visitors.

We await to see what steps our worthy Commandant will take in the matter, that may leave a lasting impression in our minds of the good deeds done by him during his brief stay amongst us.

We are, Mr. Editor
The People.

Bonthe Oct. 10 90

Arrival of the Rev S. Hughes the newly appointed Pastor for Native Pastorate Church sherbro

The Rev. S. Hughes—The newly appointed pastor for the Native Pastorate Church at Sherbro, arrived per s. s. Susu' on the 9th inst. and on Sunday the 12th Baptism was administered at ten thirty a. m. at St. Matthew's Church and the Holy Communion immediately after the close of the morning service.

The Rev. gentleman occupied the pulpit in the morning when he delivered an elaborate and touching address to a crowded congregation. The subject was 'Love to God and Love to our neighbor.' It is well to remark that the Rev. gentleman used every nerve in his power to impress on the minds of the congregation the importance attached to the word Love. He made special reference to the treatment received by a Levite from a Samaritan and strictly enjoined us to love one another.

In the afternoon of the same day the Rev. gentleman left for Moosho where he administered the Holy Communion. On monday evening there was a gathering of the Committee members who with him and among other matters, an investigation was made on matters in connection with a member who was suspended and which was reported in your issues some time ago after a thorough investigation of the matter, the pastor condemned the action of the agent and reinstated that member to the full rights and privileges of a member in addition to which he is to perform the duties of his office in the Church.

We are glad that the time has come when peace is about to be established in the Church.

We hope the spirit which actuated the Rev. gentleman in dealing so fairly in the matter above refered to may be continued. Meanwhile I must close. Yours A Churchman

Bonthe, October 14th 90.

Dear Mr. Editor—I learn in reading The Early Dawn, that there is a constant fight between The Sherbro Mission The Shaingay Mission and Readers or F. M. Stewart, and King Alcohol.

I lament the fact, that my fellow creatures are thus contaminated, having all hopes of Eternity burried in the English, American, and French Rum keg. O! Missionaries, O! Native and Foreign Pastors and Christian cowards.

Shall we, on whom the salvation and civilization of West Africa largely depends hold our peace concerning this Diabolical thing King Alcohol or shall we like God command, Cry aloud, and Spare not. Hath God let us taste of his amazing grace that we might sit still and see others, with souls as precious as ours, lead captive into Satanop by the Wiles and who have made himself of low repute and their souls 'diurled off' to a Rum Drinker's. Hell by a tormented Dram? Or hath he given us a taste of his Amazing grace that we might be instrumental in bringing others to taste also of his grace? let the churches answer. It is detrimental to every indulger whether he use little or much it is first stupefying second it is demoralizing and gradually bringing men to the grave of poverty. Prov 23 21. I am acquainted with Strong drink and its effects.

By faith Moses when he was come to years refused to be called the son of Pharaoh's Daughter, choosing rather to suffer affliction with the people of God than to enjoy the pleasures of sin for a season. By faith West Africa can deliberately divert the Rum Trade choosing rather to be wise than to be damned thereby.

O! France, O! England; O America where I was born; O! White man; thou that live in a gospel land. How long will thou deceive and oppress my people? canst thou not fill thy pocket in thine own country? Will thou not cease to force thy Rum and Gin into my people? Forbear, and let Africa free know God's will.—James A. Trice.

Y. M. C. A. Mission to the unevangelized

The stony heart must be taken out of you. Nothing else will do. You may put a stone in fire or water. You may paint it or break it but it is still a stone. So it is with your heart. It must be taken out and a new one given.—Sm.

Communications.

Current Topics.

Since my last on this subject or rather under this heading, in the Early Dawn of 30th ult. I have not been favored with any comment on my remarks hence no rejoinders to make at present. As a matter of course the talk about trade for the reasons last stated continues to be uppermost in the principle circles, but with few exceptions men have, as a rule very confidence in our present trade; for although the larger firms have about succeeded in Monopolizing the proffits if there are any on the trade, and have goppled up a great many of the best up river trade sites, yet the matter of proffit remains still an open question which it remains for time to decide. Every body wants Bangor (Palm Nuts) so there is a strife for this single commodity, which has greatly enhanced the presents on the Barter Trade, which ought to please the man who brings in the Bangor as on the small lots he gets, as the custom now is, his pay for the Produce, and then is well as possible to Europe; in this they are doubtless wise for unless in very exceptional cases it is Rarely Proffitable to Store Palm Nuts or Palm oil, as they are very hard to keep from deteriorating and that rapidly too.

Religion, is not forgotten among us, by any means, at least as a topic of conversation, but as every one knows it is easier to talk Religion than to practice piety hence all are not as good, perhaps, as they Say.

Yet we observe much is being attempted for the furtherance of Good and I am glad to say that something is being accomplished. I was indeed pleased to hear only this week that the good work began by the late Rev. G. G. M. Nicol is still going on among the Children of the P. E. Ch. Pastorate of this place and that the Children are quite active. And although I have not been specially informed Recently but have every reason to believe that the Wesleyan Children are being well cared for Religiously.

A good work has been going on among the Women of the U. B. Church here for over a year and begins now to extend its influence to others and it is to be hoped all the Women in the different connections here will unite in this good work of helping and saving the Women and Girls of this place.

The young men and Boys of Yandahoo have regular Religious Services every Friday evening and The Young women and Girls on Sabbath afternoon at Mrs. M. Curtis' House. At a recent Official Meeting of the Good Hope Station (U. B. C.) the subject of Farkie work among the Mendies was discussed, and as a Result a Crowded Service was held among them on Sunday the 5th inst over 200 persons attended the New Mendi Chapel on that occasion. More might be said of Streets, and Roads, Schools, Chapels the New Church Pastor &c. &c. But time fails for the present.—J. A. E.

CHILDREN'S COLUMN.

Dear Mr. Editor—Finding a space in your Children's column I send you this article to let your readers know how our school is getting on.

The U. B. C. Day School Bonthe is making great progress; the Pedagogue is trying his very best to teach us and to point us the living God. Last year and part of this year we have as the highest class the Fifth Reader class and after an examination this year another class was made which is the Sixth Reader class and some of us were transferd into that class

Our teacher was absent from us for sometime being on a visit to Shaingay and the School was left in charge of our School mistress and one of the senior boys as an assistant, who tried his very best and he hopes the Lord will help him to teach his companions in the absence of his master. Our teacher often says to us that he longs for the time when a boy will occupy the post he is now occupying, may the Lord help us.

Thanking you for space occupied.—Yours Truly,

HENRY J. WILLIAMS.

HOW RELIGION HELPS CHILDREN

Religion helps children to study better and to do more faithful work. A little girl of twelve was telling in a simple way the evidence that she was a Christian.

"I did not like to study, but to play. I was idle at school, and often missed my lessons. Now I try to learn every lesson well to please God. I was mischievous at school when the teachers were not looking at me, making fun for the children to look at. Now I wish to please God by behaving well and keeping the school laws. I was selfish at home—didn't like to run errands, and was sulky when mother called me from play to help her in work. Now it is a real joy to me to help mother in any way, and to show that I love her."

Such a religion is essential to the best interests and moral growth of youth, and will make life sunny and cheerful.

NEWS ITEMS.

Oct. 1— s. s. "Munroe," from Liverpool consigned to Fisher and Randall.

"—5 s. s. "Susu" for Freetown with mails and Passengers Dr. M. L. Jarrett, E. C. Davis, and Rev. J. C. Thomas.

"— s. s. "Munroe" for Freetown with C. W. Betts Passenger.

8— s. s. "Susu" from Freetown with mails and the following Passengers, Revd. S. Hughes (newly appointed Pastor for the Native Pastorate Church at Sherbro) Dr. M. L. Jarrett. Mrs. Eli C. Davis, A. E. W. Quaker and several others.

PERSONAL.

Capt E. E. Plummer—, of the s. s. Munroe, with his Chief Engineer, Mr. Frank Walker gave us a call on the 2nd. inst. We were much pleased with our first acquaintance of these gentlemen.

Capt. Clarke,—has placed us under renewed obligations, by bringing in and introducing to us Capt. Plummer and Mr. Walker who subscribed for three Copies of the "Early Dawn" to be sent to England.

Mr. James A. Trice,—of the Y. M. C. A. Party of Missionaries, was in this place and spent the day of the 11 inst. as guest of the Editor of this Journal. He left during the night with Prof. Wilberforce for an Itinerating tour in the Imperch.

Rev. W. S. Macauley, of Danville, was in this place and Preached at the New Mendi Chapel (U. B. C.) in the Farkies of this place on the 12th inst at 3 p. m. to 200 people.

Rev. S. B. Morrison, was also in this place on the 12th preached a fine discourse at Good Hope Chapel at 11 a. m.

CORRESPONDENCE.

A Revival Needed.

However, men may be in general adverse to what is often termed religious excitement; yet it is very evident that without some activity of some kind among church members, that the church becomes lifeless and does not affect the community for good, but rather the reverse—i. e. for evil for it is sure to become an object of ridicule and nothing seems more useless than a dead church member and such must be when there is not a plenitude of religious life in the church. But the experience of all ages has been that religious life can only be maintained by revival power, which is the operation of the spirit of God upon the hearts and lives of men and women, as this operation is dependent upon the variable receptiveness of individuals it increases or declines at the will of the person, but as men are disposed to indifference in regard to piety it follows that they are not always willing to allow the spirit of God to control them and by resistance of this motor power of the religious life they of necessity decline in piety and goodness and lose that vitality so necessary to the life of the individual and of the church. A revival is then needed to re-invigorate that church or that individual or it may be both. Observing then that in many places the church members are not all as warm or lively as they ought to be I feel that a revival is greatly needed in many places but especially do we need a revival among us in this place and will not our ministers bestir themselves along this line?—J. A. E.

SELECTIONS

Discipline or Moral Training, and Its Effects.

Under the head of discipline we would naturally place the forming of habits of order, self-control, obedience, civility, love of truth, and reverence for all that is good and great. These principles alone, rightly instilled into the hearts and minds of young people, are worth more than all the wealth this world affords. These principles can not be forced upon any one by any power imaginable, but they are imbibed through the silent influence of example.

Happy is he, yea, thrice happy is he who, while he lives without, at the same time lives a higher, nobler and better life within—who has in his own soul the invisible power (disciplined principles) which sustains life, gives him peace and comfort, raises him above the vileness of this world, and places him high upon a throne of happiness. Happier still is the man who can, at any moment, turn away from the trials of this life and feast upon the precious promises of the Devine Law, and who can look upon and understand, yet not be affected by the low employments, the petty cares, the sordid avarice, and all the vulgar pleasure of the undisciplined and vile man. Amid all this he studies and earnestly prays over his duties to God and fellowmen, as only the disciplined mind can do. Through it all, with undefiled garments, he plods onward, ever onward, till he passes up to his own castle, whose foundation is on the solid rock that cannot be shaken. Thence, as from a citadel, he looks out upon the wickedness of the poor struggling below— not with complacent pride, but with the calm composure of freedom—the pure and blessed serenity of a mind at ease, unmoved and immovable. This, then, belongs to us, and in fact, is a part of us.

No stranger intermeddleth, and no man can take it away from us. Here we can smile at the world's frowns, defy its enmity, and defeat its malice.

We can (as the poet says) tune our hearts to sacred themes, and fling out strains that shall never die.

R. C. Welborne.

in Literary Journal.

How Sunken Ships are raised.

The raising of the sultan some time ago aroused curiosity as to how this kind of work is done.

The following process is used only in peculiar circumstances, as in a river or on a sloping shore. The first operation is for divers to go down and inspect damage through which the ship has sunk. They make as minute an examination as possible, learning which side is damaged, and how ship lies, and if sand has accumulated around her, as that makes the work more difficult. When the divers have reported, they take the first step towards raising.

Two or more go down with long iron rods. These they endeavour to place underneath the ship, forcing them through and then working them backwards and forwards so as to enlarge the holes made. Next thicker rods are sent down and worked in like manner, till a hole is made large enough to allow a large chain to be passed under. The process goes on in about half-dozen different places, so that the same number of chains are passed under the vessle's bottom. Each end of the chains is carried to the surface and fastened on board a keel or hopper. Then, at low tide, the hoppers are planeddown—that is, the chains are pulled as tight as possible without overturning them. When the tide rises, the hoppers rise with the water, and, as they rise, they lift the chains with them, and so raise the ship. Tug-boats are attached to the hoppers, and they are moved into shallower water until the ship grounds. The same process goes on at the next tide, and so on, until the vessel is left nearly dry at low water. The ship is then heeled over, so as to expose the damage ride. From the divers' reports the amount of damage is known, and plates have been prepared. These are riveted on and the ship made water tight. The water remaining in her is pumped out, and at the next tide she floats by her own buoyancy. In another process, divers, as before, go down and examine the damage. Sheep-skins are rendered water-proof and well tarred. These are taken down and placed over the holes in the sides. The decks are battened down, and every orifice plugged up, so as to make the vessel water-tight. Then tubes are fitted into the vessels and attached to pumps worked on board a steam-boat. The vessel is pumped dry; but, besides pumping the water out, other pumps are at work pumping air in. The work goes on, the vessel being gradually filled with air, and in consequence, gradually rising. When once raised to the surface, tug-boats are attached, the vessel is moved to dock and repairers begin work upon her.

How to Help one another.

"As we have opportunity let us do good unto all men especially unto them who are of the household of faith" (Gal. 6. 10.) As all divine help is to the end that "Ye have put off the old man with his deeds, and have put on the new man which is renewed in knowledge after the image of him that created him; so all human help must assist him who receives it to be transformed into the image of the Son of God. That which betrays, tempts or depraves is not help. Neither is that which makes dissolute profligate or frivolous. Assistance in the wrong direction is infinately worse than none at all. Thought and work for the help of others must find their source in love and their end in God's glory. They must be of such character as to leave no place for wounded dignity on the part of the one helped. They must not wound they must bless. They must impart to the person new courage to bear his own burdens rather than to leave them to some one else to bear for this is the best possible help. He who helps another to help himself is indeed a benefactor. He who removes from another the ability to help himself is his greatest enemy.

Let us do good unto all men especially unto them who are of the household to faith. Hear the invitation to lift up the eyes that ye may behold and pity and help the wounded, suffering sorrowing sons of men. Here are the betrayed and bereft the disappointed and distressed one lying in the porches of many a Bethesda waiting for some angel to come and trouble the waters of healing. The door is open to every walk of life. You are commissioned of heaven to do good unto all men. No one may question your presence it your Mission is to help. The golden cord of love and sympathy and unity interest between those of the same faith is especially to be strengthened. If any provide not for his own, he hath denied the faith and is worse than an infidel. The best Christian work is generally found not very far from our doors.

Every relation of life is to be made a highway upon which we bear good to others, but never relations must be especially laden with the treasures of helpfulness.

ADVERTISEMENT.

MR ALFRED A LEWIS,
Jeweller
AND
Electro Metallurgist

begs to inform the Public of his having established at Otto St. a workshop wherein the best and choicest workmanship in Gold or silver can be obtained, and Galvanized works performed either in Gold or silver at shortest notice and for very reasonable prices.

Please send your old silver candlesticks Trays etc., and they will be polished as new, or your English gold Guards etc., for polishing, or Galvanized bangles and they will be converted.

Your clocks too can be repaired at moderate prices.

You have only to apply at the workshop, Corner of Victoria Road.

Apprentices wanted-conditions understood on application.

Bonthe Sherbro
Sept 3rd '90.

THE
Early Dawn
PRINTING OFFICE
PLAIN ARTISTIC and FANCY JOB WORK
EXECUTED AT
SHORT NOTICE
ENQUIRE OF
N. Samuel Thomas,
PRINTER.

THE EARLY DAWN.

"The Morning Light Is Breaking, The Darkness Disappears."

VOL. VII. BONTHE, SHERBRO, WEST AFRICA, OCTOBER 31, 1890. No. 18

The 'Early Dawn'

Published Semi-Monthly at Bonthe Sherbro. Under the Auspices of the Board of Missions of the United Brethren In Christ.

Rev. J. A. Evans, Editor and Publisher.
Bonthe, Sherbro, West Africa.

AGENTS.

United States:—Rev. H. F. Booth and Wm. McKee Dayton Rev. Wm. J. Davis, Bluffton, O. Rev. I. P. Jenifer, Chicago, Ill. Rev. J. G. Hershey, Marion, O. Rev. J. S. Cleaver, Elkhart, Ind. Rev. R. P. Barbee, Peru Ind. D. K. Flickinger, Williamsburg, O. Rev. H. Ellenbaugh, Dayton, Virginia. Rev. M. J. Shuey, Mansfield, O. Rev. Wm. Worthington, Tex. Master Charlie Howe Manchester, Ind. Rev. C. W. Arnold, Eldorado, Ohio.

Sierra Leone:—J. A. Richards, River Gardens. Rev. J. H. Tigbelrien and Mr. E. A. Lewis, Freetown, Sierra Leone. Rev. James Dupuy, Marshall, Liberia. Mr. Moses Boyle, Kissidi.

TERMS.

One Year by mail,	£0	6	0
Delivered in Bonthe,	0	5	0
Half yearly by mail,	0	3	0
Ditto, delivered in Bonthe,	0	2	6

DEBIA.

Dear Mr. Editor,—Since my last visit to the above place, nothing has been done toward these dear people; the financial status of this station renders it difficult to reach them by sea.

The question which naturally arises is: Are these people to be neglected and allowed to face the dangerities of the other world unsaved? It is true they have heard the word of life now and again. But as was stated in Bro. Brown's Article of 14th instant headed "Preaching on and about Shaingay" in the case of King Alimammi Lahi and his people, there are other and powerful agents at work, and unless frequent if not regular visits be made, the tares sown during the long interval between one visit and another will grow where good seed sown would otherwise have grown.

In our last official meeting the subject of active work in the Farkies was brought up and discussed and it was the opinion of that meeting that attention be given this way. I thought over the matter as to the next step of procedure. We have to turn my whole attention to the work of the various Farkies which form a portion of Bonthe, or to visit Debia as frequently as I can.

As a preliminary step to the Farkie work the members of my class were asked to feel their individual responsibility from the standpoint of Col. 3:5 11. The Lord gave the word great was the company of them that published it! At the close of the class the brethren and Sisters were to be seen here, there and yonder in the Farkies pleading with the people to attend the afternoon Service to be held in their interest in the unfinished Chapel at Temoh Farkie. The Lord graciously owned their feeble efforts in that, 3.30 p. m no less than 208 persons about three fourths of whom were natives Mendies or Sherbros assembled to hear the word.

Marked interest and attention was manifested throughout. I spoke to them of God's unspeakable love in the gift of His son John 3 16. The school children and christians of the three churches of this place rendered sweet singing Mr. W. K. Gladstone kindly interpreted. At three-thirty p. m, on Sabbath the 12th inst. by request Rev. W. S. Marsh, ey who was spending sabbath at this place delivered a soul stirring and to a congregation of 200 persons from Genesis 9 13.

Having understood on enquiry that there is an overland route to Debia I started with Mr. Chas J. Avery and Master Charles Milton at nine a m on Sabbath the 19th inst. A brisk walk of six miles brought us to Liverpool Factory. Mr Al. B Williams the Agent in charge kindly furnished me with a canoe and Mast. Charles Milton made himself useful in paddling us over. Had very good meetings. After preaching had prayer meeting at Yonnie and Debia for the first time. It will do the heart of any christian good to hear these people pleading with our kind Heavenly Father in their own tongue; it made me feel the beauty of the language. After service Debia three young men of Debia decided to go with us to Yonnie one of them whose name is Chas. Goodhart impressed me as a man both pieces. He is an excellent interpretor The Lord graciously owned our feeble efforts and we are thankful. May the prayers of your christian readers ascend up on behalf of these dear people.

R. Coomson Taylor.

Bonthe, 20th Oct. '90.

The Fatherhood of God

While it may be hard for any one to conceive of so high and exalted a relation as existing between the Creator and the finite, especially the poor sinful God of heaven and the rebellious sons of men. Yet it is such a relation as father and son exists between God and man. A relationship by Creation and by Redemption. Then let us consider this relation. Man was originally in a state complete in itself and man needed nothing more for present enjoyment or future bliss and in this relation to God would have forever remain, for man was created for the praise of God. But unfortunately man was unwilling to remain in such a state, or rather he was not blessed to obey his father God in all his precepts, or to be guided by his wisdom and counsel, and sought a knowledge of good and evil, and by this disobedience became the victim of the adversary of all good, or a captive to the Devil, who immediately reduced him to the Slavery of sin, and made his existence to the monitions of the devil so far estranged from his father that he lost the original sonship.

Some time after having by disobedience lost his original relation to God, and by yielding obedience to the devil become the enemy of God. It was necessary for him to be restored again by reconciliation to God whom he had so greatly offended. This restoration was secured by the obedience of one man, the Christ of God, who came to redeem the world, by reconciliation to his father and God; who for the sake of his son, adopts the once vile man, but now made clean, by the blood of Christ, into his family; and thus redeemed, restored, cleansed, and adopted man becomes again the Son of God by adoption, which relation secures to him all the rights and priviledges of life sons of God, and joint-heirs with Jesus Christ in an inheritance incorruptible and that fadeth not away. Now as all have lost their original sonship then let all seek and secure adoption and become heirs of heaven.—R.

Mendee Station.

Dear Sir,—The Quarter has been one of little struggle and much advancement. The dark clouds of death has covered some of the principle homes in this Village, and some in the adjacent ones. Some of our good Members are compelled to absent themselves from the Class and to leave their families and the Church through sickness, to look for remedy in the woods. We are deeply impressed with brotherly feelings to state the death of a sister, and a child about 5 years old which has thrown the family into mourning. The Influenza has shaken this district but not so hard as in other places.

Some of those whom the Lord's hand was upon through this contagious disease are led after their recovery to the house of God and are showing to their brethren the need of a Savior, and that it is possible to serve him. Some who have long been employed in diabolical practices, carrying manifold wickedness to an extreme measure—God hated Satan's favorites—are now led to believe that their condition is a pitiable one, and to look to none but Jesus for forgiveness of their sins.

There is quite a change of purpose. We have good ground of hope, that the Lord will reap in his vineyard. We have come to thank our heavenly father for mercies vouchsafed to us, in that we are able to complete our rounds for the Quarter. Since the middle of this Quarter the numbers of attendance at the means of grace were very good. We are having them not to "close under a bushel" the love of Jesus, but to make open confession of it. We also regret to state a decrease of Membership in our Seeker's Classes. The number reported in March Quarter are not as now many of them were strangers, and have returned home. We have an increase the past quarter of twenty-nine, and we are glad to report good success in this department. We are trying to give all our time to itinerating. Hardly we be at home during the week, busy in the villages and farm houses, urging the people to accept the message of truth.

The indefatigable Bro. Charles McKo who was lately sent to my assistance is doing a good work, and is beloved by the people. Bro. Kendoh is helping us to interpret, and is bringing his countrymen to the fold.

We always feel pleased whenever we go to Bembehoh, because the people manifest great interest for the gospel.

We heartily submit this town to you as a good site for a Station Messrs Francis Cashier, Cobez, Barnes, and the rest of the principle men want it, they promised to support their children, and to give the all help they can, that the work go on. The Du Pre Chapel doors and some windows want repairs.

We pray that a Pentecostal Shower of blessing may rest upon the work, and may we be enabled to fight manfully against the evil one and come off victoriously through Him that loved us,

N. E. O. Townsend.

Oct. 12th '90.

How to Help one Another.

BY REV S. D. FAUST.

Continued from our Last.

We may help others by restoring such as are overtaken in a fault: The weak, the erring, the overtaken we may help; the irreverent, the profane, and the persistently impious we may treat as strangers, and as heathens. "Bear ye one another's burden, and so fulfil the law of Christ." And this is his law: "A new commandment I give unto you, that ye love one another as I have loved you; that ye also love one another." In accord with this law we shall "Every man prove his own work." And toiling in the process of sowing, heed the holy summons, "Go work." And by the exercise of christian energy and patience we shall transform our own lives into a song of hope for he that goeth forth and weepeth, bearing precious seed, shall doubtless come again with rejoicing bringing his sheaves with him." We may point out to a brother the broken fragments of his efforts, and indicate how he may join them into the beauty of symmetry and crown them with the glory of efficiency. A kindly suggestion, or a sincere expression of sympathy will often encourage the disheartened one to begin anew, and overcome what before had been insurmountable. We fail oftenest not because we are unable to accomplish the work undertaken, but because no one has told us that we are more than sufficient for it. Why shall we help one another? Because of man's great need of help. See his awful condition who supposes that no one cares for him. Hear the wail that comes from his heart who says, "No man cared for my soul!" Dependency is every where found to exist among men. The child can play in accord with the divinely impressed stamp of his own nature only when he has the help of a companion. The man of matured years works out what is called success only by the conscious or unconscious, the willing or unwilling co-operation and helpfulness of others. But the voice of Nature, so indistinct to heavy ears, might not be understood. The example of our Lord and Master is added. He himself walked and talked with men. He was the great burden-bearer. He taught men how to die. He taught them a greater lesson—how to live. He was acquainted with human experience and the ills of every-day life. He eat with publicans and sinners. He refused not to grace the marriage feast with his presence. He stood by the side of the bed of affliction, and laid on hand of healing upon the fevered brow. He paused amidst the pressing throng to evoke from a poor, afflicted woman a confession of her faith and of her great restoration to health. Tears of sympathy streamed down that sacred face when those whom he loved wept He showed his own need of sympathy when he said, "Sit ye here while I go and pray yonder. It is more blessed to give than to receive." If we share the sorrows of others we shall lessen our own. If for others we mitigate the evils about us, we shall, find a balm for our own wounds. The answer to active love is restfulness in renewed strength.

We have opportunity to do good. We live under the brightest light and in the happiest land known in the history of the race. Our greatest blessings are our opportunities. The doors opening into the darkest places of earth have written over them in unmistakable characters, 'Come.' At our own doors human minds are enshrouded in thick darkness and hearts are longing for the light. But there are times when offer special opportunities in which to do good. Trouble has come to some one with whom we stand in relation, and the heart is sorely wounded, or the Holy Spirit is doing a special work and has softened the soil into tenderness. Now the soil is prepared, and we may cast into it the seed, with strong hope that an abundant harvest shall appear. But opportunities pass. Other doors are constantly opening and closing. The possibilities of to-day are the impossibilities of to-morrow. To-day the tree is laden with golden fruit; to-morrow the wintry winds wail a requiem of brighter days, as with invisible fingers they play upon its naked branches. How the opportunities for the exercise of sympathy and love and kindness pass. This hour we may receive God's waters, freshest grace by the voluntary use of heart and brain, and time and strength, and love and prayer, in helping others the next we sit by the fountains of bitterness and cry, 'Marah! Marah!' Nor will the most agonizing regrets and the most earnest entreaties discover to us the branch, which being cast in will sweeten the waters.

"Who seeks, and will not take when once the offered, Shall never find it more."—Telescope.

The Early Dawn

BONTHE, OCTOBER 31, 1890.

REV. J. A. EVANS-EDITOR.

[EDITORIAL]

Interview

Governor Sir J. S. Hay and Deputation of Merchants and Trader.

On Monday the 27th. instant a deputation of the representatives of the principal mercantile firms and traders was received by Governor Sir J. S. Hay who is on a visit to this place.

After their being introduced by the Private Secretary, the Honourable Major J. J. Crooks, and the usual compliments had been exchanged the Deputation brought before His Excellency the Knotty question of the system pursued by the Chiefs in keeping the "porroh" on palm trees until the nuts were rotten and asked that the Governor should take some steps to affect an alteration— as the system at present pursued was most detrimental to the trade of the District. His Excellency in reply informed them that he had already written to the Chiefs on this subject and some action had promised to remove it.

At the same time he remarked that the Government could not take upon itself to exercise any direct control in commercial transactions between buyer and seller. After some further conversation on this subject and the general state of trade the Deputation thanked His Excellency for having granted them the interview and withdrew.

Open Doors.—For Missionary effort every where throughout the Regions, about, and especially beyond us, present themselves and the heathen now, as never before seem to be imploring the Christians to help them to come to God.

It seems that wherever one goes to Speak a word for the cause of the Master, he finds open ears and hearts to receive the truth. Ask any Itinerant returning from his work among the people of his success, and he will tell you that the word has been gladly received.

And from what we have seen of late, and heard from others. It would seem easier now than ever before to get the heathen to pray, they make fewer objections, and will undertake the duty more readily than in past years; really in this particular, they are more ready than many professing Christians. Looking over the reports and correspondence in this Issue, it will be perceived that from Rembee, Mando, Debia and the Farkies of this place there comes up the same report of the open doors. The heathen fruits are waiting for the word of the Lord. The hundreds of Thousands of Prayers offered by the Church have been heard; the nations and tribes are now opening their gates to receive the Message of Peace, will not the Christians extend the helping hand? or will they sit down at ease in their fair homes and let the Cry of needy perishing Millions go up to heaven against them!

Falconbridge Letters.

It having been settled at the Palaver that the Settlers might return again to their lands for a small consideration of about £ 30 dr Falconbridge it seem readily paid the amount; which was of course in merchandise and required another visit on the sixth day to deliver these goods, at which time Mrs Falconbridge accompanied him to Rokona by much importunity on his part, but as she did not have to listen again to a tedious Palaver, and the only business (delivery of Merchandise) was soon over, it seems that she visited the Kings salt Works, where some old slave women, were engaged in making salt from sea water by a process of evaporation.

She seems to have been much interested in this Salt Works and the walk to it of about a mile. She says the salt making was of trifling expence and yielded a considerable profit. The traffic we may remark in it however was at that time for slaves which the King received in exchange for the salt in the interior. On returning from Rokona Mrs Falconbridge took the Kings daughter, Mr Elliotte's wife with her to Bance Island, where she tried, but in vain to get the Princess to adopt the European style of dress.

The next step in Mr. Falconbridge's work was to collect the settlers, who at the time were miserable refugees. And as the month of February was then to be spent there was no time to be lost in getting the people together on the spot where they were once more to settle; as they would have to clear the land build houses and plant crops before the end of May or in about three months from the time the re-purchase (as Mr. Falconbridge terms it) of the Lands.

To accomplish the work of gathering the people Mr. Falconbridge dispatched a Greek, who had come out in the Lapwing, with some of the black or coloured men up to Pa Boom's to gather and bring the people down, while Mr. and Mrs Falconbridge taking the rest of the goods on land, went in the Cutter, to locate the place of the settlement. But let us now proceed with the narrative in Mrs. Falconbridge's own words— quoting from her letter written May 13th 1790 as follows. "The spot they were driven from, was to be preferred to any other part; but by treaty it was agreed they should not settle there; there were other situations nearly as good, and better considerably some of them than the one fixed on; immediate convenience was a powerful inducement. Here was a small village, with seventeen pretty good huts, which the natives had evacuated from a persuasion that they were infested by some evil spirits, but as made no objection to our occupying them, we gladly took possession, considering it a fortunate circumstance to have such temporary shelter for the whole of our people. When those from Pa Boom's had joined us, Falconbridge called them all together, making forty six, including men and women; and after representing the charitable intentions of coming to Africa, and issuing to them some clothing as were sent out in the Lapwing, he exhorted in the most pathetic language, that they might merit by their industry and good behavior the notice now taken of them, endeavor to remove the unfavorable prejudice that had gone abroad, and thereby deserve further favors from their friends in England; who, besides the clothes they had already received, had sent them tools of all kinds, for cultivating their land, also arms and ammunition to defend themselves, if necessary, that these articles would be brought on shore when they got a storehouse built where they would be lodged for their common good and occasional use, he then concluded this harangue by saying,—he named the place Granville Town after Granville Sharp Esquire at whose instance they were provided with the relief now afforded them." From the above it will be seen that the new important Colony of Sierra Leone Extending from the Scarcies in the North to the Manoh River on the Southern distance nearly two hundred miles along the Coast line of the Atlantic was been the outcome of the small settlement of less than fifty souls quartered in the year 1791 in seventeen huts described by the above, out-with what is now Cisers Town and Kissey &c., more than two and fifty Victoria Streets, and nearly the same number of Cross, Two hundred Fery Albert, over 200 Church Streets, while there are nearly as many named Queen. One hundred fifty nine Race Streets The name York is repeated in the Metropolis 15 times.

Many other names are repeated in the city less than one hundred times. But we only note the above to show the importance not only of naming the street, but also indicating the Locality; when addressing parties in the City of London.

It Still Continues.—The crowded attendance, at the New Mouth Chapel in this place, two hundred or more persons were present on the 19th inst. to hear the word of life, and gave the best attention and the natives, chiefly Mendis, seem quite interested in the word, may God grant continued success in the work so well begun.

The D. B. S.—Dicky Bird Society, an association of children in England and various other parts of the world, for the prevention of cruelty to birds in particular and animals in general. It seems to be under the patronage Newcastle Chronicle an interesting English News Paper. It now numbers Two hundred Thousand members. A friend has suggested that it would be a good thing in these parts.

A Good Opening.—is now presented in Lower Bemebeh, and the adjacent district; comprising about 47 towns and Villages, containing an aggregate population of more than thirteen hundred who are now anxious to receive the Gospel and we are sure they would in a short time build up a good school in Bemebeh, if only the work could be started among them. The thing needs but the money, as we have the man who could succeed there and establish good work.

Visit To Jamisco.—It was our pleasure not long since to visit the extensive plantation of the S.S. A. Macfoy at Jamisco and nothing more impressed us than the wonderful amount of food available from the crops of this plantation alone to supply Bonthe, and in fact the whole of Sherbro Island for the next two years, this is indeed an important consideration in any country, especially but in this part of Africa.

The Coffee now covering many acres is in fine condition for young scyons. Besides Coffee we noticed Cocoa or Chocolate, Kolah, and Cocoa Nuts Trees and scyons growing freely, we also observed Calabar Beans in bearing. Everything about the plantation is systematically done. Books are kept in which are noted all that is, or can be of use to the enterprize; and from these can be gathered information of every kind respecting the planting and keeping of the various kinds of trees and plants. And what we are not at liberty to use figures, yet we can say that we congratulate Mr. Macfoy, upon his great success so far as planting.

An Iron Church for saint Matthews.

On monday the 27th inst. a meeting of Church people was took place at St Matthews Church at 7 o'clock p.m.

The Rev. S. Hughes opened the meeting and selected for his lesson Haggai after which he made some introductory remarks stating the object of the meeting and that it is convened to consider what kind of building is required for a new Church in contemplation, whether we are to have—

1—	A Stone Building
2—	A Wood "
3—	An Iron "

After a few remarks he introduced Dr. M. L. Jarrett as the Chairman for the meeting.

After a few words from the Chairman in support of the movement, Mr. C. R. Collier was called upon to address the meeting. This gentleman on rising said That question has been discussed about 3 years ago and that it is the first in his memory. It was decided at the time that a Church was to be built, and an Iron Church was proposed but the death of late past-r Nicol prevented the project from being carried out. And from his experience of now thirty years he believes that no other building would be suited for the purpose save an Iron one considering the soil of the place.

He referred to the spendid stone church which was built at Sierra Leone as an instance to prove what he said that buildings do not last long before they tumble down, and that if even a stone Church would stand yet the expense to keep it up will be greater than that of an Iron one. Roughly estimated they had calculated an Iron Church would cost between £300 to £1100. The present wooden Church is only 23 years and is now infested with bugs Post master William rose up and said that before arriving at a conclusion we should first of all know from what source the money would come. He however seconded the motion of Mr. Collier for an Iron Church. The vote was put to the meeting by the pastor when it received the unanimous consent of all present. The names of those who have promised as follows.

Subscriptions

	£	s	d
S. B. A. Macfoy ...	50	0	0
C. R. Collier ...	25	0	0
R. T. Collier ...	20	0	0
J. B. Parkinson ...	20	0	0
Dr. M. L. Jarrett ...	20	0	0
C. H. H. Moseley ...	15	0	0
C. J. Cole ...	15	0	0
T. E. Macfoy ...	15	0	0
W. Hughes ...	10	0	0
J. D. Macauley ...	10	0	0
A. Z. Macauley ...	10	0	0
H. R. Williams ...	5	5	0
	£316	5	0

The above amount is exclusive of several sums from one guinea.

Porroh on Palm Trees.

We publish in another column the result of the interview between His Excellency the Governor and the merchants on the important subject of the system pursued by the Chiefs in retaining the porroh on the palm trees until the nuts are rotten The subject is one of two-fold interest to us here, as it affects not only the merchants but the poorer classes of the subjects of the Chiefs themselves.

The porroh, we may remark, is a restriction placed by the Chief on the cutting of nuts by any one until it is removed by his order, when all are allowed to gather the nuts from the trees which are common property. In itself we consider it an excellent preventative of the wanton collection of unripe nuts by the ever avaricious native or the unfair appropriation of what really belongs to all of them by his unscrupulous brother; but like many other things good in the selves, the porroh has been much abused. The selfish and jealous Chiefs possessed by that dog in the manger spirit, which is not unique, finding that they cannot from want of laborers collect as many nuts as some of their more fortunate subjects have been known to do, keep the porroh on the trees for years; the nuts have often ripened and rotted, and their poor subjects have lost the value of them, trade has suffered, and even they themselves have not profited beyond feeding their selfish inclinations What therefore seems to be desirable is the moral suaion of some superior power to regulate this institution. We perfectly agree with Sir James' however in thinking that strictly speaking it is not the the part of Government to exercise any direct control commercial transactions between buyer and seller. It would be bad in principle and still worse in pratice, but when as it happens, here, a civilized Government exists on the borders of an uncivilized region much may be done to direct and improve the latter by moral suasion and we are pleased to observe that this is the view His Excellency, as we are informed, has adopted directing letters to all the chiefs asking them to remove the porroh off the trees so soon as the nuts are ripe and intimating that the Police will be ordered to watch and report if it is done or not.

We feel sure that this will have the desired effect and that His Excellency will have the thanks not only of the mercantile community but of the poor natives themselves for thus attempting to remove the evil which lies in the otherwise useful "porroh."

CHILDREN'S COLUMN.

For the Early Dawn.

Dear Bah Gomer,—It is now two years gone since I left dear old Kooloong [Shaingay District] in company with Sally, Edneline, David and my cousin Selina Sopaywoo for the Gambia in care of our gardians Yame Kate and her husband Mr. R. and ever since we were here I have been as anxious to gather all the informations I could about the country so as to write in the paper for the benefit of our friends abroad and especially my much loved and always thought of companions With this object in view then you can better imagine how right glad I was when I was told that the directors of this invaluable paper (invaluable I say, because it has discharged its duty faithfully, as an Organ of the Church advocating at all times the needs of my dear, dear country etc. had decided to give a column for the "Young Folks" as is done in the "Telescope"! It was with the greatest pleasure we read the articles of Gordon Shelby and Martha Vincent they've done very well and I also wish to try my chance.

First of all I must start by telling you that the name 'Gambia' is the native [Mandingo] name given to the majestic River which runs through the tract of country bordering on its right and left banks I am sorry I cannot tell you the extent of the country, not having seen any GEOGRAPHICAL description of it, but at any rate I believe it is a very big country, for the river is navigable to above 300 miles from its mouth.

The Gambia I am told was first visited by the Portuguese about three centuries ago and that they built stations at different points on the banks of the river for the purpose of carrying on the nefarious slave traffic which has been a curse to Afrca in general, and at other times by the French who contended with the Portugese for the booty. The influence of the Portuguse however seems to have given them a better chance. Up to the present time the Portugese copper coins are in use and the lower class of people (i. e. the natives who could not read and write) prefer the use of them to the English coins especially that four teen one pénch [corruption of one penny] make a shilling. Mr. R. has one which he promises to send to Shaingay some day, that was in use in the year 1613.

In the year 1816 the English Government who are destined to be masters of the world formed a settlement on the island of St. Mary which was called Bathurst in honour of the Noble Earl of that name who undoubtedly was principal mover in the undertaking, on almost the same basis as Sierra Leone, for settling our unfortunate ancestors who were captured from Portugese and other slavers, and at the same time fostering trade for which all who have heard of the name Gambia, know the place was renowned. There were days I am told when 'going to' or 'coming from' the Gambia meant much to speculators, but like many other places it is said of her 'dem Sa Lone people done poil de place.'

FLORA.
of Mando.

(To be Continued)

NEWS ITEMS.

Died—At Rotofunk on the 13th inst. Mr. Charles L Helmic of the Y. M. C. A. Missionaries this is we regret to note, the fourth member of this party that has died since they arrived less than Twelve months ago.

Oct. 17—s. s. 'Susu' from Freetown with mails and the following passengers Commandant Moseley [returned from leave of absence.] Rev. J. C. Thomas.

„ 20—'Susu' for Freetown with S. M. Bennett Esqre. Acting Commandant also Mrs. J. B. Parkinson and R. May.

„ 23—'Susu' from Freetown with mails and the following passengers Mrs. Manly, Tucker, Matthews, and several others.

„ 25—'Countess of Derby' from Freetown with His Excellency Sir James Hay, Major J. J. Crooks, Major Moore Messrs W. E. Innis, J. C. E. Parkes, J. W. Lewis.

Col. Steam Launch for Lavanah with Collector Stuart and J. N. Crown he latter to relieve Mr. Songo Davis.

Two special sermons were preached at St Matthews Church by Rev. S. Hughes on behalf of the S. S. Leone Native Pastorate Church and in the evening on behalf of the Rio Pongas mission.

„ 27 A meeting of the principle merchants and traders waited on His Excellency the governor this day.

„ "Countess of Derby" from Freetown with the following passengers Mrs. J. B. Parkinson, Miss Cassandra Parkinson (who left for England in July 1888.)

30 Oct. Rev. S. Hughes left for Freetown, per. s. s. Susu.

PERSONAL

Revd. S Hughes,—the newly appointed Pastor of St. Lukes, Parish, Sherbro, called on Monday the 27th and subscribed for our Paper. Mr. Hughes, seems an accomplished gentleman and, in every way adapted to a Parish like this.

The Hon. Major Crooks, Colonial Treasurer, Accompanied by Major Moore Inspector General of Police. Made us a very pleasant call on the 28th inst. and Order several Copies of present Issue to be sent to them, such calls are highly appreciated

Captain Clarke,—s. s. Susu also gave us the benefit of his genial presence on the 29th inst.

ADVERTISEMENT.

FOR SALE.

(By Public Auction or Private Contract)

All that piece and parcel of Extensive Land known as Baffin Creek situate lying and being in Victoria Road Sherbro all that piece and parcel of Land situate at Plain Street Bonthe Sherbro; all that piece and parcel of Land known as and Commonly called Motogoa- situate the Jurisdiction of Sherbro; all properties of William Elias Bull deceased.

The titles of those Lands are indisputable.

For arrangement apply to M. H. Davis of Freetown, or Rev. J. C. Thomas of Bonthe.

25th Oct. 90

Communications.

Report of Rembee Station
FOR THE QUARTER ENDING SEP 30TH 90:

Mr. Editor;—In presenting you with a report from this part of the vineyard, I can say thank God, we are yet here, battling for God and the right. Although, the way sometimes seems gloomy and dangerious, we can hear the voice of our dear Saviour saying "Lo I am with you alway even unto the end of the world." Though satan is stiring up those whom he can deceive, and leads them to disturb our work Christ by the Holy spirit is lifting up a standard against these evil workers. And many of them who have been so deceived are being enlighten and rescued from the meshes of the net that is spread for their feet, when the truth comes to their knowledge.

Though this is the busy time with our people in keeping away the birds from their farms yet our sunday morning service is not neglected, for those whose farms are near, leave their children to drive away the birds, and come for meeting, and in the evening we have always, good attendance, from 80 to 100.

Our weeknight meetings is the same, for the people come from their farms in time for service. Our Quarterly Conference was held on the 13th. inst. by the Presiding Elder Rev. J. Gomer, a verbal report was given of the work which shows progress. The leaders also gave favorable reports of their classes.

On sunday the 14th. the Presiding Elder, preached to a good gathering; at the close of which, 23 persons were baptized, 9 came forward and joined the church, when the Sacrament of the Lord's supper, was administered to 16 persons.

In the evening there was hardly room for the people when he addressed them on intemperance, also Mrs.G.S. Caulker who came on a visit with the Rev Gentleman, spoke to the people in their own language, on the same subject she was listened to with great attention, they were surprised to hear a woman adress them. She advised them to abstain from all intoxicating drinks, and called their attention to the, past and present of the country, how the Gospel of Christ is taking root in this land, and it behoves them to hold on to that blessed truth which is a light to lighten the gentiles, her words made great impression on them. We trust that the visit of the Presiding Elder and Mrs. Caulker will ever be remembered and that the reflection on those meetings, will bring about, a glorious result.

The same day, three young men, whose names are in our seekers class, in a town about six miles from this place, when they heard that the Rev. Gentleman was here came all the way to be Baptized, after they have answered all the necessary questions put to them by the P. E. they were Baptized that evening with other town children making a total of 28 persons, who received Baptism that day. A young man who when I first came here, was one of those who, were against going to meeting. I rejoice to say has given all evidence of conversion. His house is by the way, and near the barra whenever I pass'd I used to call him to go to meeting, but he always sneered at me and would say "I am coming., but never came while the service was going on, his seat used to be out side of his house, where he can hear all that was said. A few weeks before the Rev. J Gomer's visit, he began to be a regular attendant on all the means of Grace. When I ask for names of those who wish to be Baptized, he was the first to give his name, and the first who came foaward to unite with the church. His testimony in the class meeting, give all assurance, that he his a new creature in Christ Jesus we pray that he may be taught and led by the Holy Spirit into all truth.

Out Stations.—There ha not been much itineranting done during the quarter, owing to the bad roads and water, but those that can be easily reached we have visited eleven where we were gladly received.

Day School.—We are glad to say that our school is still going on with 21 children who are trying to learn.

Our Sabbath school,-has not been well attended during the quarter as our people are busy in driving away the birds from their rice.

Number of Towns visited,		11
" Believers class,		1
Members in	"	16
" Seekers class		17
Members in	"	270
Day School Children		21
Sabbath "	"	125

During the quarter, not less than 1031 people have heard the message of salvation.
Pray for us—Your Bro. in Christ.
J. M. Steel.

SELECTIONS

Mademoiselle Papa.

Translated from the French.

Every morning when the men at work in the mine assembled around the Berard pit to answer to the roll call there was seen—the last always—a tall, stout, merry fellow leading by the hand a little girl seven or eight years old. It was Micheal Pierron and his daughter. Before stepping upon the platform of the pit the man always took the child up in his arms gave her cheeks two ringing kisses, and set her on the ground again. "Au revoir, papa!" would cry the little one; and when he reached the edge of the pit she would look at him intently and anxiously with wondering eyes, and say once more "Au revoir, papa!" At the ringing of the bell for the decent, she pressed her little hands together, twisting her fingers in and out and repeating her one word "papa!" until sure that her father could no longer hear her, she started away for school to remain all day.

When evening came she was the first at the pit from which Michel Pierron always merged first. He raised the child in his arms as he had done on parting and she clung to him with her clear, sharp cry, "papa!" while all the night in her little soul suddenly shone forth in her eyes and smiles like dazzling sunbeams.

People had so often heard her repeat these two syllables and had been so struck by the peculiar intensity with which she uttered them, that they called her "Mademoiselle papa;" and certainly never was a name better chosen. Her father was all to her; for her mother had been dead a long while. Ah! but how frightened she was every morning when she saw him go down into that yawning darkness to whose depths no eyes could reach.

One day a miner took it into his head— an excellent man, nevertheless—to swing her over the edge of the pit; and at a glance into the dark gulf which extended down, down out of sight, she uttered a cry of terror and freeing herself stood trembling.

"Papa goes down into that place," was her thoght; "what if he should never come up again!"

That day when Michael took her in his arms as usual, she clung around his neck closer than ever, and said to him in a low voice:

"You will come up again won't you?—tell me so, papa!"

"Why what's this, petite? There isn't any danger—I say so, papa!"

"Why, no, you scared one."

"Could—no one could—die down there?"

"I will not die without telling you, said Micheal, laughing.

"Ah! au revoir, papa!"

Whatever her father said was the gospel; and she went her way to school, re-assured.

But the memory of the black gulf which her eyes had searched could not be banished, and she was overcome with fear every morning and trembled every evening lest her father might not come up this time from those mysterious depths into which she saw him descend.

One day there was sudden rumor that a fire-damp explosion had taken place.

In less time than it takes to tell it the approaches to the Berard pit became crowded.

From all directions the distracted people came running to the spot. Of all the living buried how many would return up to the light and air?

Mademoiselle Papa, Michel's daughter, was at school. She knew nothing of it.—Million.

To be continued.

ADVERTISEMENT.

MR ALFRED A LEWIS,
Jeweller
AND
Electro Metallurgist

begs to inform the Public of his having established at Otto St. a workshop wherein the best and choicest workmanship in Gold or silver can be obtained, and Galvanized works performed either in Gold or silver at shortest notice and for very reasonable prices.

Please send your old silver candle sticks Trays etc., and they will be polished as new, or your English gold Gaurds etc., for polishing, or Galvanized bangles and they will be converted.

Your clocks too can be repaired at moderate prices.
You have only to apply at the workshop, Corner of Victoria Road.

Apprentices wanted-conditions understood on application.
Bonthe Sherbro, Sep. 3rd 90

THE
Early Dawn
PRINTING OFFICE
PLAIN ARTISTIC and FANCY JOB WORK
EXECUTED AT
SHORT NOTICE
ENQUIRE OF
N. Samuel Thomas,
PRINTER.

THE EARLY DAWN.

"The Morning Light is Breaking, The Darkness Disappears."

VOL. VII. BONTHE, SHERBRO, WEST AFRICA, NOVEMBER 15, 1890. No. 19

The 'Early Dawn'

Published Semi-Monthly at Bonthe Sherbro. Under the Auspices of the Board of Missions of the United Brethren in Christ.

Rev. J. A. Evans, Editor and Publisher.
Bonthe, Sherbro, West Africa.

AGENTS.

United States.—Revs. B. F. Booth and Wm. McKee, Dayton. Rev. Wm J. Davis, Basil, Ohio. Rev. J. T. Jenifer, Chicago. Ill. Rev. J. L. Bentley, Marion, O. Rev. J. S. Cleaver, Elkhart, Ind. Rev. R. F. Barton, Penn. Ind. D. K. Flickinger, Willoughby, O. Rev. H. Eidwell, Dayton. Washington, Ter., M. J. Stoner, Manheim, Pa., Master Charlie Howe Manchester, Ind. Rev. G. W. Arnold, Eldorado, Ohio.

West Africa.—J. A. Richards, River Gambia. Rev. J. R. Frederick and Mr. E. A. Lewis Freetown, Sierra Leone. Rev. James Dennis, Marshall Liberia. Mr. Moses Boyle, Liberia.

TERMS.

One Year by mail,	£0	6	0
Delivered in Bonthe,	0	5	0
Half yearly by mail,	0	3	0
Ditto, delivered in Bonthe,	0	2	6

A "Knock-Down Argument."

The following was published in the Monthly Itinerant some ten years ago; and as many of the readers of the Telescope have never seen it, and because we regard it as a perfect specimen of a "knock-down argument," it is here reproduced. It was told to the writer at the time by one of the actors in the scene, and then written for the paper soon after. Our readers are assured that the circumstance actually occurred.

In the fall of 1876 Rev. D. S. Early, of East Pennsylvania Conference, and then general agent of the U. B. Mutual Aid Society, was sent to Augusta, Maine, to confer with the insurance commissioner as to the society's doing business in that state. In Boston he was joined by Mr. B. L. Chadbourne of Bangor, Maine, who was to accompany him to Augusta in the interest of the society. Being seated together in the car, soon after the train pulled out from Boston, Mr E and C. engaged in conversation; and ere long, by request of Mr C, Mr E commenced to explain the origin and creed of the United Brethren in Christ. Being a very energetic and demonstrative talker, Mr. Early's manner attracted the attention of nearly all in the car, and especially of an elderly, clerical-looking gentleman seated in the seat behind them, who happened to be (although Mr. Early did not know it) none other than Cardinal McCloskey of New York. In the course of his remarks Mr. Early spoke in uncomplimentary terms of some of the peculiarities of the church of his choice, and pointed out its superiority in doctrine on certain points. But in the midst of his earnest conversation Cardinal McCloskey interrupted him by saying, "Yes, my friend; but now do you know that your church is right?" This, from an entire stranger, rather took Mr. E off his pins; but recovering himself, he replied to the cardinal, in blissful ignorance of the greatness of the man he was now addressing, and began to assign reasons for believing that his church was right. But as he assigned one reason after another the cardinal would always reply, "Yes, my friend; but how do you know that your church is right?" and thus succeeded in making it for the time quite warm for Mr. Early. By this time nearly all the passengers in the car (many of whom, including Mr. Chadbourne, knew the cardinal) were noticing with much interest and amusement what seemed to be an unequal contest. Finally, in his attempt at giving a reason for believing that his church was right, Mr. E. referred to Martin Luther as an authority; but the cardinal replied by saying, "Yes, my friend; but how do you know that Martin Luther was right?" This was two much for Mr. E. It raised his Pennsylvania-Dutch blood; and rising to his feet, and turning around so as to look the cardinal squarely in the face, he said in a very loud voice and with much emphasis, the eyes of all in the car now fastened upon him, "Well sir since you have asked me that question I will just tell you how I do know that Martin Luther was right. I know he was right because of what he did. There was the old pope, with all his cardinals, bishops and priests, and all the kings and armies of Europe, on one side, and there was nobody but little Martin Luther and God Almighty on the other side; and little Martin Luther just took that old pope's bull by the horns and gave his neck such a twist as he will never get over until Gabriel blows his horn and sends the old pope, with all his cardinals, bishops, and priests down to hell, where they belong. That, sir, is how I know that Martin Luther was right!" The last sentence he roared out at the top of his voice; and with its completion all the passengers in the car clapped their hands, cheered, and burst into roars of laughter. Soon the train stopped; and the cardinal, having reached his destination, left the car; but before doing so he gave Mr. Early a hearty shake of the hand, and said he was glad they had met, and complimented his pluck and shrewdness.

When Mr. Chadbourne informed Mr E that he had been talking with Cardinal McCloskey he was somewhat stunned; but recovering himself, he remarked in his characteristic way, "Well, I don't care if I did handle him a little roughly. He interrupted us in our conversation; and when a man does that he must put up with what he gets." From that time on Mr. E was lionized by those New-England passengers. They seemed to be perfectly delighted over the fact that in a wordy battle "a little Pennsylvania Dutchman" (as Mr. Early was wont to denominate himself) had so completely unhorsed the great cardinal of New York.—Telescope.

Canabalism.

The fact that the Imperch has been proclaimed British territory, by His Excellency the Governor of Sierra Leone; will I trust in itself, serve to check the depredations of the man eaters; yet it will doubtless require vigilence on the part of the Authorities in order to put down the horrid practice entirely, as the parties are likely to try rather to conceal, than to abandon the practice.

The old disguise of the Leopard or Alligator can be easily detected, by a little care on the part of those who have the work of trying Canabal cases in hand. But other and new disguises are likely to be intented by evil geniuses so that every number or mysterious disappearance of any person or persons should be carefully investigated. And I scarcely need repeat that any report of Leopard or Alligator cateing or attempting to catch any person should receive prompt notice and investigation as I believe it is now quite a well established fact that neither of these creatures except the Leopard when wounded are likely to attack a person and when they do they leave unmistakable marks of their assault on the victims. It would also seem desirable to have some kind of ordinance against the making keeping or use of any of the Paraphernalia used in either the Leopard or Alligator disguises; for certainly such Trappings are not requisite to any known legitimate pursuits and ought therefore to be prohibited. With proper attention given to the above particulars and the course pursued pointed out in my first article entitled Canabalism Tangible published in the Early Dawn of Sept. 30th of this year.

I feel sure that this scurge of humanity may be completely over thrown in the Land.—E.

The Work of Missions.

Perhaps in no age of the world's history, has the knowledge of God increased, with such rapidity, as it has in this latter half of the nineteenth century; in almost every land on the face of our Globe, will now be found those who acknowledge the Supremacy of the God of heaven. And whether this knowledge be of Christian, Jewish, or Mohammedan origin, it is spread abroad and homage is thereby being paid to the God of heaven and earth. And as a result the Idols of the heathen are being cast away to the Moles and the Bats; and their temples going to ruin. But as we look upon this grand advance in the knowledge of the true God in the world; we are led to seek out the cause of this advance, which we percieve almost at once to be due to Missionary effort which effort has been almost if not entirely monopolised by Mohammedans and Christians. Jews have done comparitively little, if anything on this line. Mohammedans have however, pushed their Work with great energy, and perhaps more success, than many Christians are aware or willing, even to admit. On this the darkest continent their missionaries are legion and they are industrious. Europe and Asia have their labors also, in a greater, measure possibly than is generally conceded especially in this true of Europe, where of late years Mohammedan men has found appologists, not a few among Christians, a thing perhaps unheard of in the past centuries. But it will be readily perceived that Christianity has out flanked Mohammedanism with its Missionary work and has extended its efforts not only over the Continents of the old world but has nearly monopolized the new world and has now a foothold on almost every Isle of the Sea. And has successfully girted the Globe with its belt Love.

So that while we reasonably conclude that it has been the work of Missions, that has so wonderfully increased that knowledge of the True God, it is farther pleasing to note that christain missions have done the greater part in this glorious Work, not only from the better quality of their work, but also from the larger field of their operations. Even more litterally than ever before, is the world the field of the missionary effort of the Christian Church; and never in any age, was there even so much accomplished, by the servants of Christ, as there is today. But the vastness of the field, is such that we cannot properly estimate the extent, or the results of the work.

J. A. E.

The Brotherhood Of Man.

In the Last Issue of the Dawn, I wrote on the Fatherhood of God, now I wish to write on this kindred topic. The Brotherhood of man or men as implied in the fatherhood of God; for the Sons of one father must of necessity be brothren. Hence then as God is our common father thus we are his sons and brethren. But it appears from holy writ and from the nature of the sons that we have all sprang from the same stock and unfortunately by an accident that happened to our great Ancestor Adam, we have inherited a brutish or bent in our natures which is very much against our good behavior but in all natures bears unmistakable evidence of the nearness of Stock; and our helplessness by nature to recover from the effects of the fall of Adam. And as by the fall once has been reduced from free a most to slave of Sin and Satan, he has thereby lost his right of Sonship to God and as a Result his right to heaven and happiness and is by nature exposed through sin to the fiery wrath of God who cannot look upon iniquity with the least degree of allowance. But fortunately for us God has been pleased to offer us a means of restoration through the death of his dear Son who has borne our inquity, and for our sin died on the Cross, and thus opened the way for our restoration and deliverance from the bondage of Sin to the freedom of the sons of God, the conditions of this restoration to God, and the inheritance of heaven, are repentance and faith in the Son of God who has made the full and complete Atonement for all mankind. Who then will accept of the conditions and be saved?

More again.—E.

Imperch a British Territory.
No. 20.

PROCLAMATION.

By His Excellency Sir James Shaw Hay Knight Commander of the Most Distinguished Order of Saint Michael and St. George, Governor and Commander-in-Chief of the Colony of Sierra Leone, &c., &c., &c.

(L. S.)
J. S. HAY,
Governor.

WHEREAS by a convention dated the 14th day of September 1825 and made between His Excellency Charles Turner, Knight, Companion of the Most Honorable the military order of the Bath &c. Governor-in-Chief of the Colony of Sierra Leone, on behalf of His then Britannic Majesty of the one part, and BAMBA King of Sherbro and the Chiefs and Headmen of the Sherbro Country of the other part, the said Bambe, and other Chiefs and Headmen did cede transferred give over certain territories described in the said treaty and including all that territory known as the Imperreh unto His Excellency Charles Turner aforesaid and his successors in Office for the use and on behalf of His then Britanic Majesty the King of Great Britain and Ireland and his successors and the full entire free and unlimited right title possession an sovereignty over the said territories. And whereas notwithstanding such cession as aforesaid active jurisdiction has not been assumed and exercised by Her Majesty over the said Imperreh Country and whereas it is desirable and necessary that such jurisdiction should be so assumed and exercised.

NOW THEREFORE I do hereby publish proclaim and make known to all whom it may concern that the right title and sovereignty of Her Majesty Queen Victoria and Her successors into and over the whole of the said Imperreh country shall be forever maintained and that active jurisdiction is now assumed and exercised over the said Imperreh Country.

BRITISH SUBJECTS and all other persons residing within the said territory are hereby enjoined to govern themselves accordingly.

Given at Government House, Fort Thornton, Freetown, in the said Colony of Sierra Leone, this twenty-fourth day of October, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and ninety, and 54 Her Majesty's reign the Fifty-fourth

By His Excellency's Command,

J. J. CROOKS,
Acting Colonial Secretary.

God Save The Queen.

The Early Dawn

BONTHE, NOVEMBER 15, 1890.

REV. J. A. EVANS—EDITOR.

Nov. 4 [EDITORIAL.]

Falconbridge Letter.

Our Last closed with the account of the first general meeting of the Settlers after the arrival of those from Pa. Isaac's. On which occasion Mr. Falconbridge formally opened the resettlement of Sierra Leone and the first settlement of Granville town, which was in fact the begining, as we have before remarked, of the permanent settlement of the present Colony.

Our readers will perceive that this latter settlement was not established until 1791 or some Four years after the first settlement, which occured about 1787 according to the accepted history of Sierra Leone. But this does not tally with Official Record as Treaty No.1 is dated Aug 29th, 1788. However we are not particular just now on this matter of the first effort at Settlement.

But proceed to give Mrs. Falconbridges account of the motley crowd of persons, which Mr. Falconbridge had formally installed as Settlers of Granville Town. She says "I never did, and God grant I never may, witness so much misery as I was forced to be a Spectator of here. Among the outcasts were seven of our own country women, decreped with disease, and so disguised with filth and dirt that I should never have supposed they were born white; add to this, almost naked from head to foot; in short, their appearance was such as I think would extort compassion from the most callous heart, but I declare they seemed insensible to shame, or the wretchedness of their situation themselves, I begged they would get washed, and gave them what clothes I could conveniently spare. Falconbridge had a hut appropriated as a hospital, where they were kept seperate from the settlers, and by his attention they recovered in a few weeks.

I had always supposed that had been transported as convicts, from some conversation I lately had with one of the women, his partly; undeceived me. She said, the women were mostly of that description of persons who walk the Streets of London, and support themselves by the earnings of prostitution; that men were employed to collect and conduct them to Wapping, where they were intoxicated with liquor, then inveigled on board of Ship, and married to black men, whom they had never seen before; that the morning after she was married, she really did not remember a syllable of what had happened over night, and when informed, was obliged to inquire who was her husband? After this to the time of their sailing, they were amused and buoyed up by a prodigality of fair promises, and great expectations which awaited them in the country they were going to. "Thus" in her own words to the disgrace of mankind in this country, upwards of one hundred unfortunate women, were seduced from England to practice their iniquities more brutishly in this horrid country.

"Good heaven!" remarks Mrs Falconbridge now the relation of this tale made me shudder.—I questioned its veracity, and enquired of the other women who exactly corroberated what I had heard; nevertheless, I cannot altogether reconcile myself to believe it, but it is scarcely possible that the British Government, at this advanced and enlightened age, envied and admired as it is by the universe, could be capable of exercising or countenancing such a Gothic outringment on human Liberty.

"Immediately after we had fixed on this Place for the settlement, I singled out one of the best huts for my own residence; where I remained nigh a month, though I did not sleep on the shore the whole time; about a fortnight I continued to go on board the Cutter at night until it was necessary to send her to Bance island; I then had a kind of bed stead, not unlike a hospital cradle, erected in my hovel, but the want of a door was some inconvenience, and as no deal, or other boards could be procured for the purpose, I made a country mat supply the place, for I now find its necessary to accommodate myself to whatever I meet with there being but few conveniences or accommodating things in this part of Africa. The river abounds with fine fish, and we get abundance of them, which, with rice, wild deer, and some poultry, forms my common food since I came to Granville Town. In something less than four weeks we got a large store house and several huts for the settlers built, and had the goods landed from the Lady Wing,—they consisted chiefly of Ironmongery such as blacksmith's and plantation tools, a prodigious number of childrens trifling half-penny knives, and some few dozen scissors of the same description. I am charitable enough to think the benevolent gentleman, who purchased those goods, had a double purpose in view viz. to serve his sister from whom he brought them—and the persons to whom they are sent: but certainly he was unacquainted with the quality of the latter articles, or he must have known they were very improper gifts of Charity."

Our readers will readily perceive that in the early settlement of this colony there were a number of Europeans among the settlers especially females, and that a very large percentage of them must have succumb to the climate in a very short time, [illegible] in just to attribute their death altogether to climate effects, as they must have died from other causes. But one thing that is strikingly noticeable in history of the infancy of this settlement is that it was undertaken by great good and wise men yet there were serious mistakes in almost every detail of its working. How strange it does seem that colonization should have been begun by sending out black men with white wives into a black man's country where there were enough black women too all the men that they could send out. Time showed the folly of that step for in a few years the settlement came to grief and the settlers were dispersed abroad until most of these strange wives had died for as we see that Mrs Falconbridge says more than one hundred white women were brought and she only speaks of seven among the settlers whom her husband gathered into the Granville Town settlement.

Great blunders were made mending our supplies but of this we shall have occasion to say something later on. Granville Town at this time about the month of March 1791 was the scene of rather a rough group than a Town and a colony and yet it was the begining of Sierra Leone. It had seventeen huts one of which was occupied by the Agent and for the time Governor; another was a hospital, the other fifteen were occupied by the other settlers; and these you might have seen in the daytime busy in clearing away the bush making farms and preparing Materials and building more huts or houses. At night if one had been visited the youthful capital of the infant colony he would have been accosted doubtless by a rustic Militia gaurd, a service in which all the men engaged, and kept up a vigilant watch at night lest they should be attacked by the natives. By reference to Official records of the colony it will be seen that at that time there were no less than three or four subchiefs ruling in the Territory west of the settlement among which were King Jimmie who had broken up the first settlement and after whom the Landing is now called. Another was Pa Forrah at Forrah Bay King Tom at King Toms' Point and King Moffee at Moffee Point or perhaps better understood as the cape, of course there was no light house at the cape and Free Town had not been founded, so that everything looked very different from what it does now. And who could have believed then that what we see today in the shape of the City of Freetown would ever have resulted from the little group of settlers then huddled together in Granville Town inconsidereate migrat ful, turbuie t and hard to manage as they were at the time.

Pushing interior to do Mission Work is all the cry now a days and certainly that is a good thing to do, there are many reasons why missionaries should push inland. The first and greatest of all reasons is that there are those lost or precious souls in the interior that have never heard of a saviour. They have never heard that their elder brother came from the Father and gave his life to redeem them from the power of death and to secure for them eternal life. They have never heard that they have a loving father in heaven that is a great king and who is anxious that they shall come and dwell with him, and that there they shall be free from all suffering and sorrow, that death shall never visit them there These people ought to have the gospel invitation Jesus has given the command that it be carried to them, and it is the duty of the missionary to carry it to them, and they should make speed to obey the command. Daily precious souls are [illegible] good [illegible] haste and not waste time, from town to town they should fly with this God message from heaven. This gospel seed should be sown wherever there is immortal souls, and as time is very precious it should be well looked after.

A watchman ought to be stationed at proper distances to prevent the enemy from sowing tares. Night and day they should be on the look out, as the women and children are early and late on their rice farms to drive away the birds and may save their labor save the seed from being caught away.

So ought we to protect this most precious seed. Then too this soil is not adapted to growing cocoa and it must be cultivated but with proper attention and faithful laborers good and profitable crops can be raised.

But hasty and indiscrious labor must be left in charge to prevent the enemy destroying the work done.

I know there are those who advocate a very different method scatter the seed as they carry the message deliver the invitation and leave the people to accept it as they please. I fail to see the wisdom in this, heathen people are ignorant and need to be reasoned with. I have seen in this section in Africa in the far west in early days and as good results were obtained until watchmen were left to look after and care for the seed sown. In the late war in America when a town was taken troops were left to protect or to hold the place lest the enemy come and take possession again, so we should push into the interior by all means but we ought not to neglect the seed sown. It is worth taking care of, what man will be so foolish as to sow a field with wheat or plant one with corn and then leave it to grow and harvest itself.

Grace or Facilities and Energy.

In the Religious Telescope of Sept. 21st we find the following "There never was a time when the evangelistic enterprises of the Christian Church were being more energetically and successfully push forward than now. There are more church-sittings and more varied and practical methods of reaching the masses than at any time in the past. Besides, there is a steady multiplying of attractive agencies calculated to win men to the Cross of our Lord." We suppose of course our contemporary, refers in these remarks to the Christian church, in home Lands, and chiefly to America and England. But we feel that very much of this is also true in Foreign Mission fields; and that there are now greater facilities than ever before for reaching the semi-civilised and heathen people than ever before; and more preaching places—not sittings but standings in the open courts and shadows of trees and more attractive appliances, and more skill in the use of them, among Missionaries than ever before for bringing man to a knowledge of salvation, and the heathen are being by these, brought to the Savior.

Minor Mat.

It seems partially forgotten by some societies, or may be individuals of our community that the subject or matter of [illegible] men is now rather an old one

And that it has been understood for nearly a half dozen years at least; that this class of dealers, were not needed in the trade, and that the principal of leading firms, had determined as far back a 1884 or 85 to transact business directly with the gatherers of produce, without the meditation of any one; and that for several years Merchants have been labouring to to this end nor have they attempted to disguise the fact but have been quite outspoken in the matter. But the middle men complain, it is said of this as unfair and contend that it is wrong for Merchants to establish in the up river districts to deal directly with the natives, thus competing with the petty trader: and by having a larger and better assorted stock divert the trade from him. It should, we think, however be remembered, that prior to 1866, that there were another class of men that occupied the position of middle men, these were the chiefs and headmen of the natives themselves, and that notwithstanding the complaints of these former middle men, that the very men that now constitute the middle men were the ones to enter the rivers in great numbers, and by so doing they diverted the trade from the former middle men, and being better prepared to carry on trade with the produce gatherers; soon secured all the profits to themselves, which so reduced the profits and influence of the Chiefs they (the Chiefs) ordered the Merchants to leave the rivers. But however, it came about that these traders did not leave the rivers for all the hue and cry of the Chiefs,—the former middle men. So now if the Merchants have decided to follow the example of the petty traders, and go into the rivers, with better facilities of trade, we fail to see any reason why they may not do so. And especially since they do so not against the remonstrance of Chiefs and their people who are the owners of the country, but with their free consent. However, we suspect the parties who are raising the cry at present are not the middle men at all, but persons, who themselves already importers and exporters, who would like to have the larger Firms, to keep out of the rivers until they get well established, so that really if there is no injustice, or even [illegible] in this case, but only a matter of competition in the [illegible] of the same Year.

CHILDREN'S COLUMN.

Continued from our last.

Now being a Politician I cannot attempt much on politics, but may mention that the Gambia is now a seperate Colony of itself having as administrator Gilbert Thomas Carter Esquire C. M. G. who has visited us the Coast a number of years, rising from one grade to another, and which gives him the advantage of knowing the people with whom he has to deal. I am sorry however to learn he is no lover of our race; then there is C. Bunny Mitford Esquire, Treasurer a reputed beau, Hon. Harry Holme Lee, Collector of Customs, a refined gentleman, Lt. Col. Tighe Superintendent of Police and Sheriff of the Colony a retired soldier C. H. Hingeston Esquire Col Surveyor A Woodburn Heron Esquire M. D. Col. Surgeon and Percy Randall Esquire his Asst. with the Hon. James Topp (merchant) and one of the oldest residents Coroner these form the European staff. Then among the natives I find second to none in West Africa the great scholar His Honor Joseph Rainer Maxwell Esquire M. A. B. L, B. C. L. Chief Magistrate of the Colony of the Gambia &c. &c. &c. then also the renowned William Campbell Cates Esquire Clerk of Courts & Registrar, who also acts as Crown Solicitor in all Criminal Cases. Then also there are Bah Syret Esquire Governor's Clerk and Deputy Coroner Isaac Johnson Esquire first writer, Mr Solomon N'Jie (native of Bathurst) second writer, Mr. Gains Nathan, Auditor's Clerk. At the Treasury we find Messrs S. A. D. Coker (Chief Clerk) and A. L. J. Nicol (second clerk) eldest surviving son of retired Col. Chaplain Crowley Nicol at. A and one of the numerous grandsons of Bishop Adjai Crowther of the Niger territory. At the Customs we find J. Dugan Esquire, Tide Surveyor and Warehouse keeper and S. Jeremie Aubee Esquire, clerk of Customs, Messrs W. A. Davis and J. Nox Carickterguss Nilhelm [brother of the famous Scientist of Freetown] Senior & second Landing Waiters Messrs J. C. Chapman and W. Ethelred Johnson on the Temporary Staff. At the Post Office we find J. H. Finden Esquire Postmaster Mr. S. Casellizo King (a rather small man for so big a name) Chief Clerk and a Mr. Smith sorter. This is the only Department where the Officials are exclusively natives of the Gambia. At the Col. Hospital we find Messrs George Spilsbury (nephew of the late Dr. Spilsbury) Dispenser and James Deigh Dresser. At the Jail there's a renowned West Indian C. H. Sherrington Esquire Governor who also acts as Col. Engineer in the absence of that officer T. C. Paul Esqre. is Surjeant major of Police and J. Taylor Coker Esq. Government Printer. In the Outstations at British Combo and McCarthy's Island we find Messrs J. Thomas (Sergeant) and E. A. Smith (I should think the oldest native officials, for term of service) Managers. With the four exceptions mentioned viz. Mr. Solomon N'Jie at the Government House and Messrs Finden, King & Smith at the Post Office, the rest are Sierra Leoneans. Somehow Gambians have always had an antipathy to holding Government posts. They've got on pretty fairly without them and there's all possibility they will continue so while they remain a people. The Colony enjoys always a surplus revenue in spite of the number of Officials and the draw for Travelling allowances &c. on the Col. chest, which is sent home to England I should think every year, for safe keeping in the Imperial Exchequer and yet there's so much needed to be done for the physical good of the country that is altogether neglected and uncared for.

There is an Executive as well as a Legislative Council to strengthen the hands of the Governor but so withy has the Governor been in his arrangements and recommendations to the Downing Street authorities that there is only one native to represent the people and that the distinguished and Hon. Samba F.—Now Bah Gomer do you think that's fair? Is that the way are done thingsin the States?

There are no Soldiers here as I have seen in Freetown. Up to the year 1870 the country had enjoyed uninterrupted by the service of the West India Regiments which kept up the dignity of the country in the estimation of the surrounding tribes, who like the wild mendis in the far up interior were of a warlike disposition.

FLORA,—of Mando.

(To be Continued.)

NEWS ITEMS.

Drowned.—On the evening of the 10th. inst. about 7 o'clock the first and second Engineers of the Launch Ariel belonging to Messrs. Paterson Zochonis & Co. of this place, were in a small Dingey coming on shore with three other men, when by some means the Dingey was upset and all were thrown into the water only a few rods from the land and much nearer the Pier, which extends out about 150 ft. into the river, but some how only 3 of the men were saved, while the other two were drowned. We sympathise with the firm, and especially their agent, Mr. T. E. Macfoy, in their loss.

The new American Council Mr. Barning Barner of Hatford Connecticut arrived in the brig Ramson Yesterday with his wife, they were 66 days on the voyage were in good health.

Died,—at Moosba Adelade eldest daughter of Mrs. Thomas Tucker aged about 30. She was the eldest sister of Mrs. Hollist of Shaingay and J. Barrow of Moosba.

Mr. J. A. Price,—Y. M. C. A. missionary spent a month at Shaingay returned to Freetown quite sick, but we are glad to learn that he is fast improving.

2 „—Countess of Derby left for Freetown via Bargroo to receive His Excellency. She left for Freetown with His Excellency.

3 „—Steam Launch returned from the Imperreh and left the next day for Lavanah for Collector Stewart.

PERSONAL.

Mr. G. R. L. Thompson,—returned from England per s.s. Mandingo that arrived in Freetown on the 23rd. ult. he has since arrived here looking fresh and fine. Mr. Thompson is another of those sons of the soil that we are pleased to learn carries a flourishing business, like his estimable Brothers, without spirits.

Mr. W. A. Caulker,—son of the Late Chief George S. Caulker of Shaingay has gone to Freetown quite sick to receive medical treatment.

CORRESPONDENCE.

Should We Learn the Language ?

Mr. Editor,—Owing to the fact that there are often in this part of Africa, so many languages spoken in a comparatively small, and in many cases, sparsely populated, District; the health of the majority of foreigners so precarious, and the suppositions that have long prevailed of the inadequacy of the native dialects to impart religious instruction, and the limited number of persons understanding any given language; has inclined the writer rather strongly against the learning of the language of any particular tribe, in past years, but of late or within the present year I have been pretty thoroughly convinced, that while it is not advisable to attempt to understand the language of any tribe or people before begining to impart religious instruction to them. Yet it is, I believe, worth while, and even the best thing a missionary can do to learn the language that is most spoken or the best understood by the people among whom he labors which he can do at his leisure, if he wishes, but were I too advise, now in the matter, I would say learn it as fast as you can and thus add to your qualifications for usefulness among the people.

On the point of the variety of Languages spoken in a comparatively small District, I have to observe first that such are as a rule scarcely to be regarded as distinct Languages but are rather in the stricter sense of the term dialects of the same language, and that when you have acquired a knowledge of one you have the key to many others and by perseverance may in time become master of the whole or at least sufficently so to understand and converse in the majority of them. The advantage of understanding a group of persons gathering, to whom you are to speak I need scarcely mention, for every one must have felt it. Not only does it appear that the several dialects of a considerable District are closely related to each other, but that in many cases there is a principal one among these dialects that is understood by nearly all the people, so that a tongue once trained to speak such a dialect, can be used among a far larger number of people and over a much larger territory than we have been wont to suppose. Of the susceptibility of the dialects for the purpose of conveying religious teaching I must write again, but I say by all means learn the language.

Yours—E. J. BETAL

PIETY.

The professed follower o Christ, should be really pious, not merrely professedly so as is the fashion of rather too many of us. We like to talk good and to put on a fair appearance, but to be really good or as good as it is our privilege to be, and the master would have us live in this life, we are really unwilling: at least we seem averse to making the necessary sacrifice in order to become really what we might be. Love of self more than we should possess has dwarfed the piety of many an otherwise good person; while many others have not loved God as they should, nor yet their fellowmen as is required by the law of life and righteousness. Carelessness or indifference is another evil under the sun, that is very destructive to real piety; one cannot live careless of the divine precepts and still enjoy a pious heart But one to live pious needs to carefully study and wisely apply the heart unto wisdom.—J. AMES.

SELECTIONS

From the Million

Mademoiselle Papa.

(Continued)

If any one had spoken of it to her would she have understood, poor little thing, what was meant by a fire-damp explosion? No; but at her age children understand what it is when they see white faced, lifeless, wounded bodies lying on the ground; and the ground around the Berard pit was thus strewn when she came there that evening to meet her father. For a moment she was dazed, then she began to tremble. She had seen these men whom she knew well, and who had kissed her so many times, go down alive that morning and had been brought up dead. She began to run around, with hair flying, calling: "Papa! papa! papa!"

There were many other children crying and calling papa, but there was not one whose voice had this note of despair. They were ordered home, but no one could send Mademoiselle Papa away. They let her run around from one body to another, sometimes stopping as if she hesitated to recognize in a disfigured face the one she sought But no; her father was not among the dead. More calm, she sought among the living. She questioned, but no one had seen her Michel. Of the sixty workmen who had gone down the pit that morning, forty five had come upand fourteen were dead. There was only one to seek and it was Michel She slowly explained this to herself; suddenly she clapped her hands joyfully as if some one had said to her: "You will see him again!" She all at once had remembered that one morning her father said to her, "I will not die without telling you." It needed no more to assure her that her father was living. When, the next morning she had passed the whole night at the mine's mouth—they tried to make Mademoiselle Papa understand that all was over, that she would never again see her father, that they had explored all the galleries, and sounded all the corners and had not found him, she shook her head and, though she began to weep, commanded: "Look for papa!

They had exhausted every means of finding him. Yet truly there was some thing strange in this disappearance. Living or dead, Michel ought to have been found and he had not been. The chief engineer had taken his plans in his hand and had himself directed the search. They had hunted every inch of the mine to the smallest, remotest corner of the galleries. They concluded that in the frightful upheaval the unfortunate miner had been buried, no one could say where or how. In the business of mechanics, as in war, there are battles, and "missing" is read as among the names of the dead on the soldiers' list.

For forty eight hours the Mademoiselle Papa had watched and waited without apparent weariness. At the sight of each face that appeared at the opening, she started forward, and not finding the one she sought sank down in her seat again. The miners tried to lead her away, but she gave cries so pitiful that they resigned themselves to let her remain. They felt sure that fatigue would conquer her. But whence comes so much strength to the weak in the sorrowful crisis of life? As God—it is his secret. On the third day the child was still at the pit.

"This must be stopped," said the chief engineer; and approaching her, he said, "Come now, be reasonable, little one."

"Papa! look for papa!" she repeated. "Alas! he is dead," was the answer.

"No! she murmured.

The engineer was struck by the energy with which she uttered this No.

"Why do you say No!" he asked.

"He would have told me."

"Poor little one," murmured the engineer, and he signaled some one to take her away, but she clung to him desperately, crying:

"Papa is not dead. I wish to go down. I will find him."

To be Continued

ADVERTISEMENTS.

MR ALFRED A LEWIS,
Jeweller
AND
Electro Metallurgist

begs to inform the Public of his having established at Otto St. a workshop wherein the best and choicest workmanship in Gold or silver can be obtained, and Galvanized work performed either in Gold or silver at shortest notice and for very reasonable prices.

Please send your old silver candlesticks Trays etc., and they will be polished as new, or your English gold Gaurds etc., for polishing, or Galvanized bangles and they will be converted.

Your clocks too can be repaired at moderate prices.

You have only to apply at the workshop, Corner of Victoria Road.

Apprentices wanted-conditions understood on application.

Bonthe Sherbro, Sept. 3rd '90

FOR SALE

(By Public Auction or Private Contract)

All that piece and parcel of Extensive Land known as Bolo's Creek situate lying and being in Victoria Road Sherbro all that piece and parcel of Land situate at Palm Street Bonthe Sherbro; all that piece and parcel of Land situate and being at Victoria Road Yandehun also that piece and parcel of Land known as and Commonly called Mongor within the Jurisdiction of Sherbro; all properties of William Ellis Esqd deceased.

The titles of these Lands are indisputable.

For arrangement apply to M. H. Davis of Freetown, or Rev. J. C. Thomas of Bonthe.

Oct. 27th '90

THE
Early Dawn
PRINTING OFFICE
PLAIN ARTISTIC and FANCY JOB WORK
EXECUTED AT
SHORT NOTICE
ENQUIRE OF
E. Samuel Thomas,
PRINTER.

THE EARLY DAWN.

"The Morning Light is Breaking, The Darkness Disappears"

VOL. VII. BONTHE, SHERBRO, WEST AFRICA, NOVEMBER 30, 1890. No. 20

The 'Early Dawn'

Published Semi Monthly at Bonthe Sherbro. Under the Auspices of the Board of Missions of the United Brethren in Christ.

Rev. J. A. Evans, Editor and Publisher Bonthe, Sherbro, West Africa.

AGENTS.

United States.—Revs. H. F. Roch and Wm. McKee, Dayton Rev. Wm J. Davis, Huntington Rev. J. F. Swider, Chicago, Ill. Rev. J. H. Mosser, Berlin, O. Rev. J. S. Chaney, Elizabethtown, Rev. R. P. Barton, Penn Rev. D. K. Flenger, Williamsburg, O. Revs. H. Ellwell, Dayton Washington, State N. J. Rev. Mosser, Mexico, Pa. Master Charlie Howe Manchester, Ind. Rev. G. W. Arnold, Hillsdale, Ohio

West Africa.—J. A. Richards, River Gambia Rev. J. R. Frederick and Mr. F. A. Lewis, Freetown, Sierra Leone, Rev. James Dennis, Bonthon Liberia. Mr. Moses Boyle, Liberia

TERMS.

One Year by mail,	£0	6	0
Delivered in Bonthe,	0	5	0
Half yearly by mail,	0	3	0
Ditto, delivered in Bonthe,	0	2	6

From the Million.

Mademoiselle Papa.

(Concluded.)

Placing her under good protection the engineer had her taken to school.

An hour later she appeared at the Berard pit, and as she clutched hold of the engineer's knees, she repeated, "I was to go down, I will find him."

"After all, he said to himself, it is best. What she sees with her own eyes she will believe. Taking her in his arms he mounted the platform and made a sign to a workman:

"Start up."

Mademoiselle Papa shuddered, poor thing, when she found herself in the darkness, and felt beneath her that yawning depth from which arose a dead air that almost suffocated her. The engineer felt her little hands clinging around him become rigid in her terror, her head rested reclined up against his and two tears trickled on to his neck.

But when they reached the bottom of the pit, she immediately disengaged herself, jumped on the ground, and ran on ahead shouting, "Papa!"

In two bounds the child ran through the galleries, questioning the men among the scattered coal, the rock wall with her voice, listening, her ear close to it, searching with hands and with eyes the smallest fissure, and always calling "Papa!"

The engineer followed her with great difficulty, still expecting to see every moment, and at every turning, what he had already seen twenty times now and where the explosion had taken place, and what had been done to find the victims. Was the little child still questioned him when he pointed "He is living! Look for him!"

She would have remained there three days as she had at the opening of the pit if they had not taken her away by force and carried her up to the daylight world. The engineer gave orders that she should be conducted to school and kept there and also ordered that should she appear at the Berard pit they must prevent her from going down into the mine. But the next day when thinking of her he was inspecting the mine when he suddenly found some one take hold of the skirt of his coat.

It was Mademoiselle Papa.

For the second time she had escaped from school. Driven away from the opening of the pit and finding no one who would disobey orders and take charge of her she had suddenly slipped beneath an empty car and thus descended.

She quickly told this and obtained pardon. Five minutes later she began to search as on the evening before and still of her ardent faith she sounded the wall as yesterday passing the same spot to and fro twenty times without despair or growing weary. The miners paid no longer paid attention to her but followed her with a pitying look shrugging their shoulders and saying, "Poor little Mademoiselle Papa!"

The child kept on with her search. Suddenly she came running to them pale, frightened, breathless.

Yonder Yonder, She cried. 'Papa!'

Yonder I want / asked a miner.

His house.

Bah—where is it!

Yonder.

In a second every one had heard and the mine was in commotion. The child declared that she had discovered a piece of blue linen in a hole, and that she had not been able to pull it out because it was held by an enormous block of coal.

"Where?" they asked her again.

She turned around to go back, followed by every one hesitant stopped, then set off. But she could not find the place. Every block of coal resembles the others: every cavity was the same and all the galleries were alike.

Yet she was sure she had seen the piece of blue linen.

Where the blouse was the man must be living no doubt and this man was her father and she could not find the place again.

One by one becoming weary of useless search and persuaded that the poor little girl was crazed by her grief the miners returned to their work. They had hardly had time to take up their pursuits when a desperate cry called them all.

The little girl breathing hard, with eyes fixed, and mouth open, and her hand thrust into a hole in the wall, had given the signal. "I have hold of it! I have hold of it!

In a crowd they pushed her aside and pushed in. Yes there was a piece of blue linen. It was a blouse.

Now they began to work and what shows it gave way in their picks! When one was was bare down to a deep excavations they saw a man lying on his side, pale as the Master Forman, and in danger. It was Michel Perrier, and he had been there three days and four nights.

As were here I on every hand one more pressing than the rest, caressed the lips of the little girl with kisses, she threw herself upon the body, and nearly beside herself with joy put her arms, weeping and crying "papa! papa!"

Poor Michel was yet alive! Exhausted from having been deprived of air and food, he came to himself only to faint again; but he lived. Mademoiselle Papa had spoken truly. The man had not wished to die without telling the child; and the thought of her gave him double strength. He had conquered death.

On the evening before the day on which he was to resume his mining, a grand banquet was given by the miners to Mademoiselle Papa. The place of honor was reserved for her.

A stunning hurrah an clapping of hands a mounting almost to frenzy greeted her when she entered leading Michel by the hand. And do you know what she answered to all this as she smiled and clapped her hands? She answered:

"Papa!"

It would be difficult to convey to you her love. But all these good men who seldom wept will tell you how their tears flowed that day.

Intemperance.

Dear Bah Gomer,—It is my desire first of all to thank yourself and the dear friends in America who have sent out the Gospel and Missionaries to my country and the innumerable blessings which we have all enjoyed as the outcome of your labors and ardent prayers. The United Brethren Church it appears is the only Church that raises her voice high against the evil of Intemperance, so much so that it is a ' discipline' with them that no member is to touch, taste, give or cause, to be given to another member, or any one else.

This has come vividly to my mind because I live in a country and among a people who are so much given up to intemperance as Paul said the Athenians were to idolatry that I blush to think no effort has been made by the Church here to suppress this great evil and cause to our race, I have not heard nor seen anything of a Temperance movement here, save being told that years ago (perhaps before I was born) when the I. O. G. T. was established in Freetown an Office of the Order visited and organized a branch in Society here, which no sooner born, than it died the common death of all good movements in this part of the world—reminding one of the "seed that fell off stony ground." Rather than that I see a good many Buchanian Clubs about the country. Intemperance becomes ambitious even among the young. Girls and boys of tender years are known to indulge in Whisky and a stuff called Fo de coney (spelt) I suppose R-(obert) U-(fus) F-(axes) ! I guess you can make out what that is! Insofar I bitterly regret to say are not even saved from the accursed thing. The Jolahs and Soosoos make it a practice to give it to their infants, under the idea that it promotes them. How true is it generally to save from other years what they are to be in after years. Is it not there the most of the evil is to be found. Is it true as you and other times O Africa, have been destroyed by it?

The idea of making temperance a question to bear on candidates for Legislative Council you I Therefore I feel I have cause to be very very thankful for the bold stand the U. B. Mission takes in the Temperance cause, and I for one have been saved from such ruin. I have read with pleasure from time to time of the doings of the Temperance Army at Shaingay, and the W. C. T. U. at Freetown and other places. I only think and feel it a great pity and a sad omission that Mrs. Dawn never thought of coming to the Gambia. I hardly think she could find a better field for active work on the West Coast of Africa than this country. The people must be saved and some one has to do it. Who will come over and help them?

The Misses Groomeville and Williams I see have been working with a will in Rotofunk and the neighbourhood. It is a blessing indeed to have people who are heart and soul interested in their work, the want of that is a great drawback in many mission fields and especially in this country at the present time, when the people are as it were without a shepherd. God bless the dear friends in America I re-echo again for all they have done for Sherbro and the Sherbros. I believe with the " Mary Sowers girls Home " at Rotofunk and the " Ratoo Clarke and Wife Training School " at Shaingay efficiently manned we may safely hope for greater things in the not distant future. While we live let us hope. Waiting anxiously to see my little Article in the " Early Dawn " with best wishes for continued success in the good work to which you have pledged yourself and love to the mission folks, Mrs. Gomer, Miss Clarke and your dear self

From one of your grandchildren,

SELINA of Chukoloh.

Bathurst R. G.
2nd Oct. 90

Report of Jehovah Station Yorgborfor

For Quarter Ending September 30th 1890.

Mr President—Another quarter has just elapsed and it makes us feel livelier than ever. It will seem as flattering ourselves if we say we have never yet been discouraged in this part of the Lord's vineyard, though there has been a good deal to hinder our progress. Notwithstanding the dying off quite early and the returning home late of the natives at this season of the year, the Sunday services and the montage &c. were pretty well attended.

We have noticed the increasing interest these wins have enlisted as a matter of the Lord's Work, manifesting, especially in the case of those who have been baptized; and by this we are assured that the gospel is among among the long standing stumbling stones, and this we are glad to say is very truly. Also the seeds sown will not remember and turn to the Lord and all the blankets of the natives are not yet exhausted. Let us continue to labor in faith nothing doubting, and in season we shall reap if we faint not.

The number in attendance during the quarter is as follows:

[illegible] of natives was viewed [illegible] they heard

The [illegible] in examination does not [illegible] as we could wish, but we are grateful [illegible] and [illegible] that [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] sus-for relile we was

ETAL

r o ious, as is many good pear od or tiege would e are it we
the er, to might than rarled rwise others they wmen of life elessnother
s very ; one e diy a pi-pious
and unto of it under.

what p ex-r age
t it is d, life-ng on ind athis ther faith is day emble.
whom had es, go
g and
d. She h hair papa!

r chil-
papa, whom espair.
e, but oiselle
r run

around from one body to another, sometimes stopping as if she hesitated to recognize in a disfigured face the one she sought But no; her father was not among the dead. More calm, she sought among the living. She questioned, but no one had seen her Michel. Of the sixty workmen who had gone down the pit that morning, forty-five had come up and fourteen were dead. There was only one to seek and it was Michel. She slowly explained this to herself; suddenly she clapped her hands joyfully as if some one had said to her: "You will see him again!" She all at once had remembered that one morning her father said to her, "I will not die without telling you." It needed no more to assure her that her father was living. When, the next morning she had passed the whole night at the mine's mouth—they tried to make Mademoiselle Papa understand that all was over, that she would never again see her father, that they had explored all the galleries, and sounded all the corners and had not found him, she shook her head and, though she began to weep, commanded: "Look for papa!

They had exhausted every means of finding him. Yet truly there was some thing strange in this disappearance. Living or dead, Michel ought to have been found and he had not been The chief engineer had taken his plans in his hand and had himself directed the search. They had hunted every inch of the mine to the smallest, remotest corner of the galleries. They concluded that in the frightful upheaval the unfortunate miner had been buried, no one could say where or how. In the business of mechanics, as in war, there are battles, and "missing" is read as among the names of the dead on the soldiers' list.

For forty eight hours Mademoiselle Papa had watched and waited without apparent weariness. At the sight of each face that appeared at the opening, she started forward, and not finding the one she sought sank down in her seat again. The miners tried to lead her away, but she gave cries so pitiful that they resigned themselves to let her remain. They felt sure that fatigue would conquer her. But whence comes so much strength to the weak in the sorrowful crisis of life?

As God—it is his secret. On the third day the child was still at the pit.

"This must be stopped," said the chief engineer; and approaching her, he said, "Come now, be reasonable, little one."

"Papa! look for papa!" she repeated. "Alas! he is dead," was the answer.

"No! she affirmed.

The engineer was struck by the energy with which she uttered this No.

"Why do you say No!" he asked.

"He would have told me."

"Poor little one," murmured the engineer, and he signaled some one to take her away, but she clung to him desperately, crying:

"Papa is not dead. I wish to go down. I will find him."

To be Continued.

ADVERTISEMENTS.

MR ALFRED A LEWIS,
Jeweller
AND
Electro Metallurgist

begs to inform the Public of his having established at Otto St. a workshop wherein the best and choicest workmanship in Gold or silver can be obtained, and Galvanized work performed either in Gold or Silver at shortest notice and for very reasonable prices.

Please send your old silver candlesticks Trays etc., and they will be polished as new, or your English gold Gaurds etc., for polishing, or Galvanized bangles and they will be converted.

Your clocks too can be repaired at moderate prices.

You have only to apply at the workshop, Corner of Victoria Road.

Apprentices wanted-conditions understood on application.

Boathe Sherbro, Sept. 3rd '90

FOR SALE

(By Public Auction or Private Contract)

All that piece and parcel of Extensive Land known as Bob's Creek situate lying and being in Victoria Road Sherbro all that piece and parcel of Land situate at Palm Street Boathe Sherbro; all that piece and parcel of Land situate lying and being at Victoria Road Yandaho also that piece and parcel of Land known as and Commonly called Motuguia within the Jurisdiction of Sherbro all properties of William Ellis Ball deceased.

The titles of the se Lands are indisputable.

For arrangment apply to M. H. Davis of Freetown, or Rev. J. C. Thomas of Boathe.

Oct. 27th '90

THE
Early Dawn
PRINTING OFFICE
PLAIN ARTISTIC and FANCY JOB WORK
EXECUTED AT
SHORT NOTICE
ENQUIRE OF
R. Samuel Thomas,
PRINTER.

THE EARLY DAWN.

"The Morning Light Is Breaking, The Darkness Disappears"

VOL. VII. BONTHE, SHERBRO, WEST AFRICA, NOVEMBER 30, 1890. No. 20

The 'Early Dawn'

Published Semi Monthly at Bonthe Sherbro. Under the Auspices of the Board of Missions of the United Brethren In Christ.

Rev. I. B. Evans, Editor and Publisher
Bonthe, Sherbro, West Africa.

AGENTS.

United States.—Revs. J. F. Booth and Wm. McKee, Dayton. Rev. Wm. J. Davis, Buell, O. Rev. J. F. Jeffer, Chicago, Ill. Rev. J. L. Hensley, Marion, O. Rev. J. S. Glaser, Elizabethtown, Pa. Rev. R. P. Burton, Evansville, Ind. Rev. D. K. Flanagan, Williamsburg, O. Rev. H. Ellwell, Dayton, Washington, State M. J. Souder, Manheim, Pa., Master Charlie Howe Marsh, Evansville, Ind. Rev. O. W. Arnold, Hillsdale, Ohio.

West Africa.—J. A. Richards, River Gambia. Rev. J. R. Frederick and Mr. E. A. Lewis, Freetown, Sierra Leone. Rev. James Dennis, Marshall, Liberia. Mr. Moses Doyle, Liberia.

TERMS.

One Year by mail,	£0	6	0
Delivered in Bonthe,	0	5	0
Half yearly by mail,	0	3	0
Ditto, delivered in Bonthe,	0	2	6

From the Million.

Mademoiselle Papa.

(Concluded.)

Placing her under good protection the engineer had her taken to school. An hour later she appeared at the Bessin pit, and as she clutched hold of the engineer's knees, she repeated, "I want to go down, I will find him."

"After all, he said to himself, it is best. What she sees with her own eyes she will believe. Taking her in his arms he mounted the platform and made a sign to a workman:

"Start us."

Mademoiselle Papa shuddered, poor thing, when she found herself in the darkness, and felt beneath her that yawning depth from which arose a dread air that almost suffocated her. The engineer felt her little hands clinging around him become rigid in her terror, her blonde head nestled up against his and two tears trickled on to his neck.

But when they reached the bottom of the pit, she immediately disengaged herself, jumped on to the ground, and ran on ahead shouting, "Papa!"

For two hours the cries ran through the galleries, questioning the men whom she knew striking the black wall with her little fist, putting her ear close to it, scratching with hands and with eyes the smallest fissure, and always calling "Papa!"

The engineer followed her with great difficulty, each expedition of such a character necessarily exhausted her more; and seeing her weep when he had spoken to many times now and where the explosion had taken place, and what had been done to find the victims, the little child still questioned him and repeated "He is living! Look for him!"

She would have remained there three days as she had at the opening of the pit if they had not taken her away by force and carried her up to the daylight world. The engineer gave orders that she should be conducted to school and kept there and also ordered that should she appear at the Bessel pit they must prevent her from going down into the mine. But the next day without thinking of her he was inspecting the mine when he suddenly felt some one take hold of the skirt of his coat.

It was Mademoiselle Papa.

For the second time she had escaped from school. Driven away from the opening of the pit and finding no one who would disobey orders and take charge of her she had suddenly slipped beneath an empty car and thus descended.

She quickly told this and obtained pardon. Five minutes later she began to search as on the evening before; and full of her ardent faith she sounded the wall as yesterday passing the same spot to and fro twenty times without despairing or growing weary. The miners no longer paid attention to her but followed her with a pitying look shrugging their shoulders and saying, "Poor little Mademoiselle Papa!"

The child kept on with her search. Suddenly she came running to them pale, frightened, breathless.

Yonder! Yonder, She cried. 'Papa!'

Yonder! what? asked a miner.

His blouse.

Bah—where is it!

Yonder.

In a second every one had heard and the mine was in commotion. The child declared that she had discovered a piece of blue linen in a hole, and that she had not been able to pull it out because it was held by an enormous block of coal.

"Where!" they asked her again.

She turned around to go back, followed by every one hesitated stopped, then set off. But she could not find the place. Every block of coal resembles the others: every cavity was the same and all the galleries were alike.

Yet she was sure she had seen the piece of blue linen.

Where the blouse was the man must be living no doubt and this man was her father and she could not find the place again.

One by one becoming weary of useless search and persuaded that the poor little girl was crazed by her grief the miners returned to their work. But they had hardly had time to take up their pickaxes when a desperate cry called them all.

The little girl breathing hard, with eyes fixed, and mouth open, and her hand thrust into a hole in the wall, had given the whole of her strength to it.

In a crowd they pushed her aside and looked in. Yes there was a piece of linen of some kind. It was a blouse.

Now they were set to work and what slowness! By good luck their picks! When one was too keen it fell in a deep excavation they saw a man lying on his back. It was Michel Pierron, and he had been there three days and four nights.

As a were best on every mind one more pitying than the rest escaped from the ups of the little girl with one cry she threw herself upon the body, and nearly beside herself in her joy she kissed her, arms, weeping and crying "Papa! Papa!"

Poor Michel was just alive! Exhausted from having been deprived of air and food, he came to himself only to faint again; but he lived. Mademoiselle Papa had spoken truly. The man had not wished to die without telling the child; and the thought of her gave him double strength. He had conquered death.

On the evening before the day on which he was to resume his mining, a grand banquet was given by the miners to Mademoiselle Papa. The place of honor was reserved for her.

A stunning hurrah an clapping of hands announcing almost to frenzy greeted her when she entered leading Michel by the hand. And do you know what she answered to all this as she smiled and clapped her hands? She answered:

"Papa!"

It would be difficult to convey to you her tone. But all those good men who seldom wept will tell you how their tears flowed that day.

Intemperance.

Dear Bah Gomer,—It is my desire first of all to thank yourself and the dear friends in America who have sent out the Gospel and Missionaries to my country and the innumerable blessings which we have all enjoyed as the outcome of your labors and ardent prayers. The United Brethren Church it appears is the only Church that raises her voice high against the evil of Intemperance, so much so that it is a 'discipline' with them that no member is to touch, taste, give or cause, to be given to another member, or any one else.

This has come vividly to my mind because I live in a country and among a people who are so much given up to intemperance as Paul said the Athenians were to idolatry that I blush to think no effort has been made by the Church here to suppress this great evil and curse to our race, I have not heard nor seen anything of a Temperance movement here, save being told that years ago [perhaps before I was born] when the I. O. G. T. was established in Freetown an Officer of the Order visited and organized a branch Society here, which no sooner born, than it died the common death of all good movements in this part of the world—remaining one of the 'seed that fell on stony ground.' Rather than that I see a good many Bodechanlian Clubs about the country. Intemperance becomes ambitious even among the young. Girls and boys of tender years are known to indulge in Whisky and a stuff called for decency sake I suppose R (obert) U-(fish) M [arshall]. I guess you can make out what that is! Infants I bitterly regret to say are not even saved from the accursed things. The Jollahs and Soosoos make it a practice to give Rum to their infants, under the idea that it strengthens them. How this is it possible to save them from ruin in after years? Others I am informed by those who should know, speak of the immediate effects of drink upon the innocent babe. [illegible] even if it is not the direct cause of death, it is the cause of [illegible] and [illegible] to the child. [illegible] is it not? [illegible] I am glad to say that [illegible] is not the case. It is true as you wrote the other time "O Africa, thou has destroyed thyself"!

The idea of natives administering Poison to their own sisters! Don't mind you! Therefore I feel I have cause to be very very thankful for the bold stand the U. B. Mission takes in the Temperance cause, and I for one have been saved from such ruin. I have read with pleasure from time to time of the doings of the Temperance Army at Shaingay, and the W. C. T. U. at Rotofunk and other places. I only think and feel it a great pity and a sad omission that Mrs. Lewis never thought of coming to the Gambia. I daily think she could find a better field for active work on the West Coast of Africa than this country. The people must be saved and some one has to do it. Who will come over and help them?

The Miss's Groeneweyk and Williams I see have been working with a will in Rotofunk and the neighbourhood. It is a blessing indeed to have people who are heart and soul interested in their work, the want of this is a great drawback in many mission fields and especially in this country at the present time, when the people are as it were without a shepherd. God bless the dear friends in America I re-echo again for all they have done for Sherbro and the Sherbros. I believe with the "Mary Sowers girls Home" at Rotofunk and the "Rufus Clarke and Wife Training School" at Shaingay efficiently manned we may safely hope for greater things in the not distant future. While we live let us hope. Waiting anxiously to see my little Article in the "Early Dawn" with best wishes for continued success in the good work to which you have pledged yourself and love to the mission folks, Mrs. Gomer, Miss Clarke and your dear self

From one of your grandchildren,

SELINA OF Chukoloh.

Bathurst R. G.
2nd Oct. 90.

Report of Jehovah Station Yorgborfor

For Quarter Ending September 30th 1890.

Mr President—Another quarter has just closed and it makes us feel livelier than ever. It will seem as flattering ourselves if we say we have never yet been discouraged in this part of the Lord's vineyard, though satan has done a good deal to hinder our progress. Notwithstanding the going off quite early and the returning home late of the natives, at this season of the year, the Sunday service, class meetings &c. were pretty well attended.

We have noticed the increasing interest there was have enlisted as workers of the Lord Jesus we, manifesting, especially in the case of those who have been baptized, and by this we are assured that the gospel is stronger among the living where sought it out and that our labours are not in vain truly. Yes the souls of the world had remember and have no or the Lord, and all the kindreds of the nations shall worship before Thee. Death has removed from our midst a number [illegible] and [illegible] in connection [illegible] stations [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] report with sincere thanks to the God of missions for prospering the work in our hands. Peace in our borders and God with us.

No of Towns 14
Seekers' Class es to
No. of Seekers 176
Day School Children 20

B. J. Williams.

The Four Bars.

Dear Editor,—One hears a lot of funny expressions as he journeys through Life, or as some style it "Wilderness of woe" but I do not think

"this world is so bad a world"
"As some folks try to make it"

The other day I overheard some humerous folks saying that in each year the people of Bathurst have "Four Bars" to cross, and that whoever crossed them Safely was a lucky Chap.'

Well I was at my wits ends to make out wnat it meant, for I remembered that two years ago when we left Shaingay and sailed in the s. s. "Lagos" from Freetown for this port we had only one bar to cross and that is as some of your readers know at the month of the River Gambia in which the Island of Bathurst is located—I was soon however enlightened, when one of the party said

Septem—bar
Octo—bar
Novem—bar
Decem—bar

So I asked what that meant I then I was reminded that during the two former months the climate becomes very trying to European and Native residents as well-people suffering mostly from malarial fever, coagh etc the rate of mortality, especially among the young being something rather fearful and as I write this I am minded of a sad circumstance on the 27th of September when death snatched away from our midst a sweet baby sister of my guardian Mr. R. aged two years

Iriehe was indeed a goodly child, she took so much to everyone, which we do not find in every baby so that we all miss her so.

She was attacked with the raging Cough for about two weeks the doctor a very good surgeon was in attendance, but as skilful as he is, he was not an ables to pilot little Irene over Septem-bar!

O, how I wished he could but Captain Jesus crossed her over the River of Life and now we are sure she is—

"Safe in the arms of Jesus Safe on His gentle breast"

Flora and myself have heard complained, it is very cold and yet they are Bars that must be crossed, even though not so pleasant and refreshing, a lot of folks suffer, but they are principally those who have had long standing disease, or as we say in Africa Old complaints.

You over there we learn have not been crossing smoothly. Bah Gomer and family we learn were down with the fever and I dare say there were many others.

I trust there has been a change for the better, and that you are all your dear selves again.

I pray that we may all be spared to cross these Bars successfully and that ere the return of them again, we shall be permitted to cross the mouth of the river Gambia enroute for Shaingay the land of my nativity.

O happy place when shall I be,
With thee Bah Evans thy face to see"

Till then with best wishes for the "Early Dawn" and the cause of Missions Adieu!

An asset of the Mission,
David J. Daniel.

Bathurst, [illegible]
Oct 1st 1890

Ra—Ba—John.

Dear Mr. Editor,—As I move about the town of Bathurst at this time of the year I am reminded of "Ra—Ba—John" be having the "Ba—" the name given to [illegible] work Lanterns the Gambians, &c., every year with which to enjoy their Xmas

It is quite a lively time now with the young men and women, boys and girls as well as every one is busy making the necessary preparations for the getting up of the historic.

Ra-ba-john I really wonder when they got that name from. There seems to be no other language jumbled up like the African natives. I used to think it would be a good thing to make a book of it—Don't you think it would amuse the folks in America, especially as our history is much woven up with theirs?

Now I shall give you a cracked history of Ra-ba-john.

First of all the young people organize themselves into companies or clubs each with its King & Queen then follows a long line of Officers & non-Officers. Subscriptions are raised, each member contributing so many pence to arrive at anything substantial they meet start so early as the latter part of September.

Then sites are selected, materials, comprising Bamboo Rods, Carte fi ard-Colored tisue Paper &c. &c., collected and a start made to build as the Joloffcall them "Pandals" representing steamers, sailing ships, Churches, Houses &c of varied dimensions, then all that art could design in mechanics is brought to bear. The Joloff mechanics are noted handicrafts. It would astonish you very much to see how the young men carve out designs on Carte Boards and then strips of boards—they are very skilful. I is such a great pity that nothing is done as in other countries to encourage Industry.

When the frame work has been completed, then they are covered over with beautifully coloured tissue papers, bemeared with oil so as to render them transparent and on Xmas eve, they are illuminated and taken round the town, each company or club having their drum or tum-tum rendering choice music to which the young men clapping their hands and dancing in the native style. As a rule they have patrons after whom the "Pandals" are named, for whom repectively they are taken first of all and whoever the honoured party be has to christen.

Ra-ba-john with Cash, Spirits &c.

In good old days I am told Ra-ba-john fetched a good deal of money to the Clubs, then of course the country was in better circumstances having generous Governors and liberal minded merchants who were one and all interested in the peoples welfare and participated with them even in Ra-ba-john. There were lanterns, they threw. Lanterns were brought and sent to England and France to show the folks there what Africans are capable of doing if only they had a fair chance. The principal songs heard then are 'Ra-ba-john de Barmahtay' 'Barmahtay de ki len save.'

I have not been able to find out the meaning of these lines, but the three last words are Joloff expressions meaning 'Come (re) and see, then there is also another 'Ba-ba-la, Babala, Babilo 'Babala, Babala, Babilo' Babala, Babala, Babilo Tomarra morning Xmas.' This is kept up until the small hours of the morning and continued from day to day for about a week then when it comes to the last there's a general parade of 'Pandals' at a spot called Dingaray where all the Clubs meet for a show and after a good deal of dancing and merry making some umpire or another decides which is the best 'Pandal, after which they disperse not to meet again until the next Ra-ba-john season comes round. The 'Pandals' are then taken to their respective patrons and then follow a series of feastings known here as M'Borto when a good deal is spent in Spiritous Liquor which has ruined many promising a and lasses in this country, As Xmas is going to write on Temperance matter, I shall not intrude on her grounds, You could hardly to see how young ladies make friends with King Alcohol.

I believe I have said much on this subject and so must say farewell to Ra-ba-john until the season comes round again. Success to the "Early Dawn" and the Church of the United Brethren in Christ everywhere, is the prayer of a missionary girl.—SALLY.

Bathurst R. G. Oct. 1st. '90

W. C. T. U

Ro ullank.

Your correspondent from this place has been very remiss in duty, but excuse me that it has not been for want of sending to write it. Our Union still lives and flourishes. The interest is kept up in the work. Meetings are held every Sunday afternoon and Sunday night, and also a social meeting in the chapel of evenings so that good attendance was seen to enjoy the change of services.

At our meeting this week we had a letter from Miss Willard on the reception of our Petition to the Governments of the World.

Our Union secured 430 names to this petition and we were very proud to be so greatly remembered; and consider the letter a great treat. We read the letter to the Union that all may see although a small band we can do some good.

Mrs West Vice President had just returned from Freetown and gave a report of her visit to the Union there which is a flourishing one by Miss Alice Piercy, B. M. I. an American missionary. The report was cheering and added to our aspirations. We were especially glad to hear that some of such an extreme movement among the Vice Presidents who are publishers wives to secure the use of unfermented wine at the communion table.

Our Local Temperance Legion is thriving and entertainments being held every week. We are sure and we hope our efforts at the public meetings will be blessed of the Master in the saving of many over whom we have not the right to call Members of the Legion.

We use the Manual published by the Woman's Temperance Publishing Association of America and teach systematically from it. Our day school and other services remain timed as formerly and every every two weeks when possible.

There are about 50 children and young people taking their weekly recital before us, many more hear those truths received. It does ones soul good to hear the hearty and ready answers of miss Williams department and hope the other boys and girls here to give the Temperance Gospel to the public in no uncertain words.

What a force these boys and girls will be for God by and by and as they grow up to be men and women. The boys and girls within the influence of our W. C. T. U. is made a Loyal Legion to conquer King Alcohol.

Ellen Groce-Styles.
Supt. Press Work.
Bathurst W. C. T. U.

Nov. 8 90.

Frances Williams.
Freetown, Sierra Leone, West Africa

My dear sister and friend:—

We had quite a little jubilee over the receipts of your petition, with its type-written, ship-shape appearance, and have made a item for our bulletin, which goes to well nigh a thousand papers weekly and also to the Union Signal the organ of the National W. C. T. U. we have cited this people to spur the flagging zeal of women in America who have so many petitions to circulate that they have been a little inclined to neglect ours.

So you see you have been, missionaries to us. Please thank all those earnest—hearted friends yonder who solicited or who subscribed names to the petition. I am sending literature to them and you. If you do not regularly receive the Union Signal please let me know and it shall go to you. All send me news of what is doing on the west coast in temperance lines and we will publish it gracefully. God be with you in all this work for coming kingdom.

Affectionately your sister and comrade
Frances E. Willard

The Early Dawn
Bonus, Nov. 30, 1890
Rev. J. A. Evans—Editor.

[Editorial.]

Suggestion.—for the opening of Interior missions, as it has been pretty fairly demonstrated that foreigners as a rule in very few instances are found as well suited to any (if indeed, in any) respect to either at once, or even in a two or three years into the peculiar and sympathies of the natives of this country, would it not be a good idea for a few of our christian families to migrate from some of the nearer inland towns with a view to teaching as well as by the simple truths of the Gospel. Of course they in general their object be known to the church of which they are members and there would be no harm in taking a formal leave of their friends before they left, for their fields of labor. In taking a formal leave of friends, they would in all natural probability excite the attention and sympathy of others, who in one way and another would further give a still assistance but the chief reliance should be upon God to aid and direct them. This suggestion is a practical one, and only needs a few hearts imbued to make a little Sacrifice for the Art of pressing thousand who are now waiting with open hearts and hands to receive the Gospel. Who will ponder the matter seriously and consecrate himself to a Work that will yield abundant fruit in this life and Glory in the world to come!

The Sensualist's Doom.—A Drama that has won many encomiums from those who have witnessed it, we understand is to be exhibited in this city during Xmas Holidays, A large Troop of good actors and actresses are engaged to act Leading characters of the New Drama.

The Out Look.—Religiously is all that could be desired at this time, so far as outpouring of receiving his word, or perhaps any transformation is concerned. We have not witnessed a time in the history of Sherbro, when the population were, as a whole more ready to be led in the direction by a proper and efficient leader so far the personage does not appear with the qualities to secure and lead on a powerful religious movement among the people seem to be more than usually favorable, but some how or quite of the matter up to date the full result that exist and to centralize the Forces for good that are latent in the Community to good. The time has the opportunity is at hand for a great work, and it is to be hoped that ere long some one may receive fallen mantle to lead the revival forces and be enabled to shake the dry bones of this place.

Collections.—Of course these are not pleasant recollections, but like other essential duties must be taken up, and although to most of the favored classes of men, who hand the ring passing the frequency of collections, as well as their number are often objectionable, yet they are a real necessity, for in one sense in a sense, to the receiver of the, at least the financial vitality of the present economy of the Christian Church is really dependent upon the contributions of the various interests.

Hence collections have to be made and some one must make them and call on all Christians for their quota of the amount required, and as God has given to you freely so return to him liberally and will Bless you.

Omissions.—Especially in our Last two issues. The visit of several leading businessmen from Freetown to this place to look after their various Interests. Among whom we may mention M. Burman General Agent of Messrs Pickering and Berch ond, who while here set forward the erection of a large Factory on the site of the old Colonial Hospital employing quite a large number of Masons and Laborers. Mr. Pittendrigh General Agent of Messrs Paterson Zochonis & Co., accompanied by the youngest Mr. Zachonis of the same firm were here, they made a trip in their Steam Launch to Kronkor looking after the interests of their Extensive business in this District now under the supervision of the wide awake and energetic F. E. Macbay Esq. We also heard of Mr. Macaulay of the Sierra Leone Coaling Company being in this place, but no intimation of his business. We have also seen the veteran Merchant of Sherbro J. M. Harris Esq. in the place and understand that he will again enter the Role in this District. Other important business men and items have entirely slipped from us owing at the time but will be found among the Items etc. of this Issue and craving the indulgence of our readers and especially those of our patrons not interested we promise to try to do better for the future.

Improvements.—We are pleased to note that several improvements are being made or in contemplation in our Town.

As noticed above Messrs Pickering and Berchond are erecting a large Factory at Heddle Road and Medina Street, Messrs Thompson Bros. are also erecting a large establishment on Heddle Road at the Corner of Clifton Street.

The Sierra Leone Coaling Company it is reported will soon open here in the Building now occupied by Messrs. P. & B. The Government not being to be left behind any longer in the matter of Improvements we understand will build a sea Wall to protect our River frontage, this Wall as we are informed will extend from the market to Ghundaman Factory and will be a grand improvement. Rumor also has it that we are to have a new hospital Building but this is not yet confirmed. Other improvements are contemplated of various Buildings and places public and private, but of which it is immature to Speak at this writing

W. C. T. U.—This Column is filled this Issue, with interesting matter, by the Rotatunk Superintendent of Press Work, and withal it is graced with a letter from one of the most eminent and gifted reform leaders of America, Miss. Frances E. Willard, Presdt. the of World's Womens Christian Temperance Union.

Children's Column.—This Department is contains a Model letter, in words of one syllable from a friend Mr. Stoner of the Boys & Girls in tarjoff Amerika.

He was Right—We learn from Mr. Consul Johnston of the Oil Rivers of West Africa, when in his speech in Liverpool, recently said "Africa would, take hard ware, cotton goods, agricultural Implements, sewing Machines, Knives, needles, steel nails, tinned provisions, coal, pianos and harmoniums" and we say that Mr Johnston was Right for he Europeans, but cease to traffic with Africans in Rum and gin and they will soon find a larger demand for all Articles the more useful articles of Manufacture and Commerce.

Children's Column.

Monheim, Pa. U. S. A.
Oct. 15 '90.

Dear Boys and Girls—I see there is a place in the "Dawn" where the boys and girls can write, and the big folks are told that they can write to, but they are told not to use big words. Now I am one of the big boys, and I guess it I do not use big words this will not be put in the "by." I want to tell you that I live far, far, from where you do, but I like to read the Dawn, and see what those who write have to say. I would so much like to come to where you live and talk with you, and some day, if it please God, I shall do so.

There was a good man of God whom I know well, who gave us a talk in this town, just a few days since, for the last time, to he is to sail from new york on the first of next month to come to where you live so that he can tell your folks of God, and how Christ came to this world to die on the cross to save us from our sins so that if we are good and do what God wants us to do, when we die we can go and live where Christ is, in a home he has made for us. I would like to see the boys and girls write to the Dawn, so I could read it. Now you can see I do not have big words in what I write. May God bless the boys and girls, and the big folks too.

I want to be your friend,

M. J. Stoner.

Local Items.

The new Wesleyan Chapel at York Island built by Messrs Z. T. Lewis and others was opened on Sunday Nov. 2, by the Rev. J. C. Thomas and Mr. J. Macauley Catechist of Mumoseley.

Two interesting Sermons were preached on the occasion at 11 a. m. and 4. 30. p. m. by the above gentlemen.—A large number of people left Bonce to witness the dedication.

Messrs Pittendrigh Zochonis and Burman who arrived from Freetown per s. s. Susu on the 7th instant left by the steamer on the 17th instant for Freetown as also Mesdames Wise and H. B. Windsmis passengers for Freetown.

s. s. Mendrague which arrived from Marseilles via Freetown on the 6th instant left on the 14th. Messrs Pourcieu and A. Morel of the French Company for Freetown.

The Rev A. C. Strong of the Niger mission who arrived here with his wife on a visit per s. s. Susu on the 7th. instant conducted services at St Matthews Church on the 9th. and 16th. instant both morning and evening.—His discourses were appropriate and well delivered.

Mr. W. D. Pasha the laborious and energetic Catechist in charge of st. Matthews Church is absent to the rivers on a collecting tour.

Marriage—Mr. Jacob Johnson to Miss Emma Williams at the Wesleyan Church on Thursday 13. Nov. by the Rev. J. C. Thomas.—The happy couple left for Macate the residence of the bridegroom on Monday the 17th. inst.

His Excellency Governor Hay and suite arrived from Freetown per Countess of Derby J. M. Harris Esqr. the veteran merchant of Sherbro, who left for England many years ago returned to this place per s. s. Susu on the 7th inst and is residing at Bendoo. He intends shortly to open business at Sherbro.

Died—Mr Ralph N Smart an old resident of Sherbro and father to Miss Beonice Smart died at Bonthe on Monday the 10th inst.

The 2 men who were drowned from the Steam Launch Ariel were found; one at the Sea bar and buried and the other at Mocojo where an inquest was held by the Coroner and Interward buried on the 18th. inst.

The Colonial Hospital has been removed from Heddle Street to the residence of Mr G. A. Taylor in Medina Street

The Government is clearing a spot near the burial ground where it is said the new Hospital is to be built.

Messrs Pickering & Berchond having bought the old hospital, which is now undergoing extensive repairs.

Cutter Empress from Freetown with a lot of masons to work on the newly purchased building of P. & B. The Superintendent of the work is Mr. Glassey.

Governor Hay and Suite left in the Col. Steam Lunch for the Sulymah District.

"—s. s. Susu from Freetown with Venerable archdeacon Crowther (of the Niger Mission) and wife also Miss Nicol sister of the late pastor Nicol and Mrs. Wise and Sackey.

Mr. C. W Elwin of the Customs Dept. Freetown is also a passenger by this steamer.

20—Susu for Freetown with mails J. B. Parkinson Esqr J. P. Miss Manly and Mrs Norgent Davis are passengers.

Sun 23—Archdeacon Crowther preached at St. Mathews Church both morning and evening. Rev A. C. Strong preached at St. Lukes Church Bendoo in the morning of the 23. inst.

Two special sermons will be preached at St. Mathews on the 30th by Archdeacon Crowther and Rev A. C Strong on behalf of Missions. Holy Communion will be administered in that Church the same day.

Wrecked—The Craft of a Miss Rebecca Jones, in which she had left Freetown bound for the Kargboro River, Sinimgay District, but taking moot Island, for the Entrance of the Kargboro, missed the way and sailed to Kronko Beach where her Canoe was wrecked, by the heavy Swells along that line but fortunately no lives were lost.

And Miss Jones arrived at this place on the 26th inst.

Personal

Professor Wilberforce;—of the Rubis Clark Training School was here and preached an able discourse to the U. B. congregation at 11 a.m the 16th inst. Rev. S. B. Morison;—Pastor and Manger of Avery Station Manoh Bargroo recently spent several days in this place; occupied the Wesleyan pulpit at 11 a. m. on the 16th inst.

Rev W. S. Macauley,—of Danville Station, preached a very touching discourse at the U. B. Chapel, (Good Hope) in this place at 7. p.m. on the 16th.

Communications.

Human Pledges.

Dear Mr. Evans,—I thought I would write something for the Early Dawn of what i going on over here at Rembee, though I do not live in the very town itself. There is a woman who lives in the town and her name is Sateah Meye her husband's name is Thuah Yainken this woman had a son and he was given to the mission at Mamboe. The school was broken up and he was transfered to the Rembee School. The mother had some trouble and had to pay one head of money or her brother must be sold. She tried every way to get the money, but failed. She then took this mission boy who had received the name of James Evans and put him in pledge to a Mohammedan trader here, to get cloth to pay the palaver, all of this was over a year ago when Bah Gomer was in the States, at once the mission boy becomes a slave to a cruel master the mother tried hard to redeem the boy, but Purrow was kept on the Palm trees all through the rains, because people were busy making government roads so she could not get Palm Kernels to pay.

Some weeks ago Bah Gomer was over here, and Sateah Meye went to him, and with Mr Stewart the Preacher, beg ged him to help to redeem the boy, the mother had managed to get produce enough to pay all except sixteen shillings, that was all that remained, the old man promised that when he returned home, he would send the money, to have the boy liberated, and this he did, but the trader who is also a dealer in spirits, when he learned that it was Bah Gomer who wanted the boy for school, stoutly refused to give the boy up and used very abusive words against the missionaries, who he said were just meddling with that which was not their business, this he said because it was the missionaries that got the chief to make a law prohibiting the sale of spirits in Rembee; then when the trader would not deliver the boy the mother went to the big men of the town and they took the money, and sent it back to Bah Gomer and had the school teacher to write a letter to the Chief at Shaingay because he had said the chief could not take the boy from him, the Chief at Shaingay sent an officer to Rembee to bring, the trader, the boy and his parents to shaingay, then the trader made an excuse and said the reason he refused the money was that it was not enough, that instead of sixteen shilling he should have twenty two shillings the chief sent the boy out to the mission to Bah Gomer and he sent back the sixteen shillings so that after more distance, even in the emone year ago as a slave the boy is again in school.

Mr. Evans I am sure this has been humbly pointed out steals custom of putting human beings away our brains, leaves us in pledge, is a shameful prac disgrace, brings us to want tice, especially for parents to shortens our days, and carries pledge their own children, as to a disrespectful grave: for the English government does unless we take a stand our all not allow it, and if the English and in all we shall be lost yea Authorities had got hold of it forever.

this young man and the mother of this boy, it might have been serious with them.

I remain—Yours truly

CHARLES A. REMMEE.

From Near Rembee
W. C. A.
Oct. 24 '90

Intemperance & Superstition

(Continued)

Having considered briefly the condition of an intemperate man and the result of intemperance, it becomes us then my fellow-people to do all that lieth in our power to drive out the monster which hastens us from the world, brings disgrace upon our families and opens the grave that is ready at any moment to take in those whose time is at hand. "It is madness to attempt the impossible; says Christian Cole one of Sierra Leone's promising and literary sons who has been taken away as we hope to the land of endless bliss. Therefore this article is no attempt whatever at an exhaustive treatment of such an abstract question, but it is simply to look at its practical results and therefore a moment of our lives secondarily; but if not, then a side by the consequence." Some, as they say, by violent stroke shall die, By fire, flood, famine, by intemperance more in meats and drinks."

Intemperance and Superstition are relative terms bringing of course relative injuries—design and local. It is not in our place to argue that the other worlds drink more and have as much belief in direct agency of superior powers, hence we are to "take a little for thy stomach's sake," and not to encourage all fanatical beliefs, for then most positively we shall dominate ourselves like the Pharisees of old and show most plainly that we are guilty. Rather than that it we have abstained a little, in as put a able in rearing up sound children, even children whose delicate mental and intellectual faculties have not been injured in the least when at such a re- sixteen shillings so that after over one year as a slave the boy is again in school.

For his different ailings; us his in all we shall be lost yea

Again. Superstition—defined by Webster, as "the belief in the direct agency of superior powers, in certain ex raordinary or singular events, or in omens and prognostics" not only day by-day doing all evils of intemperance, but driving us away from the church therefore far away from our God the only Being who can be conceived only in thlanguage, "Canst thou find out the Almight unto perfection." The most singular thing is where is the author that takes away the belief from the Primal to the secondary cause.' Beware my Reader 'Thou shalt have no other gods but me' How can we leave the creator and worship the creature; most singular! most absurd!

Leaving the question to you my Reader let me ask 'Of the two evils foreign and local which is better to serve And what advantage is there in serving either?—C.A. CLEMENS.

The above article was written Apl. 14th to please a former on the same subject, but was not published, as it is a little too long to be contained. You've asked promised to insert it, as soon as possible.—Ed.

Types of Gladness

There are, indeed, types of glad events we can not be reconciled when a first is any sorrow. We can never again look upon the world with the same eyes. There are void places in our earthly loves that must remain void while we stay here. But there is a profounder love for those who stay with us, a gentleness, sweetness of affection unknown before. Our love gains by loss, grows by empty tasks. Above all, there is a more vivid sense of heavenly realities, a consciousness of broken union with those who seem divided from us, an intimacy with higher fellowships opened for us, a more clinging sense of dependence on the infinite love, and hence a diviner and loftier, though less prestine buoyancy be forever lost. Especially as life wanes, and the shadows lengthen, may the treasures laid up in heaven give us a familiar, home-like feeling, as to the mansion where they shall be ours again, and the very hopes whose failure cast a cloud over earlier years may thus shed over our declining days a genial light, that shall grow brighter and brighter till it is merged in the pure radiance of heaven.—Sel.

ADVERTISEMENTS.

MR ALFRED ALEWIS,
Jeweller
AND
Electro Metallurgist

begs to inform the Public of his having established at Otta St. a workshop wherein the best and choicest workmanship in Gold or silver can be obtained, and Galvanized work performed either in Gold or silver at shortest notice and for very reasonable prices.

Please send your old silver candlesticks Trays etc., and they will be spl shed as new, or your English gold Guards etc., for polishing, or Galvanized bangles and they will be converted.

Your clocks too can be repaired at moderate prices.

You have only to apply at the workshop, Corner of Victoria Road.

Apprentices wanted-conditions understood on application.

Bonthe Sherbro, Sept 3rd '90

FOR SALE
(By Public Auction or Private Contract.)

All that piece and parcel of Ecclesiastical Land known as Bell's Creek situate lying and being in Victoria Road Sherbro all that piece and parcel of Land situate lying and being at Victoria Road Yonkonkro and that piece and parcel of Land known and commonly called Bhangra with the plantation of Sawbine all properties of William Ellis Bah deceased.

The titles to the above are clear and absolute.

For arrangement apply to H. H. Dove of Freetown, or Rev. J. C. Taylor of Bonthe.

Oct. 27th '90

THE
Early Dawn
PRINTING OFFICE
EXECUTED AT
SHORT NOTICE
ENQUIRE OF
S. SARAH FARRIS.
Printer.

THE EARLY DAWN.

"The Morning Light is Breaking, The Darkness Disappears."

VOL. VII. BONTHE SHERBRO, WEST AFRICA, DECEMBER 16, 1890. No. 21

The 'Early Dawn'

Published Semi Monthly at Bonthe Sherbro. Under the Auspices of the Board of Missions of the United Brethren in Christ.

Rev. J. A Evans, Editor and Publisher
Bonthe, Sherbro, West Africa.

AGENTS.

United States—Revs D.P. Heath and Wm. Markee, Dayton; Rev. Wm J. Davis, Lisbon; Rev. U. R. Flickinger, Williamsburg, Ohio; R. J. Sower, Mechanicsburg, Pa; Rev. C. W. Arnold, Chicago, Ohio.

Great Britain—J.A. Bucanella, Great Gransby; Rev. J. R. Prederick, and Rev. H. R. Adams, Sheffield.

France—Rev. Charles Depuy, Montauban, Rev. James Depuy, Lavaur.

Germany—Rev. Moses S. Boyer, Berlin.

TERMS.

One Year by mail,	£0	6	0
Delivered in Bonthe,	0	5	0
Mail yearly by mail,	0	3	0
Deliv. delivered in Bonthe,	0	2	6

Magic Lantern Show.

Bathurst River Gambia.

Dear Mr. Editor,—The 25th of September will be a day long to be remembered in the history of this country it being the day when Mr. Richards gave us the Magic Lantern Exhibition illustrating missionary interests at Shaingay, Bush Bargers and Bonthe. It was every thing that was grand so that as we were told we were to attend. The pictures were very interesting to all present, I did not hear of any dissatisfaction expressed—there were some colored pieces illustrating the life of Christ and the famous John Gilpin. Everything was lovely and strange to say there was marked order. To me it was one of the best evenings I have spent since we came to "Bonthe" as the Jolliffe call Bathurst. We had music to boot. Mr. S. J. Auber an intimate friend of Mr. R. kindly placed his harmonium (portable) and Organette at his disposal, and rendered himself very choice music at intervals which is a great treasure helped to make the affair in no enjoyable. Mr. A—is a reputed musician and I was going to say we may safely class him with the African names. There was Mr. G. D. Leigh another friend, a subscriber to the "Early Dawn", who rendered very efficient service in making the necessary arrangements for the day in the getting of chairs, fixing up of the Room etc. unlike your experiences at Shaingay or in the States—it has a good deal to do in bringing on anything for public amusement. First of all there is the difficulty of obtaining a suitable place and that done you have to struggle and down the town getting the consent of this and other proprietors which is a very job. However we have much to be thankful for, the more were kind friends who assisted to get us the best we had. I am positive that all went home that evening filled with wonder on the one hand for the results that have been achieved in the lapse of time and on the other, with gratitude to the God of missions for the success that was granted to the humble efforts of the missionaries of the U. B. Church thereby honouring His cause and the name of His Holy Son Jesus. We hail the day when the whole of Sherbro and the region beyond shall be won for Jesus and He shall reign for evermore as we used to sing from the "Holy Voices".

Flora desires me to say that since writing her article "on Bathurst" the Col. Registrar Mr. Hingeston died

Poor man he had only been on the coast a couple of months and like many others was big with hopes of doing the col ny good service but he could not cross the sandbars and with the beginning of October he fell to join the majority. Well I trust he was well prepared for his fate. I hope to write you again on some other topic, if all goes well. Meanwhile with love to you all and best wishes for your work.

I am Another Missions Girl Emeritus.
Bathurst R. O.
1st. October 1890.

The Natives and Religion.

Mr. Editor,—To begin with I must let better the understanding of foreign readers, at least, explain, that the term natives as used very largely among us means the aborigines and not all Africans; and that it is in this Sense I use the term Natives in this paper and more especially refer to the Mendis and Sherbros with a few Susus and Timnis interspersed among them but chiefly in these parts, enjoying the advantages of religious instruction through the Medium of either the Sherbro, Mendi or English languages. These natives attend Christian Religious Services only as the spirit of inclination moves them, but with this we have very little reason to find fault, except where they come in contact with the pernicious influence of a corrupt civilization in such places as we have about this locality; where these are introduced of christians who do not attend the place of worship as they ought. That side as I away from such influence natives by a little perseverance in looking after their spiritual good, can be induced quite readily to attend religious services, nor is it difficult for them to think and turn, from heathen practices in a large measure; and even to altogether renounce their old habits But of course in order for this continuance in the learning and practice of a christian life it is necessary to have teachers continually remain among the people until they become rooted and grounded in religious truth, otherwise they must largely relapse into old practices and habits again; hence vague Itinerancy or a brief visiting cannot possibly do the people of any community the amount of substantial good that they ought to have for their spiritual upbuilding. I have under training personally a class of natives, mostly Mendis they present an interesting study as well as a hard problem to solve, one indeed which only the Spirit can solve. There are several who are very regular in attending the services, are indeed very serious in their manner listen very closely to every word that we speak to them, and I believe, try to understand, but I am sure it is hard for them to grasp the truths as we put them, and then I pray for a simpler way to present the truth that the gifting mind of the anxious Seeker may be able to grasp and hold it. More again.

Yours Truly, J. Auber.

REPORT.

Rotefunk has been sadly visited by death. While three of the missionaries of the Mission to the Unevangelized were on a visit to this place from Freetown, one of their number, Mr. Charles Helme, was called from earth's labor to sweeter reward. He was a lovely young man, full of hope and zeal for his chosen work and pray for the Master strong in mind and body, but four days of intermittle fever and his work was done. Loving hands laid him away in the church yard, vows for better service for God were made and his grave is a silent, reminder of how sweetly a christian dies and be that would work must be up and doing for the night cometh.

Mr. Engman, the leader of the party, was taken sick the day of the funeral but after a brave struggle with the fever the Lord raised him up. Four of the party of nine have gone to join the redeemed since last July. The Lord deals with this party in mysterious way, but He doeth all things well Praise ye the name of the Lord.—E G.

Rotefunk, Nov. 25th '90

Kooloung Nov. 29 '90.

Dear Brother Evans,—You will be pained to hear of the death of Brother Henry Providence Humphrey which took place on Yesterday the 28rd. and buried this morning at 8 a m. by the Rev. D. F. Wilberforce with a crowd of 88 who attended the funeral and of Miss Betty Caulker and sister who was also buried at Tasoah the burial place of the said family. Bro. H. died and left a widow in the person of Mrs. Rebecca Jane Humphrey and her little sister who lately came from Manoria to Free town and was brought to Kooloung by her late brother-in-law H.P. Humphrey.

Verily Yours
A. F. CAMPBELL.

Death Of Mr. Humphrey.

At Kooloung Nov 24th at 10 a. m. Mr. H. P. A. Humphry Died of cerebral he was confined to his bed just one week. On the 18th he returned from Freetown where he had received medicine from the Army hospital steward.

He was a discharged soldier from the 2nd West India Regiment. He was a native of British Guiana; for four years he has had the charge of the mission children and the farm at Kooloung station and we have never had a man that has managed children as well; besides managing the farm and children he has done the itinerating in 12 villages and has been very successful I was with him on the 18th he was quite resigned told me what to write his mother after he died and just where he wanted to be burried under a guava tree immediately in the rear of the little Chapel all of which was done by the Rev D F Wilberforce as I was away on duty at the time.

J. Gomes.

The Brotherhood Of Men.

I had in my last Paper on this subject in the Dawn of Nov. 15th, promised more on the same. And one to proceed I wish to observe that the fact of the Brotherhood of men not only entitles them to Salvation, but also lays on them duties or obligations upon each member of the Brotherhood, making each member of the fraternity Responsible, in a sense for the keeping of his brother; this obligation is what man, in his natural or unrenewed state always objects to, to a very great extent since the day of Cain But as man were often unconscious of how much of the murderous spirit of Cain does actually harbor itself in our hearts, or how often we really seek the Lord as did Cain. "Am I my brother's keeper I profess, in a measure, do this every time we refuse help to our fellows, when it is in the power of our hand to render them assistance. Of course I know we excuse our selves, on the ground that we cannot spare what is in our hands, that we need it for our own comfort but is it brotherly to lavish upon ones if that which if properly divided would be sufficient for the necessities of both? however you will ask how can man withholding be considered murderous, when the one withholding his alms does not intend murder I will in several ways, first by cutting an example that if followed by others would send the beggar to his grave from want, caused the carelessness of the life of a fellow creature not caring whether he lives or dies, and in other ways in us are murderously careless of their brethren. But not only of their brothers, are all subjects careless, but of themselves and by the carelessness they are exposed to the wrath of God and eternal Death. However the case of the world are blind, and in their blindness, reject the obligations that they are under to their fellowmen. But the professing Christian claims to have come to the light and to have received his covenant with our heavenly Father and become a member of the household of faith and then placed himself under renewed obligations to his brethren, this is better than the case my Christians enjoying the light and hope of heaven we can neglect obligation to love our neighbor (esp once we can help) as ourselves and as we would that others should do unto us, even so we ourselves to them, But it is so hard to make us understand, what these divine obligations mean as they regard ourselves, however let us consider them closely, and see if we cannot understand our duty to our fellow creature.

First of we love our neighbor as we love ourselves, we shall agree, to help him when he is in need, employer of our money God her others, or to whatever we can help him. As this number one brethren neighbors are greatly in need of our godly example and religious counsel as well as prayers and sympathy and it is fully in the power of every Christian to lighten some one or more of them, for instance godly example, which every Christian ought to exhibit in his life and conversation "Let your light so go shine before men that they may see your good works and glorify your Father, which is in heaven." Then prayers every Christian can pray for others, for no one being in the light can not feel for one that is in the dark. Christian you are in the light The heathen—they are dark men—as in the Days, do you feel for them? Present the gospel to every creature. Do good unto all men as you have opportunity—&

The Early Dawn

MONTHLY, DECEMBER 16, 1890

REV. J. A. EVANS—EDITOR

[CONTINUED.]

The Reign Of Peace.

The Gospel banner now unfurled,
Shall o'er the world triumph over the world;
And every creature, bond and free
Shall hail the glorious Jubilee.

Soon truth shall sit on every hill,
And blessings flow in every rill;
And Zion's children sweetly sing,
The Deserts are all blossoming.

The lamb shall with the Leopard play,
For naught shall harm in Zion's way;
The Gospel story shall go forth,
And all shall hear from South to North.

The sword and spear of soulless worth,
Shall prune the tree and plough the earth
And peace shall smile from shore to shore
And nations learn to war no more.—SEL.

The Spirits Traffic.—Is now, we believe of doubtful commercial expediency, talking with a dealer a few days ago, he acknowledged the advertisery of the profits on the liquor business yet he felt reluctant to give it up, as we supposed for fear of losing other trade. We are leading the river Trade without spirits. But the dealer thought that as this firm are known to be against it no one ever thinks of asking them for Spirits; and we feel that any one that will may quit the traffic and like the estimable, Messrs. Thompsons never feel the difference except for the better. Now as the year is coming to a close and the Census taken we hope that many petty Traders will quit the trade in Spirits and find something more profitable to deal in.

The Season.—Seems remarkable for the continuance of rains. Towards, and during Harmattan a year ago, a deal of thunder was heard among which has struck twice in our quarter of the town the first at Miss Tucker's struck a breadfruit tree and knocking a man down. The second strike was in Victoria Road near Mr Wm. M'Cauleys which as we have noted else where killed two persons.

Thanksgiving.—Was observed in this place on the 27th ult. by the U. B. church with good success but the Choir was crowded out of our last issue. However we repeat it and suggest the propriety of its observance to the other churches and that it would be a good time for receiving Thank Offerings.

All Is not Gold that glitters—is an old truism, but it may be observed that all gold should glitter. And in like manner all christian life ought to brilliuminated with good works.

Anniversary;—of the Wesleyan Sabbath School will be celebrated on the 21st & 22nd inst at their Chapel in this place. Revd S B. Morrison [U. B. C.] of Avery Station will, it is expected preach at 11 a m on Sunday the 21st and Mr J. Mac Canly of Mollancley at 7 p m A grand time is anticipated, a public Collection will be taken at each service, to let the friends peops re accordingly.

Falconbridge Letters.

Prominent among the buildings or houses that were first erected in the new town was a larger one for a Store house for the Storing of Goods and Implements for the general use of the Settlers. This building was completed in less than four weeks; wher which we are informed that a part of it was partitioned off for a residence for Mr and Mrs. Falconbridge was the Agent and for the time Governor of the Colony, the Store and residency were under one roof. The only advantage, however, of the Larger building, that Mrs. Falconbridge recognized, was that it was cooler

But now we resume and quote from Mrs. F's fourth letter [May 15th 1891] as follows. " He [Mr Falconbridge] was desired by the Company to take a first, and they sent at six pieces of Cannon which are now on board the Lapwing but omitted to send carriages and consequently the Guns are useless; though if they were complete, Falconbridge thinks it would not be prudent to trust them with the present Settlers, from a belief that they might apply them improperly He is also requested by instructions to collect as many samples of country productions as he can, and he wished to employ some of the people in that way, but none would offer their services for less than half a guinea per day which price he has been forced to pay them; this is the go stead instance of ingratitude I ever met with.

We were alarmed a little while since by dreadful shouts, in the vicinity of our Town, and supposed the natives meant to attack us; immediately Falconbridge armed his skiffs, and marched on towards where the noise was heard, they had not gone far when they met three or four Pangarees or men thieves, just in the act of rousing a poor victim they had caught hunting, and the shouts we had heard proved to be rejoicings of the bandits.

Falconbridge is not think it advisable to rescue the prisoner by force, or to interfere further than what words would do, an as some of the Pangarees spoke English, he remonstrated against the dewilish deed they were committing, but to little effect. They said somebody being to gang to the priests town had insulted them, and it was the custom of their country to retaliate on any person erring in the same place with an offender, and they could not get himself, of which the present case was an example.

They then carried him away, and in all probability this man will be sacrificed at his liberty while he lives by the barbarous customs of his country, for the insignificant offences of another.

I omitted mention during in my last letter, that the day after we arrived at Bance Island, Mr. William Falconbridge in consequence of a falling dis ease with his brother, separated from us, and went into the service of Messrs Anderson, but his constitution was not adapted for this unhospitable climate. He went Down the coast to York Island, in the River Sherbro, about twenty Leagues distance, where he was unavoidably exposed to the severity of the weather, from which he got a fever and although he immediately returned to Bance Island, and had every assistance administered yet, I am sorry to say, the irresistable conqueror, Death, made all endeavors fruitless and carried him to eternity yesterday, after a short illness of four days."

From the tenderness of Mr. W. Falconbridge' Death we may readily perceive that the climate a hundred years ago in Sierra Leone was about the same as at the present time, very trying to defective constitutions

Thanksgiving Offering.

We clip the following from the Wesleyan Evangel which may prove of interest to our Readers and especially those concerned in the finance of the U B Church Missions.

"Every one, and altogether, should be the motto of our readers in response to the call of the General Board, for a special gift of five cents per member for our foreign work. The Board was not able to make the appropriations it should have been for Africa, and consequence our missionaries have been hindered. For the special need, [illegible] during Thanksgiving week. What [illegible] ing will be paying [illegible] Wilberforce's letters in the Telescope does not want to help them! This is the opportunity for us to give them encouragement. Our work and contribution for the Woman's Board have only increased our interest in the work of the General Board.

To that we have longest given our interest and money, and as the Thanksgiving time approaches, we think and plan for a special offering. Let no one forget it this year. If the pastor does not ask for public contributions, you make your own and see as many more of the members of your church as you can and get theirs, and then send to William McKee, Dayton, Ohio. But the live, wide—awake pastor is anxious, to give encouragement to our faithful hard-worked missionaries, who are ably appointed that they are not able to carry out their plans or answer the many pressings calls for workers farther interior.

The sum of $ 10,000 is not too much to expect from the church as the result of this special effort to [illegible] a simple easy way to gather a good sum to do a mighty work in the great continent of Africa. The foundation has been laid for a grand work and we shall not be true to the faith and prayers of our fathers who planted not true to our increased knowledge of the needs of the African race nor our improved resources nor our enlarged opportunities if we up not speedily say by our larger contributions to the Lord's go on and send in to awaken into the field. The Board cannot go faster than the church indicates. There is a grand harvest of souls for our Master too reap in the next few years in Sierra and grand districts West Africa and nothing can prevent it but indifference and unfaithfulness of those who are in the country.

For unanswerable shall call upon the name of the Lord shall be saved How then and they call on Him of whom they have not heard! How shall they hear without a preacher! How shall they preach except they be sent!"

W. C. T. U.

A Temperance Temple.

The erection of an immense building in Chicago, U. S. A. called the Temperance Temple, is one of the greatest ideas of the age. In stating two that has also originated among and is being carried out by women. Women who have the happy faculty of seeing large enterprises, and how and when they need to do their duty to the coming generations.—W. C. T. U. women.

This huge building with its thirteen stories has rooms of rooms humming with business, every room in which will be free from the rum fiend, and will be the immense business of the W. C. T. U. will be transacted, the income for which will from which will daily accrue, interest for the salvation of the drunkard, and the world wide suppression of the liquor traffic, the very foundation of prosperity [illegible] is a great [illegible] ing to [illegible] mounted by the figure of a woman [illegible] pervers [illegible] whom they ought to [illegible] lights in the world, they [illegible] set better examples to the [illegible] thus by their words, deeds [illegible] actions. Really I must confess Mr. Editor that this gentleman [illegible] counsel as one who [illegible] visited this place, and has [illegible] now our so called Christians here are acting before the [illegible] tives by whom they are [illegible] rounded. Some of them [illegible] to be seen on the Lord's [illegible]

CORRESPONDENCE.

A Grand Interior Mission.

It would seem to the writer that since the Nations have been shaving or divining the continent of Africa for the [illegible] therance of civil and commercial purposes and since there is now a gigantic corporation formed, with a vast capital, for the purpose of founding civil Empire, [illegible] ought to be an equally large enterprise started, for the year-getting of the Missions of Interior Africa, and the setting up of a spiritual Empire. The Lord whose stewards are dominus of experimenting in civil and commercial [illegible] prizes, has fully guaranteed the success of all spiritual undertakings, and will be set on foot for the future race of spiritual Empire, in the universal Reign of his Son. Unto whom he has promised "the heathen for (thine) inheritance and the uttermost parts of the earth for (thy) possession." And as the Dawning of the age is a grand Interior mission it seems a pretty evident test that the Lord does not intend that missions to be self supporting, from the fact, of the impecuniosity of the services, he has secured at least, to peace in the way of all, as every venture of the kind; the it seems not willing to allow the Church to shirk the responsibility of the great God mission. "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature." Preaching from the coast and the expense of Missions being seen to remain the minimum cost of such operations the gates of every treasure on this continent being thrown open, and the Kings of Christ are waiting to welcome the [illegible] people's sons. Who then would not desire to share in the furtherance of a Grand Mission to the Interior?—J. A. E.

Dear Mr. Editor—On Sunday the 23rd I had the pleasure of attending St. Luke's Church, Bendoo, the services were conducted by the Rev. A. C. Stevens of the niger mission who was preacher for the day. He selected for his text Phil. 2.14-15 to 16 verses.

This Rev. gentleman exerted himself to impress upon the minds of all hearers, that they could not suggest that any [illegible] in unbelief a [illegible] perverse [illegible] generation among whom they ought to [illegible] lights in the world, they should set better examples to the natives thus by their words, deeds and actions. Really I must confess Mr. Editor that this gentleman [illegible] counsel as one who has visited this place, and has seen how our so called Christians here are acting before the natives by whom they are surrounded. Some of them [illegible] to be seen on the Lord's [illegible] in their houses whiling away the time by go siping and idle talking, instead of attending to the duties of that Holy day; others are in the habit of carrying a fetish man into their houses at the dead of the night for the purpose of making charms. However I hope that these will be a radical change since sunday and that the Sierra Leoneans here may be as lights among the natives by whom they are surrounded.

We are thankful to this Rev. gentleman for the way and manner he dealt with his discourse; his sermon were plain, practical and edifying, we hope that his life may be spared and that we may have the opportunity of having him in our midst again.

Thanking you Mr. Editor for space occupied

I am Yours Truly
"Vox"

Bendoo Dec. 8th. 90.

CHILDREN'S COLUMN.

Bathurst Gambia.

(Continued from our last.)

There was tranquility far and wide and business men enjoyed blessed seasons in trade in short there was plenty of money and the far famed Gambia been one the marke for all fortune seekers. Just about that time the question of transferring the Gambia to the French came on for the first time, but the people with one voice disapproved the idea and petitioned Her Britanic Majesty's Government on the subject and backed by able supporters in England who had Commercial connections with the Colony, the scheme fell through and the people breathed freely. The question has been repeatedly raised, but each time with the same results. I am however inclined to think that it some proper arangement could be arrived at as to "landed property" in the event of transfer it would serve Gambia and the Gambians" better chances, that the transfer be made once and for all.

In the desire to acquire new possessions in the East and Central parts of Africa, England has sadly neglected the oldest of her West Coast possessions. It is the experience one has of all things temporal.

So much to politics, to which for the present I must say Adieu!

Perhaps you are getting anxious to learn som thing about the people? The inhabitants of the Gambia are principally the decendants of liberated Africans comprising the Akus, Ejaes, Mocos, Congos (these people have nearly all died out) and other tribes of the Guinea Coast and then we have the Jolofs, Mandingoes, Soreeres, Fulas, Fulfuls, Susees, Bambaras, Wasloonkh, Nyanimakhs, and a lot of others, scarcely known. They speak different languages in their original state but there is one [illegible] which is given out in [illegible] into New Town and Portuguese Town where the Creoles or descendants of the liberated Africans live, and Jolof Town where the Jolofs live.

In the Southern Bar is a place called Half Die a swampy sort of a place where at one time it was impossible for people to live. There are a lot of unbrutalized Jolofs who are residing there, as in consequence of war in their country, they've been obliged to come in great numbers to Bathurst and make their home.

The Jolofs are re owned for their strength. In fact the way men are stronger than them in for the yearly [illegible] hard work, store up their earnings and at the end of the trade season, buy muskets, Gun powder Sword Blades &c. for their husbands who simply delight in war and bloodshed I shall write you about the spiritual condition of these people later on.

The Jolofs and Sereres are the principal inhabitants of Bathurst, for I believe they outnumber the Creols. The Jolofs in days of yore were reputed for their wealth which consisted principally of Gold and Silver Ornaments and costly native apparel, and their hospitality. They lived in affluent circumstances. he meaning of dignity dream tunes are mostly mechanics and tradesmen, the best ship wrights along the Coast are found among the Jolofs. In the lower classes you have the weavers and the smiths. The weavers are very skilful in their trade and have made designs which have been imitated in the Manufactures of Europe. The Mandingoes and other tribes live on the mainland and come to Bathurst daily to transact business and then return home again. They have native boats or Canoes carved out of the trunks of large trees and in these they convey their produce to Bathurst (being principally Agriculturists) coming from distances of a hundred miles up the River It is high time I think I should begin to say som thing about religious status of the country which after all is what would interest you most and the dear friends of the Mission. As far as I have learnt, nothing of the Christian Religion had found way to this country before the year 1821 i.e. five years after the settlement was formed, and then native Sierra Leoneans of the Wesleyan Missionary Society who opened the field by sending their first missionary the Rev. John Morgan from England who was soon afterwards joined by the Rev. John Baker from Freetown. The Wesleyan missionaries were somewhat perplexed at first as to which would be the best locality to commence their labours. At long they fixed upon a place called Mandinares, in the kingdom of Combo on the mainland, about eight miles from St. Mary's on the southern bank of the river. In the true missionary spirit they commenced to tell the trees and clear the ground which they had obtained from the native king or cacique, and to build a rude house in a short to dwell with a large room for religious services. This they accomplished in the course of a few weeks with the help of the natives; but they soon discovered to their sorrow that they had selected a very unhealthy place for the station, as they were both attacked with fever at an early period of their labours.

FLORA,
of Mendo

To be Continued.

LOCAL ITEMS.

Mr. C. S. Bowa Catechist of St. Luke's church left Bendoo on the 21st ult. for the Rivers on a collecting tour. We wish him good success.

Mr. A. G. Tilly a resident of Bendoo arrived there on the 5th instant.

Merry Go-Round,—It is now understood that Mr. Jenkins of the Xmas Season, with his Merry-Go-Round for the amusement of merry loving public and desires their Patronage.

Died—A old woman by the name of Maria Thomas at Bendoo on Sunday the 7th instant.

The members of St. Luke's Sabbath School Bendoo were addressed by Messrs A. G. Tilly and D. W. Howard on sunday the 7th instant. These gentlemen really doing good work here, they are shining as lights in the midst of the heathen by whom they are surrounded.

These Gentlemen have the Thanks of the School for their addresses.

Killed,—by lightening on the 8 inst about 9 a. m. two persons, a native woman and a boy in Victoria Road crossing the Grandcamb swamp in this place. The women was killed instantly on the spot, but the boy survived a few hours and died at the Hospital. Both bodies were interred in the Mendi Mission Cemetery about 6 p. m. the same day. Quite a large number of Natives were present.

Mr J. N. Crown returned from Manoh Salijah per Steam Launch

Dec —a s. "Footah" for Freetown with mails and the following passenger

Ven: A children son and Mrs. Crowther Mrs. Lefever and Miss Nicol

The prisoner Canry Lee who escaped from prison in April last with 4 Cans of Palm Oil, has been arested at Mye river for stealing a quantity of goods from the store of Mr. Samuel W. Thomas trader in that locality.

He has been sent to Freetown per s. s. "Footah" to take his trial at the next Supreme Court.

Married Oct 29—Norman On Thursday Dec 4. 90. at Holy Trinity Church Freetown by the Pastor in Regent assisted by the Rev M Vivian B. A.—Mr. S D A Coker of Bathurst Gambia, (brother to Mr. Bidwell Coker of this place) to Miss Mary Norman.

Dec. 6—a s Formoso in which left here since Sept. last arrived with Mr. Barnett Ar[illegible] and general cargo consigned to Merchants of this place.

PERSONAL

Mr. John Morrison agt. of Messrs Pickering and Berthoud is a busy man indeed and is getting ahead Rapidly with the erection of their Large Factory Corner Medina Street Half Die Road.

Mr. W. D. Pasha Catechist of St. Matthews Church, this Place Returned from his collecting tour in the River Districts on the 13th instant.

Mr. G. A. Taylor, of this Place is laying up seriously ill in Freetown whether he went from here some time ago for a change.

SELECTIONS.

Margaret's Test.

If ever I marry," said Margaret Bailey to her cousin Olivia, "it will be a man who does not live entirely for himself, but who, out of the benevolence of a charitable heart, will not pass unheeded the cry of the widow and orphan who call on him for relief."

"You speak warmly, Margaret."

"Because I feel it. I have always thought that a charitable man would make a good husband."

"But how will you be able to judge of this? You are an heiress and of course have many suitors. Do you not believe that any one of them would be willing to don a charitable mood for a while, if they supposed that upon this issue depended the hand of the wealthy heiress?"

"Perhaps you are right," said Margaret, thoughtfully, "but she added suddenly, "an idea has just come into my head, by which I think this embarrassment can be avoided."

"What is that?" asked Olivia cautiously.

"Let me confess, in the first place that among all who are generally considered suitors for my hand, perhaps fortune would be the more appropriate word there are none whom I would think of as a husband except Herbert Lee or Henry Ainsworth. The former, you know, is wealthy, the latter, a clerk dependent on his income, which I should judge was not large. Now I have a mind to subject these two to a test."

"A good idea, but how will you manage it?"

"You know there is a poor family in Allen Street—one of whom we heard to-day consisting of a widow woman, who is sick, and three young children. Now I am going, anonymously of course, to recommend them to the charitable offices of both Herbert Lee and Henry Ainsworth, and we will see the result. They will not recognise your hand writing; therefore I want you to take pen and paper and write a note at my dictation."

Olivia procured writing materials, and her cousin dictated as follows,—

Dear Sir,—Though a stranger to you, I take the liberty of calling your attention to the case of a poor family now living in a single room at Allen Street, who in consequence of illness of the mother, who has hitherto supported them by plain sewing, are reduced to extreme want. A little aid at this time would be to them like the visit of an angel from heaven. Will you extend it? At least call upon them, and you will be convinced that this is not a simple statement of the truth.

CHARITY."

The note was copied and despatched through the post-office to the address of both gentlemen.

Perhaps three days afterwards Herbert Lee called at Margaret's residence Margaret adroitly led the conversation to the objects of charity and charitable institutions.

"Ay," said Lee, "that reminds me of an odd circumstance. I received a letter the other day, recommending to my notice a poor family in Allen Street. It was signed 'Charity,' and very earnestly advised me to go and see them."

"And did you go?" asked Margaret quickly.

"Not I!" was the laughing reply. "I haven't time to waste in hunting up all the destitute families in the city. I should have my hands full."

"But the family may be suffering from want."

"If they are 'Charity' would be in better business in relieving them himself than in sending anonymous letters of advice to others."

Would Herbert Lee have laughed so merrily if he had known the effect of his want of feeling on her he was anxious to please?

"I think, after all," said Margaret, when Herbert had withdrawn, "that I must go and see Mrs Green myself. If Henry Ainsworth is in more charitable than Herbert, she will fare hard."

The ladies arrayed themselves for a walk. A few minutes brought them to the residence of the poor widow of whom they were in search.

To their surprise, they found, on being admitted, that a cheerful fire was glowing in the stove, while a pleasant smell of dinner filled the apartment. On a table by the side of the widow were some medicines. The hearth was brushed up, and the room, though scantily furnished, presented a neat and comfortable appearance.

Margaret looked around in surprise.

"I wanted to believe, said she that you were in great want."

"So we were, said Mrs. Green but, thanks to the generosity of a noble young gentleman, who stepped forward to our relief, we are no longer so.

"Indeed who has thus befriended you?"

"His name is Ainsworth. He sent for a doctor for me and at his own cost purchased food and coal; so that, by the blessing of God, I hope soon to recover my health and then all will go right once more.

After a little more conversation, Margaret and her cousin withdrew, leaving with Mrs. Green some money for present necessities.

That evening Herbert Lee offered his hand to Margaret Bailey and, to his surprise, no less than his discomfiture, was rejected.

A week afterwards Henry Ainsworth made his appearance He seemed unusually thoughtful.

A penny for your thoughts, said Margaret gaily.

He looked at her earnestly a moment, and then replied,—

I will indeed tell you the subject of my thoughts, and ask you to forgive me afterwards. It is, I know an act of presumption for a poor clerk to speak of love, of marriage to a wealthy heiress; but I cannot keep it any longer. I love you, Margaret with truth and sincerity. Do you pardon me!

No, said Margaret promptly, for you have said nothing that requires it. And if you think me worthy of taking you may have me and welcome.

Do I hear aright? was the delighted reply. How have I deserved such good fortune!

Listen I will tell you. I had resolved never to marry one unless I was convinced that he was charitable. Last week you received an anonymous letter recommending a poor family to your charitable notice. Did you have visited them and believed their necessities. I feel that I can safely trust my happiness in your hands, since you have so nobly stood the test.

"Truly," said Henry Ainsworth, as eyes lighted up with gratitude, "charity is its own exceeding great reward."

Work Of The Human Heart.

The mathematical fiend has recently been at work upon a calculation of the work performed by the human heart. His calculations are curious, and give the work of the heart in miles and beats. It is based upon the presumption that the heart beats 69 times each minute, throws blood nine feet. Computed thus, the mileage of the blood through the body might be taken as 207 yards per minute, seven miles per hour, 168 miles per day, 61 320 miles per year, or 4,292, 400 miles a life time of seventy years.

"I've Got De Position."

In these days ambitious young men sometimes mark out for themselves a course of life. They set their mind on it with a determination to win in that way and in no other.

They don't succeed! Their friends feel that they are chasing a phantom, or building a castle in the air, but they will not lower their aim nor turn to something else to which they are better adapted.

Such youth may learn a lesson from an amusing old man in this city, whom some sarcastic wit named "white." He is tall and black, with a majestic bearing, and lived around with the silver of seventy years.

"White" appeared to this victuity some years ago looking for work which, [illegible] he was too old to perform.

"I've been a man of position in my day," he said to a gentleman who had become interested in him. "I've been great on horses, and have a spanking team.

"Yes, but you are too old now to get a place as coachman.

"Yes, so I realized that fact to the full extremity.

But ye see, I've been considered one of a poacher, too, in my day; but they tells me de young men can't all afore 'em in de kingdom now.

ADVERTISEMENT.

MR ALFREDO ALTAMIS
Jeweller
AND Electro Metallurgist.

begs to inform the Public of his having established at 37th Street a workshop where in the best and choicest workmanship in Gold or Silver can be obtained, and Galvanic work performed either in Gold or Silver at shortest notice and for very reasonable prices.

Please send your old silver candlesticks Trays etc. and they will be polished as new, or your English gold Guards etc. for polishing or Galvanic Plating and they will be converted.

Your clocks too can be repaired at moderate prices.

You have only to apply at the workshop, Corner of Victoria Road.

Apprentices wanted. Also [illegible] understood on application.

Bonthe Sherbro Sept. 3rd '90

THE EARLY DAWN.

"The Morning Light Is Breaking, The Darkness Disappears."

VOL. VII. BONTHE SHERBRO, WEST AFRICA, DECEMBER 31, 1890. No. 29

The 'Early Dawn'

Published Semi-Monthly at Bonthe Sherbro. Under the Auspices of the Board of Missions of the United Brethren In Christ.

Rev. J. A. Evans, Editor and Publisher. Bonthe, Sherbro, West Africa.

AGENTS.

United States.—Revs. B.F. Booth and Wm. McKee, Dayton. Rev. Wm J. Davis, Basil, Ohio Rev. D. K. Flickinger, Willoughby, Ohio, H. J. Stober, Manheim. Pa., Rev. G.W. Arnold, Richards, Ohio.

West Africa.—J.A. Richards, River Gambia, Rev. J. R. Frederick, and Mr. E. A. Lewis Freetown, Sierra Leone. Rev. James Dopoe, Marshall, Liberia. Mr. Moses S. Boyle, Liberia.

TERMS.

One Year by mail,	£0	6 0
Delivered in Bonthe,	0	5 0
Half yearly by mail,	0	3 0
Ditto. delivered in Bonthe,	0	2 6

To the Editor of The "Early Dawn"

Dear Mr Editor,—Allow me just a few bit of a space in a column of your valuable journal, to prop up something which I believe will do incalculable good to the community of our little country "Boujmil."

The [illegible] of having a newspaper, raised some time ago it dying a natural death, and as there is a probability of it being restored to life again, I venture to give some physic to the dying (though I am no graduate of a British University) by way of suggestions, which are these

1—The would be promoters of this scheme for a long felt want, are sure to be successful if the list for subscriptions or [illegible] for shareholders [as the case may be] is shown to every body in the place instead restricting it only to those whom they think are interested in things of the sort, such a practice is not conducive to the interests of the community; and is therefore a Malum in se.

2—The greater portion of the Community is always down after the dry Season, when time is the best for the showing of subscription list etc, for then Traders, Dealers, Saperagoues, etc, are down a long with pocket full of cash, and books over after stock to join to say nothing of or schemes of the like nature.

3—That this is the season when the Crops are reported to be plentiful and when the price next year seems as if it will be better and higher than what at present exists, cannot be denied and therefore, I think, it will not be out of place, to suggest here as my last, that the ensuing year should (D V.) be opened with a list for this well thought of scheme. Following my suggestions they are sure to succeed, if they dont, let them blame me for it.

The absence of this great and useful lever of the social and intellectual world makes us feel, inter alia the death of the once Influential and useful Resident, (I speak of the late W. C. W. who was the Proprietor and Editor of the short lived Bonthurst Observer) who did so much good by the agency of a newspaper here.

Apologising for thus occupying your [illegible] space,

I am
Dear Mr Editor,
Yours faithfully
PHILOMATH.

Bathurst Gambia
8th Nov. 1890.

Human Pledges.

"Tell truth and Shame the Devil"

O, while you live, "Tell truth and Shame the devil"—Shakespeare.

Dear Mr. Editor—I am not accustomed to appear in print, and never thought I would, but I came across your valuable issue of the 30th Nov and observed an article with the Subject I now also use as my Caption. I know there are more ways than one of telling a story; but when one undertakes to give the public an information I think it should be aided of any thing like partiality. I was privileged to be about the vicinity of Shaingay proper, where this very case was investigated by the Chief of Shaingay, who on the hearing of the case, made special effort to observe respect shown to the complainants because of their age, but did not scruple to reprove them when he found that they were in default. I feel it will be wrong to allow this matter to rest with the impression which it carries and trust you will see the justice of these remarks when you shall have seen the nature of the case as it was disposed in the Court at Shaingay.

Satoah Mohye and her husband are involved in some country difficulties.

They were to pay a fine of a head of money, or one or other of their relations will be sold. To avert this they went to several traders to secure the fine, but failed.

As a last resource they went to the trader mentioned in the article, a young man of Sherbro extract, maternally and who was but recently set on his own footing in the world with a small supply of Goods. He did not think it prudent to give this relief at the risk of his interest, and refused lending the earnestly requested aid But according to Satoah's own Statement they earnestly begged; and the term used in the Sherbro dialect is equivalent in English to "agonizing" begging with importunity.

And to make more forcible the assurance they gave him of paying him duly the amount, they jointly and deliberate offered their son to be with the trader till the money is paid.

The trader humanely refused putting them under such trying necessity, kindly gave them their need, and told them to take back their human note of hand; depending on their honesty and assurance that the amount will duly be paid Was this wrong Mr. Editor? Time went on. Time due for payment came and nothing was paid. The trader went twice, and quietly reminded them of the circumstances and their promise; but nothing was paid. Later on, some Palm Oil was paid on account, and the kernels, (which would have been mostly prized, and repay, in some way, the trader for his humane disposition and sacrifice,) was disposed of for other purposes. Who would not be cut with such pangs of ingratefulness? 'Do unto others, as you would they should do unto you." I presume, if your correspondent had not had all things common, and was in the trader's place, I should like to see him adopting another course. After such manifestation of ingratefulness, the trader could not but take them to give the untoward note of hand, as that may incite them to a better sense of their interest, as well as his own; and without any effort they handed over their boy—a son—to the trader with whom the boy staid not as a slave, but as a servant, or menial who enjoys the same privileges with the family circle. A common policy in the country. Rather than defending this poor ignorant parents and encouraging them in the practice of ingratefulness and dishonesty, it should have been the duty of the dictionary in charge of that Station [Rembee] to investigate the matter, and teach them to have acted better. This was a grand opportunity for him to lead and instruct the poor benighted parents in the paths of truth, honesty, and grateffulness, rather than in lacing them to take advantage of the kind heartedness of disconsolate persons to their assistance under a strong, and I may say, a false impression.

Thanking you sir for inserting this. I hope to be yours always.—H.—sawa.

About Shaingay.
December 15th 1890.

To the Editor of the "Early Dawn"

Sir—Permit me kindly a short space in your paper to insert few lines on a subject of the greatest importance to me and to all engaged in merchantile affairs in this part of the world—and that is selfishness which is the baneful poison of the trade in Sherbro.

In treating on this subject 'I do not pretend to be what I am not; nor do I in the least intend to make any Ostentatious show of learning, on the contrary, and as a body, but looked upon as the refuse and the Ragamuffin and no notice is taken of him.

Fourth The merchants taking advantage of the settled state of the country are then trying to wrench their companies for [illegible] done them by the natives during the years, the great losses they had sustained formerly and the hundreds of pounds that has been wasted in the country through the war they wish to collect almost in a day; In consequence of which they instead of working laity are utilising poor Sierra Leoneans to collect their and, by giving them goods at a very high rate and commission you'll have them make payments for same to the utmost farthing. The fishmen that petty contentions Traders etc have to endeavour to see can collect a few Bushels of Palm nuts are indiscriminate especially at such a time when the Parrots is up by the natives and yet the labours of their suffering brethren are overlooked by merchants and agents.

Fifth The system of going to the yard with pieces of clothes, Tobacco, Handkerchief, and Rum &c. to cause the trade to very expensive and a great loss [illegible] is going on in many places whatever be it however great. It has a prevalence and determining tendency. Had I been on Oyster, I would have directive to suppress the same and endeavour to [illegible] would have assisted and induced the government to its progress and declare their vote against it. However I trust that my impressions will not be any handicap to my following title and. The dangerous system seems to invite to dexterous in ascending debts. Both within places to accomplish the trade. You may on, I'll have to there the completion begun.

Styrie—How can one who is up the interior transact his business to advantage when the very merchants who are giving Contracts Factory etc. sit at Sal. at the Sea. Sell to the unrefined native at most exorbitant prices. To do so, etc. etc. Government of native people for some would spend the money judiciously and not [illegible] the [illegible] loans which [illegible] ad becomes many A[illegible] the [illegible] given to the [illegible] ence [illegible] rate a better result would [illegible] the Na- To what purpose then in this work on the Na- tives? Merchants placed obstructions to Traders paths. The Natives can leave us up the In terior go down with there produce to make trade. Every facility is given unto them by merchants and agents to benefit them and yet they would take an expense whatever from us. In consequence of which many youngmen have been brought to ruin and disgrace after hard working for some 2 years or more with not a cent as salary, some men are very for off in the Interior that to take a Bushel of Palm nut down the water side they have to pay one shilling each beside canoe men from 4 shillings and upwards each person. Yet the merchant would not look at these enormous expense but hankering about filling their coffers unlawfully and against conscience. Oh unlawful things Gold: Tawhat dost thou drive mortal minds?

Seventh. The adage fools make lawyers rich so applicable to the merchants who give salt etc to natives for nothing as it were who'll take it into some part of the country and sell same for three pounds according to their country prices i. e. for a bag of salt which they placed in five sacks they get a slave. These articles Gin, Salt, Tobacco and matchets should be have standing prices with all the merchants and there should be unity among them to keep to the rules, and allowance should be made for contractor and Factore etc. We poor Sierra Leoneans are those instruments for the merchants gratify ing their insatiable thirst for gold.

Eighth This state of things be deeply looked into. The merchant and Agents strives to acquire the spirit of unity love peace, longsuffering, and temperance to kill that deadly poison of covetousness that is in them and cease from molesting one another. Brethren as ye have therefore opportunity do good unto all mensand especially to those who are of the household of faith. Strive to do good, for God is the judge. He puteth down one, setteth up another. We are your brethren Europeans are not so. They have strict discipline and love of themselves. I think it is recommendable that your strive this is to accomplish the bright example set by them. There should be a meeting at time for the result toward your fellow Brethren. Selves gathered by vanity shall be diminished.

I speak from experience. For I know a man of a good age who had been for Eighteen months working hard under the Employ of one of the Firms in this River for very paltry sum—and who has not had one farthing of the balanceies his favour. How sad it is to see a man with wife and childrens left to be tossing here and there like a Weather Cock—Brethern I appeal to your conscious. These things ought not to be. Pause and think for a moment many of you have Sons and Daughter how would you have Sons and Daughter how would you have Sons and daughter how would you like after they had working hard in swampy like after they had working hard in swampy country as this which the Mendi called Gerehen where if one is not careful, will contract a fatal cold that will thwart the skill of any Physician that such one to be sent away without payment ah, we see today and cannot tell what the morrow may bring forth.

VERITAS.

The Early Dawn

BONTHE, DECEMBER 31, 1890.

REV. J. A. EVANS—EDITOR.

[EDITORIAL.]

A Distinguished Arrival.—From the United States, as we have been informed, Bishop E. B Kephart D. D, L. L. D, of the U B Church of America has recently arrived, on this Coast, on a visitation to the U B Church Missions fully advised of their condition he will preside at the Annual Conference to be held at Rotefunk in next month Jan. and it is confidently expected that a new impetus will be given to the U B Missions by an improvement finances and increase facilities for extending operations toward the Interior.

The Holiday Season.—It fully upon us, the Xmas gestings are still heard on our streets, but some how from the very first they have been to say the least of it far more tame than usual, not because of the absence of joy among the people but in a quiet way every one seems to share in the general rejoicings of the Season, and while there has not been so much begging for Christmas as is usual yet there have been a few tokens of the season's blessings here and there as well as a limitted number of cordial salutation passed between friends. We are glad note that we have seen so far little or no smuking and no one drunk this is certainly remarkable for Xmas. And it is to be hoped that the whole Season may be marked by the same sooriety and Order. At this writing the Amusements are still to come for the most part. Of the past we only have to Note the Cricket Match Xmas Day between the Arrow and the Southeastern Clubs of this place and a Pic Nic at our Parkinson's Farm given by the Young Ladies Blue Rose Club each of which were grand but as ever will be the case the Ladies excelled in their Pic Nic which was grand indeed. For the coming days an At Home is announced by the Commandant and Captain Soden for Jan. 1st.

Then large posters tell us that the Union Reserve Club of Shantigny will hold fourth in entertainments of a Rare kind for three evenings begining Tuesday 6th January.

Death of Mr G A Taylor.—which sad event took place in the City of Freetown on the 19th instant falls heavily on the hearts of many of this community as Mr Taylor was what we should style a self made man who by dint of persevering effort had been able to raise himself from want and obscurity to a position of affluence and esteem and as a citizen of this place was among the first to erect a respectable building a dwelling and a home; so that with what he was since done is worthy to be reckoned among these foremost in add ing to the Meterial prosperity of our Town. Mr Taylor seems, withal, to have been a man of benevolence, as we understand that the fine Organ now in use in the West-ban Chapl, and more than once he was heard of his liberal contri- butions to the aid of that society, hence it is with regret that we record his death, but we sympathize with the bereaved trusting their loss has been his eternal gain.

Falconbridge's Letter.

We come now toward the close of Mrs Falconbridge's long letter of may 1 1791 in which after noting the death of her brother-in-law as an account of which we gave in our last issue, she proceeds with some remarks on the season which correspond well with what was even common twenty years ago, but has considerably changed in the last decade, however, let us give Mrs Falconbridge's own words whichhere as follows:— "The Tornados, or Thunder squalls, which set in at this season "about the month of may, "preceding the continued rains, have commence some time, the vivid intense lightning from dismal black clouds, make them awfully beautiful; they are accompanied with violent winds and heavy rains succeeded by such an abominable stench from the earth and disgreeable hissings and noises from frogs, crickets, and many other insects which the rains draw out.

"Mesquetos also are growing so troublesome as to oblige us to keep continued smokes in and about the house. I have not seen any serpents, but am told there are abundance and some very venomous. Here are a vast variety of beautiful lizards constantly about the door catching flies; and I have often seen the changeable camelion. We have not yet been troubled by any of the ferocious wild beasts which inhabit the mountains of Sierra Leone; but I understand, there are numbers, both Tigers and Lions, besides divers others kinds. I have now in spirits an uncommon insect which was caught here a day or two ago in the act of stinging a Lascar, [one of the settlers]; it is rather larger than a locust covered with tortoise coloured shell, has forceps like a lobster, and his transparent wings like a fly; the bite has thrown the poor lascar into a dreadful fever, which I fear will carry him off. I have three monkies, one a very handsome Capuchin, with a sulphur colored beard of great length Na- ture seems to have been astonishingly profuse in taste and prodigality here, both of vegetable and animal production, for I cannot stir out without admiring the beauties or deformities of her creation. Everything I see is entirely new to me, and notwithstanding the eye quickly becomes familiarized and even satisfied with views which we are daily accustomed to; yet there is such a variety here as to afford a continual feast to the sight. To be frank if I had a little agreeable society, a few comforts and could ensure the some good health I have hitherto enjoyed, I should not be against spending some years of my life in Africa; but wanting those sweeteners of life I certainly wish to return to where they may be had. When that will be is not in my power at present to tell, but if I have a chance of writing to you again, I then may be able to accept an honest farewell from your affectionate, etc etc."

Thus ends Mrs Falconbridge's fourth letter concludes. It may be readily perceived that Mrs Falconbridge was a person of no ordinary mind, and that Africa was was then indeed a dark continent a land of peculiarly intarest seems and that with all that was objectionable in or about it yet possessed attractions to even a European lady of remarkable taste and discretion.

COMMUNICATIONS.

The Anniversary of the Wesleyan Sabbath School Bonthe

The Anniversary of the above Institution was held at Bonthe on the 21st and 22nd Dec.

On Sunday the 21st. two special Sermons were preached in their church.

At 11 a. m. the pulpit was occupied by the Rev. S. B. Morrison pastor of Aserro Station (U. B. C.) who selected his discourse from Eccl. 11 6.

The sermon was an elaborate one and was well delivered by preacher who did not fail to impress upon the minds of his large audience the duties and responsibilities attached to each individual members of the church of Christ militant here on earth and that it is our bounden duty to set a bright example to our children from which they should copy so that they might be fit for usefulness in after life: He instanced as examples the holy life of our Lord of Josiah and also of Timothy.

His text was divided into three parts.

1 The necessity of doing good
2 The seed which is scattered.
3 The mode of cultivating the seed.

In the afternoon of the same day the Church was crowded.

Mr. R May opened the meeting by announcing Hymn 3 from Hymns selected for the occasion after which he selected for a Lesson Eccl 12 and then engaged in prayer.

Mr C. A. E. Campbell was introduced to the meeting as the speaker for the occasion.

This gentleman immediately took his stand and delivered and elaborate address which was divided into three parts

1 To Parents
2 To Teachers.
3 To Scholars.

Mr. Campbell kept the audience spell bound with his clear and distinct voice and I can assure you that both who were in the Church and in the temporary shade erected near the Church as not regret having thus spent their afternoon.

In the evening of the same day Mr. J. Macauley Catechist of Mo'Moseley preached an excelent and affecting sermon to a crowded congregation. The gentleman in his usual way has given general satisfaction to all who were privileged to hear him.

In continuation of the above anniversary a public meeting was held on Monday the 22nd at 7 p. m.

The meeting was opened by the Rev. J. C. Thomas when hymn 1. was sung by the Choirs after which he read a lesson selected from the 144 psalm

On the platform were Revs. J. C. Thomas J. A. Evans and S. B. Morrison Messrs J. Macauley (Catechist of Mo-Moseley) H. B. Williams Chairman agent Liverpool Factory. J. D. Macauley J. N. Crown, C. A. E. Campbell (Head master Mendi Mission School) J. A Beale] York Island, J R. may, W. B. Coker, and T. K. Norman. After singing hymn 18 the pastor engaged in prayer after which H. B. Williams Esq was introduced as the chairman for the evening.

The Chairman on rising said that it afforded him the greatest of pleasure to be present on the occasion and to occupy the chair. He said that he regarded it as a call from the Great Master in Heaven whom he was bound to obey for if he was called by his earthly master to attend any of his business he would be willing to go. So also was he moved in answer to the invitation sent him by the managing committee of this Institution. He said that every right minded man should enlist themselves for Sunday School work. He then recounted the origin of Sunday School by Robert Raikes the founder

He said also that many go to Sabbath School for Tantalizing purposes which ought not to be the case.

He encourages all to attend the Sabbath School.

Upon the Chairman resuming his seat the Secretary Mr S L Forde was called upon to read the Report which was very encouragesng for it shows an increase of 32 members who enrolled their names during the past year.

The report record with deep regret the death of one of their young and promising member, who was removed to join the who surrounded the throne of God in heaven, that little boy's name his Bob Davis whose death was reported in the "Early Dawn" of the 15th June 1890. After reading the Report the gentlemen addressed the meeting.

Messrs J. N. Crown, T. K. Norman, J. D. Macauley, W. B. Coker, and J. A. Beale.

1 A vote of thanks to Mr Williams the organist was moved by Mr R. May and seconded by Mr S L Forde the Secretary of the School.

2 Vote of thanks to the Rev S. B. Morrison and Mr J. W Macauley preaching the Sermons and Mr Crown for addressing the meeting on the 21st the Rev Mr Morrison replied in a few appropriate words

3 Vote to the Chairman by Rev J. C. Thomas which was received

Much praise is due to the Secretary and Manager for the success made out during the past year

This interesting meeting came to a close at 9 15

Communicated.

Bonthe Dec. 24 1890.

St. Matthews Day School Bonthe

An Entertainment consisting of Dialogues, Recitations, Songs, etc, was held at their School Room on Tuesday the 23rd inst. Commandant Moseley who was pressed from official duties to preside on the occasion was absent, Mr. Pasha the Catechist therefore occupied the Chair.

Several selected pieces were rendered by the pupils of the School and excedent songs were sung by the little ladies to the satisfaction of all present in the meeting which was largely attended, although entrance were effected by the payment of a 1s and 6d tickets yet the pleasure of hearing the little ladies and gentlemen performing so admirably their different tasks, sufficiently compensates. This being over Prizes were given to the following Scripture History—1st. Prize William F. Macaulay 2nd Nicholas Clarke. English History STD. V 1st. Prize Wm. F. Macauley 2nd. Prize Joseph William. English History STD IV 1st. Prize Mary O. Coker 2nd Prize Nancy Macaulay. Arithmetic STD. V 1st. Prize William F. Macauley 2nd. " Daniel Johnson. STD IV 1st. Prize Janet Nelson 2nd Prize Harry Hondor. STD. V Ja for 1st. Prize Sylvester Collier. 2nd Prize Valentina C. Pasha. STD. III Senior 1st. Prize David John 2nd. Prize Fanny Jackson 3rd Prize Ellen Macarthy. STD. III Junior. 1st. Prize Marie Sambah 2nd. Prize Benjamin During STD. II 1st. Prize Herbert Williams. 2nd. Prize Francis John son 3rd. Prize Beatrice Reffell. STD. I 1st. Prize Jacob Cole 2nd Prize Charles Thomas 3rd Prize Fanny Collier. English Grammar—STD. V 1st. Prize William F. Macauley. 2nd. Prize Valentina C. Pasha. STD. IV 1st. Prize Nicholas Clarke. 2nd Prize Leonard Johnson. STD. III Junior 1st. Prize John Macauley. 2nd. Prize Mary John Georgraphy—STD. V 1st. Prize William F. Macauley. 2nd Prize Daniel Johnson. STD. IV 1st. Prize Joanna Cowan. 2nd. Prize Harry Hondor. STD. III Senior 1st. Prize Moses Sawyerr. 2nd. Prize David John. STD. II Junior 1st. Prize Charles Pratt. 2nd. Prize John Macauley.

Special Prize for General good Conduct—

(Boys)—William F. Macauley.

(Girls)—Valentina C. Pasha.

The last two are given by Mr. Isaac M. Peters.

The First Four viz.—1st & 2nd. for Scripture 1st. & 2nd for English History by Mr. E. W. Parkinson.

CHILDREN'S COLUMN.

BATHURST GAMBIA

(Continued)

The people, moreover, who were of the Mandingo tribe, and rigid Mohammedans, would not attend to the instructions, and they were much discouraged. Under these circumstances it resolved to remove to St. Mary's, where they could obtain medical aid in sickness, and where the natives being chiefly Islams, were more docile and willing to be taught. Here the missionaries had occasion to marvel at the ways they came to the Country, and henceforth St. Mary became the headquarters of the Gambia Mission.

The advantages of this change of Station were soon manifest, and from the very first the blessing of God rested upon the labours of the missionaries. Several of the natives were brought to a saving knowledge of the truth and united in Church fellowship at an early period, whilst at the same time a school was established for the instruction of the rising generation under the most promising circumstances. Before the end of the first year, however, the health of Mr. Baker having completely failed he embarked for the West Indies by the direction of the missionary committee, and the Rev. William Bell was sent out from England to take his place. He arrived at St. Mary's, January 28th, 1822; but, although apparently well adapted for the work his course was soon run. He was cut down by fever on March 15th, forty-six days after his arrival, the first of a long list of devoted labourers who afterwards fell a sacrifice to the climate, in connection with the Gambia mission.

Mr. Morgan being thus left at St. Mary's alone, the brethren at Sierra Leone sent the Rev. G. Lane to his assistance. This arrangement, although well meant, was not of much advantage to the Gambia Station, as the amiable young man was soon entirely disabled by affliction and obliged to return to Sierra Leone where he died soon afterwards. On hearing of the loss which the mission at the Gambia had thus sustained, the committee sent out the Rev. Robert and Mrs. Hawkins, who arrived at St. Mary's on April 14th 1824. The mission was now put on a more permanent footing, a substantial stone building being erected for its use, with a large room for a school and religious services on the ground-floor, and accommodation for the residence of the mission family above. Mr. Morgan having had repeated attacks of fever returned to England soon afterwards, and when Mr. and Mrs. Hawkins had passed safely through their 'seasoning,' they continued their work with a fair measure of success.

The mission school began to present a very pleasing appearance, the girls' department having for the first time the kind supervision of a Christian white lady, which was a great advantage. Mr. and Mrs. Hawkins did good service for the Gambia mission during the period of their appointment, and they were spared to return to England in the month of May 1827, being relieved by the arrival of the Rev. Samuel Dawson, who had just lost his wife at Sierra Leone. Mr. Dawson laboured under great disadvantages in consequence of his painful bereavement, there being now no suitable person to attend to the girls in the mission school, and to exercise that motherly influence among the people which belongs especially to the missionary's wife.

He did his best, however, under the circumstances, and was spared to return to England in the latter part of 1828, having been relieved by the arrival in November 18th, of the Rev. Richard and Mrs. Marshall

The station being once more avoured with the genial influence of a European lady as well as with the earnest services of a faithful missionary, a cheering measure prosperity was realised. In the order of Divine providence this was of comparatively short continuance, however After labouring successfully for about a year and nine months. Mr. Marshall was suddenly cut down malignant fever on August 19th 1830. Two days after her affective bereavement Mrs. Marshall embarked for England with her infant son and an African nurse.

She arrived in Bristol in a state of great mental and bodily weakness; and being seized with convulsions she expired about forty-eight hours after she had landed, before she had an opportunity of seeing any of her friends who resided in the north Thus was the Gambia Mission left without a missionary, and the settlement without a minister of any denomination. It was at this crisis and under these circumstances that the Rev. William Moister was appointed to occupy the vacant station at the Gambia. Embarking with his devoted wife in the early part of the year 1831 they arrived at St. Mary's on Thursday, March 10th, where they met with a most cordial reception from the few native converts who had been left in the interim as sheep without a shepherd.

FLORA,
of Mandu.

To be Continued

LOCAL ITEMS

Dec. 13—s. s. "Footah" for Freetown with Rev. A. C. Strong and wife also Mrs. W. A. John and others.

15—Formoso for Freetown with general cargo of African Produce.

T. J. Aldridge Esq. arrived from England.

17—Countess for Freetown with major Moore sick.

18 "Susu" from Freetown with mails and following passengers. Rev. O. Moore M. H. Davis Esq. "Editor of the Watchman" Master Prince Coker Parkinson, Macauley and Mrs. Newgent Davis.

A special Missionary meeting was held at St. Matthews Church Mr. Pasha delivered an address.

20—Susu for Freetown with mails and passengers Mrs. N. S. Thomas Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Williams and children Mrs. Dan. Johnson

Countess from Freetown with mails and passengers among whom was Mrs. W. A. John and daughter who comes on a vacation visit from the Roman Catholic School.

Mr. G. A. Taylor late a trader of Sherbro died at Freetown on the 19th inst.

22—Countess for Freetown with Captain Le Power sick and also Mr. M. J. Rocke police Clerk who was sick some time ago.

24—"Formoso" from Freetown.

"Susu" for Freetown

27—"Formoso" for Freetown with mails. Mrs. G. P. Wilhelm and I. M. Peters are passengers.

ting meeting come to a

Commenced

1890.

ay School
Bonthe

ertainment consist-logues, Recitations, was held at their m on Tuesday the Commandant Mose-is pressed from offi-
to preside on the
is absent, Mr. Pasha
t the chair occupie

ected pieces were by the pupils of the excellent songs
by the little lads action of class pr meeting which was nded, although no
e effected by the
a 1s and 6d tickets sure of hearing the and gentlemen pe-
admirably their dif
s, sufficiently com-his being over Priz en to the following

History—1st. Prize
Macaulay 2nd "
Clarke. English His
1st. Prize Wm. F.
2nd. Prize Joseph
English History STD
ize Mary C. Coker
Nancy Macaulay.
STD. V 1st. Prize
Macauley 2nd "
nson. STD. IV 1st.
t Nelson 2nd Prize
dor. STD. V Ju ior
lvester Collier. 2nd
ntina C. Pasha STD.
st. Prize David John Fanny Jackson 3rd
a Macarthy. STD. III
Prize Marie Sambah
Benjamin During
Prize Herbert Wil
Prize Francis John ize Beatrice Reffell.
ize Jacob Cole 2nd es Thomas 3rd Prize
ier. English Gram
V 1st. Prize Wilacauley. 2nd. Prize
. Pasha. STD. IV 1st.
oles Clarke. 2nd
rd Johnson. STD. III Prize John Macaul-ize Mary John
y—STD. V 1st. Prize
Macauley 2nd Prize
nson. STD. IV 1st.
a Cowan 2nd. Prize
dor. STD. III Senior
Moses Sawyerr, 2nd.
John. STD. II Juni
e Clarkson Pratt. 2nd.
Macauley.
ize for General good

(Boys)—William F. Macauley.

(Girls)—Valentina C. Pasha.

The last two are given by Mr. Isaac M. Peters.

The First Four viz.—1st & 2nd for Scripture 1st & 2nd for English History by Mr. E. W. Parkinson.

CHILDREN'S COLUMN.

BATHURST GAMBIA

(Continued.)

The people, moreover, who were of the Mandingo tribe, and rigid Mohammedans, would not attend to their instructions, and they were much discouraged. Under these circumstances it was resolved to remove to St. Mary's, where they could obtain medical aid in sickness, and where the natives being chiefly Jolofs, were more docile and willing to be taught. Here the missionaries had occasion to be grateful ever since they came to the Country, and henceforth St. Mary became the headquarters of the Gambia Mission.

The advantages of this change of Station were soon manifest, and from the very first the blessing of God rested upon the labours of the missionaries. Several of the natives were brought to a saving knowledge of the truth and united in Church fellowship at an early period, whilst at the same time a school was established for the instruction of the rising generation under the most promising circumstances. Before the end of the first year, however, the health of Mr. Baker having completely failed he embarked for the West Indies by the direction of the missionary committee, and the Rev. William Bell was sent out from England to take his place. He arrived at St. Mary's, January 28th, 1822; but, although apparently well adapted for the work his course was soon run. He was cut down by fever on March 15th, forty-six days after his arrival, the first of a long list of devoted labourers who afterwards fell a sacrifice to the climate, in connection with the Gambia mission.

Mr. Morgan being thus left at St. Mary's alone, the brethren at Seirra Leone sent the Rev. G. Lane to his assistance. This arrangement, although well meant, was not of much advantage to the Gambia Station, as the amiable young man was soon entirely disabled by affliction and obliged to return to Sierra Leone where he died soon afterwards. On hearing of the loss which the mission at the Gambia had thus sustained, the committee sent out the Rev. Robert and Mrs. Hawkins, who arrived at St. Mary's on April 14th, 1824. The mission was now put on a more permanent footing, a substantial stone building being erected for its use, with a large room for a school and religious services on the ground-floor, and accommodation for the residence of the mission family above. Mr. Morgan having had repeated attacks of fever returned to England soon afterwards, and when Mr. and Mrs. Hawkins had passed safely through their 'seasoning,' they continued their work with a fair measure of success.

The mission school began to present a very pleasing appearance, the girls' department having for the first time the kind supervision of a Christian white lady, which was a great advantage. Mr. and Mrs. Hawkins did good service for the Gambia mission during the period of their appointment, and they were spared to return to England in the month of May 1827, being relieved by the arrival of the Rev. Samuel Dauson, who had just lost his wife at Sierra Leone. Mr. Dauson laboured under great disadvantage in consequence of his painful bereavement, there being now no suitable person to attend to the girls in the mission school, and to exercise that motherly influence among the people which belongs especially to the missionary's wife.

He did his best, however, under the circumstances, and was spared to return to England in the latter part of 1828, having been relieved by the arrival on November 18th, of the Rev. Richard and Mrs. Marshall.

The station being once more favoured with the genial influence of a European lady as well as with the earnest services of a faithful missionary, a cheering measure prosperity was realised. In the order of Divine providence this was of comparatively short continuance, however After labouring successfully for about a year and nine months, Mr. Marshall was suddenly cut down malignant fever on August 19th 1830. Two days after her affective bereavement Mrs. Marshall embarked for England with her infant son and an African nurse.

She arrived in Bristol in a state of great mental and bodily weakness; and being seized with convulsions she expired about forty-eight hours after she landed, before she had an opportunity of seeing any of her friends who resided in the north. Thus was the Gambia Mission left without a missionary, and the settlement without a minister of any denomination. It was at this crisis and under these circumstances that the Rev. William Moister was appointed to occupy the vacant station at the Gambia. Embarking with his devoted wife in the early part of the year 1831 they arrived at St. Mary's on Thursday, March 10th, where they met with a most cordial reception from the few native converts who had been left in the interim as sheep without a shepherd.

FLORA,
of Mando.

To be Continued

LOCAL ITEMS

Dec. 13—s. s. "Footah" for Freetown with Rev. A. C. Strong and wife also Mrs. W. A. John and others.

15—Formoso for Freetown with general cargo of African Produce.

T. J. Aldridge Esq. arrived from England.

17—Countess for Freetown with major Moore sick.

18 "Susu" from Freetown with mails and following passengers. Rev. O. Moore M. H. Davis Esq. "Editor of the Watchman" Master Prince Coker Parkinson, Macauley and Mrs. Newgent Davis.

A special Missionary meeting was held at St. Matthews Church Mr. Pasha delivered an address.

20—Susu for Freetown with mails and passengers Mrs. N. S. Thomas Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Williams and children Mrs. Dan. Johnson

Countess from Freetown with mails and passengers among whom was Mrs. W. A. John and daughter who comes on a vacation visit from the Roman Catholic School.

Mr. G. A. Taylor late a trader of Sherbro died at Freetown on the 19th inst.

22—Countess for Freetown with Captain Le Power sick and also Mr. M. J. Rocke police Clerk who was sick some time ago.

24—"Formoso" from Freetown.

"Susu" for Freetown

27—"Formoso" for Freetown with mails. Messrs G. P. Wilhelm and L. M. Peters are passengers.

CORRESPONDENCE.

A Bundoo Woman's Trouble.

She was the leader in the locality where she lived of the Bundoo Society, and had a Devil of course, to carry out the party of the ceremonies. Some years an Interpret had been visiting the place and preaching the Gospel of the Kingdom, which came out de vils. As to just what head this woman appeared to pay to the preacher's words, I cannot find out but so little that no note was seemingly taken of it; until after several years a Chapel was commenced in the place and very close to the woman's House. She became alarmed for her own and her devil's safety; she came to me in tears and told me her story and trouble, and asked if she must go away, to which I replied she need not, but remain and seek the friendship of God whose house was there in building after her's, the next day advice and is now among the most regular attendants at divine service and gave the Saviour's bread to many of God's flock.

SELECTION

Found By Fire.

BY HELEN E. BROWN.

Ebenezer Parsons, commonly called Eben had taken advantage of a snowy day in the midst of the hoeing season to take his horse to the village blacksmith's to be shod, and also so some tools to be repaired or sharpened, and was now on his homeward journey. The three-rogged path were into ruts between which the young drivers grass encouraged, ran for some distance a long side of the pine-tree vine or bush-hidden cart-track that separated the Parsons land from that of the Buckleys, till it reached a spring whose almost ice-cold water he had just recently cut from a generally hillside, and ran down in a slender purling stream across the road, lost in the Blacksmith swamp. From the spring the farm-road turned to the left, and up the hillside between two of Eben's own fields to the low, red-roofed farm-house, old in days as we count age in this country, but strangers from many new houses and its many picturesque beauties to wide-branching elms, and half hidden in a wealth of roses and leafage of that tiful trilitarian, the hop-

The rain had almost and Eben did not in the mind the light drizzle had wetted his red flann until it clung tightly to h firmly knit and graceful Comfortably riding alon Peg with one hand the h neath him, and with th reading or rather pretet head, the second hand would have follow ed h so well without a touc Parsons was in special spirits, for he had sent and heard all the n local news, and exchan plinions on the prospect crops and condition of t with his brother farm come to the conclusion the whole his own was likely to prove as one as any of the oth had perceived with sat as he rode by it, th Buckley's corn was a promising than his ow hoes planted on a lo land too cold and wet during this cool, wet "Yes," said Eben self, turning in the se ving his sinewy bro on the sleek back of pied gray he was ridi he scrutinized the cor 's yes, Jason's corn's m ter and minchin.' he' put his'n on the up did mine. Git up Bal lor! What ye standin nippin's ' if ye had' grass in a week!"

So, content with hi his circumstances, an as he thought of the that he would surely he reached his own his comely wife and ed children, he went ing a stave or singing at he came to the t in the road by the ol

The sight of the s accent and smith child's happy face brought a frown u some Eben's gun-bre tures, for it had bee just a dispute for si more between the Jason Buckley and The Parsonses asser the lifetime of Gran song—who was a m ed, meek sort of ma in the church and dent of the Sunday man 'altogether to service,' as Eben ering had undoubt ed to the Parsons man Buckley, w

CORRESPONDENCE.

A Bundoo Woman's Trouble.

She was the leader in the locality where she lived of the Bundoo Society, and had a Devil of course, to carry out her party of the ceromonies; for some years an Itinerant had been visiting the place and preaching the Gospel of the Kingdom, which casts out devils. As to just what heed this woman appeared to pay to the preachers words, I cannot findout but so little that no note was seemingly taken of it; until after several years a Chapel was commenced in the place and very close to this woman's House. She became alarmed for her own and her devil's safety; she came to me in tears and told me her story and trouble, and asked if she must go away, to which I replied she need not, but remain and seek the friendship of God whose house was then in building near her's. She took my advice and is now among the most regular attendants at divine service and pays the Strictest heed to word of God.

BERT.

SELECTION.

From the million

Fused By Fire.

BY HELEN E. SMITH.

Ebeneser Parsons, commonly called Eben had taken advantage of a stormy day in the midst of the haying season to take his horse to the village blacksmith to be shod, and also some tools to be repaired or sharpened, and was now on his home. The farm-wagon path worn into ruts between which the young clover grew courageously, ran for some distance along side of the picturesque vine or bush-hidden rail-fence that separated the Parsons land from that of the Buckleys, till it reached a spring whose almost icy-cold water bubbled joyously out from a gravelly hill-side, and ran down in a slender purling stream until it became lost in the Hitchcock swam. From the spring the farm-road turned to the left, and up the hill-side between two of Eben's own fields to the low, road-roof farm-house, old in days as we count age in this country, but stronger than many new houses and far more picturesque beneath its wide-branching elms, and half hidden in a wealth of lilacs, syringas, snowballs, June roses and leafage of that beautiful utilitarian, the hop-vine.

The rain had almost ceased, and Eben did not in the least mind the light drizzle which had wetted his red flannel shirt until it clung tightly to his lithe, firmly knit and graceful figure. Comfortably riding along, guiding with one hand the horse beneath him, and with the other leading or rather pretending to lead, the second horse which would have followed his mate as well without a touch. Mr. Parsons was in specially good spirits, for he had a day of rest and heard all the neighborhood news, and exchanged opinions on the prospects of the crops and condition of the herds with his brother farmers, and come to the conclusion that on the whole his own business was likely to prove as prosperous as any of the others, and had perceived with satisfaction as he rode by it, that Jason Buckley's corn was a little less promising than his own, having been planted on a low but of land too cold and wet for corn during this cool, wet summer.

"Yes," said Eben to himself, turning in the saddle and resting his sinewy brown hand on the sleek back of the dappled gray he was riding, while he scrutinized the corn field—'yes, Jason's corn's mighty yeller and minchin.' He'd orter ha' put his'n on the upland, as I did mine. Git up Baler, old feller! What ye standin' here for nippin's' if ye had'nt tasted grass in a week!'

So, content with himself and his circumstances, and smiling as he thought of the welcome that he would surely get when he reached his own door from his comely wife and glad hearted children, he went on whistling a stave or singing a catch until he came to the turn in the in the road by the old spring.

The sight of the spring so innocent and smiling, like a child's happy face, always brought a frown upon handsome Eben's sun-browned features, for it had been the subject o dispute for sixty years or more between the ancestors of Jason Buckley and his own. The Parsonses asserted that in the lifetime of Grandfather Parsons—who was a mild-tempered, meek sort of man, a deacon in the church and superintendent of the Sunday School, a man 'altogether too good for service,' as Eben said—the spring had undoubtedly belonged to the Parsonses. But old man Buckley, who held in slight esteem his neighbor's business qualities, and thought the Lord ought not to have trusted him with the care of so much of this world's goods, had set covetous eyes upon the flowing and almost ice-cold spring, so useful a place to stand the churn to make the butter firm in hot weather, and so handy to water the cattle in winter, when the ponds and streams were frozen over, and had so crooked his rail-fence around it that it now lay within the Buckley enclosure.

Deacon Parsons, holding literally to the admonition to give the coat where the cloak has been taken, refused to take any steps for the recovery of the spring, until at last old man Buckley held it by right of possession.

The son of Deacon Parsons, who succeeded to the inheritance of the father, had proved to be of different stuff; was by no means a meek sort of man, in fact. Having his father's strong ideas of right and wrong, but none of his humility, and being firmly assured that eternal justice always lay on whatever side of any controversy he had taken his stand, he had not hesitated to make it warm on all possible occasions for old man Buckley's son George, who had bought the rights of the other heirs to his father's estate, and held himself entitled to the spring which he had been taught, or had taught himself, to believe had never belonged to the Parsonses.

'If old Deak Parsons had had a right to the spring, why'n thunder didn't he make the right good when he had a chance?' said George Buckley. And so the controversy had gone on during this second generation, and was now continued in the third in the person of handsome Eben Parsons, and the stout-hearted and strong-fisted Jason Buckley.

Arrived at the spring, Eben had stopped and let down a link of the fence to allow his horse to drink there, as he always made a point of doing upon every occasion when his enemy was not in sight. To have done this in the presence of Jason, would have been most unwise for the latter would have sued his neighbor for trespass, though he could not probably have recovered more than one cent damages. Eben had a wholesome distrust of the law, and was in nowise minded to give his substance into the hands of lawyers.

Close by the spring, but just within the boundary of the Parsons land, and in an elbow of the rail fence, stood a fine elm tree of a truly 'remarkable size for its age,' as Eben said, with honest pride, for he had planted the tree in his boyhood, and he was not yet forty-five.

Eben had allowed the horse to drink, and had slaked his own thirst at the spring which he had felt to be rightly his own, and had mounted his horse again leaving the fence down, by way of a mute assertion of his rights, before he noticed that around the beautiful elm tree just above its roots was a broad white band, where an ax applied by a practiced hand had removed the bark, completely girdling the tree. Hence the wrathful, astonished question, addressed apparently to the horse, for no other animate thing was in sight, 'Who's done this?'

Not much need was there for inquiry. Who could have done so mean a thing but Jason Buckley? And good-humored Eben, now as angry as any man well could be, astonished his horses by the whip and a style of language that they had never heard before.

It was not discovered precisely who had done the cowardly deed, but Jason Buckley's eldest son had been seen with an ax in hand very near the spring which was still shaded by the magnificent elm, so beautiful in its full green leafage, though doomed to last but this short summer through; as we sometimes see a fair and stately woman, gracious and lovely in the beauty which her physicians know, has but a few months more of life.

Hard enough had been the feelings between the two families before, but from this July evening could be dated the beginning of lawsuits, which, instituted or continued on one pretext or another, fattened the village practitioners for several years, and bade fair to endure as long as the two families should be able, by hard and incessant toil to make money enough to pay for the costly luxury of legal fights.

THE
Early Dawn
PRINTING OFFICE
PLAIN ARTISTIC and FANCY JOB WORK
EXECUTED AT
SHORT NOTICE
ENQUIRE OF
E. Samuel Thomas
PRINTER.

Cns 1 2 3 4 5
Ins. BRITISH MUSEUM 2

THE EARLY DAWN.

"The Morning Light Is Breaking, The Darkness Disappears"

VOL. VIII. BONTHE, SHERBRO, WEST AFRICA, JULY 16, 1891. No. 1.

The 'Early Dawn'

Published Semi-Monthly at Bonthe, Sherbro. Under the Auspices of the Board of Missions of the United Brethren In Christ

Rev. J. A. Evans, Editor and Publisher, Bonthe, Sherbro, West Africa.

AGENTS.

United states—Revs. B. F. Booth and W. McKee, Dayton, Ohio; Wm. J. Davis, Bush, Ohio; Rev. D. E. Pittenger, Williamsburg, Ohio; J. M. Stoner, Mechanicsburg, Pa.; Rev. G. W. Arnold, Elder, Ohio.

[illegible] Rev. J. [illegible] Methodist, Freer Conference, Rev. [illegible] and Mr. E. A. Lewis, Freetown, Sierra Leone; Rev. James Hepburn, Marshall, Liberia; Mr. Moses S. Boyle, Liberia.

TERMS.

One Year by mail,	£0	6 0
Delivered in Bonthe,	0	5 0
Half yearly by mail,	0	3 0
Ditto, delivered in Bonthe,	0	2 6

ADDRESS

Delivered by Mr. C. A. E. Caprette, to Scholars, Parents, and Teachers, of the Wesleyan Methodist Sabbath-school, Bonthe, on the 21st December 90.

Dear Friends—I will not take up the time in preliminaries by way of preface, but enter at once upon the duty for which the honorable Committee and Officials of this Sabbath School have requested my humble services, and only pray, that in my so doing, I may in some way gratify their expectations. I am desired to give an address to the Scholars, Parents, and Teachers of this Sabbath School. The order of subjects (if I may be allowed to use such a term) seem naturally enough, and will therefore take them as they come. To the Scholars then, I am now to speak. And here I divide into two classes the young and old. Now to my dear young friends who are now on my right and on my left, and in front of me, I see that you are not all of the same age, nor of the same height, and could not read or hear and know big words. So I will try and speak as plain as I can, so that the small boys and girls, and some of the big ones too can hear and know what I say. Each child who now sits near, and those me, ought to know why you come to the Sunday School from time to time. For if you dont know this, it would be of no use for you to come. You all know that the day you come to this School is the Lord's day, and it is the day that His friends meet him in His House. So that the Lord too, comes in that day to meet with his friends, and hears them, when they sing and when they pray. Each child, boy or girl should try to be the friend of God and try to love him for God loves them. We know that God Loves them, for we learn this from his word, and as you come to School you learn to read from his word and hear some one tell of that great love to us, that he gave his Son to die on the Cross for our sins. Each child here is born in sin and will die. As you all know for I know that some [illegible] friends who sat with you like this last year are now no more to be seen or found. They are dead and gone to be where God is and we will one day die, and go too, and trust we shall meet them and dwell with God too. In the word of God, there is a place which says "And the street of the city shall be full of boys and girls playing in the streets thereof." If some of you can read, you will see this in Zech: 8 chap. 5 v. Every child feels glad, when they can play in the street. They run, and jump, and laugh, and sing; and if some one calls them from such plays they feel sorry. So when I read of these boys and girls, I think of all the good boys and girls that have died, and will die, and we should feel glad, that we have a home to meet them all one day. But to be where God is, and where good boys and girls are, we must try to love and serve God, and be good. Boys and girls too. You dont want me to tell you what it is to be good for you all know good boys, or good girls, from bad ones. But let us try and see what it is to be good. As I have said, to be good is to love God, and serve Him. But good boys and girls will not play, or talk or sleep, when they go to Church, or come to School. They will not laugh, or use ill words and will not stop to play, when they are sent. Good boys and girls are kind, and will try to make their brothers, and their sisters, and friends happy. But God has been good to all and gives us life and all things we have for our use, so we must try to love and thank him at all times, and try to speak of him too and of his great love to men. All should try to speak of God and of Christ his son, and thank him for all he has done for you. For as you sit now, and are glad, there are some boys and girls, who do not know that there is a God, who loves and takes care of them. They have no Schools to go to, and learn and no one to tell them to try and be good. You must pray for them, and ask God to teach them in his own good time and if you in this way try to love and please God he will be good to you at all times and then if he sees fit to take you from the world while you are young you shall go to be with him and dwell with him

And now to my elder friends, the older scholars You have been able to read your Bibles, and listen to its several truths, and to understand which, I trust you have been wending your way since Sabbath after Sabbath during this year.

What instructions you have recieved, is for you yourself to determine; what blessings derived, from your thus attending are individually known to yourselves.

I must then in the first place tender you my hearty Congratulation, and wish you many happy and pleasnt returns of your Sunday School Anniversary. I am not certain; but by some presentiment, I believe your present Celebration, is, in some degree, minus the point at which it arrived, at your last year's Celebration; as I presume, that circumstances, over which you cannot exercise a control, have caused the unavoidable removals, and absence of some of your honorary Officials and Members, whose presence would have augmented the interest, and added an impetus to the pleasure of this events of to-day.

But this is a world of changes; and although we are compelled to act, at this distance, as in the Drama of the second Jewish Temple, yet let us raise our Ecouzor and say, "Hitherto hath the Lord helped us." As scholars we are now stepping over 32 Sundays, but one of the year 1890. Some of you have gone over twelve years, some fifteen, some ten some five some one year & others probably but few months of Sunday School life. Naturally, this would bring about some recollections of your Sunday School life How grand it is, when one can refresh his or her mind, by the recollection of the scenes, thoughts, and associations of childhood. I know this will not always come when they are called for; but now and then by that wise, though mysterious law which regulates the hidden links of events, some little circumstance works a charm, by which it brings up for a moment, a vision of its ancestral connexions to pass not only our memory, sometimes our sight. As an instance of this I came in contact with a young man a stranger presently in our community; he has been employed by one of the principal mercantile Establishments here. He is come (probably for the first time out in his life) a stranger among strangers save a couple distant acquaintances. In conversation with him enquiring after his welfare and manner of reception in his new place he replied Oh I thank God I am well recieved and the prospects seem encouraging for he knows that God has promised to be a father to the fatherless (for he is an orphan) and he believes He will take him up. As he said this I remembered when that young man was but a few years ago and I was in some way acquainted with his relations and in one of my visits I had heard him repeating from time to time during my short stay these words from Prov. 8 17. I love them that love me and those that seek me early shall find me. Is it not a grand recollection to think that this youngman's present Confidence in God is the result of Sunday School work? for he was a Sabbath School Scholar. And it is so with many other associative thoughts of Sunday School life. The very School house its situation in the locality the scenes around it the shrubs and flowers around the premises some stately tree standing near, then, the interior of the building the many happy and mingled voices singing glad songs of praise Casual circumstances that here or there have occurred these and such like these vividly to our recollections and make beneficial and lasting impressions. Some now occurring could hardly be thought of presently as those that have passed were scarcely thought of when they transpired but we will realize especially in our after lives the happiness the more thought of such scenes affords. Some of these scenes come in so closely scripture narratives that they assist the imagination and the memory is refreshed and strengthened. I remember in a certain old Wesleyan Chapel in one of the towns in Sierra Leone, on the left side of the pulpit facing the Congregation eastward was a seat so constructed that its occupant who was a venerable old man could always recline at ease. From that curious chair have come many faithful teachings and warnings and when myself with other stood around him and heard him only strong enough to say Children love one another because God is love. I felt as if standing before old John who was carried in a Chair and was so old that he could not exhort lengthily but was only able to say as this old man Children love one another. Some textiles in some Churches where Sabbath Schools are kept would make you think of Eli and Samuel in the Tabernacle. The first time I attended a Sabbath School in the Catechist Sierra Leone sometime in 1866 the Lesson on Samson's last memorable slaughter. Naturally enough the massive pillars then supporting the galleries afforded simply illustration of the scenes and they assisted my impression of the nature of the circumstances. Observations like these will prove of such benefit in your after life that you could at present think possible. I dont know in what way you have been spending and enjoying your Sabbath School life or what have been your aspirations; but this I know that your responsibilities are greatly enhanced especially by these opportunities afforded in Sabbath School. It is not in my province at this instance to give general instructions as to your course of action as Scholars in the Sabbath School nor could we find time to do so if we would but I can say this much that it should be the duty of every Sabbath School Scholar to aspire after some future usefulness in the Church or denomination with which he or she is connected. Every Scholar ought to realize that he is a plant in the Lord's vineyard, and from the fact that the Sabbath School is the nursery of the Church each individual Scholar becomes doubly responsible for the cultivation of the interest of his Church. But above all should every scholar feel and know that he is enlisted to learn and do something for the glory of God both for himself and for others. With this thought and knowledge most scholars will find less cause to be sectarian in their views or Critics of the mysteries of revelation.

It is to be regretted that these baneful opposition are the ruling principle in most of our Sabbath School Scholars of today. But I am digressing. Every Sabbath a true Scholar should have the interest of their School at heart and put forth all effort for its promotion and success. You could accomplish this in many ways; but the most successful method is to invite them to pay visits; especially could great results be effected in this line by the ladyscholars; their influence are naturally tempered with success; and what crowded Sunday Schools would we have if each lady Scholar would invite all with whom they come in Contact? Surely this would be a project in the right direction.

But there is one point I wish to touch upon, before saying goodbye to Scholars, and that is, Every Scholar should be sensible of his or her true position. Or they should be willing to be a scholar in the primary significations of the term. To be a Scholar, in fact, to be one who attends a School. Scholars should always be in attendance, except when prevented by Cases of extreme necessity, or illness.

In thus frequently attending, you win the more thought of such scenes affords. Some of these scenes come in so closely your teacher; for he must miss you when you are absent, and will certainly go to know the cause; tardy and negligent Scholar, can never be so regarded.

Sadly A Scholar is one, who learns of a teacher. A Scholar presupposes the individual to declare himself ignorant of certain things, and pays due deference to the knowledge of him, who is appointed as his teacher. So that, pretending to be a Scholar, just for the sake of reaping the knowledge of your teacher, I will say for the sake of decency is simply monstrous. A Scholar thus should be willing to be taught: and especially in such Instructions, as only a Scholar's School could impart he is to be a humble learner—and like Mary of Bethany—

"At the feet of Jesus, listening to His word
Learning the wisdom from her Lovior, Lord
Sweet, by heavenly grace
Close to the Saviour's face
At the feet of Jesus is the place for me
Were a humble learner, would I humbly be.

To be continued.

ORIGINAL DEFECTIVE

Cm. 1 2 3 4 5
Ins. BRITISH MUSEUM

EARLY DAWN.

Morning Light Is Breaking. "The Darkness Disappears"

E, SHERBRO, WEST AFRI[CA] ...Y 16, 1891. No. 1.

s last year are now no more to be n or found. They are dead and gone be where God is and we will one day e and go too, and those we shall meet m and dwell with God too. In the d of God, there is a place which says and the street of the city shall be full boys and girls playing in the streets reof " If some of you can read, you d this in Zech: 8 chap. 5 v. Ev-child feels glad, when they can to the street. They run, and jump, laugh, and sing; and if some one calls
m from such plays they feel sorry So u I read of these boys and girls, I k of all the good boys and girls that e died and will die; and we should glad, that we have a home to meet n all one day. But to be where God t where good boys and girls are, we e try to love and serve God, and be d boys and girls too. You dont me to tell you what it is to be good you all know good boys, or good s from bad ones. But let us try and what it is to be good." As I have , to be good is to love God, and e Him. But good boys and girls t play, or talk or sleep, when they to Church, or come to School. They not light, or use ill words and will stop to play, when they see a d boys and girls ever hurt; and will to make their brothers, and their sis-and friends happy. But God has good to all and gives us life and things we have for our use, so we t try to love and thank him at all s, and try to speak of him too and his great love to men. All should to speak of God and Christ his and thanic him for all he has done
you. For as you sit now, and see there are some boys and girls, who ot know that there is a God, who s and takes care of them. They no Schools to go to, and learn no one to tell them to try and be
d. You must pray for them, and God to teach them in his own good and if you in this way try to love please God he will be good to you ll times and then if he sees fit to you from the world while you are ng you shall go to be with him and ll with him

nd now to my other friends, the old-holars You have been able to read Bibles, and listen to its sacred s, and to understand which, I trust have been wending your way into both after Sabbath during this year.
hat instructions you have recieved, r you yourself to, determine; what ings derived, from your thus attend-ce individually known to yourselves.
ust then in the first place tender my hearty Congratulation, and wish many happy and pleasant returns of Sunday School Anniversary. I am certainly but by some presentiment, lieve your present Celebration, is, in degree, minus the point at which rived, at your last year's Celebration; presume, that circumstances, over ch you cannot exercise a control, ensed the unavoidable removals, absence of some of your honorary ials and Members, whose presence ld have augmented the interest, and d an impetus to the pleasure of the y of to-day.

at this is a world of changes; and ugh we are compelled to act, at this nce, as in the Drama of the second ah Temple, yet let us raise our E-bor and say, 'Hitherto hath the Lord helped us.' As scholars we are now stepping over 52 Sundays, but one of the year 1890. Some of you have gone over twenty years, some fifteen, some ten some five some one year & others probably but few months of Sunday School life. Naturally, this would bring about some recollections of your Sunday School life How grand it is, when one can refresh his or her mind, by the recollection of the scenes, thoughts, and associations of childhood. I know this will not always come when they are called for; but now and then by that wise, though mysterious law which regulates the hidden links of events, some little circumstance works a charm, by which it brings up for a moment, a vision of its ancestral connexions to bless not only our memory, sometimes our sight. As an instance of this I came in contact with a young man a stranger presently in our community; he has been employed at one of the principal mercantile Establishments here. He is come (probably for the first time out in his life) a stranger among strangers save a couple distant acquaintances. In conversation with him enquiring after his welfare and manner of reception in his new place he replied Oh I thank God I am well recieved and the prospects seem encouraging for he knows that God has promised to be a father to the fatherless (for he is an orphan) and he believes He will take him up. As he said this I remembered when that young man was a lad a few years ago and I was in some way acquainted with his relations and in one of my visits I had heard him repeating from time to time during my short stay these words from Prov. 8 17. I love them that love me and those that seek me early shall find me. Is it not a grand recollection to think that this youngman's present Confidence in God is the result of Sunday School work? for he was a Sabbath School Scholar. And it is so with many other associative thoughts of Sunday School life. The very School house its situation in the locality the scenes around it the shrubs and flowers around the premises some stately tree standing near, then, the interior of the building the many happy and mingled voices singing glad songs of praise Casual circumstances that here or there have occurred these and such like these vividly to our recollections and make beneficial and lasting impressions. Some now occurring could hardly be thought of presently as those that have passed were scarcely thought of when they transpired but we will realize especially in our after lives the happiness the mere thought of such scenes affords. Some of these scenes come in so closely scripture narratives that they assist the imagination and the memory is refreshed and strengthened. I remember in a certain old Wesleyan Chapel in one of the towns in Sierra Leone, on the left side of the pulpit facing the Congregation eastward was a seat so constructed that its occupant who was a venerable old man could always recline at ease. From that curious chair have come many faithful teachings and warnings and when myself with other stood around him and heard him only strong enough to say Children love one another because God is love. I felt as if standing before old John who was carried up a litter and was so old that he could not exhort lengthily but was only able to say as this old man Children love one another. Some vestries in some Churches where Sabbath Schools are kept would make you think of Eli and Samuel in the Tabernacle. The first time I attended a Sabbath School in the Cathedral Sierra Leone sometime in 1866 the Lesson on Samson's last memorable slaughter. Naturally enough the massive pillars supporting the galleries afforded simply illustration of the scenes and they assisted my impressions of the nature of the circumstances. Observations like these will prove of such benefit in your after life than you could at present think possible. I dont know in what way you have been spending and enjoying your Sabbath School life or what have been your aspirations; but this I know that your responsibilities are greatly enhanced especially by these opportunities afforded in Sabbath School. It is not in my province at this instance to give general instructions as to your course of action as Scholars in the Sabbath School nor could we find time to do so if we would but I can say this much that it should be the duty of every Sabbath School Scholar to aspire after some future usefulness in the Church or denomination with which he or she is connected. Every Scholars ought to realize that he is a plant in the Lord's vineyard, and from the fact that the Sabbath School is the nursery of the Church each individual Scholar becomes doubly responsible for the cultivation of the interest of his Church. But above all should every scholar feel and know that he is ordained to learn and do something for the glory of God both for himself and for others. With this thought and knowledge most scholars will find less cause to be sectarian in their views or Critics of the mysteries of revelation.

It is to be regretted that these baneful propositions are the ruling principle in most of our Sabbath School scholars of today. But I am digressing. Every Sabbath School Scholar should have the interest of their School at heart and put forth all effort for its promotion and success. Yes could accomplish this in many ways; but the most essential method is to invite them to go with you: especially could great results be effected in this line by the ladyscholars: their influences are natually imparted with success; and what crowded Sunday Schools would we have if each lady Scholar would invite all with whom they come in Contact? Surely this would be a project in the right direction.

But there is one point I wish to touch upon, before saying goodbye to Scholars, and that is, Every Scholar should be sensible of his or her true position. Or they should be willing to be a scholar in the primary signification of the term. To be a Scholar, is to be one who attends a School. Scholars should always be in attendance, except when prevented by Cause of extreme necessity, or illness.

In thus frequently attending, you win the observation, respect, love, and acquaintance of your teacher; for he must miss you when you are absent, and will certainly go to know the cause: tardy and negligent Scholar, can never be so regarded.

Sadly A Scholar is one, who learns of a teacher. A Scholar presupposes the individual to declare himself ignorant of certain things, and pays due deference to the knowledge of him, who is appointed as his teacher.

So that, proceeding to be a Scholar, just for the sake of purging the knowledge of your teacher, will say for the sake of decency is simply monstrous. A Scholar then should be willing to be taught: and especially in such instructions, as only a Sabbath School could impart he is to be a humble learner—and like Mary of Bethany—

"At the feet of Jesus, listening to His word
Learning wisdom's lessons from her loving, Lord
Mary, thy heavenly grace,
Chose the better dish for you
At the feet of Jesus let me learn for me
Be a humble learner, would I meekly be.

To be continued.

ORIGINAL DEFECTIVE

Cm 1 2 3 4 5
Ins. BRITISH MUSEUM 2

AWN.

No. 1.

Cm 1 2 3 4 5
Ins. BRITISH MUSEUM 2

ORIGINAL DEFECTIVE

WN.

No. 1.

Some reflics in some Churches where Sabbath Schools are kept would make you think of Eli and Samuel in the Tabernacle. The first time I attended a Sabbath School in the Cathedral Sierra Leone sometime in 1866 the Lesson on Samson's last memorable slaughter. Naturally enough the massive pillars then supporting the galleries afforded ample illustration of the scene and they assisted my impression of the nature of the circumstances. Observations like these will prove of such benefit in your after life than you could at present think possible. I dont know in what way you have been spending and enjoying your Sabbath School life or what have been your aspirations; but this I know that your responsibilities are greatly enhanced especially by these opportunities afforded in Sabbath School. It is not in my province at this instance to give general instructions as to your course of action as Scholars in the Sabbath School nor could we find time to do so if we would but I can say this much that it should be the duty of every Sabbath School Scholar, to aspire after some future usefulness in the Church or denomination with which he or she is connected. Every Scholars ought to realize that he is a plant in the Lord's vineyard; and from the fact that the Sabbath School is the nursery of the Church each individual Scholar becomes doubly responsible for the cultivation of the interest of his Church. But above all should every scholar feel and know that he was ordained to learn and do something for the glory of God both for himself and for others. With the thought and knowledge most scholars will find less cause to be sectarian in their views or Critics of the mysteries of revelation.

It is to be regretted that these baneful principles are the ruling principle in most of our Sabbath School scholars of today. But I am digressing. Every Sabbath School scholar should have the interest of their School at heart and put forth all effort for its promotion and esteem. You could accomplish this in many ways; but the most unerring method is to invite them to go with you: especially could great results be effected in this line by the ladyscholars: their influences are naturally tempered with esteem; and what crowded Sunday Schools would we have if each lady Scholar would invite all with whom they come in Contact? Surely this would be a product in the right direction.

But there is one point I wish to touch upon, before saying goodbye to Scholars, and that is, Every Scholar should be sensible of his or her true position. Or they should be willing to be a scholar in the primary signification of the term. To be a Scholar, is let, to be one who attends a School. Scholars should always be in attendance, except when prevented by Cases of extreme necessity, or illness. In this frequently attending, you win the observation, respect, love, and acquaintance of your teacher; for he must miss you when you are absent, and will certainly go to know the cause: tardy and negligent Scholar, can never be so regarded.

Study of Scholar is one, who learns of a teacher. A Scholar progresses the individual to declare himself ignorant of certain things, and pays due deference to the knowledge of him, who is appointed as his teacher. So that, proceeding to be a Scholar, just for the sake of grasping the knowledge of your teacher; will say for the sake of decency simply nonsense. A Scholar then should be willing to be taught: and especially in such instructions, as only a Sabbath School could impart he is to be a humble learner—and like Mary of Bethany—

"At the feet of Jesus, listening to His word,
Sweetest lesson learn'd from her loving Lord,
Oh! for the same sweet grace,
At the feet of Jesus is the place for me
Were a humble learner, would I meekly be.

To be continued.

Cms 1 2 3 4 5 Ins. BRITISH MUSEUM 2

AWN.

No. 1.

Some reflics in some Churches where Sabbath Schools are kept would make you think of Eli and Samuel in the Tabernacle. The first time I attended a Sabbath School in the Cathedral Sierra Leone sometime in 1866 the Lesson on Samson's last memorable slaughter. Naturally enough the massive pillars then supporting the galleries afforded ample illustration of the scene and they assisted my impression of the nature of the circumstances. Observations like these will prove of such benefit in your after life than you could at present think possible. I dont know in what way you have been spending and enjoying your Sabbath School life or what have been your aspirations; but this I know that your responsibilities are greatly enhanced especially by these opportunities afforded in Sabbath School. It is not in my province at this instance to give general instructions as to your course of action as Scholars in the Sabbath School nor could we find time to do so if we would but I can say this much that it should be the duty of every Sabbath School Scholar to aspire after some future usefulness in the Church or denomination with which he or she is connected. Every Scholars ought to realize that he is a plant in the Lord's vineyard; and from the fact that the Sabbath School is the nursery of the Church each individual Scholar becomes doubly responsible for the cultivation of the interest of his Church. But above all should every scholar feel and know that he was ordained to learn and do something for the glory of God both for himself and for others. With the thought and knowledge most scholars will find less cause to be sectarian in their views or Critics of the mysteries of revelation.

It is to be regretted that these baneful principles are the ruling principle in most of our Sabbath School scholars of today. But I am digressing. Every Sabbath School scholar should have the interest of their School at heart and put forth all effort for its promotion and esteem. You could accomplish this in many ways; but the most unerring method is to invite them to go with you: especially could great results be effected in this line by the ladyscholars: their influences are naturally tempered with esteem; and what crowded Sunday Schools would we have if each lady Scholar would invite all with whom they come in Contact? Surely this would be a product in the right direction.

But there is one point I wish to touch upon, before saying goodbye to Scholars, and that is, Every Scholar should be sensible of his or her true position. Or they should be willing to be a scholar in the primary signification of the term. To be a Scholar, is let, to be one who attends a School. Scholars should always be in attendance, except when prevented by Cases of extreme necessity, or illness. In this frequently attending, you win the observation, respect, love, and acquaintance of your teacher; for he must miss you when you are absent, and will certainly go to know the cause: tardy and negligent Scholar, can never be so regarded.

Study of Scholar is one, who learns of a teacher. A Scholar progresses the individual to declare himself ignorant of certain things, and pays due deference to the knowledge of him, who is appointed as his teacher. So that, proceeding to be a Scholar, just for the sake of grasping the knowledge of your teacher; will say for the sake of decency simply nonsense. A Scholar then should be willing to be taught: and especially in such instructions, as only a Sabbath School could impart he is to be a humble learner—and like Mary of Bethany—

"At the feet of Jesus, listening to His word,
Sweetest lesson learn'd from her loving Lord,
Oh! for the same sweet grace,
At the feet of Jesus is the place for me
Were a humble learner, would I meekly be.

To be continued.

Cms 1 2 3 4 5 Ins. BRITISH MUSEUM 2

The Early Dawn

MONTHLY. JANUARY 16, 1891

REV. J. A. EVANS—EDITOR.

EDITORIAL.

The Macedonian cry—It will be readily called to mind by those who read the Bible, that while the apostle Paul was at Troas on one occasion, and having been prevented of the Spirit to go into Bithynia, he had a vision and in the vision a man of Macedonia stood and prayed or besought him to come over into Macedonia and help them. This request of the man in Paula vision at Troas has become commonly known among Christians as the Macedonian Cry. And all calls of destitute places and especially lands have received the same appellation the macedonian cry; and have in all ages since been regarded as omissions of good opportunities for gospel work in those places from whence the come. At the present time these cries are numerous and well up from all parts of this dark land of Mam. But is who ready like Paul to answer these calls and go to the rescue of the Perishing?

The Wesleyan Missionary Anniversary.

It was our pleasure to attend and participate in the above named Anniversary on the evening of the 12th inst at the Wesleyan Church in this place. And while the Reports as read by the Secretaries were not of the usual length of such Papers, yet we felt that in a terse and concise way they covered all the Ground. The first and General Report of the Work as a whole was read by Mr. J Macauley of Mo'Mosaly and showed, except a decrease in collections, a commendable degree of progress in the general work. But noted also some serious difficulties which have during the year continued to hinder the work. Among the which may be mentioned, 1st. the Lack of Class Interest, 2nd. disinterestedness of the young men of the Church 3rd. Want of Proper Prayer Leaders, as well as the movable disposition of some in the community. The first three of these we must say are of essential importance to Methodism, or may we not say to Vital Godliness the world over.

Hence we most sincerely hope that these brethren may have a Revival along these lines as their Report anticipates.

The Second Report or part thereof was of the particular work of the solicitors and contributions and was interestingly arranged in the unique form of giving the names of small Donors first in order and thus secured and maintained the interest throughout and we heartily commend this plan of Pastor Thomas. The first Resolution was moved by Mr. M. J. W. Rocks, Seconded by Postmaster Williams and Supported by Rev O. Moore Principal of the Grammer School Freetown Principal of the Grammer School Freetown all these Gentlemen spoke well, but of course as a reasonable result the Principal Excelled. The Second Resolution was moved by J. A. Evans Presiding Elder of the U. B. Church, Seconded by Catechist Pasha in charge of St. Matthew's P. E. Church of this place and Supported by Mr. Goldsworthy Pratt. These gentlemen discussed pretty thoroughly the subjects of the Resolution And after a vote of thanks to the Chairman M. H. Davis Esq, and an able responder by that gentlemen the meeting came to a close about 9 p. m. with singing doxology and benediction.

The Trade—Does not seem to be satisfy, for some reason, which it seems is due to the insufficient quantity of Produce obtainable, rather than anything else. On account of this lack of Supply to meet the demand of dealers every effort has to be put forth by those who desire to do business, to obtain as large a share of what is offered to the Market as they can; this creates rather a strife among buyers, and especially does it cause those already in the field to oppose any and all newcomers But the sooner this strife ceases and every one sets to work to devise a means of increasing the quantity of produce by in some way reaching further into the country or by inducing the natives to gather more in the districts already reached. Either or both of these ways are open to capitalists, if they will, but the regions now operated by the Sherbro Trade nearly if not quite as much produce goes to waste as is gathered by the people. And this waste is in part due to the fact that little or done to increase the produce. The prents and low P. does not increase a large measure in the native can get Bushel of Bangor wise to gather two Bushels hence as long as he receives his goods at a low price and a present to boot, Merchants and Traders may be assured he will not gather more but less produce.

We, however, need to extend operations further interior to where there is more and better produce. And to do this railways need to be built as well as other commodious roads so that produce can be gathered and brought to the seaboard. The sooner the commercial public interested in the West African Trade awaken to the railway enterprise the better for all concerned. It is really the only thorough cure for the Trade of this locality.

Falconbridge Letters

Our last closed Letter IV of this series and we now come to mrs Falconbridge's fifth espistle to her lady friend Almost a month elapsed between the writing of these two letters during which time she visited several of the neighboring towns learning as much as she could of the people And being a person of an industrious disposition and a very careful observer of persons, places, and things, she very naturally gained quite an insight into the habits, and life of all classes with whom she came in contact But we shall let her tell her own story she wrote as follows.

Granville Town
June 8th 1791.

My dear Madam—Since my last I have been to the French Factory visited several neighboring towns and made myself a little intimate with the history manners, customs, etc., of the inhabitants of this part of Africa, which, it seems was first discovered by the Portuguese named it Sierra de Leone or Mountain of Lions. The tract of country now called and by them Sierra Leone, is a Peninsula one half the year, and an island the other that is during the rains the Isthmus is over flowed. The River which was formerly called Tagris, now takes its name from the country, at its entrance it is about ten miles from one promontory to the other, but here, it is scarcely half the distance across, and a few miles higher up it becomes very narrow indeed. It is not navigable for Large vessels any higher than Bance Island, but small craft may go a great distance up. Besides the Islands I have mentioned, there are several others, uninhabited, between this and Bance Island. Granville Town is situated in a pretty bay, on the southside of the River about nine miles above Cape Sierra Leone, fifteen miles below Bance Island and six from Robana. Half a mile below us is the town of one Pa Daffee two miles lower down is King Jemmy's, and beyond him is Queen Yamacobba's, and two or three small places a mile above us Signior Domingo lives and a little higher one Pa Will.

I have been at all these places, and find a great similitude in the appearance of the people; their behavior mode of living building, amusements, etc. The men are tall and stout and was it not that their legs are generally small in proportion to their bodies and somewhat crooked I should call them well limbed. The mode of treating infants till they are able to walk, accounts for their being bandy legged. A few days after a woman is delivered, she takes her child on her back to wherever her vocation leads her, with both legs buckled round her waiste, and the calves pressed to her sides, by which means the tender bones are forced from their natural shape, and get a curve that never after grows out: and thus, the infant is exposed either to scorching sun, or any changes of ther that happens, the women are ugh so well shaped as the men, being employed in all hard labor, makes robust and clumsy; they are very fic, and keep their breasts suspended k, after bearing a child or two, etches out to an enormous lengt; disgusting to Europeans, though consid ered beautiful and ornamental here. They are not only obliged to till the ground, and do all laborious work, but are kept at a great distance by the men, who seldom suffer a woman to sit down or eat with them.

The day I dined at King Naimbana's, he told me I was the first woman that ever eat at the same table with him. Great respect and reverence is shewn to old age, by all ranks of the people Polygamy likewise is considered honorable, and creates consequence. When an African speaks of a great man, he or she will say 'Oh! he be fine man he rich too much he got too much woman.'

This begins mrs Falconbridge's fifth letter and as we have remarked before, on these letters, how much it reads like a letter of the present, for this only in the relation of historical incidents which antedate the existence of Freetown that we are made to feel that mrs Falconbridge wrote these letters nearly one hundred years ago. men and things perished like tears before the onward march of time and in the revolutions of a century of years religion and civilisation have wrought marvelously on the dark pagan night and rude barbaric life that time.

Learning The Language.—This Topic will come up every now and again despite the efforts of many to ignore the Native dialects as useless especially as media through which to impart religious truth.

However, this does not at length, seem, to be so much of a fact, as in our ignorance we have imagined it to be; hence now it begins to dawn upon many that here as elsewhere missionaries should endeavor to Learn the Language of the people among whom they labor not that they cannot be serviceable without so doing, but that they can be abundantly more useful by being able to understand and speak to their people. We were pleased to hear that mr J asaulay Wesleyan Catechist of sewcolley had so far succeeded in learning the xendi Language as to be able to preach in it. As we are sure what he has done others may and will do if the matter is agitated.

The Entertainments,—Recently given in this place under the Managing direction of Prof. Wilberforce and Rev. J. Gomer were of the highest moral purity; and in a rare and exceptional manner blended the Scientific, religious, and amusing with the reformatory and instructive. All in all the Shaingay performances given here during the 6th 7th and 8th insts were a success.

CORRESPONDENCE.

The Preciousness Of Life.

Life, as defined by the learned Webster "is the present state of existence. Some times the perpetual existence of the soul in the present and future state."

Its preciousness may be drawn from the manner in which it is preserved.

It was the last after the creation of the world, plants beast and man.

It was given to man by the Breath of God, as recorded in Holy writ 'And the Lord formed man of the dust of the ground and breathed into his nostrils the Breath of life, and man became a living soul.'

Life in its proper sense is of two kinds Temporal and spiritual; Both of which will engage my thought in this paper.

The enjoyment of the former is appreciated by all. Men even fear to die, and should you ask them why? their immediate reply will be life is precious.

People can do the meanest act in order to obtain life, some for its preservation use different means The Natives have sebbehs tied around some part of their body which indeed seems to them, a life preserver.

Take a look of Abraham the of God, the man to whom bright promises were made who was called the father of the pattern of believers and the God. The person to whom knows what he was about to do destroying of the five cities of he told a lie when he went to the country of the Philistines to the save his life. Isaac also followed the step of his father when he was in Gerar. Jacob fled into the land of the east from Esau his brother for the preservation of his life.

Esau sold his birthright to his brother for a morsel of Bread when he found that his life is going away.

How precious was this life in the sight of the Lydian monarch Creosus, when he saw the funeral pile and the flames rolling over head that he cried in the anguish of his soul Solon, Solon! historical incidents which antedate the existence of Freetown that we are made to feel that mrs Falconbridge wrote these letters nearly one hundred years ago. men and things perished like tears before the onward march of time and in the revolutions of a century of years religion and civilisation have wrought marvelously on the dark pagan night and rude barbaric life that time.

Solon! Cyrus moved with compassion at the sight ordered him to be released.

These are all done only for the enjoyment and comfort of a Temporal life, which is only for a time.

Now men are so anxious in doing every mean act for the preserving of this troublesome life which is full of cares and sorrow, But how indifferent are they when brought about to consider the other life. The spiritual, tos apart from this life there is another, the enjoyment of which is far more glorious or more miscrable than can be portrayed by human understanding. Of this glorious life I wish to speak.

Before we can enjoy this life we need to be prepared while we are in this vale of tears. It cannot be enjoyed by any without looking to Jesus.

The soul enjoys this invaluable life The meanest man likes to enjoy good but when he is called on to do good he looks upon it as a burden.

And the enjoyer of this life is so valuable, that Christ said What shall it profit a man if he should gain the whole world and lose his own soul' or what shall a man give in exchange for his soul?

It is then better for every boy or girl man or woman the rich or the poor, to aim at future life, and to grasp every privilege now offered to them considering that in the midst of this life we are in death.

It is high time that we should awake outof sleep and be aspiring after this life. It requires effort but our saviour has promised to keep us from falling.

The rich man mentioned in scripture is an example to all who enjoys this life without a thought of the next.

And those who are also mentioned as using this life as strangers and not citizens are before us for imitation.

Then when we shall begin to enjoy that glorious life we can be able to know that life in its spiritual state is more precious.—Xenophon.

No Progress Without United Effort.

Among the teachings of our Lord to his disciples, was that of unity; This is proved by several passages of Scripture found in his last discourse.

It was also found among them in the time of the pentecost, as clearly stated by the Evangelist that, 'they were all with one accord in one place and all every thing with singleness of heart' consequence of which they were blessed in the addition of recruits which was their desire.

Progress means advancement and unity oneness or singleness of desire.

Nothing then can be done or achieved without the latter, it is the key to every ess and every successful accomplishment.

It has been the aim of every establishment kingdom, race, or people to concentrate their mind to one single and that is unity or united efforts ping in view the motto, 'United we stand divided we fall.'

Every thing in life requires effort with out which our designs will not be accomplished. The various inventions that are in operation which it would be useless to me to name here required effort; Physical or intellectual before they came into existence. And those who brought them out united their effort in

We read about the great tower that had been erected by the united efforts of post diluvians to secure them from a secondary flood should it come. And we notice also the advancement they made in their work, and it would have been brought to perfection had it not been obstructed by the allseeing eye of God and checked by his omnipotence.

There was something in their midst pricking them as with an awlike voice to go onward though multitudinous numbers were employed yet their effort was a united one; and thus it was real life.

This very power of united effort was shown by the Early Grecians in the subjugation of Persia as recordedby Wm Swinton in those words 'Europe embodied in Greece was to old Asia represented by Persia and the sons of Helas were to come out of the struggle strong ard ennobled.'

The kingdom of Israel prospered when it was united but when unity was no more, they were carried away into captivity and all returned no more save the two tribes which had been kept through the mercies of God.

The world can not move on well without united effort, nor can christianity bring satanical and diabolical influence under her sway without this effort.

For says Christ in his teachings, if a house or kingdom is divided against itself that house or kingdom cannot stand it is because there is no unity. I ask how can christians be able to advance in their religion when there is no unity in the Church when they do not unite themselves to carry on this great work that is laid before us, and to consider the words of the master 'Go etc.'

Look at the Porroh, the Boondoo, the Bassay, the Kofung, the Masonic department and many others of which time will not allow me to enumerate, are all for good, yet in order to carry on their evil design in a progressive manner unite together; they are so linked together that secrets are not made known, and should any one fail to keep these secrets death is the ultimatum.

I am sorry again to think of the Temperance society and the Literary society that were once organized at Bonthe to find that it has died a natural death I have now in piety to ask what is the cause? I answer, it is the opposite of this effort.

Then dear readers, in all your ways in life have unity about you and if you follow it you will soon find that it is excellent.

Let christians unite themselves to bring sinners and infidels to the fold.

And let Temperate men employ themselves in the same way to bring drunkards and sots to sign the pledge then will great things be done and these evils will come after will no doubt say with me, That there is no progress without united effort.—Yrs. T. Rothenford.

CHILDREN'S COLUMN

Bathurst Gambia.

(Continued)

They commenced their work in the name and strength of the Lord and His blessing rested upon their efforts. Having reorganised the mission school, examined the society, visited the people, and regulated the services, he began to look about with a view to the extension of the work; having already two young men under his care, who appeared well adapted for native teachers (interpreters and exhorters. In the course of a few months he paid his first visit to Macarthy's Island, nearly 300 miles up the Gambia, with a view to collect information, and to prepare the way for the commencement of a new station there. This desirable object was accomplished on the occasion of his second visit in the early part of the following year after the termination of a native war which had raged for five months in the interim.

Then he took with him a native teacher, erected a rude building as a place of worship, commenced a mission school, and left a native assistant in charge. Twelve months afterwards he visited Macarthy's Island for the third time, and rejoiced to see the progress which had been made in every department of the work. For more than a half century the light of the Gospel has continued to shine there with varying degrees of brightness and in time to come it will no doubt prove to be a still more important centre of light and influence as well as an important step in advance towards the interior of this part of the dark 'continent.' Meanwhile the work at St Mary's prospered, the schools were well attended, the congregations increased, and a goodly number of native converts were gathered into the fold of Christ, not with standing numerous difficulties with which they had to contend. These difficulties arose chiefly from repeated attacks of fever, and from a war which broke out between the British settlement and a powerful tribe of Mandingoes inhabiting the northern bank of the river, as well as from the prevailing ignorance and superstition of the people among whom they laboured. Being the only Christian minister of any denomination in the country, he had to perform the duties of military and colonial Chaplain by appointment of the governor in addition to those of a Wesleyan missionary. Consequently every Sunday forenoon he had to proceed from their own chapel to the church in the garrison, to conduct a second service for the benefit of government officials and others, to say nothing of visiting the hospital and prison, and attending to all the marriages, baptisms and funerals in the colony. amount of labor, in addition to his every day duties in connection with the schools and station he found very arduous in a tropical and sickly climate, but the Lord sustained him, and he and his dear wife were very happy in their work.

In the year 1833, having fulfilled the period of their appointment to the Gambia mission, they were relieved by the arrival of the Rev William and Mrs. Fox to take their place at St. Mory's and the Thomas and Mrs. Dove for the new station at Macarthy's Island. Thus were they providentially spared to return to their native land and soon afterwards favoured to engage in other fields of foreign service, with health much impaired it is true but thankful for life. During all the years that have since intervened they have never ceased to feel a deed interest in Western Africa as the first scene of their humble missionary labours. Mrs Moister has since died and the bereft husband is now old in years, but nevertheless as Zealous for the cause as ever before. Being now a Supernumerary Mr. Moister devotes most of his time in writing interesting books in the interest of Mission the proceeds of which go to help the Mission fund. I have seen some of his valuable words with my gaudian Mr. R. to whom Mr. Moister made them present on the recommendation of the late Rev Matthew Godman (sometime Chirman and General superintendent of Sierra Leone and Gambia District) who was wont to say "I covet this young man for the Christian Ministry."

Mr. Moisteras has written him several nice letters which he keeps as mementos of the dear venteran missionary.

I shall write again D. V. with love.—Your little pet girl,

FLORA,
Of Mando.

(concluded)

LOCAL ITEMS.

2—An Entertainment and Concert by the members of the St. Matthews Sabbath School took place at the spacious and well decorated shed erected at the Government Compound followed by a Tea-meeting.

s. s. Susu from Freetown with mails and passengers Rev. J. W. Leigh (u. m. f. c.) Rev. Father Blanchet (r. c. m.) Mons. Morel of the French Company Mr Tho. Coker and several others.

10—His Excellency Gov. Hay and suite returned from the Sulymah District, and proceeded to Freetown per Countess Derby on the 12th. 'Susu' for Freetown, Rev. Leigh, Dr. Jarrett Mr. J. A. Dennis and Miss May are passengers.

PERSONAL

Bishop E. B. Kephart D. D. L. L. D.—arrived in this place on the 6th. inst. accompanied by Rev. J. Gomer supdt. of the Sherbro Mendi Missions. The Bishop was the guest of Rev. J. A. Evans Presiding Elder of the Mission District of the U. B. Church After spending some three days in Town the Bishop with the Rev. J. Gomer and Prof Wilbertorce left on the 9th. inst. for the Gbargroo.

M. H. Davies Esq,—well known as the Editor of the Watchman (Freetown) during his stay of a few weeks in this place has made several short but very pleasant calls; and in viewing our Office and Press has kindly given us some good suggestions for the improvement of the Impression of our paper which we appreciate as Mr Davies is an Experienced Printer.

J. Brooks Barnette,—One of those trained up in by gone years in the Mendi Mission, is now in this place on a business visit but is a regular and zealous attendant on divine service this is an evidence or fruit of the Mendi Mission in the past.

Capt. A. J Pencheon,—of the s s. Formoso called at the Office on the 8th. inst. and gave us a good hearty hand shake he was looking his best and feeling well.

We regret to learn that our friend Mr. Bidwell Coker is again laid up sick—This is the third time that he has been laid up at the begining of January in each year—We hope his physician has now found out a proper remedy that will relieve him from any future attack of the dangerous yellow fever and hope he will soon be recovered.

scorching sun, or any changes of ier that happens, the women are ugh so well shaped as the men, be-employed in all hard labor, makes robust and clumsy; they are very fic, and keep their breasts suspended k, after bearing a child or two, uence as disgusting to Europeans, though consid-at a low ered beautiful and ornamental here. They Merchants are not only obliged to till the ground, e will not and do all laborious work, but are kept at a great distance by the men, who sel-nd opera- dom suffer a woman to sit down or eat e there is with them.
nd to do The day I dined at King Naimbana's, as well as he told me I was the first woman that ev-that pro- er eat at the same table with him. Great rought to respect and reverence is shewn to old commer- age, by all ranks of the people Poly-Vest Afri- gamy likewise is considered honorable, ray enter- age, by all ranks of the people. When an Afric erned. B- an speaks of a great man, he or she will re for the say 'Oh! he be fine man rich too much he got too much woman.'

Thus begins mrs Falconbridge's fifth letter and as we have remarked before, on these letters, how much it reads like a letter of the present, for it is only in the relation of historical incidents which antedate the existence of Freetown that we are made to feel that mrs Falconbridge wrote these letters nearly one hundred years ago. men and things perishable have paled before the onward march of time and in the revolutions of a century of years religion and civilisation have wrought marvelously on the dark pagan night and rude barbaric life that time.

this series leonbridge's
Almost a ing of those she visited ens learning people And disposition of persons, rally gained s, and life of e in contact ou story she

e Town
8th 1791.
my last I toay visited and made the history inhabitants
h, it seems Portuguese
r Mountain
y now called a Peninsun island the the Isthmus ich was for-kes its name
ance it is a-montory to ecly half the miles higher indeed. It vessels any t small craft
Besides the re are severreon this and en is situated hside of the e Cape Sier glow Rance
Half a mile
Pa Duffer
ing Jemmy's Tamacubba's, daces a mile lires and a aces, and find ppearance of mode of livetc The men

as it not that tall in propor nowhat crook limbed.
is till they are their being s after a wor her child or vocation leads led round her ressed to her tender bones
ral shape, and ter grows out ead either to

Learning The Language.—This Topic will come up every now and again despite the efforts of many to ignore the Native dialects as useless encumbrance, a media through which to impart religious Truth.

However, this does not at length, seem, to be so much of a fact, as in our ignorance we have imagined it to be; hence now it begins to dawn upon many that here as elsewhere missionaries should endeavor to Learn the Language of the people among whom they labor not that they cannot be serviceable without so doing, but that they can be abundantly more useful by being able to understand and speak to their people. We were pleased to hear that mr J. ussaulay Wesleyan Catechist of mr ussaley had so far succeeded in learning the mendi Language as to be able to preach in it. As we are sure what he has done others may and will do if the matter is agitated.

The Entertainments,—Recently given in this place under the Managing direction of Prof. Wilberforce and Rev. J. Gomer were of the highest moral purity; and in a rare and exceptional manner blended the Scientific, religious, and amusing with the reformatory and instructive. All in all the Shaingay performances given here during the 6th 7th and 8th insts were a success.

CORRESPONDENCE.

The Preciousness Of Life.

Life, as defined by the learned Webster "is the present state of existence Some times the perpetual existence of the soul in the present and future state."

Its preciousness may be drawn from the manner in which it is preserved.

It was the last after the creation of the world, plants beast and man.

It was given to man by the Breath of God, as recorded in Holy writ 'And the Lord formed man of the dust of the ground and breathed into his nostrils the Breath of life, and man became a living soul.'

Life in its proper sense is of two kinds Temporal and spiritual; Both of which will engage my thought in this paper.

The enjoyment of the former is appreciated by all. Men even fear to die, and should you ask them why? their immediate reply will be life is precious.

People can do the meanest act in order to obtain life, some for its preservation use different means The natives have sabbahs tied around some part of their body which indeed seems to them, a life preserver.

Take a look at Abraham the friend of God, the man to whom great and bright promises were made he was was called the father of the faithful the pattern of believers and the friend of God. The person to whom God made known what he was about to do Viz the destroying of the five cities of the plain he told a lie when he went to the country of the Palistines to the King to save his life. Isaac also followed the very step of his father when he was in Gerar. Jacob fled into the land of the east from Esau his brother for the preservation of his life.

Esau sold his birthright to his brother for a morsel of Bread when he found that his life is going away.

How precious was this life in the sight of the Lydian monarch Croesus, when he saw the funeral pile and the flames rolling over head that he cried in the anguish of his soul Solon! Solon! Solon! Cyrus moved with compassion at the sight ordered him to be released.

These are all done only for the enjoyment and comfort of a Temporal life, which is only for a time.

Now men are so anxious in doing every mean act for the preserving of this troublesome life which is full of cares and sorrow, But how indifferent are they when brought about to consider the other life. The spiritual, for apart from this life there is another, the enjoyment of which is far more glorious or more miscrable than can be portrayed by human understanding. Of this glorious life I wish to speak.

Before we can enjoy this life we need to be prepared while we are in this vale of tears. It cannot be enjoyed by any without looking to Jesus.

The soul enjoys this invaluable life The meanest man likes to enjoy good but when he is called on to do good he looks upon it as a burden.

And the enjoyer of this life is so valuable, that Christ said What shall it profit a man if he should gain the whole world and lose his own soul' or what shall a man give in exchange for his soul?

It is then better for every boy or girl man or woman the rich or the poor, to aim at future life, and to grasp every priviledge now offered to them considering that in the midst of this life we are in death.

It is high time that we should awake outof sleep and be aspiring after this life. It requires effort but our saviour has promised to keep us from falling.

The rich man mentioned in scripture is an example to all who enjoys this life without a thought of the next.

And those who are also mentioned as using this life as strangers and not citizens are before us for imitation.

Then when we shall begin to enjoy that glorious life we can be able to know that life in its spiritual state is more precious.—Xenophon.

No Progress Without United Effort.

Among the teachings of our Lord to his disciples, was that of unity; This is proved by several passages of Scripture found in his last discourse.

It was also found among them in the time of the pentecost, as clearly stated by the Evangelist that, 'they were all with one accord in one place and did every thing with singleness of heart,' in consequence of which they were blessed in the addition of recruits which was their desire.

Progress means Advancement and unity oneness or singleness of desire.

Nothing then can be done or achieved without the latter, it is the key to every success and every successful accomplishment.

It has been the aim of every establishment kingdom, race, or people to concentrate their mind to one single object, and that is unity or united efforts keeping in view the motto, 'United we stand divided we fall.'

Every thing in life requires effort with out which our designs will not be accomplished. The various inventions that are now in operation which it would be useless for me to name here required effort; Physical or intellectual before they came into existence. And those who brought them out united their efforts

We read about the great tower that had been erected by the united efforts of post diluvians to secure them from a secondary flood should it come. And we notice also the advancement they made in their work, and it would have been brought to perfection had it not been obstructed by the allseeing eye of God and checked by his omnipotence.

There was something in their midst pricking them as with an audible voice to go onward though multitudinous numbers were employed yet their effort was a united one; and thus it was crowned.

This very power of united effort was shown by the Early Grecians in the subjugation of Persia as recorded by Wm Swinton in those words 'Europe embodied in Greece was to old Asia represented by Persia and the sons of Hellas were to come out of the struggle strong and ennobled.'

The kingdom of Israel prospered when it was united but when unity was no more, they were carried away into captivity and all returned no more save the two tribes which had been kept through the mercies of God.

The world can not move on well without united effort, nor can christianity bring satanical and diabolical influence under her sway without this effort.

For says Christ in his teachings, if a house or kingdom is divided against itself that house or kingdom cannot stand it is because there is no unity. I ask how can christians be able to advance in their religion when there is no unity in the Church when they do not unite themselves to carry on this great work that is laid before us, and to consider the words of the master 'Go etc.'

Look at the Porroh, the Boondoo, the Bassay, the Kofung, the Masonic department and many others of which time will not allow me to enumerate, are all for evil, yet in order to carry on their evil design in a progressive manner unite together they are so linked together that secrets are not made known, and should any one fail to keep these secrets death is the ultimatum.

I am sorry again to think of the Temperance society and the Literary society that were once organized at Bonthe to find that it has died a natural death I believe now in piety to ask what is the cause? I answer, it is the opposite of this effort.

Then dear readers, in all your ways in life have unity about you and if you follow it you will soon find that it is excellent.

Let christians unite themselves to bring sinners and infidels to the fold.

And let Temperate men employ themselves in the same way to bring drunkards and sots to sign the pledge then will great things be done and these things will come after will no doubt say to me, That there is no progress without united effort.—Yrs. I. Rotherford

CHILDREN'S COLUMN

BATHURST GAMBIA.

(Continued)

They commenced their work in the name nad strength of the Lord and His blessing rested upon their efforts. Having reorganised the mission school, examined the society, visited the people, and regulated the services, he began to look about with a view to the extension of the work; having already two young men under his care, who appeared well adapted for native teachers interpreters and exhorters. In the course of a few months he paid his first visit to Macarthy's Island, nearly 300 miles up the Gambia, with a view to collect information, and to prepare the way for the commencement of a new station there. This desirable object was accomplished on the occasion of his second visit in the early part of the following year after the termination of a native war which had raged for five months in the interim.

Then he took with him a native teacher, erected a rude building as a place of worship, commenced a mission school, and left a native assistant in charge. Twelve months afterwards he visited Macarthy's Island for the third time, and rejoiced to see the progress which had been made in every department of the work. For more than a half century the light of the Gospel has continued to shine there with varying degrees of brightness and in time to come it will no doubt prove to be a still more important centre of light and influence as well as an important step in advance towards the interior of this part of the dark 'continent.' Meanwhile the work at St Mary's prospered, the schools were well attended, the congregations increased, and a goodly number of native converts were gathered into the fold of Christ, notwithstanding numerous difficulties with which they had to contend. These difficulties arose chiefly from repeated attacks of fever, and from a war which broke out between the British settlement and a powerful tribe of Mandingoes inhabiting the northern bank nf the river, as well as from the prevailing ignorance and superstition of the people among whom they laboured. Being the only Christian minister of any denomination in the country, he had to perform the duties of military and colonial Chaplain by appointment of the governor in addition to those of a Wesleyan missionary. Consequently every Sunday forenoon he had to proceed from their own chapel to the church in the garrison, to conduct a second service for the benefit of government officials and others, to say nothing of visiting the hospital and prison, and attending to all the marriages, baptisms, and funerals in the colony. amount of labor, in addition to his every day duties in connection with the schools and station he found very arduous in a tropical and sickly climate, but the Lord sustained him, and he and his dear wife were very happy in their work.

In the year 1833, having fulfilled the period of their appointment to the Gambia mission, they were relieved by the arrival of the Rev William and Mrs. Fox to take their place at St. Mory's and the Thomas and Mrs. Dove for the new station at Macarthy's Island. Thus were they providentially spared to return to their native land and soon afterwards favoured to engage in other fields of foreign service, with health much impaired it is true but thankful for life. During all the years that have since intervened they have never ceased to feel a deed interest in Western Africa as the first scene of their humble missionary labours. Mrs Moister has since died and the hereft husband is now old in years, but nevertheless as Zealous for the cause as ever before. Being now a Supernumerary Mr. Moister devotes most of his time in writing interesting books in the interest of Mission the proceeds of which go to help the Mission fund. I have seen some of his valuable words with my gaudian Mr. R. to whom Mr. Moister made them present on the recommendation of the late Rev Matthew Godman (sometime Chirman and General superintendent of Sierra Leone and Gambia District) who was wont to say "I covet this young man for the Christian Ministry."

Mr. Moisteras has written him several nice letters which he keeps as mementos of the dear venteran missionary.

I shall write again D. V. with love.—Your little pet girl,

FLORA,

Of Mando.

(concluded)

LOCAL ITEMS.

2—An Entertainment and Concert by the members of the St. Matthews Sabbath School took place at the spacious and well decorated shed erected at the Government Compound followed by a Tea-meeting.

s. s. Susu from Freetown with mails and passengers Rev. J. W. Leigh (U. M. F. C.) Rev. Father Blanchet (R. C. M.) Mons. Morel of the French Company Mr Tho. Coker and several others.

10—His Excellency Gov. Hay and suite returned from the Sulymah District, and proceeded to Freetown per Countess Derby on the 12th.

'Susu' for Freetown, Rev. Leigh, Dr. Jarrett Mr. J. A. Dennis and Miss May are passengers.

PERSONAL

Bishop E. B. Kephart D. D. L. L. D.—arrived in this place on the 6th. inst. accompanied by Rev. J. Gomer supdt. of the Sherbro Mendi Missions. The Bishop was the guest of Rev. J. A. Evans Presidiug Elder of the Mission District of the U. B. Church After spending some three days in Town the Bishop with the Rev. J. Gomer and Prof Wilberforce left on the 9th. inst. for the Gbargroo.

M. H. Davies Esq.—well known as the Editor of the Watchman (Freetown) during his stay of a few weeks in this place has made several short but very pleasant calls; and in viewing our Office and Press has kindly given us some good suggestions for the improvement of the Impression of our paper which we appreciate as Mr Davies is an Experienced Printer.

J. Brooks Barnette,—One of those trained up in by gone years in the Mendi Mission, is now in this place on a business visit but is a regular and zealous attendant on divine service this is an evidence or fruit of the Mendi Mission in the past.

Capt. A. J Pencheon,—of the s s. Formoso called at the Office on the 8th. inst. and gave us a good hearty hand shake he was looking his best and feeling well.

We regret to learn that our friend Mr. Bidwell Coker is again laid up sick—This is the third time that he has been laid up at the begining of January in each year—We hope his physician has now found out a proper remedy that will relieve him from any future attack of the dangerous yellow fever and hope he will soon be recovered.

SELECTIONS.

From the Million.

Fused By Fire

BY HELEN R. SMITH.

Continued.

So trivial was the usual nature of these lawsuits that the announcement that "there was another o' them Parsons Buckly temper suits 't the Town Hall t' day,' hardly sufficed to attract the loungers from the group around the store or on the post-office steps, but the feeling that these persistent lawsuits indicated and cultivated had grown to be so bitter that it would hardly have surprised any one in the township to have heard of personal encounters and bloodshed.

The lawsuits had continued, and the property of the two families had about equally suffered, while their mutual animosities had seemingly taken the natures, even going so far as to deface the manly beauty of the once comely head of the two families.

Their children—all boys—went to the same school, all attended the same simple village entertainments; they were of the same political party; and even were—to the great sorrow of the more devout brethren members of the same church. Yet were the two families never known to exchange greetings or words of any kind, though it was surmised that Mrs. Buckly and Mrs. Parsons would have been glad to be "neighborly" had they followed their own desires. The men of the two families could not bring themselves to treat courteously those of whom they believed so ill, and though their old fashioned training had force enough to make them remember the courtesy due to their teacher, or hosts, or to the church they attended, hence their long unbroken silence, full of undying animosity.

Then came the Civil War, and Eben Parsons, still handsome and strong, though hair and beard were snowy white, came with his three stalwart sons to join the ranks of the three months' men. Jason Buckley, still sturdy and fine looking in his grim old age, came with his three broad shouldered boys. In the same regiment, even in the same company, they went through their three months' duty, and then "enlisted for the war."

On the march, by the camp fire, on lonely picket duty, or in battle shock, nowhere did a Parsons exchange with a Buckley a single word save those of an absolute official necessity.

During those fearful months of ditch digging in the Chickahominy swamps the old men each saw a son sicken and die. Side by side they silently, sternly, watched the last conflict which their boys could ever wage. They nursed each other alternately, each trusting the other fully with the care of his dearest, but they spoke no word.

Amid the awful carnage of Fredericksburg each of the old men again lost a son. Still neither broke the ice of the long silence by speech; but while for years it had been known that neither old man had willingly glanced at the other, some of their neighbors began to notice that at times by bivouac fire or on the weary march the one stricken father would gaze at the other when not looking, with an expression that might have been deemed one of sympathy. Some thought, too, that the rugged old faces were softening, were becoming more gentle and kind, that a new and sweeter light sometimes shone through the eyes which had sparkled with unholy hate. But that was all.

The two remaining sons had broken through their mutual reserve, and become at first civil, then friendly and at last inseparable friends; and the old men had seemed to take no notice. For all one could see, they knew nothing of the changed relations between the two young men which were not concealed from them in any way. If known to them, the fathers certainly did not resent it as once they would have done.

After the battle of Gettysburg, the two old fathers looked into each other eyes in a mutal anguish of foreboding.

"Jason," said Eben hoarsely "Jason where are your boys?"

"Eben," said the other with trembling tones, "I'd'n know, but we must look."

And with lanterns and canteens the two old men wandered over the hard won field, raising the trampled wheat that hid a death-cold form turning a stiffened corpse that had fallen face downward giving a lift or a drink of water to some poor fellow who still had life enough to crave help, and so on through all the dreadful hours, clinging to hope yet fearing the worst.

In the gray morn, down under the guns they had fought so bravely to hold, lay the two silent forms. The head of the one was pillowed on the breast of the other, whose cold, white hand lay lovingly upon the damped chestnut curls of his friend.

For a moment no word was spoken, no motion made, and then, as with a common impulse both old fathers knelt and kissed their boys. Each gave a glad inarticulate cry, each had felt beneath his lips the faint flickering stir of a life receding, but not yet quite departed.

A searching party with a surgeon at its head heard the cry so full of hope and anguish, & with the rough tenderness and intelligent, it hasty, care that men who have faced death and wounds learn how to give the two boys come back to the life they had so nearly forsaken.

And there on the bloody field of Gettysburg, two solemnly glad old men turned toward each other with a body light beaming from their weather beating faces as the coming dawn of day beamed upward from behind the wooded hill-tops.

"Jason, what's that old spring wath?"

"Nothin, Ebin, jest nothin!' Let's fill it up!'

'No' said Ebin: 'that would be throwin' away the Lord's gift. Let's each on us gin the spring an' a good strip o' land along it to the old church, to sell for the poor, or do anything else it wants to.'

'Agreed' said Jason, adding after a moment's pause: 'an' now I want t tell ye Eben, as I'd orter ha' told ye long ago, that twa'nt none o' me ner my boys that killed the elem tree.

We was too proud to say so when ye all thought so mean on us.'

Poor Eben groaned, but put out his hand and after their long and cordial clasp of mutual appealing and forgiving, all of their minds and strengths and hearts went to the saving of their boys.

After weeks in the hospital the sons went home on leave, and astonished all their townspeople, not more by carrying out the instructions of their fathers of conveying to the church the disputed spring and many a broad acre of fruitful land there with, than by their own inseparable companionship.

Eben and Jason fought on side by side, talking little in words, but saying much in eloquent language of kindly deeds and sympathetic looks, both to each other and their comrades.

"Yew an' Eben's made it up ain't ye, Jason?" said an old neighbor, now in the ranks.

'Yes, said Jason: 'the Lord had to smite us sore afore we could see that jestice an' our own wills wasn't al'ays one an' the same.'

'But we be brethren now, at least,' said Eben, 'as becomes them that loves the Lord.'

That night occured one of the nameless skirmishes which cost so many lives, and in the morning the two gray heads were found side by side, and the toil-hardened hands of the two men were clasped as if from the cold dark of earth they had wanted to enter heaven together.

'I knowed their time had come last night,' said the old neighbor, as he helped to lay them in their grave. "I knowed they'd got to be too good at last."

'Not so' said another; 'they've gone now where goodness lasts forever.

(Concluded)

A clergyman was devoutly reading the Holy Scriptures to his congregation, when he came to certain words in the lower right hand corner, to which he desired to give great emphasis. So he read with a loud voice, 'I am'—turned over two leaves and continued 'an ass, the foal of an ass;' then, seeing his mistake, he found the right place, and added, "that I am"— which of course, nobody would deny.

A Georgia preacher said: "I once loaned a cart and an ox to some boys to go to camp-meeting. They tied a nubbin of corn to a shaft so it would be a few inches ahead of the animal's nose. He came near running himself to death trying to get it. Brethren, the devil keeps a dollar just ahead, and many of you are killing yourselves to get it.

A poet sent to an editor a contribution entitled Why do I live? and the editor answered Because you send your contributions by mail instead of bringing them in person.

THE
Early Dawn
PRINTING OFFICE
PLAIN ARTISTIC AND FANCY JOB WORK
EXECUTED AT
SHORT NOTICE
ENQUIRE OF
R. Samuel Thomas
PRINTER

THE EARLY DAWN.

"The Morning Light Is Breaking, The Darkness Disappears"

VOL. VIII. BONTHE, SHERBRO, WEST AFRICA, JANUARY 31, 1891. No. 2.

The 'Early Dawn'

Published Semi Monthly at Bonthe, Sherbro. Under the Auspices of the Board of Missions of the United Brethren In Christ

Rev. J.A. Evans, Editor and Publisher Bonthe, Sherbro, West Africa.

AGENTS.

United States—Revs. B. F. Booth and Wm McKee, Dayton Rev. Wm J. Davis, Bonnie Rev. D. K. Flickinger, Willoughby, Ohio J. M. Stoner, Manheim, Pa., Rev. G. W. Hartzell Eldorado, Ohio.

West Africa— J. A. Richards, River Gallinas Rev. J. R. Frederick, and Mr. E. Aitken a Freetown, Sierra Leone. Rev. George Dr. Marshall, Lingia, Mr. Moses S. Hoyte Liberia.

TERMS.

One Year by mail,	£	1
Delivered in Bonthe,	0	0
Half yearly by mail,	0	6
Ditto, delivered in Bonthe,	0	2

ADDRESS

Delivered by Mr. C. A. E. Campbell to Scholars, Parents, and Teachers, of the Wesleyan Methodist Sabbath-School, Bonthe, Sherbro 21st. December 90

Continued.

At the feet of Jesus. There is your true position. As learners in the school of Christ, you should always be at his feet: the sign of meekness and humbleness. I must now turn my attention to the Parents, and for the sake of appropriateness, I'll add Guardians. To Parents and Guardians, I have not much to say: Let it be sufficed that you have been faithful in your responsibilities that you have not withheld any child or children under your care and keeping from attending every Sabbath the Sabbath School, when not prevented by illness, or any unavoidable necessity; if you have attended to this, you shall have performed a great part of your duty. Yet, I may here observe, that however much, you may have attended to their punctuality and regularity in their attendance, it is still a solemn duty binding on you, to assist in sustaining the influences, teachings and principles that they obtain from the Sabbath School. This duty is either lightly thought of or mistakingly signified altogether, with the misconfidence, that the teachers have done all that should be done, and therefore no need for their being concerned. For facts at this instance, would show the error of such conclusions, and manifest the grave responsibilities devolving on Parents and Guardians in this respect, and may incline to a clearer realization of such true position I'll do so from two principal standpoints viz—

1. In Comparing the proportion of time of Scholars, and the relation, with, and to their parents and Guardians and that with, and to their Teachers.

In the first place, the time you have with your children makes the last a grave one. They are with you, the greater time of their school life. They live with you, with eyes, ears, mind, conscience, all wide awake and in full play. [illegible] hearing, and even prohibited from using slangs and brogues in School he reaches home and expects his parents or Guardians using abusive languages or joyously making use of some indecent expressions the next thing you hear are those very expressions from the lips of the child so untimes developed to an alarming degree. Thus, may perhaps account for the many pernicious influences so rampant not only in our small community here, but we may say along our Western coast. Such baneful influences that was have caused our boys & girls to become, boy fathers and grimothers ere we are aware of it. It becomes then, Parents and Guardians to be vretily alive to their responsibilities and "Train up their children in the way they should go that when they are old they will not depart from it." With this I go off to the Teachers.

To you Teachers, the last in my arrangement, but by no means the least, in the grand enterprise I now address myself. In doing so I speak with the assumption that the teachers have realized the nature of their position That they are alive to the fact, they compose the grand ranks of those, teaching, and imparting religious truths, to the rest of the great and expansive Xtian y Church. About this fruitful field of activity, its harvest, its present joys and future rewards I will make brief remarks. As teachers I believe you are seeking to make your life, a power in the world. In this you are acting according to injunctions of Holy Writ and you are now "making your days to speak;" and if you will thus continue you will ultimately have the grand recognition, that "the multitude of your years have taught wisdom" That would be a grand recollection than. Your element in this great and grand enterprize, is a necessity, and an important one. You have the elevated post of preparing, and fitting the minds of your Scholars for both present and future usefulness, in the extensive field of the Church. Or to use a figurative idea on you devolve onerous duty and labor of planting tending and pruning the seed and trees in the great Nursery of Christ Militant Church or garden. In the first step, some of you deal with Childhood; pliant, susceptible childhood! Childhood when is not preoccupied by erroneous views or opinions: you deal with minds not engrossed with worldly cares; minds full of faith in what you teach; So that in a Sense, you can be said to mould the child in spiritual knowledge and growth. In this sense, you are doing a mother's work, fitting the mind for progressive usefulness in the field of the Lord's Christ. This is a great work. But, using the proper implements, and in the prescribed way, could render this momentous work comparatively an easy one. The facts and truths you teach, are those from a source that never deceives or disappoints. You impart Bible truths truths substantial and abiding, as the Throne from whence they emanate. It becoming the line then of your duty, to enlist the attention of your Scholars, and bring their minds to bear, upon and be taken up till they as it were, become assimilated with the truths you teach But mark! Although you may have riveted their attention, so that they become thoroughly enlist, 'grounded and settled' in those truths still your work has just begun A seed that has been planted, after the process of steaming and eventually shoots forth will then require every attention and care of nurturing pruning and divesting it of all wild weeds and destructive insects, before you could expect good fruit. And you will find this necessary even with trees of large growth. Some poisonous insect may get into a limb of the branch of a tree. Sometimes in one of its twigs, which if not timely pruned may eventually cause the death of the tree. So it is also with your work. Your duty and aim is to bring them to Christ. To effect this and especially to counteract the mighty fictions, that are antagonistic in their influences, against your endeavors, it behoves every teacher to act in accordance to their profession, both in and out of the Sabbath School. What you teach and profess to be in School in word should be carried out in life out of School. The Sunday School is in a sense the Church of the Children, even Children of larger growth. They should be so treated there, that they will feel quite lonely. The Sunday School should be made to take the place of home, for the homeless and a mother to the motherless. Many Scholars have homes and mothers, from whom they could hardly realize the true and tender attention which those endearing words are said to give. In the Sunday School such ones find a relief in the consolations and kindnesses that their teachers impart. They will never fail feeling captivated by kind treatment in the Sunday School. Teachers should therefore be the Scholars friend amid the sorrows, uncertainties disappointments and temptations of life.

In a sense, teachers are pastors of the Sunday School. And as such, you have no right to do what your Church pastor should not do, nor go where you would not expect to meet him. Your example and character should be teachers as well as your eyes and lips. To be this, you should love your Scholars. Without love you cannot teach them. You must love not only the gentle but also the froward. You should not be partial in your love. Children especially are very good judges of partial notice and regard. Do not love Maria because Maria's mother is your best friend, or Willie because Willie's father is your employer, or Charley because he he has some smart winning ways that attract your fancy; but love the rudest, the unruly, the refractory and contumacious, and the degraded. Love him as you are a teacher. But if for no other reason, love him for the one thought: that under or inside that rude, ragged or selfish exterior, lies an immortal soul, to be found cleansed and made fit for Christ's heavenly kingdom. Love in a because God loves him. Love in because Christ dies for him, and he should be made to know this and not be despised. Love begets love. Love begets confidendence. Love gives you complete and entire control over your Scholars. Gentleness then ought to color the manners regulate speech and diffuse itself over the whole behavior of a Sunday School Teacher. Not only should they be gentle in manners but should also avoid all harshness of of expression irascibility of temper and disposition and Speak gently—

1 'Speak gently' wrote the venerable Dr. Bates for it is better far to
To rule by love than fear
Speak gently let no harsh words mar
The good we might do here.

2 Speak gently to the little child
Its love be sure to gain
Teach it in accents soft and mild
It may not long remain

3 Speak gently ! to the aged one
Grieve not the care worn heart
The sands of life is nearly run
Let such in peace depart

4 Speak gently ! kindly, to the poor
Let no harsh tone be heard
They have enough, they must endure
Without an unkind word

5 Speak gently ! to the erring ;
Know they must have toiled in vain
Perhaps unkindness made them so
Oh ! win them back again

6 Speak gently ! 'tis a little thing
Dropped in the hearts deep well ;
The good, the joy, which it may bring
Eternity can tell ——— therefore, Teachers,

Speak gently ! To be continued.

The Early Dawn

BONTHE, JANUARY 31, 1891.

REV. J. A. EVANS—EDITOR.

[EDITORIAL.]

The U. B. Annual Conference or District Meeting met at Rotufunk Station Bompeh Mission, on the North Branch of the Bombep River on the 21st inst. Bishop E. B. Kephart D. D. L. L.D. presided. It was one of the best sessions, ever held by this body, which directs the Work of more than fifty Workers ; a more extended notice will be given later on from our Special Correspondent Miss Groenedyke. Minutes will be found in this Issue.

A Great Revival,—has prevailed in Religious interest, in and about Rotufunk, Palli and Bompeh Stations along the Bompeh River.

Powerful Conversion,—Chief Sonnie Kassabbee of Rotufunk has been powerfully converted to God. And is now telling the wonderful story of Redeeming grace.

Temperance.—This movement is being pushed at Rotufunk, Palli, Bompeh, Rembee, and Shaingay, with vigor and success.

The Results of the Conference at Rotufunk anticipated.

It is said by one of old that as iron sharpeneth iron so does the countenance of a man his viewing it from the right standpoint undoubtedly one of the pleasantest events in the experience of a missionary, is the meeting face to face with his brethren at the annual conference with the Bishop or some other Representative appointed by the Board of missions to the chair. Before this issue gets into the hands of our readers, the Annual Conference of the United Brethren Church will have been closed. The conference has held its sittings at Rotufunk on the 21st. of January this year, under the genial presidency of Bishop Kephart, D. D. L. L. D. to answer questions which the Board in America requires to be put to each worker, to arrange for appointments, and deliberate and discuss in extenso the business of the year. Leaving out of course the somewhat tedious ordeal of balancing schedules and accounts, and of tallying estimated income with expenditure, and forgetting the momentary flashes of surprise the said schedules and accounts are at times calculated to incite, the gathering is generally a happy one for all, as a time of sharpening, as well as a time of refreshing from the presence of the Lord after the toils and vicissitudes of another year. The Conference has before it a wide field, but happily it has been compressed into smaller areas or rather split up into Districts and comparatively smaller sections, and yet each brother has enough work to do. We trust, being guided by Holy Spirit in its deliberations, that the Conference will devise liberal thing interior scheme to put brethren will return to th renewed consecration of themselves unto God, and that they will be stimulated to fresh diligence and self denial in the cause of the Master.

Face to face with heathenism the brethren need a granite faith, and a love strong and pure enough to make well-doing well nigh an instinct. We will not lose sight of the fact, that a grant of thousands of dollars are required too for the carrying on of the work in these regions. While we heartily thank the good people of America for the amount of money spent for the amelioration of the condition of the aborigines in this part of the world, yet we would not disguise the fact that self support so far as these West African missions are concerned is out of the question at present. It is to be hoped that the state of things will be laid before the Bishop in Conference, and that the Bishop has from his personal visit observed that self-support is out of the question at present. We congratulate the brethren in advance and wait with anxious expectation to be furnished with the proceedings of the conference.

Freetown—we hear of good work being done among the natives of the regions beyond who find their way into the City, the leading workers in this department, appear to be the American Wesleyan Missionaries and their helpers Messrs. Cooding and Trice of the Y. M. C. A. Mission have gone to Magbullah and other Places in that direction for Missionary work. But we regret to note that since they left Miss Dick of the same Mission has died being the fifth one of the party who have died.

Rev H. W. Johnston Pastor of St. John's Freetown has with his wife returned to the United States. Three new missionaries are expected for Mr. Kingmans Party shortly.

The Gospel Banner Hall—lately completed in Freetown for the religious instruction of the Timnes and other country heathen was opened on the 14th inst. Professor Cole was the principal speaker as well as the principal promoter in the work. It will be remembered that we mentioned this as the interprise of the Rev. H. W. Johnston (Pastor St Johns) in a previous Issue and we are pleased to note the completion of the same.

CORRESPONDENCE.

Wesleyan Missions.

Pursuant to previous announcement and public notice the Anniversary sermons of the above Missions were preached in the Wesleyan Church on Sunday the 11 instant at 11 a. m. by Mr. J. Macaulay the Catechist in charge of Mo. Moseley and at 7 p.m. by the Rev. J. C. Thomas the Superintendent of the Sherbro Mission. Mr Macaulay took his text from Acts 9. 6. and endeavoured to impress upon the congregation that each one should have something to do for the Lord. For the evening discourse Mr Thomas selected Isaiah 42 1—4 in from which in explaining he succinctly impressed upon his audience the deplorable condition of the world without a God ; and that God in the entire absence of wisdom and ability in man to suggest a remedy to meet the case, himself suggested and provided such remedy in the person of [illegible] Only begotten son, who was [illegible] to succeed in his work in spite of the opposition of foes. After describing the unostentatious manner in which the work is being accomplished Mr Thomas close by encouraging all to help in the carrying on of the great work. It is to be hoped that the sermons of that Sabbath would serve as an incentive to further the interest of the congregations in Missionary operations. The Sabbath services were followed by a public meeting at 7 p m. the next day. After the preliminaries Pastor Thomas expressed his regret at the unavoidable absence of the expected chairman who sent a guinea to him as plate collection, as also that of another gentleman who sent him the same amount ; and called upon M. H. Davis Esq, the veteran journalist of Freetown, who is on a visit to this place to occupy the chair. After an appropriate speech the chairman called upon the Secretary to read the report. The report although concise was full and somewhat encouraging. The Financial position showed a slight decrease. Two resolutions were spoken to. The 1st. Resolution reads thus—

That the report which has been read be adopted ; and that this meeting, in consequence of the immediate demand for evangelistic work among the aborigines in the outlying fields and on this Island in its entirety, and of the demand of the increase on the agencies at work ; recognizes it as the duty of the Christian Church to betake itself to prayer that the Lord of the harvest may thrust forth labourers into His harvest.

Moved by Mr M. J. W. Rocks, Commandants Clerk, seconded by Postmaster Williams, and supported by the Rev. O. Moore.

Mr Rocks in an able manner frankly pointed out the barrier in the way of evangelizing the aborigines, and stated that all attempts would be fruitless unless that barrier be removed which is men of position in society visiting the firkins for social purposes and participating in the superstions of the aborigines etc. He brought forcibly to the mind of the audience that example is better than precept.

The Postmaster humorously said that he would answer to the enquiry, why he should be on the platform ? thus—so long as it was a good cause he felt his duty to be there and to do all he could. He urged upon all to give largely that the purport of the resolution might be carried out.

The Rev O. Moore stated the pleasure after led him to be present to address the assembly, and could not but remark that whenever he visited Bonthe it was his fortune to attend and speak at the Wesleyan Missionary Meeting. He excellently supported the resolution and congratulated the Wesleyans at Bonthe in having a pastor in the person of Mr Thomas who had kept to his post for ten consecutive years in a place where others declined to labor. 2nd Resolution—

That this meeting, in consequence of the slight decrease in the Missionary income resulting from the hardtimes, prays that the Lord of the times may graciously smile upon his people, and that the Spirit of liberality may be richly poured upon Christians in general, that the Committee might be placed in a position to respond to the Calls and piteous entreaties for help which come from the various parts of Western Africa.

Moved by the Rev J. A. Evans, seconded by Mr W. D. Pasha, supported by Mr Goldsworthy Pratt. Mr Evans in an eloquent manner enlisted the sympathy of the audience, with the piteous calls and entreaties that come from various parts of Sherbro.

Mr Pasha made the Collection speech and did well and at the same time disabused the minds of the congregation of the notion that money must come from the Missionary Committee.

Mr Goldsworthy Pratt in a few sentences ably supported the resolutions On the whole the anniversary was a decided success. A vote of thanks to the Chairman and the Doxology and Benediction brought the meeting to a close at 9 p. m.

The Eleventh Meeting of the Sherbro District.

Held at Rotufunk, Bompeh Mission Wednesday Jan. 21st. '91.

Bishop E. B. Kephart called the meeting to order at 2 p. m. and read from Matt. 5th. chapter. The Hymn " Rock of Ages " was sung and the Bishop led in a fervent prayer. After further devotional excercises the Bishop made an address to the members of the Conference.

The Roll was called all the members being present except W. S. Sage, J. M. Lesher, H. J Weeks, J. B. W. Johnson, and J. C. Sawyerr.

D. F. Wilberforce was appointed secretary of the meeting. The Bar of the Conference being fixed. The Rev J. B. Frederick of the A. M. E. Church of Freetown, and all the other workers not members of Conference, were admitted to advisory privileges. It was agreed that the Chair appoint all Committees. The time of the meeting was arranged to be at 7 a.m. and 2 p. m and to adjourn on motion. The following Committees were announced Devotion, R. N. West, J. A. Evans.

Candidates for the Ministry—D. F. Wilbertorce R. C. Taylor.

Elders Orders—Evans, West.

Boundary & Finance. Gomer, West, Evans, Morrison, Wilberforce.

Publishing Interests Mrs West-Correspondents—for Telescope With-force.

" Evangel—Mrs Miller.

" Miss. Visitor—J. Gomer.

" Early Dawn—Miss Groenendyke.

" Miss. Review—Miss F. Williams.

" Weekly News—S. B. Morrison.

Sunday School Fund J. Gomer.

Rev J. Gomer as the Presiding Elder of the Shaingay Dist. read his report. (See Report and Statistics.) Ordained moral character passed.

The Devotional Committee announced that the Rev. J. R. Frederick will preach this evening. On motion the meeting adjourned with a Benediction by Bro. J. A. Evans.

Second Day—Morning Session.

The Bishop called the Conference to order at the appointed hour. After the Roll call the business of the meeting began with the reading of the Presiding Elder's report of Mendi Mission District by Rev. J. A Evans. Bro. Evans report and character passed. [see report and statistics.]

Rev. R. N. West read the report of Bompeh mission District which was received and the Bro. passed as to moral & official character.

Rev. W. S. Macauley and his work were examined and passed.

The Mando work in charge of Mr. N. E. O. Thompson was examined. This charge has 47 appointments and in charge of two itinerants.

Bro. S B. Morrison in charge of Avery station reported 68 appointments. The report of his work was received and his character passed.

Cookonany with 12 appointments is in charge of Mr. Deco. Cole. During the examination of that work, it was stated that Bro. Cole had given a recommendation or certificate of membership to a man who was living in adultery. He explained that at the time of giving the certificate the man had sent away the woman. On the whole the Bishop advised caution and thought it a better way to take off the books all such names unless there was real work of repentance and reform.

Rev. R. C. Taylor had resigned his work during the year, but in his examination expressed his intention to a charge this year. He passed.

Bro C. A. E. Campbell made some statements with reference to his school work at Good Hope. His name was passed.

Bro. E. C. Bickersteth pastor of Shaingay reported that there were 15 appointments and a hopeful condition of the work was evident ; his character passed.

Mamboe station with 26 appointments is in charge of T. D. Chambers and A. D. Barnett. Bro. Chambers gave a hopeful view of the situation and [illegible].

Rev. J. C. Sawyerr being unavoidably absent was represented by Mrs. Sawyerr who in reply to questions from the Bishop, stated that they were doing well at Kooloonge Station and that work was encouraging. Bro. Sawyerr's character passed. Kooloonge station has 12 appointments.

Otterbeir Station was represented by Mr. A. F. Campbell. There were 12 appointments which were doing well. There had been losses by deaths removals and dismissals but the remaining members were faithful.

Bro. F. M. Stewart of Rembee Station, reported 16 appointments as those visited by him. Being alone at Rembee, and having much to do he could not visit the remaining five appointments. His character passed.

Bro. H. J. Williams who is in charge of the newly opened station at Yorgboro, reported that the hopeful and encouraging nature under which the work began, had continued. He visited regularly 14 towns. His character passed. On motion the meeting adjourned with Doxology and Benedictio.

Second Day—Afternoon Session.

The devotional exercises were conducted by Bro. J. A. Evans. The minutes of the previous meetings were read and approved. The Committee on the 1st years course of reading reported that some of the Brethren had procured the required books, but too late in the year to read all the books : others did not have the books but promised to secure them soon. The Committee recommends that these Brethren, be continued in 1st year's course of reading. The report and recommendation was approved. The Report of the Committee on Boundaries was read and adopted.

Bro. R. N. West made extended remarks touching missionary work in the interior He gave an account of a trip made in the interior as far to Bogo, there were large towns, a dense population, and withal a rich country. He urged immediate occupation of the territory. Bro R. C. Taylor was called upon to give some account of the trip made by him in the Boom and Kittam countries a little over a year ago.

The Report of the Committee on Church erection interests was read, and called up quite a discussion, after which the report was adopted.

The Committee on Devotion announced that Bro Evans would lead the evening meeting—Adjourned on motion.

Third Day—Morning Session.

The meeting was called to order by the Bishop at the appointed hour.

At the conclusion of the Devotional Exercises, the business of the meeting began with roll-call and the reading of the minutes of the last session. The name of Bro. Weeks was called. He being absent, Bro. Evans stated that Bro. Weeks did not have an appointment, but had been engaged in connection with the Daymah work.

Rev. J. B. W. Johnson's name being called, he gave some account of his work in the Bompeh circuit. This circuit includes 67 towns. His character being passed the name of D. F. Wilberforce was called and passed.

The Committee on Second Year's reading Reports as follows.—We your committee on Second Year's course of Reading beg leave to report that we have had before us for examination, Bro. S. B. Morrison and that he has given satisfactory answers on the subjects required and we recommend that he pass to the Third Year's Course. —J. A. Evans, R. N. West.

Commitee on Moral Reform read its report which elicited very strong remarks after which the report was adopted.

The Committee on education read its report, which was also interestingly discussed and adopted.

(To be continued)

ADVERTISEMENT.

PUBLIC NOTICE

FOR SALE, OR TO LET.

All that Building situate and lying at TONGEH, in the Bargroo District, commonly known as

Topgeh Factory,

with all out-houses belonging thereto.

For further particulars apply to

C. W. JAMANY, Master Blacksmith.

Victoria Rd. Bonthe Sherbro
Jan 31st. '91.

LOCAL ITEMS.

A serious accident—occurred at the residence of J.B. Parkinson Esq. J. P. on Sunday the 18th inst at 6. o'Clock a. m. when a lamp containing kerosine oil exploded by the attempt a little girl made to extinguish the light. The girl had escaped : but on returning to take the burner of the broken lamp the flames of the inflammable oil caught the clothes she had on, before any of the other inmates were aware ; she was burnt from her head to the ankles. The result was that in spite of all medical help the poor girl died three days afterwards. We tender our condolence to the bereaved mother, and to Mr Parkinson and family for the loss they have been called upon to sustain by such disaster.

It is with the profoundest sorrow that we record the death of Mrs Rocks, the wife of Mr M. J. W. Rock the Commandant's clerk of this place. Which occured on Sunday morning the 18th inst. Her remains were taken from her residence to the Wesleyan Church where an impressive funeral, service largely attended was conducted by the Rev. J. C. Thomas who read the psalms and Mr Macauley who read the lesson ; thence to the Mendi Mission cemetry, for interment. Mr Rocks joined in the Benediction at the cemetry offered a very, fervent and impressive prayer which brought down the tears from the eyes of nearly all present. She has left her husband, mother, and a child to mourn their loss. We deeply sympathize with Mr Rocks and the family in their bereavement.

Died,—Miss Mary A. Jowett Daughter of Revd. G. N. Jowett on the 25th. and Mrs. Dr. Jarrett Daughter, of C. B. Collier Esquire on the 30th inst.

In Freetown Miss Jenny Dick of the Y. M. C. A. Mission also a little girl the only grand child of the Hon'ble T. J. Sawyerr on the 19th inst. This is the largest number of deaths that we have been called upon to Chronicle in a single Issue in the history of our paper, which has now entered upon it eighth Volume.

The New Pastor—The Rev S. Hughes we are pleased to note has arrived and we believe entered upon the active duties of his Parish Mr. Hughes seems in every way a man adapted to the arduous task of the Pastorate of St. Johns Parish, and from what we have seen of him we are led to anticipate great and good things from his Ministration here in the Sherbro.

PERSONAL.

Revd J. R. Frederick,—of the A. M. E. Church of Freetown was present at the U. B. C. Conference held at Rotufunk Jan. 21st to 25 inclusive. Dr. Frederick is an able and consecrated man and his wise counsel and advice was of great help to the Conference.

Revd Jacob Miller,—lately arrived from America with his wife for the Bompeh Mission are at Rotufunk and we understand will have charge of the girls Home.

SELECTIONS.

From the Million.

The Spirit of Life.

"And after three days and a half the spirit of life from God entered into them, and they stood upon their feet; and great fear fell upon them which saw them.'—Rev. 11: 11.

Spirit—the soul of man,—the intelligent, immaterial and immortal part of human beings. According to the Scriptures, there is a diversity of spirit—a difference—dissimilitude—unlikeness of spirit, such as a good spirit, an evil spirit, a proud spirit, a humble spirit, a revengeful spirit, a forgiving spirit, spirit of adoption, spirit of anti Christ, of bondage, a broken spirit, spirit of burning, of counsel of divination, a dumb spirit, earnest of the spirit, spirit of error, of truth, faithful spirit, spirit of fear, foul spirit, spirit of jealousy, of knowledge, of judgment of glory, of meekness, new spirit, patient spirit, perverse spirit, poor spirit, spirit of promise, spirit of prophecy, spirit of slumber, sorrowful spirit, unclean spirit, spirit of whoredoms, spirit of understanding, spirit of wisdom, wounded spirit,—with those too numerous to mention in a limited article.

The spirit of life is universal: it does not manifest character or condition. The evil as well as the good possess it to the same degree, extent of purpose.

The Scripture cited at the head of this article was the occasion of the resurrection of two witnesses who were slain by the malice of the people against whom they prophesied. God permitted his servants to be slain; but after three days and a half He raised them from the dead, and they heard a great voice from heaven saying unto them Come up hither. And they ascended up to heaven; and their enemies beheld them. And the same hour was there a great earthquake, and the tenth part of the city (which spiritually is called Sodom and Egypt) fell, and in the earthquake were slain of men seven thousand; and the remnant were affrighted, and gave glory to the God of heaven.' God's witnesses may be slain, but they shall rise again—not only in their person till the general resurrection, but in their successors. God will revive his work when it seems to be dead in the world.

The power by which they were raised—the spirit of life from God entered into them and they stood upon their feet. God put not only life, but courage, into them; He can make the dry bones to live. It is the spirit of life from God that quickens dead souls, His dying interests in the world, and shall quicken the dead bodies of his people. O, how encouraging the thought! God will restore the dead to life again. The spirit of life from God will enter the graves of sleeping dead and they shall arise from their lowly beds, and the spirit of life from God which once animated them, shall animate them again.

The spirit of life! what a spirit it is! could to God that there was no other spirit in the world! There is beauty in the deep, blue sea,—the waves are higher than the sky and solidly do the 'seas gems glow' and sparkle in the depths below.' There is beauty in the summer woods—the oak, the forests pride the—leaves that glitter in the noon day sun. There is beauty in the mountain vale, the meadow and its soft green grass waving in the air, and the brook that goes murmuring by. Why? Because there is life there—the spirit of life is there. Oh, there is beauty—every—where—on land and on sea, in fields, and woods and meadows gay, on cloud-capped mountain summits, in valleys deep and wide, because the spirit of life is there.

O, happy hour when a loud voice from heaven shall be heard saying, Come up higher; Come home, my children, come home—cease, cease your mourning, Sorrowful ones! The grave will give back your dead—our dead. The spirit of life from God will enter that dear abode. O, Lord, how long! How long! O, our dear ones shall return to our fond embrace! O, loved divine, O, Helper ever present, be Thou my strength and stay! Be near me when all else is from me drifting—earth, sky, home's pictures, days of shade and shine, and kindly faces to my own upbuilding be love which answers mine.' Open to me some fair door among Thy many mansions, Lord; some sheltering shade where sin and sorrow cease forever, where green-house plants in a window, the river of Thy peace flows always through heaven's wide and green extended plains. And these lines, may you have the highest place in heaven; may you enter the gates of pearl and walk the streets of shining gold! O, may the spirit of the real life pervade every one, old and young, and little children every family and every community—the whole world! That life will take the place of law when e'er you meet a man, you met a friend, sincere and true; the prison house, where felons pine, would throw open its perilous doors, let in the light of heaven and grow into a church, where God would be worshipped."

Spirit of life! Beautiful spirit! Come from the celestial hills appear in every life and in creation wielded unto until 'rocks and hills, and brooks, and vales, become the messenger of the great Millenial reign—

J. M. GRAYBILL.

OLD LUCY.

It was a cold morning; there was no snow on the ground, but the gray sky seemed to hang low with the weight on it. The main street of the village was long and straight, with a gradual slope for a mile. One standing at the head of the slope had an uninterrupted view of the street for a long distance. This morning of the day before Christmas, at nine o'clock in the morning there were seldom many to be seen on the road; the men had all gone to work, and the women were rarely out of doors at any time. Most of them did their own house-work and seeing and an outdoor walk looked to them like an arduous undertaking. Not another woman in the whole village was on the street as much as Lucy Cragin, who was then going up to the slope. She was short and wide-shouldered. She planted her feet far apart, and walked with a kind of a stiff hop like a sparrow. She was rolled in old shawls, and wore a white hood with long ends which swung to her knees. She carried a brown cloth knotted into a bag.

Old Lucy's face was purplish red with the cold; she kept sniffing; fierce arse sobs clattered on the frozen ground. Once in awhile a woman looked out at her over the white curtains kept on stiffly.

Finally she strode into a driveway at the side of a large white farmhouse, trudged up to the side door and knocked. No one came, although she could hear voices in the house. She knocked again, and waited. Her face grew purple; the wind beat upon her back; at last she opened the door and walked into the kitchen. She settled down in the nearest chair and sat still, looking across at the cooking stove—waves of heat were swimming over it. Now she was in the house, the voices were quite audible; there were two of them, a woman's and a man's and they came from the sitting room.

The woman's voice was pre-dominant; it was shrill with grief and cried out. 'I can't have you going out West—I can't! And I don't want to pull up stakes, and go out there in the spring and I ain't going to. I ain't going to leave all my folks and the place where I was born and brought up, at my time of life go 'way out West. I ain't goin'; to, once for all, and you ain't goin', Hiram Lovering, neither, not if I can help it! I won't have you goin'!"

The man's voice opposed itself to hers like the face of a rock, 'am goin, said he.

The woman's voice swelled into a shriek. 'Goin off, and leavin your wife and home, on account of a wicked quarrel with all the brother you've got about nothin at all! You know he'd be glad enough to make up, if you was! Goin way out West!'

'No, he would'nt make up neither. I know John Lovering as well as you do. He loved ugly enough to kill me when I met him in the road this mornin. Thinkin I've been tryin to cheat him! I'm goin to get out of it. I'm sick of the whole business. I know him. If I tried to patch up, he'd turn round and laugh at me. I guess I ain't goin to scrim it. I ain't goin to kuckle down to him!

To be continued.

THE
Early Dawn
PRINTING OFFICE
PLAIN ARTISTIC AND FANCY JOB WORK
EXECUTED AT
SHORT NOTICE.
ENQUIRE OF
N. Samuel Brain
PRINTER

THE EARLY DAWN.

"The Morning Light Is Breaking, The Darkness Disappears"

VOL. VIII. BONTHE, SHERBRO, WEST AFRICA, FEBRUARY 15, 1891. No. 3.

The 'Early Dawn'

Published Semi Monthly at Bonthe, Sherbro. Under the Auspices of the Board of Missions of the United Brethren In Christ.

Rev. J.A. Evans, Editor and Publisher Bonthe, Sherbro, West Africa.

AGENTS.

United States—Revs. B. F. Booth and Wm. McKee, Dayton Rev. Wm J. Davis, Basil, Ohio Rev. D. K. Flickinger, Willoughby, Ohio J. H. Stoner, Manheim, Pa., Rev. G. W. Arnold Kidoroldo, Ohio.

West Africa—J. A. Richards, River Gora Rev. J. R. Frederick, and Mr E. A. Lewis, Freetown, Sierra Leone, Rev. James Deputy Marshall, Liberia, Mr. Moses S. Boyle Liberia.

TERMS.

One Year by mail,	£0	6	0
Delivered in Bonthe,	0	5	0
Half yearly by mail	0	3	0
Ditto. delivered in Bonthe,	0	2	6

Dear Mr. Editor,

I am requested to send to your valuable Journal for publication enclosed copy of Address presented by the African Brethren of the U. B. C. Missions in Africa to Bishop E. B. Kephart D.D. L.L.D, and his reply thereto.

Yours truly,
R. Cookson Taylor.

Bonthe 30th Jan. 91.

Rotufunk West Africa
26th January 91.

Bishop E. B Kephart D. D. L. L. D,
Dear Bishop,

We feel as a Body that we will be wanting in manifestations of gratitude, if we do not in some material form, show our deep appreciation of the social, charitable, and liberal manner in which you have conducted the deliberations of our Annual Conference.

Especially for the benefits derived by each of us as Preachers, Teachers, and Ministers of that Gospel which has been sent to us by the good Christians of the Church of the U. B. C. in America who have deputed you to come at this critical period of this Mission's history in order, not only to enter the exact needs of the Mission, but to inspire the workers with fresh zeal and energy.

That we deeply appreciate the efforts put forth by you to this end is the cause of this humble tribute.

We go forth with renewed zeal and energy to prosecute the Master's work, trusting in God's grace to do it so faithfully that at your return you may realize that your godly admonitions, advices, and exhortations have not been in vain.

That our good Lord give the wave Charge concerning you on your voyage homeward, and that you greet your family in good health, and your life be long spared for the good of our race and country are the earnest Prayers of—

Yours fraternally,

(Sgd.) D F Wilhelm
R Cookson Taylor
S Benj Morrison
J B W Johnson
W S Macauley
C A E Campbell
E C Bickerstath
Mrs J Thompson
H J Williams
F M Stewart.

Reply to Address.

Rotufunk West Africa.
26th January 91.

My Dear Brethren in Christ,

Please accept this paper as a faint token of my appreciation of the Address read by Rev R. Cookson Taylor from your body, to me, this morning. If my associations with you and my words of advice, have brought with them cheer and encouragement, and imparted an inspiration that may lift you to a place of higher usefulness in God's cause, I am content, and thankful to the Great Father, that my Mission among you has not been in vain.

The paper to which this is a reply, will be kept as a memento and shall always mark a bright spot on the page of my life's history.

May the God and Father of us all through our Saviour Jesus Christ be with you each; and may we all meet again 'in the morning.'

E. B. Kephart D.D. L.L.D
Bishop U. B. C.

ADDRESS

Delivered by Mr. C. A. E. Campbell to Scholars, Parents, and Teachers, of the Wesleyan Methodist Sabbath-School, Bonthe, Sherbro 21st. December 90.

Continued.

Every teacher should have proper implements for his work. The Bible is the teacher's chief implement. Each teacher therefore, should have a Teacher's Bible, with ample references. But beside this every teacher should also have a library. With a little economy and selfdenial any teacher could soon collect a few of the choicest Commentaries and Encyclopaedias &c. for his private library. He needs books as these and especially works on Sunday School teaching principles. But the most powerful of a Teacher's implements, is, prayer. To accomplish faithfully the duties for which he is enlisted, he should be prayerful. But is it not a fact, that in most cases, this implement is scarcely and sparingly, if ever made use of? This is to be deeply regretted. This neglect will no doubt account for the want of variation in prayers, in our prayer meetings. The prayers sound so much alike, that we would sometimes think, that God's providences are exercised alike to all.—However, Sunday School teacher, should endeavor to be prayerful. They should never go to the Sabbath School as a teacher, without first visiting their closet, and ask for the assistance of Him, who 'hid dark things from the wise and prudent, and revealed them unto babes.' And besides this, he is promised to give liberally to any, who lack of wisdom. Ah! Here it feels the lack of wisdom. He has the trouble. As teachers, they do not wish to admit that they lack wisdom. After the King ourselves smart in some historical truths of scripture, and jottings here and there of some classical and secular knowledge, we make attempts to gauge the doctrines of Scripture, with our finite wisdom, and adjust the sublime mysteries of revelation, with the crooked line of our imperfect faculties, and so at last find ourselves nowhere.

The fact, that 'As the heavens are higher than the earth, so are God's ways higher than our ways, His thoughts than our thoughts,' is lost sight of.

The narrative of the Ethiopian eunuch, should always be before our mind's eye. Although he was a man, high in the social, political, and no doubt in the literary status of his country, yet he was ready to reply as regards the portion of Scripture he was reading 'How can I understand, except some one lead me'! So ought every teacher to feel, in approaching Divine truths which they attempt to teach; and should therefore seek by prayer, the assistance of Him, who 'will lead, and guide into all truth.' So much at this time for your duties Again, the position of a teacher is important on account of the joys you give and recieve. These joys are various in their nature. There is the joy from the thought and experience, that you lose nothing by teaching instead of loosing, you will find that your intellectual activity is promoted by studying the Bible, your views and knowledge of Scripture truths are widened and develop; and the habits of daily searching for materials to meet your class, entitles you, to the eulogium of the Bereans of old, in 'that you Search the Scriptures daily, to see whether these things are so.' There is also the joy you have in knowing that you are loved by your Scholars: how pleasant it is to have the love and confidence of a single child. If I see a child quakes and frightens at my approach, I feel that I am ugly in some respects, and try by smiles and coaxing to win back its love and if there is joy from the love of a single child, what joy must there be when you are loved by a whole School! Again, the teacher is greatly rewarded in the gratitude of the Parents and Guardians whose children he instructs. They are thankful and will ever love, respect, and regard you. Besides this, the success of your Scholars in after life, will bring so many hours of satisfaction to you, especially when you can bring about the recollection, that it has been under God, through your instrumentality. As you see much of your Scholars that were, but have now become Leaders Exhorters Teachers and Preachers, there must be some inward satisfaction and you feel amply compensated for all your arduous task. But the inestimable joy of working for Jesus, and with Jesus, swallows up these considerations. This is the crowning piece. There is the inward satisfaction that you are accomplishing such duties that will tend to the promotion of Christ Church. You labor for Christ you are in accordance to his parting wishes and injunctions and you are glad to know that you will be a recipient of His Divine approbation in the ultimate 'Well done.'

And when with the redeemed both the teacher and scholars shall by the grace of God walk the gold paved streets of the heavenly Jerusalem when meeting with loved ones gone before, who have been saved through your instrumentality then shall you realize the soverendig raptures that 'the Lord has made you honourable among your brethren.' But this is all the bright side of your work. It may have been otherwise. It may be on the dark side. What then? It may be some teachers are greatly discouraged: they see no marked results of their arduous endeavors. They have toiled hard and long, faithfully and earnestly, but could realize, not even, an apparent point of success You feel like having 'toiled all day,' and yet 'caught nothing.' If there be any such among us to-day, who are weighed down by such discouraging results, let me briefly say to you, Toil on! Faint not! Continue, in all your weakness, and leave results with God. This short story perhaps will give you some encouragement and lend a stimulus for your perseverance. At a Sabbath School Convention, some of the ministers and Teachers of the several stations composing the District, were giving glowing accounts of the increase and progress of their work and how their Sabbath Schools especially were increasing in numbers and interest: when one of them as it came to his turn, surprised the assembly by saying 'I have listened with the greatest admiration and delight to the accounts given by these dear brethren; but I have no such stories to tell—To the best of my ability I have lived labored and preached for 20 years and I know not if with any success but said he there is one thought which cheers me.

My master will not say in the day of Judgment 'Well done good and successful servant' but 'Well done good and faithful servant' This is enough. I say then to all despondent teachers Labor on. Your labor will not be in vain in the Lord. Your toil alone even without results from a human point of view if faithfully performed is sure of a Divine approbation so let one and all "Press on! Press on! nor doubt, nor fear;

From age to age, this truth shall cheer
Though man may die, and be forgot,
Work done for God, it dieth not."

Concluded

Ye have need of Patience.

Sometimes, when reading our Bibles in a desultory and unconnected way as we all do at times we will be especially impressed with a particular topic word or text and for that hour and reading we seem to see that only.

It may be that assurance takes hold of our thought and we will read 'ye know' and 'we know' as it were on every page until the preciousness and beauty of it seem to smile to us limpid and clear in to our very soul.

Again we turn leaf after leaf slowly not understanding our great heart want and suddenly we begin to trace joy on every page until we find righteousness & peace and joy in the Holy Ghost are no abstract religious dream but a living and felt reality.

Again we will read of peace—the peace of God the peace that passeth all understanding—until our waves of earth ly trouble subside and are still within us with the holy peace of God—a sort of Sabbath stillness that hushes into rest memory a conscious monotone of pain.

So it was that in the chill of a winter midnight a tired woman seated beside a smoldering grate fire and the white ashes on the hearth were not more dead she thought than the burntout hope of her despondent heart.

The chime of midnight the chill of loneliness and the impatient repining of her unsanctified spirit caused a flattering sigh to pass her lips.

With a faint and nervelous hand she drew toward her the Bible beside her on the table. She turned its pages with trembling fingers. All day she has suffered with a rebellious heart—the worst suffering of all. But the faithful Promiser was near her; indeed he had never left her. Now he directed her to the lesson she needed most.

She read 'For ye have need of patience after that ye have suffered awhile.' And then she read of patient continuance in well-doing and that it was possible to be patient in tribulation. And as she turned the leaves she read the injunction to bring forth fruit with patience and of One who after he had patiently endured obtained the promise.

And as she thought of her own life that lacked sympathy that was fruitless for all her labor and full of failure her thorny path lonesome and walk with aching feet she read on, 'Knowing this that the trying of your faith worketh patience.' But let patience have its perfect work.' And finally, 'Now the God of patience and consolation grant you to be like-minded.'

Praying was easy now. The crescent moon hung low with one sentinel star beside her as the lonely woman passed to her rest. But to-morrow brought patience under unspeakable trial and new strength to bear an old wound. Be patient, therefore, brethren, unto the coming of the Lord.'—Sel.

The Early Dawn

BONTHE, FEBRUARY 15, 1891.

REV. J. A. EVANS—EDITOR.

[EDITORIAL.]

Marvellous Work.—During the past year most of the Missions of the U. B. Church have been very much hindered for lack of financial support and there has been a wonderful growth in the Work. The conversion and increase in numbers has been great, over one thousand were added to the membership during 1890.

Repairing.—The Mendi and Sivingay Missions are to undergo extensive repairing throughout all of their Stations. For which purpose, active work will cease at most of the Stations for a short time.

Mr. A. P. Boomabbey for many years the confidential Book-keeper of the Shaingay Mission will make his head quarters at Good Hope Station, and act as Paymaster and Book-keeper for both the Shaingay and Mendi Districts.

Bishop Kephart's Lecture—It was our pleasure to be present at Wilberforce Memorial Hall in Freetown on the 5th inst. when Bishop E. B. Kephart of the United Brethren In Christ Church of America, delivered a lecture on the 'Historic Past, which was considered by a large representative audience of the great metropolis of West Africa to be one of, (if not) the best lectures ever delivered in that place. And as a matter of course was highly appreciated by all who heard it.

ACTIVITY OF THE AGE.—There is nothing more apparent, at present than the exceeding activity of the times; everywhere men of push are in demand, and drones are being rapidly retired from the stage, even in Africa.

Self supporting Missions.—Seem somehow, impracticable for the present in Africa, or at least among the masses of the Heathen where the work of Missions is most needed. And if the Christians of the world would do what is manifestly their duty towards the heathen they need not to contribute less, but more to the cause of missions. However there is this hopeful feature about the matter that their money will accomplish an increased amount of good as the years go on. It costs much less now to do the same amount of work than it did ever twenty years ago from the fact that many of the difficulties have been removed. And even self-support will be attained but perhaps not in the way nor yet as soon as some would seem to desire or expect.

Bishop Kephart's Opening Address.

At the U. B. Mission Conference recently held at Rotufunk Bompeh Mission.

The Learned Bishop remarked that he was pleased to be in their midst and was glad to be able to bring to them good news concerning the prosperity of the Church throughout the United States. He had found the work of the church in conferences held by him, and others in a good condition financially and spiritually. He was also pleased too that the work here as seen by him in his visits to the stations was encouraging. He had been impressed with the seeming willingness of the people to hear the Gospel. He would venture to say that if the christian church had the required amount of money to send Workers to Africa that in the next ten years the whole country would be brought to Christ not perhaps in the attainment of the civilization or to the same degree as in nations long since civilized that have had the Gospel for 1500 years, for this would be impossible, the circumstances. One might as reasonably expect a child to lift a burden that it would require the strength of a full grown man to lift.

A christian man must live a pure life, if he would have the favor of God there is no room for a toleration of an impure life. Hence it is necessary for a christian to examine himself on these lines.

An Army of Workers.—It was stated by a speaker at the Rotufunk Mission Conference, held last month, that there are more than five Thousand college Trained young men and women, in America offering themselves now for work as missionaries in foreign lands. What a vast reserve corps of well equipped workers ready at any moment to enter the field should any now at the front be cut downs, by disease or death! But perhaps we should view it in another light. Has not the Lord raised up these laborers in order that the Church should thrust them forth into the whitened fields now ready for the harvest? Have they not been raised up in answer to the prayers of the Church that the Lord of the harvest would send forth more laborers into his field?

Bishop Kephart.—We believe I failed in Freetown about the 20th of Dec. and after a few days in the city proceeded to Shenge the head quarters of the U. B. Mission of the U. B. Church, where subsequently visited this place and many other stations of the U. B. missions; held the Annual Conference of the U. B. C. at Rotufunk thus also made several more visits to Shenge and returned first to Shaingay and afterward to Freetown reaching the latter place on the 3rd of February where we had the pleasure of seeing several of the leading natives in series of his own and other persuasions upon whom he left the sentence and benediction of his great loving heart. Words are inadequate to describe the actual influence of his visit to Africa. His last work among us was to deliver a lecture on the 'Historic Past,' able, learned, concise, eloquent, but without manuscript or even notes of the briefest kind. Yet in the delivery of which he pleased and astonished his audience and could well have done took his leave and embarked the same night Feb. 5th for England.

The United States Consul.—While in Freetown recently it was the pleasure of the writer, together with Bishop Kephart, Rev. J. A. Gomer, and Prof. Wilberforce, to visit Mr. and Mrs. Bolding Hunter, of the United States Consulate in Freetown, and were very pleased with the open hearted manners of Mr. and Mrs. Bowen.

CORRESPONDENCE.

A visit to Barboongah.

I left Mamboe on Thursday the 18th of December on a visit to Barboongah, a town in the Remlee District. Passing through Martyn, Marcomboe, and Yandoo, holding religious conversations with the natives, I at last got to the above named town. The headman of this place as I was informed is the Chief of Rembee who after a hearty welcome and a warm shake of the hand, inquired from me the object of my visit. I told him that, I am a missionary going about to proclaim the glad tidings of salvation.

He seemed to be much delighted in hearing this and said, he would be ready, at any time to listen to God's messenger. Mr. Martyn formerly an itinerant at Rembee was present.

But as he said he is not acquainted with the Sherbro dialect, I asked a man by the name of Pa Dick to interpret for me, to this he willingly consented I gave a short address from Matt 3. 1. 'Repent ye for the kingdom of heaven is at hand.' It was very pleasing to note how the people listenned attentively to the preached word, and received it with gladness into their souls. They were all, both young and old, very delighted with the address, and thanked me for having taken the trouble from Mamboe to that far away place. I left there at 2 o'clock and got home at sunset.

T. D. Chambers

Mamboe Station,
Jan. 5th '91.

U. B. Annual Conference.

The Annual Conference of the Mendi, Shaingay, and Bompeh Missions met at Rotufunk Bompeh River Jan. 21st 1891.

To God's messengers every where this is a season of especial interest and importance looked for and worked to as an objective point. This is quite true of our workers here. During the year each goes on with his own work, more or less isolated from his brother laborer, and at the close of the year come together to compare work and methods, to tell of battles hard fought—of victory and seeming defeat—to acquire new zeal and gain new strength to gird on more tightly the whole armor of God.

At the meeting were present 33 laborers employed in the master's service, by this Conference.

The sessions were characterized by unity and earnestness. The various papers were discussed with enthusiasm and showed a desire on the part of the workers to do effective work.

The Committee on Devotions arranged for preaching services every evening at some of which penitent souls came forward seeking salvation.

These services were conducted by members of the Conference and Rev J. R. Frederick of Freetown who also was an advisory member.

One evening was devoted to the cause of total abstinence from intoxicating liquors and tobacco. This evening was occupied by the Loyal Temperance Legion of Rotufunk enriched by impromptu speeches by the Bishop and Rev J. Gomer.

A very pleasant and profitable feature of the Conference was the presence of Bishop E. B. Kephart, D.D. L. L. D. of America, sent out by the General Conference of the Church to hold this Conference and one in Germany.

The Bishop's cheery disposition and sage advice gave added interest to the meeting and it is to be hoped that these timely visits will be continued.

On Sunday morning the Bishop preached an excellent sermon and officiated in the ordination of Messrs. Jacob Miller Jr, and S. B. Morrison, Mrs' Lida M. West, Misses Frances Williams and Ellen Groendyke.

On Monday the visitors began to leave for their respective homes and are again in the field and we hope ere we meet next year at Bonthe that we will have reached our aspirations for the year in the Lord's work and many souls will have been brought into the kingdom of God.—Ellen Groendyke.

The Eleventh Meeting of the Sherbro District.

Held at Rotufunk, Bompeh Mission Wednesday Jan. 21st, 91.

(Continued.)

Afternoon Session.

The conference convened again at 2. p. m. The committee on Third years course reported as follows.

As a Committee on the Third years course of reading, We have had before us Bro. S. B. Morrison for Examination, and have been convinced from his answers of the questions on the subjects required, that although he has not read all the books required, that he understands the subjects, and recommend that he be passed from Third years course of reading R. N. West J. A. Evans.' The report was adopted. The usual questions regarding candidate for elders orders having been asked and answered S. B. Morrison, was by a vote of the conference, referred to the Committee on Elders orders for further Examination.

The Report of the Committee on missions was read by Bro Bickersteth.

After some remarks the report was adopted Miss Frances Williams as Committee on Sunday School read her report, The report was adopted.

The Committee on Finance read the following report.

'We your Committee on Finance, beg leave to report the following that we have had meetings to assess the finance and have agreed to assess each member of the Church as follows—for

Missionary Aid Society	6d
Church Erection Fund	1d
Sunday School	1d
Preacher's Aid	1d

The Committee recommends that each person in charge of Station shall be held responsible for the collection of the above assessments by the Superintendent of each District.

This does not include the General Thank offering and local Collections. Committee—Gomer, West, Wilberforce, Evans, Morrison.

On motion the meeting adjourned.

Fourth Day Morning Session.

The meeting being called to order, Bro Evans led in devotional Exercise. The Roll was called and the minutes read which were approved.

Bro. Gomer was made—treasurer of the Church Erection fund. It was agreed that the funds of the Mission Aid Society be in the hands of the Superintendents of the Districts. The Committee on Elders Orders made its report that 'We your committee on Elders Orders beg permission to submit the following, That we have examined Bro. S. B. Morrison as required by Discipline and that his answers have been entirely satisfactory and that we therefore recommend that he be ordained'—J. A. Evans, R. N. West.

Bro. R. C. Taylor read the report on Temperance which was discussed and adopted.

Mrs. R. N. West read a report on Publishing Interest which was discussed and adopted—

Bro. Gomer presented the following resolution. "Whereas, for several years our conference secretary has labored faithfully from year to year without compensation. Therefore Resolved that a collection be taken for him"—

The Bishop read the report of the stationing committee which the prelaced with a closing address to the members of the conference.

The following resolutions were offered and heartily adopted.

Resolved; That the best thanks of this conference is due and is hereby tendered to Rev. R. N. West, and other Missionaries and Friends of this community for the very royal manner in which they have entertained the members and visitors of the conference.

Resolved: That We as a body vote our hearty thanks to Bishop E. B. Kephart, for the kind and efficient manner in which he has presided over this meeting, and for the sound and christian advice and counsels which he has given us from time to time during this meeting and we pray his safe return to his native land.

Stationing Committee Report.

Shaingay—R. C. Taylor, C. A. E. Campbell,

Koyonga—T. D. Chambers,

Otterbein—A. F. Campbell,

Mamboe—A. D. Barnett,

N'Charmany—W. S. Macaulay,

Rembee—F. M. Stewart,

Yorgborfor—H. J. Williams,

Mattacong—John C. French,

Bonthe—J. A. Evans, E.C. Bickersteth,

Avery—S. B. Morrison,

Koconany—To be supplied,

Rotufunk—R. N. West, J. Miller,

Bompeh Station—Mrs. J. Thompson,

Bompeh Circuit—J.B.W. Johnson

Masimera Mission—J.H.Parkes

Mendo—N.E.O. Thompson,

Mandh—To be supplid

Tongkoldoh—William Brown,

Damah—To be supplied,

MoFuss—To be supplied,

MoCobo—To be supplied,

Danville—To be supplied.

Standing Committees.

First Year—Evans, Morrison.

Second Year—Gomer, West.

Third Year—Wilberforce, R. C. Taylor.

Missions—Miss Frances Wms.

Church Erection—E. C. Bickersteth,

Sunday School—Miss E. Groenendyke,

Education—D. F. Wilberforce.

Temperance—C.A.E. Campbell.

Resolutions—J. Miller.

Bonthe Sherbro was chosen as the place for the next District Meeting.

D. F. Wilberforce Sec.

Report of Mendi Mission District of the Sherbro Mendi Mission.

Dear Bishop and Brethren;

Greeting in the name of our Dear Master and Savior who has sent us forth to labor. It is with much gratitude and thanks giving that I am permitted once more after a years labor in the field to report the success which has attended our labors on the Mendi Mission District during the year 1890.

At our last Annual Meeting the charges were all supplied. Avery having the two smaller charges of Mo Soolobo South and Mattroo attached. I will now proceed to notice each charge in order.

1st. Good Hope Station, the largest and most important of all the charges was assigned to Bro. R. C. Taylor with Bro. C. A. E. Campbell as assistant, and we entertained great hopes of a prosperous year, but unfortunately Bro. Taylor felt it his duty to resign in May on account of some complications. This has greatly hindered the work. Notwithstanding the fact the writer, and Elder of the District assumed immediate charge of the work but the management was too shorthanded to do all that was required and means were too much reduced to employ more laborers but I am glad to say that Bro. Taylor and others have done a good voluntary work. So that we report for Good Hope 76 Communicants and 278 Seekers Total 354 Members increase 2 Communicants and 56 seekers total increase 58. Collected for Missions £ 7. 3. 7 other purposes including amount paid by Government for Gaol attendance £ 30. 3. 5 total collections &c. £ 37. 7. 0 this is a decrease of about £ 30. from last year but is due largely to the fact that we had no one this year to visit the Districts beyond from which a large amount was collected in 1889. We have however during the year increased our attendance at the Good Hope Chapel as also the weekly collections and added the new Ebenezer chapel to the charge and greatly increased the spiritual interest among the natives as well as the English speaking people.

Avery has had a hard time during the year on account of Finance and shortness of staff with the infrequency of the visits of the Elder to hold quarterlies and otherwise direct operations. The spiritual interest has however been very good considering the circumstances Avery reports 30 communicants and 291 seekers a total of 321 which is an increase of 11 over last year's report, collected for Missions £ 9. 11. 0 for other purposes £ 5. 14. 11½ making a total of £ 15. 6. 0½ this is a little less than last year's totals; but like the Good Hope it dose not show a decrease but an incsease of interest in the line of collections. Danville next in order has been the same as last year has suffered the usual financial embarassment not within the province of this report to explain further than to say it has hindered the progress of the work, Danville reports 8 believers or communicants and 50 seekers a decrease of 8. Collections all told £ 2. 17. 1 which is less than the previous year, but when it is considered that the building of a chapel swelled the collections last year the present report is favorable and indicates progress. The Elder was only able to visit the charge once in person during the year and once by proxy. Bro. Domingo resigned and was succeeded by two Itinerants. Mano has not been visited at all during the year by the Elder for want of Funds the report shows 391 seekers on the charge again of 31 and from the reports there has been better spiritual interest in some places than last year. Kouconany,—has had a struggle during the entire year for the want of support, but the Brother in charge only resigned at the close of the year so that a full years work has been given to the charge, but of course under the circumstances little could be done hence there has been a slight decrease. The report however shows 6 believere and 147 seekers total 153 a decrease of 7 during the year. The collections have not been as good as they should have been, yet there has been a little more collected than appears in this report from some cause. Spiritually this year has been perhaps one of the best in our record and there are strong indications of more to follow May God grant the realization of the same.

Faithfully submitted
J. A. EVANS.

NEWS ITEMS.

Died—At Kola Building, 7 Wellington Street Bathurst, River Gambia Mrs. Elizabeth Davies paternal grandmother of J. A. Richards late of Kooloong Station on the 3rd. of Jan. 1891 aged about 90 years, leaving a son (J. D. Richards Esq. merchant) and a daughter (Mrs. E. A. Melbury) besides several grandchildren to mourn their loss.

Mr. C. B. Collier begs to return thanks on behalf of himself and family to his numerous friends and aquaintances for their kind expression of sympathy made to them in consequence of the loss of his beloved daughter Mrs. Julian Jarrett which took place on the 30th. ult.

Ven Archdeacon Robbin left for Freetown on the 31st Jan per s. s. "Susu"

Feb. 3rd—Countess from Freetown with Major Moore, W. E. Innis, and Inspector Taylor.

Rev. J. C. Thomas preached his farewell Sermon to a crowded congregation on Sunday evening the first inst.

Sub-Inspector Betts who left here some time ago for Bandasumah returned to this place last week.

CORRESPONDENCE.

A visit to Barboongah.

I left Mamboo on Thursday the 18th of December on a visit to Barhoongah, a town in the Rembee District. Passing through Martyn, Marcomboe, and Yandoo, holding religious conversations with the natives, I at last got to the above named town. The headman of this place as I was informed is the Chief of Rembee who after a hearty welcome and a warm shake of the hand, inquired from me the object of my visit. I told him that, I am a missionary going about to proclaim the glad tidings of salvation.

He seemed to be much delighted in hearing this and said, he would be ready, at any time to listen to God's messenger. Mr. Martyn formerly an itinerant at Rembee was present.

But as he said he is not acquainted with the Sherbro dialect, I asked a man by the name of Pa Dick to interpret for me, to this he willingly consented I gave a short address from Matt: 3. 1. "Repent ye for the kingdom of heaven is at hand." It was very pleasing to note how the people listenned attentively to the preached word, and received it with gladness into their souls. They were all, both young and old, very delighted with the address, and thanked me for having taken the trouble from Mamboe to that far away place. I left there at 2 o'clock and got home at sunset.

T. D. Chambers

Mamboe Station,
Jan. 5th '91.

U. B. Annual Conference.

The Annual Conference of the Mendi, Shiningay, and Bompeh Missions met at Rotufunk Bompeh River Jan. 21st 1 91.

To God's messengers every where this is a season of especial interest and importance looked for and worked to as an objective point. This is quite true of our workers here. During the year each goes on with his own work, more or less isolated from his brother laborer, and at the close of the year come together to compare work and methods, to tell of battles hard fought—of victory and seeming defeat—to acquire new zeal and gain new strength to gird on more tightly the whole armor of God.

At the meeting were present 23 laborers employed in the master's service, by this Conference.

The sessions were characterized by unity and earnestness. The various papers were discussed with enthusiasm and showed a desire on the part of the workers to do effective work.

The Committee on Devotions arranged for preaching services every evening at some of which penitent souls came forward seeking salvation.

These services were conducted by members of the Conference and Rev J. R. Frederick of Freetown who also was an advisory member.

One evening was devoted to the cause of total abstinence from intoxicating liquors and tobacco. This evening was occupied by the Loyal Temperance Legion of Rotufunk enriched by impromptu speeches by the Bishop and Rev J. Gomer.

A very pleasant and profitable feature of the Conference was the presence of Bishop E. B. Kephart, D.D. L. L. D. of America, sent out by the General Conference of the Church to hold this Conference and one in Germany.

The Bishop's cheery disposition and sage advice gave added interest to the meeting and it is to be hoped that these timely visits will be continued.

On Sunday morning the Bishop preached an excellent sermon and officiated in the ordination of Messrs. Jacob Miller Jr, and S. B. Morrison. Mrs' Lida M. West, Misses Frances Williams and Ellen Groenendyke.

On Monday the visitors began to leave for their respective homes and are again in the field and we hope ere we meet next year at Bonthe that we will have reached our aspirations for the year in the Lord's work and many souls will have been brought into the Kingdom of God.—Ellen Groendyke.

The Eleventh Meeting of the Sherbro District.

Held at Rotufunk, Bompeh Mission Wednesday Jan. 21st. 91.

(Continued.)

Afternoon Session.

The conference convened again at 2. p. m. The committee on Third years course reported as follows.

As a Committee on the Third years course of reading, We have had before us Bro. S. B. Morrison for Examination, and have been convinced from his answers of the questions on the subjects required, that although he has not read all the books required, that he understands the subjects, and recommend that he be passed from Third years course of reading to N. West J. A. Evans. The report was adopted. The usual questions regarding candidate for elders orders having been asked and answered S. B. Morrison, was by a vote of the conference, referred to the Committee on Elders orders for further Examination.

The Report of the Committee on missions was read by Bro Bickerstetth.

After some remarks the report was adopted Miss Frances Williams as Committee on Sunday School read her report, The report was adopted.

The Committee on Finance read the following report.

"We your Committee on Finance, beg leave to report the following that we have had meetings to assess the finance and have agreed to assess each member of the Church as follows—for

Missionary Aid Society	6d
Church Erection Fund	1d
Sabbath School	1d
Preacher's Aid	1d

The Committee recommends that each person in charge of Station shall be held responsible for the collection of the above assessments by the Superintendent of each District.

This does not include the General Thank offering and local Collections. Committee—Gomer, West, Wilberforce, Evans, Morrison.

On motion the meeting adjourned.

Fourth Day Morning Session.

The meeting being called to order Bro Evans led in devotional Exercise, The Roll was called and the minutes read and were approved.

Bro. Gomer was made—treasurer of the Church Erection fund. It was agreed that the funds of the Mission Aid Society be in the hands of the Superintendents of the Districts. The Committee on Elders Orders made its report that "We your committee on Elders Orders beg permission to submit the following, That we have examined Bro. S. B. Morrison as required by Discipline and that his answers have been entirely satisfactory and that we therefore recommend that he be ordained"—J. A. Evans, R. N. West.

Bro. R. C. Taylor read the report on Temperance which was discussed and adopted.

Mrs. R. N. West read a report on Publishing Interest which was discussed and adopted—

Bro. Gomer presented the following resolution. "Whereas, for several years our conference secretary has labored faithfully from year to year without compensation. Therefore Resolved that a collection be taken for him"—

The Bishop read the report of the stationing committee which the prefaced with a closing address to the members of the conference.

The following resolutions were offered and heartily adopted.

Resolved: That the best thanks of this conference is due and is hereby tendered to Rev. R. N. West, and other Missionaries and Friends of this community for the very royal manner in which they have entertained the members and visitors of the conference.

Resolved: That We as a body vote our hearty thanks to Bishop E. B. Kephart, for the kind and efficient manner in which he has presided over this meeting, and for the sound and christian advice and counsels which he has given us from time to time during this meeting and we pray his safe return to his native land.

Stationing Committee Report.

Shiningay—R. C. Taylor, C. A. E. Campbell,
Koolonga—T. D. Chambers,
Otterbein—A. F. Campbell,
Mamboe—A. D. Barnett,
N'Charmany—W. S. Macaulay,
Rembee—F. M. Stewart,
Yorgborfor—H. J. Williams,
Mattacong—John C. French.
Bonthe—J. A. Evans, E.C. Bickersteth,
Avery—S. B. Morrison,
Konconany—To be supplied.
Rotufunk—R. N. West, J. Miller,
Bompeh Station—Mrs. J. Thompson,
Bompeh Circuit—J. B. W. Johnson
Masimera Mission—J. H. Parkes
Mando—N. E. O. Thompson,
Manoh—To be supplid
Tongkolloh—William Brown,
Damah—To be supplied,
Mo Fuss—To be supplied,
Mo Cobo—To be supplied,
Danville—To be supplied.

Standing Committees.

First Year—Evans, Morrison.
Second Year—Gomer, West.
Third Year—Wilberforce, R. C. Taylor.
Missions—Miss Frances Wms.
Church Erection—E. C. Bickersteth,
Sunday School—Miss E. Groenendyke,
Education—D. F. Wilberforce.
Temperance—C. A. E. Campbell.
Resolutions—J. Miller.

Bonthe Sherbro was chosen as the place for the next District Meeting.

D. F. Wilberforce Sec.

Report of Mendi Mission District of the Sherbro Mendi Mission.

Dear Bishop and Brethren; Greeting in the name of our Dear Master and Savior who has sent us forth to labor. It is with much gratitude and thanks giving that I am permitted once more after a years labor in the field to report the success which has attended our labors on the Mendi Mission District during the year 1890.

At our last Anual Meeting the charges were all supplied. Avery having the two smaller charges of Mo Sedaboo South and Mattroo attached. I will now proceed to notice each charge in order.

1st. Good Hope Station, the largest and most important of all the charges was assigned to Bro. R. C. Taylor with Bro. C. A. E. Campbell as assistant, and we entertained great hopes of a prosperous year, but unfortunately Bro. Taylor felt it his duty to resign in May on account of some complications. This has greatly hindered the work. Notwithstanding the fact the writer, and Elder of the District assumed immediate charge of the work but the management was too shorthanded to do all that was required and means were too much reduced to employ more laborers but I am glad to say that Bro. Taylor and others have done a good voluntary work. So that we report for Good Hope 76 Communicants and 278 Seekers Total 354 Members increase 2 Communicants and 56 seekers total increase 58. Collected for Missions £ 7. 3. 7 other purposes including amount paid by Government for Gaol attendance £ 30. 3. 5 total collections &c. £ 37. 7. 0 this is a decrease of about £ 30. from last year but is due largely to the fact that we had no one this year to visit the Districts beyond from which a large amount was collected in 1889. We have however during the year increased our attendance at the Good Hope Chapel as also the weekly collections and added the new Ebenezer chapel to the charge and greatly increased the spiritual interest among the natives as well as the English speaking people.

Avery has had a hard time during the year on account of Finance and shortness of staff with the infrequency of the visits of the Elder to hold quarterlies and otherwise direct operations. The spiritual interest has however been very good considering the circumstances Avery reports 30 communicants and 291 seekers a total of 321 which is an increase of 11 over last year's report. collected for Missions £ 9. 11. 0 for other purposes £ 5. 14. 11½ making a total of £ 15. 6. 0½ this is a little less than last year's totals; but like the Good Hope it dose not show a decrease but an incease of interest in the line of collections. Danville next in order has been the same as last year has suffered the usual financial embarassment not within the province of this report to explain further than to say it has hindered the progress of the work, Danville reports 8 believers or communicants and 50 seekers a decrease of 8. Collections all told £ 2. 17. 1 which is less than the previous year, but when it is considered that the building of a chapel swelled the collections last year the present report is favorable and indicates progress. The Elder was only able to visit the charge once in person during the year and once by proxy. Bro. Domingo resigned and was succeeded by two Itinerants. Mando has not been visited at all during the year by the Elder for want of Funds the report shows 301 seekers on the charge again of 81 and from the reports there has been better spiritual interest in some places than last year. Konconany,—has had a struggle during the entire year for the want of support but the Brother in charge only resigned at the close of the year so that a full years work has been given to the charge, but of course under the circumstances little could be done hence there has been a slight decrease. The report however shows 6 believers and 147 seekers total 153 a decrease of 7 during the year. The collections have not been as good as they should have been, yet there has been a little more collected than appears in this report from some cause. Spiritually this year has been perhaps one of the best in our record and there are strong indications of more to follow May God grant the realization of the same.

Faithfully submitted
J. A. Evans.

NEWS ITEMS.

Died—At Kola Building, 7 Wellington Street Bathurst, River Gambia Mrs. Elizabeth Davies paternal grandmother of J. A. Richards late of Kooloong Station on the 3rd. of Jan. 1891 aged about 90 years, leaving a son (J. D. Richards Esq. merchant) and a daughter (Mrs. E. A. Melbury) besides several grandchildren to mourn their loss.

Mr. C. B. Collier begs to return thanks on behalf of himself and family to his numerous friends and aquaintances for their kind expression of sympathy made to them in consequence of the loss of his beloved daughter Mrs. Julian Jarrett which took place on the 30th. ult.

Ven Archdeacon Robbin left for Freetown on the 31st. Jan per s. s. "Susu"

Feb. 3rd—Countess from Freetown with Major Moore, W. E. Ianis, and Inspector Taylor.

Rev. J. C. Thomas preached his farewell Sermon to a crowded congregation on Sunday evening the first inst.

Sub-Inspector Betts who left here some time ago for Bandasumah returned to this place last week.

SELECTIONS.

OLD LUCY.

(Continued.)

'Goin out West in the dead of winter! Oh, dear! I never thought that I should live to see this! Oh dear!'

The sitting-room door was swung wide open, and the old man strode violently through the kitchen. He caught a hat off a nail, thrust it on his head, and went out. He did not notice Lucy.

In a minute a woman, catching her breath with sobs, entered. Her face was red and convulsed. She saw Lucy at once. Lucy's face had a solid expression; it looked as if she had heard nothing.

The other woman straightened herself. 'Oh, you are here watin,' said she, trying to make her voice steady.

'Yes, Marm.'

'Well, I dun'no as I've much of any thing on hand this mornin; I did'nt bake yesterday. Hiram is talkin about goin out West, and it kind of upset me. I'll see what I can find.'

She went into the pantry, and presently emerged with a plate. There were three biscuits on it.

'There,' said she in a very strained voice, that had an impatient tone in it—'there's everything that I've got in the house for you, and I s'pose they are dry. Every doughnut is gone, and there ain't a piece of of pie left. I don't s'pose you'll think it much, but I can't help it.'

Lucy arose, took the biscuits and put them into a corner of her knotted bag. 'It's all right said she; 'these will do well enough.'

'They'll have to.'

'They look real nice. It's a pretty cold mornin.'

'Yes I s'pose 'tis.' I ain't thought much about it.'

Lucy pulled her shawls closer around her, and tightened her hood strings. 'Good-bye, said she. 'Good-bye.'

Lucy clumped out in the road again; she walked a quarter of a mile farther, until she came to a handsome cottage with ornamental brackets under the eaves. When she knocked at the back door, it promptly opened. 'Oh, it's you!' said the woman who opened it. She had a delicate face, with dark lines under the eyes; her hands were white with flour.

'I don't know that I've got much,' she continued; 'I'm jest goin to bakin. Lucy is hurryin over her Christmas presents, so she ain't been able to help me much. Come in, and I'll see.'

Lucy went in, and sat down. A pretty young girl, with her lap full of bright silks, looked smilingly at her. An old man with a newspaper, and his feet on the stove-hearth, nodded.

The woman clattered dishes in the pantry. Presently she came out with one piece of apple pie on a plate. 'This is every mite I've got,' said she, 'and I guess this ain't none too good.'

"It's all right. I'm much obliged, said Lucy. She stowed the pie carefully in her bundle, but she did not offer to go for a moment. She looked at the old man beside the stove. It was seldom, when upon her rounds, that she volunteered a remark, except about the weather; she never gossiped. This village beggar bore herself with a reticent dignity which would have become a professor. But now she spoke. I've jest heerd, said she, that your brother Hiram is goin out West to live. There was a keen glance in her steady eyes fastened upon the old man's face.

The old man gave a great start. Who told you he was? he grunted.

I heerd him say so.

The old man, John Lovering, sat staring straight ahead; he was quite pale. His wife cried out sharply; There, said she, now you can see what you've done, John Lovering! Hiram feels so bad, he's goin out West he said so the day you had the fuss. There! he is the only brother you've got, and I should 'nt wonder a mite if you never see him again goin out there where they have all them dreadful winds and blizzards—a man at his time of life too! And all because you won't go over there, and make it up with him. I don't see how you can stand it, for my part. I think it's awful, and I'd like to know what poor Maria will do! I'm goin to leave bakin and go over there.

John Lovering arose. Don't you go over there one step, Nancy, said he. I tell you, once for all, I won't have it. Hiram told me right to my face that I lied, and I'm the oldest man. When he comes over here, and seems all right about it, I shan't open my head on the subject again. He needn't make no excuses, but he's got to come, and that's all I've got to say about it. If he wants to go out West because he wants to get out of sight and sound of me, he can go.

The old man took his hat, and went out with lumbering dignity.

Lucy arose; her face had resumed its usual impassive expression. Good-by, she said, as she opened the door; but Mrs. Lovering did not reply. She had gone into the pantry, where she stood with her apron over her face. The young girl looked frightened.

After Lucy left this house, she went straight back the way she had come. She had only some dozen regular places where she foraged twice a week and picked up enough food for herself and her old invalid husband. She was unable to work, as she could not leave him long at a time. She owned the little house where she lived, the town allowed her some fire-wood, and the dozen families bestowed upon her a variable and fragmentary sustenance. She had now been all her rounds, and the rude bag was still limp. The snow was begining to fall, and her old shawls were soon flecked with it. It was a fine, sleety snow, and it drove into her face and eyes. She bent her head before it, and kept on sturdily.

When she reached the Lovering house again, she stopped. Through the driving flurry of the snow she could see Hiram Lovering out in the yard, preparing to drag a wagon into the barn for shelter.

Mr. Lovering! called Lucy.

The old man did not hear.

Mr. Lovering! she called again.

Then he turned and looked at her; she began walking toward him, and he advanced hesitatingly to meet her. He had a handsome, nervous old face, full of anxous wrinkles.

What is it? he asked.

I've been over to your brother John's.

Well, what if you have?

I told him you was goin out West, and he acted dreadful cut up. I heerd him tell his wife if you come over there and acted the same as ever, he did n't want no excuses made, ner nothin; he'd be willing to let bygones be bygones.

The old man looked at her; he was frowning in a surly way, but his mouth relaxed.

You heerd him say that?

Yes, the amount of that.

The old man's face grew white through the swarming storm. Well, said he, I'm much oblige, Lucy. He had a look of suspressed delight.

Lucy did not smile at all. 'I thought mebbe I'd better tell you,' she said; then she trudged out into the road again. The storm thickened. She had a mile to walk against it. On the outskirts of the village, in a thinly settled neighborhood she drew up before her house. It was hardly more than acabin two rooms upon the ground floor and a loft above she had banked it all around with dried leaves and boards to keep the cold out. In a severe winter the structure was a poor shelter.

Lucy went in, and at once an irritable voice greeted her.

"That you?' 'Yes its me.'

'Thought you were never comin'. My back is terrible. Rub it can't ye! I want some of them hot drops out. Can't ye rub it? What ye waitin for!

The old man, yellow and distorted, his face covered with gray bristles lay on a bed in the corner. There was a chair near him, with a cup of water and a bit of cake on it. The room was quite warm and comfortable from a fire in a little box stove.

Old Lucy took off her hood and shawls, got the liniment bottle, and rubbed the old man's twisted, rheumatic back.

(To be continued.)

ADVERTISEMENT.

PUBLIC NOTICE

FOR SALE, OR TO LET.

All that Building situate and lying at TONGEH, in the Bargroo District, commonly known as

Tongeh Factory,

with all out-houses belonging thereto.

For further particulars apply to

C. W. JARRETT, Master Blacksmith, Victoria Rd. Bonthe Sherbro.

Jan 31st. '91.

THE Early Dawn

PRINTING OFFICE

PLAIN ARTISTIC and FANCY JOB WORK EXECUTED AT

SHORT NOTICE.

ENQUIRE OF

R. Samuel Thomas

PRINTER.

THE EARLY DAWN.

"The Morning Light Is Breaking, The Darkness Disappears"

VOL. VIII. BONTHE, SHERBRO, WEST AFRICA, FEBRUARY 28, 1891. No. 4.

The 'Early Dawn'

Published Semi-Monthly at Bonthe, Sherbro. Under the Auspices of the Board of Missions of the United Brethren In Christ.

REV. J.A. EVANS, Editor and Publisher Bonthe, Sherbro, West Africa.

AGENTS.

United States—Revs. R. F. Booth and Wm. Baker, Dayton, Pa.; Wm. J. Davis, Basil, O.; Rev. D. K. Ettinger, Williamsburg, Ohio; Rev. J. Sommer, Mannington, Pa.; Rev. G. W. Arnold, Eldorado, Ohio.

West Africa—Rev. J. A. Richards, River Gambia; Rev. J. E. Frederick, and Mr. E. A. Lee, Freetown, Sierra Leone; Rev. James Depue, Mr. Marshall, Liberia; Mr. Moses S. Boyle, Liberia.

TERMS.

One Yearly mail,	£0	6	0
Delivered in Bonthe,	0	5	0
Half yearly by mail,	0	3	0
Ditto, delivered in Bonthe,	0	2	6

Report of Bompeh Mission District.

For the year ending Dec. 31st. 90.

To the Sherbro Annual District Meeting.

Dear Brethren,

It is with deep gratitude to Almighty God for his abundant mercies, that I greet you at this time.

The Lord has indeed been good to us and has spared all our lives, and has poured out His spirit upon us in rich showers of blessing.

The past has been the most successful year in the history of the Bompeh Mission. It has been marked by seasons of fiery trials, of deep humiliation, of earnest crying unto God, and of victory.

The last Annual District Meeting made Rev. W. S. Sage Presiding Elder. He only held one round of Quarterly Meetings. Having been away on a trip through the Mendi country, in company with Rev. William Vivian at the time of the first quarterly meetings and having returned to America before the time of the third.

Good revival Meetings were held on each field of labor. At Bompeh Station thirty three persons, and at Palli three seven persons were converted. At Rotofunk I could not approximate the number of conversions as many were strangers from other places, who passing through were drawn to the meetings, and passed on again, and so were lost to sight, but I think that the number would not fall far short of one hundred.

The workers have all labored faithfully, and the Lord has signally owned and blessed their work.

At Bompeh Station, Mrs Thompson is working hard and while the chart will show but few members, yet she has been instrumental in leading converts who are reported elsewhere, they being led back in a measure themselves for further instruction. The greater number of those who are reported into full church membership. Besides the town of Bompeh [illegible] meeting in Caulker gave to the Mission a fine plot of ground for a Mission residence. The people of Bompeh have also given in Thank Offering the sum of £3. 0. 0 which I will devote to the erection of a house for the Teacher in charge.

On Bompeh Circuit Bro. Johnson is holding on faithfully. He is full of labors and has preached regularly at 6 towns, besides an occasional sermon at a number of the places. Bro. Johnson has at Palli a class of 37 converts, reported as seekers, many of whom should have been received into full membership in the church.

The collections at Palli amounted to £2. 2. 0. This I gave set apart towards the digging of a well which is greatly needed at their station.

The Mission property here consists of 160 acres of land and a Mission House and chapel combined.

There is employed on Bompeh Circuit besides the preacher an interpreter and one other hand. At Bompeh Station there is only employed the teacher and her interpreter.

At Rotofunk the work has been prosperous in the main. The new school house has been completed owing to the repeated failures to get the iron castings for the desks, which were ordered from America, more than a year ago. However two rooms have been occupied by the school since the first of June last.

In the Church and Sunday School work there has been a decided spiritual advancement. Lines have been closely drawn, and a vigorous and persistent battle fought against sin and impurity in in heart and life.

Much has been accomplished in direct personal work with the people in their homes, but so little time could be devoted to this work, that it only shows what might be accomplished with a stronger force in the field.

The Itineating work has not been very satisfactory, here owing to our having changed the plan of work at the begining of the year, so that the different workers were changed so frequently that they could not get enough acquaintance with the people to recognize who be long to the different classes. This together with the fact of my being away from the work during the closing months of the year made it impossible to revise the seekers classes connected with Rotofunk Station. Hence the number of members of seekers classes given is the same as reported last year.

While the above is true yet the Itinerants have done good work and the people in these towns have advanced greatly, and were I able to get at the true numbers, there would undoubtedly be a large increase, everywhere while altogether the Church will show an increase every where except in number of buildings and Schools.

There was collected at Rotofunk the sum of £19 15 3½ making the total collected in the Bompeh Mission District £24 17 2½ being an increase of £6 11 3½ over last year.

Rotofunk U. B. Aid Society.

This Society was organized in March 1888 for the purpose of carrying the gospel into places where it was not known. It received all the regular collections of the Church at Rotofunk and whatever other funds they may be able to raise.

The society had in its Treasury on the 1st. day of Jan. 1890, the sum of £33 0 1 and there was paid into the Treasury during the year ending Dec. 31st 1890 the sum of £15 8 9½ making in all the sum of £48 8 10½.

On the 20th day of last June, the society employed Mr James H Parkes as its Missionary and chose the Masimera country as its mission.

Mr Parkes went to the work on the 25th of June, and his report made at the end of the year after 6½ months work, shows that he has now 46 regular appointments with one organised seekers class of 40 members.

In these 46 towns counting the high est number that has attended the meetings at any one time giving a total of 8551 different people that have heard the gospel for the first time through his preaching on this work.

The society has expended on Mission the sum of £12 16 8 leaving a balance in its Treasury on the 31st day of Dec. 1890 of £35 12 2½ Periodicals taken, Telescopes 6, Evangels 9, Missionary Visitors 1, Lesson for the little Ones 1 Lesson Quarterlies 90, Bible Lesson Picture 3, U. B. Quarter Review 2, Members died 3, expelled and dropped 5.

Number of Towns reached during the year, 197.

Respectfully submitted—R. N. West.

Boundaries.

Shainay District to include Cartah Tessana M'Bureh and Kangamah appointments.

Rembee Station unchanged also Mamboe, Matacong, Tonkelloh, Charmany, Otterbeia, Manoh, Kooloonge, and Yorgnerfore.

Mendi Mission District—Good Hope to include Bomplake, Debia, and Bonthe Farkies.

Avery Station to include Mattroo, MoTasso, Yorkeh Gerehoon, and Tasoh.

Mando Station to include Bembelloh, and its Farkies.—Danville remains unchanged Konconanny Station remains unchanged Damah and vicinity.

Bompeh District—Rotofunk remains unchanged. Bompeh Station remains unchanged Bompeh Circuit.

Masimera Mission includes Masimera country and a portion of the Yonnie country adjacent. This is a new work supported by the Rotofunk Mission Aid society.

Church Erection

Whereas it is necessary to have suitable places of worship erected in some of the principal towns in which the Iterating work is operated, for the worship of the true and living God, therefore resolved—

1st. That a church building fund be established and amounts raised annually by this body, so as to enlist the sympathy of the kind friends of missions.

2nd.—That it shall be the duty of our preachers also to receive whatever amounts they may collect from the members of their Stations towards this noble work.

Missions

The great head of the church in his last charge to his deciples bade them to go into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature. Thereby delegating to men the great and important work of Evangelizing the world, and strengthen them in this duty promised "Lo I am with you always even to the end of the world." Feeling sure that he who has so commanded and promised is faithful to fulfil promise and knowing that if we do our duty faithfully, every obstacle is sure to be removed from our path, Therefore Resolved

1st. That we pledge ourselves to pray for an outpouring of His Holy Spirit upon all Missionaries that we be faithful and true to our calling so that by our lives and conversation, others may be brought to the saving knowledge of Christ

2nd. That we should adopt as our moto for the year "Be thou faithful unto death" and I will give thee a crown of life.

Moral Reform.

Recognizing the fact that the heart of the sons of men is full of evil and that the carnal mind is enmity against God and knowing the command of God that we should be Holy even as he is Holy, and whereas in this land as all other lands a good and upright life must accompany the preaching of God's word, in order to have the desired effect on the life and conduct of the people. And whereas the natives have many habits and customs which the word of God forbids and our sense of right condemn, and which are barriers in the way of their becoming a chaste and pies people. Therefore Resolve 1st.—That we as ministers and teachers first of all, by our daily walk to set an example before the world in piety, industry and cleanliness.

2nd. That we see to it that the christian sabbath is observed and honored as taught in the scriptures 3rd That we discountenance and discourage all such practices as the word of God forbids, and as are detrimental to christian progress. 4th That we insist that persons coming into our church attending our schools, adopt habits of truthfulness sobriety and industry.

Education

In view of the fact that there are more than 600 pupils in the day schools controlled by this conference and that through the church is their only chance for education and since God has placed in our hands this great opportunity of moulding characters and counteracting inherited tendences and daily examples. Therefore Resolved that in this company of pupils we recognize grand possibilities for for God and that we be not slow to use this advantage.

2nd. As an educated brain and an unsanctified heart is an abnormal development of humanity. Therefore Resolved that the teachers be careful to educate the heart as well as the brain and that the itinerants hold up to the people the advantages of an education and urge parents and young people to locate in towns where there are schools effective in the highest degree possible, and that there be a committee in America to cooperate with the board of education here.

3rd. Since God has endowed man with the possibility of individual independence, self reliance and maintainance

Resolved that manual labor be made a part of the educating of students in our schools.

Report On Sunday School Work.

Your committee on S. S. Work begs leave to submit the following report.

Recognizing the S. S. as an important department of church work—for next to the ministry, is by far the mightiest lever in the hand of God's people by which to raise this world from sin. And since the church is the parent of the S. S. we recommend.

1st. That each member of the church have concerning to do with the S. S. as officer, teacher or scholar.

2nd. That since the safety of the church depends largely upon the S. S. the minister should be the leader in this work. He should announce the S. S. from the pulpit, and urge his congregation to attend.

He should meet the teachers once each week to teach the lesson and aid in planning the success of the work. He should be present at the school to see that the instruction given is in harmony with that given from the pulpit, and to see that the doctrine of the church only is taught.

3rd. That as far as practicable a Sunday School be organized wherever there is a workers class.

4. That since the Sunday School Board as its last meeting proposed to prepare a series of printed questions on the lessons of the year, with blanks for answers and send them to all who may desire them, that the pupils, who are far enough advanced to do so, be urged by teachers and officers, to take these examinations.

5. That in all the schools where there are Bible classes the members of said classes, in addition to the study of the regular Sunday School lesson be organized into classes for general instruction in the Bible, and the principles of teaching the Word (or in other words, that they pursue the "Holy Normal Union course as laid down by the Sunday School Board of our church in America.

6. That we as Christian workers keep in mind that the Sunday School is that department of the church of Christ in which the Word of Christ is taught for the purpose of bringing souls to Christ, and of building up souls in Christ. And we seek to bring all the members of our schools face to face with Jesus Carist and when they are saved point them to the open doors of His church.

Respectfully Submitted

Frances Williams.

Publishing Interests.

The real strength of the church depends not upon the number but upon the intelligence and moral character of its members.

If we wish our people to sympathize and cooperate in the work of the church it is necessary that they should be acquainted with the doctrine and government, and with all the departments of church work.

No means should be neglected to educate our people in all that pertains to the life and work of the church and to this end, as United Brethren, we need to read books and papers written by and for United Brethren, on subjects suited for to their needs.

The books and periodicals issued by U. B. Printing Establishment at Dayton Ohio are exceedingly well suited to the wants of our people. They are careful guarded by the general Conference and not a single book or paper of doubtful character or unsound doctrine is allowed to be published.

The Religious Telescope is the official organ of our own church. It represents our church institutions and people. It gives such news as is of interest to our people. And no one can read it from week to week, without becoming a better United Brethren and a better citizen. And no one is fit to be called United Brethren who does not regularly study the affairs of his church as reported in his church paper.

The womans' Evangel The organ of the W. M. A. is especially written for men. Its special aim is to stir up the women to a sense of their obligation and privilege in the gospel and to teach them how to perform their part in the salvation of fallen humanity. And I would therefore urge that the wives of all our workers take the Evangel.

The Sunday School Literature of our church is fully equal to any published, and we cannot too strongly insist on all our Sunday Schools being liberally supplied. The Lessons for the Little Ones should be used in all the smaller classes. The Bible Lesson Quarterly in all those more advanced, and the Bible Teacher should be in the hands of every teacher. Our Bible Lesson Pictures are also a potent factor for good in making the School attractive and in fixing the thought of the Lesson. And after they have served their purpose in the Sunday School they are of great value in the hands of the itinerants, in symplifying and making attractive their teaching in the villages.

The Early Dawn is our own paper, published here in the Mission. It will give Mission news and represent Mission needs. It will be what we as Missionaries make it, and if we do our part faithfully by contributing to its columns matters of general interest it will prove of great value to our mission.

Respectfully submitted

Lida M. West.

Report of Shaingay Mission District

For the year ending Dec 31st '90.

Dear Brethren—I feel in my heart to thank God that I am spared to make this report.

Though the year has been one of sore trial and vexation the good Lord has been with us continually and has blessed our labors as the report will show. There is a slight falling off in the number of appointments, we still show 242 appointments. The total number of communicants and seekers is 3250. There are 15 paid itinerants and preachers besides volunteer students who have been of service to us—see chart for statistics.—

J. Gomer

Temperance.

There is an inveterate enemy at war against the Church, consecrating and opposing all important efforts put forth for the christianization and civilization of the race, and that enemy is Intemperance, and it is a wellknown fact that there are thousands of precious souls destroyed by this enemy, therefore Resolved.

1 That as God's Ambassadors we pledge ourselves to cry against this evil, and heartily support the temperance societies organized there, and at Shaingay by our prayers and otherwise, and will organize new ones wherever practicable.

2 That we shall in no case use, or offer to our fellow beings intoxicating drinks.

3 That we heartily sympathize with all legislations in this, and foreign lands to put down the accursed liquor traffic.

4 That earnest prayers be made in all our Churches to Almighty God for the ultimate crushing of this monster evil.

5 That we earnestly request that the Manuals published by the W. T. P. A. of America be placed in all of our day schools as a regular branch of instruction required to be taught to all of our pupils.

The Early Dawn

BONTHE, FEBRUARY 28, 1891

REV. J. A. IEVANS—EDITOR.

[EDITORIAL.]

Temperance.—It is indeed gratifying to note the decline of the opposition to the temperance cause in this section of the country. Some six or seven years ago it was opposed by nearly ev ery one on some ground or ot her, but at present men seem rather to drink because it is the fashion to do so and although they may offer a few words in defence of it are easily pursuaded or convinced of the evil of drink, so that while they are not pledged against it yet they are not far from the kingdom of Temperance—among the women the outlook along the line of Temperance is even more favorable than it is among the men. Hence to our mind that which is most needed is an effort put forth to gather the people into effective organizations for receiving instruction on the evils of drink and it would not be long before much could be done for the cause of Temperance among us.

Building and Repairing.—There perhaps, never was a time in the history of this place, when there was as much doing, in the line of building and repairing as there is at present. For while at times in the past as many might have been putting up or repairing. Yet it was never on so large a scale as now. This is encouraging and gratifying to nearly all classes for where there is such an interest in this line it gives impetus to many branches of industry and business. We notice especially the very large number of carpenter's employed many of whom, but a short time ago were idle. Many laborers too, have found employment in connections with this general movement. And it is further noticeable that a larger amount of cash is in circulation than has been for some time past. It is to be hoped that this building and repairing will continue until our town becomes thoroughly renovated as well as greatly enlarged.

Business Outlook.—That there will be an important business the comming season, there is little doubt but it is about equally certain that there will be considerable competition. However it is to be hoped that the competition may be of that healthy sort, that is the life of business. For such competition there is abundant opening in this vast Sherbro District with unlimitted resources only awaiting capital rightly directed and skilful management, all of which we trust are forthcoming. It should however, be remembered by every Merchant Firm and Agent that it is not the quantity alone of produce bought or Merchandise sold but the percentage gained on each and every transactions that will count in the scale of profits, and that profit is the real end for which business ought to be done. For some years past the quantity craze has played havoc with business, and the fear is that some men have not yet learned to be wise along these lines.

Returning Home.—The intelligence has just reached us from Freetown That the Rev R. N. West Supt. of the Bompeh Mission with his wife have fully decided to return home to the United States. The cause of this step on their part is failing health both Mr and Mrs West have been suffering at intervals for a considerable time, but they have fought against the Malady with the pluck of true heroism until they have been convinced that it is useless longer to endure, what cannot be remedied in this climate and have we believe very wisely determined to return to their home. May heaven's benediction follow them and in due time restore them to wanted health; and if so be the will of God bring them to us again.

A Definite Purpose.—It seems indeed very necessary that Missionaries coming out to this continent should have some definite purpose in view for it does not seem easy to form a proper course after landing here, in fact we very much doubt, if the Lord has ever called any to so come to this or any other field. But more especially does it seem necessary to have some definite plan in view when coming to this Coast, as the climate is so unsuitable to the health of most, if not all, foreigners, that they are very ill prepared to do much in the way of Planing for some time after their arrival. Of course we are aware that circumstances may and will vary the best laid plans, but we are decidedly of the opinion, that it is best to have a plan for circumstances vary and would say to any and all parties con templating missionary life in Africa to have not only a plan, but a definite purpose in view when entering upon their work here.

Promotion.—It is with pleasure that we learn of the promotion of C. H. Harley Moseley Esquire who has so long and faithfully served Her Majesty in this Colony in various capacities up to the position of Civil Commandant of the Sherbro District. In this latter capacity Mr Moseley has served the most years and won for himself many encomiums of public opinion. He now goes out from us carrying with him the love and esteem of all the good citizens of this District. We understand that Mr Moseley proceeds shortly to the Gambia where by this recent promotion he will assume the duties of colonial Treasurer and while we could have wished for a better appointment for Mr Moseley yet we congratulate him up this well merited success and believe that in due time he will beagain promoted.

Too much Religion.—We hear it gently whispered that there is too much religion in the "Early Dawn." of course excess in any given direction, is possibly improper, and should as a rule be corrected when duly pointed out. But if the above is really a fault of ours we were not aware of it and now we feel that the complaint should be made in writing and in such a manner as to be laid before our readers with suggestions how to remedy the evil if we have really committed any.

CORRESPONDENCE.

From a Special Correspondent.

To the Editor of the "Early Dawn"

Sir,—After a long silence eventually arising from the pleasure of my various callings here and there, you will be quite surprised to hear again from me. Therefore once more take up my pen to identify my usual interest generally participated in the internal and external affairs of Sherbro, during a long residence of over three years in that country.

In fact if any one had watched with deep concern and great anxiety the progress of your valuable organ, I have more than done so, and when your last issue was served me with; I became fully satisfied that my hopes were not yet unachieved and that still you are breathing the breath of a Journalistic life, aiming for us the public opinion of Sherbro's many illustrions and great as well as her poor and lowly.

I shall make it my duty which is quite incumbent on me to timely inform you of all recent current events in Bontown particularly those in church and state, so that you may gratify the desire of our many friends, whose lot it is to view us only from over the sea and far away.

Wishing you more success in your arduous undertaking and long life to your self—Yours as of old

SERAPHINO

Freetown Feb. 17. '91

Punctuality.

It would seem that there are a great many people in this world of ours, who can never get in, in time for any thing, they come in invariably late, but most of them are in a hurry when they do arrive. We find these belated mortals in all the walks of life. Some laborers are always just a little late to begin their day's work and often the clerk who ought to be at his post in the Establishment is the gentleman that is habitually late. Carpenters and other artisans are often afflicted with the same disorder. These all annoy and perplex the business of the particular Establishments to which they severally belong, and ought to be more punctual. But there is an other class of men in whom the want of punctuality produces greater inconvenience because they have to do with more people. I refer now to public speakers ministers, and school teachers. These have it in their power to be punctual to their engagements if they will only consider the time at their command when making appointments, or when preparations are being made to meet their appointments. But a man can never be punctual who does not make arrangements to be in time; the sluggard who lies on bed until a few minutes before the last bell rings for morning roll call cannot easily be punctual, nor can that teacher, minister, or catechist be on time when he sits in his house until the hour arrives that he should open his service. The want of punctuality on the part of these public men, is not only a hinderance to others, but it is bad in the example it exhibits to the general public

Yrs—Brit.

The Schools.

Mr Editor,—reading, listening, and gathering all one can from every possible source of ninformation it seems difficult to gain much help on the subject of Schools, of course I refer to day Schools as distinct from Sabbath Schools.

That sir, there has been some improvement in the last ten years, ought to be more appreciant than it is today, I am quite sure every one will agree with me in feeling and thinking; and yet at the present rate of proceeding are we likely to do more or advance a step farther in the next decade? I must say that to me it appears exceedingly doubtful; from the very fact that we have so little means of profiting by the experience gained in the work of Teaching. It is true every teacher, master & Manager may try to improve by his own experience of every previous year. But how much better it would be if even a dozen teachers could meet once or twice in the year to compare notes and discuss the various topics of interest connected with the School work; each would then be able to gain by the experience of his fellow teachers. Something then would be held out before each isolated worker to inspire him to efforts of observation in order to have something to present at the next meeting worthy of the consideration of his fellow teachers. Every teacher experiences difficulties, which in not a few cases, a suggestion from another teacher would have enabled him to avoid. These I consider unnecessary evils which every teacher should seek a means to avoid.

But possibly I am drifting from the schools, which is my subject, to the teacher, however every one will easily see that in a very large degree the school will be just what the teacher makes it; and that if the teacher is well informed in methods, managements, and letters and has a fair proportion of other conveniences he will keep a good school. This leads me however to observe that the matter of furnishing schools is so seriously neglected in many places, that one is led to wonder how any one can keep a school at all in them. It ought to be bourn in mind by managers that fewer schools better equipped would greatly enhance the cause of education. But let no teacher neglect his duty because his school is not well furnished more again.—Talker

PERSONAL.

Revd J. Gomer,—Supt. of the Sherbro Mendi Mission arrived hear on the 20th. and spent about three or four days in the interest of the work here.

Revd. E. C. Bickersteth—has taken charge of the Mendi Mission School in this place as head master. Mr. Bickersteth will be assisted by his wife and Miss Jane J. Jowett as also the pastor in charge of the Station.

Rev C. A. E. Campbell,—has for more than four years has been in connection with the U. B. Church of this place and in that period of time, he had gradually risen from a mere layman to the rank of a licentiate Minister in the Church, his work has abundant and his services highly appreciated. He left us on the 23rd for Shaingay Station; where he will be employed in the same great work.

Mr F. A. Anthony,—a former student of Rufus Clark Training School, has been recently appointed to Denville Station.

NEWS ITEMS

Small Pox,—The few isolated cases, of some form of an eruptive fever, in this place that rumor has dubbed Small Pox, will we believe soon be over and a thing of the past.

New Hospital, this has at all events become a fact, and far enough off to be satisfactory to those who have been interested expelling this useful institution from the town. But for the burial purposes it could hardly have been better located Sea Wall—The Government are pushing preparations for a better river frontage in this place.

From Freetown,—We hear that the Revd Misses Groenendyke and Williams of the Bompeh Womans Mission have returned to their Station at Rotofunk. These devoted and pious ladies were ordained by Bishop Kephart D. D. L. L. D. on his recent Episcopal visit to this coast.

Dr. Alice Harris,—We also learn is making a visit to Rotafunk, this is social and we believe will be helpful to all concerned.

Good Hope Station—Mendi Mission is undergoing considerable repairs and will present quite an improved appearance ere the rains set in.

The Church Pastorate,—Parsonage adjoining the Mendi Mission premises is also undergoing repairs.

W. C. T. U.—In pursuance of his promise to Mrs Leavitt Rev J. Gomer organised a Womans Christian Temperance Union in this place of 25 members on the 23rd inst.

The s. s. Footah,—that arrived here on the 26th. with Mails brought among other passengers Mr George Wetterwaldt to relieve Mr J. Morrison of the Firm of Messrs Pickering & Berthoud in this Place. Mr. Morrison certainly deserves leave of rest from such heavy duties as he has been performing since he commenced the work on their New Factory.

To Be Married,—Intelligence has reached us that Mr Isaac Ashford Maxwell Peters is to be married to Miss Emily Elizabeth Cole of Freetown on the 2nd. April proximo.

We extend in advance our congratulations to the happy couple.

Communication.

Induction of the Rev. S Hughes to the S. L. N. Pastorate at Sherbro

Per the s. s. 'Susu' which arrived from Freetown on the 22nd. ult. Venerable Archdeacon Robbin, and the Rev. S. Hughes, were passengers.

On Sunday, 25th. Jan. in accordance to previous notice given by the Catechist in charge, of St. Matthews Church was densely crowded long before the 2nd. bell stopped.

Immediately after the Choirs in their surplices entered the Church by the front door with Mr. C. S. Brown Jr. the organist at their head; and who officiated in the absence of Dr Jarrett who was prevented by unavoidable circumstances, to attend.

Mr. A. S. Yorke a member of the Church kindly placed his new organ at the disposal of the Church for the occasion.

Then followed the newly inducted gentleman who entered the Church by the front door, attended by Mr. J. D. Macauley the people's warden, the Ven. Archdeacon having entered the Church through the vestry—Mr. Hughes took his stand before the Lecterns when the Archdeacon read the Charter of the Natives Pastorate and also the Bishop's Licensce and the delivery of the Church's key— After the preliminaries were over Mr. Hughes ascended the reading desk and opened the Service. The Ven. Archdeacon ascended the pulpit and selected for his text.

The Rev. gentleman pointed to his hearers the duty of a minister to his flock and also the duties of members towards their minister—

He commended the new pastor to the people—

The service came to a close at 12. 15. p. m.

The Rev. Mr. Hughes preached in the evening from acts. 9. 6.

Bonthe Sherbro
Feb. 2nd. 1891

SELECTIONS.

The Touch of Christ.

When our Lord led the blind man out of Bethsaida, and finally touched his eyes, the man saw but he saw men—indistinctly at first, but afterwards clearly. There were many other things to be seen in the landscape—flowers, hill, valley, mountain, the light and loveliness of nature—but he saw men.

So the touch of Christ upon the sinner, in opening his eyes, opens them to see men. Whatever other objects there may be for seeing, this he sees first and best. Whenever conversion opens the doors of sight, nature may be bright in the gladness of that experience, but it is to her Kings he turns as the fittest subjects of thought and enterprise. Men are not large, but they are brought so near Him that they cover the whole prospective.

Seeing men is distinctive of the work and heart of Christianity. Back of the day and ministry of the Son of God, the world never saw and never dreamed of the individual. Philosophy and legislations were blind to the man, and they gave their thought only to the tribe and nation. The State saw the citizen, not the soul, and kings the subject, not the man. Even the civilization of Greece, the very highest of the heathen world, never thought deeply enough of the man to put the child in art. Statesmen, athletes, poets, warriors, philosophers—these were seen and admired, but blindness saw not men.

And what was characteristic of the heathen world back of the Cross marks the unconverted world now. Awake to the smallest opportunities of business, and swift to detect every offer of good, it is still strangely ignorant of its greatest fact. Not strangely, either; the Christ-touch it will not have upon its eyes, and till then it cannot see men. Corporations see employees; capitalists see laborers; merchants see customers; salesmen see buyers; the State sees citizens and voters; but who sees men? Even civilization in its loftiest sentiments and purposes reaches only unto the masses. The general good is all it aims at.

The subjects of the gospel are not thus blind. Their race withholden sight has been restored, and with the analysis of love they divide the masses into men, and labor while they live not for the people, but for the individual. Christ didn't die for the masses; he died for the man. His sorrows are not to the sinner not to the multitude. The commission reads after this wise: "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel unto every creature." Wherever [illegible] no man after the flesh. If any man be in Christ Jesus he is a new creature; old things have passed away, and behold all things have become new.'

The man is the biggest thing below the gates of God. The capacities and craving of such a being quite equal all the output of help and sympathy.

It is the touch of Christ that is opening the eyes of the blind to see men. The seeing means everything that is being done for men. It is the sight of men rather than masses that is drawing consecrated Christian workers to the continents and isles of the Sea. One man in Macedonia calling for help was more than all her multitudes in shaping the course of Paul. It is the sight of not the masses but of men that is prompting the wealth whose eyes Christ has touched to build hospitals for the sick, homes for the aged asylums for the blind, houses of refuge and reform for the fallen, and churches for the lost. The finger of Christ upon a few blind eyeballs, is mightier for the uplifting and relief of men than all the helps of Government and civilization.

That touch is not exhausted. It is touching wider and deeper. It is getting to brain and heart and hands, and in it are both the prophecy and the promise of universal regeneration. The finger points the true way of reform. Its deeper touch upon eye and heart is going to loosen the grasp of the saloon and lottery from the necks of men, and bring to pass the day devoutly to be sought when men will do unto others as they would have others do unto them Saviour Jesus, touch not our eyes only but feet and head and heart and hands.

OLD LUCY.

Continued from our Last.

'What did ye git ! he asked between his groans.

Well, I didn't git so very much to-day. Folks was mostly out of vittles, and hadn't got their bakins done.'

'Jest the way, allers. Never knowed it to be any other way when I felt wuss than common. Didn't ye git no meat bone for a stew ?'

'No they didn't have none this time.'

'No raisin cake ?'

Lucy shook her head.

'Allers the way. You might have gone somewhererce else ?

Old Lucy made no reply to that. It was, perhaps, an odd pride, but she was too proud to go begging to any families but those twelve.

She put a shawl over her head, took the pail, and went to the well in the next houseyard to pump some water. On her way back she met a team loaded with Christmas greens, great boughs of pine and hemlock trailed along the snowy [illegible]

'I s'pose them's for Christmas,' she muttered.

She went into the house put some water on the stove to heat, and sorted out some fragments for her old husband's dinner.

All that afternoon the storm came thicker and faster, and it did not clear at sunset. The snow fell at night, and drifted up the windows of Lucy's house but on Christmas morning the sun shone out.

Old Lucy, with her shawl tied back under her arms, worked hard clearing the snow from her yard. She used the shovel as handily as a man, although she had often to stop and rest.

She had just finished, and was going in when a sleigh stopped before her house. The two old brothers, John and Hiram Lovering, were in it, Hiram driving his great bay mare.

'Here, Lucy; here's something for you.' Hiram called out. He got a basket out from under the robe, while John held the horse.

Lucy went forward and took the basket.

'There's a roast chicken and some pies in it,' said Hiram.

Then John also handed Lucy something wrapped in a white towel. 'Nancy sent you a loaf of cake,' said he.

'I'm much obleeged to both of you,' said Lucy.

The two old men looked smilingly at her, then Hiram touched the horse, and they glided away with a flourish of bells over the new snow that lay before them in the sun like a great field of light

Old Lucy went into the house with her Christmas dinner. She was the poorest soul in the whole village, but she had unknowingly, given the the most royal Christmas gift of any.—Concluded.

An Anvil that Wears.

"The Bible is an anvil that has worn out many a hammer. When we think of the many assaults and blows it has received and withstood from the days of Moses until now from pagans astrologers, wise men, foolish men, liars, infidels, speculators, and devils—and realize that to-day it stands at the bulwark not only of Christianity but of civilization itself, and that to-day more than ever before a vast preponderance of the intelligence, virtue, morality, truth, justice, and [illegible] is based upon it standing under the [illegible] upholding it with a faith and firmness never surpassed in any age of the world, we can but [illegible]

THE
Early Dawn
PRINTING OFFICE.
PLAIN ARTISTIC AND NEAT JOB WORK
EXECUTED AT
SHORT NOTICE
AT
S. Samuel Thomas
PRINTER.

"The Morning Light Is Breaking, The Darkness Disappears"

VOL. VIII. BONTHE, SHERBRO, WEST AFRICA, MARCH 16, 1891. No. 5.

The 'Early Dawn'

Published Semi-Monthly at Bonthe, Sherbro. Under the Auspices of the Board of Missions of the United Brethren In Christ.

Rev. J. A. Evans, Editor and Publisher, Bonthe, Sherbro, West Africa.

AGENTS.

United States—Revs. B. F. Booth and Wm. McKee, Dayton Rev. Wm J. Davis, Basil, Ohio Rev. D. K. Pilkington, Willoughby, Ohio J. M. Sieber, Manheim, Pa., Rev. G. W. Arnold Eldorado, Ohio.

West Africa— J. A. Richards, River Gambia Rev. J. R. Frederick, and Mr. E. A. Lewis Freetown, Sierra Leone, Rev. James Deppa, Marshall, Liberia Mr. Moses S. Boyle Liberia.

TERMS.

	£	s	d
One Year by mail,	0	6	0
Delivered in Bonthe,	0	5	0
Half yearly by mail,	0	3	0
Ditto. Delivered in Bonthe,	0	2	6

The Out Look For Missions.

It is encouraging that at the present time the prospect of Missionary work is flattering for almost every Society of any consideration age or that operates to any great extent among the heathen. Really one is led to wonder how it is that so much can be done with so little means. At present any one that posses the Missionary spirit may go into any town of the country about us here & begin the work of soul-saving with comparatively little expense and if such a one is faithful, he will soon have many eager and anxious enquirers after the way: yes it will not be very long before he will have conversions and souls added to the Church. Surely this is a flattering condition of the state of things. And yet such to day, is the grasp with which Christendom holds sway in very many parts of this vast continent of Africa. Here about us in town and country is great heathen population, but Oh how really they are like the clay of the potter, ready it character to be formed into just what Christendom will make out of them; pius and godly men and women living sober lives for the glory of their maker, or to be brutalized by the effects of the bad example of ungodly men from civilized and christian Lands especially through the baleful influence of the rum and gin traffic. But with such prospects before us, ought we not to renew our diligence in pushing forward the work of saving men from the pit of destruction. It is no longer a question as to whether the heathen can be saved without the Gospel? But can we as christians be saved without giving them the Gospel? Can men who love God continue to love him and refuse it to their fellows groping in the darkness of heathen night? May the Lord help us to ponder these things in our hearts and act up to our convictions.—J. A. E.

Agriculture.

Mr Editor,—The subject of the cultivation of the soil raising stock &c is becoming more and more popular, as I have been hitherto confident that it must. At present I may venture to repeat what I have said before in writing on this topic that there is no longer any question as to whether it will pay as well as trade, trade has already ceased to be profitable to the small dealer on his own book. And those who have resorted to employment have found that on their promotion to agencies their profits cease and henceforth they have only left to themselves the honor of an unprofitable responsibility. So that there is now no further encouragement in the trade for the Masses hence they are being forced by circumstances, to look for something else even for a living. And agriculture offers the most immediate relief of any pursuit that can be thought of, as at all reliable. So there is little wonder that men of the least bit of foresight and ordinary common sense should look favorably toward Agriculture, as a resource yet within their reach to maintain themselves and families. And while this view of the subject may have the appearance,of men being driven by despair; yet it is not that despair that is without hope, but contrary wise it is that, that breaks upon us,as the clear sunlight through the storm cloud.

Although I have not had the time to write for some months past, or even to visit plantations as I could have desired, yet I have thought of and talked on my favorite theme, and have visited a little so that I have been able to discover that there has been progress both in theory and practice. Men are continually enquiring about lands for tillage about the management and growth of crops and trees. These are all in order along the line of agriculture and should and must be encouraged all that it is possible to do. But it must be remembered that practical application is absolutely necessary in agriculture. Some body must get off his coat and get his axe and hoe and go to clearing and digging. Crops and Fruit Trees must be planted. And although their growth must be watched and it will be advantageous for some one to write and report on the success or failure of this or that; yet it is of vastly more importance, that plantations be opened and crops planted tended and gathered. So let every one get down to the actual work that wishes to be successful in his pursuit of agriculture.—Yrs. truly

J. Albert

Bonthe 9th. March 91.

Bible Study.

Mr Editor,—Permit me a little space to speak a word on the highly important subject of Bible Study. It is too sadly true that few Bible readers study the word or message it contains. The majority are merely casual readers of the best of all books, the Bible; they in many cases, read chapter after chapter, as fast as they well can and seem to have little if any other thought of the matter, than to go through the Book. But such reading is of little profit more than for pastime, and it would be well if such readers would change their methods of dealing with the word of God and learn not only to read it thoughtfully and carefully, but to study it as the school boy studies his lesson which he is preparing to recite, not so much however, to obtain its literal as its spiritual meaning; but in order to gather the spiritual significance we must study the letters that picture to us the word taught in the Book of books and this thought of obtaining the very instruction, for which the revelation of Gods word has been given should be constantly kept in mind by the reader of the Holy Scriptures. And for this reason it is better to study the Bible, study topically or by subjects, which can now be readily done by pursuing the International Sabbath School Lessons, helps to which can be obtained at very little expense to the student. But the trouble with many seems to be their lack of interest, this however may be helped by the study of the word instead of casually reading it. The Bible may well be compared to a mine the richest treasures of which lie deeply imbedded in the solid rock. Effort is really necessary to obtain the priceless treasures of the word of God and whosoever wishes to be benefited the most by that word must study the Bible.

Yours E. J. Betal.

Bonthe 11. 3. '91.

CUT DEEPER.

The sword of the Spirit is the Word of God. It has a keen edge—it is sharper than any two edged sword, is quick and powerful enters into the joint and marrow, and is a discerner of the thoughts and intents of the heart. This Bible description of this potent weapon teaches that in order to be effective it must be wielded by stalwart hands. A mere brandishing of the sword will effect little. Sin is too deeply lodged in the human heart to be disturbed by any such movement.

It is a cancerous formation, requiring a sharp instrument to cut it out and the cut must be deep or the roots will not be reached, and there will be a further growth of that which is loathsome and deadly.

There are those in the modern church who seem to think the use of the Spirit's keen sword is no longer needed. They say, the people have become more intelligent, they are cultured, and must be approached differently, by milder and softer methods The wielding of a sword, especially if sharper than one that is two-edged, is frightful and offensive to genteel people. If it be shown to them at all, glittering in the beams of the Sun of righteousness, it must be flowergarlanded, and feel some near enough to have its point touch the person, or draw blood: This is the sentimentalism of the period. It was all well enough for Peter, at Pentecost, when he had the Jerusalem sinners to deal with, to swing the sharp sword right and left and cut them to the heart—but that sort of cutting and hacking will not do now.

Hence, genteel sinners, who have never known anything of repentance, or of sin's heinousness, but who are taught by modern evangelists Just to say, Jesus, and that so softly that no one but himself hears it, and who continue to put on sin's glittering array like the common herd of sinners, are politely ushered into the church in crowds. Alas, for us! What a lot of putrefying corpses we have among us. Heaven pity us!

And this is not all. This modern sentimentalism has crept into the ranks of holiness, and by many of our own, timentalists the use of the Spirit's sword is deprecated. Thus Mr Wesley taught a soul with eyes opened to behold the horrid character of inbred sin, exposed to view by the sharp pointed gospel, weapon to sing.

"The sharpness of thy two-edged sword Help me, O God, to endure."

But then that was long ago. There has been a progression of ideas. We must present the subject of holiness emotionstrively. Why talk of a painful dying unto sin—of the agonies of crucifixion? Well, Paul talked about it—why not we? O, it is too horrible. Tell them to trust Christ that is all. Yes, and many are told so to their soul's ruin. And the consequence is we have a line of professors of holiness, gold-tipped and spangled, who know nothing of a radical work of heart-purity. Now is the time that this sickly sentimentalism among teachers of holiness at least were brought to an end. We say there is still use for the Spirit's sword, and we counsel those who would deal faithfully with souls to cut deeper. Cut so deep that the last vestige of inward carnality be exposed and they cry, I abhor myself as in dust and ashes. Then point them to the One mighty to save—and say Just trust.

Wesleyan Methodist.

The Early Dawn

BONTHE, MARCH 15, 1891

REV. J. A. EVANS—EDITOR.

[EDITORIAL]

Daimah Station

During the visitation of Bishop Kephart to the U. B. Missions of this vicinity, and while the Bishop was at Bonthe a message from the people of Daimah presented to the Bishop and Revd J. Sandi a letter from the church at Daimah craving that they be accepted by the church of the United Brethren in Christ and that Daimah become one of the Missions of the U. B. Church in this district. The Bishop and Supt. of the U. B. Missions, replied that the matter would be laid before the forth coming Conference at Rotofunk. They also promised and sent a deligation of two ministers, the Revs H. C. Taylor and W. S. Measuley to visit Daimah before the sitting of Conference at Rotafunk. The deputation visited and reported very favorably of the Daimah Church whereupon the Conference agreed to accept the Church provided that the members of the same agree to subscribe to the Discipline and usages of the U. B. Church which in due course will be introduced to them by a proper deputation about the end of the present month (March) when it is expected that Rev H. J. Weeks will be placed in charge of the Station. It is to be hoped that when all arrangements shall have been completed, in connecting Daimah with the U. B. C. missions, that a prosperous church may be speedily built up in that locality.

Gossip.

That we must talk is as natural as it is for us to have tongues. And that all we say will not be the wisest is another fact also of experience. Neither is all that is said by men, and especially women, in this our world always as true as steel. In fact the truth is that a rumor floats out upon the wind and as it goes, unlike "the rolling stone that gathers no moss" it gathers; and Casually (falsehood) as it goes so that rumor is scarcely to be relied upon, especially when it is profuse. But, however, necessary gossip may be to the upkeep of the life of prattling mortals, it is very unprofitable to the generality of mankind and should be studiously avoided by all prudent persons.

Canabalism.

It seems that our native friends of the man-eating proclivities, are some of them still alive and insist on having human flesh, to satisfy their vitiated appetites, in some localities. At least such is the report from several places in the Sherbro District. And whether this continuance in illdoing is really, as some think, the result of the suppression of the active execution of their measures, against Canabalism, or the real wickedness in hearts of the man-eaters, we are not in a position to tell, but it is never-the-less an evil under the moon and stars, that ought to be punished, so severely by the Authorities that it would put a period to the wicked practices of the human beasts of Prey, who feel that they must devour their fellowmen. Murder is murder, it matters not for what purpose man is willfully and maliciously slain by man and the sooner humanity come to senses on this matter the better it will be for society. And although it may be that persons are given by others who claim to have the right of disposing of them. Yet it remains a very grave question as to whether any man or set of men have a moral right to dispose of the life of any other man or set of men for any purpose other, than to execute criminals.

Report of Avery Station.

Mendi Mission.

For the quarter ending 31st march '91

Mr President.—During the quarter I am happy to state that we have been doing pretty fair work in this District.

The Lord has mercifully preserved our health so that we have been enabled to do our duties without interruption. The attendance of our members and hearers on the means of grace has been satisfactory. Though we cannot report much revival yet we rejoice in the conversion of one and the presence of God has been felt in all our gatherings. I regret to state that we have suffered from removals here, and in a few of the farkies; but independent of this God has sustained us, and the people are showing a disposition to listen to the word of God.

The wood chapel in building at Mattro is near completion, the members there have had special visits at different times and I am thankful to say that we shall not labour in vain with them. May the Lord help us is my earnest prayers.

Believers class 1; Seekers 16
Members in Believers' class 30
Seekers 215 Total 235.

Day School—The work in this department has suffered much from the removals of most of the Mission Boarders; of them we have calculated better results in co-operating with us in this good work; Nevertheless the hand of the master has brought additional strength by an outburst of nearly 30 children from the near villages which shows the groaning magnitude and importance of the work. Beside this Books are required to aid in instructing the little ones. Number of Scholars Boys 80 Girls 23 Total 53.

Sabbath School—Bids fair prospect. Number of Scholars 45 Teachers and Officers 3 Total 48.

	£.	s.	d.
Missionary aid col.	2.	4.	7.
Class Pence—	1.	3.	6.
Sabbath School—	0.	0.	0.
Light—	0.	3.	10.
Preachers Salary—	0.	12.	9.
Coltd for poor relief	0.	3.	6.
Total——£	4.	8.	2.

Faithfully Submitted
S. B. Morrison.

Report of Mambee Station.

In reviewing the work of the Station for the year that is just closed, we feel constrained to offer our tribute of praise to God the giver of all success and say, not unto us oh Lord, not unto us but to thy name give the praise. For in spite of the many difficulties and discouragements which, the great enemy of souls brought forward to impede the progress of the work, that work nevertheless has progressed satisfactorily. I have been enabled through the power of God to prosecute my work with zeal and energy. The true gospel as brought by Christ from heaven containing the good news of man's redemption, has been proclaimed far and near. Through its instrumentality the chains has fallen from many a captive. The oppressed are beginning to go free.

Those sunk in darkness, vice, superstition, and folly, are being raised to sit in heavenly places in Christ Jesus. The only evil which seemed to retard the progress of the work at present is, the pernicious institution of the poroh system. With the deepest feelings of regret I have to state that, whilst we were holding our night prayer meeting on Wednesday the 19th of Nov., suddenly a shrill sound was heard in the town which seemed to strike terror, into the hearts of all those who heard it. It was the Poroh Devil as they say, who came to take away by force men and have them introduced into that system.

The women were all kept in doors, while good many of the children came in the Mission to hide themselves. On the last week of Nov. special prayer meetings were held both morning and evening, conducted by Messrs T. D. Chambers and A. D. Barrett. The object of it was, that God should strengthen the minds of our members, and keep them more and more steadfast in the faith. From this we are thankful to say that, God has answered our prayers and many blessings have accrued from the same. During the year divine services has been regularly conducted here twice every Sunday, the one shipons were regular and punctual.

I should mention one encouraging fact and that is, that our church members are endeavouring to bring with them to church on every Lord's day, the strangers who come from the interior to sojourn with them. As in other places so also in our Station, death has made sad inroads during the year and snatched off many from the church below to join the church above. It is gratifying to record that many of them gave on their dying beds, cheering testimonies of the reality of their faith and the glorious prospects unfolding to their departing spirits.

I can report that the influence of Christianity has been in creasingly felt by the people amongst whom we are labouring. Heathens and Mohammedans continue to manifest a strong desire to know all about the religion of Jesus Christ. Several things noticed in our people convince me of a truth, that the word of God is not preached in vain amongst us, but that it is gradually working its way into the hearts of the people. Our Sabbath School continued to thrive and is looked upon, as a bright and lovely spot in our work. Bible classes and morning prayers are not on the background.

Discerning I have endeavoured to give much attention to this important part of our work, I was able to visit several towns and villages connected with our Station for preaching purposes, and holding religious conversations with the natives.

From this review of our work for the year 1890, I am fully convinced that the hand of the Lord has been with us co-operating with us, and blessing the labour of our hands. Although many have been our difficulties within and without yet we have continued our work in humble dependence on him who has said, Lo I am with you always even unto the end of the world.

Thanking you Mr Editor for a space in your columns.—T. D. Chambers.
Mambee Station
Dec. 31 1890

Mission House
Bendeo,
March 1891

Dear Sir,

I am happy to state that the number of Sierra Leoneans in this place which for some years past has been considerably reduced, is now gradually increasing and it is to be hoped when the Government shall have completed the new Barracks in course of erection for the Frontier Police Force and the probable number of 120 men come down with their families and locate themselves here, Bendeo will once more be revived and a good number of Sierra Leoneans inhabit the place. Our church then will be in a flourishing condition and our finances will improve at least to some extent. The Native converts continue to be regular in their attendants at the means of grace. May the Lord of the Harvest grant us strength and faithfulness to continue in our work of faith and labor of love.—Yrs C. S. B.

The Mails,—are, it pleasing note, brought very regular to this place, by the Steamers of Messrs Fisher & Randall Ltd. and really there is no reason for complaint of this service.

From The Independent.

DIVORCE REFORM.

BY ALVAH HOVEY, D. D.,

We do not propose to give the statistics of divorce in the United States, or to draw from them various lessons which they really contain. The task of collecting them is not, indeed, yet finished, and for this reason, if for no other much caution should be used in making inferences from them especially if those inferences contrast one State or community with another But all who have examined the statistics of divorce which have been published during the past few years, must be ready to concede that they prove the blessings of home life to be in serious peril because of the ease and frequency with which the marriage bond is legally severed. What, then, can be done to escape the peril? How may the frequency of divorce be diminished and the full blessing of home be secured? A partial answer to these question will be suggested by certain things which facilitate divorce and account in some measure for its frequency.

One of these things is a lack of uniformity in State laws respecting divorce. With present means of travel the whole country is practically one. Thousands of families remove every year from one State to another. Changes of residence are so easily made from the East to the West that they attract little attention; hence it is almost useless to guard the sanctity of marrage by careful legislation in one part of the country if it is not thus guarded in the other parts. An effort should, therefore, be made to secure agreement in the laws of all the States as to marriage and divorce; and the reasons for substantial agreement are so obvious that such an effort, tho hindered by many causes ought to be successful in the end.

Another thing which contributes to the frequency of divorce is bad legislation on the subject. Such legislation appears in at least three particulars: the list of valid grounds for divorce is made to embrace too many offenses: the legal process for obtaining divorce is made too easy and rapid: and the penalty imposed on the wrong-doer is made too light. These particulars are illustrated with great fullness and force in the late President Woolsey's work on "Divorce and Divorce Legislation." Something has been done in a few of the States to improve their divorce laws since that book was published; but far more remains to be done, and the earnest friends of home life should seize every favorable opportunity to seek further changes conducive to the stability of marriage. The legal standard may never be raised to that of the New Testament, but it may be made to approach it more nearly than it now does.

Yet neither the contradictory nor the unwise legislation of the States on divorce is the principal cause of its frequency for in general the will of the people is expressed by the laws. Not always indeed, the will of the whole people or even of a majority for only a few questions are of a controlling interest at elections but the will of such a part of the people as press their wishes on the attention of legislators. If, then, the laws concerning divorce are unsatisfactory, it must be because the people have been too indifferent to make their will understood, or because they have approved the laws in question. In either case, it is the minds and hearts of the people that must be reached in order to remedy the evils of divorces for their influence will operate directly in social life and immediately in legislative halls and 'courts of justice.

Divorce is sought in a majority of instances by wives. Is it because they are more exacting than is proper, or because their husbands are less gentle and faithful than should be expected? There is often without doubt more or less of of misconception and evil-surmising on both sides, but it is scarcely possible to exonerate men from the charge of falling below the standard of duty in conjugal life more frequently than women. There are at least three ways in which husbands of upright purpose are liable to disappoint the just expectations of their wives: first, by neglecting to continue through life the expressions of respect and affection which they gave so freely in their early love; secondly, by withholding from them a knowledge of their financial condition, and a liberal share of their income, for independent use; and thirdly by failing to give a most tender and unselfish consideration, to everything which concerns maternity. Marriage would rarely prove a burden to wives, if husbands did not thus withdraw from them the loving confidence which has been promised and which they have a right to expect—a confidence which would do more than wealth to fill their hearts with contentment.

It must also be admitted that the method of conducting business by means of runners, the multiplication of clubs in our cities and villages, and the diffusion of certain theories concerning economic and social improvement, are unfavorable to the permanency of marriage. The evils of frequent divorce are not, therefore, likely to be ever diminished, not to say removed, without wise and persistent effort. They will continue and perhaps increase, unless the reason and conscience of the people can be directed to them and roused to action. Men and women of all ranks must be made to understand the value of home and the evils which threaten it. Their minds must be impressed with the truth that children need the influence of both parents, father and mother, for their proper training, and their hearts must be filled with the conviction that the advantages of wealth or social position are less than nothing when compared with the blessing of an upright and united family.

In a word, the advocates of divorce reform must show the people the urgent need of it. And in doing this parents, ministers, teachers, judges, legislators, and philanthropists should unite. There is no reason why all who honor marriage and love virtue should not join hands in promoting this reform. But it is specially important for ministers of the Gospel to study it from the highest point of view, the law of Christ; and to seek for legislation as nearly in accord with that law as the hardness of the people's hearts will bear. Their influence within the limits of church life would be much increased, if they could by further inquiry agree upon the meaning of Paul in I Cor. vii, 15. For, in that case, Christians of every name would soon accept the Apostle's rule, whether it was understood to, authorise full divorce or mere separation, for a time on account of desertion. And if true Christians were of one heart and mind in making "for-nication" the only ground of divorce, their influence would be greatly increased.

NEWS ITEMS

Avery Station.—Held its first Quarterly Services on the 15th inst. Large gathering, much interest, Six Baptisms, good Communion services. And encouraging reports of work Revd J. A. Evans of Bonthe U. B. Church officiated

Quarterly Meeting.—U. B. Church Bonthe on the 8 and 9 inst. Rev S. B. Morrison lately ordained, officiated assisted by the senior pastor. The services were interesting.

Ebenezer Chapel.—this is the proper name of the new place of worship in, Farkies of this place. Specially set a part for the natives by the U. B. Church. It has a very good attendance at 3: 45 p. m. every Sabbath.

From Shaingay.—— We hear that the work is moving on in an encouraging manner at the Stations occupied and that the outlook is good for a successful year and we are especialy pleased to hear that there is a better prospect for the Training School, and that while it has been doing a good work in the past it promises far better for the future.

Building Materials.—are now in great demand in this place owing to the fact of the great amount of building going on at present.

PERSONAL.

Mr. E. T. Bradley,—arrived here on the 12th. inst. He had spent some time in Freetown before coming this way. Mr. Bradley is the Traveling Representative of Messrs Blackstock & Co manchester England, lately out from Home and is proceeding to Leeward Coast. We wish him every success as he is thoroughly reliable and represents a good and Honorable Firm

Mr A. E. Coutts. Sapeford.—General Bookeeper of Messrs Paterson Zochonis & Co in Free Town spent something over a week in the District recently and while here give us a pleasant call. He seemed to be enjoying the best of health.

From The Independent.

DIVORCE REFORM.

BY ALVAH HOVEY, D D.,

'e do not propose to give tatistics of divorce in the ted States, or to draw from various lessons
ch they really contain.
task of collecting them is indeed, yet finished, and this reason, if for no other ih caution should be used aking inferences from them ecially if these inferences rast one State or commu-
with another But all have examined the statisof divorce which have been dished during the past few rs, must be ready to cone that they prove the bless-of home life to be in seri-peril because of the ease frequency with which the riage bond is legally sever-

What, then, can be done scape the peril? How may frequency of divorce be inished and the full bless-of home be secured? A ial answer to these queswill be suggested by cer-things which facilitate di-ge and account in some sure for its frequency.

One of these things is a lack uniformity in State laws pecting divorce. With pre-means of travel the whole intry is practically one.
ousands of families remove ry year from one State to ther. Changes of residence so easily made from the st to the West that they att little attention; hence it almost useless to guard the ctity of marriage by careful islation in one part of the intry if it is not thus guard-in the other parts. An ef-t should, therefore, be made secure agreement in the laws all the States as to marriage
d divorce; and the reasons substantial agreement are obvious that such an effort, hindered by many causes
ght to be successful in the d.

Another thing which contrites to the frequency of di-rce is bad legislation on the bject. Such legislation ap-ars in at least three particu-
s: the list of valid grounds divorce is made to embrace many offenses: the legal ocess for obtaining divorce made too easy and rapid: and e panalty imposed on the ong-doer is made too light.
ese particulars are illustrat-with great fullness and force in the late President Woolsey's work on "Divorce and Divorce Legislation." Something has been done in a few of the States to improve their divorce laws since that book was published; but far more remains to be done, and the earnest friends of home life should seize every favorable opportunity to seek further changes conducive to the stability of marriage. The legal standard may never be raised to that of the New Testament, but it may be made to approach it more nearly than it now does.

Yet neither the contradictory nor the unwise legislation of the States on divorce is the principal cause of its frequency for in general the will of the people is expressed by the laws. Not always indeed, the will of the whole people or even of a majority for only a few questions are of a controlling interest at elections but the will of such a part of the people as press their wishes on the attention of legislators. If, then, the laws concerning divorce are unsatisfactory, it must be because the people have been too indifferent to make their will understood, or because they have approved the laws in question. In either case, it is the minds and hearts of the people that must be reached in order to remedy the evils of divorce for their influence will operate directly in social life and immediately in legislative halls and courts of justice.

Divorce is sought in a majority of instances by wives. Is it because they are more exacting than is proper, or because their husbands are less gentle and faithful than should be expected? There is often without doubt more or less of of misconception and evil-surmising on both sides, but it is scarcely possible to exonerate men from the charge of falling below the standard of duty in conjugal life more frequently than women. There are at least three ways in which husbands of upright purpose are liable to disappoint the just expectations of their wives: first, by neglecting to continue through life the expressions of respect and affection which they gave so freely in their early love; secondly, by withholding from them a knowledge of their financial condition, and a liberal share of their income, for independent use: and thirdly by failing to give a most tender and unselfish consideration, to everything which concerns maternity. Marriage would rarely prove a burden to wives, if husbands did not thus withdraw from them the loving confidence which has been promised and which they have a right to expect—a confidence which would do more than wealth to fill their hearts with contentment.

It must also be admitted that the method of conducting business by means of rauuers, the multiplication of clubs in our cities and villages, and the diffusion of certain theories concerning economic and social improvement, are unfavorable to the permanency of marriage. The evils of frequent divorce are not, therefore, likely to be even diminished, not to say removed, without wise and persistent effort. They will continue and perhaps increase, unless the reason and conscience of the people can be directed to them and roused to action. Men and women of all ranks must be made to understand the value of home and the evils which threaten it. Their minds must be impressed with the truth that children need the influence of both parents, father and mother, for their proper training, and their hearts must be filled with the conviction that the advantages of wealth or social position are less than nothing when compared with the blessing of an upright and united family.

In a word, the advocates of divorce reform must show the people the urgent need of it. And in doing this parents, ministers, teachers, judges, legislators, and philanthropists should unite. There is no reason why all who honor marriage and love virtue should not join hands in promoting this reform. But it is specially important for ministers of the Gospel to study it from the highest point of view, the law of Christ; and to seek for legislation as nearly in accord with that law as the hardness of the people's hearts will bear. Their influence within the limits of church life would be much increased, if they could by further inquiry agree upon the meaning of Paul in I Cor. vii, 15. For, in that case, Christians of every name would soon accept the Apostle's rule, whether it was understood to authorise full divorce or mere separation, for a time on account of desertion. And if true Christians were of one heart and mind in making "fornication" the only ground of divorce, their influence would be greatly increased.

NEWS ITEMS

Avery Station.—Held its first Quarterly Services on the 15th inst. Large gathering, much interest, Six Baptisms, good Communion services. And encouraging reports of work Revd J. A. Evans of Bonthe U. B. Church officiated

Quarterly Meeting.—U. B. Church Bonthe on the 8 and 9 inst. Rev S. B. Morrison lately ordained, officiated assisted by the senior pastor. The services were interesting.

Ebenezer Chapel.—this is the proper name of the new place of worship in, Farkies of this place. Specially set a part for the natives by the U. B. Church. It has a very good attendance at 3: 45 p. m. every Sabbath.

From Shaingay.—We hear that the work is moving on in an encouraging manner at the Stations occupied and that the outlook is good for a successful year and we are especially pleased to hear that there is a better prospect for the Training School, and that while it has been doing a good work in the past it promises far better for the future.

Building Materials.—are now in great demand in this place owing to the fact of the great amount of building going on at present.

PERSONAL.

Mr. E. T. Bradley, arrived here on the 12th. inst. He had spent some time in Freetown before coming this way. Mr. Bradley is the Traveling Representative of Messrs Blackstock & Co manchester England, lately out from Home and is proceeding to Leeward Coast. We wish him every success as he is thoroughly reliable and represents a good and Honourable Firm.

Mr A. E. Coutts. Sapeford.—General Bookeeper of Messrs Paterson Zochonis & Co in Free Town spent something over a week in the District recently and while here give us a pleasant call. He seemed to be enjoying the best of health.

SELECTIONS.

Truths of Beauty

I was just thinking, said a little girl as she looked me bright up into the star spangled heaven, that if the outside of heaven is so beautiful, what must the inside be!

Have you ever thought of that?

A few years ago a New Zealand chief named England. His name was Tamahana. Before he came he had become a Christian. He loved his Bible very much, and had his heart set on that glorious home which Jesus has gone to prepare.

One day gentlemen took him to his elegant mansion, one of the most costly houses in the great city of London. The gentlemen expected to hear him express great surprise at the elegance of his dwelling. But to his surprise and chagrin Tamahana appeared to be very little impressed in it. Then the gentlemen began to call his attention to its architecture, its elegant finish, its costly furniture, to the grandeur of the views to be seen from its windows. The New Zealander listened to the description in silence. Then pointing to the richly decorated walls, he said Ah, the other house is finer than all this.

"Your Father's house" exclaimed the gentlemen, knowing that the poor man's father lived in a mud hut.

Yes my Father house is finer than this. Then to sing to the wonderful chapter of Revelation be read. And the building of the wall of it was of pure jasper and the city was pure gold like unto glass. And the foundations of the wall of the city were garnished with all manner of precious stones etc

Can you call Jesus your Saviour? Then God is your Father and you have a house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens. The earth is exceedingly beautiful. It is beautiful when a pall is spotless mantle of snow. It is beautiful in the Spring-time, when the trees and flowers are blossoming, and the birds are singing their notes of praise. And yet one has said, the world is only the guesthouse in which God keeps his disobedient children. And if his prisonhouse is so beautiful, what will his palace be? This earth is only God's footstool; if his footstool is so beautiful, what must his throne be?

WOMAN'

No social qu been or ever c profound impo of the positio relation to ma
of that relatio realised? It w hardihood to tion in the doubt, there less cases wh hold has bro
but these hav
exception rat Christianity for woman th combined, bu lightened C
the principle Gospel have into full pla in his addre
School, a de with satisfac
that had be lifetime, and righteous i cruelty and of some of t that used to century ag openings fo been found matters th them right merly poss ties of hig been affor
these adva grudgingly is still a quarters t ble any
This feelin be unwise surported the effecti licy, and i principles the spirit Gospel.

Christi to the wo life to wh
as never dred doct and purs
God have deep and conscienc for other

Christia equality the matt thus requ that shal
ple. By law of proper guide in a society equipme opening the proc

SELECTIONS.

Touches of Beauty.

I was just thinking, said a little girl, as she looked one night up into the star-spangled heaven, that if the outside of heaven is so beautiful what must the inside be!

"Have you ever thought of that!

A few years ago a New Zealand chief visited England. His name was Tamahana. Before he came he had become a Christian. He loved his Bible very much, and had his heart set on that glorious home which Jesus has gone to prepare.

One a day gentleman took him to his elegant mansion, one of the most costly homes in the great city of London. The gentleman expected to hear him express great supprise at the elegance of his dwelling. But to his supprise and chagrin, Tamahana appeared to be very little interested in it. Then the gentleman began to call his attention to its architecture, its elegant finish, its costly furniture, to the grandeur of the views to be seen from its windows, etc. The New Zealander listened to his description in silence. Then pointing to the richly frescoed walls, he said Ah, my father,s house is finer than all this.

"Your Father's house!" exclaimed the gentleman, knowing that the poor man's father lived in a mud hut.

"Yes, my Father's house is finer than this. Then turning to the twenty-first chapter of Revelation, he read "And the building of the wall of it was of pure jasper; and the city was pure gold like unto glass. And the foundations of the wall of the city were garnished with all manner of precious stones etc

"Can you call Jesus your Savior? Then God is your Father and you have a house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens. The earth is exceedingly beautiful. It is beautiful when it is robed in its spotless mantle of snow. It is beautiful in the Spring-time, when the trees and flowers are blossoming, and the birds are singing their notes of praise. And yet one has said, this world is only the prisonhouse in which God keeps his disobedient children. And if his prisonhouse is so beautiful," what will his palace be? This earth is only God,s footstool; if his footstool is so beautiful, what must his throne be?

Woman's Place.

No social question ever has been or ever can be, of more profound importance than that of the position of woman in relation to man. Has the ideal of that relationship ever been realized? It would need some hardihood to answer that question in the affirmative. No doubt, there have been countless cases where the household has been all it should be but these have been always an exception rather than the rule. Christianity has done more for woman than all other forces combined, but in the more enlightened Christian countries, the principles laid down in the Gospel have never been brought into full play. Mr. Gladstone, in his address at Burlington School, a dew days ago, spoke with satisfaction of the changes that had been made in his own lifetime, and referred with some righteous indignation to the cruelty and injustice to woman of some of the laws and usages that used to prevail some half-century ago. Since then, new openings for employment have been found for women, in some matters the law has given them rights they did not formerly possess, and opportunities of higher education has been afforded them. Some of these advantages have been grudgingly bestowed, and there is still a disposition in some quarters to deny as far as possible any additional privilege. This feeling appears to us to be unwise and unworthy, unsurported by the experience of the effects of a more liberal policy, and inconsistent with the principles that really underlie the positive teachings of the Gospel.

Christianity has brought into the world a view of human life to which the wisest heathen never obtained. The kindred doctrines of immortality and personal responsibility to God have laid the foundation deep and broad for liberty of conscience, and by consequence for other forms of liberty.

Cristianity also proclaims the equality of woman with man in the matter of salvation, and thus requires a social condition that shall recognize that principle. By laying down a strict law of marriage, it furnishes a proper sequel and a rule to guide in the formation of such a society. A better industrial equipment and more numerous openings for labor would check the process of precipitation by poverty into vices. Education would naturally lead to a better standard of feeling among the daughters of the poor. The domestic condition of the working classes would be immensely improved if the girls they married had been trained to make good wives and good mothers. Ignorance is really one of the most fruitful sources of unhapiness misery and crime. The foolish talk and blind prejudice that still harp on keeping the poor in their proper place by refusing them the advantages of education, ought to be silenced for very shame at the sight of the moral improvement already effected by twenty years of Board Schools, with all their imperfections. Then if we turn our view to the higher classes, is it not the height of absurdity to declaim against the intellectual achievements of the fairer sex? How can a wife become a compasion for her husband in the fullest sense, unless her knowledge and sympathies are at least somewhat on the same line as his? We are given to understand that the most distinguished men have had remarkable mothers. If we then give facilities for the increase in numbers of remarkable women, do we not do something to enrich and ennoble the future generation of our race? The domestic unhappiness and vice that too much stain the aristocracy have their root in part of making woman too much of a mere ornament in the social circle. Speaking generally, social vice carries with it the idea that woman was made to minister to the pleasures and passions of man; and to this the Christian ideal is stubbornly opposed. Most women will always find their chosen sphere with their husbands and children: but they will fulfill all such duties best when the respect is accorded them to which they are entitled by nature as well as by our nobler faith.

LOVE

Love is the perennial spring of spiritual life; joy, the upgushing of its waters, peace, the restfulness of a holy mind, and the placidity of God's presence that spreads over it; longsuffering the enduring quality of a sanctified and merciful heart, gentleness, the amiability of external conduct, and softness of manner, the politeness of christian courtesy; goodness the brand, the label that tells the quality of the whole make up of the man faith, the atmosphere that surrounds the christian and works like heartbeats wihtin him, keeping every attribute of soul and body alive, and every organ in motion, meekness, the regulator of temper, the veto of anger, the antidote to fits of madness, the cure of a quarrelsome disposition, the power that draws the sting out of external provocations; temperance, the scales that weigh all our tempers, words, actions and pursuits, and keep the christian in a perfect balance.

Helping the Minister.

Wallace is seven years old. Ever since he was three he has been a Sunday-school boy. He loves Sunday-school; but, till lately, has not liked going to church. It was so much pleasanter, he thought, to stay at home, as he was sometimes allowed, with mama, who is an invalid, and listen to her stories from the Bible.

One day last Spring, a great change came into Wallace's life, his papa, a machinist, was suddenly killed. When next Sunday came, Wallace asked:

"Mayn't I come home after Sunday-school and stay with you?"

But his lonely mother had the courage to say,

"No my son. Remember papa will not be there to-day; and when the minister looks from his pulpit, and sees the empty seat, it may trouble him. I think he will like to see you in papa's place."

So, that morning at the close of Sunday-school, the little man went at once up stairs, and took the seat his father had occupied from week to week for years back. After service, he hurried to tell his mother.

"I guess I helped the minister; 'cause he came and spoke to me."

Since, then, every Sunday, Wallace feels that he has a place to fill in the church. When, sometimes, the usher brings strangers to that pew, the little boy by the door, standing up, makes his sleader figure very small that they may pass in; but never gives up "papa's seat" to any one.

THE EARLY DAWN
PRINTING OFFICE
JOB WORK EXECUTED AT
SHORT NOTICE.

ISSUES
MISSING

THE EARLY DAWN.

"The Morning Light is Breaking, The Darkness Disappears"

VOL. VIII. BONTHE, SHERBRO, WEST AFRICA, APRIL 15, 1891. No. 7.

The 'Early Dawn'

Published Semi-Monthly at Bonthe, Sherbro. Under the Auspices of the Board of Missions of the United Brethern In Christ.

REV. J.A. EVANS, Editor and Publisher Bonthe, Sherbro, West Africa.

AGENTS.

United States—Revs. B. F. Booth and Wm. McKee, Dayton Rev. Wm J. Davis, Basil, O. Rev. D. S. Flikinger, Willoughby, Ohio J. M. Stouter, Manheim, Pa., Rev. G. W. Arnold Eldorado, Ohio.

West Africa—J. A. Richards, River Gambia, Rev J. R. Frederick, and Mr E. A. Lewis, Freetown, Sierra Leone. Rev. James Deputy Marshall, Liberia, Mr. Moses S. Boyle Liberia.

TERMS'

One Year by mail,	£0 6 0
Delivered in Bonthe,	0 5 0
Half yearly by mail,	0 3 0
Ditto, delivered in Bonthe,	0 2 0

The Mission Work

To me it seems that there is a considerable difference between the Work of Missions and the Cause of Missions. The work in my mind relates to the operation of those engaged in the field of service, while the Cause of Missions is the subject of advocacy of those friendly to the carrying on of operations in the field. It is, however, of the work that I wish now to speak, as carried on in the field, yes I may be more restuctive, and confine myself to the work in the foreign field.

And may observe that the progress of the last decade has been marvelous. Thousands in heathen lands that knew nothing of Christ and cared nothing about God, ten years ago are now well acquainted with the Savior and are devoted lovers of the God for whom they cared nothing before.

Oh! how great is such a change in man, vile, corrupt, hating, man and God, exulting in blood, thirsty as well as filthy passions, transformed by thousands in a single decade into peaceful subjects of Jesus the Christ under the banner of the Cross.

But it is the Lord's work and it is marvelous in our eyes. The marvels I have witnessed with my own eyes,—whether of faith or vision, it matters not—have been many and great heathen men and women by fives, tens and even twenties, deliberately forsaking the gods or devils—of their fathers coming boldly forward and espousing the cause of our Emmanuel Jesus. Then when I look out on the Shaingay and Bompeh Districts of even these U. B. Missions and note that, so many as, at least five thousand during the past ten—but mostly in the last few—years have been won for Christ. I am led to wonder how this has been done, certainly not by might or power of man, but by the Spirit of the Lord. And these marvels I am sure could have been very much greater if the means, had been cheerfully given, which have been withholden from these Missions. For in our particular field the work has only been limmitted by the supply of means, shall I say—no it is for lack of money the Lobd's money which has been withheld, and for which somebody must answer to our God. Had there been the money forthcoming for the past year, even, that was expended in 1887 our gain in membership on this field—Sherbro Mendi and Bompeh Missions—would not have been much lessthan five Thousand for the past year, even this I consider a mild estimate of what might have been our ingathering. There is however, still opportunity for enlarged operations fruitful fields lying in easy access, of nearly all our Stations. From this Good Hope Station we have open before us this whole Island containing scarcely less than fifteen thousand souls, while it is believed by some that the population exceeds twenty thousand. Already we have made some attempt to extend the work, a second Chapel has been erected in this place capable of holding when properly seated over two hundred persons, and since we opened services there we have had as many as two hundred and upward in attendance at the hour of preaching and the morning Seekers Class held in the same house is well attended and increasing in numbers.

The Religious interest is very good much better than I have seen it before. Really I am led to wonder at what I behold, in the service twice the number now attend preaching that used to attend & more take part in the social services of prayer and class meetings now than did a few years ago. Really poor heathens are learning to pray. And children too among us are praying, how good, and yet how strange it all seems, that there is just now, such an eagerness to receive the gospel. Then I wonder why there are so few lovers of missions among the Christians in Christian lands. So much more money to buy and send out Rum and Gin to destroy the people, so much less to send out missionaries to save the souls of heathen.—J. A. E

The Census.

There is, I understand, to be an enumeration of the peoples of the British Empire, and that it is now proposed to take it the resident days in Her Majesty's dominions on the night of the 5th of April next, and it is desired to obtain a correct return of the people of every rank and creed, which is no doubt a great undertaking especially in such portions of her vast Empire as comprise scores of uncivilized and uncivilized persons each as many be found in even three settlements, but the good results of a correct Census of a proper enumeration of even these different peoples can scarcely be over estimated and for this reason persons should not fail to fill out the Blankets fully to the possibility can I shall wait with much patience it life lies to see the enormous returns of such a vast Empire, and feel confident that a vast increase will be shown over the Census of 1881, in the Empire at large, but especially in this Colony.—E.

Passion Week.

The week preceding and including Easter Sunday, called passion week, offers in a country like ours here on this coast an opportunity for much religious improvement, if properly observed. Unfortunately however, all christians are not a unit on the observance of the period, some seem to feel that they cannot profit by such an observance of stated seasons in church, others of course think that there is no necessity for any particular observance of the Season. I think however, that the Majority of Christians in this District are agreed that some religious notice of the Death and resurrection of our Savior should be taken by those who profess to be his followers, but are not, perhaps so well agreed as to just the manner the season should be observed. This difference of feeling is too, more widespread than can be readily noticed, unless by the very careful observer, who has access to the people, or where there is freedom under the connectional rules to observe or not to observe, in other words where the Matter is left entirely to the religious feelings of church members. It will be found that very many only attend the week evening services to please their pastor or some other Church functionary rather than for the religious observance of the passion week, such perfunctionary keeping of the passion week can be of little religious benefit to the observers. Of course I have not yet heard the result, of the various Services of the Past Week and Sabbath, but have every reason to believe that they have been in a measure successful as far as keeping the death and resurrection of our Lord before the minds of the people in a historical and intellectual manner is concerned. But this progressive religious age demands something deeper, that pierces the heart and moves the souls of men to renewed religious life, the piety of our church members has become to lifeless & our religion too formal, hence we cannot impress the sinner for good. However there is hope that among the embers of our dull churchlife lies sufficient fire to be kindled into flames if properly fanned on the periodical recurrence of religious anniversaries and to my own mind if the Churches would, in any community agree upon a united effort against sin and satan during the Passion Week of each year that much good could be effected in the Revival of the Churches and the conversion of Sinners, and that scores of newborn souls might from year to year date their Spiritual birth to some day in that eventful period celebrated as the Week of our Lord's Passion

J. A. E

Bonthe, 24th March, 91.

Changes.

In the Political as well as Ecclesiastical world changes are of frequent occurrence. Their effects are not always sweet as honey nor vice versa are they always bitter as the waters of marmah. In a word they are neither the one nor the other. Scripture history informs us that the fall of man was occasioned by his eating of the tree of life, thereby changing the Divine injunction "Thou shalt not eat of it"

Thus we find that from so early a period changes had a bitter effect. But on the other hand there was an other change effected and that is the first man Adam was made of corruptable things, but the second Adam was not made but conceived of the Holy Ghost. And thus in following Scripture history we find that though at first a change may seem to effect or produce a bitter quality yet at the last it is always sweet. From this we may be led like a Poet to say "There is a providence that rules over all and a Divinity that shapes our ends. I am led particularly to write on the this subject because of the manifestations of sorrow and utmost regret shown by some for friends leaving them and the joy of others for the exodus of their enimies From the newspapers of more remote days especially in the Colony of Sierra Leone we have always read of the sorrow manifested by the the community in the loss by departure of any man of renown. At times men have even tried by private letters as well as by the medium of the press to recall them.—To be Continued

P. H. P.

The Early Rains.

Mr. Editor,—Is it a fact as some have suggested to me that the seasons are actually Changing and the rains beginning earlier than in years gone by or is it that our attention is more particularly drawn to them by the circumstances with which many are otherwise surrounded? As for instance here in Bonthe nearly every one has expected more time to prepare for the rains and only the merest few are at all ready to have the torrents from above pour down upon the housetops, many too are extensively engaged in building or repairing and for several reasons are not as far forward with either as they had hoped to be when the rains began. But somehow it seems to almost every one that we are having a change in our seasons for while it is true that for years past, in this Sherbro District, we have been accustomed to having rain every month in the year, yet it hardly seems that we have ever had as frequent or as heavy rains, in the past, as we are experiencing so far in the present year.

However, it seems that on the whole in these latter years we do not have any more rain on the whole, than in the former years, when there was a more marked difference between the dry and rainy season"—J. Albert

Time.

The measure of duration is called time and how fast it glides by, we are young and soon we are growing old, and yet how insensible of the magnitude of the change we are undergoing, the while that our duration is being measured to us, and yet how short the span of human life, at longest four score years, and still how few that are granted a span half so long. But I am writing of time, time that glides so swiftly by. Only a few short years ago, it seems, and we were in the sixties and how well I remember 1863, the American War how it disturbed communication with missionaries abroad from that country of course I was not then among them, nor had I a thought of such being my lot; but time rolled on, and 8 years later I was on the Ocean sailing to a foreign shore. And now I look back and count almost a score of years—since I first entered on the duty of a foreign Missionary and so swift has been the flight of years that I can scarcely realize that the time has passed, yet time still rolls on, and we are car-

Cons'l 2 3 4 5
Ins. BRITISH MUSEUM

ARLY DAWN.

Light Is Breaking, The Darkness Disappears"

BRO, WEST AFRICA, APRIL 15, 1891. No. 7.

been limmitted by the , shall I say—no it is ey the Lobd's money withheld, and for which t answer to our God.
s the money forthcompast year, even, that was 57 our gain in mem-
Field—Sherbro Mendi
issions—would not have than five Thousand tor ven this I conisder a f what might have been
g. There is however,
r for enlarged operations ying in easy access, of dations. From this Good we have open before us nd containing scarcely n thousand souls, while y some that the popula-enty thousand. Already some attempt to extend econd Chapel has been place capable of holding seated over two hun-
and since we opened we have had as many as nd upward in attendance of preaching and the ers Class held in the well attended and inumbers.
as interest is very good
an I have seen it before.
led to wonder at what I service twice the number reaching that used to at-take part in the social ser-er and class meetings now r years ago. Really poor learning to pray. And among us are praying,
d yet how strange it all here is just now, such an receive the gospel. There y there are so few lovers among the Christians in la. So much more money end out Rum and Gin to people, so much less to issionaries to save the hen.—J. A. E

The Census.

understand, to be as enumeraples of the British Empire, and proposed to take all the realjesty's dominions on the night
April next, and it is desired to t return of the population of every d; which is to show a great apecially in such portions of re as comprize scores of uncivilized persons such as many ren these settlements, but the f a correct Census of a proper of even these different peoples o over estimated and for this ns should not fail to fill out the e thoroughly correct shall suit ience it life lasts to see the enorof such a vast Empire and feel a vast increase will be shown ons of 1881, in the Empire at ecially in this Colony.—E.

Passion Week,

h preceeding and including day, called passion week, of ountry like ours here on this opportunity for much rerovement, if properly observ-rtunately however, all christ-
ot a unit on the observance of the period, some seem to feel that they cannot profilt by such an observance of stated seasons in church, others of course think that there is no necessity for any particular observance of the Season. I think however, that the Majority of Christians in this District are agreed that some religious notice of the Death and resurrection of our Savior should be taken by those who profess to be his followers, but are not, perhaps so well agreed as to just the manner the season should be observed. This difference of feeling is too, more widespread than can be readily noticed, unless by the very careful observer, who has access to the people, or where there is freedom under the connectional rules to observe or not to observe, in other words where the Matter is left entirely to the religious feelings of church members. It will be found that very many only attend the week evening services to please their pastor or some other Church functionary rather than for the religious observance of the passion week, such perfunctionary keeping of the passion week can be of little religious benefit to the observers. Of course I have not yet heard the result of the various Services of the Past Week and Sabbath, but have every reason to believe that they have been in a measure successful as far as keeping the death and resurrection of our Lord before the minds of the people in a historical and intellectual manner is concerned, But this progressive religious age demands something deeper, that peirces the heart and moves the souls of men to renewed religious life, the piety of our church members has become to afeless A our religion too formal, hence we cannot impress the sinner for good. However there is hope that among the embers of our dull churchlife lies sufficient fire to be kindled into flame if properly fanned on the periodical recurrence of religious anniversaries and to my own mind if the Churches would, in any community agree upon a united effort against sin and satan during the Passion Week of each year that much good could be effected in the Revival of the Churches and the conversion of Sinners, and that scores of newborn souls might from year to year date their Spiritual birth to some day in that eventful period celebrated as the Week of our Lord's Passion

J. A. E

Bonthe, 30th March 91.

Changes.

In the Political as well as Ecclesiastical world changes are of frequent occurrence. Their effects are not always sweet as honey nor vice versa are they always bitter as the waters of marmah. In a word they are neither the one nor the other. Scripture history informs us that the fall of man was occasioned by his eating of the tree of life, thereby changing the Divine injunction "Thou shalt not eat of it".

Thus we find that from so early a period changes had a bitter effect. But on the other hand there was an other change effected and that is the first man Adam was made of exceptable man but conceived of the Holy Ghost. And thus in following Scripture history we find that though at first a change may seem to effect or produce a bitter quality yet at the last it is always sweet. From this we may be led like a Poet to say "There is a providence that rules over all and a Divinity that shapes our ends. I am led particularly to write on the this subject because of the manifestations of sorrow and utmost regret shown by some for friends leaving them and the joy of others for the exodus of their cummier From the newspapers of more remote days especially in the Colony of Sierra Leone we have always read of the sorrow manifested by the the community in the loss by departure of any man of renown. At times men have even tried by private letters as well as by the medium of the press to recall them.—To be Continued

P. H. P.

The Early Rains.

Mr. Editor,—Is it a fact as some have suggested to me that the seasons are actually Changing and the rains beginning earlier than in years gone by or is it that our attention is more particularly drawn to them by the circumstances with which many are otherwise surrounded? As for instance here in Bonthe nearly every one has expected more time to prepare for the rains and only the merest few are at all ready to have the torrents from above pour down upon the housetops, many too are extensively engaged in building or repairing and for several reasons are not as far forward with either as they had hoped to be when the rains began. But somehow it seems to almost every one that we are having a change in our seasons; for while it is true that for years past, in this Sherbro District, we have been accustomed to having rain every month in the year, yet it hardly seems that we have ever had as frequent or as heavy rains, in the past, as we are experiencing so far in the present year.

However, it seems that on the whole in these latter years we do not have any more rain on the whole, than in the former years, when there was a more marked difference between the dry and riany season—J. Albert

Time.

The measure of duration is called time and how fast it glides by, we are young and soon we are growing old, and yet how insensible of the magnitude of the change we are undergoing, the while that our duration is being measured to us and yet how short the span of human life, at longest four score years, and still how few that are granted a span half so long. But I am writing of time, time that glides so swiftly by. Only a few short years ago, it seems, and we were in the sixties and how well I remember 1863, the American War how it disturbed communication with missionaries abroad from that country of course I was not then among them, nor had I a thought of such being my lot; but time rolled on, and 8 years later I was on the Ocean sailing to a foreign shore. And now I look back and count almost a score of years—since I first entered on the duty of a foreign Missionary and so swift has been the flight of years that I can scarcely realize that the time has passed, yet time still rolls on, and we are cer-

Ins. BRITISH MUSEUM 2 Cm 1 2 3 4 5

LY DAWN.

The Darkness Disappears"

RICA, APRIL 15, 1891. No. 7.

From this we may be led like a Poet to say "There is a providence that rules over all and a Divinity that shapes our ends. I am led particularly to write on the this subject because of the manifestations of sorrow and utmost regret shown by some for friends leaving them and the joy of others for the exodus of their cummier From the newspapers of more remote days especially in the Colony of Sierra Leone we have always read of the sorrow manifested by the the community in the loss by departure of any man of renown. At times men have even tried by private letters as well as by the medium of the press to recall them.—To be Continued

P. H. P.

The Early Rains.

Mr. Editor,—Is it a fact as some have suggested to me that the seasons are actually Changing and the rains beginning earlier than in years gone by or is it that our attention is more particularly drawn to them by the circumstances with which many are otherwise surrounded? As for instance here in Bonthe nearly every one has expected more time to prepare for the rains and only the merest few are at all ready to have the torrents from above pour down upon the housetops, many too are extensively engaged in building or repairing and for several reasons are not as far forward with either as they had hoped to be when the rains began. But somehow it seems to almost every one that we are having a change in our seasons; for while it is true that for years past, in this Sherbro District, we have been accustomed to having rain every month in the year, yet it hardly seems that we have ever had as frequent or as heavy rains, in the past, as we are experiencing so far in the present year.

However, it seems that on the whole in these latter years we do not have any more rain on the whole, than in the former years, when there was a more marked difference between the dry and riany season—J. Albert

Time.

The measure of duration is called time and how fast it glides by, we are young and soon we are growing old, and yet how insensible of the magnitude of the change we are undergoing, the while that our duration is being measured to us and yet how short the span of human life, at longest four score years, and still how few that are granted a span half so long. But I am writing of time, time that glides so swiftly by. Only a few short years ago, it seems, and we were in the sixties and how well I remember 1863, the American War how it disturbed communication with missionaries abroad from that country of course I was not then among them, nor had I a thought of such being my lot; but time rolled on, and 8 years later I was on the Ocean sailing to a foreign shore. And now I look back and count almost a score of years—since I first entered on the duty of a foreign Missionary and so swift has been the flight of years that I can scarcely realize that the time has passed, yet time still rolls on, and we are cer-

Changes.

Ins. BRITISH MUSEUM 2 Cm 1 2 3 4 5

The Early Dawn

BONTHE, APRIL 15, 1891
REV. J. A. EVANS—EDITOR.

Editorial.

Very Bad.—Our mail [illegible] March 16th was very bad, but it was [illegible] avoid it as we could not get the type [illegible] properly covered with the ink [illegible] the first page. [illegible] sorry for the first [illegible] for its perfection.

Sierra Leone River.—The Missionaries [illegible] by the Rev'd J. R. Frederick of the A. M. E. Church of Freetown are [illegible] meeting with success. [illegible] reported from there are [illegible] others in another place. Quite a number have been [illegible] Dr. Frederick who has spent [illegible] time in the country and [illegible] Sierra Leone River a hitherto [illegible] valuable but very promising [illegible] sions. The V.M.C.A. mission [illegible] evangelized, we believe, are also [illegible] ting also for the same river.

Further up and [illegible] interior the African Society of the Presbyterian church of [illegible] have a large and [illegible] among Bush [illegible] as the Mendeans.

The Church of God.—Intelligence [illegible] reached us here from Freetown [illegible] cial services are [illegible] bow... named Church [illegible] Town and [illegible] to Bush and that a [illegible] which many souls [illegible] the truth. Revd Mr. Diamond has [illegible] since visited this [illegible] gospel and it is expected [illegible] return to Bush [illegible]

Sierra Leone Our Country.—[illegible] seems there is [illegible] some there has been [illegible] many years under the [illegible] large [illegible] the small [illegible] he gives [illegible] the natural course [illegible] of things or events [illegible] to any attempt [illegible] to [illegible] in the [illegible] where [illegible] any body [illegible] business may [illegible] the future for [illegible] But providence [illegible] tion for [illegible] to see [illegible] trade [illegible] of Sherbro [illegible] engage [illegible] consideration on the part of those who lead with them.

Liberia is trading [illegible] greatly to their advantage to deal [illegible] easily, sell for a reasonable margin, keep on hand a good stock [illegible] articles at fair prices cease from [illegible] and cheating in weights [illegible] otherwise.

Falconbridge Letter.

It has been for so many years we have been able to notice these letters having been so pressed for time to write, when we could have had the space, that having now a little more help, and time slightly more at our disposal, we resume with [illegible] The hope [illegible] of interest to remark, this time [illegible] writing on these letters we have [illegible] to read the site of Granville Town and [illegible] have a stroll over the very [illegible] Mrs. Falconbridge walked a hundred years ago, unfortunately the [illegible] of that locality seem to [illegible] there are [illegible] about the past of the [illegible] The theatre as it were, on which so many of the early acts of the Colony of Sierra Leone were enacted. So short [illegible] everything, the buildings of [illegible] years have all yielded to the weary [illegible] of time; the people are [illegible] while their descendants have [illegible] to the fair city of Freetown in the west end. Bon the Mount, the Bay and the Hook remain the same, as when Mrs Falconbridge penned her letters a century ago. But to resume her letter from [illegible] 8th 1791 where we left off in our last of Jan. she wrote as follows:

The higher class of people here can [illegible] speak broken English, which they have acquired from frequent intercourse with vessels that come to purchase slaves. They seem desirous to give education to their children, or in their own way of expressing it, read book, and learn to be sober as well as white man; for they say, if white men could not read, or wanted education, they would be no better rogues than stark goerbroom. I was treated with the most hospitality at every town I visited. Their common food is rice, pepper pot, or palaver sauce, Palm nuts and Palm Oil. [illegible] latter both sexes deposit their beads [illegible] though at dress and prevent [illegible] from smelling vastly strong. Wherever I went there was commonly a few [illegible] to see me. I liked the pepper pot [illegible] I found made with a small [illegible] slightly seasoned with [illegible] and [illegible] their houses are not like [illegible] heretofore described, but very [illegible] square or circular form, and as [illegible] the country is thinly [illegible] contains very few houses.

The inhabitants are [illegible] Pagans though they profess the [illegible] of a peculiar kind as [illegible] them injury, they therefore pay [illegible] to the Devil, from a belief that [illegible] is Supernatural Being; there [illegible] fa[illegible] and I am informed they [illegible] [illegible] where they make [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] ried on its swift wings toward the grave. Time past, and is gone forever it will return no more, but we are apprised that there has been before in many years, not only for the success of large capital, but also for the small trader if he is only content to be small until he grows large, or the natural course of things or events dictate, in any attempt to become a large dealer, will only result in disaster, either on the other hand wherever is willing to lay hold of [illegible] consideration on the part of those who deal with them.

Dealers in traders will further find it greatly to their advantage to deal honestly, sell for a reasonable margin, keep on hand a good stock of good articles at fair prices cease from over reaching and cheating in weight measure or otherwise.

Falconbridge Letters.

It has been for sometime since we have been able to notice those letters, having been so pressed for time to write, when we could have had the space. But here we now a little more help, and time slightly more at our disposal, we resume writing too operative with the hope of more success. It may be of interest to remark, that since our last writing on these letters we have been able to revisit the site of Granville Town and to have a stroll over the very soil on which Mrs. Falconbridge walked a hundred years ago, unfortunately the spiritual population of that locality seem to know little or care over about the past of the once historic spot. The theatre as it were on which so many of the early acts of the Colony of Sierra Leone were enacted. So changed too is everything, the buildings of a few years have all yielded to the heavy strokes of the head of time; the people are no more, while their descendants have piled up the fair city of Freetown to the westward. But the Mountains, the Bay and the Rocks remain the same, as when Mrs Falconbridge penned her letters a century ago. But to resume her fifth letter dated, Jan 5th 1791 where we left off in our last of Jan 4th she wrote as follows.

The higher class of people nevertheless mostly speak broken English, which they have acquired from frequent intercourse with vessels that come to purchase slaves. They seem desirous to give education to their children, or in their own way of expressing it, read book, and learn to be sober as well as white men; for they say, if white men could not read, or wanted education, they would be no better rogues than black gentlemen. I was treated with the utmost hospitality at every town I visited. Their common food is rice, pepper pot, or palaver sauce, Palm nuts and Palm Oil. The latter both sexes account their health daily, though it does not prevent them from smelling vastly strong. Wherever I went, there was commonly a fowl boiled or broiled for me; I liked the pepper pot, it is a kind of soup made with a mixture of greens, highly seasoned with salt and red pepper. Their houses are much like those I have heretofore described, but very low; they are irregularly placed, and build in no square or circular form, and as this part of the country is thinly inhabited, each town contains very few houses.

The inhabitants are cruelly [illegible] though they have the pretence of a fight, consider him as good that he can do them injury, they therefore pay homage to the Devil, from a belief that he is a very [illegible] Supernatural being; they have to [illegible] are informed they have other ritual places in different parts of the country, where they make animal sacrifices. [illegible] Chaudaw are universal [illegible] people have some consisting principally of a few grass wooden trenches and stones made by themselves; are always tidy and their homely habitation contains [illegible] of any kind, or from filth of any kind; nor do I think nature has been so unkind to endow those people with capacities less susceptible of improvement and cultivation than a variety of the human species.

I am led to form this conjecture from the quickness with which even those who cannot understand English comprehend my meaning by gestures or signs and the quickness they have imitated many things after me.

After time is calculated by planting moons and days, the reason of it is that they clear a new field once a year and at the full sign of a child or anything else they will answer as many plantations or piece of years they register their months by notches in a piece of wood which is carefully kept in some particular part of the house.

Their chief amusement is dancing, in the evening men and women assemble in the most open part of the town where they form a circle, which one at a time enters and shows his skill and agility by a number of wild comical motions. These dances are usually accompanied with a kind of [illegible] singing by clapping of hands and a harsh sounding drum [illegible] made out of hollowed wood covered with the skin of a goat. Sometimes I have seen an instrument resembling our guitar the country name of which is bangoe. The common people frequently applaud or upbraid the performer with bursts of laughter or some odd disagreeable noise; if it is moonshine and they have spirits to drink these dances frequently continue until the moon goes down or until daylight.

The Timmany dialect is commonly spoken here, though the nation so called is some distance to the northward. The natives account for this in the following way. Many years ago the Bereas, a tribe of people formerly living upon the banks of the river Sierra Leone, were conquered and drove away to other parts of the country by the Timmany's, who, having possessed themselves of the land invited many strangers to come and live among them. The Timmany's being again engaged in war, which the inhabitants of Sierra Leone did not choose to join in they therefore alienated the connections, and declared themselves a distinct nation, and have been considered as such ever since. Every chief or headman of a town is authorized from the struggles settle local disputes, but when disagreements of consequence arise between people of opposite places then a palaver is summoned to the residence of complainant, when the king attends or not as suits him, but if inconvenient to go in person, he sends his palaver-man, who carries the King's Sword, cane, or hat.

When all the parties are met, they enquire into the business of their meeting, and a majority of voices determines who has reason of one or the side. If the crime is formidable the punishment is slavery, unless the offender can redeem himself or herself, by paying another slave or the value in goods. It is customary when the Judge cannot procure sufficient proof, to oblige the party accused to take a poisonous draught, called Red Water—this potion is prepared by the judges themselves, who make it strong or weak, as they are moved by circumstances—if strong, and the stomach does not reject it instantly, it soon causes—but if weak it seizes it has another effect than a common [illegible]

CORRESPONDENCE.

Mr. Editor—Our Preaching Room together with two students of the Training School, a boy of the Shaingay Day School and a boatman [illegible] here about 15 minutes past [illegible] p. m. of the 21st. inst. to meet our quarterly meetings.

They were wearied of the [illegible] journey which they accomplished by walking in 3½ hours. At 7 p. m. of the same day meeting was held and a soul saving sermon was delivered by the Presiding Elder after which the business of the Quarterly Conference was attended to. The preacher in charge reported favorably of his work and stated that the Quarter was not as bright as he expected, yet from what is observed the prospect seems a hopeful one. The school is an encouraging feature of the work.

It is composed of children who come to school regularly from the forties, a few from the same village and those who are living with the teacher. The school has had an increase of 7 making a total of 27 scholars.

On Sunday morning [22nd inst.] the seekers met and there were 40 present besides non-seekers; after exhortation some gave their experiences in seeking the Lord and expressed their determination in finding him whom they are seeking.

At 11 a. m. morning service began; Presiding Elder preached from Exodus 20. 8. He left no stone unturned to point out forcibly the only living God to the 65 persons present. A child was baptized and the Lord's supper administered to 26 individuals.

The evening service was another grand affair. 86 persons listened to an interesting plain gospel talk on "Be not deceived," &c.

A native woman who was desirous of participating in the Lord's supper was prevented through ill health to attend service. After service the Presiding Elder went to her house and there it was administered to her. To avoid the intense heat of the sun, boys, boatmen, & Presiding Elder left this place the same night at 15 minutes to 9 o'clock for Shaingay.

H. J. William,
Jehovah Station, Yorgbonton.
March 23rd. 91.

REPORT.

Dear Mr. Editor,—As it was arranged that I should leave here for two weeks on vacation, I therefore give you a brief account of my trip to Freetown. Left Mendi Mission wharf on the 27th Feb. at 12 a. m. with the Rev R. C. Taylor, wife and child; we landed at Shaingay wharf at 5 a. m. on Sabbath the 1st. March. On our arrival on the wharf the Rev J. Gomer Presiding Elder of Shaingay District with Mr. C. A. E. Campbell School Teacher, came to greet us on the landing pier; and then they took us to our several places of abode. At 11 a. m. I attended Flickinger Chapel when Mr. C. A. E. Campbell delivered a very nice discourse, which I cannot well remember just now, and a lady organist Mrs. Benson played very excellent hymns during the course of the meeting. On the evening of the same day at 7 p. m. I attended the Barra, when the Rev. J. Gomer P. E. preached to a crowded congregation. On Tuesday the 3rd, about 1. 30. a. m. I left Shaingay for Freetown as we got by the Cape, the wind was so boisterous, that one of our booms was broken, and on Wednesday at 10 a. m. I landed in Freetown. On my arrival I felt so much broken down, the passage was very inconvenient so that I was laid up for a couple of days. On monday the 9th as I had told you, that I should try to get a few subscribers to help us, I therefore proceed on my mission. I walked on all that week and obtained a few. Some people say that there is too much of papers in Freetown, too much of English papers, and really so it is. Others said that they have never heard the name of the Dawn, they thought it had died a natural death. And some said that they were subscribing before, but they cease, because some past year it was badly printed. Then I told them, that the Dawn is now an improved paper, take it, read it carefully, and judge of its merit. I called on the Rev. J. R. Frederick our Agent, he told me that he was confined to his bed for some time, but as soon as he is up, he will try his best for the circulation of the Dawn. After my walking up and down in Freetown. I obtained fifteen new subscribers, which I think you will not object to publishing their names which are as follows:—

J. H. Pratt Esq, B A., Wesleyan High School, M. T. C Johnson, Esq., Wellington St., D Dickson Doherty, Esq., Oxford St., A. F. M. Lewis, Esq., Gloucester St. Rev. S. T. Peacock, Regent Rd., Z. M Venn, Esq., Wellington St., Rev. M. W. Randall, Bonthe, S. Cross Cole, Esq. Water St. Rev. J. C. Thomas, East St., Victor Mason, Esq. Steward St, W. J. M'Cloud, Esq Westmoreland St, O. H. Vincent Esq, Charles St, Rev. M. C. French, Guy Street, C. A. Jones Esq. Westmoreland St.—Yours, N. S. F.

Bonthe April 7th. 91

Visit to Sherbro Country.

Mr. Editor, Dear Sir—Will you kindly allow me a space in your valuable paper to mention briefly, my visit to Shaingay and to Bonthe, both towns situated within the Colony of Sierra Leone. The Mendi and Sherbro districts and near the Sherbro river.

The towns named are the only Stations that I have had the pleasure of visiting outside of Freetown, since my arrival in the Colony, which was on the 9th of December last year making just four months up to this date.

I can truly say that in consideration of all that I have witnessed and learned since my arrival that the West coast of Africa has more than met my expectation especially this particular Colony and from the information gathered already, I am prepared to testify to a sense of the progress, made by my African brethren.

After spending nearly three month in and around Freetown gathering some ideas of the place and people, and also taking a general survey of the life and development of the Church and school—I then found myself happily thrown in the midst of a glorious revival season at the church of God, which began on the 15th of March and closed on the 31st inst which resulted in the conversion of a number of precious souls and the building up of others who professed to have been in a state of lukewarmness for sometime past and now, just at the close of the season of revival services in which I had been engaged for the two weeks previous a favorable opportunity for visiting the the Sherbro country presents itself and on the day of April the second in company with the Rev. Mr. Gomer and wife, superintendent of the Shaingay mission, we sailed from Freetown and arrived at Shaingay in the evening of the same day we embarked.

Being rather fatiged from the tossing upon the sea, during the day, while it quite easy for me to enjoy quiet sleep through the watches of the night so after dinner I turned in and slept soundly till the ringing of the Mission Bell awakened me out of my slumber the next morning and very soon I was out of bed, dressed and ready for tea. After which I went out with Brother Gomer to the Boys' House to attend their usual morning prayer and Bible reading in which all of their students are supposed to take a part every morning before meeting their regular classes and recitations at the Training School. Here in this Station I have very briefly taken in the situation of the work of the mission, and have also marked the material growth of the locality and am pleased to state that according to my judgment. The Rev Mr. Gomer who is the pastor and leader here is the right man in the right place, and with a very intelligent staff of young men under him, well able to prosecute the work in hand. I have particularly noticed one feature of the work here, and that is the life and spirit of industries such is being encouraged by Bro. Gomer and others there.

That education means something else besides a knowledge of languages. It means the digging in the soil the felling of the forest, and the cultivation of different kinds of staples as well as the Scholarly ornamentation of timely study inside the dowment Halls.

So the work of this mission of salvation is very promising and it is to be hoped that good will eventually come through the training of the young of this place.

On Tuesday last the 7th of April I was coming over sea from Shaingay to this town (Bonthe) landing on the morning of the following day—I was cordially received by Rev. J. A. Evans who is at present the representative and Pastor of the United Brethren Church here and also the Editor of the only paper published in Bonthe entitled "The Early Dawn" and how applicable the title of this paper is to this very thriving little town Bonthe for the very situation and life of the place and people convince a stranger that there is a prosperous future before the people here and it is hoped that while there is great encouragment in both commercial and industrial enterprises, that the Church and School may not be behind in performing their duties in the training of the young. I am now being entertained here in the house Rev. J. A. and Mrs. Evans are not at all behind in making a stranger like myself feel perfectly at home in their company, and frankly speaking you will allow me to say that such is not more than I had expected to meet, from the fact that Brother Evans and wife are Americans and all Americans know just how to receive their friends warmly—I shall sail from this lovely Bonthe with some comforting impressions from what I have seen and enjoyed during my stay—and I shall pray for every possible blessing to attend the labours of our faithfull Missionaries here.

Lawrence L. Townsend.

Communication.

Passion Week at St. Matthew's Church—Bonthe.

Pursuant to announcement given, Services were held in the above Church from Monday 23rd March to Saturday 29th.

These services commenced at 4. a. m. to 5. a m. and in the evening from 7, to 8.

The Rev. S. Hughes officiated in all the services and the congregation both in the morning and evening are usually large and the addresses delivered on the occasion are really affecting and impressive, especially when the Rev gentleman treated on the suffering of our Lord, his detrayed by Judas, his denial by Peter, have each tended to move the hearts of even the most hardened sinner and it is to be hoped that many who were present have been saved through the powerful addresses given.

This is the first time that services of the kind have been held in this place, especially as one has to rise from his sleep at an early hour to watch with their dying Lord.

It is mainly gratifying to observe that the new pastor of St. Matthew is an energetic and persevering man, and may the Great Head of the Church endue him with grace and strength to enable him with to continue his labours amongst us.

He has much to do in the parish. May God help him.

Yours,—Truth.

Bonthe. April 14th 1891.

ADVERTISEMENT.

All that Piece and Parcel of land situate in Corner of Williams and Lime Street Bonthe opposite the Wesleyan Church, property of H. B. Cummings Esq Freetown.

For further particulars apply to the undersigned.

Eli C. Davis
Victoria Road
Bonthe April 1. 1891

NEWS ITEMS.

Rumor,—has it that Dr. Alice Harris, has been engaged for a year to labor at Rotufunk, we can only hope this may be a true report, as we believe, her professional aid will be a great help to that community

Ncharmany,—a prominent Station of the Shaingay District is shortly to have the labors of Rev W. S. Macauley late of Danville Station Mendi Mission District.

Konconany,—Mr. T. M Cole has returned to his charge at Konconany and resumed duty. Rev S. B. Morrison held the Quarterly there on the 29th ult. and had a pleasant season.

Danville Quarterly,—We believe, was held, by Rev S. B. Morrison on the 21st or 22nd March.

Jehovah Station,—Yorbonforce, Shaingay District, has been kindly remembered by Manheim U. B. Church of Pensylvania U. S. A.

9— s. s. Foutah for Freetown, with mails—Rev. M. W. Randall the new pastor of the Wesleyan Church in this place arrived per. s. s. 'Foutah.'

The Early Dawn

BONTHE, APRIL 15, 1891
REV. J. A. EVANS—EDITOR.

[EDITORIAL]

Very Bad,—Our last Impression of March 15th was very bad, but it was unavoidable as we could not get the type-page properly cleansed with the implements and Materials then on hand, but as this is right now, readers a better face this Issue. Appealing for the past we struggle on for future perfection.

Sierra Leone River,—The Missions planted by the Revd J. R. Frederick of the A. M. E. Church on Freetown are meeting with success. 7 conversions are reported from one place and several others in another place. Quite a number we believe have been baptized by Dr. Frederick who has spent considerable time in the country and along the Sierra Leone River, a hitherto unattivated but very promising field for Missions. The Y. M. C. A. mission to the unevangelized, we believe, are also operating also for the present along the line of the same river.

Further up and more interior the Aid Society of the U. B. Church of Rotufunk have a large and promising field known as the Mesimera Mission.

The Church of God,—Information has reached us here from Freetown that special Services were conducted in the above named Church, by the Rev. J. L. Townsend of America from March 15th to 31st and that a precious Revival in which many souls were blest has been the result. Revd Mr. Townsend has since visited this place about the 5th inst. 9th inst. and it is expected that he will return here to hold special revival services in Sherbro in short.

Business Out Look,—In this department there is just now more promise, than there has been before in many years, not only for the success of large capital, but also for the small trader if he is only content to be small until he grows large, or the natural course of things or events dictate, in any attempt to become a large dealer, will only result in disaster, either on the other hand wherever is willing to lay hold of [illegible] consideration on the part of those who deal with them.

Dealers in traders will further find it greatly to their advantage to deal honestly, sell for a reasonable margin, keep on hand a good stock of good articles at fair prices cease from over reaching and cheating in weight measure or otherwise.

Falconbridge Letters.

It has been for sometime since we have been able to notice those letters, having been so pressed for time to write, when we could have had the space. But here we now a little more help, and time slightly more at our disposal, we resume writing too operative with the hope of more success. It may be of interest to remark, that since our last writing on these letters we have been able to revisit the site of Granville Town and to have a stroll over the very soil on which Mrs. Falconbridge walked a hundred years ago, unfortunately the spiritual population of that locality seem to know little or care over about the past of the once historic spot. The theatre as it were on which so many of the early acts of the Colony of Sierra Leone were enacted. So changed too is everything, the buildings of a few years have all yielded to the heavy strokes of the head of time; the people are no more, while their descendants have piled up the fair city of Freetown to the westward. But the Mountains, the Bay and the Rocks remain the same, as when Mrs Falconbridge penned her letters a century ago. But to resume her fifth letter dated, Jan 5th 1791 where we left off in our last of Jan 4th she wrote as follows.

The higher class of people nevertheless mostly speak broken English, which they have acquired from frequent intercourse with vessels that come to purchase slaves. They seem desirous to give education to their children, or in their own way of expressing it, read book, and learn to be sober as well as white men; for they say, if white men could not read, or wanted education, they would be no better rogues than black gentlemen. I was treated with the utmost hospitality at every town I visited. Their common food is rice, pepper pot, or palaver sauce, Palm nuts and Palm Oil. The latter both sexes account their health daily, though it does not prevent them from smelling vastly strong. Wherever I went, there was commonly a fowl boiled or broiled for me; I liked the pepper pot, it is a kind of soup made with a mixture of greens, highly seasoned with salt and red pepper. Their houses are much like those I have heretofore described, but very low; they are irregularly placed, and build in no square or circular form, and as this part of the country is thinly inhabited, each town contains very few houses.

The inhabitants are cruelly [illegible] though they have the pretence of a fight, consider him as good that he can do them injury, they therefore pay homage to the Devil, from a belief that he is a very [illegible] Supernatural being; they have to [illegible] are informed they have other ritual places in different parts of the country, where they make animal sacrifices. [illegible] Chaudaw are universal [illegible] people have some consisting principally of a few grass wooden trenches and stones made by themselves; are always tidy and their homely habitation contains [illegible] of any kind, or from filth of any kind; nor do I think nature has been so unkind to endow those people with capacities less susceptible of improvement and cultivation than a variety of the human species.

I am led to form this conjecture from the quickness with which even those who cannot understand English comprehend my meaning by gestures or signs and the quickness they have imitated many things after me.

After time is calculated by planting moons and days, the reason of it is that they clear a new field once a year and at the full sign of a child or anything else they will answer as many plantations or piece of years they register their months by notches in a piece of wood which is carefully kept in some particular part of the house.

Their chief amusement is dancing, in the evening men and women assemble in the most open part of the town where they form a circle, which one at a time enters and shows his skill and agility by a number of wild comical motions. These dances are usually accompanied with a kind of [illegible] singing by clapping of hands and a harsh sounding drum [illegible] made out of hollowed wood covered with the skin of a goat. Sometimes I have seen an instrument resembling our guitar the country name of which is bangoe. The common people frequently applaud or upbraid the performer with bursts of laughter or some odd disagreeable noise; if it is moonshine and they have spirits to drink these dances frequently continue until the moon goes down or until daylight.

The Timmany dialect is commonly spoken here, though the nation so called is some distance to the northward. The natives account for this in the following way. Many years ago the Bereas, a tribe of people formerly living upon the banks of the river Sierra Leone, were conquered and drove away to other parts of the country by the Timmany's, who, having possessed themselves of the land invited many strangers to come and live among them. The Timmany's being again engaged in war, which the inhabitants of Sierra Leone did not choose to join in they therefore alienated the connections, and declared themselves a distinct nation, and have been considered as such ever since. Every chief or headman of a town is authorized from the struggles settle local disputes, but when disagreements of consequence arise between people of opposite places then a palaver is summoned to the residence of complainant, when the king attends or not as suits him, but if inconvenient to go in person, he sends his palaver-man, who carries the King's Sword, cane, or hat.

When all the parties are met, they enquire into the business of their meeting, and a majority of voices determines who has reason of one or the side. If the crime is formidable the punishment is slavery, unless the offender can redeem himself or herself, by paying another slave or the value in goods. It is customary when the Judge cannot procure sufficient proof, to oblige the party accused to take a poisonous draught, called Red Water—this potion is prepared by the judges themselves, who make it strong or weak, as they are moved by circumstances—if strong, and the stomach does not reject it instantly, it soon causes—but if weak it seizes it has another effect than a common [illegible]

CORRESPONDENCE.

Mr. Editor—Our Preaching Room together with two students of the Training School, a boy of the Shaingay Day School and a boatman [illegible] here about 15 minutes past [illegible] p. m. of the 21st. inst. to meet our quarterly meetings.

They were wearied of the [illegible] journey which they accomplished by walking in 3½ hours. At 7 p. m. of the same day meeting was held and a soul saving sermon was delivered by the Presiding Elder after which the business of the Quarterly Conference was attended to. The preacher in charge reported favorably of his work and stated that the Quarter was not as bright as he expected, yet from what is observed the prospect seems a hopeful one. The school is an encouraging feature of the work.

It is composed of children who come to school regularly from the forties, a few from the same village and those who are living with the teacher. The school has had an increase of 7 making a total of 27 scholars.

On Sunday morning [22nd inst.] the seekers met and there were 40 present besides non-seekers; after exhortation some gave their experiences in seeking the Lord and expressed their determination in finding him whom they are seeking.

At 11 a. m. morning service began; Presiding Elder preached from Exodus 20. 8. He left no stone unturned to point out forcibly the only living God to the 65 persons present. A child was baptized and the Lord's supper administered to 26 individuals.

The evening service was another grand affair. 86 persons listened to an interesting plain gospel talk on "Be not deceived," &c.

A native woman who was desirous of participating in the Lord's supper was prevented through ill health to attend service. After service the Presiding Elder went to her house and there it was administered to her. To avoid the intense heat of the sun, boys, boatmen, & Presiding Elder left this place the same night at 15 minutes to 9 o'clock for Shaingay.

H. J. William,
Jehovah Station, Yorgbonton.
March 23rd. 91.

REPORT.

Dear Mr. Editor,—As it was arranged that I should leave here for two weeks on vacation, I therefore give you a brief account of my trip to Freetown. Left Mendi Mission wharf on the 27th Feb. at 12 a. m. with the Rev R. C. Taylor, wife and child; we landed at Shaingay wharf at 5 a. m. on Sabbath the 1st. March. On our arrival on the wharf the Rev J. Gomer Presiding Elder of Shaingay District with Mr. C. A. E. Campbell School Teacher, came to greet us on the landing pier; and then they took us to our several places of abode. At 11 a. m. I attended Flickinger Chapel when Mr. C. A. E. Campbell delivered a very nice discourse, which I cannot well remember just now, and a lady organist Mrs. Benson played very excellent hymns during the course of the meeting. On the evening of the same day at 7 p. m. I attended the Barra, when the Rev. J. Gomer P. E. preached to a crowded congregation. On Tuesday the 3rd, about 1. 30. a. m. I left Shaingay for Freetown as we got by the Cape, the wind was so boisterous, that one of our booms was broken, and on Wednesday at 10 a. m. I landed in Freetown. On my arrival I felt so much broken down, the passage was very inconvenient so that I was laid up for a couple of days. On monday the 9th as I had told you, that I should try to get a few subscribers to help us, I therefore proceed on my mission. I walked on all that week and obtained a few. Some people say that there is too much of papers in Freetown, too much of English papers, and really so it is. Others said that they have never heard the name of the Dawn, they thought it had died a natural death. And some said that they were subscribing before, but they cease, because some past year it was badly printed. Then I told them, that the Dawn is now an improved paper, take it, read it carefully, and judge of its merit. I called on the Rev. J. R. Frederick our Agent, he told me that he was confined to his bed for some time, but as soon as he is up, he will try his best for the circulation of the Dawn. After my walking up and down in Freetown. I obtained fifteen new subscribers, which I think you will not object to publishing their names which are as follows:—

J. H. Pratt Esq, B A., Wesleyan High School, M. T. C Johnson, Esq., Wellington St., D Dickson Doherty, Esq., Oxford St., A. F. M. Lewis, Esq., Gloucester St. Rev. S. T. Peacock, Regent Rd., Z. M Venn, Esq., Wellington St., Rev. M. W. Randall, Bonthe, S. Cross Cole, Esq. Water St. Rev. J. C. Thomas, East St., Victor Mason, Esq. Steward St, W. J. M'Cloud, Esq Westmoreland St, O. H. Vincent Esq, Charles St, Rev. M. C. French, Guy Street, C. A. Jones Esq. Westmoreland St.—Yours, N. S. F.

Bonthe April 7th. 91

Visit to Sherbro Country.

Mr. Editor, Dear Sir—Will you kindly allow me a space in your valuable paper to mention briefly, my visit to Shaingay and to Bonthe, both towns situated within the Colony of Sierra Leone. The Mendi and Sherbro districts and near the Sherbro river.

The towns named are the only Stations that I have had the pleasure of visiting outside of Freetown, since my arrival in the Colony, which was on the 9th of December last year making just four months up to this date.

I can truly say that in consideration of all that I have witnessed and learned since my arrival that the West coast of Africa has more than met my expectation especially this particular Colony and from the information gathered already, I am prepared to testify to a sense of the progress, made by my African brethren.

After spending nearly three month in and around Freetown gathering some ideas of the place and people, and also taking a general survey of the life and development of the Church and school—I then found myself happily thrown in the midst of a glorious revival season at the church of God, which began on the 15th of March and closed on the 31st inst which resulted in the conversion of a number of precious souls and the building up of others who professed to have been in a state of lukewarmness for sometime past and now, just at the close of the season of revival services in which I had been engaged for the two weeks previous a favorable opportunity for visiting the the Sherbro country presents itself and on the day of April the second in company with the Rev. Mr. Gomer and wife, superintendent of the Shaingay mission, we sailed from Freetown and arrived at Shaingay in the evening of the same day we embarked.

Being rather fatiged from the tossing upon the sea, during the day, while it quite easy for me to enjoy quiet sleep through the watches of the night so after dinner I turned in and slept soundly till the ringing of the Mission Bell awakened me out of my slumber the next morning and very soon I was out of bed, dressed and ready for tea. After which I went out with Brother Gomer to the Boys' House to attend their usual morning prayer and Bible reading in which all of their students are supposed to take a part every morning before meeting their regular classes and recitations at the Training School. Here in this Station I have very briefly taken in the situation of the work of the mission, and have also marked the material growth of the locality and am pleased to state that according to my judgment. The Rev Mr. Gomer who is the pastor and leader here is the right man in the right place, and with a very intelligent staff of young men under him, well able to prosecute the work in hand. I have particularly noticed one feature of the work here, and that is the life and spirit of industries such is being encouraged by Bro. Gomer and others there.

That education means something else besides a knowledge of languages. It means the digging in the soil the felling of the forest, and the cultivation of different kinds of staples as well as the Scholarly ornamentation of timely study inside the dowment Halls.

So the work of this mission of salvation is very promising and it is to be hoped that good will eventually come through the

Communication.

Passion Week at St. Matthew's Church—Bonthe.

Pursuant to announcement given, Services were held in the above Church from Monday 23rd March to Saturday 29th.

These services commenced at 4. a. m. to 5. a m. and in the evening from 7, to 8.

The Rev. S. Hughes officiated in all the services and the congregation both in the morning and evening are usually large and the addresses delivered on the occasion are really affecting and impressive, especially when the Rev gentleman treated on the suffering of our Lord, his detrayed by Judas, his denial by Peter, have each tended to move the hearts of even the most hardened sinner and it is to be hoped that many who were present have been saved through the powerful addresses given.

This is the first time that services of the kind have been held in this place, especially as one has to rise from his sleep at an early hour to watch with their dying Lord.

It is mainly gratifying to observe that the new pastor of St. Matthew is an energetic and persevering man, and may the Great Head of the Church endue him with grace and strength to enable him with to continue his labours amongst us.

He has much to do in the parish. May God help him.

Yours,—Truth.

Bonthe. April 14th 1891.

ADVERTISEMENT.

All that Piece and Parcel of land situate in Corner of Williams and Lime Street Bonthe opposite the Wesleyan Church, property of H. B. Cummings Esq Freetown.

For further particulars apply to the undersigned.

Eli C. Davis
Victoria Road
Bonthe April 1. 1891

NEWS ITEMS.

Rumor,—has it that Dr. Alice Harris, has been engaged for a year to labor at Rotufunk, we can only hope this may be a true report, as we believe, her professional aid will be a great help to that community

Ncharmany,—a prominent Station of the Shaingay District is shortly to have the labors of Rev W. S. Macauley late of Danville Station Mendi Mission District.

Konconany,—Mr. T. M Cole has returned to his charge at Konconany and resumed duty. Rev S. B. Morrison held the Quarterly there on the 29th ult. and had a pleasant season.

Danville Quarterly,—We believe, was held, by Rev S. B. Morrison on the 21st or 22nd March.

Jehovah Station,—Yorbonforce, Shaingay District, has been kindly remembered by Manheim U. B. Church of Pensylvania U. S. A.

9— s. s. Foutah for Freetown, with mails—Rev. M. W. Randall the new pastor of the Wesleyan Church in this place arrived per. s. s. 'Foutah.'

SELECTIONS.

Brief Story Of Bishop Taylor's Life.

Stuart Taylor wasn't crazy. He was a level headed man in his day, and clearly perceived that he could get no help and do but little good in the Church of his early choice, so he deliberately made up his mind to join the Methodist Episcopal Church.

A fortnight after he came home with the good news that he was converted to God, he and his family were encamped in his own tent at 'Shaw's Camp Ground,' seven miles distant from were he lived. At that camp-meeting my mother was saved, and father, mother and myself joined the M. E. Church and helped to form the Society at Lambert's meeting-house, which was attached to the Lexington Circuit. Mr B. Edwards the preacher in charge received us into the Church. He is still living and able to preach. My father was naturally a leader of men and soon become so in the Church of his new-born life. From the first, and, through his long life, his ruling passion was to get people saved. He became an ordained local preacher, but for over forty years his ministerial services far and near, were more itinerant than local. He was in easy circumstances and devoted a large portion of his time to special evangelistic services. His only reward, for he refused pay was the joy of soul-saving success. He assisted me in protracted meetings on four different circuits in which I was a minister. He was the most willing and the most welcome helper I could get. He was a great singer, a powerful exhorter, and as for knee-work among seekers of salvation, there seemed to be limit to his zeal and power of endurance—always first in the fight and the last to retire from the field. His confidence in man and his grand possibilities were second only to his confidence inGod and in free and full salvation in Jesus.

Designing men sometimes took advantage of it and would contract debts which they never paid and probably never intended to. A stranger called at my father's tannery and exclaimed as he approached, "O, Brother Taylor, how are you? I am delighted to see you looking so well."

You have the advantage of me,' replied father, I have no remembrance of ever seeing you before.

Why, Brother Taylor don't you know me? I was converted under your preaching on Colyer's Creek, and I shall always bless the day in which you led me to Jesus. He then went on with the details of his story, and wound up by saying he had come to buy some leather. He made a choice selection and had it rolled up, and then said: I haven't the money with me to pay for it to-day, but I will certainly get it and pay you, Brother Taylor, inside of ten days.

He worked his card so well that my father trusted him. Father, referring to him months afterward, said: With all his pious professions, I believe he had a devil in him as big as a ground-hog. But his faith in the many was never shaken by the deceptive hypocrisy of the few, and, though he would not a second time trust them with leather on time, he still sought earnestly to save them.

The civil war swept like a tornado over the State of Virginia. The valley was in possession, alternately, of the Union and of the Secession army. The trimmers knew not which side to shout for.

A detachment of secesh cavalry galloped up to a farm—house and demanded of a woman standing in the door, which side are you on—Union or Secession?

She replied promptly, I'm a Baptist I've been a member of the Baptist Church from my childhood.

"But everybody who was acquainted with Stuart Taylor knew which side he was on; indeed, he was recklessly bold in declaring his unflinching fidelity to the Union cause.

A conspiracy was planned for his arrest and execution in 'castle thunder,' but the Lord was so careful of him that He moved General J. Johnson, commander of that division, to issue an order that Stuart Taylor should not be molested.

To be continued.

A Little Maverick.

All that hot August day there had been a cloud of dust in the east like a column of smoke. No breath of air stirred it, nor did it seem to advance a yard. The sky was a steely blue, the air quivered like the white heat from a cauldron of molten metal. In the crisp and dry buffalo grass myriad insect life gave to the simmering air a dreamy, monotonous sound like the humming of far away bees.

The afternoon passed darkness gathered, and with the rising moon came a cool wind from off the snow – crested peaks. The cloud of dust subsided, and revealed a line of moving, white covered wagons.

As the caravan drew near, a gaunt prairie wolf rose suddenly out of the grass, gave a long, dolorous howl, and fled across the plain. After him as if they had risen from the earth by magic, went a pony and rider, a bronzed, grizzled old man as gaunt, and evidently dreading the new comers as much as the wolf.

The caravan, numbering thirty wagons, went into camp in the form of a hollow square, the people and animals inside the barrier of wagons. The sound of voices, the smell of cooking, the laughter of children and the glow of the camp-fires made a bit of welcome life in the solemn land, breaking the soundless monotony of centuries.

Later, when the fires were low, and when the only noises were the champing of the animals and the tread of the sentry on watch, a strange, elfish figure ran out of the stockade and began to dance in the moonlight—a girl of twelve or thereabouts, with big, sparkling eyes and short black curls flying over her pretty brow. A bearded face was thrust out under a wagon cover, and a gruff but not unkindly voice called:

"Come in here, you Maverick, want the Injuns to git ye?"

The child laughed mockingly, and continued her dance. After the third call the big man jumped out of the wagon and ran after her. When she could run no longer she dropped like a log, remaining still and still, while he carried her to the wagon.

"Gritty, ain't she, marm!" he said, as the child rolled over like a stick of wood.

The lady addressed was a tall, thin person with a wrinkled face, sharp black eyes behind spectacles, corkscrew curls, and a habit of wearing little shoulder caps in the hot test weather. She was a New England school teacher going West to better herself.

'Gritty' is western, I presume Mr. Chase, said the lady. Miss Mary Ann Reed, 'What on earth do you call her a Maverick for?' Miss Reed clicked her needles viciously. She knitted all day, jolting in a corner of the wagon, a picture of martyrdom.

'In my kentry, Texas," said Chase, 'they calls them stray young cattle that dont git branded Mavericks. They don't b'long to no herd, an' them that find gits 'em.'

'She's got folks in Denver,' said Miss Reed.

'I dunno,' whispered the man, with an anxious look toward the sleeping child.

'A feller that met me two days ago on the east-bound wagon-train told me her pa and ma had died suddenly, an' the children had scattered, an' he'd never heerd o' Janet at all. Her gran'marm had kep' her from a baby an' the old lady up in,' Janets uncle jest shipped her off to Denver where her folks was livin' Don't seem nobody to take her.'

'Why didn't you send her back with these folks?' asked Miss Reed

'Cause they was only hart way, an' was short for grub; they wouldn't take her'

Yet the Maverick was a great pet on the journey. Every one liked her and welcomed her bright presence to their wagons. Around the camp fires even the men gathered to hear her sing the quaint old Hymns her grandmother had taught her. She held tired babies till her little arms were numb, she told stories to weary children, and was a ministering angel at every wagon—at the last one in the train most of all.

This wagon had joined the train in Missouri, and belonged to an unfortunate family that Chase called "Pikes."

The father, a sullen sickly man drove the four lean oxen; the mother half dead fro malaria, seldom lifted her head from her bed, and the nine children, practically orphans took care of themselves, and of a little motherless girl sent to her father in Denver.

THE
Early Dawn
PRINTING OFFICE
PLAIN ARTISTIC and FANCY JOB WORK EXECUTED AT
SHORT NOTICE
ENQUIRE OF
H. Samuel Thomas
PRINTER

THE EARLY DAWN.

"The Morning Light Is Breaking. The Darkness Disappears"

VOL. VIII. BONTHE, SHERBRO, WEST AFRICA, APRIL 30, 189 No. 8.

The 'Early Dawn'

Published Semi-Monthly at Bonthe, Sherbro. Under the Auspices of the Board of Missions of the United Brethern In Christ.

Rev. J.A. Evans, Editor and Publisher
Bonthe, Sherbro, West Africa.

AGENTS.

United States—Revs. B. P. Booth and Wm McKee, Dayton Rev. Wm J. Davis, Basil, Ohio. Rev D. K. Flickinger, Willoughby, Ohio. J. M. Stoner, Manheim, Pa., Rev. G. W. Arnold Eldorado, Ohio.
West Africa—J. A. Richards, River Gambia. Rev. J. R. Frederick, and Mr. E. A. Lewis Freetown, Sierra Leone. Rev. James Deputy, Marshall, Liberia. Mr. Moses S. Boyle Liberia.

TERMS'

One Year by mail,	£0 6 0
Delivered in Bonthe,	0 5 0
Half yearly by mail,	0 3 0
Ditto. delivered in Bonthe,	0 2 0

Mission House
Bendoo, Feb, 13th 1891.

Rev. S. Hughes,

My dear Sir—I am glad to report for your information that in compliance with your request I left Bendoo on Saturday the 7th inst at 5. p. m. for Jamaica Factory in a boat sent for my conveyance thither by Mr. S. B. A. Macfoy the owner of the Factory. After an hours sail we landed at Yelbana Factory which also belongs to Mr Macfoy.

We went on shore to await the tide which was very unfavorable and the wind was also right a head of us. We left this place at 9. 30. after 5 hours rowing we landed at Jamaica which is about 20 miles from Bendoo in a northerly direction, at about 2 o'clock on Sunday morning. I remain in the boat for nearly three quarters of an hour while the men went on shore and brought a small canoe to convey me through the mud which render the landing—very uncomfortable, especially at low water. On reaching the shore I was warmly greeted by Mr Macfoy who was anxiously expecting my arrival: After a few minutes conversation I handed to him your letter, which he afterwards handed to me for my perusal, the purport of which was that you had requested me to proceed to Jamaica to conduct Divine Service at his place and that I was also at his disposal to visit his Farkies or any of the neighboring towns and preach to the people if he could make it convenient to provide me conveyance in his boat without any extra expenses on our church as we were very poor, expressing also your intention to visit our Sierra Leone Christian and heathen friends in his Factory and its neighborhood D. V. as soon as you could make the necessary arrangements for that purpose, your letter also expressed good wishes for himself and family and congratulated him on the deliverance God had wrought for him during the last accident from fire which occurred in his premises. Mr Macfoy was much pleased with the kind sentiments and Christian feelings expressed in this letter.

Mr. Macfoy is a native of Kent, Sierra Leone and a church man by birth, and has always endeavored to inculcate the feelings of Godliness both amongst his employees and also the surrounding heathens— for this reason he built a small chapel which was opened by the Rev Mr Bowen and myself in 1879, on which occasion several native children were baptized together with his own. Bishop Cheetham landed there on his visit to Sherbro in 1880 and was much pleased with Mr Macfoy's efforts unassisted by any one, to which also was added a small school for the education of his own and the native children with a paid schoolmaster at his sole expense. On this account the Bishop requested the Rev Mr Moore the then newly appointed Pastor of Sherbro to be sending a Catechist to Jamaica to preach there twice every month. Mr Macfoy placed a boat at our disposal for this purpose and whenever he could not conveniently send one, he paid the expense of sending one to Jamaica. Mr Moore himself frequently visited and conducted services at this place.

This chapel has since tumbled down, consequent on Mr Macfoy's being often absent from the place for considerable periods on business transactions. He has commenced building another Chapel, the foundation stone of which has been recently laid by yourself, the dimentions of which he gave me to understand are 40 ft. by 28 ft. He has sent for some Carpenters from Free town to assist those on the spot so as to facilitate the building of the Chapel and other works which he hopes to be able to complete as early as possible. As regards Mr Macfoy's liberality in Church matters, I need hardly say much the church at Bonthe and the Sierra Leone Church and Native Pastorate Subscription Lists give sufficient testimony. He has besides always influenced the men under his employ to contribute towards the good cause.

Sunday 8th Lordaday—Previously to the time for Divine Service Mr Macfoy sent and notified all his workmen to be present at the service giving them also to understand that those who did not attend and could not give sufficient reasons for being absent would forfeit some portion of their wages—Accordingly all attended with the exception of those that were sick, and the room in which the service was conducted was quite full the total number present being forty-four with the exception of Mr Macfoy's domestic servants nearly the whole of the congregation were Sierra Leoneans. The regular form of the services were gone through and I addressed them from Isaiah 50. ver 2 "Is my hand shortened at all that it cannot redeem? or have I no power to deliver? They seemed to be much impressed with this address As no previous intimation was given to the people, at Mr Macfoy's suggestion no collection was asked for after the service although you had requested me to do so, Mr Macfoy says that this will be done whenever another is held there. At the close of the service I distributed some heligious tracts amongst the people entitled 'Enough Room' which they appreciated.

At 4 p. m. I visited Tinne farkie in which all the people live who are employed by Mr. Macfoy. As they spite anderstood the Sierra Leone dialect I addressed "Deluge" nearly all the Sierra Leoneans in the Factory together with Mr. Macfoy accompanied me to this service. The congregation was composed of both men and women who listened to me with marked attention. As usual I asked them at the close of the service if they had any question to ask me, when the headman said "all that you have said is true", and in explaining to them that the Rainbow was the sign of a covenant made by God to Noah that the world shall no more be destroyed by water but by fire, they exclaimed that they had hitherto been regarding it as a symbol of evil, but that they now understood its meaning.

They also said that they will endeavor to serve God in order to obtain eternal life. At 7 p. m. we had prayer meeting and the room was again full as in the morning. Some people who came for trading purposes and landed before the evening service was commenced also attended. On the whole I may say that this was a refreshing day to us all and I fervently hope that God's blessing may rest on my humble efforts.

May 6th—I rested myself this day after the many exertions I have had both in journeying and preaching on the two previous days.

Tuesday 10th—I visited a neighboring town about three-fourths of an hours distance by sea from Jamaica Factory accompanied by a trader named Matthew Tilley who was kindly placed at my disposal by Mr. Macfoy to act as an interpreter. The name of the Town is 'Pagan'. It is a small but very clean and neat town. On landing we met two canoes just leaving the town in one of which there was a young woman in a dying state who was being conveyed to her native town in the Mosaam river. I made some effort to speak to her but she was unfortunately quite unconscious for which I was very sorry. On reaching the town which was not far from the wharf I went to the headman of the town to whom Mr. Macfoy had sent word to say that I was to be expected and that he should collect his people together to hear me. He received me heartily and told me that he had kept as many of his people as he possibly could, from going to their farms so as to hear me, as Macfoy requested him to do.

The interpreter and myself then sang the Hymn "Come to Jesus just now," after which I prayed. Our singing caused some merriment and astonishment amongst some of the people I read from the 3rd chap which was translated verse by verse by my interpreter after which I explained to them in a few words about the "Fall of Man" and the consequences of sin which was also interpreted to them. I spoke to them about the evil of going to country fashion in times of sickness and distress instead of going to God. They thanked me and promised to take my advice.

The headman informed me that many years ago he was taken to Freetown and was a member of the Lady Huntingdon's Connexion. He is now a feeble old man of nearly eighty years of age. He thanked me at the close of the service and said he hoped both himself and his country men will be profited by what they have heard from me and also requested me to thank Mr. Macfoy for sending me to them. At 5 p. m. I went to 'Combonde, Farkie at one of the extreme end of Mr. macfoy's plantation, accompanied by Mr. Macfoy who although not feeling very well rode in his 'Sedan Chair.' On our arrival Mr. macfoy informed the headman of the nature of our visit and as his people had just returned from work he requested him to assemble them together.

I then addressed them on the "Fall of Man, Mr. Macfoy acting as my interpreter. One of them became very indignant on hearing that Adams fall was owing to Eve's temptation and said he would have dealt very summarily with Eve if he had been Adam, for had it not been for her, man would have been in a happy state until now. It may seem amusing, still at the same time it requires some knowledge and experience of the ideas of these people so as to be able to meet with their little arguments in religious matters.

On the whole however they said they were pleased with my visit and thanked me for coming among them. We returned home at 6. 15 p. m. and at 7 o'clock, I conducted prayer meeting being the last evening I was spending there. The room was again full and some traders who had just arrived also attended. Many earnest prayers were offered which we hope God will accept for his son's sake, in addressing the people I mentioned to them your intended visit to Jamaica which would take place shortly, (D. V.) and expressed a hope that in the meantime they should not forget the assembling of themselves together but meet every S.S.oath for the purpose of prayer and praise. At the close of the meeting all came and shook my hands warmly and thanked me for coming amongst them and conducting these services.

On Wednesday 11th at 11 30 a. m. I took leave of Mr Macfoy and proceeded to Yelbana where I arrived at 1. 40 p. m. and from thence to Bendoo where I reached in hour afterwards both wind and tide being in our favor. To God be all the praise!

Trusting I have complied with your request satisfactorily.

I remain, my dear Sir,
Your obedient servant.
C. S. Brown.

Election at Saint Matthew's Church Bonthe.

On Monday the 30th of March being Easter Monday an election of officers to serve the Church for the ensuing year took place at the above Church at 7 p. m.

The meeting was opened by the pastor in charge who read a portion of scripture selected for the occasion after which he gave a short address to the members present on the duties and responsibilities attached to the different offices to which they shall be appointed at the ensuing Thanksgiving Crase who have served during the past year.

This being over slips of paper were handed round for each member present to vote for only one name at each time, till a number shall be appointed.

The following gentlemen were elected—

Committee Members.

C. B. Collier, B. T. Collier, D. L. Collier, J. N. Cowan, H. B. Williams.—Secretary J. B. Parkinson, M. Z. Macauley, M. G. Thompson.—Treasurer. P. A. A. Thompson & T. E. Macfoy. J. D. Macauley, Dr. M. L. Jarrett.

Wardens—D. L. Collier—Pastors, W. B. Colliers—People.

Sidesmen—P. W. Parkinson Anthony W. Elliott.

In conformity with the request and instructions of the Bishop of Sierra Leone we do appoint the three elected to be present at the Easter Election to take place in Freetown on the 20th April to represent the immediate wants of the Church at Sherbro and the following gentlemen were elected viz— Messrs. C. B. Collier, and M. G. L. Thompson, after the business of the evening was over the pastor pronounced the benediction and the meeting came to a close at 9 p. m.

Committee—C. S. B.

Bonthe April 15th

The Early Dawn

BONTHE, APRIL 30, 1891.

REV. J. A. EVANS—EDITOR

[EDITORIAL]

THE NEW PASTOR.—Of the Wesleyan mission in this place who arrived here some weeks since has now become settled down to his work in good earnest and we have been pleased to learn that he is an old acquaintance of the Revd N. Hughes of the Church Pastorate who has also lately come, but a little in advance of Rev M. W. Randall, to assist in this very important field of the Shrbro. The harvest here is great but the laborers are few so that Mr. Randall as also Mr. Hughes are welcomed to the field and we wish them both abundant success, and we surely trust that great revival influence may follow their accession to the Sherbro Pastorate.

PUBLIC IMPROVEMENTS.—In this place are moving on nicely, the Sea Wall has grown longer as the weeks have passed. The new addition to the Government buildings is progressing. One striking feature of the work on Heddy Street, is the new bridge erected over Ghundamah Creek Mr Jones the Superintendent, of these and various other works here is to be congratulated upon his success.

The Wants of Sherbro.—Doubtless are very many, but we venture to point out a few that are within reasonable hope of early attainment. If only an effort is put forth in the proper direction. First of all, an Industrial Training School ought to be established here for the training of all classes of youth male and female, in order to prepare the scores of youth of the District for useful lives. The new condition of the river communities renders this a greater necessity now than ever before, for it is evident that sooner or later all are to become British subjects and as such to pursue civilised employments and not only this but there are many native parents desirous of useful training for their children, besides many Sierra Leoneans are from one cause or another obliged to live temporarily, at least, in Sherbro, and some of them in out of the way places where there are no Schools and yet they are not able to send their children to Freetown, but could easily send them to some central place in Sherbro.

"Second a good Lumber Yard in Bonthe where all kinds of wood for Building purposes could be had at reasonable rates the dealer might buy and sell as there are many engaged in sawing Boards and Scantlings in the adjacent rivers and for the commencement of such a business roofing of various kinds as corrugated Iron slate, shingles &c. might be kept by the same parties.

A Provision shop or store would find a fair opening for the sale of goods stuff and of the right kind with an increasing Trade as the years roll on. Hardware in greater variety is much needed in the place; as well as Carpenter Tools: Lamps and chimneys well assorted with fixtures Wicks etc would soon find a paying sale here. Planters and manufacturers are also in demand the former in the outlying country and the latter in town and country. Lands are cheap and labor abundant.

Temperance.—This good cause we are pleased to note finds favor and progress well among the girls and women we say girls and women, because of the fact that the girls are the most ready to take the pledge and are more likely to keep it. It must not be thought that it is any easy matter to espouse and support the cause of Temperance, as it is now advocated, for it is not now moderate indulgence in drink, but total abstinance from all intoxicants and the habit of taking something especially on the meeting of friends, at social gatherings funerals wakes and the like where it is customary to have something to and fashionable to drink it. ots an abstainer to the test, ne are well aware of the re- ey are sure to get if they refuse. here the social glass or bottle is the greater evil; many could and would resist the public house, but the social drink in the cosy room, or the quiet parlor who will resist? Then again the fisherman and seaman say they need to take something strong to drink.

But the truth is if excuse is allowed for the use of a drop of alcoholic drink a barrel will not supply the demand, silence as advocates of Temperance, we are to, and must insist on total abstinence. We must do more we must organise the people who are willing, or can be pursuaded to unite against Intemperance, and we must wage a warfare against the social glass as well as the public Rumhole; for this land is certainly already dark enough, without allowing it to be made more so by the use of strong drink.

THE NEGRO IN THE UNITED STATES.

The London Times it seems has been trying to discuss the Negro question in the United States by publishing a series of letters, on which the Independent of New York City, the leading independent Journal of America, and far better informed on every phase of the Negro question in the States than any other paper in the world, makes the following pointed comment.

"The London Times has been publishing a series of long letters on the Negro question which end with a proposal to deport the Negroes to Africa. The proposition is enough to Characterise the letters. Deportation is the absurdest of all propositions. The Negro does not want to be deported and the white man does not want him deported. There is no more faithful class of working men in the country than the negroes of the South, and it would be the ruin of any one of the Gulf States to have them removed. When emigration agents have been in North Carolina or Louisiana attempting to remove the laborers they have been driven out or white men. The Times in its editorial comment says that more than six and a half million Negroes live among the whites, and that the two elements do not mix and to all appearance never will. What he means by saying they do not mix we cannot understand there are all sorts of mixing. The treatment of the Negro is bad enough, but it is not as bad as is reported by the Times. Decent treatment and equal rights are gradually moving southward, and all that is required, and is patience and education to settle the problem.

The Sabbath School—being the generally accepted nursury of the Church; it is to be feared is rather too often left in the hands of the younger people of almost every community. Many persons especially young men and woman seem to outgrow the Sunday School and most usually drift off into groupes of gossippers. While more Matured men and woman of family cares, excuse themselves on the ground of other duties, but too often the opportunity to recount the tales of the past week is the real reason of their non-attendance on the reading of God's Holy word. Older men and women have of ours more reason to be absent, sometimes but certainly not always, for when, as is often the case with persons in the decline of life, unable to attend all the services of a Sabbath, they may sometimes omit one of the other services and attended the Sunday School and if unable to read or so engage in meditation or otherwise they may listen to others reading the precious word and as they feel inclined ask or answer question and thus show their interest in that word which is able to make us wise unto Salvation.

Falconbridge Letters.

Indeed Mrs Falconbridge was beyond a doubt a wonderful woman. Clever as she was of the sympathy of him who of all others, ought to have been her constant supporter under the disappointments that she labored from want of success. She bore up under all with not only remarkable fortitude, but with a vivacity and cheerfulness that seems a marvel indeed. But let us continue her fifth letter of June 8th, 1821.

"At the last town I visited, the headman's favorite woman, had a beautiful mulatto child, and seeing me take much notice of it, he said 'God Almity sen me dat peginine, true, suppose he no black like me nutting for dat, my woman drinkee red water, and suppose peginine no for me he dead.' I could not help smiling at the old fool's credulity, and thinking how happy many of my own country women would be to rid themselves of the odium of stigma, so easily. Crimes of larger magnitude, such as witchcraft, murder, &c. are punished in the same way, that is the criminal is obliged to drink of this liquor, unless there be evidence sufficiently strong to acquit or condemn him: when that is the case, if convicted, he either suffers death, or is sold as a slave. On the opposite shore lives a nation called the Bullooms, whose King I had occasion to mention in a former letter. I have been at only one of their settlements, a place directly over against us, belonging to a man named Dean. The people appear more inclined to industry than the Sierra Leonians, which a stranger may readily discern, by the superior way their houses are furnished within. I am told it is a fertile country, and the inhabitants make so much rice, that they are able to sell a quantity annually. In the neighborhood of Dean's Town, at a place called Tagrins Point, was formerly an English Factory, belonging to one Marshall, but he unluckily got into a dispute with the natives, drove him away and pillaged his goods they are a barbarous implacable set of people. This is all the history I have learnt of the Bullooms, therefore shall return to my own side of the water. We have had heavy tornadoes and falls of rain for several weeks, and I yet enjoy my health as well, if not better, than I did for several years past in Europe. Deaths are not frequent among the natives, indeed I have not heard of one since we arrived. Their national diseases are few probably anointing themselves as they do with Palm Oil, makes them less liable to evil consequences from the unhealthy putrid vapour that almost constantly hovers about these mountains the poisonous effects of which carries off numbers of foreigners. About ten days ago the master of the cutter went to Bance [sland, where he drank too freely, and returning a little indisposed, signified a wish of going to the French Factory for medical assistance. Falconbridge having had Some difference with this man, therefore, lest he might wrong construe any offers to serve him, without hesitation complied with his desire, and he immediately set out in the Cutter to Gambia. Falconbridge, and myself accompanying him. The distance being only six miles, and a fresh sea breeze, we soon ran up. Mr Reunieu not only received us with the politeness of a Frechman, but with kindness and friendship. When he saw the master of the Lapwing, he said to me Madam, Captain Kennedy (for that was his name) will never leave Africa but in two or three days time he will come under my big tree. I did not understand the comprehend him, which the Frenchman perceived and explained himself by saying under the large tree I saw a little distance off was the busy ing ground and added he there is some thing in the countenance of Kennedy denoting his dissolution to be near at hand and I am persuaded the man can not live more than two or three days to took care not to mention or hint to Kennedy what Mr Rennieu said to me lest the force of imagination might kill him —however in spite of all our endeavors the prophecy was fulfilled a severe fever come on the same night and the second day he was a corpse.

There was no accommodation for sleeping on shore at the Factory, which Mr Reunieu could offer us—we were consequently obliged to sleep on board. I could not think of allowing the poor sick man to be exposed to the inclemency of the night air, and insisted on his taking a berth in the cabin—nor could I think of continuing in the cabin while he was ill, lest a disorder might be infectious, and the only alternative was to lay upon deck, or in the hold. The former being more preferable, our Mattresses were spread at night under the awning, where we lay, but I took the precaution to wrap myself up in a flannel gown, and covered my head with a cap of the same—was it not for that, in all probability, I must have added to the number under Mr. Rennieu's big tree.

CORRESPONDENCE.

From Danville Station.

Chambersburg Mission.

Dear Editor—During the latter one and half months of the quarter I am very thankful to Almighty God for the strength he has given me in my new sphere of labor.

The Day School had my first and constant attention and though much has not been accomplished yet there is now a change for the better: the children who had withdrawn for want of Mission support to their homes near and abroad are now returning gradually to their old School house. For the convenience of the natives there has been established a seekers class nearer their homes exclusive of the chapel in the Town Gbangbia which we are anticipating to be the nursery of our regular or proper class.

The Sabbath School has gone in to plans, resolutions & rules which if faithfully carried out will amount to a general revival.

The Church above all has never lost its power in the away over the hearts of men the regular attendence is about the number it can contain and something over.

Touching Itinerancy nothing much has been done save Neetle, Pemppy, Mah-Hou, and Footah have been visited and longing desire to form regular classes as soon as means and time are favorable.

The church building Mission House and premises are in a delapidated state and need repairing to which end we thank our friends especially of Bonthe who have lately given their seanty means in the preventation of the same and we also honour the faithful promises that are forthcoming. On the whole we bless our Heavenly father for the ever abiding power of presence wherever His name is called and for all the bounties that we daily receive at his hand and also our foreign Brethren of this mission for the box of clothes they sent us which have been the means of obtaining children for the schools and we hope and trust that they will be nearer the work by their gifts during this year which they have so gloriously begun

Thanking you for space occupied. Your youngest Bro.

FRANCIS ANTHONY.

Changes.

Continued from our Last Issue.

Spirited as well as gifted, as has been the pens of those talented men, who have tried to communicate their views to Public on this subject by means of the press, or rather the Journals issued from thence, yet I cannot call to mind one single instance where any perfect result has been effected. There may be probably indirect results effected, but not coming direct are not felt as they might have, been had they been direct. It is left with us to divine why with some there are manifestations of sorrow for the same man that others are all but glad to get rid of. The only difinnation that I can give is that the hearts and minds of all created mortals, even from oriental days have become so vitiated, that there is hardly anything in creation can satisfy them. For instance under Mr. A.s administration Mr. C. has all the priviledge that this world can afford, given him. He feels himself then a happy being. While at the time Mr. F. is suffering, and feels that Mr. A. is the greatest tyrant that ever administerd. A change takes place and Mr Z. is sent to take charge; he finds in Mr F. Some qualifications better adapted to his tastes than he sees in Mr C. Mr F is therefore administrator Z.s first and best man. The scenchanges and Mr C. who had felt himself a happy man under Mr. A's administration is become a sufferer. Thus one finds that no one man can please all men. There is however a change that satisfies or at least ought to satisfy all mortals; which is the gratest change this world can effect; and that is the changing of these our Satanic hearts to Christlike hearts. Let us stop a moment and consider whether there is any other change in the Political need I say Politic rather in the Ecclesiastical world that is better than the changing of our hearts. By a careful study of the Sacred Scriptures we can find out sufficient testimonies to substantiate the fact that the changing of our hearts is the greatest change that can be effected in any mortal. David, the greatest musician of Bible times, who soothed the heart of King Saul when the evil spirit disturbed him, remarks "I was young, but now I am old, yet have I not seen the righteous forsaken nor his seed begging bread." Jousha, the man who led the children of Israel after the death of Moses, observes (after a series of years in close connection with God.) the joy that is felt by all such whose hearts are changed; and on a very particular occasion remarks. "As for me and my house we will serve the Lord. Saint Steven having the consciousness of a clean changed heart prayed for his muderers using these words "Lay not this sin to their charge." There are still many more such excellent testimonies contained in this blessed Book. This change is therefore the only change human beings ought to secure It does not require the removing from one country to another from one State to another or from one City to another nor from one Farkie to another as changes taking place in the Political world. Nor ye doth this heart changing require the removing or abandoning of one church to another, but "A willing and a contrite heart Thou wilt not despise" are words contained in Holy writ. There are several reasons why we ought to prefer this heart changing to any other: 1st. Because we then are under the administration of one who source and bestows happiness on all mankind. 2nd Because we are then as new born babes ready to join after death the company of the redeemed in heaven. and 3rd Because our names are then enrolled in the "Lambs book of Life." Firstly by being under a new administrator is, our being under Christ the great King, who left us the noblest pattern. Although I have already remarked that mankind in general are never satisfied yet I can venture to say that under the Kingship of Christ all those who are his followers are cared for. "For the sick is soothed and the hungry fed.'

His quite, peaceful, and all obedient life spent on earth proves this fact, For in Him alone have we found a being like the Great God. One has only to read the books containing the life of Mohamet to be able to see how vast a difference there is between this false prophet and the Son of God made man. There is nothing in the history of Christ that is contradictory. Truly the Jews laid heavy and false charges upon him but this can easily be accounted for. His own words are "As my Father loved me, even so love I you." But St. John says that he came unto his own and his own received him not. We have no single instance in the Scriptures where Christ under any circumstance withheld himself from doing good His direct language is "come unto me all ye that labour and are heavy laden and I will give you rest."

P. H. P.

Children's Column.

Blind Jim.

Selected

Eddie Morgan had come, with his father and mother, to spend a month at the sea-shore. For the first week you could not find a happier boy than Eddie. He had a beautifully painted pail and wooden shovel and day after day he and some little boys, whose acquaintance he had made, would play in the clear, white sand just beyond where the great, white breakers came rolling in.

But one day all Eddie's playmates were allowed to go out with a party in a sail-boat on the ocean. Eddie's parents were not going, and he also was obliged to remain behind. This was a great disappointment, and he cried bitterly when he saw them sailing away. His mother had given him an orange, and told him he must try to amuse himself down upon the beach. But, though he went off with his shovel and pail, he sat down on the sand, feeling like a very much-abused boy, and as if he would not care if the waves should come up and drown him. Perhaps then his papa and mamma would be sorry that they had not let him go on the boat.

While these desperate thoughts were filling his little head, he suddenly felt something pulling at his coat behind, and looking around, saw a small dog trying in this way to draw his attention. A boy, two or three years older than Eddie, held the dog by a strong cord, and on a board suspended from his neck was written the word "Blind." He had an old violin and bow in one hand and held the other in a groping manner, as he asked: Is there any one here who will give me a penny if I play them a tune?

"There's only me," said Eddie. The rest have all gone off sailing. But if you'll play for me, he added eagerly, I'll give you my orange. I haven't touched it yet.

Blind Jim at once placed his fiddle in position, and began drawing the bow acoross the strings to get them in tune. When he was satisfied that all was in order, he struck up "Three Cheers for the Red, White, and Blue." Eddie was delighted, all his disappointment forgotten, and he shouted with joy when the little dog began to dance to the music.

(To be Continued.)

NEWS ITEMS.

DEAN,—On the 16th March Miss Sarah Ann Parkes at the Mendi Mission House, in this place; where she had been residing since leaving Freetown about the last of Sept. 1889. Miss Parkes was a neice of the late Mr. Henry Coker a planter who died at his residence in the town of Bompeh on the 6th of Feb. '91 Miss Parkes' end was peace.

Resigned—Mr. A.P. Doomahbey Chief accountant and Paymaster of the Sherbro Mendi Missions has resigned his commission and retired from the Work on the 20th inst.

The W.C.T.U. of this place continues its regular meetings. It meets on the first and third Wednesdays of each months. We congratulate the President Mrs Elisa Jowett for the success of the Union.

SELECTIONS.

Brief Story Of Bishop Taylor's life.

Continued from our Last.

When peace was declared, father was appointed by the Government, to swear the people of that region back into allegiance and citizenship. When the man who had been a leader in the conspiracy against him, came to take the oath of allegiance, my father said to a Union man present: "Andy, come and stand behind Bob, and if he chokes on this oath—hit him on the back."

In the midst of the war troubles the Society of Lambert's meeting-house, with my father excepted, all left the Methodist-Episcopal Church and joined, in a body, the "M. E. Church South." As he stood alone they all tried to persuade him to go with them.

"No," said he. "If I should turn my back upon my Church and my nation, especially in this the day of their sorrow, I should say the Lord would serve me right to turn me out of heaven and bar the doors against me."

He then applied to the Baltimore Conference for a minister to be sent to his house, and he would support him and his family. This request was granted; a minister was sent, and remained with him till the war was over. A new place of worship, meantime, was built in the neighborhood, and a new "Society of the M. E. Church" was formed.

My father's house was always a welcome home for God's ambassadors, and both father and mother loved them, and were never more delighted than to have them in their home and minister to them. They were Methodists in heart, life and profession, but welcomed to their hospitality ministers of other Churches.

Father and mother had unwaning honey moon, which shone on their happy married life through its whole period of about fifty years. He always addressed her as "Honey," and she addressed him "Darling." I have no remembrance, of ever hearing an unkind word pass between them.

Father wrote me when laboring in Ceylon, saying: 'Our old friends want us to have a golden wedding, and allow them to honor us with their gifts. I respectfully declined and said to them—'We have got on so well with the old contract for fifty years, that I prefer it for another fifty years, if the Lord should be pleased to spare us.' In the same letter he added: When mother and I were surrounded by our growing family, we often spoke with sadness of the coming time when they would scatter abroad and leave us in lonely desolation. The dreaded time has come. They are all married, except Rebecca and John, who are in heaven, and have gone and made homes for themselves, and we are left alone, but not lonely. Indeed we never were so free from care and so really happy before. God has blessed us in our children. They are all healthy, all religious, all Methodists; all industrious, all peaceable and peacemakers; all comfortably settled in houses of their own, except the three itinerant Methodist ministers. We are happy thus to know that our great life-work is done. Our sun is setting, and not a cloud in the west. We are waiting cheerfully on the bank of the river for the boatman to come to take us home."

After an unbroken term of thirteen years in foreign evangelizing work, I was fondly hoping to see dear father and mother again on this side of the river.

In 1874, while I was founding Missions in Madras, India my host, Dr. Gordon, said to me one day as I came in: 'Is your father's name Stuart?'

'Yes, Doctor; his name is Stuart Taylor.'

'I have just read in this paper that Stuart Taylor is dead.'

I need not try to explain the mixed emotions of my heart in that hour of bereavement.

Next year I came home, hoping again to see my mother; but before I arrived I learned that she too was gone. Ten months of widowhood, and then she plumed her wings and flew up the shining way by which father had gone, to be re-united in their home above. The days of the pilgrimage of my father were 79 years, and of my mother 75. In the Lord's good time, I shall see them again. Next to the sight of the King in His beauty, I shall want to see my father and mother.

A LITTLE MAVERICK.

Continued from our Last.

This baby, Rose, was a merry little creature of three, beautiful and winning, and much liked. But the days were toilsome ones, and as the Browns had charge of her, no one interfered, though many of the party wondered who could have trusted her with them.

The two younger Browns, homely faded little souls, were faithful guardians over her. The other children were unruly and rude, but these two seemed like some good old folks who had lived out well-rounded lives and been translated back to earth to begin over again.

To these children Janet's presence was the one happiness of their day nor could she tell stories enough to satisfy them. Once Janet, coming unobserved heard the youngest Pike telling baby Rose, who was cross, one of her own stories.

'You sorrerful little things,' cried Janet, 'cant you make em up yourselves of your own?'

For a week, at night, the sentry at the stockade saw far off, black, moving specks on the horizon, and weary and anxious were the hours of darkness early the start, eager the hope to get on without the attack. Each man would mutter in the gray dawn, as haggared and white, he harnessed his team, 'Thank God, another night of peace, no Indians yet!'

'Janet,' said Chase one morning, when she came to watch him harness his team, 'of those Injuns comes an gits the better o' us you git on that ere leetle gray pony, Nance, thar, and take Rose an set out by them low hills cross thar.'

Nance likes me smiled Janet I feed her my bread

All of us like ye, ye Maverick, yer so chipper allus Chase said, admiringly. The Injuns shant git ye of we kin help it.

That day a young wife was sick, and all the long hours Janet tended the wailing baby its mother was too ill to care for. She looked back at the line of wagons and thought of baby Rose, that she loved best of all.

Those good little Pikes will see to her, she thought, hopefully. But the two little Pikes were weary that day—they lay in a strange stupor, those pathetic guardians—and no one noted them. Locked in each other's arms they lay unheeded, and one was drifting away beyond earthly aid.

At the night halt Janet, free from her charge, ran for Rose. Then the news flew from wagon to wagon, the child was gone and no one had seen her all day. Miss Reed remembered seeing her runing among the sunflowers at break-fast time.

Aint nobody going for her? cried Janet, in agony. She ran to each wagon, to be met with the same answer: It cannot be done.

You see Janet, said Chase, a sob in his voice, there's fifty women and children here and only thirty men to guard em; there may be hundreds of Injuns out there. We daren't leave camp or they'll know it, an we've searched all the plains with a glass an there's no sign of her.

But ter-morrer—choked Janet.

"She'll not be a-waderin', missy—don't ask me to tell ye, but there's Injuns and perarie wolves."

"We must only tell her father she died never the whole truth," said Miss Reed, coming to the wagon for her rubbers, which she wore on the dryest nights.

Chase walked away and sat down by the fire. No don't talk no more Janet, as the child went to him, it aren't no use. I'm the only old injun fighter in camp I've growed grey at it. I've got ter take the lead.

Janet went quickly to her wagon. By the light of a flickering candle she printed, in a round, childish hand, on a bit of paper, these few words:—

To be Continued

ADVERTISEMENTS.

We beg leave to inform our many Patrons and Friends, that we now have on hand and ready for use Gold & Silver Gilt Also Cards for Printing Invitations, Ball Programmes, Menus, etc., etc, very cheap.

All Orders receive prompt personal attention.

N. SAMUEL THOMAS,
Printer.

All that Piece and Parcel of land situate in corner of Williams and Lime Streets Bonthe opposite the Wesleyan Church, property of H. B. Cummings Esq. Freetown.

For further particulars apply to the undersigned.

Eli C. Davis
Victoria Road
Bonthe April 1. 9[illegible]

THE
Early Dawn
PRINTING OFFICE
PLAIN SATISFYING AND PROMPT JOB WORK
EXECUTED AT
SHORT NOTICE
ENQUIRE OF
N. Samuel Thomas
PRINTER

THE EARLY DAWN.

"The Morning Light Is Breaking, The Darkness Disappears"

VOL. VIII. BONTHE, SHERBRO, WEST AFRICA, MAY 16, 1891. No. 9.

The 'Early Dawn'

Published Semi Monthly at Bonthe, Sherbro, Under the Auspices of the Board of Missions of the United Brethern In Christ.

REV. J.A. EVANS, Editor and Publisher
Bonthe, Sherbro, West Africa.

AGENTS.

United States—Revs. S. F. Booth and Wm McKee, Dayton; Rev. Wm J. Davis, Basil, O. Rev. D. K. Flickinger, Willoughby, Ohio Rev. J. W. Stoner, Manheim, Pa., Rev. G. W. Arnold, Colorado, Ohio.

Africa.—J. A. Richards, River Gallinas; Rev J. R. Firestone and Mrs. M. A. Firestone, Sherro Island, Rev James Depriest, Marshall, Liberia, Mr. Moses S. Boyle, Liberia.

TERMS.

One Year by mail,	£0 6 0
Delivered in Bonthe,	0 5 0
Half yearly by mail,	0 3 0
Ditto, delivered in Bonthe,	0 2 0

The Trade Problem.

Something there seems to be in the trade of the Sherbro district, that appears to be hard for the leading men in the business to understand, or at least they talk so and seem to feel so. An eminent business man and agent of a great firm said only a few days ago in a conversation on the Subject of trade that if there was any better way carry on the trade and any man knew it he ought to come forward with his plans and let others see how it is to be done for he felt sure that he did not know of any better way. He could be understand how there could be any improvement on the present mode of trading. But it is just possible that in this very unbelief lies the great central trouble and that which is likely to keep back the needed improvements for several years to come; however, it is consolation to feel that the present unbelief in business circles, can but temporarily hinder the cause of commerce, for it is certain that with the eyes of the civilized world fixed, as they are today on Africa that some movement must and will be made. One great need apparent of this coast is the want of communication with the great Interior of the Continent so that the resources of those regions may be developed brought to the seaboard. This communication it is now pretty evident must be overland for the water courses do not extend far enough to facilitate transportation, from the greater part of the Interior. And yet it is pleasing to be assured that while there are not large and navigable streams in many places that there are small streams and springs of fresh water almost everywhere. More than this we know that there are some splendid sites where water power can be utilized in working Machinery for almost any kind of manufacturing or agricultural purposes. Thousands yea millions of acres of good arable land lie hidden from view, by immense forests of valuable timber. These forests of immense wealth only await the energy of men who have the faith and hardihood to to strike down the giant oak ebony, Mahogany, lignum vitæ and other valuable forest Kings that have stood for ages past monopolizing the fertile soil beneath their ancient bowers. The forests removed then a vast field opens to the agriculturist to amass untold wealth in a land where December is as pleasant as may But to realize this there must be brought to bear some new energy. Some body to lift their eyes above the Bangor heaps and the few Butts of Palm Oil that drift precarious to this Coast border. Yes it must be a man or men who can see wealth in the trunks of the huge oak of the forest and the rank soil of these fertile valleys and in the [illegible] Some enterprising railroad[illegible] to push a line of [illegible] five hundred miles into the [illegible] regions he [illegible] the navigable [illegible] our short [illegible] rivers [illegible] on which towns and cities [illegible] as it ranged by magic. We [illegible] wonder at the stagnation of trade when nothing is done to develop the resources from which the trade is to spring. But I am aware that there are traders enough to say we have been doing our best to encourage the natives bring in the produce, we have given away much in presents until we are unable to give more, and all to little or no purpose. However, I have to say to such that they have pursued the wrong course and I can only pity them in their shortsightedness. For if a man goes out to do business he should first consider that very few men will pay for that which they may have for nothing. And it is really true that all these borders have been spoiled, so that a man must give a way two thirds of his goods to coax the people to buy the other third; then it is certainly time to knock off trading and try something else a while until the people realize that to trade means to buy and sell and not give or make presents.

Of course you will say that you are a fraud that some one else will come in and take trade from you, let them come it they are going to give away their goods and you try to gather some produce and see if you cannot get your pay for it and some presents also which you will be more profitable to you than trading by giving away your goods. But I am drifting, what I wish to say is that the efforts made, by present to induce trade cannot avail to increase the amount of produce brought into the market. What needs to be done now is something to increase the gathering—the actual picking of Bangor—so that a larger quantity—more tons—of Palm Kernels,—Palm Oil and other produce will be brought for sale. The quantity of produce by a little of the right kind of (feel way) enterprize may be increased to ten fold what it is now, then what significs the drop of produce to even half the present price when there are ten times as much handled nor will it matter it twice the number of merchants engage in the business. Then it will be readily seen that it is not fewer firms and higher prices we need so much as it is more produce brought into the market and other resources of the country developed.—E.

Bonthe 6th May '91.

Home Influence.

The subject of the influence of homes upon those that live in them, is one that ought to be considered by all christian parents as well as all ministers and teachers of religion among the people. If people are trying their best to practice what is good for their future welfare, then they ought really to consider what kind of influence their homes have upon their children, how they act and allow others to act before their little ones in their homes, for these little creatures are very impressable and are without great imitators of the actions of others. There is in every home some kind of Government (whether rude or polite) which in itself exerts an influence upon the mind and habits of each child that is born into it. And it is the lot of the race to be brought forth into this life in some sort of a home, however, poor or rude it may be, home it is our common lot to either enjoy or suffer the influence of [illegible] which must either be helpful or hurtful. But in looking carefully at the manners and lives of many we perceive either a thoughtfulness or carelessness in the home conduct that is a disgrace to their own dear offspring they seem to forget that their children will imitate their example or that they are surrounded by those who are easily impressed. The parents may be notable teachers, in every respect at their different institutions or seminaries but no sooner than they go home, their manners and teaching are left behind and carelessness prevails and that it is their children are often as rude and illmannerly to elders void of almost everything like suitable manners wins in [illegible] society. And should they go abroad are quite unable to govern themselves they easily fall into living any kind of a life careless of the use of their tongues careless of the main thing—cleanliness which is very [illegible] indeed it would be difficult to tell that such persons had been brought up by christian parents to say nothing of christian teachers, and all this from lack of the proper kind of home influence.

A deplorable draw back to society and especially home influence is the fact that too many persons do not live up to their profession in their daily lives at home, many preachers are good at preaching but poor in the practice of good living and these moreover many of the children are of the same kind, saints abroad but demons at home and their children I fear will too soon immitate these and only become disturbing blocks to others who might do better, then do christian friends, ministers, teachers and people let us reform our every day and home life and thus bring up our children to honor God and save men.

A. F. Campbell.

Tremble King Alcohol.

This is a portion of the title of a temperance sung by Loyal Temperance Legion of Rotafunk in the course a very fine entertainment given by that Society, during the Sittings of the U. B. C. Annual Meeting in that place it was well rendered and made one to feel if the land could be filled with such bands or legions, singing as they did that evening that indeed King Alcohol would not only be made to Tremble but would be compelled to fall before the onward March of the temperance Cause. And what was more cheering and encouraging was that almost every Christian Worker present from a distance received to something in the way of organizing a like band of Workers for the pulling down of the strong holds of the Rum power. But of course we are quite aware that to do this we must fight, earnestly and continuously against principalities and powers not only physical but Spiritual. Yet we are sure that all of these can be overcome, if only the present generation can be made to hear the singing of the rising youth who are determined to grow up and if properly trained will fight the monster with such vehemence as will bring to naught all the allied strength of King Alcoholic. May God hasten the day when our land shall cease to flow with Rum and Gin, and the people be redeemed from the curse and degradation of Strong Drink.—J. A. E.

Quarterly Visit to Charmany Station

The Presiding Elder, Dear Bro. We arrived at the Charmany Station at 5 p m. Held a meeting at 7 p m about thirty person were present who listened attentively. At the close of the meeting the preacher in charge gave a cheering report of his work sixteen towns were visited by him in all of which he met with success. The work in the Town Charmany however is somewhat discouraging and Brother Brown must have had a good deal to contend with but he is a patient and faithful worker. At the Sabbath 6 30 a m Service we had about forty attentive hearers and at 11 o'clock about the same number sight persons partook of the Lord's Supper.

Yours Fraternally,
R. Cookson Taylor
Rev. J. Gomer P. E.
May 2nd 91.

Already we see some of the fruit of the Chiefs prohibition proclamation, there is less drauning and dancing. The town is quiet, and I see faces in the meetings that were seldom seen there. Last week A Sierra Leone Gentleman a native African, brought several demi johns of rum here to be sold by an agent but when he left, the rum left with him And many hearts said thank God. And others said Amen. At our prayer meetings the Christians dont forget to thank God for the victory. At present the chief is absent from town.

We hope he will extend his proclamation to many other towns.—J. G.
Shaingay
May 6 1891.

To the Editor of the Early Dawn.

Dear Sir,—I consider it a duty incumbent on me to offer those few remarks which have just entered my conception, whilst reading your valuable paper called the 'Early Dawn,' which is said to be published every fortnight. When perusing that paper I found more than half its contents to be of 'religion,' confined to the Interior of Mendi Countries, [assuredly] more than half of Subscribers do not know, and therefore as a matter of consequence, little or do not at all care to know or bear of. I really believe that there would be more Subscribers and ready-payers always, if the Editor could but only adopt the method once introduced by the Editor of the Weekly News Freetown, and that is, of forming 'The Nancy Story and other Story Competition?' If at all there are neither Contributors, nor funds to afford to give High prizes to two or three successful competitors, I think men and youths who are desirous to improve your paper as well as their country intellectually, will send in their competitions for almost nothing.

I hope Mr. Editor, you will carefully consider this subject now put before you and very soon be able to publish 'The Nancy Story and other story competition, to the benefit and amusement of Readers and Subscribers.

With due regards
I am, yours truly
Achilles.

The Early Dawn

BONTHE, MAY 16, 1891

REV. J. A. EVANS—EDITOR

[CONTINUED]

The Rains—have been for some time and continue to be rather heavy; for the season of the year, for while we expect rain to fall in every month of the year here yet we do not expect it although so heavy or continuously as has been the case the present year. There seems however, no means of accounting for the excessive rains of the present season.

Special Services at the U. B. Church.

A series of Revival Services were commenced at the Good Hope Chapel of the U. B. Church in this place on the 10th inst by the Rev. Lawrence L. Townsend of Charleston South Carolina, but more recently from England. The Services were preceded by the Communion of the Lord's Supper at 11 a. m. and a Service of Song interpersed with Bible Readings at 2 p. m. In the evening at 7 o'clock the first of the Revival series began with a very encouraging attendance, notwithstanding the heavy rain of the day and even ing. There was also much interest manifested at the very begining which continued to increase. And which from the Reverend Gentlemans earnest manner of delivery and impressive singing, we believe, is likely to be productive of great and beneficial results. The Songs used during these Services are being printed so as to be preserved in sub stantial form, a feature of the work that cannot well be overestimated, as it will be a means of retaining the refrain, long after the stranger have died away.

Farm Burning—was much hindered by the rains that came before most persons could burn their farms. It was at first to be hoped that after a few rains, that there would be a sufficient dry spell for the burning of farms, but so far as we have been able to learn from the country, this hope has not been realized, and we are sorry to say that for the most part especially in the Gbargroo Districts crops are likely to be much shortened by this seemingly unfortunate circumstance of early heavy rains and which is only an addition to several past years; hence the more distressing to the people. Two alternatives however seem open to the farmers to avoid the inconvenience in future years. The first is to burn sooner; the second is to adopt the more civilized mode of clearing and keeping their lands open as is done in most if not all other parts of the world. the latter of these two ways would seem to commend itself to the mind of the foreigner at once, but we may not hope to impress it so readily upon the mind of the African farmer who for ages has practiced the clearing of a new plot of ground every year.

Falconbridge Letters.

Glancing along the lines of Mrs Falconbridges fifth letter (June 8th 1791) from where we left off in our last issue it is difficult to see anything that might be left out so we proceed with the narative of the visit to Gambia: we should however, explain that the Gambia here refered to, was not Bathurst, (which is over four hundred miles north of Sierra Leone) but a Factory in the Sierra Leone River about 14 or 15 miles from the Cape. Mrs Falconbridge continues "For two nights we lay on deck and each of them, we were unlucky enough to have violent tornadoes; during the storm I threw two large blankets over me and though the rain penetrated through both, yet my flannel gown and cap never accepted it and prevented me from getting wet except my feet which I bathed in and thus, I believed escaped any bad consequences; but being under the necessity of staying at Gambia, I did not choose to experience the good effects of my blankets a third time, and accepted an invitation which the Captain of an American had made us—to take a bed on board his ship. Immediately after the corpse was removed, we had the Lapwing scoured, washed with Vinegar smoked with tobacco and brimstone, to free her from every suspicion of dangerous infection. I must avail myself of the present moment to give you some description of Gambia Island. It is small and low, not two miles in circumference, situated in the midst of swamps and marshes from whence a continued stench comes sufficient to choke a carrion crow 'tis wonderful how many human beings could pitch on such a place to live. The Europeans there have all consplicuous as if they were led on Maclier and saffron Their manner of living is slovenly and hoggish, though they seem to have plenty of fresh stock, and provisions of almost every kind—they are very inactive and indolent, which I am not astonished at, for such must ensue from the produce by the unhealthiness of the place. The buildings are of mean and disrespectable appearance, being a pile of grass and sticks clumsily put together. They have a factory ship and a few goods are kept on shore, from a fear of being surprised and robbed by the natives. Formerly the Island was protested by a company of French soldiers, but the vast and rapid mortality deterred their governmest from sending fresh supplies Reunion, however preserves a kind of consequence, and keeps his neighbors in awe by a number of strange legerdemain tricks he has learnt, some of which he shows whenever he has visitors. After seeing Gambia, I considered Granville Town a delightful spot, where we have none of those swampy low grounds, but a reviving sea breeze that cheers us every day, which is almost epetal before it reaches them, I suppose that am must be owing to the heavy dense atmosphere that opposes its progress, for distance cannot be the cause. Since the rains commenced, the nights grew alternately cooler, indeed I find a blanket very comfortable, even during the dry weather (when I had room to breathe) I found night as many degrees colder than day, but I now at times, so cold, that I am glad to find a fire. This sudden transition from heat to cold, and from cold to heat, I am rather disposed to think counts for the turpitude of the climate at all events it certainly is one of the most considerable causes. From a our my inadequateness to give historical delineations, will expose me to your criticism; I have to beg you will look over any inaccuracies with lenity, this is all I can hope for,—that all I dread. Falconbridge thinks of leaving Africa the middle of this month, the loss of Kennedy, want of provisions fit for taking to sea and the late mate now Master of the cutter and several of our people being sick disconcerts us a good deal but we are told the rains will be considerably worse and every day will render it more dangerous and difficult to get off the Coast Falconbridge is determined to do his best and get away as quick as possible. Oh my friend what happiness shall I feel on seeing old England again, and if it pleases God for us to arrive safe the difficulties dangers and inconveniences I have surmounted and have yet to encounter will only serve me to laugh at.

Yours &c. &c.

Marriages,—On the 29th ult. at St Matthews Church this place Mr Sylvanus Taylor was joined in Marriage to Miss Nancy Violet Bull. On the 30th inst at the Wesleyan Chapel Mr James Campbell and Miss Fanny Pratt were united in holy Matrimony. And from the publication of Banns we are inclined to expect there is more to follow.

We congratulate all the happy Grooms and Brides spending their honey moons so simultaneously and trust their bliss may be perpetual.

The paper we give below is from an eye witness, who attended the special session of revival services, in Freetown some weeks ago—it was addressed privately after the close of the meeting. To the excellent Rev Lawrence L. Townsend from the United States of America—and who is now conducting similar of services in the U. B. Church in this place it was read before the meeting in the beginning of the season. Sunday evening the 26th—thinking it might approve a stimulus to others and possibly may come for a test to Christ here while the season lasts.

Kortright Hill

1st. April 1891

To the Rev L. L. Townsend

Freetown Sierra Leone

Revd Sir—It was one of the first lessons taught me after I had arrived to the age of discretion to understand that I was a moral agent, or a rational being, "that gratitude is one of the noblest principles that can actuate the heart of man," with this motive working in my heart, and knowing how acceptable a few words from one who has listened to your Divine teaching and instructions during the past two weeks will be to you. I have endeavoured God willing to address you these few lines, that you may be inform'd, or receive some intimation that your labour has not been in vain. I can now say and I regret not having apprized you of this before that from listening to you with sincere earnestness, and by God's grace working within me. I now stand safe, and firm upon the "Rock"—Christ from whence I trust by God's grace never to be removed. But why should I be selfish, I am aware and I am convinced that I am not conceited in my opinion that there are a good many others, who have gathered good from you but have stifled the voice of conscience and not manifested it, but I trust that ere you leave these shores they might yet confess the good that you have done them, during your stay amongst us. We are aware, and are quite sensible of our inability to reward you with any earthly treasure, since if we were able to weigh all the gold and precious stones of Christendom, and then weigh one soul, which would outweigh them all but we know that in whom you have believed and are persuaded that he is able, to keep that would you have committed, unto him until that day, therefore your reward will be in heaven. Where neither moth nor rust doth corrupt. May the good that you have done us, who have benefited by your teaching, operate in our future lives that our homes may enjoy tranquility, and we by our lives may be ensamples of good, to our neighbour, and be true types of our Great Proto-type Jesus Christ. May God so help you to continue in this good work so that in the end, you may be able to say with the blessed Apostle St. Paul:" I have fought the good fight of faith, I have finished my course I have kept the faith, therefore &c &c."

May he yet endue you with His Holy Spirit (in all your ways to be your Guide, Teacher, Preserver, Sanctifier, and Comforter and enrich you with His heavenly grace, so that you may be able to pursue your arduous labours with stedfastness. Dear Sir " How great is the charge committed to your trust." But on our own part let me again turn my thoughts heavenward, and ask of the Great Disposer of all events and for the justice of our cause that we who have now put our hands to the plough may not look back in our hearts, but that our watchward may be "Onward," and that we may so please Him in this life that when the fulness of time is come for fulfilment of all those things that has been predicted by His holy prophets concerning this world's destruction, when God himself shall appear in grandeur, and the world in flames, we shall be safe with Him and when our Saviour shall then appear as Judge to settle His accounts, and receive His jewels, our talent shall have gained double so, that we shall receive the joyful sentence "Well done good and faithful servant, enter thou into the joy of thy Lord," and there we hope to meet never to part no more.

In conclusion I must again tender you my heartfelt gratitude for your instruction which I still need which I know is by God's grace it is adhered to can only prepare me for those regions where the wicked cease from troubling, and where the weary be at rest. God grant that you may be enabled to continue to labour in your arduous station in life, and that you may be crowned with immortality and glory in the end you may wear the crown is the humble prayer of —your obedient servant and sincere well wisher

J. E. T.

CORRESPONDENCE.

Konoonany Station.

Dear Editor,—I have much reason to be thankful for the Divine goodness I have experienced since I left you: The Lord hath surrounded me with mercies, and loaded me with favours. Indeed I have lacked nothing but deeper gratitude and devotedness of heart to God for His distinguished—loving kindness. He who brought me in safety and conducted me in peace to my former sphere of labour.

He had created a longing in the hearts of many for my return, and has again honoured me to proclaim to them His great Salvation. Our places of worship have been uncommonly well attended since my return, especially in the villages, and the gospel has, I trust proved the Savour of life unto life to many souls. Many who had lived wholly indifferent about divine things, are now determined to turn to Jesus; some who attended only occasionly now hear the gospel regularly and attentively and I believe many have found peace to their troubled souls, in that blood which cleanseth from all sin and are now shewing forth the praises of him, who called them from darkness into His marvellous light, but among which are a few invalids which we hope and trust the Lord will have compassion upon. Pray earnestly and constantly for us all in this part of the vineyard also that I may have grace given to me to speak and to act on every occasion as I ought.—T. M. Cole.

Wesleyan Methodist Church Bonthe.

' To the Editor of the Early Dawn'

Dear Sir—On Sunday the 3rd inst I attended the morning service in the Wesleyan Church in this place; which is densely crowded always; since the arrival of the new pastor in charge. The preacher on the occasion gave us a very nice discourse, which was never to be forgotten; on the whole the service was good. One thing that struck me Mr Editor during the service, when our worthy catechist Mr J. J. Warburton announced "The Litany," which is usually to be responded to by the congregation according to the principle of our church—? I then saw the organist began to play it through, which I think is quite wrong according to methodist rules. I dont think it was ever yet done in Freetown. Mr Editor not to say that the singing was not good, but it is not the discipline of our church, and what is worse the congregation cannot sing it, it seems strange, and so it was. If we are methodist, we must stick to our principles, and not follow high church—forms. Mr Editor since my arrival to this place 15 months ago I attend Wesleyan church here Sunday—after Sunday witness him conduct service in this manner as the service of the 3rd inst. Roman Catholics stick to their own principles, High Church the same, why not we as methodist do the same but to be wavering here and there. I trust that the new pastor in charge will see to those things and work in the right direction of our venerable founder; and not to be easily led by those around him

Thanking you for space occupied.

Yours—A Member.

Bonthe Sherbro, 9th May '91.

The Girls at Shaingay are not behind the times, one of their number invited me to attend one of their meetings I was both surprised and delighted, there was about a dozen of them present. A girl not more than sixteen years of age was occupying the chair they had selected readings songs and speeches, the oldest one present was not more than twenty years old and others were from twelve years old and upwards; their object is to help to elevate the women of the country and teach them industry they buy goods and make and sell garments, and use the money for charitable purposes, it was the Rev. D. F. Wilberforce who got them organised about a year ago and now they have nearly four pounds in their treasury besides having done much good in various ways.

Little Lucy Wilberforce and Susan Sawyerr, deserve special credit for their songs so sweetly sung (ais is purely a girls Society.—A visitor.

Shaingay, April 23rd 91.

Falli May 1st '91.

Dear Editor—On my way to Marroh last week, I stop at Marboyah only to let the people know that on my returning from Marroh I will stop to keep meeting so that they can wait on me a little before going to farm. As soon as I reached the head-man's house, I observed that the people were only waiting on me as they see me coming from the wharf to tell about the present state of things.

One of the spokesmen said, we are glad to see you come we enquired after you again and again, we thank you very much we believe for true that God is powerful, Since you destroyed the devil and witch doctor houses 2 yrs ago the town is peaceful and quiet anybody come to deceive us we will not listen any more, and no Cheif lay fines on as again for foolish matter. Another said you are passing and wont preach to us today! At my returning I held meeting and most of the people bless God for the good he has done for them and the light they now have at the close of the meeting.—J. B. W. Johnson.

Revival Services.

A series of Revival Services is being held in this place at the U. B. Church commencing on Sunday the 10th to and on Monday the 25th inst by the Rev Lawrence L. Townsend a Clergyman from the U. S. America and lately from England. The Services have been hitherto well attended. There has been much interest manifested in the meetings—members from the Native Pastorate, and from the Wesleyan Church of Bonthe, and from the Catholic Church of this place, have not failed to share in the Enjoyments of its proceedings. The French service is a lively and an energetic deliverer and one who believes in the Inspiration of Music, and one was is calculated to be a Champion Ere long in the Master's cause. Mr Pasha the Catechist of Saint Matthew's Church, has been actively taking a share in these Meetings.

We regret that the ill health of the Pastor, the Rev J. A. Evans has prevented him from being actually engaged therein.

We hope and trust that the few remaining days will be productive of much Spiritual good to the glory and praise of the great Head of the Church.

Trusting that when called upon the public will be charitably disposed to contribute to the pecuniary interests of those who have been engaged in the good and noble cause.—E. C Blackerbeh

Bonthe Sherbro 20th May 1891

Children's Column.

Blind Jim.

Continued from our last.

Several tunes were played; then Eddie remembered his promise, and made the blind boy sit down beside him while Heulen and Ash them to drop he carefully peeled the orange and had great satisfaction in watching Jim's enjoyment of the fruit.

After the orange was gone, Eddie asked Jim how long he had been blind, and where he lived?

Jim replied that he never could see. His father had died during the winter, and he and his mother had come that place trying to find his uncle, who was a fisherman. But this uncle had been drowned, and now all Jim and his mother had to live upon was what Jim could earn playing on his fiddle, as, led by his little dog, he tramped from house to house.

"I couldn't get no one to listen to-day. I've had nothin' to eat since yesterday morning, till you guv me that orange. I wish I'd kept some of it to take home to mother.

"Nothing to eat since yesterday!" exclaimed Eddie, looking with astonishment into the pale, thin face. Then, full of compassion for the hungry boy, he jumped to his feet and said hurriedly: "Come along quick, and I'll take you to mamma. She'll give you a dinner, I know, and something to take home besides."

Jim did not need urging, and Eddie led him to the hotel at a rapid pace. When close to the piazza, he saw his papa, and shouted: "Here's a little blind boy who hasn't had a mouthful to eat, only my orange I gave him, and he can play the prettiest tunes, while his little dog dances. Play 'em one to let 'em see, won't you, Jim!

The piazza was full of people who had just come out from their dinner and were eager to hear the blind boy play. But Eddie's mother saw how pale he looked, and said to her son: "I am glad you brought him, Eddie. He must have something to eat first; then he will feel better able to play for us. Let him come in and get his dinner with you."

Blind Jimmie never enjoyed such a grand feast before, and his little dog was also liberally supplied. After both could eat no more, Eddie led them in triumph to the piazza; and he felt himself a very important person as he stood by his protege and called for the various tunes.

After all had been played that the blind boy knew, Eddie's father whispered to him to take off his cap and pass it round to the ladies and gentlemen for some thing in something for the little musician.

This he did with great alacrity and when the money was counted, they found that three dollars had been collected.

Jim could hardly believe the good fortune that had come to him, and, as he went home with his money and some food for his mother, his heart was full of gratitude to the little boy who had brought him such happiness.

As Eddie bade his papa good night, he said: "Wasn't it good I didn't go sailing? I would have missed seeing Blind Jim. After all, what a happy day this has been!"

"Because you have made some one else happy. That is the true way to secure it, my son."

ADVERTISEMENT.

ZION CHAPEL.

BENDOOMAH RIVER-MATTRU:

The dedicatory Services of the above Church will d. v. be held on Sunday May 31st. in the following order.

At 6 a. m. Special Meeting for Prayer & Praise.

SERMONS—At 11 a. m. by the Rev. J. A. Evans, At 4. 30. p. m. by the Rev. D. F. Wilberforce.

Collection at the close of each service.

All are earnestly invited to attend.— S. B. Morrison, Pastor.

May 20th 1891

NEWS ITEMS

May 3rd The Services in the various Chapels of the place, were we believe very good, Big Crowd at Marriage at the Wesleyan Chapel.

May 4th The South side (Yhandahoo) was saddened by the rather sudden death of Mr Samuel B. Collier, a brother of Mrs Thornton of this place. Mr Collier was one of our oldest men and citizens of Sherbro. We sympathize with the bereaved.

Mrs Mason,—of Waterloo, the sister of Rev R Cookson Taylor Pastor U. B. Church of Shaingay gave us a call on the 1st inst and left the 2nd for Freetown per s. s. Fotah.

Revd's W. S. Macauley and R. Cookson Taylor,—arrived here from Shaingay on the 7th inst Mr Macauley enrout for the Imperah, and Mr Taylor proceeding via Freetown, to Waterloo to visit his aged mother.

SELECTIONS.

A Little Maverick.

Continued from our Last.

"Mr Chase, I am going to find Rose an take Nance. I aint, no good in fighting. In Juns and I heard you say my folks was dead Don,t you come for me cause they need you. They don't see that is only a Maverick "Jane.

She pinned this note to his blanket, then went softly out starlight to the corner where Nance stood. Fearlessly she blanketed the animal, fastened the surcingle, then led her quietly out to an open space between two wagons

She looked back at the dying camp fires, the groups of men sleeping in light of them their guns by their sides, the silhouettes of the women against the wagon curtains, Miss Leads prim and queer with the funny curls. How safe it was here, how lonely and dreadful outside! She climbed on the pony and turned her head toward the east: the animal, thinking of her home, struck into a run. The sentinel saw Nance disappear in the darkness, but did not note the little rider.

"That cavery gray pony as aint been worked all the way hey got loose an gone," he said to the crowd of excited men who ran out at the noise.

Every unusual rattling of gravel under Nance's hoofs quickened the beating of Janet's heart; every dark object was to her a beast of prey; every sound, the coming of the red men. She thought of the old time stories of Indian warfare and cruelty her grandmother had told her; of the horrors of the plains the massacres of by camp fires.

"But I'm the only one in all that train as hasn't anybody to care for me," she said, bravely. "There was only me to be spared."

When the moon rose it showed her no living object on the great plains. The camp was far out of vision, and not even a spark from its fires glimmered on the still air. Absolute quiet and solitude; the world seemed asleep.

At the top of a little rise in the road Janet halted to rest her tired horse, and once more to look around the lonely land. The quivering of Nance startled her, and peering ahead, Janet saw a sight she never afterward forgot.

There in the moonlit road stood baby Rose, her yellow curls dishevelled, her gown, torn, her little feet bare and bleeding. She still clung to her flowers that had led her astray these long hours before.

Near the child a lean gray wolf sat on his haunches, regarding her with a profound and melancholy stare.

After the sight of the pony, the wolf gave a wierd howl, turned and trotted swiftly across the plains. The child, with a wild cry, ran forward.

"I knew you'd tum, Janie. I lost all day and the doggie and singed. I had a doggie once, Bounce, where mamma was. Oh, I want my mamma!

Janet held her close, kissed her tears away, and then she gave her the food she had brought—her own supper. She lifted her to the pony's back, led Nance to some low hills that might give them shelter, and there waited for day-light.

"I never knew nights were so long before!" sighed Janet, holding Rose in her arms. "Nance is all down and asleep. Only me awake and I must keep watch for wolves and Injuns. Now the moon's going too and it gets lonesomer. I'll say the hymns I know to keep me awake and brave.

Then she would her head would droop, the words grew confused and weary. As the moon sank and the chill increased, the shivering child covered Rose with her own skirt, and then to keep warm and awake walked up and down beside her.

What was it that low tramping sound coming under and nearer so fast? Janet caught up Rose back to the hill; the horse followed trembling in every limb. Just beyond the hill in a fuious gallop came of mass of horses and dimly amid the dust flew the forms of their Indian riders.

"Joe said Injuns was wuss'n wolves! sobbed Janet Dear Lord,let them go and not find us

The Indians passed on their path, marked by clouds of sand that helped the darkness mercifully to hide the children.

"They're gone cried Janet: hadly were the words uttered when there came another louder trampling, the click of arms against saddles and more horses hundreds of them it seemed to Janet—and then bringing joy to her heart, an American voice calling: "Forward!" as the cavalry men passed on after the Indians.

The danger having passed the tired child fell asleep with Rose in her arms. When she woke it was bright sunlight. Her dazed eyes saw Nance feeding near by, Rose runing toward her, and an oluish man with a gray beared and bronzed face, looking at her kindly. By his side was a lean wolf Ro sy had called a dog.

"I kuewit was a tame one' cried Janet.

"In cousse you did, smiled, the old man. Me and my gal, Ann Reed, fell out twenty odd year ago 'cause I owned a tame b'ar. She went to Bosting, turned school marm, an' I emigrated to Iowy.

Janet, very wide-eyed, told him about Miss Reed, who was one of their wagon party. Gaining courage, she also gave her own history and Rose's as far as she knew.

Wal, you make a powerful talker! cried the old man, Now come eat and we'll ketch up the caravan. Say though, sis would you say, 'lown fur age and my wiskers, Ann Reed aint no better-lookin' then me!

You're both nice for old folks said Janet politely.

He led them to a dugout in the hills, where they found plenty to eat, and then they set out for the wagons, Janet with Rose on Nance the wolf following the old man man's bronco

'The row last night sis,' he said was Uncle Sam's sojers arter Injuns same as has been hangin' round yer train. Wonder how them serious ways of Ann Reed's would a' took Injuns?

At night they reached the camping-place of the wagons where there was great rejoicing—Chase, especially, coming often to stroke Janet,s curls and muttar: Ef you aint a borned hero' I never knowed one! The stuff of a pioneer!

Janet's only sadness was that one little grave where the youngest Pike lay the child had died the night before. How many nameless graves some pathetic tiny ones, there used to be on that great path way to the West!

When Janet, with rose in her arms, climbed into her wagon, the hermit approached and said, mysteriously: 'It's the same Ann Reed, sis, an' she's there a'pettin' that wolf like he were a poodle dog. Aint seta-gin 'em no more.'

Two miles from Denver they met a horseman so pale and anxions they knew who he was even before he called hoarsely:

'Is my baby with you?'

Aye, she be,' answered Chase, but we'd met ye with blank faces an serrerful hearts but for Janet here.'

Then he told the story, and the father got down from his horse to kiss her first before his own child.

I'm well on, Joe, he said brokenly. I can do well for her and you say she has no one. I will have two daughters instead of one.

You aint a Maverick no more Janet, cried Joe, something shining in his honest eyes, an' there aint one of us but will bid ye God speed. Et ever a lone, little child was worth a father's love an care you be, an the blessin' of all us that knowed ye goes with ye.

And as she, with Rose and her father, parted from their companions of the long wagon journey, they followed her with loving, tearful eyes, that little Maverick who had found a happy home.—Sel.

Mr. Stanley's Bible.

The tendency to hold the Bible in light esteem which is so prevalent in the present day is apt to discourage young people from studying it. So many who do study it do so in a critical, supercilious spirit, under the guidance of teachers whose cheif aim appears to be to diminish its authority, that it is well to have it made known how it is regarded by men of eminence, who are held in high respect for their acheivements in the cause of science and humanity. An incident in point was related a few days ago respecting Mr. H. M Stanley, whose recent acheivement in the rescue of Emin Pasha places him in the forefront of the distinguished men of our time. A personal friend of the explorer says: "I was sitting a few days ago next to Mr. Stanley, the great African traveler, and in conversation he said to me, 'Just before I started Africa Sir Williamm McKinnon said to me, 'Now I want to give you something, but I should like you to chose for yourself. I shall have the utmost pleasure in presenting you with anything you like. Never mind the expense. Just say what you would like. 'I replied', said the traveler, 'Give me a Bible. The desired gift was soon in my possession, just the Bible I wanted. And during my absence in Africa I have read that Bible thro' three times.

I need a Savior to save me. I have no salvation till I find a Savior. A person I must have The highest truth will not save me, further than as it brings me to the Savior, that he may give and I may get, eternal life.—Sel.

THE EARLY DAWN.

"The Morning Light Is Breaking, The Darkness Disappears"

VOL. VIII. BONTHE, SHERBRO, WEST AFRICA, MAY 31, 1891. No. 10.

The 'Early Dawn'

Published Semi-Monthly at Bonthe, Sherbro. Under the Auspices of the Board of Missions of the United Brethern In Christ.

Rev. J.A. Evans, Editor and Publisher Bonthe, Sherbro, West Africa.

AGENTS

United States—Revs. B. F. Booth and Wm. McKee, Dayton Rev. Wm J. Davis, Basil, Ohio Rev. D. K. Flickinger, Willoughby, Ohio J. M. Stoner, Manheim, Pa., Rev. G. W. Arnold Eldorado, Ohio.

West Africa—J. A. Richards, River Gambia. Rev. J. R. Frederick, and Mr. E. A. Lawie, Freetown, Sierra Leone. Rev. James Dapsty, Marshall, Liberia. Mr. Moses S. Boyle Liberia.

TERMS

One Year by mail,	£0 6 0
Delivered in Bonthe,	0 5 0
Half yearly by mail,	0 3 0
Ditto. delivered in Bonthe,	0 2 0

Twice Saved.

From the Million.

"I was sitting before a glowing grate fire, enjoying the lavish hospitality of one of the prominent men of the West," writes a correspondent of The Companion, when something turned my thoughts upon old times and God's providence.

'Believe in God's care and protection!' he exclaimed. 'Well; I think I do. But for His intervention, my daughter there would not be here to day. I am sure of it. Three times over I have seen it, and I dont know how many times I may have known nothing about it. Let me show you something.' He left the room, and returned a moment later with a soft, brown curl fondled tenderly in his hand

'You know that wife and I were pioneers, he began. 'When we settled here, there was not a house within ten miles of us. 'When she was born,—he moved his head toward his daughter, but did not take eyes from the curl, we were all alone in a little one room log cabin.

'One by one other settlers were gathering, but it was slow at first. She was three years old, and as pretty a little thing as ever lived in a wild country, though you might not think it now.

He smiled as his eyes turned proudly to his beautiful daughter, who responded with a merry laugh.

'I was cornering some logs one night for an addition to our house, for we were beginning to feel rich. It was hard wood, and I put all my strength into the axe, while Mabel jumped for the chips as they flew. Sometimes she would catch them before they touched the ground.

'She was all ready as I swung the axe, when her foot slipped and she,—he paused for a moment and shuddered, with her little head right over the notch The axe was coming down with fearful force. I could not stop it. It fell. I heard it strike, but I could not see anything. I staggered, and fell senseless to the ground.

'The next I knew, Mabel was pulling at my hand. I sprang up and caught her in my arms, looking for the place where the blow fell. There was not a sign. I turned to the axe. It was deeply embedded in the log, and at the farther end of the blade lay this little curl. My friend, can I see anything but God's hand in that?

But let me tell you another. In my joy and thankfulness, I promised Mabel that she should have a real wax doll the first time I went where one could be found. In about three weeks I had an errand to the nearest store, eighteen miles away.

'I started long before daylight, but it was dark two hours before I reached home again. To make matters worse: one of the fiercest blizzards that ever blew in this country came tearing down upon me. The night was as black as Egypt. I let the horse go as he would while I tried to keep a rubber blanket over the saddle-bags.

'Some two miles from home I distinctly heard a cry. I stopped and listened. Just as I was starting once more I heard it again. There were plenty of Indians about, and it occured to me that they might have seen me go away in the morning, and be waiting to trap me but I called to see if any one was really in trouble. 'I surely heard a faint reply. It sounded like a child's voice.

'I thought of how Mabel's life had been saved, and said to myself, 'If it is Indians, treachery I cannot help it; if there is a chance that a child is lost in this terrible storm, I am going to save it

'Well, I got off my horse and leading him, followed the cry till sure enough, I found a child; almost dead lying on the ground. I rolled the little thing up in the rubber blanket, and started on again. The child sebbed and moaned for a while, and then fell asleep.

'The horse knew the way, and in time I came in sight of my own cabin The light in the window burned brightly. There were voices inside. Something sad happened. Dismounted as quickly as possible, I left the horse to do as he would and hurried to the door

'As I opened it two neighbors were bending over my wife. She saw me, and with a cry sprang towards me, and fell fainting on the floor. Handing my precious bundle to one of the neighbors, I lifted my wife in my arms to learn that Mabel had disappeared. She had been waiting impatiently for the doll and they had feared she had gone down the road and—

'Well I sprang for that rubber blanket and on unrolling it sure enough there was little Mabel asleep.—

Dr. Howard Crosby.

In the death of this eminent divine, which occurred on the 29th ultimo, the country in general and New York City in particular lost one of its most prominent, influential men. As a christian minister, teacher, and literary character he had attained to special distinction as well as for the ability with which he antagonized the popular evils of the day.

Although a minister of the Gospel as a citizen he fearlessly took an active part in practical politics seeking thereby to frustrate the designs of a silly, corrupt, time-serving politicians, and secure to the city and to the country deliverance from the oppression of rings and monopolies. He recognized the fact that his being a Christian minister in no way exonerated him from the responsibilities of citizenship; and in this respect he was a model well worthy of imitation by ministers every where.

He was an ardent crusader against the liquor traffic in New York City, and the HERALD states his position as follows: It was his constant warfare against vice and intemperance that contributed most to his fame. The suppression of low concert saloons, the purification of the courts, and the stoppage of the illicit traffic in liquor were the reformatory labors that claimed his best energies.

In dealing with the liquor traffic, Dr. Crosby made the great mistake as many other good men do, of believing that the traffic can be so regulated as to render it respectable and comparatively harmless. He preached, says the HERALD temperance, but not total abstinence. His public statement that the law should give workmen the right to buy beer on Sunday brought about a serious disagreement between himself and several prominent fellow-ministers And so it should How such an intelligent man whose heart was so truly right on all great questions of moral reform, could make the great mistake of favoring the sale on the holy Sabbath of that which sheketh his neighbor drunk; and which at last biteth like a serpent and stingeth like an adder, it is difficult for many to see, and is only an evidence of the fallibility of the human judgment. No more conclusive proof of the erroneousness of his position on this question is needed than the fact that the distillers' and the brewers syndicate flooded Pennsylvania with circulars on which his opinion was printed during the prohibitory campaign. It is just as possible to destroy the renomousness of the bite of a snake by clipping off an inch of its tail as to destroy the curse of the liquor traffic by Dr. Crosby,s method.

Theologically Dr. Crosby was strictly orthodox yet broad and liberal. His constant plea was for a united Christian church stripped of narrow denominationalism and based upon the broad fundamental principles of the New Testament. In his heart he believed that in every nation he that feareth Him and worketh righteousness is accepted of him.—Telescope.

Trade Problem.

Since penning my last paper, published in the last issue of this Journal I have not had the opportunity of hearing and comment on the article, but in conversation with another agent of a large firm in this place, on the subject of trade I have been pleased to find that he is of the opinion that we need a line of railroad laid to the Interior; in order to bring more stuff to the seaboard.

But to build a railroad requires Large Capital and a venture on the part of some one or a number of persons to start the enterprize, however, it is very probable that both of these can be obtained if only the matter is brought before the public and especially the men of money that there is an opening for the profitable investment of money, and such is certainly offered in the building of a railway into the Interior of a country of such enormous resources as that lying a short distance to the interior from this coast as we have been fully assured by a number of persons who have visited those regions time and again. And yet it must not be thought for a moment that a railroad would have to depend on the present produce of the interior as its sole source of support, although it is now evident that produce would be greatly increased in the event of some better means of conveyance to a ready market. Now should anyone suppose for a moment that the gathering of produce would be left to the ordinary inclination of the raw native, nor yet the present manner of preparation but civilized hands would be brought on the stage of action and machinery will be invented to work much of what is now accomplished by hand and thus a large saving will be the result. Of course I am aware of the failures of a good deal of Machinery to do various kinds of work especially in Africa, but as something of a machinist, I do not consider this fact a serious draw-back, for it must be evident that when mechanical minds are brought in contact with the work to be done they can more readily invent or devise the machine to do it with. And there is scarcely any other enterprize so well adapted to the bringing into a country mechanical converatives as the building of Railroads. For such do not come on a visit to the country but come to locate not so much for a trifle from one to another as to develope and traffic in the countries where they are established, and yet they become the greatest means of ingress and egress, into and out of a country, but are all the walks circulating wents within the territory. Then again trade requires the bringing into activity the dormant energies of the country, the waking up of slumbering men, and there are few things that will do this so effectually as the Iron Horse rumbling through the land. Then let us hope that ere long the commercial world will come to their senses with regard to this part of Africa and strike by rail for the interior of this vast continent.—E.

Church Erection Fund.

Mr Editor—Permit a little space in one of your columns to say a word on the subject of Church Erection as it is termed by the U. B Church, and first of all a little explanation seems necessary as regards the purport of the term. Briefly it means a society or cause for the promotion of building churches or places of worship where the membership of the Church is not sufficiently numerous or able to build of themselves. In such places whereoit may seem proper, the Church Erection Society may grant aid by the loan of money for a reasonable time without percent or interest. Thus small growing societies are aided in building a place of worship and when able they return the money to the Church Erection Society to be loaned again to some other needy community; such is about the explanation of its operation in the United States. But it is most likely that there will of necessity, be some modification in the operations of the Church Erection Society in Africa, just what I am unable to say, but so far as I can now understand, the tendency is in the direction of donations to needy societies not only to build but to repair places of worship. And as we are to raise a fund or rather collection this year of a penny per member for this purpose, it would be well to give some attention to mode of dispensing this fund. Not that the Church will have the power of legislating on this matter but because the Church here will be expected to recommend the Methods for the use of general as well as local funds in this country. To the writer the donation plan seems the most suitable but let other suggestions be made

Yours, J. Albert.

Bonthe 26 May 1891.

Timely Offerings—Any thing given to any cause whatever, should be given in time to be of the greatest good to that enterprize.

The Early Dawn

BONTHE, MAY—31, 1891.

REV. J. A. EVANS—EDITOR.

[EDITORIAL]

Y. M. C. A.—One Result of Rev. L. L. Townsend,s visit to this place has been the organization, on the 28th inst of a Young Men's Christian Association. And while we have not the figures at hand, yet we know that there are a number of the leading young men of the place included in its membership already and that others are thinking favorably of the project and will doubtless ere long join the Association. The prospect now is that with some perseverance and care on the part of the Officers and Members we shall be able to succeed in this enterprize and build up a good Association in this place, which will afford great facilities for good to not only the young men of the place but also of the surrounding river districts. It is surely just what we have needed for years and now that it has come we wish it every possible success.

A Bad Case,—We learn from our Esteemed Coltemporary the Weekly News, of Freetown "That Capt. E. H. Verney M. P. has been sentenced to Twelve Months imprisonment in London and has been expelled from Parliament for the offence of conspiring to procure corrupt and immoral purposes a young girl of nineteen, enticed and decoyed to Paris by a woman with whom the prisoner had lived on terms of intimacy for years.,,

It seems further that this Captain Verney had been a pretended advocate of purity, while he himself was a confirmed and base sensualist. To us the case seems a bad one, and such as should be frowned upon by every man and woman that is interested in the purity of human life. And we feel further that the prompt and extreme action of both the British Parliament and Mr Justice Smith cannot be to highly commended.

GLEANINGS.—We have not the time we could wish for this work of gathering from either observation or reading, that we could wish and that we believe would be of interest and profit to our readers, however we try a few pottings. From letters and reports of Missionaries that have recently in one or another come under our observation These things seem clearly visible, great perseverance and enterprize on the part of the Missionaries second greater desire on the part of the hearers, third greater success in the winning of souls to the work of Missions. From commercial sources we observe that all the energies of men of means are directed to how they may make the most of their opportunities of what ever sees to publice or private merit or interests to this end the United States made has defeated the Aims of the Brussels Conference of the great Powers, so that the Rum and Slave trades are to be unrestrained in Africa.

The Louisiana legislature has also virtually sold out the State for money to the Lottery enterprize of John Morris. Such base corruption of legislative bodies is certainly shocking. However it is pleasant to note that notwithstanding the gigantic wrongs that are being perpetrated by bad men, yet the cause of right is succeeding, along this line we may note the double action of the British Parliament in the expulsion of Captain Verney, and also the action of Mr Justice Smith in sentencing him to twelve months imprisonment.

The New License Law,—Has been for some time and continues to be a subject of much concern to the people of the river districts, most of them feel that the ordinance imposing license on Spirits is out of all reason and that the petty trade is are thereby to be compelled to close that line of trade, as, with their meagre Capital they cannot afford to carry on the business which to them appears a calamity: we however believe and try to persuade the small traders as to see that this will in the end be no disadvantage to them, and that the Government must have some revenue from the larger traders and Merchants who are establishing Factories in various rivers. And really we believe that the new License Law will stamp out the small or petty Liquor business, but we do not believe the small traders will suffer by it at all, but that they will rather be the better off.

Respecting the License for Boats and Canoes we have only to say that it is, but a just return to the government for the better protection, which is now afforded to the people in the protectorate district, and will really only tend in the end to their real advantage. For it is evident that the great surplus of craft will be dispensed with when every man has to pay license, and that which is retained will be in greater demand and will earn more for hire than the pittance for license will cost. So that considering the new license regulation in all its bearings we are of the opinion that the poor man will not be oppressed at all by it, but will ultimately be benefitted; hence we would advice all to take courage, discontinue the sale of spirits, dispense with all useless craft and give more attention to planting and less to trade.

Will not Return—It is currently reported that the great African explorer H. M. Stanley will not return again to Africa and that he has publicly declared on several occasions that he will never return to Africa. The reason for this seems to be that he has been reported to have treated the natives very cruely in his march accross the dark continent. And to have forced his way through territory, where chiefs opposed his passage, and that now the humane spirit of the civilized world, revolts against this course of proceedings.

W. C. T. U.

ROTUFUNK, TEMPLE MEETING.

"For the Early Dawn,,

On the evening of May 10th the chapel was well filled with eager listeners and many of them waiting to give to the Lord. It was the occasion of our Temple Meeting instead of the regular programme of the L. T. L. of we had a meeting in the interest of the Chicago Temperance Temple. The W. C. T. U. and L. T. L. made special efforts to get the object of the meeting before the people and the day school students who are Legioners prepared two songs which were sungs at the laying of the of cornerstone of Chicagoes Temple.

As we sang "Rise Temple Rise,,, the enthusiasm of the people could not be restrained and they came forward with a rush and opposite to the bibs and plate, offerings of cash, Rice sweet-Potatoes, Cocoa, Casada, Foofoo, blys lefers head work and beads to the amount of £2. 3. 6. for a week a bly was left in the chapel and offerings as of old, could be deposited every morning.

Now we feel that we have an increased interest in that wonderful building. We hope our contribution will cheer those grand women in their great attempt and we wish our mute appeal might reach the ears of the American Government that it might cover its face in shame at the thought that the poor and weak of dark Africa are putting forth their hands to protect against the flood of Noe being poured in upon them by its consents, and that the children of heathen parents are praying that they and theirs may be protected from the curse of civilized countries.

Children's Column.

We are serry—that since the Bathurst Gambia Girls, gave us so much of interest for this Column no one has sent us anything, so that we have often been obliged to omit the Column, and at other times to fill it with a selection; which in some cases may be good, but cannot be as interesting, as little letters would be from our friends. So we beg you to send in your letters for this Column.

A Crocodile's Prey.

In a letter from Stanley, in Africa, Mr. J. P. Rogers, who is laboring for Christ at that Station, says: Mr. Brown and I were just arranging and laying out our plans for devoting ourselves more fully to the studying of the Kiteki language, and getting out to do more itinerating work among the towns when one of the greatest calamities possible happened to us at the present time in the sad death of our mission boy, whose name was Iya. Last Saturday four of our boys went down to the water to bathe. Not long after they were gone we were startled by hearing an unearthly cry, running down to the beach we found to our horror that a crocodile had caught Iya, and had taken him off under the water. It was an awful shock to us all. He was our interpreter, and when we went into the towns all the natives seemed fond of the lad. The loss of such is very great. He was very useful. The help he was to us with the language can not be valued. I often had him helping me with the language, and at such times I spoke to him about his soul. He clearly understood the way of salvation. He told me he had asked Jesus to forgive him all his sins, and said he had given his heart to the Savior. I believe he had for his life gave good evidence that he was born again, and that he was a true follower of Jesus. He was the first Christian among the Bateki race. We hope his death may be blessed to many of his own people. Lately I have had large meetings in the towns; and the people give great attention when we are preaching the Gospel. We are very hopeful that soon a great work will be done among these people. Let the friends at home still pray for us. The windows of heaven will soon be opened, and we shall have the showers we have so much and so earnestly prayed for.

LECTURE.

Delivered on Trinity Sunday the 24th May 1891 at St. Matthew's Church Sunday School by

MR. E. W. PARKINSON.

The Trinity of the God head.

In entering upon such a subject as the nature and perfections of Deity, it becomes us solemnly to pause, and confront our motives and designs, with the humbling question of Zipor, the Naamathite, "Canst thou by searching find out God Canst thou find out the Almighty to perfection?" We must at once answer, no, we cannot even by searching describe or discover God perfectly. In this inability we are not however singular. Angels partake of it in common with ourselves, for although they see him as he is, they cannot fully comprehend what they behold. The unveiling of his face compels them to veil their faces so dazzling is the brightness of his gloiy, even when it shines only to charm—

Far off and inferior as we are then we cannot expect to discover much even by profound research. But ought we on this account to decline the experiment? Certainly not. The very heathen were denounced for remaining ignorant of what might be known of the Eternal power and Godhead from the works of Nature. It was spoken to the shame of the Christian Church; that some of them had not the Knowledge of God.

He is therefore to be found out by searching, what is not sinful and shameful to be unacquainted with. It is not humility, nor prudence, nor faith to shun inquiry into the character of God, carrying research further than the boundary line of revelation is unhallowed curiosity if not high presumption, but to stop short of that line is wilful sloth or unnecessay timidity but in seeking to be wise about what is written to be sinful or to be wise up to what is written is sinful too. Impressed and actuated by such sentiments I enter upon the subject before us That it is difficult you must be aware for although it is easy to quote the text which declares The Trinity of the Godhead to illustrate the or to simply touch the ideas they convey is next to impossible. I wish you to be fully sensible of this at the outset, that you may not be disappointed by the results of this Lecture, you must not expect that I can take up the sublime idea of this subject where you are compelled to lay it down, nor that I can carry it in all its grandeur, either farther backward or forward than usual, you must not expect me to expatiate freely where you pause in breathless wonder; nor hope that I can lessen the difficulty of definite thinking upon an undefinable subject which the Eternal Being is ever and angels.

The only thing I propose to myself is to make our ideas of the Trinity as clear as possible so far as they go to clothe them in simple language that their truth may have the force of truth upon the heart.

Whoever rejects the idea of a Trinity in the Godhead or is unwilling to believe that there is any plurality in the Divine Essence ought to be fully aware that he thus sets himself in direct opposition to the voice of all antiquity as well as to the verdict of the Christian Church. Even could it be proved that the sacred writers neither thought nor believed anything like Trinitarianism it will still be true that heathen writers both before and after the prophets and apostles taught some thing very like it so far as it means the plurality in the God head. Nothing indeed is more unlike the Trinity which Trinitarians acknowledge than heathen Trinities of either ancient or modern times for even when their persons have names very similar in general import to Father, Son, and Spirit, their names imply none of the clear or sweet ideas we associate with the words. But still Trinal distinction in the Supreme Godhead is a doctrine that runs through all the Polytheism of the world that ever had a written oral or symbolic form or a man who claimed to be a philosopher Every great nation of antiquity had its Trinity, most if not all of them had besides Gods many and Lords many but they had their Trinity two, although not at all in our religious sense of the word, and hardly for any moral purpose. We should be fully aware of this historical facts it proves nothing indeed as to the truth of what the Scriptures teach concerning the Father, Son, and Holy Spirit, but it proves either the ignorance on the importunance of those unitarian who write and speak as if the world had never heard of a Trinity in the Godhead until the Arhanasian Creed was invented or the decree established, it proves also that the infidels who prefer the sages of antiquity to the sacred writers either read the former or can pardon in Zorosster, Pythagoras, Plato, and Procles the last of the Hermaic line mysteries which they resent in the Scriptures and scorn in the pulpit. If we are therefore to reject the Scripture because they imply a Trinity we must also in order to be consistent spurn the master spirit of Ancient times for doting upon a similar idea of the Godhead for it was warbled by the lyns of orphans and the lips of Plato, it was hisroglyphed upon the Pyramids of Egypt and the pagodas of India and China, it is stamped upon the medals of the Lama of Thibet and sculptured in the gigantic and dateless temples of Elora and Elephanta.

The sages of China and the Druids of Britain and the runic Bards of Scandinavia of the priest of mexco as well the Astronomers of Chaldea, and the fire worshippers of Persia had all the their oracles of emblems of a Trinity long before Christianity taught the doctrine in Judea. How these widely different and seperated nations got this idea originally would not be very difficult to show were there time, and it is easy to conceive for us they all sprung from one common family the family of Noah: Every branch as it spread throughout the world bore with it some idea of the God of Noah, whose name implied plurality in its nature, this being an obvious fact, their crude idea of a Trinity was not a discovery of reason but a sacred tradition and thus it was not heathenish although mixed up with heathenism. Even when the doctrine comes to be taught by Pythagoras and Plato and thus got currency in Greece and Rome it was taught by those sages as a sacred tradition which they had learned amongst the Jews and Egyptians But if anything be self evident in the Bible it is that there is but one living and true God, this is the uniform and invariable testimony of revelation, and it so unequivocal, that it be a fool who says in his heart that there is no God he is not less foolish who thinks there are more Gods than one.

To be Continued.

NEWS ITEMS

Marriage—On Sunday the 17th inst at the U. B. Church in this place Mr. Joseph Baker and Miss Maggie Magavock were united in Marriage by the Rev L. L. Townsend.

Sailed From Liverpool,—On the 18th of April Revd and Mrs R. N. West of the Bompeh Mission for New York. They are reported to have been feeling better than when they left Freetown and it is much to be hoped that they may be soon restored to perfect health.

Rotofunk,—Latest advices from Rotafunk report all the missionaries as fully recovered that had been ill. Miss Harris M. D. had kept her health.

Freetown,—reports that Rev Mr Johnston and Rev Mr Omerod of the American Wesleyan Mission have returned from a trip to the Country, both had fever.

Three of the Y. M. C. A. or Kingman party still up the country, in their Mission work and Mr. Trice and Mr. McCullough started on the 27 th inst to join them.

Revd. S. Hughes,—has returned to his pastorate here after a short visit to Free Town He is well and cheerful has given us a call or so, and cheered our drooping spirits.

Revd. J. Gomer,—accompanied by Rev. C. A. E. Campell spent Sabbath the 17 th inst here and left on the 18 th for Shaingay.

MATTRO,—from recent information gathered from various sources, we are informed that the little Chapel that has been for sometime in building at Mattro, near Bendoomah, in the Gbargroo District; has at length been completed, and our Editor with Professor Wilberforce and others are expected to be present at its opening on the 31st inst a nice time is anticipated as the gathering will be of persons from the different parts of the Gbargroo District, and elsewhere.

From The Interior,—Rumor has it, that the Revd W. S Macauley who has since, his removal from Danville to N'Char many recently made a tour to the Interior beyond the Imperch and far up in the regions of raw Paganism has preached to larger crowds than ever before. A thing in itself assuring as of the fact the fields are ripe in the regions beyond for a goodly harvest, but we hope to hear a fuller report of his tour from Rev Macauley himself.

Mr. J. Wilfred Maxwell,—who arrived here per S S. Formoso on the 14 th inst also left on the 18th for Shaingay.

From Shaingay,—We learn that there is to be held at that place a childrens day, or Juvenile service, on the 7th June proximo, by the U. B. Church, in honor of its founder Philip Wilhelm Otterbein we wish the little folks success.

The New Hospital—We understand is about completed in this place, and that it is to be occupied on the 15th June proximo, We congratulate the Government on their success in the erection of this much needed institution. And while it is not all that we could desire in an institution of the kind yet it is a great boon, for which we cannot be too thankful.

A very impressive sermon was preached on Sunday evening May 26th in the Wesleyan church by Mr M. J. W. Rocks Commandant's clerk of this city.

From Mando Mission,—Mr. N. E. O. Thompson writes encouragingly, of the spiritual out look of the work, in the Themdale district, but is rather hard up financially after the three mon the suspension of pay, but only solicits aid for the repairs of Dupree Chapel which he reports as leaking awfully. We hope some kind friend will find it in his heart to help this devoted young brother.

Died—on the 25th inst Miss Hannah Jowett, Daughter of Revd G. N. Jowett of this place. Her death was rather sudden, and the more sad because of the fact, that this is second daughter of Revd Mr Jowett's that has died this present year.

The Y. M. C. A.—at its organization in this place on the 28th inst elected the following Officers; for President Rev J. A. Evans, Vice President Rev S. Hughes, Secretary Mr W. E. C. Dixon, Treasurer Mr J. D. Macaula

CORRESPONDENCE.

The Liberated Africans In America.

Mr. Editor,—It was my fortune to drop into the U. B. Chapel on Victoria road Yhandaboo the other evening (26th inst) and after the singing of a few pieces, something after the manner of an entertainment, the Chairman Rev J. A. Evans introduced a tall fair complexioned man to the audience as the Rev L. L. Townsend who would deliver a lecture on a subject the title of which I did not catch, but Mr Townsend took the floor and spoke on the "Past Present and Future Condition of the Negroe in America," whom he made us to understand, embraced all persons possessing any Negroe blood of whatever color, and that in the Southern States of America there was a strong caste prejudice against these black and colored people by the white people of the South. And must have astonished some of the audience by the decalration that he himself was one of the race thus hated, and by relating his experience on one occasion with what he called a conductor on a railroad Train, who was a white man and tried to prevent him, (the Lecturer) from riding in what, was called a first class car because he was a negroe and although we did not understand all the terms the lecturer used in relating the incident yet every one understood sufficient to be amused and delighted at his success with the conductor.

But what pleased the audience much was to hear this cultured gentleman explain the past condition of the American slave and that these negroes had since been emmancipated from slavery and were thus liberated Africans as well as the people of Sierra Leone, and that since they were liberated twenty five years ago they have increased to twice the numberthat they were when they were set free in 1865, that from the deepest superstition and ignorance they have become an enlightened religious and a well informed people while a number of Schools and Semmenaries of learning also about Ten Universities have been established among these people. Some of these liberated Africans in America have from slavery raised themselves to emminence. They have held some of the highest offices in the United States. That many have become learned Doctors, Lawyers, and Professors. In fact we were made to understand, that the four millions of slaves liberated in 1865 had become eight millions of thriving industrious freeman, pushing on he assures, us to a more glorious future that is destined to surprise the world. The lecturer was applauded most heartily for his interesting lecture.

A. Visitor.

Agriculture.

Mr Editor–for some reason, you have not given us anything, of late on the important subject of Agriculture. And we have not been favored either with any of J. Albert's helpful articles on that subject, but I think that these letters were doing much good as several persons were following the suggestions contained in them with good success. And certainly we need to give every possible attention to our soil, the cultivation of which has been seriously neglected, but which if attended to properly would yield, to us a better return for our labor in the long run than the petty trade, to which we are so much attached.

It is to be hoped that the matter of Agriculture will receive much grater attention in the near future not only by the press but in actual practice by the people, not in the present crude manner practiced by the native, but in an improved way that will yield larger returns to the farmer for his labor.—Yours E. J. Betal.

Bonthe 23 5 91

SELECTIONS

Considering the Poor.

Eight students—of which number the writer was one—at Bethany College, in the year 1864, received providentially, shall it be said, a rebuke for an unwillingness to give to a poor man who lived in the town of Bethany. One morning the poor man, who was the father of twelve children, was seen going from door to door asking for gifts from the students and others. The eight students living in the same building—ministerial students—talked the matter over on this wise: "This poor man belongs to Bethany. Bethany people should attend to its own poor. We are poor ourselves. We have come from other states and countries at our own expense, and are under no obligation to support the poor of this town." A resolution was passed in harmony with these thoughts, that we would all refuse to help him when he called on us, which he fortunately did not do till the next day. The evening after our ungenerous resolution when we gathered together for reading and prayer, one of our number–Atkinson by name turned to the psalm that came in the regular course and read, "Blessed is the man that considereth the poor: the Lord will deliver him in time of trouble. The Lord will preserve him and keep him alive; and he shall be blessed upon the earth: and thou wilt not deliver him unto the will of his enemies. The Lord will strengthen him upon the bed of languishing: thou wilt make all his bed in his sickness." (Ps. 41: 1—3.)

At this point the reader broke down. One of the member said. "Let us reconsider the decision of the morning.' It was done. The decision was reversed without a word of argumentation. A collection of fifty cents from each was taken up for the poor man. The Scripture did it. The psalmist made no limitation as to 'the whereabouts of "the poor" or of the man who considereth them. "Blessed is the man who considereth the poor.

Brown, The Dyspeptic.

"I am a pelican in the wilderness and a swallow on the house–top," moaned Brown, the dyspeptic. I'm afraid nobody cares. I'm a dying man. There ain't a disease that passes me by in the daytime or a noise that leaves me be is the night Our house ain't never quiet till 12, what with the women folks and the other boarders, specially the young men that come in with pass keys. And I ain't scasley closed my eyelids when the cock that crowed for Peter crows for me and makes me wonder if he was troubled with dyspepsy too—not the cock, but Peter of course. If he was I ain't surprised he did what they say he did. And then the roosters ain't hardly quieted down afore the horses in the barn by my winder wake up and commence stompin' and a bitin' of the'other across the stalls, and soon arter the switch engine over at the depot begins shoo-shooing and 'toot-tootin. and afore I can drap off again the ice waginss a joltin' by with their eternal rattlin' and squeakin' and the factory bells and steam whistles is a soundin, and, come to caunt up, I ain't had two hours sleep in all, and what there is of it is mostly nightmare. And yit folks say I'm of recomplaining nature and hard to board.

"Lord! It's just a little too much!

"I can't rightly tell of how I'm afflicted in my body or how much alave and aintmeat and sich it takes to keep me from jumping up a yard high off o' my cheer, whilst as for the toothache which I have most gone crazy with two nights ont o' three for the last year, and a general derangement of my insides, which is certainly a cancer, leastways a tumurs, to put it as light as possible, and werin' under 10 glasses, whereas I never used a speck till cleveland was elected, and my kidneys steering a straight line fur Bright's disease and the oftalist palpertations and wertigoss imaginable.

"But it's God's will, and I'm resigned.

"Singular how irregular, they are in this house in the matter o' meals, and steak is never cooked right, nor the coffee and both scrimply.

'Oh Lord! I wouldn't wish for my worst enemy to ge through what I have to endure. You don't know how I suffer.

I,m a pelican in the wilderness and a swalow on the house-top alone. I'm a dying man living on borrowed time. But nobody cares; no, nobody cares.

"Ha! the dinner bell at last.

"Wonder if Stuffitdown will git there ahead of me

"That man would create a famine at Delmonico's

(Rushes to the table and appals the landlady as usual by eating enough for four able bodied teamsters.)

Wouldst thou secure a large reward Then live a whole, full, round life of Christian usefulness and to you it will be said, "Be thou over ten cities.,,

ADVERTISEMENT.

All that Piece and Parcel of land situate in corner of Williams and Lime Streets Bonthe opposite the Wesleyan Church property of H. B. Cummings Esq. Freetown.

For further particulars apply to the undersigned

Eli C. Davis
Victoria Road
Bonthe April 1 91

THE EARLY DAWN.

"The Morning Light is Breaking, The Darkness Disappears"

VOL. VIII. BONTHE, SHERBRO, WEST AFRICA, JUNE 30, 1891. No. 11.

The 'Early Dawn'

Published Semi-Monthly at Bonthe, Sherbro. Under the Auspices of the Board of Missions of the United Brethern In Christ.

REV. E. C. BICKERSTETH, Editor and Publisher.
Bonthe, Sherbro, West Africa.

AGENTS

United States—Revs. B. F. Booth and Wm McKee, Dayton Rev. Wm J. Davis, Buell, Ohio Rev. D. K. Flickinger, Willoughby, Ohio J. M. Stoner, Manheim, Pa., Rev. G. W. Arnold Elderado, Ohio.

West Africa—J. A. Richards, River Gambia. Rev. J. R. Frederick, and Mr. E. A. Lewis, Freetown, Sierra Leone. Rev. James Dennerty. Marshall, Liberia, Mr. Moses B. Boyle Liberia.

TERMS'

One Year by mail,	£0	6 0
Delivered in Bonthe,	0	5 0
Half yearly by mail,	0	3 0
Ditto, delivered in Bonthe,	0	2 6

Zion Chapel.

Mr. Editor,—It was the pleasure of the writer to be present on the occasion of the opening of the Zion Chapel at Mattro near Bandoomah in the Gbarma District on the 31st May ultimo. The House a neat and well planned framed building painted inside and out with a sort of native marble or clay except the windows which have received english paint, present a most striking appearance to the stranger, for although not large, the house is so very neat and absolutely both in and out that no one can fail to be impressed that it is the house of the Lord. It is destined too in the future as now to be the wonder of many people, heathen and civilized, for Kouconany to Manoh Gbargroo it will be seen by the many people who pass on the great thoroughfare. And being separated from the other buildings of the town a little distance it will always attract attention. The pastor Rev S. B. Morrison of Avery Station who also has charge of Mattro and has labored so hard to erect this House of worship, is with the people of Mattro and vicinity to be highly congratulated on their ultimate success in erecting a temple to the worship of God. Of the large gathering & extremely interesting Dedicatory Services. Some one else has promised to write you so I need but to say in conclusion that it is to be hoped that what has been done at Mattro should be imitated throughout the country.

Yours, E J Betal.

Bonthe 11th June 91.

Church Erection Fund.

Mr Editor,—This subject is of Great importance to us in this Mission field, that we should give it our most careful consideration; first and formost let every worker see to it that the one penny from each of his members is secured for the Church erection fund, nor should he forget to explain to all as far as he is able the design of the collection so that all may give intelligently. Of course it would be all right if donations of large or small sums could be secured of friends able to assist in so laudable a cause as that of building places of worship throughout the country and thus enable christians forced from the associations of home and kindred, to find in their river places, of temporary dwelling, a house of prayer.

In my last I intimated that I favored donating the fund to needy places where the people give fair promise of building up a society of Christians, but it is not necessary to discuss the disbursement to any extent at present until we have secured the money or other donations Hence our duty to day is to press the matter of all the general Collections which altogether only amount to nine pence per member. This duty accomplised we shall have a nice little foundation for Church Erection Found

J. Albert.

11th June 91.

LECTURE.

By
Mr. E. W. Parkinson

The Trinity of the God-head.

Continued from our Last Issue.

I would not say with Tertullian that if God be not one, there is no God, out I would readily say that he is yet an unknown God, this all Trinitarians would say without hesitation and therefore they are misunderstood when they are suspected of and misrepresented when charged with believing in three Gods instead of one. For both their motto and maxim on this subject are exactly that of Paul, to us there there is but one God, this Paul said in the name of all Christians in opposition to the many Gods of the heathens—James might therefore say with equal truth of all sober minded Trinitarians now what he said of the twelve tribes then "Thou believest there is one God Thou doest well."

All this is the Testimony of Scriptures not the voice of nature nor the verdict of mere reason and therefor Scripture only must determine the meaning of the unity it thus ascribes to God His unity is taught no where else, there only we get the fact and there alone we ought to seek for explanation of the Divine Unity.—God is one only in his own sense of unity or as his words illustrate his oneness now we may well take both the fact and the meaning of it from the Bible for nature itself teaches neither. There may be a thousand creators for anything that nature itself shows to the contrary. Shut the Bible and no man can prove from the things that are made that they had but one maker, open the bible and then indeed.

"All nature cries aloud
Through all her works—

that there is but one God. because the God of the Bible is sufficient in himself he is needless to call in any other power to account for it. we are thus shut up to the Bible alone on this subject if we would not fly in in the face of both reason and experience—The simple fact is that unless we depend upon revelation itself we know nothing and cannot know whether there is one God or a thousand in the 'universe it is easy for us to ask now, why should more than one be imagined, this is a very rational question, but whoever put it to himself or others but men who have either seen some of the sacred writings or heard in some way of the patriarchal or Jewish opinions about God. What then saith the Scriptures They alone declare that God is one and they alone can define the unity they ascribe to him. We know that it is not altogether agreeable to either the taste or tendency of the human mind to be tied up to the word of God for both fact and their explanation, man as a rule likes to have some hand or voice in determining what is truth. Jonah like he is inclined even when God has spoken to suspect that God means either less or more than his word imply. But all these preliminaries are only introductory to an examination of Christianity itself on the subject. Now Christianity as it stands in the new testament is both the perfection and completion of all that ever God said or symbolised expressed or implied concerning himself, it is a new covenant but not a new religion a better covenant but not a different system in its great elements—Christianity both recognises and ratifies all the cardinal truths of the old testament and thus it identifies itself with whatever God at any time said of his own nature When therefore Christ and the Apostles call God one, the unity they assert is in union with all unity God ever claimed by former revelations, I will now endeavour to illustrate this fact. Christianity is based upon the transactions of Eden, and distinct glimpses of the Trinity of the Godhead forced themselves upon our notice at both the creation and the fall of man, hence when man was created God said "Let us make man in our own image and after our likeness,' here the plural pronoun is repeated, and that we might be quite sure that the words were not addressed to angels it is immediately added "In the image of God created he him." so after the fall God said, The man is become as one of us. Here we are met upon the very threshold of time when there were no artificial modes of speaking by proper plurals which deity both Jew and Gentile Unitarians to explain them away. The Jews felt that these pronouns claimed with their notion of the Divine Unity and as they durst not venture to put the singular for the plural they invented the pretence that Moses was shocked when commanded to write like a Trinitarian and said "Lord of the world why dost thou afford room for error about the most simple unity." But the Lord said, Moses write thou so, and he that errs, let him err—Here the force of the plural is as fully admitted as it is fully met, And so they still stand smiling at all the abortive attempts of Critics to displace them This whole case in Eden stands thus, whilst the word Elohim, translated God is plural and connected with plural pronouns it is always construed with verbs in the singular, hence both Unity and distinction in the Godhead are taught in the same breath as on the first page of Scripture. Now Christianity by identifying itself with the history of creation in the fall has made itself responsible to the Godhead, and is thus pledged to speak agreeably to the manner in which he first spake of himself. In other word it can teach no other kind of unity concerning Godhot just what God taught Moses which was a Unity of Essence and not one of personality. Christianity also in the fulfilment of the patriarchal covenant and their language concerning God is of the same two fold character. Now the covenant made with Noah after the flood was followed by the confusion of Tongues at Babel.

But however the speech of men was confounded then God still spoke in his old way. Jehovah said let us go down and there confound their language so also in connection with the Abrahamic covenant, we are told that Jehovah rained fire from Jehovah out of heaven upon the cities of the plains were two persons bear the name Jehovah and as it is the name of the Divine Essence their nature and dignity must be the same Now Christianity takes the responsibility of this also and agreeably to it Christ said "I and my Father are one." Another remarkable fact in the patriarchal age is that God often appeared to and spoke with the Fathers and worshipped by them as Jehovah. But Christianity maintains that no man hath seen God at any time, the conclusion is inevitable. The Son not the Father was the visible Jehovah who both gave and ratified the covenant which pledged his incarnation and paved the way for the new covenant. It is then a fact beyond cavil that the Jehovah of the Old Testament is one and the same God in Jewish Scriptures is plural and if our view of it be correct, we may expect to find that they will speak of more than one person in the Godhead, accordingly we read of the Lord God, and of His son the mighty God and of His Spirit the Creator

Agreeably to this plurality we find the blessing of Jehovah invoked in a trinal form and the perfections of Godhead ascribed to neither more nor less than three persons. Christianity also in the fulfilment of ancient prophecy and the prophecies both imply and express a plurality or Trinity in the Godhead—They imply it in this way by proving the Divinity of each person separately. Now all the passages which contain evidence of the Divinity of Christ and of the Holy Spirit bear on the subject.—If Jesus Christ and the Holy Spirit be two intelligent beings, each distinct from God the Father, and if each of these be proved to be infinite in all perfection, it will necessarily follow that there exist three infinite and all perfect minds in other words three persons in the Godhead. Now the prophets describe the son of God as Jehovah God of hosts, as Jehovah a sanctuary, as Jehovah a shepherd, as Jehovah the Saviour, as Jehovah our righteousness.—They call him the mighty God; Immanuel; the Creator and ascribe to himboth the incommunicable names and the peculiar works of the Father. Again the prophets describe the Spirit of God as Jehovah who spoke of them as the Creator as Omnipresent and Omniscient and Sovereign, then in both Son and Holy Ghost is ascribed the same Divinity as to the Father. In this way then the prophecies imply the doctrine of the Trinity But prophecy also expresses it accordingly Isaiah introduces the son saying of himself " And now the Lord God and his spirit hath sent me" with all this evidence of Christianity is inseparately connected, because it is the accomplishment of those prophecies from which the evidence is drawn. Christianity was formally introduced by the ministry of John the Baptist, and his ministry was founded upon the theories of the Trinity.—The baptism of repentance committed by the Father to John was by John's interpretation of it designed to prepare the way of the Lord, accordingly he herald him as the Lamb of God applying to him the prophecy, prepare ye the way of Jehovah and make straight paths for his feet Thus he founded upon the Saviour's being Jehovah his high claims upon public attention and confidence and the same distinctness and fidelity John not only baptized with water in prospect of the son's baptizing with the holy Ghost but also declared in express terms I saw the spirit descending upon him from heaven and it abode upon him. thus John appealed for truth and warrant of his ministry to each person of the Trinity, to the Father's commission to the work of God and to the Spirit's personality. I may here lay down as a principle namely that if Christ's perfect human being, and the Spirit only a divine influence no good reason can be assigned for even the slightest word which is limites the Divinity of Christ or the personality of the Holy Spirit.

A human, however endowed, has no right to use even an equivocal expression in regard to himself or the spirit much less to make himself equal with God and then the Spirit equal with both, but Christ did all this without hesitation he declared of himself as the Father hath life in himself so he hath given to the Son life in himself. I am in the Father and the Father in me what-ever this the Father doeth those also doeth the Son likewise.

All men should honour the Son even as they honour the Father, that is in essence and in action in life and in honour he claimed equality with the Father. Now it is nothing at all to the point when unitarians show that such expressions may be taken in a lower sense and reduced in meaning, the first question to be settled is why did Christ use expressions which required so much reducing before they will lead to the idea of his being only a man he had no temptation to do so for they only irritated his enemies and endangered his life so that all selfish, or secret motives actually forbade the simple hence he makes it a impossible to acquit him of impiety even if he were equal with God; both his saying that he was so and his allowing others to say so and to believe that he claimed nothing so are demonstrable crimes of the very highest order on the principle of his not being so, neither verbal criticism nor general Rhetoric can save his character as a man he is tried by his own pretensions. And the case is equally bad when Unitarians quote one passage to neutralise another placing against it "I and my Father are one and my Father is greater than I" is worse than nonsense if designed to set aside or even balance the former statement for if this be done to set aside the former it is making the same witness to contradict himself and if to balance it making him to defeat one at least of his own ends in speaking, no folly is more egregious than talking of both sides of the question and offering to determine by the preponderance of texts—Whether Christ is Divine or human all he says of himself must be equally true otherwise none of it is entitled to belief there is not and there cannot be a fair and against in a case where the person is giving evidence respecting himself, and in the case of Christ who spoke by inspiration, all that he said must be absolutely necessary as well as true. Now I defy any one to prove the necessity on his own principles or even assign a plausible reason for Christ saying I and my father are one or following others to believe that he made himself equal with God.—To be continued.

From and after the date of this issue, the affairs of the "Early Dawn" Newspaper will be conducted by the undersigned, to whom please apply for any information concerning same.

P. Augustus Charles, Manager.

THE EARLY DAWN

Bonthe June 30, 1891.

BONTHE AS IT IS.

We notice with much pleasure the several improvements that are being made in the Government department and Mercantile firms of this place. New buildings are daily rising, and extensive repairs made in both of these departments which are indications that we are living in an age of progress.

The new hospital reported last as would likely be opened on the 15th instant, has been thoroughly completed; but from some cause or other we have not been permitted to realise our expectations. We hope soon, however, to be able to report the dedication of this much needed institution to the cause for which it was erected.

In continuation of public works, a Sea Wall is in course of construction, which will protect, when complete, the entire front of Bonthe, and form a convenient landing place for the many boats and canoes which constantly arrive here.

Along with these improvements, however, we are sorry to notice, that burglars infest the country, and lives and property are continually jeopardized. How to rid the country of these bush-rangers is the question. Government, we believe, is ready and willing to protect all her subjects, yet we are humbly of opinion that the number of peace officers stationed at Bonthe, Mocolo, York Island, and Bendoo, are inadequate to secure protection to the inhabitants of those places and intimidate these daring banditti.

It is our mournful duty to have to chronicle the death of Mr. Laurence L. Townsend, a native of Charleston South Carolina, which sad event took place at the Shaingay Mission House, on the 19th instant. This young gentleman has not been in the colony quite twelve months yet, and during his stay in Freetown was very active in keeping Revival meetings in the church under the control of the late Mr. T. G. Lawson. Mr. Townsend was very popular for the short time he resided in Freetown and secured the friendship of many persons, though comparatively a stranger, by his urbanity and even disposition.

After leaving Freetown he went to Shaingay by the invitation of the President of the Shaingay Mission, and remained his guest for some time, when he expressed a wish to see more of the country, and accordingly went to Bonthe where, as in Freetown, he made himself very popular and was much esteemed. During his residence at Bonthe, he succeeded in establishing a Young Men's Christian Association in that place, and had the pleasure of seeing it in full existence before leaving. He returned to Shaingay subsequently where he remained up to the day of his death. It is our firm conviction that had his life been spared longer it would have been one of usefulness to himself and the country in which he was destined to be so short lived. We deeply sympathise with his relatives and friends at our —Requiescat in pace.

On Sunday, 21st. instant a canoe with two men in it, whilst crossing from Bendoo to Bonthe, was upset across Yoandabo factory, but fortunately the men were rescued from drowning.

We have to record the resignation on the 15th instant of the Rev. J. Evans, Agent for the Mendi Mission and Pastor of the Good Hope Church and Presiding Elder of the district, also Editor and Publisher of the "Early Dawn" Newspaper, who held the position for a period of six years. We very much regret the occurrence, as he has had much to contend with and been very tried, as most men would have been who were similarly situated, especially having to contend with the works of Satan.

Rev. C. Bickersteth, who has been connected with Mission Work for over 25 years, will, for the present, be the pastor of the station, as well as Editor of this Jornal. He came to us three years ago from the U. M. F. Churches, and his work since then has been very satisfactory. We bespeak for Mr. Bickersteth the earnest prayers and hearty co-operation of all Christians.

NOTICE

The Manager of this Journal wishes to inform the public of Bonthe and elsewhere that the columns of this paper are open to correspondents, and that all letters sent for publication will receive his attention, provided they are accompanied by the names of the writer, not necessarily for publication, but as a guarantee of good faith. Rejected manuscripts will not be returned. He however reserves the right of choosing such of them as he deems interesting. All work with which he is favored shall be done in such a manner as he hopes will give satisfaction and secure patronage always.

A TRIP TO SHAINGAY.

Having been for a long time destitute of all information as to the physical character of the large tracts of land neighbouring Freetown and forming part of the Peninsular of Sierra Leone and the condition of their inhabitants, I carefully sought an opportunity to diminish this ignorance which I consider blameable in a native of Sierra Leone; and I accordingly took a trip to Shaingay, one of these tracts, where I had a chance of seeing the result of the labors of the United Brethren in Christ, an American Missionary Society which had been laboring in that district for little more or less than a quarter of a century.

I travelled by way of Bonthe, taking passage from Freetown in the "Fornoso," a steamboat belonging to the Sierra Leone Coaling Company, catching the Shaingy Mission boat at Bonthe and travelling in her from Bonthe to Shaingay, a pleasant sail of about twelve hours in a calm and placid river. Shaingay is equi-distant from Freetown and Bonthe, and everything equal it would take no more time travelling from Freetown to Shaingay than it would from Bonthe to Shaingay; but the utter absence of some reasonable and reliable means of travelling to this place from either Bonthe or Freetown very often obliges an intending visitor to take circuitous routes as to the dampness of the whole Sherbro District, I unfortunately did not expect the sun to greet me with a very hearty welcome at Shaingay. The weather, however, gave me an agreeable surprise; it was only my forecast of her and not her gracious self that was gloomy. During my whole time the sun only rarely withdrew his bright and genial rays and I was satisfied that the climate of Shaingay is drier and healthier than that of Freetown. To speak of Shaingay as to speak of the American U. B. C. Mission there, in fact my impression is that but for the existence of that Mission Shaingay would be "terra incognita" and Shaingay proper must be taken to be identical with the Shaingay Mission. To give an accurate description of the Mission and its work, one would have, for the sake of illustration to liken it to a small patriarchal community, the members of which love and revere their Chief from a well-grounded and evidently well-verified feeling that real worth resides in the object of their esteem and reverence; and it is not improbable that if the Presiding Elder had not been the duly appointed, he certainly would have been the duly elected, Chief of the little community at Shaingay. Here the divinely enunciated principle is fully carried out that "he who would be greatest must be servant of all."

It struck me most forcibly that the kind of training given by the Mission to its youths is most suitable to the present circumstances of West Africa, and to a people just merging from a primitive state of society to higher forms of life. As much as I was struck with the suitability of the training given by this society, so was I convinced of the error into which the English Missionary Societies have constantly fallen in the training of primitive peoples, viz, that of placing the ornamental before the useful, the cart before the horse.

M.

To be continued.

The s. s. Susu arrived from Freetown on the 3rd instant with Bishop Ingham, Revs. Humphrey, M. A., Principal of Fourah Bay College, and O. Moore, Principal of the C. M. S. Grammar School, Freetown, also Mr. M. J. Marke, Sub-inspector of Schools, Mrs. Hughes, wife of Rev S. Hughes and family.

We must congratulate Messrs Thompson Brothers, the enterprising young Sherbro Merchants, for the success which apparently is attending their business as we have observed the neat new building just erected and opened at Bonthe for the purpose of carrying on their business. We wish them success.

OPEN AIR SERVICE.

A special open air service was held at King street, on Sunday evening the 7th inst. at 4 p. m. by the Rev. S. Hughes, pastor of St. Matthew's church. Short addresses were delivered to the natives, through an interpreter by Mr. Nelson, sexton of the church, and by Messrs Rocks and Crown. The school children and their teachers formed a procession, with their pastor in front, and marched to King Street, where a number of persons of the different denominations here had already congregated.

Mr. Rocks who first spoke, based his remarks on the parable of the "Rich man and Lazarus," and pointed out forcibly to the heathens that those who served God faithfully in this world, whether poor or rich, ignorant or learned, hope to go to Heaven, and that they must try to embrace the means of Grace, which is brought to their door.

Mr Crown spoke in much the same expressions as his predecessor. He told the congregation that as Christians they were not going to be content until they succeeded in drawing them nearer to the saving knowledge of the Gospel.

After singing a few hymns from the Hymnal Companion, an impressive prayer was offered by Mr. Rocks, and the pastor closed the meeting by pronouncing the Benediction.

—Communicated.

Bonthe, June 8, 1891.

Y. M. C. ASSOCIATION.

We are informed that the Young Men's Christian Association of this place held a general meeting on Monday evening the 22nd instant at 7 p. m. when the chair was occupied by the President of the Association. Most of the official and unofficial members were present, among whom we noticed Rev. J. A. Evans, president, Mr. E. C. Dixon, Secretary, Mr. F. Johnson, Assistant Secretary, Messrs G. V. Manly, T. K. Norman, W. B. Coker, T. A. Connel, Samner, Gladstone, Avery, Bickersteth, Fewry, and others of the unofficial members. The meeting was opened with singing, prayer and Bible reading by the chair. Roll was then called after the minutes of the previous meeting were read and adopted.

Attention was then called by Mr. Manly to the fact that the minutes of each meeting had not in all cases been signed by President, which was attended to. The Executive Committee then reported, which was, after slight amendment, adopted. As the first and second on the affirmative were absent, Mr. Dixon was made leader of the affirmative. The subject of debate, "Is spirits or liquor necessary to the trade of the West Coast of Africa?" was then warmly discussed by Messrs. Dixon and Norman on the side of not necessary, and Messrs. Manly, Connel, Johnson, and Coker on the side of necessary. The former two won the debate. Altogether the meeting was an interesting and successful one, and the association bids fair of becoming a great help to the young men in our community. —Communicated.

CHILDREN'S COLUMN.

SHAINGAY.

THE SHAINGAY LADIES' PROGRESSIVE ASSOCIATION.

Shaingay can now boast of two Female Societies. The Women's Christian Temperance Union, and the Young Ladies' Progressive Association. The last was set on foot about one year ago, when a few of the young girls connected the idea of doing something to help on the Religious Work here, and at the same time to improve themselves accordingly each paid into the Treasurer what they could and by collecting amongst their friends they gathered a few pounds. With this they purchased cotton goods and met weekly and made garments for men, women and children. A bazaar was held and most of the articles were sold and a handsome sum realized. We were greatly encouraged, now, we are thoroughly organized and have a constitution and by-laws and a full line of officers. We are all of us girls and we meet every two weeks to sew, and sing and have other literary exercises We hope soon to have another bazaar we devote the proceeds to religious or charitable purposes where ever a need for it will do the most good. We are indebted to Rev Wilberforce for our constitution and by-laws and many excellent suggestions.

Fanny Clark.

Shaingay Mission
June 15th 1891.

The Editor Early Dawn.

Sir,—Having to go to Bannah Bargroo's village I had to pass through Sonchon. Here I met some men and women from Bowman in company with a woman whose child took sick and is come to see a country fashion man, a Mahomedan priest, about the cause of the childs illness. The priest set to work in this way. He had some sand spread on the ground, and put on marks with his fingers he took some gravel and shells, put them together in both of his hands closed up, and shook them several times and then scatter them all over the sand and looking quite grave and serious speaking something that no one understood. Then looking steadfastly on the mother of the sick child he told her that one woman living in Bowmah has given her child to the devil as a fowl; but the devil would not eat this child, because he wants the woman's own child and not another's; and the woman must run and call her husband and bring some present to beg the devil not to kill the child, as its life was in the hands of the devil. I could not speak to these people and tell the priest the great lies he was telling and his deceiving the poor people; but I prayed that God will soon rid them of these lying prophets who go all over the country to deceive our poor people and take their little things from them.

Mary Ann John.
Kooloonge Mission girl.

Kooloonge
May 29th 1891.

The Editor Early Dawn.

Mr Editor,—I read in the "Early Dawn" that there is a place for Children's letters, so I thought I would write something; my name is Susan Tucker, and I lived before I came here with my uncle and his name is John Williams and most of the people call him Commodor. He gave me to Miss Fanny Clark to live with her in the Shaingay Mission and to go to School. We are nine girls in the Mission and Mr Campbell to chose us and all the children like him because he is good Shaingay Mission. Africa,

June 15th, 1891.

Susan Tucker.

GENERAL NEWS.

Avery Station.—Manoh Ghair-groo held its quarterly Communion services on the 14th and 15th insts. Rev. J. A. Evans of Bonthe was present and officiated on the occasion, and the attendance was not as large as usual, yet the meeting was interesting.

Cannibals.—Cases of cannibalism are still reported from the Imperch, whether from the negligence of the vigilance on the part of the Police, or from the wicked determination of the Savages to defy the English Law. But in either case, a dose of correction would doubtless be a wholesome antidote.

Mattro Ghargroo River reports interesting services on the 21st instant with very good attendance. The services we believe were held by Mr. Nathan S. A. Morrison.

W. C. T. U.—The Women's Christian Temperance Union of this place held an interesting meeting on the 17th instant. The Seekers Class numbers 20.

Mr. Mahoney of Bathurst River Gambia has recently paid a visit to this place. M. Mahoney is one of our esteemed subscribers.

Danville—The quarterly services were held at Danville Station on the 21st instant by the Rev. S. R. Morrison.

The Executive Committee of the Y. M. C. Association met on the evening of the 26th inst. at the Mendi Mission Chapel and arranged for a suitable observance or notice of the Death of the Rev. L. L. Townsend on the 3rd of July prox.

It is rumored that Saturday, 4th July, the 115th Anniversary of the Declaration of Independence of the United States of America, a treat will be given by the Mendi Mission to the Sabbath School children and others engaged in the Mission work.

Rev J. Gomer, Superintendent of the U. B. C. Missions, with his wife and neice, arrived at Good Hope Station, Bonthe, where they intend remaining for a few days.

At a meeting of the Young Men's Christian Association, held on the 8th instant, in the U. B. C. Church, Rev. J. A. Evans presiding, an address was being delivered, when the President declared it denominational, and overruled it, and closed the meeting, as the gathering was for the purpose of discussing undenominational subjects.

There was an Exhibition of Magic Lantern Slides in St. Matthew's Church on the night of the 3rd instant, which was well attended and several interesting pictures displayed.

The Bishop confirmed 50 Candidates on the 5th instant in St. Matthew's Ch, Bonthe. The Candidates came from Victoria, Bendoo, and York Island. The service was very imposing.

The Contract steamer Susu arrived from Freetown on the 18th instant with Mr J E Mahoney from Bathurst Gambia Mr Morrison, of the firm of Pickering & Berthond, who went on sick leave and Mr W. E. Innis, Officer in charge survey Department.

Rev G. C. Nicol, M. A. Retired Chaplain of the Gambia passed through here on his way to Freetown on the 1st inst. He travelled overland from Monrovia to Cape Mount, thence to Salymah and on to this place. He preached in St. Mark's Church both morning and evening on Sunday 6th and left by the s. s. Fornoso the following day for Freetown. We are much pleased to notice the strength this honored old gentleman possesses in being able to travel such a distance on foot and wish for him many more years of usefulness.

The Sacrament of the Lord's Supper was administered in St. Marke's Church on the 15th instant, when Mr. and Mrs. Keany who were married the same day, partook.

The Susu left for Freetown with the Bishop and the Rev. O. Moore and W. Humphreys M. A.

Sub-Inspector of Schools M J Marke examined the different schools in Sherbro during his recent visit to this place after which he subsequently left for Freetown.

Our Superintendent the Rev J. Gomer made a trip from last Friday 19th instant, to Dama, near the Turtle Islands, and held services there. We hope to be able to give a full account of the trip in our next issue. He returned to this Station on the 22nd instant.

It is gratifying to note that Mr. A. S. Yorke has seen so liberal as to present a new organ to St. Matthew's Church, Bonthe, to replace the old one which is out of order. This is praiseworthy.

SELECTIONS

What Money Can Not Buy.

We sometimes think that money is omnipotent, that it can purchase for us every good thing. This is a great mistake. Money cannot buy true love It often wins its semblance. Summer friends swarm around him who rolls in wealth, but the love of a mother, the fidelity of a father, the affection of a sister, the sympathy of a brother, the trust of a friend, are never bought with gold.

Money can not bring content ment, and "our content is our best having." Money, alone, will not secure for us a good education. A rich man, who had neglected his early opportunities, was heard to say sadly, "I would give all my wealth for a thorough education and a well-trained mind." But his money and his riches were alike unavailing. Plenty of money will not of itself insure culture and gentility, yet next to Christian graces and robust health nothing is so desirable as refinement and pleasing, self possessed manners. The wealth of Croesus could not give a peaceful conscience. Sin scourges the soul of the rich as surely as of the poor. The poorest boy or girl, who has "always a conscience void of offense toward God, and toward men," is richer than the richest with a "conscience seared as with a hot iron." A good character is more precious than gold.

"Yet money is not to be despised. If we have it let us accept it as God's gift, and use it, not so much for our own pleasure as for the benefit of others. If we have it not let us believe that for our own good it has been withheld from us. But whether we have it or not let us remember that it can not purchase love; contentment, education, culture, refinement, nor a good conscience, and that it will not secure for us either peace, purity, holiness, or heaven.

Almost time to close.

By Rev. Arthur Mitchell.

I went into a Sabbath School some time ago, near the time of closing and saw something that awakened my wonder.

"Looking around the room I saw scarcely a teacher busy with his or her class. I looked carefully, and saw scarcely one. The lesson had evidently been recited, the books put carefully away, and the work seemed done, yet it still lacked several minutes for the time for the closing bell. Most of the scholars, though orderly, were watching listlessly the little stir of the room. Many of the teachers were quite unemployed, some sitting quietly and sleepily; looking straight before them with a kind of after dinner look, others were reading the children's papers which had been distributed. I happened to know that some of these teachers were most excellent christian persons, and they made me wonder all the greater at what I saw.

Somewhat later I went into another School, a thousand miles from the one I have already referred to, and taking my seat, I lifted my eyes to look around me. My first glance fell upon an excellent brother, most highly esteemed in the Church, and, I was informed, too one of its Elders. He was seated with his back to the class' tipped back comfortably upon his chair, and I thought, a sucking the handle of his ivory headed cane. He had evidently done his Sunday School teaching for that day. The lesson had been duly recited. It was within a very few minutes of the concluding exercises. The librarians were hurriedly distributing the books. The Superintendent was flitting about with his last whispers, and this excellent brother, no doubt, with the others who were following his example, thought it was so near the time for closing, that they would just take a long breath or two, and all ready for going home.

It was but a few moments, I know; but allow me to say to you my friends in the ranks, that those few moments, after the fixed lesson is passed, are the most precious moments of all the week for you. Then is the time when the teaching of the hour should be gathered up in one warm and heartfelt appeal to the feelings of the child.

If the passage studied has been pondered by you, and prayed over in secret, it must be that some point of living, saving truth has been suggested to your mind by the study. Let that truth not lie a cold lesson for the memory of your Class Breathe into it the warmth of your own love for their Souls. Let it tremble on your lips, and glisten in your eye and fall in your tones of graceful warning and kind entreaty upon their souls!

Religions instruction is valuable, but valuable only as it reaches the heart. The child will doubt if you really believe there is a heaven to win, a hell to shun, a Saviour to serve and love, if when you meet him but for those few moments, you can be content with a frigid lesson and can add no earnest and affectionate words of your own.

Do not say, as many do when such a duty is urged upon them, That is something which I could never do; some have the gift, but I have not. Pray, what great gift does such a duty require? If we have not the gift to speak a few tender, affectionate, faithful words to a child for his salvation, have we the gift of love for souls?

To be Continued

Mine.

It is not mine to tread the paths
The dear Redeemer trod,
Nor in Gethsemene to kneel
Upon that sacred sod.

Nor mine to hear those precious words
That fell in so much awe,
Nor mine to see the ascending Lord,
Which the five hundred saw.

Nor mine, a wearied pilgrim,
To stand on Lebanon's mount
To visit where the Savior sat,
And drink from out the fount

Nor mine in that dear land
Of Palestine to pluck one flower,
But mine to wreath the cross
In loveliest bloom, from hour to hour.

And it is mine when the curtain falls
Between me and life's shells,
To pass o'er hill and vale and mount
To the land where Jesus dwells.

O landscape broad, O loveliest scene,
To immortal vision given,
When the soul swoops over Calvary
In its onward flight to heaven.

Then mine, oh mine, thou precious thought,
Mine, yes mine through blood 'twas bought,
The path he trod, the crown he gave
The immortal scenes beyond the grave.

—Allie E. Rymer.

Borrowed Books

A person who borrows a book has no right to lend it to another without the express permission of the owner. This should be an unvarying rule.

A borrowed book should be covered and handled with care and nicety, and return promptly. Nobody has a right to retain a borrowed book during an indefinite period.

If accident or injury result to a borrowed volume while away from its owner, honor requires that it shall be replaced by a new copy.

Never ask the loan of a very costly book or one belonging to a set, if you can avoid it.

Teach children to be very particular in regard to their handling of all books, whether their own or those of others.

The Power of the Sanctified.

The christian who is sanctified wholly can have faith for special objects because he has a perfect personal faith. His own heart is not a frowning barrier in the way. Nevertheless, in the presence of temptation he may find an effort to be necessary to put it aside.

Some cannot readily exercise faith for outside objects, they are not thoroughly habituated to it. They go about it haltingly, but no sanctified one has any business to be long without a high walled Jericho, or two on hand for his faith to compass. Such things are necessary to healthful progress and growth in grace, which will give a spiritual atmosphere which will give all christians an immense power that will brush aside all temptations, or, in other words, it will give us power to overcome all temptations.

The best preparation for eternity is true fellowship with God here. Enoch walked with God in this life three hundred years, and then was taken to dwell with him forever. His preparation for heaven was a preparation of heart that made him a friend and servant of the Most High.

THE
Early Dawn
PRINTING OFFICE
PLAIN ARTISTIC OR FANCY JOB WORK
EXECUTED AT
SHORT NOTICE
ENQUIRE OF
H. Samuel Thomas
PRINTER

THE EARLY DAWN.

"The Morning Light Is Breaking, The Darkness Disappears"

VOL. VIII. BONTHE, SHERBRO, WEST AFRICA, JULY 15, 1891. No. 12.

The 'Early Dawn'

Published Semi-Monthly at Bonthe Sherbro. Under the Auspices of the Board of Missions of the United Brethern In Christ

REV. E. C. BICKERSTETH, Editor and Publisher.
Bonthe, Sherbro, West Africa.

AGENTS

United States—Revs. B. F. Booth and Wm. McKee, Dayton Rev. Wm J. Davis, Basil, Ohio Rev. D. K. Flickinger, Willoughby, Ohio J. M. Stoner, Manheim, Pa., Rev. G. W. Arnold Eldorado, Ohio.
West Africa—J. A. Richards, River Gambia. Rev. J. R. Frederick, and Mr. E. A. Lewis, Freetown, Sierra Leone. Rev. James Dennis, Marshall, Liberia, Mr. Moses S. Boyle Liberia.

TERMS

One Year by mail,	£0 6 0
Delivered in Bonthe,	0 5 0
Half yearly by mail,	0 3 0
Ditto. delivered in Bonthe,	0 2 0

DAYMAH.

By Rev. A. Gomer.

This is the name of a Sherbro town, situated on the south end of one of the Sherbro islands, on which Bonthe, the seat of Government, stands. It is about 60 or 65 miles from Bonthe along the river line, and opposite to the group of Turtle islands nearing St. Ann's Shoals. The town is low sandy land, and quite on a level with the river at its ebb, but at high tide the water flows into some of the huts nearest the banks of the river. Several hamlets constitute Daymah proper, the principal of which are marked by tall cotton trees, whose foliage tower heavenward over 100 feet, and spread out their great branches in all directions, forming a complete shelter from the scorching rays of the sun to those who pass that way. These giants of the seashore may be seen for many miles out at sea, and are excellent beacons for native mariners in a dark night, especially during the tornado season.

Daymah is a grand depot for fishermen, whither they go with canoes to catch fish undisturbedly by casting nets, since the waters of that part of the island are so seldom ruffled. Kola nut trees as well as palm trees are abundant in this part of the island, the produce of which is marketable all the year round. This is indeed a blessing for which the poor heathen natives ought to be very thankful to Providence. They seem to be quite destitute of anything like vegetable food, but from observation I learn that some of the people from Sierra Leone, who go there for the purpose of trading have been lately trying to cultivate cassada and Indian corn, but the soil being sandy all around, these industrious people are discouraged about the growth and yield of those plants.

With the exception of a good sprinkling of people from Freetown, who go to Dama for trading with the natives in palm oil, palm nuts, and kola, the natives, unlike those at the other end of the island speak the Sherbro dialect.

About 5 years ago the Sierra Leone residents united and built a small place of worship, where they would meet on the Sabbath and hold services amogg themselves. They longed to have a resident pastor and consequently they applied to the Native Pastorate Church at Bonthe to take them under their care. The church was dedicated by the Native Pastorate to the worship of God, but they never exercised their influence over the people, who had, therefore, to apply to the U. B. American Mission to "Come over and help them."

It was quite an up-hill work to get the chapel opened, for after the Sierra Leone people had built it, the natives told them "that all the place belonged to their devils, and they could not allow any other form of worship there." To appease the devils, however, the Christians gave some presents to the natives. The way in which service time was announced was by blowing a horn, so that those persons living at a distance may know the hour of meeting. This mode of summoning worshippers together was also objected to by the natives, who said they could blow as much and as long as they liked on the sea, but not in the town. For this apparent offence the Christians had to give another present to suppress the anger of a special devil living in a thick bush very near the town, and opposite to one of the larkies. The site to one of the larkies. The natives had to be humoured in a way, as it was from them the traders got their living.

Although the heathen people have not been brought thoroughly to embrace Christianity, yet they are thirsting after the Gospel, as they have sent three successive times, each time the chief adding his name to the letter to invite the U. B Mission to send over a school teacher to teach and reside among them. Rev Taylor our pastor at Bonthe, and Rev M'Cauley of Gbangbish, were sent to visit the people of Dama, who reported that they are a needy people, and very disirous of being taught, and beg the U. B. Mission will hasten to come and minister to their wants. They have accepted the invitation and hope soon to comply with their request.

To be continued.

Deceitfulness of Riches.

In Matthew xiii 22, Jesus speaks of the deceitfulness of riches. Why are riches, like a great many other things of this world, deceitful?

1 Because they promise happiness. The poor often say, "Wait till I get rich, then I will be content and happy." But they fail to find that contentment and happiness they expected, and say, "Riches are deceitful;" for the more they accumulate the greater the care and less the happiness.

2 Riches promise ease and leisure time for recreation. But to the majority of the rich this is false; for how few rich men find any leisure time for rest. The more riches, the more work.

3 Riches promise benevolence. Yes, the stingy person says, "Wait till I get rich, then I will give." But that man who was not benevolent when he was poor will be less so when he gets rich.

There are many persons who profess to love God that give less as riches increase. I have a man in my mind who said, "Ten and twelve years ago I gave so much to the church; and I give the same amount at present;" and yet that man is worth three times as much now as he was then. Riches are deceitful. David says, "If riches increase, set not your heart upon them." Riches certainly make themselves wings. Paul's advice to Timothy, in 1. Timothy, vi. 17, is to not trust in uncertain riches. Oh, the deceitfulness of riches! Yet how much man desires and worships the deceitful thing.—Telescope.

CAPTAIN VERNEY.

The British Parliament has another case of expulsion. A Captain Verney conspired against the virtue of a young governess, and when the government representative moved that the fellow could no longer be member of the House of Commons, the opposition seconded it, and it was agreed to in "absolute silence." Following the cases of Parnell and Sir Charles Dilke, it would appear that the social purity reform is reaching into the ranks of the gentry where it is most needed. The good people of England should make it impossible that there should ever again be such a rake as the Prince of Wales.—Christian Cynosure.

"Go Away, Satan! Go Away!"

A little girl sat upon the large stone door-step of her father's house, and beside her was a boy of about the same age. He had been eating a fresh, rosy apple, and had thrown the core in the gutter beyond the walk, and watched it as the muddy water carried it from his sight; then, turning back to his playmate, who seemed absorbed in the pictures of a new book, he said:

"Give me your apple, Katie; mine is all gone."

"Now now; wait a little," was the reply.

But the greedy little fellow, not willing to wait, took the apple up, turned it round and round, smelled it, and then tossed it up lightly in his hands each time catching it again. I expected his teeth would go into it, but he was too honest for that.

His cry brought the eyes of the little girl upon him. The blood mounted to her brow; she was at once upon her feet with one hand raised, apparently to strike the shrinking form beside her. But the hand did not fall; and as she stood, her face and form showing the struggle within, I prayed that she might not be so strongly tempted. A moment more and her voice fell on my ear—

'Go away, Satan! go away!'

The mother within the door heard the words too, and coming out asked what they meant. A blush was upon the brow of the child, but it was humility and shame that caused it, while with drooping eye she answered, 'Satan wanted me to strike Freddie, but I did not.'

The mother drew her within her arms and kissed her saying, 'That is right, my child; resist him and he will flee from you.'

Would that all might learn in childhood to resist the power of temptation by the help of the Holy Spirit! Truly the world would be better for it.

WANTED.

A BOOK-KEEPER for New Manchester Warehouse, Bonthe One who had been in service and has some knowledge of business preferred. None need apply without Testimonial to

THOMPSON BROTHERS.

Bonthe, Sherbro,
14th July, 1891.

Rev C. A. E. Campbell and brother return their sincere thanks to the numerous friends at Bonthe who tendered them expressions of sympathy and acts of condolence on the death of their beloved brother.

THE EARLY DAWN.

BONTHE, JULY 15, 1891.

INDEPENDENCE DAY.

SATURDAY, 4th July, was observed as a general holiday by the Mendi Mission at Good Hope Station, Bonthe, it being the 115th Anniversary of the Declaration of Independence of the United States of America. The Sabbath School children numbering about 120 assembled at the School-room about 12 o'clock, and after going through some preliminaries marched to the Mission yard, waving as they went along the emblem of American Independence—the Stars and Stripes—where the Rev J. Gomer and Rev J. A. Evans, formerly of Good Hope Station were already awaiting them. The Superintendent then introduced Rev. Evans, who delivered an Oration sound and practical, before an assembly of Sabbath School teachers and scholars, as well as many friends and visitors.

Although this is the height of the rainy season, yet the day was as pleasant as any that shone in March or sweet September, affording every opportunity to the children of enjoying themselves, which they did to the full in several ways. In fact nothing transpired to mar the pleasure of those youthful scholars, a pleasure which seemed to have been dwindling recently, but was revived on this occasion by their benevolent Superintendent.

A long table was swagging by reason of the good things provided for the children from 3 to 4 p. m. when the Superintendent thought it time to relieve it, and accordingly the children were invited near, and did justice to the things provided—such justice as caused the table to upright at a quarter after 4 o'clock.

During the whole day the American flag floated over the Mission premises, lending lustre to all around. After dinner those present on the occasion, including Rev. and Mrs. Gomer, were photographed by Mr. Commissioner Alldridge. Some comfits were distributed to the children, who afterwards separated to enjoy their usual holiday.

THE POST OFFICE.

OF THE various departments in the Government the Post office should be the most systematic in opening and closing, for the mercantile community, as well as the other inhabitants of Bonthe have daily, almost hourly, to transact business in some shape or other with the office, and how unpleasant it must be when one has to apply about four successive times in one day to post and only to find a window of the office opened and the ubiquitous Postmaster absent, perhaps detailed on "special duty" elsewhere out of the Government compound.

Complaints have been frequently made to us without our heeding, but when we too had to suffer the same inconvenience, it is time we refer to the matter in expectation to see a change for the better in the working of this important limb of the Government take place.

Bonthe is sufficiently established and too important an emporium not to prevent complaints of the irregularities of her Post Office.

In Freetown, from which we are removed only 120 miles, this medium of communication with the civilised world, affords ample accommodation to the public.

It is well known that the hours of the Post Office here are from 7 a.m. to 4 p.m., and between those hours the Postmaster is expected to be found in his office, but instances are not wanting when persons have been told on going thither to transact business, that the Postmaster was absent from the town on special duty.

The present Acting Civil Commandant is admitted to be one of the most far-seeing and energetic gentlemen who ever controlled Sherbro, and amidst the multifarious duties of his high office, he may probably have never heard of the irregularities complained of, and we advert to them simply because they exist, and very much to the inconvenience of all concerned.

BONTHE UNPROTECTED.

THE protection either of life or property is of such importance to every individual, that we consider and deem it necessary as Journalists to notice from time to time the present far from protected state of the inhabitants of this community. The frequent depredations made on the property of the inhabitants of Bonthe of late, the every night patrol of robbers in the streets and the fact of there being no guards to check them, justify us in saying that the community are far from being protected. As subjects of our Most Gracious Queen we plead for protection, and would suggest as a means of putting an end, or of checking the present danger of life and property of the inhabitants, the following:—

1 That an Official Notification be made prohibiting all Boats, Canoes or Crafts from leaving Bonthe after sunset without a permit from Government.

2 That either Policemen or detectives, be set to guard the different landing places of Bonthe to prevent any violation of the Notification.

3 That a check be placed on all unnecessary parading of the streets after 10 p. m., by setting Policemen, or appointing men to guard the Streets at night.

These suggestions we think if adopted will help to check in a great measure the marauding tribe of robbers which infest this community, and will give security and protection to the life and the property of the inhabitants.

We have observed a Notice in the streets of Bonthe, signed by the agent of the French Company, requesting the occupants of their lands to quit during this month and before the 31st instant. We certainly do think one month too short a period, especially in the rainy season, to remove houses (be they of mud or otherwise) which have been erected and standing for more than five years; but it depends entirely upon the wording of agreement if such were ever made. What we think would be the better plan is for the persons occupying those premises to combine and petition the General Agent, through Mr. Mosse, for an extension of time to remove, and we feel sure, if the inconvenience they would be exposed to could but be clearly pointed out, Mr. Maillat will accommodate them.

CORRESPONDENCE.

☞ We shall not be responsible for the opinions of our Correspondents.

FAVORABLE LETTERS.

The Editor Early Dawn.

Sir,—By the last mail steamer I received two very encouraging letters, one from away down South in Dixie which reads as follows:—"I enclose Five Dollars to help on the work a little, and indeed in the letter was a five dollar green back.

Another gentleman at the Gambia, not a member of our church, besides sending money to renew his subscription to the Early Dawn, sends a donation of One Guinea for the same cause as the other gentleman; and what is most strange neither of them is a member of our connexion. How many of our own church members will follow these praiseworthy examples, and who will not pray God to bless these brethren!—Yours,

J. GOMER.

The Editor Early Dawn.

Sir,—It is a good while since I was privileged to see a copy of the "Early Dawn" newspaper, which is printed at Bonthe, Sherbro, and out of curiosity when at a friend's a few days ago I saw and took up a copy of it, which was dated 30th June, and perused it. I was agreeably surprised at the appearance of the paper, as compared with those I saw previously, which speaks favorably for those having the management of same; and I think they are taking the right course in not confining themselves strictly to one particular kind of matter, but to deal generally with things as they happen. I was pleased to read the description of Bonthe, as contained in that number of the Early Dawn, and if such improvements are rapidly advancing, really there should be great need for such an instrument as a newspaper, and I wish you all prosperity. A newspaper is and should be an excellent auxiliary to a Mission such as the U. B. C. is, for not only is it calculate to furnish the parent Society in in America with account now and again of the working of the Mission there; but also to keep us informed of Sherbro affairs.

Please add my name to your list of Subscribers and forward my paper to the address given. I hope you will persevere and may be favored with many subscribers to help you on in your noble work.—I am, Sir,

A SIERRA LEONEAN,

Freetown, 6th July 1891.

(We are grateful for your kind wishes and trust others may follow your good example.—Ed. E. D.)

We have been requested to publish the following:—

REPORT FOR THE QUARTER ENDING JUNE 30TH 1891.

Saint Matthew's Day School
Bonthe, Sherbro.

The quarter opened with the tumbling down of our School-house whilst the roof was undergoing repairs and thatching on Wednesday the 1st of April.

This circumstance has necessitated the working of the school being temporarily conducted in the church. The latter building, though spacious, is altogether unfit for school work.

Present number on roll, 113 Boys, 82 Girls, total 195 Average daily attendance 121.

Since the opening of the year we have lost over forty promising pupils who have been withdrawn from school; there is, however, a corresponding increase in number but those admitted are mostly of the juvenile department.

The school is composed for the most part of Sierra Leone born children, the native element (e.g. Mendis, and sprinkling few of Sherbros and Soosoos) is mustering strong numerically; as to their intellectual attainments—the Mends in particular—suffice it to say that our children have invariably found it a bone of contention when competing with them in their elementary subjects. The Native Parents are not asked to pay school fees, but some of the well to do from the bare satisfaction that the progress of their children inspires, have of their own free will offered and since continued to pay their children's school pence.

One of our pupil, Wilfred Macaulay, a little boy about seven years of age, died suddenly on Thursday the 23rd April. I called on the bereaved family with a select few of the children and expressed sympathy. A few hymns were sung and prayers offered by us. Our visit was most deeply appreciated.

The funeral at 4 p. m., was a touching one. The children, having been arranged in processional order, marched in advance of the coffin and the Pastor Rev. S. Hughes, who officiated on that occasion, led the procession to the place of interment. Crowds of people were attracted to the scene as the children sang in melodious strains the beautiful hymns of "Over there," "Safe in the Arms of Jesus."

The Government annual inspection of the School was held on Tuesday the 9th of June by M. J. Marke Esq. Her Majesty's Sub-Inspector of Schools. Result not known as yet. Last year, the school succeeded for the first time in its history in earning the Government merit grant. I cannot prognosticate the future but feel tempted to say that, if the Master's hands could be strengthened by an additional Male Teacher there is no reason why this enviable position should not be kept up to or even excelled.

In the line of Managerial Supervision, there is every encouragement to chronicle.

Our Manager, Rev S. Hughes exhibits such an interest in school work as far exceeds my expectations. He has been able now and again by frequent visits to render helps in the school. I never thought he would have had the time at his disposal to render. He takes a pride not only in performing his work efficiently but also in supervising with thoroughness all others that fail under his pastoral care. Already he has begun to put forth efforts re the building of a school-house the absence of which is most keenly felt.

Mr. Pasha, the Catechist, has been doing his best to give us, as requested on an average, two hours assistance in teaching during school time His darling subject is Geography.

Mrs Walker, our female teacher, is both a teaching and sewing mistress, she goes to school from 11 a. m. to 3 p. m.

One distinctive feature which characterized the working of the sewing department during the quarter was the attempt (which has proved successful) to provide sufficient work for and thereby to secure all our advanced girls, who, till then, were placed under different mistresses according to their parent's discretion. The girls refered to are now sent to the parsonage regularly at one 1 p. m. every day for Industrial training and advanced needlework.

Another important feature (in fact the most inportant) which gladdened much our hearts was, the admission into the Church by the rite of Confirmation of four of our senior girls, who have come to years of discretion. This event took place on Friday the 5th June during His Lordship's last visit.

For these, we pray, that they may be established and rooted in the faith, that the Lord may defend them with his heavenly grace, that they may continue His forever until they come to his everlasting Kingdom.

C. S. BROWN.

A TRIP TO SHAIEGAY.—Concluded.

The kind of training which the English Missionary Societies has constantly given to her West African converts and others is mainly born of a classical, theological, or ornamental kind, such education as an English gentlemen of fortune not expecting or being expected to earn his livelihood would receive, and this too without any concomitant of industrial or mechanical construction. Hence people trained by these missions are unused to manual labour and couples to natural dislike for it, arising from a defect in their training. They spurn manual labour because the idea that it is disgraceful has taken root in their minds. Their teachers who never trained them to work with their own round and blame their pupils for despising manual labour.

The training given to the youth at Shaiegay by the American Mission is a pleasant admixture of intellectual and moral instruction. The best way in which I can explain how the Shaiegay youths are trained is by stating what fell under my cognizance while I was there. The boys worked on the fields about five or six hours every morning planting and hoeing and in weeding the cassada and other vegetables on which they subsist, thus learning practically and in time the truism that by the sweat of their face they shall eat bread. This morning's task done they spend as many hours again at school.

I have heard these boys of an evening read some excellent essays written by themselves on "How best to develop the resources of the Sherbro country." I have been moved by them came boys from Shaiegay to Manka and heard a discourse of twenty eight or thirty two spikes, and I am informed that they went and again row from Shaiegay to Freetown—a distance of sixty miles—and naturally concluded is a great pity that the industrious which these youths have the opportunity of acquiring are necessarily limited to forming of a primitive kind of farming. If my memory serves I understand the Mission would gladly give them the chance of acquiring a variety of industries suitable to their individual taste. If the preliminary means were available. Here is a splendid opportunity for any one who has the means and the desire to aid the rise and progress of West Africa.

A Governor of Sierra Leone, much interested in the progress of West Africa, but much disgusted with the numerous applications for clerkships made to him, which he was unable to grant, publicly advised less writing and more digging because he no doubt had perceived that the stability and prosperity of West Africa lie in the labours of the hand and not in those of the pen. In my opinion the Shaiegay Mission, if she would make industrial and mechanical instruction a feature of her work, would strengthen the work of evangelisation which is the raison d'etre of the Mission and would thus secure the permanence and stability of the Christianity she has introduced in this part of the world, and a sure means of its steady dissemination, and any one, native or foreign, who would devote his offerings for this special purpose would seem to be doing just the right thing and to be satisfying africa's greatest need.

M.

GENERAL NEWS.

The s. s. Footah, supplying the place of the Contract boat Swan arrived here on Thursday last about midday from Freetown with mails, after landing which she steamed over to York Island to land cargo. She returned the next day and left for Freetown about 9 a. m. with mails and passengers.

We would respectfully draw the attention of the Inspector of Roads to the disgraceful condition of the one leading from Ghandemah corner, Victoria road, right on to the bridge near the Mendi Mission chapel. Should it rain for an hour or two constantly the road becomes almost impassable, as pools of water are settled all over it. We trust the Inspector will give this highway a little attention.

We have been enjoying unusually delightful weather for July during the week, clear sunshine, interrupted occasionally by a shower or two to temper the heat of the sun which radiates so powerfully in this month. When the rainy change comes we hope to endure it equally

A young man named Dundas, for many years a resident in Bonthe, and who was one of the jurors at an inquest held on the 29th ultimo, on a body brought from the Imperch country which was at an advanced stage of decomposition, supposed to have taken fever from the spot, has never been since well, and died Saturday, the 11th instant.

A called meeting of the "Young Men's Christian Association" was convened at Good Hope Chapel, Mendi Mission, on Friday evening for the purpose of reading a paper on the life, labours, and death of the late Rev Laurence L. Townsend, the founder of this society, but owing to the indisposition of the gentleman who would have read the paper, the meeting was adjourned to a future day.

On the night of the 2nd instant, a daring robbery was committed in the Mendi Mission Chapel at Yhandeboo. We have repeatedly spoken of these robberies and they have now brought robbery into our own house. The chapel was entered into and the communion cloth stolen therefrom, and up to this moment not the slightest clue to the discovery or detection of the robbers could be obtained.

We would draw attention to an article on Daymah published in another page, relative to the wants of its people. It would be an everlasting reproach to Christianity if the cries of these heathen people be not attended to sooner or later, and hope the day still soon dawn when the U. B. American Mission will have "gone over to help them."

A canoe in her with beliah whilst crossing from Mocole to Bonthe on the 29th ultimo, was upset and a man named John Person or Abu John, was drowned. His body has not been recovered.

The Colonial Hospital, of which mention was made in our last has been opened on the 1st instant to the public.

Mr. T. J. Alldridge, Travelling Commissioner, passed here on his way to England on the 4th instant, from Bolgunah via Lavuma. He spent three days at the Mission premises, waiting for a conveyance to Freetown. He left on the 7th instant by the s. s. Formose.

The Contract steamer Swan, we learn, with mails from Freetown to Sherbro, stranded on a rock between East and the Bananas Island, but fortunately no lives were lost, although there were several passengers on board. Through the courtesy of C. B. Collier Esq., merchant of Sherbro, who was on his way from Freetown to Bonthe, the mails were safely landed at this place on Saturday evening, the 4th instant.

The s. s. Formose left on the 7th instant for Freetown. We understand she took a decent cargo of palm oil and palm kernels from the different merchants in Sherbro.

Footprints of a leopard were noticed in the morning of the 2nd instant in the Mission yard at Avery Bentley Manoh Bargrave, as well as eight dead fowls about the premises, signs that a leopard was either lurking about or had been on the premises during the night. This led to a watch being kept, and the beast was killed on the night of the 4th. It measured seven feet long and three in circumference. This is the male leopard and a vigilant look-out is kept for the female.

Mr. John Serville Gray, a trader in the Bargroo river, was married on Sunday, the 5th instant to Miss Elizabeth Parker, daughter of the late John Parker, and sister of Mr. Parker the Government Interpreter at Bonthe by the Rev. A. B. Morrison, Pastor of Avery Chapel.

A series of public services were held in Ebenezer chapel, by the Superintendent of the Mission, commencing on Friday evening, 11th instant. The weather was unfavourable the first evening but the attendance was good and the congregation listened with marked attention to what was told them from the Psalm text. Services were kept after at the request of the people.

SELECTION.

Almost time to close.

Concluded.

Is not the one gift which is wanting the gift to believe that the things we teach with our lips are really untrue? Have you sought to have your heart deeply impressed with the condition and wants of your scholars, before you entered the room? Has your closet been witnesses to your earnest prayers for this particular thing that you might feel their situation, and go before them with a soul all filled with a sense of what the Scriptures say of their Spiritual opportunity on that very Sabbath day?

Pray for this feeling—Pray over the word until your own practical unbelief and cold-heartedness give way, and your tears lull in secret in their behalf, and then, how precious will every moment of your interview with your class be! You will instruct them quietly and soundly in all the records of Scripture but there will be times when you will pour out your own soul, though in stammering words yet with a heart-felt, personal, anxious love, which will stamp the memory of those hours for life upon their hearts, and as more to awaken and convert their souls than whole years of dull and formal and union passioned teaching.

I remember one of my Sunday School teachers when I was a boy. He was a plain man, with a common school education, though naturally intelligent and thoughtful. He was a very quiet man even a matter of fact man; a teller in a country bank. But he evidently studied the lessons, and he evidently was anxious, for our souls It pains me now when I think how perplexed and grieved he looked sometimes at our unconquerable heedlessness and fun; but one thing about his teaching I shall never forget. It was the way he had, occasionally, after the lesson itself was over, of his laying his hand on my knee, and looking kindly and seriously into my face, and saying in warm and earnest under-tone some simple words of questioning or persuasion which evidently just come right out of his heart. I do not remember one lesson he ever taught me, can not recall one illustration which he ever used, or one anecdote he ever told; I feel his hand on my knee now. His kind, serious anxious face is before me while I write. That half hushed, deep, tremulous voice is as distinctly in my ears as it was twenty-three years ago. These things would have made poor substitutes for well studied lessons, but these things laid the lessons on my soul. They made me feel that the lessons were true, and I saw that my teacher believed them, and felt them in his deepest heart. It is the sight of this which makes a Sunday-School Scholar grow still and serious in the midst of a class of joking boys, sends him home with a new thoughtfulness at his heart, and very kindly leads him, when he reaches home, to steal quietly up stairs, or out into the garden, and put up his first blind, half taught prayer.

Now my dear friend, do not say this is not your temperament. It is a question of common, reasonable, christian love for souls. Do not say you cannot reach this high Standard You cannot reach it of yourself; but God can help you to do it Study and pray over the lesson alone until it is a word of warmth and power to your own heart. Live always so that you can pray. Pass to the School from your dwelling with prayer, and let a prayerful earnestness breathe through all that hour. Especially watch for those tender impressible words in your scholars which certainly most likly to come after the lesson has been seriously and warmly taught—in those few moments just before the close of the school.

NOTICE.

The Manager of this Journal wishes to inform the public of Bonthe and elsewhere that the columns of this paper are open to correspondents, and that all letters sent for publication will receive his attention, provided they are accompanied by the names of the writer, not necessarily for publication, but as a guarantee of good faith. Rejected manuscripts will not be returned. He however reserves the right of whoosing such of them as he deems interesting. All work with which he is favored shall be done in such a manner as he hopes will give satisfaction and secure patronage always.

He that can compose himself is wiser than he who composes a book.

Mattro New Chapel.

Among the principal mottoes of life, stands this little word "Push." It was on the morning of the 31st of May when nature seem to echo the command push! to every creature, Push! says the dawn of the faded noon who slowly accomplished her last duty. Push! says one bird to the other as it perches on a branch to declare the goodness of its Creator. Push forces a sound to the ear of the shuddered native, to find this little town, which for years ago had for its enjoyments sounds of drum at every sunset, and for comfort some of the evil practices of heathendom. Push! says the glorious Gospel to these things, to verify these words of Cowper —

God moves in a mysterious way,
His wonders to perform;
He plants his footsteps in the sea,
And rides upon the Storm.

I observe very early, a crowd composed of different tribes of people, from different places both Traders as well as other Natives, some of whom have walked a distance of about 30 miles from their homes, in order to witness the Dedication of the small but beautiful "Zion" built at Mattro in connection with the U. B. Mission.

Time glides slowly on to the proceedings which were conducted in the following manner At 6 a. m. there was a meeting for Prayer and Praise, conducted by the Rev. S. B. Morrison, Pastor of that district, when additional names were enrolled in the class List, of those persons who were willing to lead a Christian life. At 11 o'clock the pulpit was occupied by Rev. J. Albert Evans, Pastor of Good Hope Station, he began by the Reading of the 84th and 122nd Psalms responsively; Singing an Anthem "Hulelujah Chorus"; Trustee's Charge etc

After the following exercises were read through, the Rev. Gentleman based his discourse on these words:—

"I will not give sleep to mine eyes, or slumber to mine eyelids, until I find out a place for the Lord, an habitation for the Mighty One of Jacob."

The preacher at first proceeds gradually to show the excellency of the thought which the Psalmist possessed, with respect to the Master's work, which makes him grateful so as to express his feelings in these word. That there are some such minds existing; but how many? Things having been compared to the present day, pointed out the many evils which prevail in most minds. In fact, the sermon was an able one and was delivered to the satisfaction of all present. The number of attendance at the close, not less than 146 persons, all of whom paid a special attention to the glad Message of Salvation. In the evening of the same day at 4. 30 there was another gathering. And though (Unfortunately) the preacher expected was not present yet the gathering was not disappointed for the same Gentleman kindly consented to come up again that evening. The success attained on the occasion filled the minds of both natives and strangers with joy and never ending praise, to the King of Kings who has in His wisdom and providence directed all things for good, that reckless humanity may find comfort in his Almighty Wings. On the morning of the following day at 7 a. m. there was another meeting of Prayer and Thanksgiving conducted by Mr. Francis A. Anthony, a young worker from Danville Station. His remarks were brief and interesting several prayers having been made the meeting was brought to a close. Some of the friends who came from distant places immediately bade farewell to their old friends, that they might reach their homes before the night closed in, others waited for the evening tide who could not undertake to travel on foot to reach their homes by boat.

May the Lord of the harvest hasten the time when Christianity shall flow through the mountains and dales of the interior parts of Africa, when nations shall not learn to triumph over the misfortunes of their neighbours, but shall help to push this glorious Gospel light to their countrymen yet untaught for the building up of the Messiah's Kingdom

Thanking you for your kind indulgence.—Yours

A. L. BERT.

The Still Small Voice.

Religious duties are done and spiritual blessings are secured generally in humble ways and through small channels. Conversions usually occur by little and not by great inventions. It is the still small voice of the Spirit. It is through little efforts, little services faithfully done. Our common Christian work may seem small, and we sometimes omit it. Ah! the thing we omitted to do, the word we failed to say, the prayer we did not offer, the meeting we did not attend, the sermon we did not hear, might have had a result for good through everlasting ages! These little things of religion are like the ends of wires that our hands may touch, and we pull them rightly or carelessly; but they reach into eternity and are attached to bells that forever ring for joy or ceaselessly toll for sorrow! We touch these wires today; what is the vibration yonder?—Christian Secretary.

The Well and the Cesspool.—The question is asked how far these should be apart, and is replied to in this wise by an authority. In some soils, they ought to be miles apart, with a hill of rock between. In sandy soils, with a dry subsoil, a well will drain almost any amount of territory if it is lower than the land around it. The water will leach through the sand and then make a drive for the first opening below it. The better way is to have no cess-pools, but to absorb and deodorize all slops and excreta by the use of dry earth and plaster.

Printed at the Office of the Early Dawn, Bonthe, Sherbro, July 15th 1891.

THE EARLY DAWN.

"The Morning Light Is Breaking, The Darkness Disappears"

VOL. VIII. BONTHE, SHERBRO, WEST AFRICA, JULY 30, 1891. No. 13.

The 'Early Dawn'

Published Semi-Monthly at Bonthe Sherbro. Under the Auspices of the Board of Missions of the United Brethern In Christ

REV. E. C. BICKERSTETH, Editor and Publisher. Bonthe, Sherbro, West Africa.

AGENTS

United States—Revs. B. F. Booth and Wm. McKee, Dayton Rev. Wm J. Davis, Bonthe, Ohio Rev. D. K. Flickinger, Willoughby, Ohio J. M. Stoner, Manheim, Pa., Rev. G. W. Arnold Eldorado, Ohio.
West Africa—J. A. Richards, River Gambia. Rev. J. R. Frederick, and Mr. E. A. Lewis, Freetown, Sierra Leone. Rev. James Doppety, Marshall, Liberia, Mr. Moses S. Boyle Liberia.

TERMS

One Year by mail,	$0	6	0
Delivered in Bonthe,	0	5	0
Half yearly by mail,	0	3	0
Ditto. delivered in Bonthe,	0	2	6

DAYMAH.

By Rev. Joseph Gomer.

Concluded.

It was in the morning of the 19th of June, after much trouble in getting a boat and crew, that I left the Mendi Mission wharf at Bonthe for Daymah. The captain and three of the men assured me that they had been to Daymah before and could go there again in safety. To all appearence the day seemed fair. The previous day I received a mail from America and some papers only 33 days old, so the news was fresh to me and I indulged in the papers and magazines, especially as a fair breeze was blowing. About 2 o'clock, the boatmen wanted to cook their breakfast, but not having any pot we had to put in to a fishing town, where they went ashore and prepared their meal, having no dish to put it in, a boatman gathered large leaves and placed them in his hat, then he turned the rice into it and brought it to the boat; the sail was set again and we were on our way to Daymah again. The breeze died away and the men had to bend to their oars. At 6 o'clock the men began watching the Coast for Daymah cotton tree, until dark set in, but the cotton tree could not be discovered, and so on until 9 o'clock, yet no Daymah could be made out, the men all the time tugging at their oars. At length a light was seen on the shore, for which I made direct, and reaching the shore I enquired for the route to Daymah, and was told that it was round the next point which was reached in half an hour after, landing just in time to escape a tornado.

I was most cordially received and welcomed by a Mr. Jones, trader in the town, and one of the foremost men in the church here. The next day was Saturday and the horn was blown in all directions to gather the people from the different farkies. A short service was held, after which we talked business. A number of the natives were present, and all were very anxious to have a school organised there, so that their children may not grow up in ignorance. They want a teacher, an interpreter and books. To procure these they promise to render every assistance but cannot bear the expense entirely. They plead most pitieously and earnestly for help, and I can positively say that there is not a more pitiable set of people in all this district of Sherbro country; the ignorance and superstition that obtain here is most distressing, and what makes it more so is the fact that it is on British soil, and so near to a British Commandant and the Established Church, to say nothing of the fact that this American Mission has been in Bonthe for 40 years, and yet there are thousands of people in those Daymah farkies and on the Turtle Islands,—which are all close by only a few moments sail in a small boat,—who have never heard a Gospel sermon and not known of a Sabbath day.

Christians in Bonthe ought to hide their faces for shame. Is this letting their light so shine as to give light to all that are in the house? Was it not Christ's last command, Go ye into all the world and preach the Gospel to every creature? Then why neglect these. A purroh bush is near to the town, and I was told that for three years the purroh was in session. They put purroh on the fish in the sea, so that no Daymah people could catch them; purroh was put on the oysters, so that no person could gather them. After one year, however, some person tore away the purroh sign and the people began fishing again, the purroh on the oysters was also destroyed later. Persons are not allowed to go near the purroh bush, with shoes or hat on, and those having relations in the purroh must either feed them or be plundered of all they possess. Indeed no property is safe near them. A Sierra Leone woman's house was broken into and entered by the devil, her clothing, trade goods, and other property was taken away; no fruits or vegetables are safe, and what is worse there is no chance of redress as they are the law makers of the country.

Soomahlin, of Ghendamah, died a convert to Christianity, trusting in Jesus. Ghendamah is one of our preaching appointments on the Shaingay district. Bishop Kephart, as well as myself, visited him in his last illness. He was put in a coffin and taken over to Daymah, his native town, for interment. The people objected to his being buried in a coffin, as such a mode of burial was untold in Daymah. After much argument they allowed the man to be buried. Some time elapsed and a man of the town reported that he had seen Soomahlin coming to the town in the night, with the coffin on his back, to warm fire. I never knew a more degraded and superstitious people. We have not the money to support a preacher and to open a school at Daymah, but in the name of the God whom we seek, we shall make the beginning, trusting that He will stir the hearts of the Christians of Bonthe, Sierra Leone, England, and America, to send in their mites to help on the work. Five pounds per month ought to be spent on the Station, then a school could be started there and the children supplied with books and clothes, and the Gospel preached in 15 or 20 villages. Oh that God may stir up the Christians to do their duty.

I spent two days at Daymah. Many of the natives came to see me to whom I always had something to say through Miss Greywood who interpreted for me, and I have never on any occasion found them inattentive. In leaving I was presented with some fowls and fish.

I cannot close my account of my visit to Daymah without mentioning that to the credit of the traders on the island no intoxicants or spirituous liquors are sold, and the people are all the better without that slow poison.

Bonthe, Sherbro,
30th June, 1891.

A Jew on Christianity.

Mr. A. Goldenburg, a missionary of the Loudon Society for promoting Christianity among the Jews, writes: One Sunday I went to Victoria Park to speak as I often do. I saw a great crowd of Jews and Gentiles listening to an infidel speaker who endeavored to prove that Christianity is a failure. There were also present a few proselytes. An opportunity was given me by the speaker to express my views on the subject, which I did to the apparent satisfaction of the Christian part of the audience. When the lecturer got up to reply to my remarks, he became very excited and personal, spoke against the bishops, and clergy, etc.

Then a venerable and noble-looking Jew came forward, and, taking off his hat, said humbly in very broken English, "I am only a Jew."

"I know you are a Jew—your face tells me so!" cried the lecturer, angry at the interruption from an unexpected quarter.

"I mean to say that I am not a Christian," exclaimed the Jew, "and yet I say that the bishops and pastors are good and holy men; when they get money they give it to the poor; but infidels, like you, put it in your own pockets. I believe that if all the Christians were to follow Christ's teachings there would be no socialism. Take this advice from a Jew who is not baptised: listen to Christ alone and you will all feel happy!"

The words of this Jew produced a deep impression upon the audience—both Jew and Gentile. The Lord has many a witness, even among such as are apparently not nominally Christians.

I afterwards had a discussion with this Jew. He is well off, and has a large family all of whom share his views regarding Christ, "If I die, I die in Christ, and I am trying also to live in Christ." There are a great many of my Jewish acquaintances who, like me, believe him to be our Messiah.—Hebrew Christian.

WANTED.

A BOOK-KEEPER for New Manchester Warehouse, Bonthe. One who had been in service and has some knowledge of business preferred. None need apply without Testimonial to

THOMPSON BROTHERS.

Bonthe, Sherbro,
14th July, 1891.

THE EARLY DAWN.

BONTHE, JULY 30, 1891.

CANNIBALISM.

THIS is the thrilling story which comes from the Imperch country almost daily to Bonthe, and many gentlemen having their business to attend to, are frequently and unexpectedly pressed in the name of their Sovereign to attend an inquest to be holden over the semi-decayed portion of some human body which had been carried into the Government Compound, and as loyal subjects, bow obedience.

The cry is becoming alarming to those who do business in that part of Her Majesty's dominions, the more so as they seem to see no attempt made by Government to avert the vile practice.

These traders, it is true, who are carrying on, to all intents and purposes, a legitimate trade with the people of the Imperch country, may think that they should be protected from these cannibals by the Government, inasmuch as they cannot, as British subjects, and in the face of British law, act for themselves, especially since they are located at no great distance from Bonthe, where all grievances and wrongs, real or imaginary, are to be taken for investigation and adjudication. But the fact remains the same that these traders are exposed to imminent danger when in the pursuit of their lawful avocation by these ruthless cannibals, who they sometimes find very difficult to arrest in their bloody career, but not that they are beyond apprehension.

On the other hand, the Government holds out every inducement for the punishment of evil doers; but who will come forward and make bare the charge and stand by it, since these miscreants do not dwell in the spaces of the Hill? Rumour is a pipe blown by surmises, and unless Government get a firm clue they can never make a sure grasp.

The practice of cannibalism is a monstrosity, and would sound almost like a fable to people far removed from the colony, who have heard so much of Sierra Leone with its boasted Christianity and civilization; yet it is nevertheless a fact that cannibalism does exist in the Imperch country, as has been testified frequently, so late even as the 20th ultimo in a letter to our contemporary the "Weekly News."

The main question is "What is to be done?" Is this continual clamour about cannibalism to die unnoticed, or are the traders to defend themselves against these savages? Time must tally for at present there seems no sensible means to follow whereby the inhuman horde of cannibals in the Imperch may be destroyed.

Send peace-officers there to watch and guard the welfare and peace of Britsh subjects would be an excellent departure—peace-officers they deserve to be called—for reluctantly we presume that some of the class of men composing the Frontier Police, if sent on a mission of peace to Imperch or any other country would blunderingly overreach their orders, and so "do duty" as to put the locality into confusion and uproar before anything can be heard of it at Bonthe.

We sincerely deplore the existence of a practice so inhuman, and hope at no distant day to hear of the complete extirpation of cannibalism from Imperchland, which has but recently been annexed to Sherbroland by Sir James Hay, K.C.M.G.

MISSIONARIES
WHERE TO PUT THEM AND HOW TO TREAT THEM.

THIS subject has suggested itself to me as very difficult of solution, especially by those who have the management of it; but I who am not a missionary may be allowed a voice in this matter, and say that their very employment would settle the question. Christian Missionaries are the envoys extraordinary of the Great King, and it would be an insult to the Master to show any disrespect to His servant. The Missionary is the mouth-piece on earth of the King of Heaven; he is chosen by Him to be near, and to communicate his wishes to mortals in this lower world, and, who I ask will say that this is not a high and honorable position beyond description. In times long ago, and even at the present day, the position of a missionary is no less of importance than that of a Gladstone, or a Bismarck, or any of the great European political leaders, in fine the missionary is not to be compromised for any other calling whether lucrative, honorable, or dignified.

Too much respect can never be given to a missionary, for in honouring him, the Great Master is also honored. It is true the Master himself was despised and rejected of men, but that is no licence to treat His servants as He was treated. By paying honor to His servants of today, the world, as it were, is making atonement for the cruel wrongs the master suffered. Money spent to make missionaries comfortable can never be considered waste, when comparison is made with the privations and dangers they have to encounter in their "labor of love," in carrying the Gospel to heathen lands.

I had a near relative once who spent many years in the Missionary field, in fact he left home with its associations of happiness, to labor in a foreign land—but thank God he is now with his master and has received the "well done, good and faithful servant"—and laboured for many years, but I know what he suffered and I know what his family are suffering today from neglect to treat missionaries as they ought to be treated. These servants of God have trials and heartaches that the world knows nothing about; therefore treat them tenderly, politely, and respectfully.

C.

CORRESPONDENCE.

☞ We shall not be responsible for the opinions of our Correspondents.

Correspondents will please write on one side of paper only.

The Editor Early Dawn.

SIR.—The article which appeared in the last issue of the "Early Dawn" respecting recent irregularities in the Post Office has aroused those who have been aggrieved about the matter to speak out their minds freely.

There has been a universal indignation against the Post Office on account of the indifferent manner the public have been treated of late by the Establishment. Several persons have been known to go to the Post Office during Office hours on business and to return as they had gone thither, the Office not being opened. The Postmaster they were told, being sent elsewhere to carry out other duties. Such an intolerable state of things was never known to exist in Sherbro before,—to close one of the Establishments of the Colonial Government against the public during its business hours is a matter that ought not to be treated lightly. I am almost sure that it could not be said that the permission of the authorities had been obtained to place the public under such serious inconvenience. The Post Office in Freetown could not attempt such a thing and it is difficult to understand why it has been done here. It appears very probable that a degree of consideration or respect had ever been entertained for the Sherbro public, otherwise they could never have been treated in such an ugly manner.

It is a well known fact that for the proper carrying out of public business in Government Establishments, Temporary or extra Clerks have always been engaged when the permanent staff is inadequate. This practice prevails in Sierra Leone and in the Sherbro Customs to a large extent.

If extra work is to be done in connection with any of the Departments it should be the duty of the proper authorities to call into requisition the services of extra hands instead of removing from his place an important member of the small staff here and as a consequence, the public become the sufferers. I trust that matters would speedily mend so as to avoid a recurrence of such an undesirable incident. I shall be very thankful Mr. Editor, if you will allow the above to see the light of the public through the medium of your Journal.—Yours truly,

TELEGRAPH.

Bonthe
20th July 1891

The Editor Early Dawn.

SIR,—The last issue of the "Early Dawn" was put into my hands the very day it was due, and at an early hour too, I think it was about 8 a.m. I congratulate you for your punctuality and self-denial in being able to get the paper out on time. If any one else's offence at it, I should be very sorry indeed. I am writing it only with the hope that it may catch the eyes of our rising and promising youths, and so hinder them from ever getting with the scrape so deadly in its effects, and let it be proven at the last great day before the Judge of all the Earth that they too minded and paused in carrying on this most disgraceful warfare against their own fellow's children, aye it will be clearly shown that "You helped to slay many souls."—Yours,

J. GOMER.

July 22nd, 1891

The Editor Early Dawn.

SIR,—Since my return to this station I have been endeavoring to do my very best. The means of Grace have been regularly attended, and the attendance at public worship every Sabbath is fifty upwards.

The people have contributed to erect a place of worship and have also given their labor, although promise means is the great embarrassment of the church. Yet I trust that a door may be opened to aid the poor people of this place, who have given their scanty mea s and labor to erect a place of worship. And we trust that our friend will lend a helping hand to this good and noble cause.—I am, Sir

W. S. MACAULAY.

N'Cleimaray Station.
22nd July 1891.

DIVINE SERVICE ON BOARD S.S. "FORMOSO."

On Sunday the 5th inst, we were agreeably surprised by an unexpected notice from the Rev S. Hughes, during the morning Service, to the effect that Captain Williams of the s.s. Formoso (then in harbour) had asked for a service to be conducted on board the steamer at 4 p.m. and that all were invited to attend. Accordingly, not a few availed themselves of the opportunity though it would seem that they were actuated by various motives—curiosity, novelty, and perhaps religious impression. At the hour appointed officers, women, and men were to be seen wending their way to the Government pier head where the Captain placed his boats and crew at their disposal for safe conveyance to and from the ship.

Pastor Hughes was one of the first to go on board. Dr. Jarrett who was also present entertained the congregation with selections of Christian volunteer, whilst the boats were plying the waters to and fro carrying more visitors. The service was a full and very impressive one. The Catechist read the lesson [illegible] west through the prayers and [illegible] The hymns selected were [illegible] by the crew who seemed [illegible] red the service immensely. [illegible] was over the Captain invited those present to a repast [illegible] been specially prepared for [illegible] This certainly is a move in the right direction; and we trust that it will be followed by others. This is the first and last of the kind, but that similar services on board other steamers will be held whenever they happen to be here on a Sunday.—Communicated.

S. S. FOUTAH.

Some of the passengers of the Foutah complain much against the rough treatment they experienced from the Captain and crew during the voyage from Freetown to Sherbro—Wednesday 15th to Friday, 18th instant—which lasted nearly three days during rainy weather. Though steerage passengers, as there is scarcely any other passenger accommodation on board that iron lugger, no awning was spread to render them the least shelter from the rain and coarse epithets used to them whenever they tried to screen themselves somewhere from the rain, which was pouring in torrents. We hope the complaint is not true, as we believe every consideration is made for the comfort of passengers between here and Freetown by the owners of the steamers.

GROUND RENT.

Another Notice has been put out by the Agent of the French Company, informing those persons who are unable to quit their lands on the 31st instant that they are required to pay Five Shillings in advance to Ground Rent. Although the notice of removal was rather short, yet we think it is but fair that some compensation should be made for the occupation of lands. The charge of five shillings in advance is, we think, rather high, since there is no precedent in Bonthe where so much has ever been asked, and it is a fact that the highest price charged for ground rent about Yhandaboo is 6d. per month. We hope the accommodating agent of the French Company may see his way to remove that burden from the people. Let not all the occupants suffer for one man's offence.

FOR THE EARLY DAWN.

A propos—I noticed in your issue of the 30th June that the members of the Y. M. C. A. had a Debate in the Mendi Mission School Room and the Subject was "Is Spirituous Liquor necessary to the trade of the West Coast of Africa?"

Although none had access to that meeting but the members, and the argument adduced by each was not published in order that the public might be able to judge of its merits or demerits yet I am glad to find that those who are in favor of the importation of Spirituous Liquor to the West Coast of Africa were totally defeated by two able champions."

You will kindly permit me to advance a few points in support of those honorable gentlemen who have already won the victory and trust they will interest your readers, and if the points I shall adduce are not tangible enough, I shall feel glad if any one will show where in I fail through the medium of your esteemed journal.

Messrs Thompson Brothers who have recently established at Bonthe a an extensive and profitable trade without the sale of Rum, Gin and other spirits as they have found out from their long experience with the natives that the sole issue of it's use is sensuality, and sin, ending in that frightful condition of moral slavery, confirmed drunkenness, when the rational will is abolished—a condition which forever debars its victims from reaching

> "That tranquil height
> Where clation purifies the sight,
> And that unfolds to the humble eyes
> The bliss and beauty of his ways."

I may also mention Messrs Yates and Porterfield of America who are doing extensive business in Freetown without Rum or Gin etc.

As a direct proof that Spirits are not necessary for the West Coast of Africa, let me refer your reader to the protest made at Rembec, one of your Mission Station, by the Chief and Headmen, against the importation or sale of Spirits in that region as it is a "Destructive article of Trade," and that protest has had its desired effect.

Further I would refer your readers to an article which appeared in the "African Times" of the 1st. May 1888 (only 3 years ago) as follows—

"A native King in West Africa wrote, begging that the Rum traffic might be stopped, if not, his people would have to abandon their towns and go into the desert to Avoid the White Man's Rum."

Again the Rev J. L. Wilson in his work on Western Africa as far back as 1854. says.

"The Banaka people in the Gaboon Coast in the West Coast of Africa are sufferers from European intercourse; through introduction of Spirits into their country."

If you go about the Sherbro rivers say from Gombia or to the interior of that vast land, you will find a lot of Foutahs and others who have been doing large trade for many years with the natives without the sale of Rum or Gin. These people are followers of Mahomet who in his Koran 5. chapter 7 verse, writes in words almost parallel with the injunction of the Apostle, a law which has done good for the millions of the Eastern population, Tartars, Turks, Persians, Hindoos, Arabs, Egyptians, and Moors, than any other institution which was ever set up amongst them.

However much I may depreciate the writings of Mahomet yet in justice I must admit that the above teachings in every respect prove the injurious effect that alcohol has on the people of Western Africa when it is imported and sold to them as an article of trade. I have not attempted in this to point out the evils resulting from the use of Spirits in its entirely but that it is not necessary to the trade of Western Africa.

Yours Mr Editor,

BIDWELL COKER.

Bonthe July 19th 1891.

GENERAL NEWS.

Leopards seem to be prowling about in the Bargroo river, for since our last issue in which we mentioned that one was killed at Avory Station, we have heard of the destruction of three sheep, the property of Mr Rowe Lewis, a trader in the said river, by leopards.

The s.s Foutah, which arrived on the 17th instant, left the following day for Freetown, Messrs Hogan, of Bendoo, Quin and Robert Johnson, of York Island, Mrs Williams and daughter, of Victoria, Messrs E. C. Johnston, Redell, Pratt, and Coker were passengers.

The mail service between Freetown and Sherbro has been very regular of late, and we presume it is owing to the wreck of the Soen; but the contract should be performed notwithstanding the accident in navigation, for the inconvenience the general public suffer from the interruption is enormous.

Since we complained of the bad condition of that part of Victoria Road, between Yhandaboo corner and that leading to the Mendi Mission Chapel, we were very pleased to see notice taken of our humble suggestions; and we had the pleasure of witnessing the Acting Civil Commandant go the round of inspection on the 27th instant begining with the bridge at the end of King Street, and retseeing sent over all the grounds which are undergoing repairs right on to Yhandaboo. This is as it should be, for well done will be approved, and otherwise condemned.

A French Schooner Consigned to the French Company, anchored off Hompbahe in the morning of the 22nd instant.

SELECTIONS.

The Tide will Turn.

You are hindered, slandered, troubled, misrepresented and lied about. Bad men make false statements, and good men believe them; and you find yourself condemned unheard, and cast out and scorned. And if you defend yourself you will be counted quarrelsome, and if you expose the hypocrisy of your assailants, they will put on the garb of injured innocence, and claim to be persecuted for righteousness' sake, and you will find your last state worse than the first.

What can you do? Rest in the Lord. Do not struggle like a horse in a snow drift, till you break every thing in pieces. Do not try to compete with Satan or his children in abuse or in railing accusations—Michael the arch-angel knew better than to do that. Wait on the Lord. Let liars lie. Let slanderers slander. Let men have plenty of rope, and they are quite likely to hang themselves. The men who wrong you to-day will wrong some one else to-morrow, and some time their evil deeds will come to light. The men who wrongly accuse you now, will be accused themselves, by and by, and will have plenty to do defending themselves, without troubling or inciting you. The men who have believed lies, and acted upon them, will by and by, find that their turn has come, and the venomous tongue which has stung others will turn and sting them, and compel them to speak in their own defense.

Do not fret. The tide will turn. Men will find out who lies and who tells the truth. Men will learn who is selfish and who is disinterested. And men who have climbed up by pulling others down, and who have sought to build their own houses by tearing down the houses of others, will see their hopes and plans end in ruin and in chaos, while dwellings of the faithful will stand secure upon a rock.

The tide will turn: if not now, by and by; if not here, hereafter; if not in time, then in eternity; and we shall see that all things have been working for good for those who love the Lord, and who are called according to his purpose.

Men who are right can afford to wait. Men who are to live forever need be in no hurry. Men who have God for their friend need not fear what man can do unto them. Wait on the Lord. Keep his way. Trust in him at all times. He will never leave nor forsake you, and by and by the tide will turn, and right will flourish, and wrong will fail and die. —The Christian.

LABOR.—It is to labor, and to labor only, that man owes everything possessed of unchangeable value. Labor is the talisman that has raised him from the condition of the savage that has changed the desert and the forest into cultivated fields; that has covered the earth with cities, and oceans with ships; that has given us plenty, comfort, and elegance, instead of want, misery, barbarism.

Singing.

Singing forms an important part of religious worship. We are commanded to "sing psalms and hymns and spiritual song" making melody in our hearts unto the Lord. We are likewise commanded to sing with the "spirit and understanding which must mean that we are to sing as we would perform any other part of divine worship—in spirit, with a sense of reverence and of dependence, as much as when we pray or speak in Christ's name, and with an understanding of the import of what we sing, plainly, and clearly, so as also to be understood by others. This would condemn, in religious worship, operatic and flippant singing, where no one can divine what is sung, as is not unfrequently heard in popular religious congregations where few, if any, of the audience can tell a sentence that is uttered in an entire song. Such singing may be acceptable to very fine human ears; but it can not be acceptable to God, or form a part of approved religious worship. Teere is great power in song to impress the heart and leave rich and indelible lessons when the words sung are intelligent and truthful, and when the voice is modulated by the influence of the divine Spirit. Too little careful attention is given to this part of divine worship in our Sunday schools, social meetings and church gatherings.

In whatsoever house you enter, remain master of your eyes and your tongue.

Fred and Joe.

Fred and Joe are boys of the same age. Both have their way to make in the world. This is the way Joe does: When work is before him he waits as long as he can—he hates so to touch it. Then he does not half do it. He is almost sure to stop before it is done. He does not care if fault is found. He says "I can't help it," or, "I don't care."

Fred's way is not the same. He goes straight to his work, and does it as soon as he can, and as well as he can. He never slights work for play, though he loves play as well as Joe does. If he does not know how to do a piece of work well he asks some one who does know; and then he takes care to remember. He says, "I never want to be ashamed of my work."

Which boy, do you think, will make a man to be trusted?

A French paper contains the following advertisements: "A governess—with diploma—would like to accompany a musical lady to the country and on the piano." Here is another: "Wanted—A French nurse who loves children of three, five, and eight." And here is the queerest: "Wanted—A professor to come twice a week to the house of a noble family in order to reform the pronunciation of a parrot."

An unfortunate man had obtained access to rich Baron Rapineau. He depicted his misfortunes, his misery, in so moving a manner that the baron, with tears in his eyes and his voice choked with sobs, calls to his servant, "Jean, put this poor fellow out into the street! He is breaking my heart!"—Paris Figaro.

IT is not charity to feed and clothe a lazy man who can work, and ought to work, but who is too lazy to work. This was Paul's doctrine when he delared that if any one would not work, neither should he at.

Noble Victims.

Archdeacon Farrar says:—"At the utterance of one of our college chapels, lies a nameless grave, that covers the mortal remains of one of its most promising fellows—ruined through drink. I received not very long ago a letter from an old school-fellow, clergyman, who, after long and arduous labor, was in want of clothes, and almost food. I enquired the cause; it was drink. A few weeks ago a wretched clergyman came to me in deplorable misery, who had dragged down his family with him into ruin. What had ruined him? Drink! When I was at Cambridge one of the most promising scholars was a youth who, years ago, died in a hospital, penniless, of delirium tremens, through drink.

When I was at King's College, I used to sit next to a handsome youth, who grew up to be a brilliant writer; he died in the prime of life, a victim of drink. I once knew an eloquent philanthopist who was a very miserable man. The world never knew the curse which was on him; but his friends knew it was a drink. And why is it that these tragedies are daily happening? It is through the fatal fascination, the seductive sorcery of drink, against which Scripture so often warns. It is because drink is one of the surest of "the devil's ways to man; and of man's ways to the devil."

SUNSHINE—People like plants grow pale and puny if the sun is shut out. Good health is the sunshine of the body, and a cheery disposition is the sunshine of the soul We build our houses with spacious doors and wide windows, but we shut out the delicious air by closing the doors, and exclude the cheering light and glorious sunshine by inner shutters and two or three layers of curtains.

NOTICE.

The Manager of this Journal wishes to inform the public of Bonthe and elsewhere that the columns of this paper are open to correspondents, and that all letters sent for publication will receive his attention, provided they are accompanied by the names of the writer, not necessarily for publication, but as a guarantee of good faith. Rejected manuscripts will not be returned. He however reserves the right of choosing such of them as he deems interesting. All work with which he is favored shall be done in such a manner as he hopes will give satisfaction and secure patronage always.

Printed at the Office of the Early Dawn, Bonthe, Sherbro. July 30th 1891.

THE EARLY DAWN.

"The Morning Light Is Breaking. The Darkness Disappears"

VOL. VIII. BONTHE, SHERBRO, WEST AFRICA, AUGUST 15, 1891. No. 14.

The 'Early Dawn'

Published Semi Monthly at Bonthe Sherbro. Under the Auspices of the Board of Missions of the United Brethern In Christ

REV. E. C BICKERSTETH, Editor and Publisher. Bonthe, Sherbro, West Africa.

AGENTS

United States—Revs. H. F. Booth and Wm. Mellen, Dayton Rev. Wm J. Davis, Brull, Ohio Rev. D. K. Flickinger, Willoughby, Ohio J. M. Sconer, Mosheim, Pa., Rev. G. W. Arnold Eldorado, Ohio.

West Africa—J. A. Richards, River Gambia. Rev. J. E. Frederick, and Mr. E. A. Lewis Freetown, Sierra Leone. Rev. James Henry Marshall, Liberia. Mr. Moses S. Boyle Liberia.

TERMS

One Year by mail,	£0 6 0
Delivered in Bonthe,	0 5 0
Half yearly by mail,	0 3 0
Ditto, delivered in Bonthe,	0 2 6

Delusions in Religion.

On no subject is man more easily deceived than religion. There is nothing on which it is so important to be right as on religion. He that will honestly inquire the way, need make no mistake on this subject. Man is strongly drawn by inherent inclination to worship, but he has not the intelligence to know what to worship. "Ye worship ye know not what," is as true of men today as it was of the Samaritans in Christ's time on earth. Men want to worship but they do not know on what object to direct their worship. There is disposition, but no light. Man is walking in darkness, and knows not which direction to go. Whatever system comes to challenge his attention, and claim his devotion first, he grasps, whether true or false. Even when he rejects the true when it comes, it is because he is prepossessed with the false. Some worship at the shrine of pleasure. They are "lovers of pleasure more than lovers of God," or they worship at the shrine of ambition, maammon, socialism, or pride. Prosperity may preclude the acceptance of a worship, but whatever is most adored in the secret soul, is the deity worshiped. He that loves gain most of all things, worships mammon; he that has a supreme desire to please men, worships human creatures; he that loves himself more than God, worships himself. But let it be understood that he that loves God more than himself, or the good opinion of men, or any earthly gain, office or preferment, is a true worshiper of God. False systems have their followers. Mormonism comes and it does not fail to find its devotees. Spiritualism has obtained hearers and believers. Mohammedanism has millions of followers. Buddhism has more devotees than any other system on the globe. Confucianism of China has many who profess it. Catholicism, a mixture of truth and error, Christianity and Paganism, finds followers in every land. Judaism, once the true system, remains, as the shell when the bird has flown. Christianity is the only true system of religion. But how falsely it is practiced by many. The doctrines to be believed, develope a good life, enlighten the intellect, develop and secure the highest good of the body, cleanse, cultivate and secure the eternal welfare of the spirit. For eighteen centuries it has been on trial, and it is the only success. It has its scaffolding consists in all those helps in the erection of the building while it is being erected, such as ordinances, tongues, prophecy, gifts of various kinds. The ultimate is love. To bring man back to a life of perfect love to God and man is the final of true religion.

The Seven Bibles.

The seven Bibles of the world are the Koran of the Mohammedans, the Tri Pitikes of the Buddhists, the Five Kings of the Chinese, the Three Vedas of the Hindus, the Zendavesta of the Persians, the Edda of the Scandinavians, and the Scriptures of the Christians.

The Koran is the most recent of all, dating from about the seventh century after Christ. It is a compound of quotations from the Old and New Testaments and from the Talmud.

The Tri Pitikes contain sublime morals and pure aspirations. Their author lived and died in the sixth century before Christ.

The sacred writings of the Chinese are called the Five Kings, the word "kings" meaning web of cloth. From this it is presumed they were originally written on five rolls of cloth. They contain wise sayings from the sages on the duties of life, but they can not be traced far her back than the eleventh century before our era.

The Vedas are the most ancient books in the language of the Hindus; but they do not, according to the late commentators, antedate the twelth century before the Christian era.

The Zendavesta of the Persians, next to our Bible, is reckoned among the greatest and most learned of the sacred writings. Zoroaster, whose sayings it contains, lived and worked in the twelfth century before Christ.

Moses lived and wrote the Pentateuch 1,300 years before the birth of Christ; therefore that portion of our Bible is at least three hundred years older than the most ancient of other sacred writings.

The Eddas, a semi sacred work of the Scandinavians, was given to the world in the fourteenth century.—Selected.

Awake.

What a difference there is between a man asleep and a man awake. He is the same man in body, soul and spirit. But the sleeping man is without helpless, and unobservant. He neither hears, sees nor feels. He fears no danger. He guards against no calamity, he observes approaching foe. If disturbed by fears, they are fears of imaginary dangers, while real dangers produce no impression on his mind. He sees nothing, knows nothing, does nothing. He is asleep. That same man awakened from sleep stands erect, and is vigilant, alert, active, enterprising, brave, and heroic, fitted to meet contingencies, overcome obstacles, resist enemies, and win victories.

There is a time to sleep, but he who sleeps when the foe is at hand puts himself in his enemy's power. He who sleeps when danger is near courts disaster and invites defeat. He who sleeps when he should wake and work, receives the curse that comes upon the slothful, and misses the blessings which are the portion of them who are diligent.

God calls to man to awake. His voice across the slumberer like a resurrection trump. "Awake, thou that sleepest, and arise from the dead, and Christ shall give thee light." "Rise up ye careless women that are at ease." "Rise up ye careless women that are at ease." "Woe to them that are at ease in Zion, that lie upon beds of ivory and drink wine in bowls."

God's word to man is a rousing word a word which stirs the most restless sleeper, which wakes the poor sleeper to awake from his slumbers, and bids the careless arouse themselves to vigilance, to action, to [illegible] and [illegible] the warning [illegible] I hear a bondage, between a vicious and [illegible] between [illegible] and degradation, between success and disaster, is simply the difference between being awake and asleep.

O Christian man, awake. Why linger any more in the lap of sloth? Why linger while the hours which God has given you for [illegible] success-ful [illegible] Why sleep and loiter and linger while eternal realities are pressing, and while the rush and roll of grand events calls us to new exertions, and to service which shall be grand, heroic, and victorious?

The End Thereof.

The pleasures of sin are but for a season. Every wrong course has a beginning. A man loves the wine cup; but he came to be drunk all the time, and then he is sorry for them comes the headache and the heartache. Lust works and sin lives for the present, but there is a future for them as well as for others. A darkest comes sorrow, shame and pain. The wine that stirred to its pulses and woke their passions at the last biteth like a serpent and stingeth like an adder. Those who turn from evil in its beginnings avoid the trouble which is sure to come at the end. Those who do right at the beginning and follow after righteousness, and peace and charity, all the early while others who spend their days in sinful pleasure only, shall have their portion at last to be thrown in sorrow.

THE MOTHER.

How pleasant is the household dear,
With all its pleasures sweet,
How lovely is the old fireside,
Where all the children meet.

But take from out the lovely spot,
Our dearest friend, the mother,
And who can fill the place of her?
No other, oh no other

And when around the table meet,
To dine without our mother,
O who is missed like mother dear?
No other, oh no other.

O when around the old hearthstone?
We kneel with sister, brother,
Whose words so sweet as mother's dear?
No other, oh no other.

None can cheer the heavy heart,
Like a kind old mother,
No words like hers so good and kind,
No other, oh no other.

MARRIED.—On the 17th ultimo amidst great rejoicings, Miss Peace Thorpe, eldest daughter of the Hon. S. J. Forde, J.P. to Robert Hoare Syrett, Esquire, Clerk to the Governor and Clerk of the Legislative Council and Deputy Coroner and Sheriff of the colony of the Gambia in the church of St. Mary by the Rev. N. S. Davies, B.A. (Dunelin)

On Thursday the 23rd July, Mr David Johnson, a Premier palmerah, to Miss Fanny Evangeline Cooper, at Kooseaung chapel, by the Rev. J. B. Morrison, Pastor of that district.

DIED.—At the residence of his father at Yundifunda Town, Rokupr River, Mr. Augustus Macaulay, son of the Revd. N. Macaulay. Aged 21 years.

THE EARLY DAWN.

BONTHE, AUGUST 15, 1891.

DAYMAH.

We published in our two last issues an interesting account of this place by the Rev. Joseph Gomer, and since then some Christians say that the inhabitants are too degraded and steeped in heathen practices, and that it would be a waste of time and money to send a missionary to the poor heathens of that country who are crying out so loud for the Gospel. Strange Christianity that! A new version surely! That the people are degraded we do not deny, and that seems to be the very good reason why a teacher ought to be sent them; but they are so wretchedly poor and have nothing with which to pay a teacher, as it is impossible to collect ten shillings per month from them, and what little they have goes for drink and tobacco. We admit that to be a fact also, but who, we ask, sells them the drink and tobacco, "Is it not those who profess Christianity?" It was the professing Christians who sent slave-hunters among them to burn their villages and carry off their fathers, mothers and children, and chased them into the mangrove swamps and grassfields until they became more like wild beasts and thus made savages of them.

Who we ask is directly responsible for their b it not the Christians? If they had done their duty in the past, and and were doing it now it could not be said today that the people of Daymah were in a degraded state. This is merely heaping insult upon injury. It is like knocking down a man and then kicking him for falling. If in war the wounded fall into the hands of the enemy they are generally properly cared for; but in this Christian warfare we are told that the wounded ones are too degraded. Is not this world a great battle-field and these wounded ones need quick and close attention, and why should we stop to ask about pay when thousands of souls of untold value are at stake? These Daymah people are within a few hours travel of Bonthe, and yet some Christians say they are too degraded and have no money, and all the produce they get they bring to Bonthe and exchange for that which degrades them.

Who will send to the Editor of this paper from 2/6 to £10 to carry the Gospel to those unfortunate people? We have sent them a preacher and a teacher and Christians must support him. This Society has already more work than it can carry on, therefore we beg of you in the Redeemer's name to send us special contributions for the Daymah work.

ADMINISTRATOR CROOKS.

BONTHE, the enterprising and commercial part of Sherbro, unlike the other places surrounding it, for it is the seat of Government, had the pleasure of a visit from His Excellency the Administrator of the Colony of Sierra Leone on Friday the 7th instant, and although the "Countess of Derby," the vessel in which His Excellency came, reached the harbour about 2 o'clock some of the inhabitants who had not the opportunity of beholding the Governor, were not privileged of gratifying their wish until Saturday, when His Excellency landed for the paid a visit to Bonthon on the day he arrived.

We have heard many nice expressions about the Governor, and hope his visit to Bonthe may be productive of some good, as the needs of this growing town appear from many points, among which are street lights, increase of Police Force, and some other points which we may touch upon in a future issue.

CORRESPONDENCE.

☞ We shall not be responsible for the opinions of our correspondents. Correspondents will please write on one side of paper only.

METHODISM AT SHERBRO.

The Editor Early Dawn.

Dear Mr. Editor,

If nothing more than purpose in the power
Thy purpose firm is equal to the deed
Who does the best his circumstance allows
Does well, acts nobly, angel could no more.

One distinguished countryman el here few months ago as superintendent in charge of the Methodist Mission, is daily earning enviable reputation in consequence of his strict and administrative ability.

The continuous train of intellectual thought; the candour or openness which has been the peculiar characteristic of his discourses in the pulpit of Lime street chapel, on every Lord's day together with the acute sense of judgment and discrimination which he has oftentimes displayed both in regard to his dealing with individual members of society, as well as in the management of affairs affecting generally the interest of his church; all combine to make him deserving of the highest applause and commendation.

At present he is endeavouring by almost supreme effort to afford an almost supreme effort to afford his members sufficient and comfortable accommodation for Divine Worship, and has already so far succeeded in rethatching the roof of the chapel, thereby sheltering his flock from the vexatious and harassing rain drops which had prior to his arrival here, caused the people considerable unrest and anxiety during Divine service.

It would appear from his discourse on Sunday 26th ultimo based solely on the most alarming prophecy against Ely's house (Vide I. Sam. iii 17) "What is the thing that the Lord hath said unto thee, I pray thee hide it not from me.") Having by all legitimate means secured the attention, comfort, and convenience of his members during divine service, he has now declared an open war against vice and it cannot be committed evil, regardless of consequence.

On this occasion the comfortable little chapel was crowded to overflowing and those who had no seat within contented themselves in leaning on the casements of the chapel windows.

The ventilation which the preacher gave to the subject was of the most imposing nature; they came like bullets. Where I sat, Mr. Editor, with my blood violently boiling in my veins as it uninterruptedly ran through my whole system, my listless eyes beheld the preacher spellbound as the spirit gave him utterance.

The whole discourse which lasted full 25 minutes, was an unmasked declaration against the competency and acceptance of individuals to serve as members of society where their lives do not agree with their Christian profession; he particularly addressed himself to parents and guardians, warning them of their awful responsibility and condemning as un-Christianlike and ungodly the pernicious system of encouraging vice under the roof of their houses.

I consider that a discourse of such a nature, dressed as it was in the most acceptable language should serve as an incentive to awaken the sense of their outward profession of individuals owning the name of christians but whose consciences are dead to the most odious and sin

It cannot be denied that in these matter-of-fact unromantic days the greatest hypocrite and adulterer are generally foremost and most sumptuous in all matters affecting the interest of religion; and that it is becoming harder and much more difficult to distinguish any Christian gathering professing from unprofessing christians. At present within the pail of the church of every Christian denomination in this community there are many fat trees with fair branches that could yield no fruits. Nothing but leaves! Nothing but fair!! Nothing but hypocrisy!!!

But despite this rather lamentable state of things let us however venture to hope that ere long the combined effort of the agents of the other denominations here with result in the removal of that vain and empty profession so much observed and that there will be more of genuiness and solid reality in the profession we make.

I cannot conclude without expressing my congratulation to the conference of the Methodist Mission at Sierra Leone upon the selection they have made in the appointment of such a strictly religious and energetic agent to superintend the Mission affairs at Sherbro. We have every reason to believe that like the Rev. Charles Marke, the Rev. Granville Sutton, and many others of the methodist body in the colony of such undaunted courage, he will endeavor to do his master's work with due credit to himself and to the society he belongs rebuking sin fearlessly and doing his utmost to push the extension of the Redeemer's kingdom.—Yours very truly,

WATCHMAN.

Bonthe,
4th August, 1891.

PUBLIC INCONVENIENCE.

The Editor Early Dawn.

Sir,—You will kindly oblige me a space in your next issue for the publication of this article, which I trust will claim the immediate attention of the Acting Civil Commandant and will receive the public from those inconveniences which I shall now point out.

In the first place I would call your attention to the early closing of the mails for Freetown and the Sulyman District. A few weeks ago the contract steamer Footah arrived from Freetown at 5 p.m. and Letters were distributed at 7 p.m. Notices were posted at 6.30 a.m. the next day that the mails would be closed at 10 a.m.

The steamer remained in the harbour till about 12 a.m. when she left for York Island and returned to Bonthe at 4 p.m. to receive the mails for Freetown. By the early closing of the mails the public (especially those out of Bonthe) are placed into a serious inconvenience as the hour for closing mails should be 24 hours after arrival.

The instance I have given is only one out of many that have occured.

Next,—The irregularity of the hours in the Government offices have also placed the public into serious inconvenience for there are times when one has occasion to transact business either at the Customs, Treasury, or at the Court House. Although one leaves his place of business at the proper time yet in most cases he gets at the office either too late or too early as the Government does not keep the regular time, and that one must either wait or return as the case may be, which means loss of time and money.

I may here mention that some time ago Mr. Bennett the Acting Commandant sent out a Circular that every one was to regulate their by the "Countess of Derby" which was then in the harbour.

Accordingly at 12 o'clock noon I fired a signal and every one regulated time accordingly, but immediately after the Police time varied from that of the Customs and Treasury, and even to the present moment, the time of these two offices, the last correspondent and it is by their time the public are guided when transacting business with these offices.

I hope the Acting Commandant will order that all the Government Offices keep regular and correct time in order to relieve the public from the inconveniences complained of.—Yours,

A SUFFERER.

Bonthe,
August 11th 1891.

MIDNIGHT ROBBERS.

The Editor Early Dawn.

Sir,—I am truly thankful for the suggestions you made some time ago in your valuable paper, relative to the safety and protection of property in this place. I am glad that the Head of Department here has adopted some of them partly, for already we have guards about our principal stores both night and day; but it seems that with the number of policemen at the disposal of the Commandant he the gentleman was willing ever to accommodate the public, one cannot rely on him for the effectual discharge of their duty, especially when a man is surreptitiously kept, I am informed, for 2 hours upon a beat. However much he desires it, he cannot perform his duty unless sufficient force. There then is a difficulty, and in my humble opinion I think 12 hours continuously long enough, and that during the night.

Should it be possible, I beg to the posting of two Constables at either end of the two longest streets, Victoria Road and the one leading from the residence of the Commandant, along the waterline to Yhandahun, for the night, and that these be inspected by the Corporal on duty, at least, twice during the night, and I would suggest that the to be occasionally sounded also, as the sound of this instrument at intervals will help to frighten away the robbers, that is if they are about.

It was only on Saturday night that Mr Cole, the Dismith was deprived of every thing he possessed by some person or persons unknown. Before I closed this letter Mr Editor, it was rumoured that a notorious thief is lurking about Bonthe, and I do hope it would not be long if it be true he is about, before he will be brought to the notice of the police. You shall hear from me again Mr. Editor—Yours.

R

HINTS TO THE YOUNG.

BY REV. J. GOMER.

Settle on some honorable pursuit to follow as a life work, and then study it thoroughly and aim to excel in it. Make it a point to improve the business, and never be content to leave it as you found it.

2 Do not be afraid to grapple with physical labor, for that is what Africa needs above all things since physical labor develops the muscles and the brain, and also makes the man, in the truest sense of the word. Banish from your mind the idea that physical labour is degrading, and be proud that you are not one of the "Sons of Ham" and should be driven back to them. The very first man of the best country in the world has ever produced, were originally confined to physical labour, from Adam to Noah, Abraham and Jacob, Moses, the great prophet, Peter, Paul, and even Christ himself. In this progressive 19th Century we have the great English parliamentarian John Bright and Gladstone, America has furnished amongst her greatest men a Washington, a Franklin, a Garfield, a Lincoln, and a Grant, all of these giants were born and reared amid physical labor. Few countries can boast of a richer soil than we have here, a soil which if properly attended will produce abundant crops of rice, cotton, coffee, indigo, sugar cane, ginger, a few root, sweet potatoes, cocoa, corn and other vegetables, and fruits, besides the thousands of tunbels of palm nuts that grow spontaneously. Every native of this country is a born millionaire, if he but knew it, and would only put his energy. The great complaint is everywhere "hard-times"; whereas good times and a fine hands are quite scarce enough in a country like this, if energy is only used to advantage.

3 Be honest, keep out of debt, and never spend more than you earn. Labour is our watch-words. A child a regular thing to fall back upon but a professional former always has a home and position, whereas the mechanic, the mechanic of this colony, what is he? A good workman in every 20 workmen is a servant ever and is seldom sure of a second day's work and this country is so flooded with these butchers and bakers that wages are at the starvation point, and the same in case of clerkship, yet boys and girls hurry to get away from school to acquire a knowledge of some trade whereby they may earn a livelihood or they may get into trading to the rivers which means selling spirits and tobacco—the principal elements in trade—to their less favored countrymen.

I protest against this kind of trade in the name of all that is pure, and holy, and just, for these are the very things that are sucking the life blood out of Africa and give nothing, absolutely nothing in return, and keep the people in the most abject poverty and degradation. Why should Africans give a helping hand to destroy Africa!

Shiningay Mission,
West Africa,
12th Aug. 1891.

THE POST OFFICE.

The Editor Early Dawn.

Sir,—I am sure the public will be glad to learn that the Government buildings comprising the Court House and the Post Office, which had been undergoing repairs are now complete, and contain the Court House and its various offices, also the Treasury.

The Post Office at present remains where it had been when the former one was undergoing repairs, and Mr Editor I have one cause to urge why I refer to the Post Office, and it is this—You would pity persons who go to that office on a rainy day for business, as they are compelled to stand outside, there being no shelter, as the office is so small that it could scarcely accommodate two persons.

The former Post Office they say, is now converted into a "writing room" for suitors who have business in Court. If that is so, although I have my doubts, I trust the authorities will see the necessity of removing the Post Office to its former position, since the place has been enlarged to accommodate a good number of persons, and thus save persons from the tender mercy of the rain whenever they have occasion to go to the Post Office. Meanwhile I shall watch what steps will be taken, and you shall hear from me again.—Yours truly,

VOX POPULI.

Bonthe Aug. 8th 1891.

Rev. J Gomer.

Dear Bro,—This serves to acknowledge the receipt of a box sent to us from Manheimy, Pa., by Mr M. J. Stoner. We feel very grateful to the donors and will ever pray that God grant them His choicest blessings and increase their liberality towards poor degraded Africans the Sherbros in particular. May the generous friends who are interested in the work here feel and know that whatever we receive from them is help along the line of winning souls for the Master's Kingdom.

The box contained the following articles—3 pairs pants, 1 Coat, 2 white shirts, 7 dresses for girls, 4 suits of underwear for girls, 6 suits for boys, 3 suits of underwear for boys, 2 dolls, cushion, tissue paper doll, pictures, books, cards etc The donors are Mr. M. J. Stoner and wife Rev L. R. Kramer, Mr. Jacob Brenner, Cyrus Wimyer, Master Willie Young Mesdames Alice Young, Emma Jane Bressy, Malinda Hershey Misses Sarah Hostetter, Annie Eastmanger Witmyer, Sally Ann Wimyer and Master Charles Stoner.

H. J. WILLIAMS

Jehovah Station
Yorgboiror,
July 22 1891

The only way to shine, even in this false world, into be modest and unassuming. Falsehood may be a thick crust; but in the course of time truth will find a place to break through.

WANTED.

A BOOK-KEEPER for New Manchester Warehouse, Bonthe One who had been in service and has some knowledge of business preferred. None need apply without Testimonial to

THOMPSON BROTHERS.

Bonthe, Sherbro,
14th July, 1891.

GENERAL NEWS.

We painfully record the death of the wife of Mr. R. B. Wilson, merchant, which mournful event took place on Sunday last, the 9th instant, at his factory in the river. We deeply sympathise with the bereaved husband.

The s.s. Formoso, with mails, arrived from Freetown on the 30th ultimo and left on the 1st instant after taking cargo from several merchants.

Rev. Joseph Gomer, Superintendent of the Mendi Mission, arrived from Freetown with her he had gone on business on Thursday 30th ultimo, and after remaining at Good Hope Station a few days left for his head-quarters at Shenegay on the 5th instant.

Mr. Fletcher of the firm of Messrs. Fisher & Randall and Rev. Joseph Gomer were passengers in the schooner Olga, which got aground off Bompaha on the 29th ultimo.

We learn that R. H. Syrett Esq. has been appointed Manager of Mcarthy's Island River Gambia who proceeded thither last month.

H. M. Colonial Steamer Countess of Derby with His Excellency the Administrator on board arrived in the harbor on Friday She brought mails. The Administrator landed on Saturday and visited the principal public buildings in Bonthe after which he returned to the steamer and left for Freetown the same day.

Thieves are about again and this time they paid us a visit last Sunday night. Fortunately they found nothing to carry away but we understand that a Mr. Cole unsmith had his shop broken into and all his wearing apparel including some cash were stolen.

The s.s. Footah, with mails from Freetown, anchored unusually early on the morning of the 13th instant, and no sooner were the mails landed than Notice was given of the closing of the mails at 12 o'clock, yet the steamer did not leave Bonthe before 4 p.m. It is always a puzzle to us to understand why the mails generally close so many hours before the departure of the steamer.

The steamship Formoso, Captain Williams, consigned to the Sierra Leone Coaling Company, arrived from Freetown yesterday morning with cargo and passengers for Sherbro.

is this—You would pity
s who go to that office rainy day for business,
y are compelled to stand
r, there being no shelter.
office is so small that it scarcely accommodate ers as e former Post Office they now converted into a ing room" for suitors have business in Court. It s so, although I have my s, I trust the authorities ee the necessity of removhe Post Office to its former ion, since the place has enlarged to accommodate number of persons, and ave persons from the tem-ency of the rain when they have occasion to go
Post Office. Meanwhile ll watch what steps will ken, and you shall hear me again.—Yours truly,

VOX POPULI.

nthe Aug. 8th 1891.

r. J. Gomer.

Dear Bro,—This serves to owledge the receipt of a sent to us from Maaheim
by Mr M. J. Stoner. We ery grateful to the donors will ever pray that God them His choicest bless and increase their liberali-wards poor degraded Afs the Sherbros in particu
May the generous friends are interested in the work feel and know that what-we receive from them is along the line of winning s for the Master's King

he box contained the follow-articles—3 pairs pants, at, 2 white shirts, 7 dress-r girls, 4 suits of underwear girls, 6 suits for boys, 3 of underwear for boys, 2
, cushion, tissue paper pictures, books, cards etc donors are Mr. M. J. Stoner wife Rev L. R. Kramer, Jacob Breuner, Cyrus.
myer, Master Willie Young dames Alice Young, Emma Brosey, Malinda Hershey ies Sarah Hostetter, Annie manger Witmyer, Sally ia Witmyer and Master hos Stoner.

H. J. WILLIAMS

ovah Station
Yorgborbor,
July 22 1891

nly way to shine, even in this false
, is to be modest and unassuming.
hood may be a thick crust; but in course of time truth will find a to break through.

WANTED.

A BOOK-KEEPER for New Manchester Warehouse, Bonthe One who had been in service and has some knowledge of business preferred. None need apply without Testimonial to

THOMPSON BROTHERS.

Bonthe, Sherbro,
14th July, 1891.

GENERAL NEWS.

We painfully record the death of the wife of Mr. R. B. Wilson, merchant, which mournful event took place on Sunday last, the 9th instant, at his factory in the river. We deeply sympathise with the bereaved husband.

The s. s. Formoso, with mails, arrived from Freetown on the 29th ultimo and left on the 1st instant after taking cargo from several merchants.

Rev. Joseph Gomer, Superintendent of the Mendi Mission, arrived from Freetown with her but gone on business on Thursday 30th ultimo, and after remaining at Good Hope Station a few days left for his head-quarters at Shenegay on the 5th instant.

Mr. Fletcher of the firm of Messrs. Fisher & Randall and Rev. Joseph Gomer were passengers in the schooner Olga, which got aground off Bompiabo on the 29th ultimo.

We learn that R. H. Syrett Esq. has been appointed Manager of Macarthy's Island River Gambia who proceeded thither last month.

H. M. Colonial Steamer Countess of Derby with His Excellency the Administrator on board arrived in the harbor on Friday She brought mails. The Administrator landed on Saturday and visited the principal public buildings in Bonthe after which he returned to the steamer and left for Freetown the same day.

Thieves ave out again and this time they paid us a visit last Sunday night, Fortunately they found nothing to carry away but we understand that a Mr. Cole tinsmith had his shop broken into and all his wearing apparel including some cash were stolen.

The s. s. Footah, with mails from Freetown, anchored unusually early on the morning of the 13th instant, and no sooner were the mails landed than Notice was given of the closing of the mails at 12 o'clock, yet the steamer did not leave Bonthe before 4 p.m. It is always a puzzle to us to understand why the mails generally close so many hours before the departure of the steamer.

The steamship Formoso, Captain Williams, consigned to the Sierra Leone Coaling Company, arrived from Freetown yesterday morning with cargo and passengers for Sherbro.

SELECTIONS.

Lying a Man Up.

There are many people who set themselves to be men down, but it sometimes happens that instead of lying them down they lie them up. There are persons whose blame is much more desirable than their praise. There are those whose compliments are a very good indication that they have received favors in time past, or expect to receive them in time to come, from those in whose praise they speak. They do nothing without a motive, and very frequently that motive is a most unworthy one. When such persons undertake to lie about a man it is sometimes the case that their falsehoods record. Persons understand them. They know the very tone of their tongue. They perceive that their reproach and condemnation is far more valuable than their approval possibly can be.

Man of God, do not be afraid that men will lie you down. Be sure you are right, and having settled this go forward. One man may lie about you, but another man may learn the truth, and his friendship may do you more good than the enmity of the liar can possibly do you harm. It is perfectly safe to trust in God, to pray to him, to cry out to him for help in time of need, and to ask that he will send assistance and work and deliverance; and when he undertakes your case, what need you fear? No weapon formed against you shall prosper; every tongue that riseth in judgment against you shall be condemned, and you shall stand at last accepted of God and honored of his servants, in the glory of the eternal kingdom, while without are dogs and sorcerers and all liars.

Given and Leaving.

"So Mr. Jones gave five hundred dollars to the missions did he" asked some one of a minister.

"I did not say he gave it," was the reply, "but that he left it. Perhaps I should more explicitly state that he relinquished five hundred dollars because he could no longer hold it."

Other people have done the same, and others are preparing to do it now. I am going to do something to help in the work to save one. But then probability is you will not do it. Your money will be invested. Your friends will advise you to place money here and there, or let it and so on etc. It will be out of your reach, where you can not control it; and by and by, when Death comes along to set up your business, and you are faint and pale and sick and suffering, friends will take care that you do not "distress yourself about money matters." "No matter about money," they will say, "we will attend to all that—and so they will, and your money only will reach those for whom you design it. Year after year men toil and struggle, and save, and lay up money and leave it; and when they have left it how it flies! There may be one child in a thousand who would take up a parent's neglected work and undertake to do that which the parent should have done in his lifetime; but the children who would do this are few indeed. They learn the lessons of worldliness from parental example.

Persons need to be constantly reminded that the only sure way to have a thing done is to do it yourself. Wills get broken, the aches come in the way, heirs quarrel, lawyers swallow up inheritances, knaves mortgage unpurchasable, thieves break through and steal, and work which men intended should be done is never accomplished. And besides, what grace or goodness is there in relinquishing money when it can be held no longer? There are numerous passages which exhort people to give, and to communicate of their substance, and which commend those who do it; but where is there a scripture which tells a man what to do with his money after he is dead, or praises him for disposing of it then in a proper manner? The time to do work for the Lord is while life lasts, and health is firm, and judgment is sound.

It is the business of men who have money, if they wish to escape the damnation of hell and pass through the gate which is so difficult for a rich man to enter, to do good, and to distribute; to have pity on the poor, and so lend to the Lord; to devise liberal things; to minister carnal things to those who have ministered to them in spiritual things; to help forward after a godly sort" those who for Christ's name's sake have gone forth, asking nothing of the gentiles; to study and plan how they may best serve their generation by the will of God; to be rich in good works, ready to distribute, willing to communicate, laying up in store a good foundation for the time to come, that they may lay hold on eternal life.—The Visitor.

A Mysterious Land.

One of the few large tracts on the earth still left unexplored is the central part of Asia, where the natives have long been so hostile to strangers as to bar the advance of modern civilization. A few travelers, including Mr. Kennan, who has written telling us about the Siberian exiles) have penetrated into this almost tragic land; but most of it is as unknown to us as the centre of Africa.

Among the great accumulations of sand existing at the present day must be mentioned those of the desert of Gobi, lying north of the Himalayas, containing whole buried cities and marvelous buildings and pictures and vases, all of which are told. One of these cities, named Pirun, is said by the Chinese to have been suddenly overwhelmed in the sixth century; and an interesting account exists of the flight from it of the exiled Katcho Khan, of a Mohammedan priest, who for many successive Fridays had warned his flock of the calamity about to fall upon the city.

In this desolate region the wells are all protected by huts, for they would soon be filled by the ever-shifting sand, which reaches away to the distance like a great sea, marked by regular waves, which rise, one behind the other, in ridges, to the height of ten, twenty, or even one hundred feet, leaving the hard underlying clay exposed to view between them.

The advance of the sand takes place chiefly in the spring, when the wind blows constantly from the north; but even then it is often so gradual that people will go on occupying a tenement whose court may be filled with sand up to the veranda from the breaking of the sand-dune over the wall.

But, though destructive from one point of view, nothing, on the other hand, is better-fitted than sand for the preservation of ancient monuments; and should any of the buried cities of Gobi ever be uncovered, no doubt they will be found to have been taken excellent care of.

A Hell Upon Earth.

There are few fairer spots upon earth than Monte Carlo, the great Italian gambling center. It is situated on a lofty promontory in the Gulf of Genoa, where a country of about three thousand inhabitants forms the independent principality of Monaco, famous as a health resort, and infamous as a legalized gambling-place, where even's sin is.

It is stated that during ten weeks in 1885 forty-nine suicides occurred in Monte Carlo. Says a newspaper correspondent:

A tragic story was told me this morning. Mrs Wad—, an attractive young widow, came to Nice for her health. Two months after her arrival she went to Monaco, just to see the place. Induced to play, she lost twenty-five thousand francs, besides fifteen thousand she succeeded in borrowing. Finding herself ruined and unable to meet her relatives, she committed suicide with a revolver.

"A German possessing forty thousand francs belonging to his employer, which sum he purposed remitting, went to Monaco with his young bride, where they had agreed to spend their honeymoon. One morning the husband went out to post a letter.

To be continued.

NOTICE

The Manager of this Journal wishes to inform the public of Bonthe and elsewhere that the columns of this paper are open to correspondents, and that all letters sent for publication will receive its attention, provided they are accompanied by the names of the writer, not necessarily for publication, but as a guarantee of good faith. Rejected manuscripts will not be returned. He however reserves the right of choosing such of them as he deems interesting. All work with which he is favored shall be done in such a manner as he hopes will give satisfaction and secure patronage always.

Printed at the Office of the Early Dawn Bonthe, Sherbro, August 15th 1891.

ISSUE(S)
MISSING

FREETOWN
SEP 2
1891

THE EARLY DAWN.

"The Morning Light Is Breaking, The Darkness Disappears"

VOL. VIII. BONTHE, SHERBRO, WEST AFRICA, SEPTEMBER, 15, 1891. No. 16.

The 'Early Dawn'

Published Semi-Monthly at Bonthe Sherbro. Under the Auspices of the Board of Missions of the United Brethern In Christ

REV. E. C. BICKERSTETH, Editor and Publisher.
Bonthe, Sherbro, West Africa.

AGENTS

United States—Revs. B. F. Booth and Wm. Mckee, Dayton. Rev. Wm J. Davis, Buell, Ohio Rev. D. K. Flickinger, Willoughby, Ohio. H. J. Stoner, Manheim, Pa. Rev. G. W. Arnold Eldorado, Ohio.
West Africa—J. A. Richards, River Gambia Rev. J. R. Frederick, and Mr. E. A. Lewis Freetown, Sierra Leone. Rev. James Dennby, Marshall, Liberia. Mr. Moses S. Boyle Liberia.

TERMS'

One Year by mail,	£0 6 0
Delivered in Bonthe,	0 5 0
Half yearly by mail,	0 3 0
Ditto. delivered in Bonthe,	0 3 0

USING BIG WORDS.

There are some people who seem to think that the use of big words is evidence of scholarship or special wisdom. They expect a man highly educated to speak in an unknown tongue to them.

The story is told of an old lady who once walked a long distance to hear Dr. Adam Clarke, the distinguished commentator, preach. She heard him with great interest. She was asked how she liked the sermon "Why," she said, "I could understand every word." She did not expect to understand the great biblical scholar, and was surprised when she heard him use such simple language that she, a poor, illiterate woman could understand every word. But simplicity is a marked characteristic of learning, and the want of it shows a real lack of true education.

It is said of a young lady who had been away from home at college, returned, and soon after was invited out to tea with a younger sister. The sister had not had the advantages of education which the young girl just from college felt she enjoyed. So the latter felt it to be her duty to give her younger sister some advice as to the propieties of table etiquette. The advice to the unsophisticated country girl closed with directions as to what she should say on concluding the meal. "When you have finished eating what you desire, and anything else is passed you, say, 'Not any more, I thank you. I have eaten to my entire satisfaction—anything more would be superfluous."

The two girls went to the party together. The younger one was very anxious to do as she was bidden, and so meet the wishes of her adviser. At the tea table she was especially nervous lest she should make some breach of propriety. At last the supper was about over and the guests were beginning to decline to be helped to anything further All were extremely polite and precise in their answers When our country girl was reached, she could not help looking at her sister, and with a blush of deep excitement, she said, "Not any more, I thank you. I have eaten to my entire sanctification; any more would be flippeteflop."

Such are the blunders uneducated people are likely to make when they ape the accomplishments of others. Young people make a great mistake when they assume that their big words are evidence of special cleverness or ability.

Some one tells of a young man home from college, who wishing to inspire his little sister with awe for his learning, pointed to a star and said, "Sis, do you see that bright little luminary? It's bigger than this whole world." "No, 'tain't said sis. "Yes, it is," declared the young collegian. Then, why don't it keep off the rain," was the triumphant rejoinder.

Some of our readers may have seen the definition of a blush, by Dr. T. C. Minor, which has been going the rounds of the press. It is as follows: "A temporary erythema and calarific effulgence of the physiognomy, aetiologized by the perceptiveness of the unequilibrity from a sense of shame, anger, or other cause, eventuating in a paresis of the vasomotor capillaries, whereby, being suffused with radiant, aerated, compound nutritive circumlating liquid, emanting from an intimidated praecordia."

Where is there a refined young lady or a precise and genteel young man who would not go into hysterics at the thought of going through such frightful scientific paroxysms? The definition is exactly typical of those given of technical terms in certain circles. It is like Herbert Spencer's definitions that are current of transcendentalism, metaphysics, and such like.

Ministers often make a great mistake in using scientific, technical, and other terms with which their people are not familiar. Not long ago we heard of a young man of culture in a western city who, in course of his sermon, used the word "cosmopolitan." His congregation was made up of humble, uneducated people as a rule, and it is not likely that one in ten knew what that high sounding word meant.

A minister once, preaching to a rural congregation, used the expression frequently, "You may draw your own inference." On the way home an intelligent member of the congregation was walking along with a brother who was very illiterate, and supposing the brother had not understood the terms of the schools that had been so frequently used, his friend asked him whether he could draw an inference. He replied promptly and with earnestness that he had as good a yoke of oxen as there was in the neighborhood, and he never had hitched them to anything they could not draw.

In every congregation there are children and other unlearned persons who can not understand terms of science, philosophy, or technical language in other departments of thought. They should not be compelled to sit and listen to such nonsense. And many of them won't do it. They will simply stay away. The fodder for lambs must be put low enough for them to reach Spurgeon says some preachers seem to understand the Saviour's commission, "Feed my sheep, feed my lambs,' to be "Feed my giraffes."

Let us have greater simplicity in teaching both from the pulpit and in the Sunday school. Don't shoot away over the heads of your hearers or your pupils. Let us have more plain preaching and teaching. Away with the nonsense and folly of big words, which do not minister to instruction and edification.

Home and Mother.

A young French soldier lay as if dying in a hospital at Geneva. Far away in his native village in Brittany was an old father over seventy, a mother and a sister. As he lay there one day, he told a comrade that he would dearly like to see his old father once more. A letter was written to the family, and his father started at once. Arrived at Geneva, after many difficulties, he hastened to his son, who expressed the satisfaction he felt in seeing him before he died. "Ah, no!" said the old man, "you must not die. Courage, lad! I have brought money, and will buy everything you need." But the youth protested that he had everything he needed now, and that all sorts of things were brought to tempt his appetite, but he could not touch them. The poor father was quite discouraged at the weary and wasted boy, and feared he had only come to take his dead one home. Then, all at once, it occurred to him to draw from his knapsack one of the common loaves of rye-bread, such as are eaten by the peasants of Brittany "Here my son, take this; it was made by your mother!" The sick lad turned his heavy eyes, and stretched out his hand greedily, crying, "Give it me, father; I am hungry!" As he eat, his eyes lighted up, the blood came back to his face, and large tears rolled down his cheeks, as he said, "It's so good! so good!—the bread from my home!" From that time he began to recover, and fifteen days later was able to start on the homeward journey. All the way, he repeated: When shall I get there, where I may always eat from our good black bread, made by my mother.

ORDEALS of severe trial are not the worst calamities that can befall us, provided we are sustained while passing through them by the comforting grace and love of God.

Cm. 1 2 3 4 5
Ins. BRITISH MUSEUM 2

☞ The Manager of this Journal will be very thankful to those subscribers who are in arrears for a settlement of their accounts, as it will enable him to make more improvements in the paper for the benefit of its readers.

MR. C. A. CLEMENS
STATIONER ETC,
late of the Normal School Tinshop Department U. S. America and late Assistant Principal of the R. C. T. School, Shaingay will make and repair to Order any description of Tinware at Victoria Road.
Bonthe,
Aug. 27th 1891.

DIED.—At the residence of J. B. Thomas, Esq., of Bonthe, on the 27th ultimo John F. T. Macauley, merchant of Tava in the Kittam River, Sherbro, brother of Messrs W. D and J. G. Macauley and Mrs. N. R. Thomas. Aged 44 years. Distant friends will please accept this intimation.—Requiescat in pace.

Mr. Robert Wilson begs to return his sincere thanks to the many sympathising friends from whom he received letters of condolence on the death of his late beloved wife.

THE EARLY DAWN.

BONTHE, SEPTEMBER 15, 1891.

OUR COUNTRY.

AFRICA, with its teeming millions, has only but recently become the centre of attraction to the civilized world. Claims founded upon what for want of a better name we may be permitted to term the equity of prior commercial intercourse with its people, have in many instances been put forward by one civilized nation to assert its right as against others. In this manner, more than by treaty engagements, has it been so partitioned that England, France, Germany, Italy, Spain, Portugal, in short nearly all the civilized nations, not even excluding Mohammedan Turkey, have all come in for slices—and in most cases large slices too—of this continent. Yet in this we behold the hand of Providence, who has sometimes permitted alien domination to be exercised over nations or tribes first as a punishment, but in the end to bring about their civilization and Christianization. History is replete with instances, all as finger-posts to the fact that the African, like other nations that have passed through the same crucible, may also come out a much better man in the end. The doctrine of Circularity proves the truth of this position, for it is only by reprogression that progress becomes naturally attainable. But while philanthropists are doing their best for the "Dark Continent," there is undoubtedly a larger class of individuals in both hemispheres whose aims may be traceable to selfish ends; and this class has made it its peculiar business to introduce among the natives poisonous spirits to destroy them.

When it is considered that England has spent 20 millions of money to indemnify slave-holders and thus put an end to the ocean slave-trade, we may well ask, whether true Englishmen have ceased to sympathize with Africa or whether it is not generally known that Africa, in consequence of the spurious rum and gin traffic is in a most deplorable condition, and that the Continental fightings amongst its inhabitants may be traced to the effects of fire-water? If, as we are sure we have not exaggerated the ill-effects produced by the fire-water in Africa, would Christian England and America remain unconcerned ever, and not interfere?

We know that the matter of revenue to support the local government in the colonies has once and again been assigned as the main reason for not adopting steps, by legal enactments, against its importation; but this sounds unreasonable, nor would we be inclined to admit the salutary doctrine of free trade, if the public be not protected against vile importations. The poisonous liquids which are sent to West-Africa in particular, and miscalled rum and gin, if exposed for sale in any part of Great Britain would, we doubt not, subject the sellers thereof to prosecution; and we make bold to assert that ignorant natives of Africa stand in better need of this protection.

To come nearer home and take Sherbro. We find the natives in a worse condition now, than when they were drinking only palm wine. If the good people in England and America were to be told that 12 bottles gin so called may be had for 4 shillings in Sherbro, and this after the merchant has paid duty of 1s. 6d. on them and put on a decent per centage for profit into the bargain, they might be tempted to ask of the rate of mortality in the country. But as there is no Register of Births and Deaths for the entire Sherbro District, we should be unable to give such an one a positive reply. All we would say is, that a goodly per centage of the natives die from its effects. In the absence of spirits importation into Sherbro, it would not require an Administrator to be gifted with extraordinary statesman-like qualities so to adjust the tariff, as to make adequate provision for the loss of revenue caused thereby.

A TRIP TO MOCOLO.

ON Tuesday the 1st instant the long dormant inclination to visit this part of Sherbro rose so strong that had we not the opportunity of carrying it out, we opine something injurious might have been the result; and as everything was calm and serene at 10 a.m. we left the Mendi Mission wharf for a trip to Mocolo, which is situated on the south-eastern point of the Island of Bonthe, on a beautiful elevation, commanding a view over the surrounding country which repays the traveller's curiosity. Looming in the distance, we could see the white washed building standing out in picturesque relief in the distant verdure for which Sherbro is notorious. After passing a countless group of islands we at length reached our destination, and landed on the pier which runs out considerably into the river for the convenience of shipping cargo. This factory belongs to the ancient Sherbro house of Fisher and Randell, and keeps up its reputation to this day.

Leaving Mocolo we landed it to Victoria where we visited the C. M. S. Day School, but as the master met us at the doorway, where he kept us looking in the heat of a tropical sun, we had not the pleasure of exchanging ordinary courtesies with the school children or have a peep into the sacred edifice in which the school was kept. But that we consider merely an omission, as that the sincere visage of the school teacher did not make him appear capable of wilful incivility. Leaving this gentleman we trudged on to the residence of Mr. J. W. Fenny, A merchant of the locality, to whom our visit was intended but merely to be informed that the 'bird had flown' and that we crossed each other on the way hither. Such a disappointment. So we made no stay but proceeded to Liverpool factory, the property of S. B. A. Macfoy Esq. of Jamaica, where we halted for a few hours to enjoy the bracing air of the broad Atlantic.

We rested here for two hours, and resumed our march back to Mocolo, where our boat was left waiting ready to be carried down by the ebb tide and the breeze astern. We did not return by the same way we went as the meanderings of the river are so many that one can select the passage through the islands which be considers nearest and most navigable for a quick transpost; after selecting a different passage from the one we went by it was because we had hoped to see either snipes or curlews on the numerous mud banks, but nothing of the kind was of sufficient number to cause us to waste our powder and shots, so we glided down quietly over the placid river until we reached our home to find all well and we none the worse for our trip.

CORRESPONDENCE.

☞ We shall not be responsible for the opinions of our Correspondents.
Correspondents will please write on one side of paper only.

SUNDAYS AT BENDOO.

FROM A CORRESPONDENT.

Those who are natives of the above named town need not presume that I intend to deprave their birthplace by words, but to represent facts as they appear. I regret much to state that although several Sundays here have rolled over me, yet not one has been enlivening. A whole Sabbath at Bendoo would glide away just as it would in any ordinary town up the Boom or Kittam, where there is no church existing. it is not from lack of duty on the part of the residing preacher, but of promptitude on the part of the people. On my first visit here, I was surprised to see the mean and poor appearance of a place of such ancient reputation Parvæ res, et domine diu decoquæ videre breathingque rebellum.

The other days are tolerable, because they can be otherwise employed, during which may be seen people thronging the poor streets; but on Sundays, ask for them! More than two-thirds will always be wanting in church, which directly shows their wandering nature. The hind part of the church is now covered with high weeds, through the habitual laziness of her members.

The results of indolence upon communities are as marked as upon individuals. In a town of industrious people the streets would be clean, houses neat and comfortable, fences in order, school houses filled with healthy children, decently clad and well behaved. The church would be thronged with devout worshippers, labour would be honorable, and loafing a disgrace.

To me, it seems that the preacher perceived this slothfulness, hence he selected for his text on the morning of the 16th ultimo Haggai 2nd chap. 3rd verse—"Who is left among you that saw this house in her first glory? And how do you see it now?" His expressions on this subject were plain, sharp, and piercing, yet many of the untutored considered them enigmas.

Besides the above remarks there are many events that usually render this particular day (Sunday) dismal, which if I should proceed to relate, a volume would thereby be made. I write this to the edification of its inhabitants, for they that are indolent in the least are also indolent in much.

SHAINGAY DISTRICT.

Rev. J. Gomer P. E.

Rev and dear Sir,—The Rev R. Cookson Taylor arrived here under a drenching rain at 5 p.m. of 13th ultimo to hold our Quarterly Meetings. At 7 p.m. 60 persons assembled together and listened to a practical discourse delivered by the Rev. gentleman from Matt. 12, 47-50. The preacher in charge reported his work in writing On the 14th, Lord's day, the seekers met at 6. a.m. and after exhortation 5 persons testified their christian experience and trust in God.

At 11 a.m. we met for divine service and the elder preached from Eph. 6 13. The hearers paid marked attention at the delivery of the blessed message. 3 children received baptism and 16 persons communed at the Lord's table.

The night service was well attended.

Death removed one brother to the spirit world,—one who was an earnest member of the Seekers' Class at Greenhill. He gave a living testimony of his hope in the hour of death and breathed his last a few minutes after he offered prayer to God in the presence of a good number of natives.

Day School.—There are 2 pupils in this department and they are members of the Seekers' class. There is hope in children who are under direct training as they manifest from time to time that they are determined to be what God would have them to be. It is our regret that we are not capable financially to receive and board two-thirds of the children composing the school.

We have to mention here that Mr. M. J. Stoner and wife and Rev L. R. Kramer all of Manheim, Pa, U. S. A. are rendering us valuable help in clothing three of the children living with us. We are going very slowly for want of books &c. this has been one of our express needs since beginning of the year.

Faithfully submitted,
H. J. WILLIAMS.

Aug. 30th 1891.

Koolonge Station,
May 29, 1891.

Dear Papa Gomer,

You love all little children, and have a good heart & would like to hear their talk or write. I think this is my first letter to you, and must begin to say teil Mamma Gomer many thanks for me. Can I be right to call her Sister of Mercy? When my Pa was very sick three years ago, and we were in Freetown, I saw some white ladies, passing along our street; people call them "Sisters of Mercy," that sounds pleasing to me. And how Mamma Gomer cures me of a sick eye, which was coming to be blind, and my Papa tells me there is no Doctor's Bill coming from her. Is not this merciful?

I have two villages, Mo. Peeh and Senncbou to itinerate in, but was sick four weeks, and did not attend to the work, but James C Pyne, one of my school mates, worked for me. On May 17th I tried to go. In Mo. Peeh I met a good number of persons, coming from the villages around. A little boy had died—all the women particularly the mother—let loose the hair on their heads sprinkling on earth and ashes, and very little clothing about their bodies, and rolling on the ground. The dead boy was wrapped in a clean white headkerchief when brought to the grave, which was dug back of a house where there is heap of sweepings. Pastpaw and other leaves were put in on all sides of the grave, after which followed the corpse. His uncle cut two small sticks, fixing one through the ground near the head, and the other at the feet and tied a white thread at the top end so as to let part of it wave over the corpse. He then stood up, and the rest standing and kneeling, said "I am your uncle. You are now dead and leave me in the world. If I am the person who witches you, come back and kill me. The mother, grandmother, and two more spoke the same words, after which earth was thrown over, not without loud crying and wailing.

James Pyne and I read the losses of Job and asked prayers from them, for did. The mother was comforted, wiped her eyes and said—Suppose oh nglandish mans dem—thank you my dear friends. Praised be God for the Bible.—I am your dear child,

MARY ANN JOHN.

This article was either to endure may be asked to remember.

CHURCH NEWS.

On Wednesday evening the 2nd inst. a very interesting meeting of the Women's Christian Temperance Union took place in the Mendi Mission Church at Yhandahoo, which was much enlivened by the Sacred Songs sung on the occasion, and the attendance was large, showing that the fire for the carrying on of the Association is still burning.

After the usual Prayer Meeting Service on Thursday evening the 3rd instant, an Official Meeting was held at which very encouraging reports were given of the interest shown by the Mendi section of the worshippers at Good Hope Station. The Sunday Morning Classes are well attended, as well as the 4 o'clock meeting in Ebenezer Chapel. The Superintendent when here in July last, from holding meetings constantly during the week, had left a wholesome impression upon the minds of the people to go to church, as the sound of the bell a few minutes before church time is sufficient invitation. They are well behaved during exhortation and shew the greatest attention. May the Lord of the harvest sanction this extension of his word, and grant that it may take root into the hearts of those heathens and bear fruit upwards to the glory of His name.

GHUNDAMAH LAND.

On account of two articles written in the "Early Dawn," by some philanthropist, the Agent of the French Company feels to give satisfaction to these writers and the public concerning the appeal made by him to the occupants to quit the land of the Company he represents.

The first reason is that the Company wishing to make an experiment in planting castor oil seeds, do not see at all the necessity to hire any ground, when they are proprietors of a large plot, which has been occupied for so many years by people who have never paid a penny as rent, according to terms of agreement for the land, which does not belong to any other than the Company.

The second reason, if the first is not sufficient, although we do not like to interfere in the private business of others as people seem to interfere in ours, I shall say that the European employee of the Company do not like palavers or disturbances made by intoxicated persons during the whole night, or by some other occupants of their ground, from which they have suffered long enough.

The Company cannot have in their premises such persons, and will not consider their ground as a refuge for thieves and outcasts, or even the residence of others carrying on certain business. The rent fixed at 5s. per month I think I have right to ask any price. I like and not be obliged to accept the usual price mentioned, except if the Court of Sherbro should judge otherwise.

For Cie. Française de L'Afrique Occidentale, EUG. MOSSU.
Bonthe, 7th Sep., 1891.—Advt.

BOMPEH DISTRICT.

FROM Palli, in the Bompeh District, we learn that a sad and strange occurrence took place in a small, town (la kie) near Bengkeh on the night of the 19th May. Of the 7 persons in the town 4 were killed by lightning 2 were thunder struck, and only an old man remained conscious at the crisis. The house in which they were, containing rice, bennie seed, kegs of powder, etc, caught fire, and before the old man could get out 2 dead bodies the flames became so intensified that the other two were burnt, only their feet were seen the following morning for burial.

A VISIT TO MOH-BARKOO.

Moh-barkoo is a village inhabitated by people who are very superstitious. As it came to my notice I often paid it frequent visits.

On one Sabbath morning I happen to meet a house full of people and one of my Seekers' class member was convulsionately laid as if dead, then all the people who are the family of the so-called deceased [Coner] were around her with some of the folks from the neighbouring villages weeping and wailing as it is customary with the heathens. Meanwhile a country-fashion man was instantaneously sent for. This seer (from what most of the people believe him to be) took his seat in the centre of the house and began to officiate his duty for which he was called by spreading several smooth palm nuts and colored stones on the ground. With these stones etc. he displayed certain motion several times casting them on a small mat, portion of which was occupied by himself, forming them two by two, and scoop them all again, which was so dexterously done as not to scoop all at once the second time. Lifting up his head of falsehood began his prophecies as follows.—

"Coner will get up. Nothing harm Coner." (He perfectly knew that the woman was convulsed, for she rose up when he was making the tricks with his charm) "Only one thing I will not hide from you big mammy," (The head woman of the town) "There is a devil here and he get vex at you all here because you never cook for the devil for this is the devil's complaint. Look at the devil, a male devil "(pointing to one of the smooth stones on the mat.) The devil only want to shake you all here in order that you might take notice of him and cook for him, hence he shewed himself to your girl Coner. Now Coner will revive and be strong and useful.

However Coner will wean this her present son, and will conceive and bare twins of one male and one female. The male child will be very strong; a very strong child he will be and famous and the girl will be pretty looking, but you will give me the female child for my wife. To this the whole assembly laughed heartily, and at the end of every sentence they echoed the chorus accompanied with the clapping of the hands which signifies Amen.—N. S.

To be continued.

GENERAL NEWS.

An inquest was held on the 5th instant on the body of one Tom brought from Bogo in the Imperch country. The decapitated body was found in the bush near to a farm in which three men were driving birds.

An attempt was made to break open the store of Messrs. Thompson Brothers at Yhandahoo on Sunday night the 6th instant; but fortunately the would-be robbers found it very difficult to effect an entrance from the security of the place, and abandoned consequently their wicked intent.

Theives have shown their dexterity by passing the guards at the Government Compound and entering the Commandant's kitchen. So easy was their prowl that they carried away every piece of utensil found therein.

A girl named Konah Labeh, residing at Shaingay in attempting to refill a kerosine lamp carried the oil too near the flame and caused it to blaze, which spread so rapidly that the girl was severely burnt on the face. Namah son of Bonson Caulker was burnt on the leg and arm, and Bankoh who was sitting on the ground by them received the greatest injury for he died 6 hours after. The house was completely burnt with most of the property of Mrs Dillet.

A York Island on the 11th instant a man named Cole, native of the Gambia, in the employ of Fisher & Randell drowned himself by jumping into the river from the pier head. He attempted to cut his throat, we learn, before plunging into the river. His body was discovered on Sunday last and brought over to Bonthe for interment.

On the night of the 6th instant the store of the Sierra Leone Coaling Company was entered by thieves and goods to the value of about £40 were stolen. Every effort was made to discover the robbers, but as yet no trace could be made of them.

The s.s. Fernesco, consigned to the Sierra Leone Coaling Company, which had been in harbour for several days discharging and re-coaling cargo, left for Freetown on Thursday evening, 3rd instant.

SELECTIONS.

WHAT THE SOUTHERN NEGRO IS DOING FOR HIMSELF.

For twenty-six years the Negro has had his freedom, and now the question is, What use had he made of it?

Under slavery the Negro was mainly a plantation laborer. The close of the war left him free, with three courses open to him: first, to rent his own labor; secondly, to rent and work the land of his former master; thirdly, to buy and work a farm for himself. All these courses have in turn been accepted. Some white farmers employ vast numbers of Negroes, but in the district I have visited the breaking up of the old plantations into small farms has been the more common process. All through the Black Belt, and the adjacent country, plantations have been cut up and rented to Negroes in one-mule farms of from twenty-five to thirty acres each.

Other things being equal, the step from the position of a man who lets out his own labor to the position of one who hires a field for its exercise, is a step in advance. It furnishes conditions which stimulates intelligence, self-interest, and power of self-help. Great numbers of Negroes have taken this step, but the transition is not easily made. The occupant of a twenty five or thirty-acre farm pays from two to five dollars an acre rent, and then has to mortgage his crop to the storekeeper for the means of subsistence, paying twenty or twenty-five per cent, sometimes more, for the accommodation. The colored race has emerged from civil bondage, but he has yet to be emancipated from a financial bondage to the merchant who reaps the fruits of his labor.

These drawbacks, hard as they are, are not beyond the capacity of the negro to grapple with. In Virginia Kentucky, and Tennessee, the colored man is rapidly becoming farm owner and householder. As we go South and enter the Black Belt, the conditions vary with the fertility of the soil, the intelligence of the people, and the degree of education. A great difference is sometimes apparent in different counties in the same State. Thus in Lee County, Georgia, the people are largely laborers, working for wages, but in Marion County, fifty per cent. of the people own homes. The same difference is seen in Alabama. In Russell County the blacks are much behind those of Pike County, where there are better schools, and more freedom from the mortgage system. In Bullock County much government land has been preempted by the negroes In one section of that county the colored people are prosperous, one man of exceptional thrift owning three hundred acres, twelve good mules, and four horses, and raising his own meat and potatoes. In Coffee County the people are just beginning to rent their homes. In one township of Lee County, nearly all the colored people own their homes.

The home buying that is going on in the agricultural districts is going on also in the cities. In Montgomery, street after street is owned by colored people. In Chattanooga, one-third of the colored people own their homes. In Birmingham, colored people pay $10 or $12 a month rent. A number of householders have gardens with two or three acres of land.

The Negro is also venturing as a tradesman. In all the large cities and even in the smaller towns in the South he is hanging out his sign. The colored grocers of Birmingham are sharing the prosperity of this thriving city. Near a little place which I visited in the Black Belt, a colored school teacher had bought a lot of land for $25 and established a grocery store. At Tuscaloosa, the livery stable man who drove me, owns several horses and carriages, and is doing well. Thus in whatever direction one goes, he can find Negroes who are rising by force of education and of character. The influence of such schools as Hampton, Atlanta, and Tuskegee is felt all through the South in the stimulus given to industrial occupations.

With industrial education, and diversified mechanical pursuits, the Negro brain is becoming adaptive and creative. The records of the United States Patent office make no distinctions between white and colored inventors. A colored assistant examiner in the Patent office has, however, placed at my service a list of some fifty taken out by colored people, including electric inventions which are said to have a great deal of merit.

The social evolution of the Negro is patent to the most casual observer; the result of higher education is seen in the rise of a professional class. There are six colored lawyer and seven colored physicians in Baltimore. Journalism is growing slowly. There are now about fifty-five well-established Negro news-papers and journals. The colored people are determined to have their churches, and in proportion to their means, subscribe large sums to sustain the n

The standard of morality is rising also. There is more respect for property now that the Negro is learning what mine and thine mean. Moreover they do more towards taking care of their unfortunate classes than is generally realized. In fact it is quite clear that the new generation of Afric Americans is animated by a progressive spirit They have discovered that industrial redemption is not to be found in legislative and political measures. They recognize that education is the path way to prosperity. They are passing into the higher stages of social evolution, and religion is becoming more ethical. But in no way is the colored man doing more for himself than by silently and steadily developing a sense of of self-respect, new capacity for self-support, and a pride in his race, which, more than anything else, secure or him the respect and fraternal feeling of his white neighbor.

KEEP BUSY.

If you expect God to choose you for a great work, be busy; he seldom selects idlers. When he wished a deliverer for Israel, he went into the wilderness for Moses, who was watching sheep; when he wanted a man to save his people from the Midianites, he sent for Gideon, who was thrashing wheat; when he wanted a man after his own heart to be king of Israel, he sent for David, who was keeping sheep Idlers do not suit. The Lord wishes those who are not only willing to work, but who are hard at it. Idlers are too often lazy, and that may be the cause of their idleness Such seldom have enough ambition to take care of themselves, let alone caring for the Lord's work. But idlers suit Satan exactly. He likes such to have no ambition, for they make best slaves. The devil wants slaves for his work, but God wants something better. He wishes men and women who have ambition, who take an interest in their work; he wishes servants who are anxious to rise, for he means to promote them some day. From servants he adopts them into his family, and makes his children.

"The Book of God has no errata in it: it is a beam of the Sun of Righteousness, a crystal stream flowing from the fountain of life! All laws and edicts of men have had their corruptions, but the Word of God has not the least tincture; it is a meridian splendor."

The custom of lifting the hat had its origin during the age of chivalry, when it was customary for knights never to appear in public except in full armor. It became a custom, however, for a knight upon entering an assembly of friends to remove his helmet, signifying, "I am safe in the presence of my friends."

Wicked people who are ever whining about the world being so bad are like the old cuttlefish that first spirts his ink into the water about him and then complains because he can not see. If those whining cynics would display in their community the shining light of a good example instead of their cuttlefish ink of a wicked life, the world would not be so bad as it is—at least that part which they see would not.

NOTICE.

The Manager of this Journal wishes to inform the public of Bonthe and elsewhere that the columns of this paper are open to correspondents, and that all letters sent for publication will receive his attention, provided they are accompanied by the names of the writer, not necessarily for publication, but as a guarantee of good faith. Rejected manuscripts will not be returned. He however reserves the right of choosing such of them as he deems interesting All work with which he is favored shall be done in such a manner as he hopes will give satisfaction and secure patronage always.

Printed at the Office of the Early Dawn Bonthe, Sherbro. September 15th 1891.

THE EARLY DAWN.

"The Morning Light Is Breaking. The Darkness Disappears"

VOL. VIII. BONTHE, SHERBRO, WEST AFRICA, SEPTEMBER, 30, 1891. No. 17.

The 'Early Dawn'

Published Semi-Monthly at Bonthe Sherbro. Under the Auspices of the Board of Missions of the United Brethern In Christ

REV. E. C. BICKERSTETH, Editor and Publisher.

Bonthe, Sherbro, West Africa.

AGENTS

United States—Revs. B. F. Booth and Wm McKee, Dayton; Rev. Wm J. Davis, Basil, Ohio Rev. D. K Flickinger, Willoughby, Ohio M. J. Stoner, Manheim, Pa., Rev. G. W. Arnell El Dorado, Ohio.

West Africa—J. A. Richards, River Gambia; Rev. J. R. Frederick, and Mr. E. A. Lewis Freetown, Sierra Leone. Rev. James Deputy, Marshall, Liberia, Mr. Moses S. Boyle Liberia.

TERMS

One Year by mail,	£0 6 0
Delivered in Bonthe,	0 5 0
Half yearly by mail,	0 3 0
Ditto, delivered in Bonthe,	0 3 0

Faith Essential.

In the absence of faith there is no foundation on which to build a character that will stand the test of trial. He who would be successful in business must have confidence in his plans and his ability to execute them. He who would rise as a scholar must have confidence in his ability, and in the unerring certainty with which diligence leads to success. He who would come to the front in his profession must be inspired by a firm conviction that honest methods and earnest, efficient toil are sure to win in the end. These qualities of mind and soul impart to their possessor a strong, manly, courageous character, because they give to him assurance of that certainty and uniformity in the operations of nature which conspire to make faithful effort satisfactory and remunerative.

On the other haud there is a certain lack of confidence—a distrust springing naturally out of conscious lack of qualification out of idleness, carelessness, dishonesty, which leads as unerringly to put partial success or complete failure as does gravity draw the plunging, foaming waters over the precipice at Niagara.

A consciousness of honest methods, intelligent plans, and energetic efforts are the necessary foundations of the courage and confidence essential to success in business pursuits. This may not be so evident when all is prosperous; but let adversity set in, let disaster and ruin threaten, and then he who lacks these essentials will lose courage and confidence, yield to the surging tide, and go down a wreck, while he whose assurance has for its foundation an intelligent faith, will keep his head above the waves and wrench victory out of the very jaws of defeat.

They who desire to achieve victory in worldly pursuits—in life—must have faith But a persistent, triumphant faith must have a solid foundation; and the rocks out of which such a foundation is constructed are:

First. Th a thorough qualification for the chosen pursuit which is only secured by diligent study, earnest, persistent work.

Second. An intelligent comprehension of the work in hand, a knowledge of the means necessary to succeed, and a diligent use of those means. The fact must be recognized that, other things being equal, that worker succeeds best who puts the most brains iuto his work.

Third. Honesty of purpose. These are the great foundation stones of a truly invincible faith and successful career. As a rule, prosperity is not a haphazard affair; it obeys the law of cause and effect as certainly as do the rise of the tides and the whirling of the spheres, and its essential element is a well-founded faith.

Ah, there is a strength and power of endurance in the conviction, my cause is just, my plans are intelligently formed, my efforts are all that they should be, my purposes are honest, and my motives are pure that possess all the characteristics of Omnipotence. We find in these the original elements out of which the world's heroes are made. "I propose to fight it out on this line if it takes all summer," was but the laconic expression of General Grant's faith. So it is in religion. That genuine faith which has Christ for its foundation, lifts the soul above the discouragements which, but for that faith, would overwhelm it. Faith in God and the efficiency and sufficiency of divine grace, faith in the certainty of the divine promises, such as, "I will never leave thee nor forsake thee," faith in the better life which faith unfolds,—faith in the final, complete triumph of virtue,—faith which says, "Right must win since God is God,"—this faith is the vital element that gives power and energy and consistency to all that goes to make up a perfectly rounded & symmetrical Christian development.—Telescope.

How to Hinder Your Pastor.

I will take it for granted now that you do not want your pastor to succeed. Whether that sentiment is right or wrong I will not discuss at this time, but will just notice some ways by which he may be hindered. Let us first notice his reception Very much is depending on how you receive him at first. First impressions are most lasting. Be careful not to receive him cordially. Do not say, "I am very glad to see you; you are just the man we need here. You might salute him somewhat after this manner, "Well you have come to our circuit, have you? We wanted Bro. A. What is the reason he did not come? You are not the man for this work & you can not be supported here." If any one should propose a reception, and carry to the parsonage a quantity of provisions and have a supper and a good social visit, do all you can to discourage it. Let him take his proper place, and and come around and beg an acquaintance and provisions to commence with. Don't you go near him, nor ask him if he has plenty of money—for more than likely he is destitute, and you would be in a very embarrassing condition,—for of course you will not feel it your duty to pay him anything before he commences work. And be very careful not to express any approval of his pulpit efforts—surely not as he will be likely to hear of it. Remember you must keep him humble. And as soon as you can, find some fault with him or his family report it to outsiders and members of other churches; and be sure that it gets to him—in a round-about way of course, then, you know, it will be enlarged a little.

Go to hear him preach about once in four weeks. Then be late, of course. The rest of the time you can go visiting or entertaining company. As for prayer and class-meetings and Sabbath-schools, don't condescend to be found there. Let him know that you have business of greater importance to look after just at those times. If you are a member of the finance committee, be sure to get the salary down as low as possible. And discourage every thing like a systematic arrangement for raising money. Let everything of this kind be left all at loose ends. Let him trust in God for his support—or starve.

If you are a steward, do not fool away your time going around among the people to collect quarterage; just get up in church and give the people a regular blowing up about it. And if you do happen to speak to any one privately about it, and they begin to find fault with the preacher, as many will,—that is the pay they give,—you just help them along and tell them he ought to work for his living like other people. Be sure and stay away from quarterly conference, for the salary is short, and you might be asked the very important question, "Have you done what you could to collect the quarterage?"

If some of your friends die, send off for some other minister to preach the funeral sermon This will show him, and all the people, that you have not much respect for him, and, of course, hinder his usefulness. And if there are any marriages among you don't send for him to officiate. These things with others that your fruitful mind can devise will have a tendency to hinder him in his work, and in ninety-nine cases in a hundred will succeed and the work will go down. Then you can load him with curses when he leaves you; and this will help his predecessor in the same way.

Now the question is, how shall we get these words to the persons for whom they are intended, for not one in fifty of them take them the TELESCOPE? Perhaps you, my dear brethren, who are interested in the prosperity of Zion will lend them your paper this once and oblige.—Telescope.

☞ The Manager of this Journal will be very thankful to those subscribers who are in arrears for a settlement of their accounts, as it will enable him to make more improvements in this paper for the benefit of its readers.

THE EARLY DAWN.

BONTHE, SEPTEMBER 30, 1891.

SHERBROLAND.

BRITISH rule over the Impereh has already been twelve months on its trial, but the result has painfully disappointed those optimists who anticipated a reign of security to life in that region that had been thus ushered in, regarding, as they must have, the transfer from native rule as its natural sequence. Indeed His Excellency Sir JAMES HAY is reported to have dilated upon this security to a deputation which had the honor of waiting on him at Bonthe shortly before he left for Europe a few months ago. That Governor HAY's hopes in reference to the "human leopards having a bad time of it," since this country has come under the direct control of the British Government have not been realized, subsequent events have fully demonstrated; and to-day we stand face to face with the uncontrovertible fact that their havoc has assumed a serious and frightful importance unheard of even in the days of native rule. Week after week the arrival at Bonthe from the Imperch of mutilated corpsees for Inquest—victims of the human leopards—has forced thinking minds to the opinion that a country rich in natural products and minerals may, unless a reversal of policy takes place in its administration, be soon deserted by its inhabitants wholesale.

But Imperch is not the only portion of Sherbro at which this diabolical act is being perpetrated. On the waters of the Boom and Kittam rivers, about eight miles from Bonthe, the seat of Government, may now and again be seen portions or remnants of corpses floating or impeded in their progress down the river by the mangrove bushes—victims of cannibals, who travelling by some mysterious process below the water in canoes shaped in the form of alligators, contrived to seize upon their prey whilst performing ablution in the river, or from small canoes in which they may have been plying.

Only a couple of weeks ago a case happened of a man who was eaten from a town called Bompehtook near Tasso; and about the 15th instant a similar case transpired near Rontoh factory. What ought to be done to put an end to this barbarous and inhuman custom is the question that presses itself for solution; indeed its solution is one of extreme difficulty and embarrassment.

It has repeatedly been pointed out that civilized laws, in fine that British law cannot satisfactorily deal with the question; then what is to be done? Shall we deliver up the aborigines to the jealousy and malignity of their compeers to be tried by superstitious ordeals, of which more enlightened nations have found by self experience to be unavailing? Shall we punish, no matter by what means confession may have been extorted from these would-be cannibals? or, if reason and law answer in the negative, shall we then declare the impotency of Government to arrest the evil, in consequence of the existence of which the transfer to, or taken over by the government of the Imperch country is said to have been suggested?

We shall venture to lay a few facts before the public, and in doing so we would remark that one of the principal causes of Sherbro's drawbacks has been due to the selfish policy that has regulated the actions of the authorities since some time past, and it is neither more nor less than the discredit of the Sierra Leone native residents—many of whom have sdent the greater part of their lives in the country—that is being engendered in the minds of the aborigines. Influence acquired by many years of intercourse, and which had on many occasions in years past been exerted in the interest of the Government, a fact to which liberal-minded Governors have borne written testimony, is sought to be thus destroyed.

The late Sir SAMUEL ROWE was not a superficial diplomatist, hence he did not consider it an "infra dig" to secure the advice and assistance of native gentlemen like Messrs. S. B. A. MACFOY, J. A. WILLIAMS, C. B. COLLIER, J. B. WRIGHT and others when important Sherbro questions had to be solved during his administration of the Sierra Leone Government. If the public good were thought of paramount importance in the creation of the office of Inspectors or Managers in the various districts here, these European gentlemen appointed, (who may be equal to the requirements of any post within the peninsula of Sierra Leone) would not have been appointed when experienced and properly qualified natives as Mr. THOMAS PARSON of Tasso, and J. B. WRIGHT, Esq., of Bendoo, would better answer the purpose. Barring Mr. J. M. HARRIS no European is as conversant with Sherbro as these native gentlemen.

It cannot be urged that commercial men are ineligible to be appointed when Messrs. ALLDRIDGE and GARRETT have been made Travelling Commissioners, who formerly had been Commercial Agents in Sierra Leone.

The Imperehland is swarmed by human-leopards, and human alligators have taken charge of the Boom and Kittam rivers; but where is the Inspector of the Imperch and Bargroo districts? If he sits at ease at Bendoo, or passes his time in idleness at Bonthe, what care he if cannibals prevent the aborigines from collecting produce for the European market? His salary is paid to him regularly at the end of the month notwithstanding.

The policy of making these Inspectors or Managers independent of the Commandant at Bonthe, is open to grave objections; and the sooner it is reversed the better would it be for the country. If Bonthe is to have a Manager, other districts should have Sub-Managers who ought to be placed under the control of the Manager at Bonthe.

Indeed a more painstaking, hard-working, and efficient Commandant than the holder of the acting appointment, Mr. BENNETT, could not be desired, and should the independent judgment he exhibits on all occasions, as well as the respectful manner in which he declines to be approached by natives and Europeans alike, unless on official business, be imitated by the holder of this office in future, we might cease to mourn over the shortcomings of a holder of the appointment from time to time.

Comparatively speaking Bonthe is the civilised portion in Sherbro, where are to be found the bulk of the European and native residents; we should, therefore, suggest that this seat of Government be presided over from time to time by gentlemen who have had years of training in the Civil Service.

There are secret societies in Sherbro which should be discouraged by the Government. First and foremost stands pre-eminent the Porroh, of which we have been edified (by outsiders made aware of some of the barbarities that the Porroh bush has on many occasions been the scene), that human leopards and alligators have borrowed a great deal of their morality therefrom. In the opinion of some well informed persons, a Sherbro chief—not a Mendi chief as a rule—is said to emerge from his porroh bush confinement to be invested with the insignia of chieftain a full blown cannibal. These porroh dens are sometimes used by many as places of refuge to shield them from justice; and who knows how many war raids and other public disturbances have not been planned therein.

We would respectfully suggest to the Government the entire cleaning of such haunts within British jurisdiction, and to dispense, if possible, with chiefs in the lower Sherbro, taking the direct control into their own hands. The aborigines are said to be British subjects; if so truly, they ought to be protected from tyranny and injustice, of which they are at present the victims at the hands of chiefs, some of whom are said to be in receipt of stipends.

Whether or not it would be more conducive to their happiness and security to leave the entire government in the hands of the aborigines, and for the British Government only to under take to protect resident British subjects and others, and collect the Customs Revenue, would be a thesis worth discussing. To give up the country would in our humbl opinion be a retrograde movement; then let the Government show itself equal to the situation, by adopting measures to wipe off the stigma with which the name of Sherbro,—Her Britannic Majesty's possession in Sherbro is associated—for cannibalism should not exist in British territory.

MIDNIGHT ROBBERS.

Thieves about again! How long are the inhabitants of Bonthe to go to bed and expect to rise up in the morning to find their "throats cut?" We fear it is coming to that, since the most secured places, or supposed secured places in Bonthe have been visited by thieves and property of immense value stolen and carried away without the least traces of them after. Scarcely is there a respectable house, as well as the humble residences of the poor, which has not on more than one occasion fallen a sacrifice to the dauntless robbers who infest Bonthe. Not long ago the respectable firm of the Sierra Leone Coaling Company was broken into and goods to the value of about £40. carried away; a few weeks after the Commandants' residence was entered and all his cooking utensils stolen; and on the night of the 22nd inst. the C. M. S. Parsonage, at Yhandahoo, was added to the list of sufferers from robbery; but fortunately for the Rev. Mr Hughes, although the thieves who distressed him have not been detected, yet the the goods taken away were not carried more then the next lot before the active watchman at Messrs Thompson Brothers challenged the robbers and succeeded in preventing them from proceeding any further. It was only the next morning before the things were identified as Mr. Hughes,' and we sympathise with, and congratulate him, at the same time.

The burglars did not stop their work here, but went on to the residence of Mr. C. W. Tucker, and deprived him of all his kitchen ware, and ended their programme for the night.

On Wednesday night, the 24th inst., they came to the Mendi Mission House at Yhandahoo, and most daringly entered the sleeping apartment of the Rev. E. C. Bickersteth whilst he was in the embrace of sweet slumber, removed his gun from the room first as the obstacle to their wicked design, and returned to take away some new clothing of Mrs. Bickersteth's when the gentleman awoke, and put the fiends—the mildest name by which they can be called—to flight. The gun was discovered in a corner out in the verandah afterwards, where it was not left the night previous. The desperate midnight robbers are carrying their career to an alarming degree, which makes us ask for the vigilance of the police, and yet we need scarcely ask that question when we remember how the Commandant was served a few days ago, who resides in the same yard with the police, and who holds the sword in his hands.

We fail to see the deterrent effect imprisonment with hard labor has upon these heartless men, and if some more drastic castigation could be awarded by the Government for persons guilty of robbery, doubtless we may soon be able to record a cessation of hostilities by this midnight army.

To be called good is better than to be called great; and there cannot be any true greatness without real goodness. Every one can be great in goodness, even if not so in any other respect.

Mr Stanley says that the deadly poison used by the African tribes on their arrows is made of red ants ground to powder and cooked in palm oil.

If a man is fit to go higher he will show it by being faithful where he is.

CORRESPONDENCE.

☞ We shall not be responsible for the opinions of our Correspondents. Correspondents will please write on one side of paper only.

SHERBRO MAIL SERVICE.

The Editor Early Dawn.

Sir,—Please permit me, as one who suffers, to call attention to the very unsatisfactory manner in which the Mail Service between Sherbro and Freetown is being performed by the ss Footah.

When the Swan and the first-named steamer were carrying on the work it was something better; but since the grounding of the latter vessel, the public of Sherbro have always experienced considerable inconvenience in receiving and sending letters, &c. through the Post Office.

The old lugger Footah generally arrives at Sherbro late in the afternoon of Thursday, to leave the following day at noon, Mails to close at 10 in the morning, being just the time the people at the outlying stations would be in possession of their mail correspondence, and sometimes later. I believe it is only those who live in Bonthe can receive letters on the day or rather night, of the steamer's arrival, as the outstation mails I am led to understand are to be dispatched by small canoes, and I very much doubt whether it can be done with safety in the night, especially at the present season.

It cannot be denied that these unfortunate residents of the outstations have never been able to find a chance of sending replies to their correspondence by return mail—their letters if posted at all must remain in the Post Office till the following mail, as the steamer would have been on her way back to Freetown before the arrival of their letters at the Post Office.

But another difficulty has been added to this vexatious "short stay" system. I have noticed that for the past few weeks the Footah has been going to York Island to land the mails, to be brought over to Bonthe by a boat, instead of coming direct to deliver the mails at Bonthe, as hitherto.

Well, Mr. Editor, I can assure you that this new departure simply means a loss of about 2 hours to the public —that is the public must have to wait with no small amount of anxiety for about two hours from the time of the steamer's arrival at York Island before the mails can be delivered at the Post Office in Bonthe—while it can never take half an hour if the steamer comes right on to Bonthe. It is rather hard to understand why such flagrant irregularities are not only allowed to exist but to continue to the detriment of the public. Perhaps the Government is not aware of the hardship the Sherbro public are enduring on this point, whilst its intentions had been, no doubt, to benefit Sherbro by the service of the steamer. It is to be earnestly hoped that the evil complained of will be speedily remedied, and that the performance of the mail service will be carried out properly and satisfactorily, no matter by whom, for at present the service is a disgrace to a contract—I am, Mr Editor yours,

A SUFFERER.

Bonthe,
26th Sep. 1891

Editor Early Dawn.

Dear Mr Editor,—I have not been able as yet to fulfil my promise in writing for the Dawn, but for the present, here goes something for insertion in your valuable journal, which I am sure most of your readers for many reasons would both read, mark, learn, and digest the truthfulness of the foregoing quotations

A friend writing to another of his opinion of matters, and things in this district, amongst other things, states—Sherbro is a school in which one is likely to acquire a large experience of certain evolutions of the human mind, and one unaccustomed to Sherbro Society must find himself at sea for a considerable time, until he is himself contaminated or filled with disgust at the state of things here. I will not express an opinion—Au revoir.

Yours truly,
C.

Sherbro, Sept 1st. 91.

A VISIT TO MOH-BAREOO.

Concluded

Then he said further more that "a saddaccar is highly required they must get a long rope to be held by two persons, one standing at the entrance of the town and the other to the other entrance of the town each having a knife cutting the rope at the two ends about four inches long dropping it all along the way when coming to meet each other in the center of the town; in sweeping the town they are not to be swept; after few days they are to be gathered in longstrings as beads to bind up Coner's waiste as an emblem of chaining Coner to secure her from the devil. They must get either a sheep or a goat to cook for the devil and a yard of blue cotton as well as shirting to tie around a large tree in the devils lodge." After saying many things the seer asked for his payment. To this the people asked me (as I sat patiently waiting on them for service) for few yards of cloth, then I call the people's attention to their refusal of paying church collections to God's cause, who is able to do Coner more than what was told them by the false prophet, after service I asked Coner to pray and several others—some are praying that the devil should give them time, they will cook for him, then I told the fortune teller his own for tune. He was filled with wonder. There ends my Sunday engagment and a Frotune told to a Fortune Teller.

NANCY SAWYER

Kooloonge
July 30 1891

The only safe path to tread in life is that of absolute honesty. We may not seem to get on so rapidly at the start, but we will be sure to come out well in the end; and it is said 'all is well that ends well.'

ITINERATING.

On Sunday the 27th instant I left Bonthe the principal station to Itinerate as far as I can in the Farkies by way of Mocolo, accompanied by Messrs Charles and Gladstone, the latter of whom served as my Interpreter a position which he filled with much credit.

Having to go against wind and tide, in an unfavorable weather too, the voyage was all but pleasant. Our men rowed hard but with these elements against us we could not go further than Mocolo wharf, where we left the boat and walked on foot through Liverpool to Gbalaloh. Here we collected together the people at the headman's quarters, had my Interpreter to pray in the Sherbro language, and addressed them from Psalm i. i.—contrasting the blessedness of the godly with the wretchedness of the ungodly and concluded with an entreaty that they should choose that portion which would give them present and future happiness. Number present on this occasion 23. One of this number acted as spokesman and thanked us for coming to tell them these good words—They like to hear always God's Word and would even be coming to church at Bonthe if they were provided with clothes to put on. To this I replied they need not take that trouble as we intend visiting them as often as we can do so.

The next town; Yonnie, about this time could not be reached but by way of water. Our boat being quite three quarter of a mile away we had the use of a canoe to ferry us over three rivulets that used to be entirely covered in full tide—We spoke in this place from John III.-3 to a goodly number of 32 and they were very attentive Finishing here we found it quite unadvisable to proceed further the tide being quite up in fact the difficulty was, in a rough sea with a canoe that could hardly contain more than two of us in that weather four of us were to be taken over. We decided at last to be taken over twice and when this duty was over we rejoiced greatly, and gladly retraced our steps homeward feeling thankful to Providence for a day spent in His service.

E. C. BICKERSTETH.

Bonthe, Sherbro,
Sept 28th 1891.

CHURCH NEWS.

On Sunday 20th instant the usual classes were held; in the morning at Hoggarth Chapel the attendance was unusually large, and some of the earliest spoke of their determination to follow the saving truth through evil as well as good report, through as interpreter; and although the weather was unfavourable, yet the congregation was large and encouraging. It is pleasing to minister to those heathen people, as the attention paid to the words spoken to them and their devotion to worship combine to make labor amongst them a pleasing duty.

BETTER THAN GOLD

Better than grandeur, better than gold,
Than rank and title a thousand fold,
Is a healthy body and mind at ease,
And simple pleasures that always please;
A mind that is quick to perceive and know,
A heart that can feel for another's woe,
With sympathies large enough to enfold
All men as brothers, are better than gold.

Better than gold is a conscience clear,
Though toiling for bread in a humble sphere,
Doubly blessed with content and health,
Untried by the lusts and cares of wealth.
Lowly living and lofty thought
Adorn and ennoble a poor man's cot,
For mind and morals in nature's plan
Are the genuine test of a gentleman.

Better than gold is a thinking mind,
That in the realm of books can find
A treasure surpassing Australian ore,
And lives with the great and good of yore.
The sage's lore and the poet's fire,
The glories of empires passed away;
The world's great dreams will thus unfold,
And yield a pleasure better than gold.

Better than gold is a peaceful home,
Where all the fireside charcoters come,
The shrines of love, the heaven of life,
Hallowed by mother, or sister, or wife.
However humble the home may be,
Or touched with sorrow by heaven's decree,
The blessings that never were bought or sold,
And centre there are better than gold.

☞ It is uncomfortable to think how some readers of the Early Dawn Newspaper like to do so on the CHEAP. Some of them have been supplied with the paper regularly without paying a farthing towards its support since its commencement seven years ago, and when applied to for payment they shuffle better than the most expert card player.

When cops to the crowd are thrown,
Each one makes that which fits his own.

GENERAL NEWS.

The Formoso Captain Ponchoos, consigned to the Sierra Leone Coaling Company of Sherbro left for Freetown on Thursday the 22nd instant, well laden with a cargo of African produce.

The French schooner Olga, belonging to the French Company, arrived in the harbor on the 23rd instant and after taking cargo left on the 28th.

Several private residence have been ransacked during the nights of the past week by thieves, and in most cases they managed to carry away something, however trifling.

We would direct attention to the letter of A Sufferer, which appears in another column of this issue, every word of which we most emphatically endorse; and would add that the manner in which the contract for the Mail Service between Sherbro and Freetown is performed at present is a disgrace to a civilized Government.

A Krooman living in a farkie near to Thandahoo was plundered of all his property including some cash, and by his own vigilance the robbers have been detected.

SELECTIONS.

WHERE IS HAPPINESS.

We hunt happiness. We go excursions for pleasure. We seek for comfort. We cry out for something at which to smile. We mourn for that over which we may laugh. We worry ourselves to find patience. We sorrow to attain rejoicing. We are constantly distressing ourselves that we may find rest. We lament and bother all our hours if perchance we may get a moment of quiet and composure. What a paradox is our life!

Where shall we find happiness? Epictetus said, "You must teach men that happiness is not where, in their blindness and misery, they seek to find it. It is not in strength, for Myro Ofellius was not happy; not in wealth for Crœsus was not happy; not in power, for the consuls were not happy; not in all these together, for Nero & Sardanapalus and Agamemnon sighed and wept and tore their hair and were the slaves of circumstances and the dupes of semblance. It lies in yourselves, in true freedom, in the absence or conquest of every ignoble fear, in perfect self-government, and in a power of contentment and peace, and in the even plane of life, amid poverty, exile, disease, and the very valley and shadow of death." This is true and beautiful; but how shall we attain to the true selfhood, this divine poise of power which makes soul and body work frictionless, and move in an orbit of peace, love, and happiness? Imperfect as the picture is which Epictetus gives us even this man can not of himself attain unto.

Solon said, "No man ought to be called a happy man till he dies." He would have us wait to the end until a test of all possible conditions of life are applied to us. Seneca said, "He must be miserable who does not think himself happy, although he could command the universe. No man can be happy who does not think himself so." Epicurus said, "Live, accept life without thinking of ever living again after death. Zeno said, 'We must take no interest in this life. In a measure we must make ourselves independent of life, and not live at all. We must triumph over fate, emancipate our natures, free them from all restraints, sure as we are that after this life our connection with this world is forever broken off. Plato said "We must find happiness by taking an interest in the things of life. We must love life, but remember that after death we shall live again."

Jesus says, "Come unto me all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest." Of the Ethiopian eunuch who had found Jesus under the preaching of Philip & confessed Jesus in baptism, it is recorded "He went on his way rejoicing. Of the people in a certain city who received Jesus it is narrated that there was great joy in that city.

Our Lord put that very key of happiness into our hands when he said, "Ye believe in God, believe also in me." Faith in Jesus Christ is the panacea for all sorrow, the antidote to all trouble, the guaranty of happiness here, and eternal bliss hereafter.

There is not a grief possible to the human heart that Jesus can not assuage. There is not a sorrow that can press the soul that he can not lift. There is not a trouble that can roll over the bosom of mortals that Christ can not roll back. His presence is paradise. His truth is a rock of safety. His promise is a draft on infinite resources. His providences are the training-school of happiness. His love is heaven.

Are you the follower of Christ and not happy? You have not sufficiently learned him. You have not stayed long enough at his feet. You have not caught his idea of life. You have not been filled with his Spirit. There may be earthly ills that cry after you, but Jesus is wealth in poverty. He is love in bereavement. He is hope in death. He is all and in all.

BREAKING THE JUG.

AMONG the German "Brethren in Christ" in Pennsylvania whom we have known and loved, few were more honored and esteemed than the late Isaac Price, long one of the readers of this paper, who was eminent as a preacher of the gospel and a wise and gracious counselor, while at the same time he was diligent and prosperous in the business of this world. The following instance related by a friend in Germantown will illustrate his thoughtfulness and conscientiousness.

In the gone by days when some things were not seen in as clear a light as they are at the present time, Isaac Price for many years kept a country store, where supplies of all kinds were furnished to the farmer folk in the vicinity. In those days ardent spirits were one of the commodities which were usually obtainable at the country store, and hence were included in the stock of goods sold by Isaac Price.

One day a man who was already indebted to him some forty dollars came to buy a quantity of goods. His means were somewhat limited, and he was not able to buy all that he desired, but he took care among his earlier purchases to include a gallon of liquor, and then, as he watched the expenditure of the money he brought, he said, he wanted to get his girl a pair of shoes, but he should have to let them go for the time, as he was unable to pay for them.

His words sank into the heart of Isaac Price. There came before his mind the sight of the poor little shoeless girl, deprived of what she needed for her comfort while her father had spent for rum the money which should have bought her shoes. He studied over the matter for a little time, and finally said to the man,

"If you will let me break this jug and will promise never to drink any more strong drink I will give you a pair of shoes for your daughter, and will forgive you all you owe me."

It was his customers's turn now to do some thinking. He did it, and after due consideration he accepted the proposal. Isaac Price broke the man's jug, spilled its contents on the ground, set all the liquor he had in his store running, and never sold any more of the infernal stuff.

Years after as Isaac Price was going to some neighboring church to attend a meeting, he was met at the railway station by a person who was to convey him to the place appointed. The man, though a stranger, seemed to know Isaac, who, after some little conversation, remarked,

"You seem to have the advantage of me. I do not know you."

"Do not know me?" said he "I am the man whose jug you broke." This explained the matter. That jug breaking was the turning point in his life, and he was glad to take Isaac with him and show him what a comfortable and happy home he had, as the result of breaking that jug.

Young lady, are you having opportunities to select a husband? (Of course you are.) Then do not forget that good common sense, industrious, temperate habits, and a generous, pure heart are far more valuable accomplishments in a man than exquisite taste, bland manners, dudish habits, a waxed mustache, a switch cane, and great wealth. While refined, genteel accomplishments and wealth are things to be desired in a man, good common sense, industrious, temperate habits, and a generous, pure heart are absolutely essential to a kind husband and a happy home.—Telescope.

He who prays ever so lustily for the conversion of the world and then fails to notice the collection basket when it goes round prays in vain.

Be careful about little things in life little needless expenses have been the beginning of bankruptcy of many a fortune; the little sins have been the rills that made up the sweeping torrent of crime that has swept many a person to awful destruction; neglect of the minutes has left many a life blank.

Watch over your heart. Keep it with diligence; for out of it are the issues of life.

NOTICE.

The Manager of this Journal wishes to inform the public of Bonthe and elsewhere that the columns of this paper are open to correspondents, and that all letters sent for publication will receive his attention, provided they are accompanied by the names of the writer, not necessarily for publication, but as a guarantee of good faith. Rejected manuscripts will not be returned. He however reserves the right of choosing such of them as he deems interesting. All work with which he is favored shall be done in such a manner as he hopes will give satisfaction and secure patronage always.

Printed at the Office of the Early Dawn, Bonthe, Sherbro. September 30th, 1891.

THE EARLY DAWN.

"The Morning Light Is Breaking, The Darkness Disappears"

VOL. VIII. BONTHE, SHERBRO, WEST AFRICA, OCTOBER, 15. 1891. No. 18.

The 'Early Dawn'

Published Semi-Monthly at Bonthe Sherbro. Under the Auspices of the Board of Missions of the United Brethern In Christ

REV. E. C. BICKERSTETH, Editor and Publisher.

Bonthe, Sherbro, West Africa.

AGENTS

United States—Revs. R. E. Booth and Wm. McKee, Dayton. Rev. Wm. J. Davis, Brasil, O. Rev. Rev. D. K. Flickinger, Willoughby, Ohio. Rev. J. Stoner, Manheim, Pa., Rev. G. W. Arnold Eldorado, Ohio.

West Africa—J. A. Richards, River Gambier. Rev. J. R. Frederick, and Mr. E. A. Lewis Freetown, Sierra Leone. Rev. James Deputy Marshall, Liberia. Mr. Moses S. Boyle Mano.

TERMS.

One Year by mail,	£0 6 0
Delivered in Bonthe,	0 5 0
Half yearly by mail,	0 3 0
Ditto, delivered in Bonthe,	0 2 6

A Kind Voice.

Many persons do not understand the value of a kind and tender voice. Their speech is harsh angular, and grating, painful to refined sensibilities, and never agreeable to anybody. The following on this subject from the pen of the learned blacksmith, Elihu Burritt, is so well said that we commend it to the thoughtful attention of our young readers:

There is no power of love so hard to get and keep as a kind voice. A kind voice is deaf and dumb. It may be rough as flesh and blood, yet do the work of a soft heart, and do it with a soft touch. But there is no one thing that love so much needs as a sweet voice to tell what it means and feels; and it is hard to get and keep it in the right tone. One must start in youth, and be on the watch night and day, at work and play, to get and keep a voice that shall speak at all times the thoughts of a kind heart. It is often in youth that one gets a voice or tone that is sharp, and which sticks to him through life, and sets up ill will and griefs and falls like a drop of gall on the sweet joys of home. Watch it day by day as pearl of great price, for it will be worth more to you in days to come than the best pearl hid in the sea. A kind voice is to the heart what light is to the eye. It is a light that sings as well as shines.

Power from on High.

To my mind, there is nothing needed in the church of Jesus Christ to-day so badly as this "power from on high." This is the most important age through which the world has ever passed age of Satanic movings. The prince of this world sees that God is making rapid advancement in all his churches, both in education and religion, and he is doing his best to keep back peaceful day of temperance and righteousness, which is to fill this earth as the waters cover the sea. Hence the need of all Christian people to have this power to help stand against the "wiles of the devil." All down the ages of God has prepared men for certain movements, both in theology and church polity. Those who submitted to his decrees were carried on through struggle and attained mighty victories. Those who rebelled were left behind amid the ruins as "monuments of an age gone by." We are passing through an important period just now. Infidels are getting in their last blows. Saloons are holding on with a death grip. But God has his hand on their throats, and will soon say "Thus far shalt thou come and no farther." Oh ministers of this glorious Gospel, let us take each other by the hand and go to our Master and receive his anointing to prepare us to work and sacrifice and lift the world up to a higher plane of holy living and Christian usefulness. Then sinners will be converted, backsliders reclaimed, and believers sanctified. Power is what the world needs to-day, not theory. Why do we go to the physician when we are sick? I answer, to get power to get well again. Many Christians, both ministers and laymen, are just cripping along through life and doing but very little good, whereas if they would just surrender themselves to God he would fill them with his blessed power and make them giants for the truth. "Ye shall receive power after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you." But you say it is hard to consecrate all to God. Then, as Dr. Keen has wisely said, "It is harder not to do it."

Work, work, and "go forward," is the keynote of a successful life. The day has gone by when winter revivals and summer freezes succeed. Let the fire burn, from the pulpit all the year and people will come to see it burn, and some will get hot, and Greenland's icy mountains will be melted into a mighty river for God, that will sweep over the sinful world as melting lava runs out of the crater or mouth of a volcano. Lord Jesus, send down this spirit over all the churches until every stream overflows with pure love and makes this earth blossom as the rose. Amen.—Telescope.

A Strange Bible.

I have heard of many oddly printed and bound Bibles, but never of a stranger one than this.

Some years since, a lad named Freddie Moorhead filled the post of drummer boy to part of the grand army of the Potomac. It was but an insignificant post, and he was but a young lad; nevertheless, no prouder boy ever stepped the earth than Freddie Moorhead when he beat his measures day by day, and heard each soldier's footfall keeping time to his music. Freddie had left a Christian home and a God-loving mother behind him; and often the lad's heart would turn wistfully homewards as he lay by the blazing camp fire, hearing, though not listening to, the rough chatter and foul language of the older comrades in his company.

Freddie had been taught from his mother's knee to read and love his Bible; and her last gift to him had been a small, neatly bound copy of that precious book. But amid the hurry and uncertainty of camp life, Freddie lost his treasure. Whether he really lost it, or whether some one stole it from him, he never knew; but gone it surely was from his little knapsack one day.

As you may imagine, this was a terrible loss to Freddie, and a sore trial; for he dearly loved his Bible, and had long looked upon it as a letter from a beloved Savior to himself.

What was to be done? He had learned a great deal of the Bible by heart in old home days, and his mind was full of choice texts; but this did not quite satisfy him. Suddenly he thought, "Why shouldn't I make a Bible for myself?"

Easier thought of than carried out; for paper was scarce—so scarce that many men could not write home for lack of it; and no one would supply a little lad with sufficient to write out texts upon. So it was a sore puzzle.

What do you think came at last into Freddie's head? You will never guess. Why, his drum! Very carefully, so as not to injure it in the slightest degree, he began to write texts upon it, one after another, as neatly and closely as possible. How thick and fast they crowded in upon his memory! I am sure "Uncle Sam" never had such a drum in his army before or since; yet I do not suppose those texts hurt its sound a bit. I know one thing—our drummer boy was none the less faithful to his duty or his God for having those sweet promises before him as he plied his drum sticks or marched into the smoke of the battle.

How foolish as well as how wicked are envy and strife. Why should we envy each other in this poor world, or strive about things that we will soon be ashamed of. If we are ever permitted to stand at the grave side of the one we envied or strove most with in life, we will feel a compunctious throb of sorrow in our breast that we ever were so foolish as to war with the poor clay now silent at our feet. Let us be governed in our doings of to day by what we are convinced will give us the greatest pleasure in the reflections of the future.

Idleness is the bane of many a life. Nothing conduces more to real happiness than to be busy and active in some useful employment of life.

Remember to do quickly what thou does, as dispatch is necessary to the accomplishment of anything important in life's brief day.

☞ The Manager of this Journal will be very thankful to those subscribers who are in arrears for a settlement of their accounts, as it will enable him to make more improvements in the paper for the benefit of its readers.

Died.—At Lagos on the 16th of September Mr. Alexander L. B. Johnson eldest brother of Rev. J. E. W. Johnson of Palli. J. B. O Johnson, Actg Sergt Major, Freetown, Mrs Kenny Campbell and Mrs Jones of Bonanza.

THE EARLY DAWN.

Bonthe, October 15, 1891.

AGRICULTURE.

The tilling of the ground is substantially of greater importance to the natives o Sierra Leone than the precarious vocation of commerce, and it has been recommended for their adoption by many a conscientious well-wisher of the Aigean race, as well as by others of the same race but who in terms of reproach have labored to make out that the Sierra Leoneans are too indolent to engage in manual labor but are bent on keeping a few pieces of Manchester goods in small shops in Freetown or in the rivers.

To the latter class of individuals, one feels sometimes to make the reply, why this cuckoo song is kept up when every obstacle has of late been placed in the way of the natives even by that Government (the Colonial Government) which had suggested the founding of an Industrial Seminary in the colony. A partial acquaintance with the Geology of Sierra Leone is sufficient to satisfy casual observers that the greater portion of the lands within the Peninsula are barely fit for the cultivation of cassada, cocoa, or yams. To grow coffee, chocolate, cola nuts &c. without large capitals to enable adequate irrigation to be carried out, as well as to pay stoneblasters, (as though stone mining were part of agriculture) would be more profitably employed beyond the Peninsula in a place like Sherbro, at which suitable and cheap lands for the cultivation of these products could be obtained.

The unsuccessful attempts of many to purchase lands from the aborigines may in part be attributed to the Executive, whose policy of late has been to lend too ready an ear to the complaints of some of them, based more or less upon the frivolous ground that either they or their ancestors had been induced to enter into written contracts, the conditions of which, in consequence of their inability to read or write, they did not fully understand; and it would appear that they have been so much encouraged that some of their recent utterances have taked the shape of repudiating treatics passing ands to the Government. Such a recoil is the effect of the injudicious policy which has obtained since the death of Governor Rowe.

The transient policy assumed from time to time by the Colonial government of Sierra Leone is not necessarily British policy inaugurated or even approved by Downing Street, need we then be astonished that whilst the Colonial Minister in London earnestly desires the encouragement of agriculture in the colony of Sierra Leone, the action of the Colonial Government has not been in accord with a view to its advancement.

It is to be honed that a more liberal policy may be adopted by the Government so that native agriculturists finding themselves unhampered to prosecute farming in the meantime contribute their quota to enhance the importance of the colony.

We extract the following from "The Sierra Leone Times" of the 3rd instant:—

PAINFUL NEWS FROM THE CONGO FREE STATE.

Per s.s. Abasso which arrived here last Sunday, the news of the death of a large number of the first batch of labourers taken to the Congo Free State, was received. It is believed that the Natives of the Slave colony that the workmen from Sierra Leone were content with a lower rate of pay provided the detailing state, and thus effected the extermination of the unfortunate labourers from this Colony.

CORRESPONDENCE.

☞ We shall not be responsible for the opinions of our Correspondents.

Correspondents will please write on one side of paper only.

CHIEF MORMON KIE-KIE AND THE MEETING AT SAHN.

(From a Correspondent.)

Few weeks ago, there was a commotion of chiefs and people in small quarters, to consider the future welfare of the Country, and more or less [illegible] move those obstacles in the [illegible] cause of Christianity and [illegible] the minds of those, who [illegible] to learn honestly by [illegible] were their allotted [illegible] Every one who is in favor of [illegible] will consider such [illegible] in the right direction, and I would [illegible] been the very first [illegible] to [illegible] and [illegible] would have been [illegible] fat particular. At [illegible] chiefs were heavy [illegible] heavy. So the [illegible] long after the affair [illegible] discover, that the [illegible] assembly had a direct [illegible] to shut Sierra Leone [illegible] pale of commercial world, [illegible] deprive the interior nations from having the same right in batronising their produce, but in a word to commence in devising schemes to carry war with the interior tribes, without making a breach to the treaty, and thereby endanger the revenue.

I trust the Authorities will consider my humble opinion and will at once support the force at Pujehun which is at present composed of a private and non-lettered corporal, and that every thing be done under the direct supervision of the manager at Bandajuma,—so all having these smooth, deceptive tongues—Mormon-Jah and Mormon Kie-kie to tamper with the rights of Sierra Leoneans and the interior tribes, and thereby put the Government to another unlawful incidental expense.

TYNDALE.

Kittam, Oct 3rd 91.

The Editor Early Dawn.

Dear Mr. Editor,—I have heard with pleasure that the U.B.C. Mission at Shaingay have engaged the services of a B.A., affiliated to the University of Durham, in the person of Mr. J. B. Pratt for their High School, and beg to congratulate you, as it is getting quite clear that that Mission means to play a very important part in the work of regeneration in Africa.

I am too glad to see our native young men qualifying themselves for such high positions in life, and why not, when they are competent?

—Yours,

Kono.

Bendoo, 7th Sep, 1891.

SHAINGAY NEWS.

Rev. R. C. Taylor has been favoured with quite a refreshing revival of Religion in his church here. In the history of Shaingay Mission there has never been such a revival service; 56 persons made a profession of faith in Christ. 20 more were received in full connexion into the church. The service continued two weeks, and the pastor had been for two months preparing his men for the work. One night 40 persons were at the altar for prayer.

On Sunday, 4th instant, Regent Chief Thomas Neale Caulker, was at Yorgbo for and acted as Interpreter for the preacher. Large and interesting meetings are being held at that place. Mr. H. J. Williams, the pastor of the station, is a mighty power for good.

The Rufus Clark and wife Theological Training School at Shaingay has secured the services of Mr. J. H. Pratt as one of its Professors. This gentleman was born at York village, Sierra Lone, West Coast of Africa, in 1868. His parents are of the Aku tribe, and he received the rudiments of his early education at Bonthe, British Sherbro, where his father resided in the service of the Government, who after a long and faithful service, enjoys a pension from Government up to the present time. Mr. James Pratt showed unmistakable signs of scholastic ability when very young, and his father thought it proper to further his opportunities by sending him to a higher seminary —the Wesleyan High School—in Freetown, under the Principalship of the Rev. J. C. May, F.R.G.S., of the University of London.

After a course of two years in that institution, he passed into Fourah Bay College, where he mastered the degree of Bachelor of Arts. Shortly after he was employed in the same Wesleyan High School in which two years previously he was only a scholar. Hearing of the work at Shaingay and cherishing friendly feelings towards Americans, accepted a call to labor with them, which he is now vigorously prosecuting.

Mr. Wilberforce, the Principal, is very fortunate in obtaining so able a tutor to assist him in the work.

REPORT

Of Koolonga Station for June Quarter, 1891.

Mr. President,—Another quarter is just closed, and it makes me feel more refreshing than ever God of his mercy preserved our lives so that we have the chance of meeting here to-day to speak of the good work of the Lord and show what we have been doing: of battles we have fought, successes we have gained, and victories we have won. Truly the present quarter has been one of sore trying indeed. But despite this I endeavored to give much attention to the prosecution of my work as best as possible; and I can say to-day with joy and rejatory that the good hand of the Lord has been with me. The work of the station and outstations has been so properly arranged so as to meet up the convenience of the people and also to afford me the opportunity of attending to them as occasion requires. The believers and seekers classes which were in a mixed condition, is now divided to be held in different places at different times. At Koolonga the believers class is weekly held every Friday morning at half past six. At Bumpah we have the seekers class every Sunday morning at six. This plan is adopted in order to give to the seekers the advantage of being taught how to pray, to have them well grounded in the principles of the doctrines which they profess, and to know more of the rudiments of the Christian life for which the seekers class is intended. The day I can never though under a deep sense of bodily infirmity, is still trying all my best to render assistance whenever he finds it practicable, and his advice as older and wiser head in managing matters for the advancement of the work is always beneficial. The seekers class at Sesseroo, Gbakoo, and Mo Peah are in the hands of the lady workers, who are trying their very best, also the believers class under the leadership of Chiefs Sesseroo was to preside on the 3rd of April. This also is thriving, an Number of attendance during Divine service on the Lord's Day is in a flattering condition—sometimes poorly but sometimes well attended. On the 26th of April a special funeral sermon was preached by the Rev Joseph Gomer on the death of brother H P A Humphreys, an itinerant, and late farmer of Koolonga station. Under present circumstances III. Our Day and Sabbath Schools are in a healthy condition.

ITINERATION.

I endeavored with heart and soul to give much attention to this important part of the work. It is my plan when ever I find it practicable to go out on Tuesday evening to some of the distant villages connected with my district, spend a night of prayer meeting with the people, also continue class meeting the following morning and then return home for the day's duty.

MAMPOO.

This important out-station has my visit as frequent as ever. Seeing the earnestness and thirst of the people to hear the word of God. I arranged to visit there every Tuesday evening for prayer meeting, out I nevertheless [illegible]

[illegible] course of business. The [illegible] brother R K Sumner, as a [illegible] and willing young man, shows great love for the work and has in the main given satisfaction. It will be exciting to say that we have no some times been discouraged through the cold and lukewarmness of the people. Still we continue to labour with hopes the little seeds we are now sowing will in after years spring up and grow. On the bread cast into the waters will be seen after many days. Not by power nor by might, but by my Spirit saith the Lord of Hosts T D Chambers

SINCERITY.

It is said that "children and fools tell the truth," and this is construed by some to mean that if one tells the truth, he's either idiotic or childish. And if talking reveals only wickedness or nothingness, it may be for the worldly interest of the speaker to deceive, or at least to dissemble.

If the days are really come when the appearance of evil only is avoided, while the evil itself is secretly enjoyed; when mankind must be trained to follow fashion, rather than righteousness and weighed in the balances of the public opinion, rather than in the balances of the sanctuary; if a man may be as wicked as the evil matter he serves, provided he does not let it be known, then truth-telling children and fools may well retire to some small, remote, obscure corner, and hide themselves from the multitudes who know not God.

The atmosphere of our times is too full of insincerity. Who but a rogue would suspect when the servant says with a steady eye, "My mistress is not at home," that she is upstairs on the sofa in a shabby wrapper reading a novel? Who could believe after hearing the endearing epithets that Mrs. A bestowed on Miss B, her guest for the summer, on her arrival, that a few moments before she had scolded her husband sharply for inviting her there? How could I know when I scanned my neighbor's little fort that it was encased in a shoe two numbers too small, and when I secretly admired her slender and youthful appearance how could I believe that corsets, dentistry, hair-dyes, powder, paint and such like toilet aids had made her over into a fiction, instead of a truthful living epistle, known and read of all men?

It is not about time to put on the white robe of sincerity, to love without dissimulation, to become as little children, to be what we wish to be regarded, to fear God who seeth in secret, rather than man who looks on the outside? Public opinion is not the highest tribunal before which we shall be summoned. In case still the brought up to the Supreme Court of the universe, and no witness there will commit perjury. May God prepare us for that hour by a life of sincerity and truth.

—The Common People.

THE WEATHER.

For the past few days we have been experiencing rather a change in the weather, as this period of the year we generally expect thunderstorms; but instead we are having clear bright days and sunny, with very refreshing breeze in the afternoon from the south west, and notwithstanding all these favors from Nature unsatisfied man complains of the dulness of trade and the hardness of the time.

Day after day Canoes can be seen coming to Bonthe from every nook of Sherbroland, and seldom without produce, which they never take back, for the purpose of bartering the goods from more enlightened countries to be found in the various mercantile establishments at Bonthe, and if that is not an evidence of business we certainly misunderstand the meaning of the word "business." Better far to have a little constantly than to be glutted to day and want a fort night for a repetition.

CHURCH NEWS.

On Sunday evening Sept. Mr. R. May preached [illegible] sermon [illegible] to be [illegible] congregation [illegible] local preacher of the Wesleyan Society.

On Monday 28 the Local Preachers meeting in connection with that Society had its sittings at 7 p.m. when Mr J. A. Williams (who had previously preached his farewell sermon) was called upon and Mr. R. May to take the usual examination before the meeting, and we are informed that they satisfied the examiner and have been received as full and accredited local preachers.

Oct. 8—Mr. W. D. Pasha Catechist of St. Matthew who arrived here in 1886 left for Freetown per s.s. Formosa on six weeks leave of absence. He deserves his well earned rest.

☞ It is uncomfortable to think how some readers of the Early Dawn Newspaper like to do so on the CHEAP. Some of them have been supplied with the paper regularly without paying a farthing towards it support since its commencement seven years ago, and when applied to for payment they shuffle better than the most expert card player.

When cap to the crowd are thrown,
Each one makes that which fits his own.

GENERAL NEWS.

Captain Sanden, of the Frontier Police, left for Freetown, en route to England on the usual vacation leave by the s.s. Foutah on the 1st instant, and Captain A. D. Campbell, also of the Frontier Police, succeeds him during his absence.

The German steamer Erna Woermann, Captain Heldt, consigned to Messrs Paterson, Zochonis & Co. arrived from Hamburg on the 2nd inst., and anchored off York Island. After taking in cargo of African produce left on the 6th instant.

The Rev. Joseph Gomer Superintendent of the Shaingay and Mendi Mission, Good Hope Station, with the Rev. C. A. E. Campbell, arrived here early on Friday last. He preached on Sunday morning the 11th inst., to a large congregation in Good Hope Chapel. The Rev. Campbell occupied the pulpit in the evening and delivered a very interesting and instructive discourse. He left before daybreak on monday for his Station at Shaingay.

A large alligator, measuring about seven feet in length and two in circumference was killed in the hollow at the Government pier-head on Monday night last. So much has of late been said of alligators that we must declare this one a real specimen. All praise to the constable on duty for his vigilance and quick perceptiveness, as it was by the rays of the moon that the object was seen and shot. Some time ago a gentleman who was travelling to Waterloo by water put such an idea [illegible] alligator's head from a double [illegible] rifle, by which it was easily [illegible] land, that the Manager of [illegible] district sent him one guinea in [illegible] town. What will be done for this [illegible] constable remains to be told.

Saturday last, the 10th instant, being the Thirty-first Anniversary of the Duke of Edinburgh's visit to this colony, the day was observed as a public holiday. The Government offices, as well as some of the mercantile houses were closed in honor of the day.

The s.s. Foutah arrived here from Freetown yesterday the 14th inst., with mails, and the following passengers. Messrs Buckley and Hales of the Firm of Fisher and Randall Limited. Mr. E. A. Lewis and several deckers. Mr Buckley the principal Agent in Sierra Leone, accompanied by Mr. Hales we understand are on a tour of inspection to all the Factories of the above Firm in Sherbro.

We heartily congratulate our Contemporary The Agency for its renewed efforts in launching out againats barque into the political world—We wish it every success.

It is reported that His Excellency Sir James Shaw Hay K.C.M.G. was expected to leave England on Saturday last the 10th instant to resume the reins of the Government of this colony.

Death of the wife of his Excellency.

It is with deep regret we have to announce the death on the 15th ultimo of the wife of His Excellency Major J. J Crooks, Administrator. Intelligence of the melancholy event was received by s.s. "Volta," which arrived here on the 6th inst. We beg to record our sympathy and condolence with His Excellency on his irreparable loss.—

Weekly News

From the columns of our contemporary the Sierra Leone Times of the 10th instant, we notice the reduction of the prices of Palm Kernels at Liverpool it states:—

The quality of the Palm Nuts exported from Sherbro, has hitherto been accounted and accepted at Liverpool as the second best received from any country whatsoever.

But I am afraid, if rumour speaks correctly the sun of this glory bids fair to be set.

The kernels shipped with in recent years are said to have been considerably reduced in value owing to the foolhardy carelessness of the purchasers.

With the solitary exception of the Agent of the Compagnie Francaise no one seems to care much in what condition the nuts are gathered in.

The market value of the kernels get depreciated to the extent of between 10 and 12 per cent by the very imperfect and undecorticated way in which the natives sell them.

The unremoved shells or a pretty per centage in the affair and it is to be feared that this evil if not checked will grow on space and ultimately paralyse this branch of the Sherbro Trade.

God regards a saint in rags than a sinner in robes.

SELECTIONS.

Swallowed by a Whale.

Last February the whaling ship Star of the East was in the vicinity of the Falkland Islands searching for whales, which were very scarce. One morning the look-out sighted a whale about three miles away on the starboard quarter. Two boats were manned. In a short time one of the boats was nearly enough to enable the harpooner to send a spear into the whale, which proved to be an exceedingly large one. The boats attempted to get beyond the reach of the animal, which was apparently in its death agonies, and one of them succeeded, but the other was less fortunate. The whale struck it with his nose and upset it. The men were thrown into the water, & before the crew of the other boat could pick them up one man was drowned and James Bartley had disappeared. When the whale became quiet from exhaustion the waters were searched for Beartley, but he could not be found, and under the impression that he had been struck by the whale's tail and sunk to the bottom the survivors rowed back to the ship. The whale was dead, and in a few hours the great body was lying by the ship's side, and the men were busy with axes and spades cutting through the flesh to secure the fat. They worked all day and part of the night. They resumed operations next forenoon, and were soon down to the stomach, which was to be hoisted to the deck. The workmen were startled while labouring to clear it, and to fasten the chain about it, to discover something doubled up in it that gave spasmodic signs of life. The vast pouch was hoisted to the deck and cut open, and inside was found the missing sailor doubled up and unconscious. He was laid out on the deck and treated to a bath of sea water, which soon revived him, but his mind was not clear, and he was placed in the captain's quarters, where he remained two weeks a raving lunatic. He was carefully treated by the captain and officers of the ship, and he finally began to get possession of his senses. At the end of the third week he had entirely recovered from the shock, and resumed his duties. During the brief sojourn in the whale's belly Bartley's skin where it was exposed to the action of the gastric juices, underwent a striking change. His face and hand were bleached to a deadly whiteness, and the skin was wrinkled, giving the man the appearance of having been parboiled. Bartley affirms that he would probably have lived inside his house of flesh until he starved, for he lost his senses through fright and not through lack of air. He says that he remembers the sensation of being lifted into the air by the nose of the whale and of falling into the water; then there was a fearful rushing sound, which he believed to be the beating of the water by the whale's tail; then he was encompassed by a fearful darkness, and he felt himself slipping along a smooth passage of some sort that seemed to move and carry him forward. This sensation lasted but an instant, then he felt that he had more room. He felt about him, and his hands came in contact with a yielding, slimy substance that seemed to shrink from his touch. It finally dawned upon him that he had been swallowed by a whale, and he was overcome by horror at the situation. He could breathe easily, but the heat was terrible. It was not of a scorching, stifling nature, but it seemed to open the pores of his skin, and to draw out his vitality. He became very weak and grew sick at his stomach. He knew that there was no hope of his escape from his strange prison. Death stared him in the face, and he tried to look at it bravely, but the awful quiet, the fearful darkness, the horrible knowledge of his environments, and the terrible heat finally overcame him, and he must have fainted, for the next he remembered being in the captain's cabin. Bartley is not a man of a timid nature, but he says that it was many weeks before he could pass a night without having his sleep disturbed with harrowing dreams of angry whales and the horrors of his fearful prison. The skin on the face and hands of Beartley has never recovered his natural appearance. It is yellow and shrivelled, and looks like old parchment. The hair of the man does not seem to have been affected by his terrible experience; he is in splendid spirits and apparently fully enjoys all the blessings of life that come his way. The whaling captains say that they never knew a parallel case to this before. They say that it frequently occurs that man are swallowed by whales who become infuriated by the pain of the harpoon and attack the boats, but they have never known a man to go through the ordeal that Bartley did and come out alive.—Pt. Courrier,

Why Injure Yourself?

No man really wishes to injure himself, yet people frequently do things which work to their own injury, and which are no advantage to any one; and these injuries which they bring upon themselves are mostly inflicted needlessly and heedlessly.

For example, a man desires employment. He has a certain amount of strength, skill, intelligence, and ability, which he proposes to put into the market for sale. He therefore goes about seeking work, finds it, and enters the service of an employer.

We will suppose that he is competent to earn two dollars per day. He works a few days, something goes wrong or breaks under his hands, he conceals it, lies about it, or denies it, and his employer finds to his disgust that he has a liar on his premises. That reduces the value of the man at least a shilling a day, for we never know whether to believe what he says. Another day he is caught pilfering, stealing. Of cause he could steal many times his wages; but as employers do not intend to be robbed they are apt to put him at some work where he can be watched, perhaps hiring a man to watch him and others like him, or else he must be placed where there is nothing which he can steal, and thus be shut out from a variety of the better employments, and put where he can do no harm.

As a result his value is decreased another shilling a day. Presently it is found that he is liable to get angry, and quarrel, and break things, and there goes another shilling from his value. Perhaps he proves to be an idler, who is like a wheelbarrow, which goes as far as you push it, and stops when you stop pushing. He will then easily waste another shilling's worth of time in a day, waiting for someone to set him at work, or getting ready to quit work before it is time to leave off.

Some day it is also found that he takes a drop of beer, and the appetite grows upon him until finally he gets drunk. This reduces his value another shilling, for no one knows when he will go on a spree or turn up missing when needed. Along with his beer there is tobacco, which wastes his money, injures his health, and causes him to stink so that a clean man cannot stomach to have him round. This shuts him out from all decent places and decent employments. He might find work in a stable, if it were not for the danger of setting the barn on fire with his pipe, but on the whole he is a man whom no one is anxious to have about.

He now wants higher wages, for he needs money to buy tobacco and whiskey, and the less he is worth the more pay he clamors for, and this damages him at least another shilling a day in value. Discontented with his lot he becomes a chronic grumbler. He finds fault with his work, and murmurs at his wages. He joins some secret organization, and hopes by some process to lift himself up by his bootstraps, and obtain wages which no one is willing to pay him, and retain positions in which no one wishes to keep him. No one wants anything of him, but he is constantly making demands upon others. He spreads discontent, organizes revolt, abuses the man whose work he is hired to do, and who furnishes him with the bread he eats, makes other people dissatisfied and does more mischief than he does work.

To be continued.

NOTICE.

The Manager of this Journal wishes to inform the public of Bonthe and elsewhere that the columns of this paper are open to correspondents, and that all letters sent to publication will receive its attention, provided they are accompanied by the names of the writer, not necessarily for publication, but as a guarantee of good faith. Rejected manuscripts will not be returned. He however reserves the right of choosing such of them as he deems interesting. All work with which he is favored will be done in such a manner as he hopes will give satisfaction and secure patronage always.

Printed at the Office of the Early Dawn Bonthe, Sherbro. October 15th 1891.

THE EARLY DAWN.

"The Morning Light Is Breaking. The Darkness Disappears"

VOL. VIII. BONTHE, SHERBRO, WEST AFRICA, OCTOBER, 15. 1891. No. 19.

The 'Early Dawn'

Published Semi-Monthly at Bonthe Sherbro. Under the Auspices of the Board of Missions of the United Brethern In Christ

REV. E. C. BICKERSTETH, Editor and Publisher.

Bonthe, Sherbro, West Africa.

AGENTS

United States—Revs. B. F. Booth and Wm. McKee, Dayton; Rev. Wm. J. Davis, Buell, O. Rev. Rev D. K. Flickinger, Willoughby, Ohio. Rev. J. J. Sconer, Manheim, Pa., Rev. G. W. Arnold Eldorado, Ohio.

west Africa—J. A. Richards, River Gum Rev. J. S. Frederick, and Mr. E. A. Lowby Freetown, Sierra Leone. Rev. James Dupuy, Marshall, Liberia. Mr. Moses S. Boyle Lima.

TERMS

One Year by mail,	£0 6 0
Delivered in Bonthe,	0 5 0
Half yearly by mail,	0 3 0
Ditto, delivered in Bonthe,	0 2 6

The Devil's Goose Chase

One great part of the art of war consists in choosing the field of conflict. If the enemy can get you on his ground, where you cannot use your resources there he has a fair chance to take you at a disadvantage. The infinite conceit of the skepticism of the day is perhaps in these no more clearly seen than in the claim that all the old-time arguments by which Christianity was proved to be true, are outgrown and outlived, and new ground must be taken in order to meet the skeptical arguments of the day.

It is precisely true that there are improvements in the methods of modern warfare. They have new fashioned rifles, revolvers, etc; but a well-aimed shot at short range from the oldest blunderbuss that can be found, would do the business for a man as effectively as a ball from the latest kind of rifle that has been invented. So logic, argument and fact are not the special heritage of any particular age, and the same evidence which proved a thing in one generation may be amply sufficient to prove it in another. The men who lived in the days of Virgil and Horace, of Cicero and Tacitus, and in the days of Rome's imperial grandeur, were not all fools, nor were they utterly incapable of judging of facts which were submitted to their senses. And so things which were found true then are true now, and the same evidence which proved them then would prove them now.

The skeptical writers of the present day deny all this and while they are in utter ignorance of the vast mass of evidence brought to sustain the claims of the gospel, they propose that Christian men shall abandon everything that has been proved and settled in days gone by, and to take them on an everlasting wild goose chase over some new arguments which they profess to have found, but which turn out on examination to be mere fancies and guesses, which are as old as ancient heathenism, and as stale as Pharaoh's mummy. Dr Taylor Lewis speaking of this matter remarks:

"It is frequently asserted that the old reasoning on the evidences of Christianity, or of such a fact as that of the resurrection, will no longer answer in view of modern objections. It might have been doing," they say, "fifty years ago, but the higher criticism" as given a new aspect to the matter. Paley and Lardner did very well against the more shallow infidels of their day, but there has risen a race of subjectivity Anakim far surpassing them and Voltaire. The Bible and the Scripture needs a new way to meet them. German criticism has rendered all the old arguments obsolete."

"This is repeated continually. By sheer reiteration, often without the attempt to give any evidence, the impression is produced, on the minds of the young, that there has risen some new and terrible foe of all doubt, some most formidable by any former arguments. It is an undefined spectre. It is everywhere haunting our modern literature, though taking no precise form. It is the shadowy presence of some new enemy, never clearly seen, but who has rendered unavailing, it is said, all former tactics, whether of assault or defense. In defending Christianity, it it can be defended, we must make a new start, and proceed upon grounds differing altogether from the old.

"Now, this is all an impudent falsehood. We say it unhesitatingly. There are no such new difficulties as to be entitled to the name. There is no substantial objection to the Gospel, or to the Bible generally, that has not been known to scholarly and thinking men for more than a thousand years. Some skeptics of Bible authorship have been changed some, rode sical writings have been pronounced spurious, though very few that had not always been suspected; some new various readings have been discovered, but in no respects, or in the most essential respects have they changed the general aspect of the critical field, much less that great argument remaining the same from age to age, because built on the unchanging foundations of our deeply investigated nature. There is, in short, no vital, no essential difficulty, no one going to the root of the great debate, that was not as familiar to the learned men of the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries as to the best scholars now.

The Apostle Paul flung the whole burden of Christ in faith upon the resurrection of Christ. He knew that if Christ was not risen then apostles were impostors and that the whole basis of Christianity was a fraud. Cor. xv. Time to have settled that question was then and there and it was settled there by many infallible proofs;" and there were then living more than two hundred and fifty men who had seen the living Jesus Christ, Christ demonstrated his resurrection to his own disciples, and the fact so established is the whole question. Once established it is established forever. It was a fact that Julius Cæsar lived. That fact has never ceased to be a fact, and never will cease to be a fact. Men may doubt it, question it, disbelieve it, deny it, but the fact is settled. So the fact that Christ lived and died is settled beyond all possibility of question or contradiction, and the fact that he rose again was as apparent that in the very city where his death occurred there were three thousand who believed it within less than two months after it occurred.

Christians are not afraid to meet infidelity in any open field nor do they refuse to chase it into its hiding holes, but they do not propose to abandon the solid ground of fact and history and argument which has never been impeached, to go on a wild goose chase after every infidel notion, or chase every rabbit which the devil may start up by the side of their way. They propose to contend for the faith once delivered to the saints, hold fast the established facts which are settled and unchangeable, and then reach out after new facts and deal with new difficulties as they may present themselves.

A Shop Papered with the Bible.

A correspondent of the Friend of Missions in Japan tells the following interesting story of a lady who went into a cake-shop to buy some cakes for children. While waiting for the cakes she saw that the walls were papered with leaves from the Bible. This was so strange that she asked the old woman about it; and she told the lady that one day, passing by a book-shop she saw a pile of paper thrown away as useless. As her shop needed papering, she thought this was just the thing, and took some of it home, and pasted it over the walls. One evening her grandson came in and began reading aloud from the paper on the wall. The old woman was so interested in what she heard that she listened eagerly, and got all who would to read it to her. One day a young man came who asked her if she understood it, and whether she was a Christian. She told him how much she enjoyed hearing it, but she did not understand it much; so he promised to take her to church the next day. After this she attended regularly, and became an earnest Christian. She now keeps a stock of tracts by her, and buys every bag of little cakes she drops one. Is not this encouraging? All that good came out of leaves of the Bible thrown away, which were considered of no use.

Who fears to sin is truly brave.

THE EARLY DAWN.

"The Morning Light Is Breaking. The Darkness Disappears"

VOL. VIII. BONTHE, SHERBRO, WEST AFRICA, OCTOBER 15, 1891. No. 19.

The "Early Dawn"

Published Semi-Monthly at Bonthe Sherbro. Under the Auspices of the Board of Missions of the United Brethern In Christ.

REV. E. C. BICKERSTETH, Editor and Publisher.

Bonthe, Sherbro, West Africa.

AGENTS

United States—Revs. B. F. Booth and Wm. Koe, Dayton; Rev. Wm J. Davis, Buell, O. Rev. D. K. Flickinger, Willoughby, Ohio. Missioner, Manheim, Pa., Rev. G. W. Arnold, Elderado, Ohio.

West Africa—J. A. Richards, River Gallinas; Rev. J. S. Frederick, and Mr. E. A. Lowerstown, Sierra Leone, Rev. James Dopoe, Monrovia, Mr. Moses S. Doyle Marshall, Liberia. Mr. Moses S. Doyle Cape Palmas.

TERMS.

One Year by mail,	£0 8 0
Delivered in Bonthe,	0 5 0
Half yearly by mail,	0 3 0
Ditto, delivered in Bonthe,	0 3 0

The Devil's Goose Chase

One great part of the art of war consists in choosing the field of conflict. If the enemy can get you on his ground, where you cannot use your resources there he has a fair chance to take you at a disadvantage. The infinite conceit of the skepticism of the day is upon us here no more clear-sighted than in the claim that the old-time arguments by which Christianity was proved to be true, are outgrown and discarded, and new ground must be taken in order to meet the spiritual arguments of the day. It is perfectly true that there are improvements in the methods of modern warfare. They have new fashioned rifles, revolvers, etc; but a soldier armed at short range from the best blunderbuss that can be had, would do the business as many as effectively as a ball from the latest kind of rifle that has been invented. So logic, argument and fact are not to special bondage of any particular age, and the same evidence which proved a thing one generation may be amply sufficient to prove it in another. The men who lived in the days of Virgil and Horace, of Cicero and Tacitus, and in the days of Rome's imperial grandeur, were not all fools, nor were they utterly incapable of judging of facts which were submitted to their senses. And so things which were found true then are true now, and the same evidence which proved them then would prove them now.

The skeptical writers of the present day deny all this and while they are in utter ignorance of the vast mass of evidence brought to sustain the claims of the gospel, they propose that Christian men shall abandon everything that has been proved and settled in days gone by, and follow them on an everlasting wild goose chase over some new arguments which they profess to have found, but which turn out on examination to be mere fancies and guesses, which are as old as ancient heathenism, and as stale as Pharaoh's mummy. Dr Taylor Lewis speaking of this matter remarks:

"It is frequently asserted that the old reasoning on the evidences of Christianity, or of such a fact as that of the resurrection, will no longer answer in view of modern objections. It might have been done," they "say, 'fifty years ago, but the higher criticism' as given a new aspect to the matter. Paley and Lardner did very well against the more shallow infidels of their day, but there has risen a race of rebellious Anakim far surpassing them and Voltaire. The old method the Scriptures needs new arms to meet them. Gone to rationalism has rendered all the old arguments obsolete.'

"This is repeated confidently. By sheer reiteration, often without the attempt to give any evidence, the impression is produced, on the minds of the young, that there has risen some new and terrible to meet doubt, some most formidable by any former arguments. It is an undefined spectre. It is everywhere haunting our modern literature, though taking no precise form. It is the shadowy presence of some new enemy, never clearly seen, but who has rendered unavailing, it is said, all former tactics, whether of assault or defense. In defending Christianity, it it can be defended, we must make a new start, and proceed upon grounds differing altogether upon the old.

"Now, this is all an unparalleled falsehood. We say it unhesitatingly. There are no such new difficulties as to be entitled to the name. There is no startling objection to the Gospel, or to the Bible generally, that has not been known to scholarly and thinking men for more than a thousand years. Some points of Bible authorship have been changed some critical writings have been pronounced spurious, though very few that had not always been suspected; some new various readings have been discovered, but in no respects, or in the minutest essential respects have they changed the general aspect of the critical field, much less that great argument resulting the same from age to age, because built on the unchanging foundations of our deeply investigated nature. There is, in short, no vital, no essential difficulty, no one going to the root of the great debate, that was not as familiar to the learned men of the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries as to the best scholars now.

The Apostle Paul flung the whole burden of Christian faith upon the resurrection of Christ and declared that if Christ was not risen then apostles were deceivers and that the whole device of Christianity was a fraud (1 Cor. xv. The time to have settled that question was then and there and it was settled then by many infallible proofs;" and these were those living more than two hundred and fifty men who had seen the living risen Christ. Christ demonstrated his resurrection to his own disciples, and the fact established settles the whole question. Once established it is established forever. It was a fact that Julius Cæsar lived. That fact has never ceased to be a fact, and never will cease to be a fact. Men may doubt it, question it, disbelieve it, deny it, but the fact is settled. So the fact that Christ lived and died is settled beyond all possibility of question or contradiction, and the fact that he rose again was as apparent that in the very city where his death occurred there were three thousand who believed it within less than two months after it occurred.

Christians are not afraid to meet infidelity in any open field or do they refuse to chase it into its hiding holes, but they do not propose to abandon the solid ground of fact and history and argument which has never been impeached, to go on a wild goose chase after every infidel notion, or chase every rabbit which the devil may start up by the side of their way. They propose to contend for the faith once delivered to the saints, hold fast the established facts which are settled and unchangeable, and then reach out after new facts and deal with new difficulties as they may present themselves.

A Shop Papered with the Bible.

A correspondent of the Friend of Missions in Japan tells the following interesting story of a lady who went into a cake-shop to buy some cakes for children. While waiting for the cakes she saw that the walls were papered with leaves from the Bible. This was so strange that she asked the old woman about it; and she told the lady that one day, passing by a book-shop she saw a pile of paper thrown away as useless. As her shop needed papering, she thought this was just the thing, and took some of it home, and pasted it over the walls. One evening her grandson came in and began reading aloud from the paper on the wall. The old woman was so interested in what she heard that she listened eagerly, and got all who would to read it to her. One day a young man came who asked her if she understood it, and whether she was a Christian. She told him how much she enjoyed hearing it, but she did not understand it much; so he promised to take her to church the next day. After this she attended regularly, and became an earnest Christian. She now keeps a stock of tracts by her, and puts every bag of little cakes she drops one. Is not this encouraging? All that good came out of leaves of the Bible thrown away, which were considered of no use.

Who fears to sin is truly brave.

THE EARLY DAWN.

BONTHE, OCTOBER 15, 1891.

SHERBROLAND.

We beg leave to invite the attention of the Government to TYLDALE'S letter, which appeared in the columns of our last impression, the subject on which it treats being of momentous significance as affecting the peace and prosperity of Sherbroland.

For some time prior to its receipt, more or less authenticated reports have been made to us, all tending to show that both Mossoro Kai Kai and Mamboo Jan have been endeavoring by the line of conduct they have marked out for themselves to bring about troubles at the Kittam which might eventually drift the Government into war because no sooner the clang of arms is heard in the river, no sooner brutal butcherings among the aboriginal tribes again interfere with commerce, and as a consequence the Government is placed in an awkward situation with regard to revenue, than the Excellency Governor Hay would have cause to again take the field at the head of the Frontier police. But why should these men be permitted to place their country in the dilemma unless it be that although they are direct enemies to the Government their practical deceptions have not yet been found out?

Another cloud in our political atmosphere is found in the fact that Mossoro Jan continues to hold possession of Pujehun against the will of the rightful owner Wunnie. It is a farce for him to urge that he came into possession by war; for in regard to such lands it is the known and confirmed custom that they are to be vacated as soon as peace is restored, a circumstance of which Mossoro Jan cannot be ignorant. By all means let him restore the land, and for this purpose Commissioner Alexander ought to be instructed [illegible] from his [illegible] another outlet, or in the event his [illegible] to remove any of [illegible] Mossoro Kai Kai and Mossoro Jan's factions stopped and kept in this condition, a Deputy Commissioner appointed, and life and property [illegible] Bonthe, Kittam, and [illegible] would be permanently [illegible] in short Sherbro would enjoy years of peace and prosperity.

SHAINGAY DISTRICT.

From Shaingay we learn that the ladies of the Women's Christian Temperance Union are working on the minds of the people of that place, and even beyond the neighboring villages. A few months ago they hired a number of [illegible] employed men to pull [illegible] volunteering to act as [illegible] the boat. They visited [illegible] villages, in each of which [illegible] were collected, and [illegible] portions of Scripture on [illegible] were read to them, to which they listened attentively. They [illegible] sang some Temperance Songs and endeavored to convince the people of the virtue of [illegible] total abstainers.

These women are determined upon an open warfare with intemperance, and it is to be hoped their efforts will be crowned with success. We are also pleased to learn that they are making arrangements for a great Public Temperance Meeting, to be held in some convenient town where Bacchus at present reigns supreme.

Some temperance notorieties are to be invited, and the Shaingay Training School Band is expected to be in attendance, as well as the President of the Society and the chief's wife. Mrs. Caulker, wife of the present "Queen Chie", is amongst the [illegible] Should names as these cannot be obtained a decent number, [illegible] speeches will be made in the Sherbro language.

CORRESPONDENCE.

☞ We shall not be responsible for the opinions of our Correspondents. Correspondents will please write on one side of paper only.

"SALEM" OR THE HOLY JERUSALEM.

The Editor Early Dawn.

This little chapel that has been [illegible] whose name was dedicated to the mighty God for Divine worship on the 13th of September last by the Rev. S. Hughes, Pastor of the Wesleyan, Bonthe, Sherbro.

[illegible] was from 1st Kings, chap. viii. It is praiseworthy to the people of the Lower Kittam to see that they have not cast away their

☞ The Manager of this Journal will be very thankful to those subscribers who are in arrears for a sufficient of their accounts as it will enable him to make more improvements in the paper for the benefit of its readers.

Erratum.—In our last issue we stated in mistake that Mr J. H. Pratt, of the Bush Clarke Institute, Shaingay, was born in 1893 instead of 1873.

THE EARLY DAWN.

Bonthe, October 30, 1891.

SHERBROLAND.

We beg leave to invite the attention of the Government to Tyndale's letter, which appeared in the columns of our last impression, the subject on which it treats being of momentous significance as affecting the peace and prosperity of Sherbroland.

For some time prior to its receipt, more or less authenticated reports have been made to us, all tending to show that both Mormon Kie Kie and Mormon Jah have been endeavouring by the line of conduct they have marked out for themselves to bring about troubles at the Kittam which might eventually drift the Government into war: because no sooner the clang of arms is heard in the river, no sooner brutal butcherings among the aboriginal tribes again interfere with commerce, and as a consequence the Government is placed in an awkward situation with regard to revenue, than His Excellency Governor Hay would have cause to again take the field at the head of the Frontier police. But why should these men be permitted to place their country in this dilemma unless it be that although they are covert enemies to the Government their practised deception has not yet been found out?

Another cloud in our political atmosphere is found in the fact that Mormon Jah continues to hold possession of Pujehoo against the wish of the rightful owner Whobay. It is a farce for him to urge that he came into possession by war; for in regard to such lands it is the known and unaltered native custom that they are to be vacated so soon as peace is restored, a circumstance of which Mormon Jah cannot be ignorant. By all means let him restore the land, and for this purpose Commissioner Alldridge ought to be instructed on his return from his furlough to have this matter settled, or in his absence his locum tenens may at once do so. Mormon Kie Kie and Mormon Jah's feathers clipped and kept in this condition, a Deputy Commissioner appointed, and life and property at the Boom, Kittam, and interior towns would be permanently secured. In short Sherbroland will enjoy years of peace and prosperity.

SHAINGAY DISTRICT.

From Shaingay we learn that the ladies of the Women's Christian Temperance Union are working on the minds of the people in that place, and even beyond, in the neighboring villages. A few Sabbaths ago they hired a boat and employed men to pull, one of them volunteering to act as captain of the boat. They visited several villages, in each of which the people were collected, and appropriate portions of Scripture on Temperance read to them, to which they listened attentively. The ladies sang some Temperance Songs also, and endeavored to convince the people of the virtue of becoming total abstainers.

These women are determined upon an open warfare with intemperance, and it is to be hoped their efforts will be crowned with lasting success. We are also informed that they are making arrangements for a great Public Temperance Meeting, to be held in some inland town where Bacchus and Satyr reign supreme.

Some temperance notorieties are to be invited, and the Shaingay Training School Band is expected to be in attendance, as well as the President of the Society and the late chief's wife. Mrs. Neale Caulke, wife of the present Regent Chief, is amongst the speakers. Such names as these cannot fail to attract a decent number, since the speeches will be made in the Sherbro language.

CORRESPONDENCE.

☞ We shall not be responsible for the opinions of our Correspondents.

Correspondents will please write on one side of paper only.

"SALEM" OR THE HOLY JERUSALEM.

The Editor Early Dawn.

This little chapel that bears the above name was dedicated to Almighty God for Divine worship on the 28th of September last by the Rev. S. Hughes, Pastor of St. Matthew's, Bonthe, Sherbro. His text was from 1st Kings, chap. viii, v 20. It is praiseworthy to the agents of the Lower Kittam to see that they have not cast away their religion as soon as they leave the shores of Sierra Leone, but have still retained their Christian profession and have erected a building amongst the natives with whom they have to do their daily transactions, for the purpose of prayer and praise to their Creator. I wish, Mr. Editor, if all Sierra Leoneans residing amongst these our brethren, where there is no house of worship, should try to imitate the above example, and if not in a position to erect a building, a house should be selected to congregate themselves, as also the heathens—for every place is hallowed ground—for prayer and praise, that they may follow their footsteps, and in future be able to glorify our Father which is in Heaven. I congratulate the members of the "Holy Jerusalem," especially Messrs I. M. Tilly, A. G. Tilly, S. B. A. Campbell, J. B. Thomas, J. V. Cole, Madam Marie Davison, Miss P. A Collier, etc. etc. for the heavy work they have undertaken upon themselves to perform. May their lives be long spared to see the productive fruit of their earthly labour.

Thanking you Mr. Editor for space occupied.—Yours,

Cnnrat Yhandai,
Chief of Carleh.

30th October, 1891.

"The Editor Early Dawn"

Sir,—I understand that some of the young gentlemen of Bonthe are organizing a club for the purpose of procuring a brass band, in order to cast off the fetter of monotony that presently binds Sherbro.

As such I think it but necessary to make myself useful, by giving to my young friends, a word or two of advice; space for which, I dare hope you will kindly grant me.

I must have my young gentlemen understand first, that many an association of this kind had taken a similar start, when the members generally exhibit extraordinary ambition; but this they do for a while and then like the colours of the rainbow, their energy disappears.

I think at least some of my young friends would like to know what are generally the causes of these failures. As a wellwisher, I should mention a few of the most important nature. And if these be carefully avoided, will not only tend to ensure their expected end but will also give the desired pleasure to their expectant surroundings. They are as follows:

Firstly. The keeping of members who are clothed in impenetrable cloacks of conceit.

Secondly. Of those who will always consider themselves the wisest and most sensible of men and would not allow others to lead them; when in truth they are what one may call ignorant.

Thirdly. Of those who lack and would not learn good manners, by be example that are being displayed by well bred and well disposed persons.

Fourthly. Of those who would remain motionless, until others exert themselves.

To give more means wearying your patience, but permit me to say to them, that they should not leave the least of their charges under the direction of any conceited individual. The smallest part of anything of this sort improperly done, is yet to spoil the whole. I need not say "if one comet disturbs, the whole system is affected."

If they have made mistakes of the kind I would advise them to alter or rectify same as early as possible.

I must close with the hope that my humble advice if taken will prove beneficial to my young friends.

Meanwhile accept my sincerest thanks in advance.

I am Yours very truly,

Alacrity.

The Editor Early Dawn.

Sir,—There has been so much misunderstanding about a certain place in the Boome, Mofwa by name, that I am compelled to insert in the valuable organ of news an explanation which I hope will be satisfactory to all concerned.

For the commercial relation as well as coming in contact with the Interior, which is beneficial for the knowledge and trade gained, it is the bounden duty of every true citizen to maintain the rights and to protect as far as possible the weakness of our people and country that are nestled by and on the sides of the rivers

We are to defend our little country from the intestine broils as did Greece, Rooma and mighty England. It is quite necessary so to do and all will constantly be peace, prosperity and success.

Now to my question, it was very astonishing when informed that the general public think and take Canray Nancy as being the possessor of the above named place. Very astonishing to think of an East Indian to come and claim Sherbro, when he knows so much of Sherbro as an inferior animal does of abstract reasoning!. The fact of the matter is the above named gentleman is quite a stranger in our midst: it is only of a recent date that he settled with us that being the fact, how is it possible that he should be recognized as a possessor of a place of which he knows nothing? Therefore we are obliged assert that chief Mondi Mansah alias Ghanah, Yandihah is the sole owner of Mofwa and that Canray Nancy who has been rumored to have possession of the place has nothing at all to do with it.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for your valuable space.—Yours,

Relative.

Mofwa, Oct 19th, 1891.

THE EARLY HISTORY OF OUR ANCESTORS.

I shall not presume to give you in this place a detailed history of my ancestors. From the fact that the subject is relation to the writer is of a twofold nature. First, As a Sherbro and second as a Caulker. Here there shall be no attempt on details, but singular characteristics and fragments as they come along the course of my discourse. It would be useless to give you the characteristics of the Sherbros, before the appearance of the Caulkers in this land. Their customs, manners, and belief with rare exceptions, stand the same. One striking contrast is evident, however, that the former Sherbros possessed nobler minds than those of today. Also that political matters are not what they were. Outside of these the Sherbro is the Sherbro. It is most pitiful that the pages of history are yet void of the Sherbroman's history, for with all seeming disqualification there is still something interesting in the fact that they owned a country and still own it, and maintained it, one way or the other. And if one were to examine closely the history of the Sherbros during the time of our ancestors, it would interest you no less than that of Rome and Greece. Hence those days may be justly called the "Heroic days of old". Were there greater exploits, in the annals of history, ever displayed by any nation in dark days like those they lived. Were there nobler deeds, or nobler minds that have carried prodigious plans to effect, and wrought great things, in such illiteracy our fathers were. No! never. We read in history of a time called the "Dark Ages" when people scarcely knew how to write their names. What greater things did they than we, till when the Age of Rival began—than battles, wars, seiges—nothing but that, the same, read we of Spartan forwardness for want of literature. It is said also by historians that "Rome conquered Greece by the sword but Greece conquered Rome by her letters." So the same fact holds true in all vocations, that "As the mind must govern the hands so must the man of intelligence govern the man of labor." It is no wonder then my dear hearers, that my ancestors, and yours, exercised no influence over the world civilization, but were rather engaged in those sanguinary exploits that mark them as heroes. We must enter a little into the particulars of the Heroic age. Before doing so, we must necessarily mention the chief actors of the drama, and in doing so we cannot but mention that family to which belongs the lecturer before—namely the Caulkers descendants of a European named Caulker who found this way into the land about the latter part of the 18th century. In common with [illegible] Cleaveland Rogers and Fergusson who settled in other parts of the country. Caulker soon fell into the political matters of the country and soon after the possession of the country devolved upon him not illigitimately of course. But I would not enter into the complicated details of their proceedings. These are they who were the principal actors on the stage. But more specially Thomas Stephen Caulker. This is that mighty potentate who for years wielded the majestic wand of the "Brave Days of old" He stood like a pillar amidst a mass of ruins unrivalled. He suffered no equal nor brooked a superior. The fabrications of his principles were based on the simple truths and laws of nature, that gave him such preeminence all around. In this day the cannon boomed, and darkened the fair welkin with sulphuric vapor; the sword flashed as it never had done befor. Not that he delighted in these engagements, but to keep the dignity that becometh him. 'Twas then lived that mighty progyv, the wary Thuah Namah, who like great Hannibal on the plains of Italy scattered his enemies like chaff, set in awe the proudest heart, and never permitted the barbarian, himself being a barbarian, to stretch forth his hands over his honoured potentate, whose story would have emblazoned the pages of history, and to wearing the scrolls of fame 'Twas then that Rouday lived Barbonga, warrior of note; John Torthevan the mighty swimer who swam at one time the expanse from the Plantain Island to the Sinjabole point. May I yet speak of bold King Doomabbey, who with earliest morn on a bloody day of battle on the boiling waters, when the Fates blackened the hopes of victory and, the fierce barbaria rushed with avidity towards their doomed back,—paused and scenes of life flashed instantly in his mind, as one sinking beneath the waves, steady and calmly as a god at the end often [illegible] a lasting look on this [illegible] death destined brethren; death was to him a stranger and the captives to be slaughtered. Then his broad sword [illegible] and dying with his [illegible] his doomed [illegible] a lasting farewell —escaped, and great was the [illegible]

Thus saved, he lived as a king, and had been the last support of the "Brave days of old." I may yet speak of others whose story delighteth the ear, which time would not allow. O History! History! Here lies glittering characters that would render thy pages [illegible] which you have left out of record. Methinks thou art biased to favor other nations and omit some. Ah! the heroes are gone to rest. Under some shady recess they lie waiting the great resurrection day. Time, thou art a remorseless tyrant. All that now remains of them remains in song, and their story to us is but a trifling tale. Aye! that island too I remember where occurred some of these tragic incidents. It is now but the phantom of that once illustrious island. Its ruins afford a lurking place for reptiles. Low beneath the waves thy canons lay. Where now are thy sons, whose vigilance kept thee in thy glory. Lo! they are gone, and now lie wasting beneath the sands of time.

"Now you ye proud impute to these the fault
If Memory o'er their graves no trophies raise."

J. H. Caulker.

Shaingay, 1891.

The man who never makes mistakes never makes anything that is worth being made.

☞ It is uncomfortable to think how some readers of the Early Dawn Newest paper like to do so on the CHEAP. Some of them have been supplied with the paper regularly without paying a farthing towards its support since its commencement seven years ago, and when applied to for payment they shuffle better than the most expert card player.

When cash is the reward men are thrown,
Like one armed bear when the dogs are drawn.

GENERAL NEWS.

The two English houses in Bonthe—Sierra Leone Coaling Company and Pickering & Berthoud—have requested us to dispute the statement extracted from the "Sierra Leone Times," and published in our last issue, that the French Company is the "solitary" house in Sherbro which buys palm kernels free from shell and dirt.

H.M. Colonial steamer "Countess of Derby," Captain Compton, R.N., arrived in the harbour about mid-day on Thursday 22nd instant from Freetown, with Major Moore, Inspector-General of Police and a detachment of Frontier policemen for Bendoo and some of the Frontier stations; also W. E. Inniss, Esq., officer in charge Survey Department, with a compliment of masons to continue the construction of the river wall at Bonthe, which was suspended during the rains.

Rev. R. C. Taylor, of the Shaingay district, arrived here on Friday the 23rd instant, on his way to the Boom and Kittam rivers.

Mr. Bidwell Coker, for many years the chief native clerk of the French Company at Bonthe was convicted of petty larceny of the goods of his employers on Friday the 30th instant, and sentenced to one month's imprisonment hard labor.

Bonthe has been favored with a visit from Lawyer Wright, who had but recently returned from England. It is expected he will leave to-morrow for Freetown.

Rev E. C. Bickersteth pastor of Good Hope Station, left for the Boom and Kittam rivers to-day for a missionary tour.

PLEASANTRIES.

A cow never faints but often turns pail.

A guest in the midst of conversation said one morning at the breakfast table, "I eat honey with impunity."

A little boy, four old, who sat near his mother, piped in, "I eat mine with pancakes."

Mrs Hogan—Do you notice, dear, how pale and melancholy our Harry is getting, to be? He is even more emaciated than usual.

Mr Hogan—Then we had better pack him off to college at once.

A polite man never does a favor before the favor is asked.

ORIGINAL DEFECTIVE

16 MAY 1968 BRITISH MUSEUM Ins.

SELECTIONS.

CONFLICTING DUTIES.

It is right for children to obey their parents in the Lord; but when parents command their children to do things which are plainly wrong, then it is rather to obey God, for his requirements override and nullify all opposing obligations. It is right in the church for persons to obey them that have the rule over them, whom the Holy Ghost hath made overseers, to feed the flock of God; but when rulers in the church rule wrongfully, when they oppress or deceive, when like Diotrephes they love to have the "preeminence, reject the apostles, and cast out servants of the Lord, then it may be duty to resist and protest against such usurpation, and, in the of overmastering and predominating evil, to throw off the burdensome yoke, and stand free in Jesus Christ, even though we be obliged to stand alone.

It is the duty of the wife to be loyal to her husband, to be a little blind to his faults and patient with his infirmities; yet if she knows that husband to be a hypocrite and a deceiver, her duty to God and the truth may be more imperative than any obligation to her husband.

A man who traveled about professing to preach a gospel which he neither believed nor practiced, once came to the little church among whom he had lived when at home, and asked them for a letter of recommendation, that he might still go out and preach. The members of the church either had not sufficient knowledge or courage to refuse his request, and were about to grant the desired recommendation, when his wife, a calm, intelligent, conscientious woman, arose and said, "I object. I do not think he is a fit man to preach the gospel." That settles the question, and left the deceiver to his own devices. It is hard to imagine the struggle in the heart of a noble and loyal Christian woman when called to perform such a duty as this; but who will say that its performance may not sometime be demanded by solemn and imperative obligation to God? Who shall say that a failure to do such a duty might not under some circumstances make one partaker of another's sins? Of one woman who had endured and suffered and finally had separated herself from connexion with such evil it was said, "she is overwhelmed with joy that she no longer leads the life of a hypocrite in covering the faults of one whose life is a succession of dodges and escapes from one subterfuge to another.

Doubtless there are not a few men and women whose lives are made living shams through the enormity of the hypocrisy of others, and who cannot be their honest and true and noble selves until liberated from the thralldom of the deception and hypocrisy of others.

Duty often requires that we should bear, endure, and sacrifice much, but there are limits even here. Every one must personally give account to God, & when the sins of others involve us in falsehood, deception and hypocrisy, it is time to stop, and warn the offenders of their sins and danger, and be true to God at whatever cost. We are to deceive for no one. We are servants of a God of truth who has bid us to put away lying, speak every man truth with his neighbor. Of course we must face unpleasant consequences if we meet such issues in the right spirit, but we must not suffer ourselves to be made partakers of other's sins, or bear the guilt of other's deceptions. Earthly obligations are transient; earthly relationships are temporary. Our obligations to God are supreme, changeless and eternal.

THE RACE PROBLEM.

For more than a century the race problem has vexed the people of this country. Platform and press, preacher and politician, have all had the question under consideration; but thus far its solution has not been reached. Prejudices of generations dead and buried exist today at fever heat, and no present indications will be handed down to generations to come. A hundred and one remedies have been suggested, some of which, if carried into effect no doubt would be helpful, while others would prove exceedingly hurtful. After all that has been said and written upon the subject, one fact, to my mind at least, is clear, and that is, that the marked social distinctions between the two races will not be blotted out this side of the grave. These distinctions seem to inhere in our very constitution, and cannot be avoided; nor do I think God would have it otherwise until his gracious purposes in saving the nations of the earth are fully realized. Bishop Turner of the African Methodist Episcopal Church, sees it in this light, and urges that all the friction and bitterness growing out of the race question be ended by re-turning the colored people to Africa, the land of their ancestry. The blacks are away from home on American soil. From first to last their lot has been one of abject slavery or political oppression. Their environments have been and are such as to make them restless. For a great while they have looked and hoped for something better. Would they not find that "something" in their own God-appointed home? An appropriation of a few hundred million dollars would establish a line of steamers between Charleston or New Orleans and Africa, which would afford comparatively easy and rapid transit for the bulk of our colored population. Once on the "dark continent" with their civilization the work of building churches and schools would immediately begin, and more would be accomplished by them, as an evangelizing force, in one decade than could otherwise be expected in a half century.

The colored man was brought here without his consent. If he cannot be at peace with his white neighbor, and be accorded fair play, he ought to be returned to the land from which he was carried by wicked hands, and thus given an opportunity to elevate and save his benighted brethren. If not, why not?

The negro is willing and ready to return home is quite certain. Not long since a report was circulated to the effect that a ship will soon sail from Savannah to Africa. The news was hailed with joy by the colored people of Southern Georgia, and tens of thousands packed their goods and made ready for the voyage. The report was false, but it served to show what these blacks would do if the opportunity were given.

Such a wholesale emigration would result in at least two things which all are anxious to see; namely, first, the securing of peace and harmony between the northern and southern people of the United States in so far as the race question is involved; and secondly, the speedy enlightenment of Africa, the most important mission field on the globe.—Religious Telescope.

JOTTINGS FROM R. TELESCOPE.

It is often the case those who are the most indebted in using trouble are the most given to borrowing it.

One of the effectual ways for resisting the devil is to call him by his right name. He can not endure plain honest talk.

The man who says too much about his religion injures the cause almost as much as he who says nothing at all about it.

"Children should be seen, not heard." Yes and in many instances it would be better for some men if they were heard less and seen more.

Never be afraid or ashamed to be in the minority when the minority is right; but to be in the minority when the minority is wrong is unmanful stupidity.

In the day of prosperity we have many refuges to resort to in the day of adversity only one.

NOTICE.

The Manager of this Journal wishes to inform the public of Bonthe and elsewhere that the columns of this paper are open to correspondents, and that all letters sent to publication will receive his attention, provided they are accompanied by the names of the writer, not necessarily for publication, but as a guarantee of good faith. Rejected manuscripts will not be returned, He however reserves the right of burning such of them as he deems interesting. All work with which he is favored shall be done in such a manner as he hopes will give satisfaction and secure patronage always.

Printed at the Office of the Early Dawn Bonthe, Sherbro, October 24, 1891.

THE EARLY DAWN.

"The Morning Light is Breaking. The Darkness Disappears."

VOL. VIII. BONTHE, SHERBRO, WEST AFRICA, NOVEMBER 15, 1891. No. 20.

The 'Early Dawn'

Published Semi-Monthly at Bonthe Sherbro. Under the Auspices of the Board of Missions of the United Brethren In Christ

REV. E. C. BICKERSTETH, Editor and Publisher.
Bonthe, Sherbro, West Africa.

AGENTS

United States—Revs. B. F. Booth and Wm. McKee, Dayton; Rev. Wm J. Davis, Basil, Ohio; Rev. D. K. Flickinger, Willoughby, Ohio; M.J., Bissey, Meadville, Pa., Rev. G. W. Arnold Eldorado, Ohio.
West Africa—J. A. Richards, River Gambia; Rev. J. K. Frederick, and Mr E. A. Lewis Freetown, Sierra Leone; Rev. James Dopter, Marshall, Liberia, Mr. Moses B. Boyle Liberia.

TERMS

One Year by mail,	$0 60
Delivered in Bonthe,	0 50
Half yearly by mail,	0 30
Ditto. delivered in Bonthe	0 30

Examine Every Parcel.

It is a characteristic of some persons to desire freedom from care; to wish some one else to do the thinking, and set their seal on everything, and release them from the responsibility and insight necessary to ascertain just how things are. With many people a certain brand upon a manufactured article is sufficient, and when once that brand is seen no further inquiry need be made. In other cases men's opinions are tested in a similar way. If a man is vouched for as orthodox by some great light, that is held to be entirely sufficient, but if no one is ready to vouch for him he may be regarded with the gravest suspicions.

One evil result of this method is that men are rated according to their professions rather than according to their merits, and while an honest man may decline to make the required profession, and so may be rejected as a rogue, a hypocrite is likely to confess anything that is desired in order that he may secure his own advantage. The result is that the man who is conscientious and careful to give no wrong impression, may be rejected as a heretic, while the man who is willing to lie himself through, finds more profit in hypocrisy and falsehood than the other man does in conscientiousness and honesty.

It may be that these evils are unavoidable, but it is possible that people make a great mistake when they fail to examine for themselves the individual cases which come within their notice. There is very much deception in our times. We can tell very little about the character of things by the label which they bear. The safer way is to open every parcel. And so men must each be tested for themselves. God has given to men some degree of discernment of spirit, though they may not always have the courage to use it, and failing to do this they suffer the consequences. From time to time instances occur where churches and peoples are dishonored and disgraced by ministers who may answer every requirement of creed or catechism, yet are wicked in heart and sinful in life; and when these men have done their mischief and brought disgrace and dishonor on the name of God and the cause of Christ, straightway one and another will say, I always felt there was something wrong about that man. Doubtless this has been the feeling of multitudes. Why did they not give utterance to that feeling? Are men to stifle their convictions and benumb their consciences? Are spiritual men to listen to hypocrites and knaves, and fear to question their honesty or examine into their character? Surely this does not seem to be the part of wisdom or of grace. If God gives a man wisdom he intends he should use it. If he gives him understanding, he intends it should be applied in some reasonable, sensible way; and he who shuts his eyes when the Lord has opened them, has no one to thank but himself if he is deceived and misled. We are not to judge hastily or harshly, but we are not to blind our eyes nor shut our ears, nor reject those delicate intuitions by which our heavenly Father would warn us against evil and save us from deception.

—The Christian.

He that hath no bridle to his tongue hath no grace in his heart.

THE WAY OF PEACE.

The "war path" is trodden by many feet, but of multitudes of the sons of men it may be truly said "the way of peace they have not known." They involve themselves in difficulties, in quarrels, in strivings and brawling. They miss "the way of peace."

There are others who are sons of peace, who are peacemakers, blessed of God and honored of men: whose paths lead far from the haunts of strife, who have little to do with the animosities and conflicts and struggles of the world. They have learned the way of peace. They have found that the first step in that way is to be at peace with God, to submit to him, yield to his wise kind protection, and give themselves up to be his servants, his followers, and his children. Having "peace with God, through our Lord Jesus Christ," they have peace within their own hearts. The turmoil and the strife of insubordination, ambition and rebellion are done. The conflict is over, they rest in God, they repose in his protection, they follow his leading, they pursue the path which his providence points out, and they find this is the way of peace. They may have enemies, but they themselves are peacemakers. If reviled they revile not again, if they suffer they threaten not, they avenge not themselves, but rather give place to wrath. If their enemies hunger they feed them. If they thirst they give them drink; and in so doing they heap coals of fire upon their heads.

The blessedness of this way of peace no tongue can tell. It is a heavenly way, a way cast up for the ransomed to walk in, a way which leads through green pastures, and by the side of still waters, ways of pleasantness and paths of peace.

Let those who have felt the struggle of an inward warfare, and the groaning of an internal conflict, turn their feet into the ways of peace. If they would love life, and see good days, let them refrain their tongues from evil, and their lips that they speak no guile. If they would know the blessedness that passeth understanding, let them ask and receive the Holy Spirit, whose fruits are love, joy, peace, longsuffering, meekness, temperance, faith. And when their feet have thus entered upon the way of peace, let them pursue that path with quiet courage, with persistent zeal, and at last there shall open on their vision, Salem, the city of peace, where sorrow, and tears, and tempest, and turmoil shall be unknown, and where the peace of God shall keep each heart, and the joy of the Lord shall be the abiding and eternal heritage of his people.

Help One Another.

"I will try to help others, especially the weak, the poor, the sick and the sorrowful."

A woman was walking along a street one windy day when the rain began to come down. She had an umbrella but her hands were full of parcels, and it was difficult for her to raise it that wind.

"Let me, ma'm; let me please," said a bright faced boy, taking the umbrella in his hands.

The astonished woman looked on with satisfaction, while he managed to raise the rather obstinate umbrella. Then taking out one of those everhandy strings which boys carry, he tied all the parcels snugly into one bundle and politely handed it back to her.

"Thank you very much she said. You are very polite to do so much for a stranger."

Oh, it's no trouble, ma'm, he said with a smile, I like to help people.

Both went their ways with a happy feeling in their hearts for such little deeds of kindness are like sweet smelling roses blossoming along the path of life.

We all have our opportunities day by day, and shall one day be asked how we have improved them.

Speak not well of yourself, nor ill of others.

Prayer, if it be done as a task, is no prayer.

☞ The Manager of this Journal will be very thankful to those subscribers who are in arrears for a settlement of their accounts, as it will enable him to make more improvements in the paper for the benefit of its readers.

We have been publishing this notice since August last, and with the solitary exception of a European house in Freetown, not one other subscriber has made a voluntary payment, that we may sing "Beauty and glory are beaming around."

DIED.—At Bonthe, Sherbro, on the 12th inst. at the residence of his brother-in-law, Mr R. Glassie, Rev W. S. Macauley, many years in the service of the Mendi Mission. In our next we shall give an account of his life and labors.

THE EARLY DAWN.

BONTHE, NOVEMBER 15, 1891.

SHERBRO ISLAND.

THE change which has come upon the territories adjacent to Sherbro island is by no means taciturn. It is obvious that the old order of the past has been succeeded by the peaceful new, brought about by the vigilance of the Government, their administration being marked with traces of indefatigable energy.

The remarkable course pursued by this Government to curb the haughty warlike of the precocious free-booters whose predatory incursions all but annihilate the commercial interest of this part of Western Africa, is worthy of the unanimous admiration and gratification of the general public.

Such are the successes attending the sharp, incisive, far-seeing sweep of statesman-like practised eye; for like results are of slow growth in the history of nations, so much so that we cannot but applaud the Sierra Leone Government for their dauntless perseverance.

Despite the commodities resulting from the energetic arms of the Government, the present state of affairs not only demands commiseration but may serve to hinder the progress of commerce in Imperehland.

We understand that a goodly number of the sons and daughters of the district had fallen victims to the premeditated malice of an opposite faction. What may have been the cause of this awful barbarity we are not told; but we venture to state that these homicidal malefactors, conscious of their inability to carry on their plundering warfare, clandestinely give vent to their malicious intent in a manner commonly known as cannibalism. Strictly speaking the people are not cannibals but wilful murderers. They, evidently, do not feed on the remains of their victims, but spitefully mutilate them whenever possible to satiate their thirst for revenge.

The Government has been endeavouring to discover one or more of these atrocious wretches, but has failed in the attempt. We say failed because in the face of the reward offered to any who could at least give information as to the apprehension of one of the aggressors, up to date not one has been found out.

The question now arises what further step should be taken, seeing that those very arms which curbed Indin's pride, could not penetrate this vicious mystery. It is our humble opinion that the aborigines be permitted to go through the ordeal of their custom—in other words their country fashion—for the discovery of the execrable villains, as is done in the Timneh and other countries.

We think that not only will the so-called cannibalism have an end but these butchering fiends, raving and revelling in their butchery, shall have their due reward, and the inhabitants of the Imperch shall cease to mourn.

IT would be well indeed if the Government could find it possible to interfere in the practice carried on by women all along the wharfline, in their endeavor to obtain fish from the various fishing canoes which go out daily for the purpose of catching fish, the second necessary of life, the first being, rice, obtainable in these parts. Long before these canoes begin to return to the shore, women, civilised women, almost nude, are to be seen wading in the water towards the approaching canoes, and sharp contests, vile language, and other shameful scenes become the eyesore to passers-by; and irequently life is jeopardised in the whole transaction. It was only a day or two that the circumstance came under our immediate observation, hence we have been obliged to advert to it, in the hope that something may be done to alter the practice.

THE weather has been so variable of late, that we really cannot say through which season we are passing. Unusually heavy showers come almost daily, and instead of making the atmosphere cooler and pleasanter, the heat is intense, without the customary zephyrs to invert it, which is generally the weather experienced at this period of the year.

CORRESPONDENCE.

☞ We shall not be responsible for the opinions of our Correspondents. Correspondents will please write on one side of paper only.

FOR THE EARLY DAWN.

(From a Correspondent.)

In comparing the present issues of the "Early Dawn" with those of former years, one can very well realize the saying "The morning light is breaking, the darkness disappears."

The darkness that once seemed to brood over its columns, which caused it to be so uninteresting as to discourage both subscribers and correspondents, seems now to be dispersed by the serene light of morning. And there seem to be very bright prospects of success in the not distant future. I think, however, that if the "Early Dawn" is to succeed at all, its success must depend chiefly on correspondents and supporters.

The grand aim of newspapers is to benefit the country or countries in which they are published, by telling out such news or giving out such events as might tend to the welfare of a people, the building up of a race and nation; and also to give every patriot of his country the chance of giving out to the world such suggestions as he knew would tend to the improvement of his country, and which he could not otherwise have done so easily had there not been the advantage of newspaper communications; but where a different aim than that of the improvement of a country is substituted, success generally becomes a thing very improbable if not impossible. It is, therefore, meet and right that correspondents should be very careful what they write; and publishers too, what they publish.

The African problem should be of vital importance to every thinking Negro. And if we endeavor to send to the columns of our newspapers such articles or news as may tend in tome way or other to enlighten the minds of those around as to its solution, our papers will soon become more interesting, and in consequence more flourishing.

The state and condition of Sherbroland, with its semi-civilised capital Bonthe, and its inhabitants, the dilapidated state of Christianity which seems to exist in Bonthe at present and other matters of vital importance, are subjects wide enough to occupy the minds of correspondents of the "Early Dawn."

And if instead of lashing the fury of their tongue on some unfortunate individuals, they make this the topic of correspondence, we shall, in a very near future, see the "Early Dawn," a flourishing and successful paper. You shall hear from me again, Mr. Editor; but at present I say "Au revoir."

WHY MISSIONARY WORK GOES SLOW IN AFRICA.

The Editor Early Dawn.

Sir,—All things considered, I am of opinion that Mission work goes quite as fast in Africa as it has ever gone in any other heathen country. When we take into consideration the great length of time that this complication of diseases has had full control of this whole nation, the disease has become chronic. It is fused through blood and bone, and I know of no patent medicine that can cleanse them, nothing but the blood of the Lamb can do the work, and this to be permanent must be gradual. The great oak that stands the storm does not grow in a day. Rome was many years in building, England is today the grandest Christian nation on this globe, yet such passages as the following are to be found in Greene's History of England—'The new England was a heathen country, the religion of Woden and Thunder trampled over the religion of Christ.' 'For they are' sang a renowned poet of the time, 'fierce beyond other foes and cunning as they are fierce.' The sea is their school of war and the storm their friends, they are sea wolves that live on the pillages of the world.'

'A century after they landed, the English are still known to their British foes as barbarians, wolves, dogs, whelps from the kennels of barbarism, hateful to God and man.' This was in 449. A missionary sent to England in 635 on his return declared 'among a people so stubborn and barbarous, success was impossible.' Engla had never been oppressed and ill treated as Africa has been; for 400 years the vilest of spirits have been pouring into Africa, this together with the most brutal slavery, combined with heathen vices and superstitions, have made themselves masters of the African. True there is power in the Gospel to free them, and it will do it and is doing it, but the work is great and the laborers few. Bear in mind also that it is only 100 years since the Gospel first entered africa, and with only a corporal guard, whilst the enemy has constantly been pouring in in legions. I think it a miracle that so much territory has been taken possession of. In one sense it is true the work goes slow, for this is a fast age, and in a work of this kind it is wisdom to make haste slow, but whether it goes faster or slower, this we know, it is the Lord's work and victory is sure. The enemies may scoff, the Lord's time is the best.

J.

The Editor Early Dawn.

Sir,

The ignoble mind loves ever to assail with secret blows its fellow parer, beings of their kind'.

I am a stranger in this place and I assume you that since I came, I have been cherishing some fondness for the place. Being so nicely situated, the inhabitants ought not to complain of unhealthiness, Bonthe not being a very bad place in this respect. I dare say the European residents, who are strangers to our climate, and in fact, the most delicate in health among us would endorse my sentiments. In short, Bonthe in many respects is good, but very bad in one.

It may tell hard on a good many of my friends, those at least given to the vicious practice of slandering. But I must help telling the truth,—Slandering is prevalent in Bonthe to an enormous extent. So you can see, that in this place, without the specie breezes

Every prospect pleases
But only man is vile.

and it may be years before this poetical reproach can be removed; as I have observed that what is considered loathsome among nations that are being better respected, a good many of our people here put to practice.

Instead of a shelter for foreigners some of our women have made the Government shed a resort for gaddies and slanderers. I believe the shed was erected for a nobler purpose than to encourage gadding and slandering. I feel obligated to you, Mr. Editor, for having the opportunity of expressing myself thus feebly through the medium of your most valuable journal, for which I thank you.—Yours,

ALACRITY.

Bonthe, 12th Nov., 1891.

The following letter was written by a Shaingay schoolboy, and may be read with interest:—

HOW TO DEVELOP THE SHERBRO COUNTRY.

The Editor Early Dawn.

Sir,—First to develop our country is to get our people truly converted. Then when Christianity has taken the hearts of our people the country will develop in the light. They are now very much in the dark. Then they will see that they are standing in their own light. Let the young men put away the idea of having four and three unlawful wives, as well as secret societies also, and try to put away the rum selling and all other idol worshipping. These are the things that keep our country from developing. I pray you all will help us to get these things out of our country and then you will see how fast our country will develop.—Yours,

F. DE WINTON.

Shaingay, 1891.

Sympathy for the unfortunate and suffering is the attribute of a great soul, and it can be cultivated by exercise.

The Editor Early Dawn.

Sir,—I have just finished reading a book entitled "Black America," written by an Englishman, who claims to know more about American slavery and the treatment of the blacks during slavery days there and since emancipation than those who were born and raised in the country. Can it for a moment be supposed by any candid and unbiased man that an Englishman going to America and only remaining a short time can competently judge, who only sees the outside appearances as they seem to him? This question which he claims to have solved has puzzled the best statesmen for 50 years. What, and how to best manage the black man in America? Those who have been born and educated in America, and are familiar with American institutions, know that the English do not consider Americans on equal footing with them, and that their sympathies are with the people of the Southern States of America. Why? Because the Southern States gave them cotton, one of the main arteries that keep them alive to-day. The American cotton produced by slave labor could be sold to England at a price that would be profitable to them, and the manufacturers could realize a larger profit then than now. The poor in England, to-day, are in a worse condition than half of the American slaves were, excepting the right to flog them. In the case of American slaves, it was a rare thing to hear of their masters starving them to death. It was not good policy. His labor was in demand. We are told, by Englishmen that the black man is still oppressed by Americans. Admit that and look at the English side. Show me in any of her colonies where a black man is at the head of any responsible Government Department and no white man over him as chief? With England's boasted freedom the United States Government in 26 years has taken the black man out of chains of bondage and to-day gives employment to two thousand four hundred black men, whose salaries range from six hundred to five thousand dollars per annum, and no distinction on account of color in the amount of salary. If a black man is capable of filling an office he gets the same salary as the white man, and is chief of the department, if it is an independent one. You can count on your fingers the number of such offices held by black men in English colonies. Now comes the great problem of the age. What is to be done with the black man? The great statesmen of to-day, both English and American, are sorely puzzled. Well look back 50 years, and all seemed quiet and not disturbed. Why? Because slave-holding people had him bound up in chains and driven by the lash, not even allowed to say his soul was his own. No question then about the "Destiny of the Negro."

In God's own time He will settle this matter as effectually as He settled the "Slavery question." We have the key of knowledge and all we have to do is to be industrious. Keep step with the improvements of the age; get money and be honest, and let no opportunity pass to grasp the good that is passing.

COMMUNICATING WITH THE STARS.

Sir Robert S. Ball, LL.D., F.R.S., Astronomer Royal for Ireland, writes to the Graphic:—An old French lady who died at Pau a few weeks ago, seems to have been studying certain astronomical writings with so much enthusiasm that she has left £4,000 to be awarded as prize to that individual who shall first bring to a successful issue any scheme for opening up communication by signals between this earth and any of the other planets. Now, suppose, for a moment, that rational beings did exist in some of the other heavenly bodies; it seems difficult to know what conceivable language should be devised by which they could communicate with us, or we could communicate with them. It is not here a question of distance alone, it is the language or symbols to be employed that offer a fundamental difficulty. It is quite conceivable that on some judiciously selected site human endeavour should compile a building or monument sufficiently large to be discerned by dwellers on the moon, if there were any, and if there were provided with telescopes as large as ours. But what hieroglyphics are we to construct which should convey a notion to the mind of a being so totally different from ourselves as must be a denizen of the moon or on any other globe? Perhaps the most diligent student of Mars in modern times is professor Schiaparelli. He has detected on it many features, such as canals, that had eluded observers who did not possess the same penetration that he is endowed with. Mars has on its globe ruddy regions which seem to be continents of land, and dark regions which seem like oceans of waters. The poles of Mars are also indicated in a remarkable manner by an accumulation of white materials distinctly suggesting the presence of an ice cap at each end of the axis. Those persons must be rash who presume to limit the possible discoveries of the futures.—Christian Herald.

☞ It is uncomfortable to think how some readers of the Early Dawn Newspaper like to do so on the CHEAP. Some of them have been supplied with the paper regularly without paying a farthing towards its support since its commencement seven years ago, and when applied to for payment they shuffle better than the most expert card player.

When cops to the crowd are thrown,
Each one makes that which fits his own.

GENERAL NEWS.

We beg to draw attention to an article extracted from 'The Christian Herald,' and which appears in another coulumn of this impression, showing the rapid strides of Science, as to express a desire today to unfold the curtains of futurity and peep into the caverns of eternity.

The German steamer Marie Woermann, of the Hamburg line of steamers, consigned to Messrs Paterson, Zochonis & Co came to anchor off York Island on the 29th ultimo, where she remained several days taking in African produce, and left on the 6th instant. This steamer carries the finest launch that ever steamed in these waters.

The Rev. R. C. Taylor, of the Shaingay District, who passed here towards the end of last month on a missionary tour to the Boom and Kittam rivers, completed his trip and returned to his station on the 10th instant.

We must congratulate the Superintendent of Roads for the improved condition of that portion of the road along the river line between Ghandamah factory and the bridge at the colony. Formerly the spot, after ebb-tide, was one large pool of material mud; now, it is a square and smooth road, agreeable to walk upon. Not only at this spot, but all over Bonthe right on to Mocolo, and beyond. Praise to Commandant Bennett.

That truth which might make our life deeper, purer, and better is the truth which is valuable, which should be sought with diligence, and which carries with it the sanction of responsibility.

arly Dawn.

st finished read-
d "Black Ame-an Englishman, ew more about
and the treats during slavery ice emancipation were born and ntry. Can it for ioted by any can-man that an Eng-
America and only time can compe-only sees the es as they seem uestion which he olved has puzzled
en for 50 years,
best manage the America? Those ora and educated are familiar with tions, know that ot consider Ame-
ooting with them,
mpathies are with
e Southern States
by? Because the gave them cotton, arteries that keep
y. The American by slave labor
England at a price
rofitable to them,
urers could realize en than now. The d, to-day, are in a
than half of the s were, excepting them. In the case
ives, it was a rare
of their masters to death. It was His labor was in e told, by English-
black man is still Americans. Admit
t the English side, ny of her colonies
man is at the head nible Government
no white man ever
With England's
the United States
26 years has taken out of chains of
-day gives employ-housand four hun-
n, whose salaries
x hundred to five
s per annum, and on account of color
f salary. If a black of filling an office
e salary as the white hief of the depart-
an independent one.
t on your fingers the ch offices held by English colonies.

Now comes the great problem of the age. What is to be done with the black man? The great statesmen of to-day, both English and American, are sorely puzzled. Well look back 50 years, and all seemed quiet and not disturbed. Why? Because slave-holding people had him bound up in chains and driven by the lash, not even allowed to say his soul was his own. No question then about the "Destiny of the Negro."

In God's own time He will settle this matter as effectually as He settled the "Slavery question." We have the key of knowledge and all we have to do is to be industrious. Keep step with the improvements of the age; get money and be honest, and let no opportunity pass to grasp the good that is passing.

COMMUNICATING WITH THE STARS.

Sir Robert S. Ball, LL.D., F.R.S., Astronomer Royal for Ireland, writes to the Graphic:—"An old French lady who died at Pau a few weeks ago, seems to have been studying certain astronomical writings with so much enthusiasm that she has left £4,000 to be awarded as prize to that individual who shall first bring to a successful issue any scheme for opening up communication by signals between this earth and any of the other planets. Now, suppose, for a moment, that rational beings did exist in some of the other heavenly bodies; it seems difficult to know what conceivable language should be devised by which they could communicate with us, or we could communicate with them. It is not here a question of distance alone, it is the language or symbols to be employed that offer a fundamental difficulty. It is quite conceivable that even some judiciously selected site human endeavour should compile a building or monument sufficiently large to be discerned by dwellers on the moon, if there were any, and if there were provided with telescopes as large as ours. But what heiroglyphics are we to construct which should convey a notion to the mind of a being so totally different from ourselves as must be a denizen of the moon or on any other globe? Perhaps the most diligent student of Mars in modern times is professor Schiaparelli. He has detected on it many features, such as canals, that had eluded observers who did not possess the same penetration that he is endowed with. Mars has on its globe ruddy regions which seem to be continents of land, and dark regions which seem like oceans of waters. The poles of Mars are also indicated in a remarkable manner by an accumulation of white materials distinctly suggesting the presence of an ice cap at each end of the axis. Those persons must be rash who presume to limit the possible discoveries of the futures.—Christian Herald.

☞ It is uncomfortable to think how some readers of the Early Dawn Newspaper like to do so on the CHEAP. Some of them have been supplied with the paper regularly without paying a farthing towards its support since its commencement seven years ago, and when applied to for payment they snuffle better than the most expert card player.

When cops to the crowd are thrown.
Each one makes that which fits his own.

GENERAL NEWS.

We beg to draw attention to an article extracted from 'The Christian Herald,' and which appears in another coulumn of this impression, showing the rapid strides of Science, as to express a desire today to unfold the curtains of futurity and peep into the caverns of eternity.

The German steamer Marie Woermann, of the Hamburg line of steamers, consigned to Messrs Paterson, Zochonis & Co came to anchor off York Island on the 29th ultimo, where she remained several days taking in African produce, and left on the 6th instant. This steamer carries the finest launch that ever steamed in these waters.

The Rev. R. C. Taylor, of the Shaingay District, who passed here towards the end of last month on a missionary tour to the Boom and Kittam rivers, completed his trip and returned to his station on the 10th instant.

We must congratulate the Superintendent of Roads for the improved condition of that portion of the road along the river line between Ghundamah factory and the bridge at the estuary.—Formerly the spot, after ebb-tide, was one large pool of malarial mud; now, it is a square and smooth road, agreeable to walk upon. Not only at this spot, but all over Bonthe right on to Mocolo, and beyond. Praise to Commandant Bennett.

That truth which might make our life deeper, purer, and better is the truth which is valuable, which should be sought with diligence, and which carries with it the sanction of responsibility.

3

any features, such as canals, that had eluded observers who d not possess the same penetration that he is endowed h. Mars has on its globe ruddy regions which seem to be continents of land, and dark regions which seem like oceans of waters. The poles of Mars are also indicated in a remarkable manner by an accumulation of white materials distinctly suggesting the presence of an ice cap at each end of the axis. Those persons must be rash who presume to limit the possible discoveries of the futures.—Christian Herald.

☞ It is uncomfortable to think how some readers of the Early Dawn Newspaper like to do so on the CHEAP. Some of them have been supplied with the paper regularly without paying a farthing towards its support since its commencement seven years ago, and when applied to for payment they snuffle better than the most expert card player.

When cops to the crowd are thrown.
Each one makes that which fits his own.

GENERAL NEWS.

We beg to draw attention to an article extracted from 'The Christian Herald,' and which appears in another coulumn of this impression, showing the rapid strides of Science, as to express a desire today to unfold the curtains of futurity and peep into the caverns of eternity.

The German steamer Marie Woermann, of the Hamburg line of steamers, consigned to Messrs Paterson, Zochonis & Co came to anchor off York Island on the 29th ultimo, where she remained several days taking in African produce, and left on the 6th instant. This steamer carries the finest launch that ever steamed in these waters.

The Rev. R. C. Taylor, of the Shaingay District, who passed here towards the end of last month on a missionary tour to the Boom and Kittam rivers, completed his trip and returned to his station on the 10th instant.

We must congratulate the Superintendent of Roads for the improved condition of that portion of the road along the river line between Ghundamah factory and the bridge at the estuary. Formerly the spot, after ebb-tide, was one large pool of malarial mud; now, it is a square and smooth road, agreeable to walk upon. Not only at this spot, but all over Bonthe right on to Mocolo, and beyond. Praise to Commandant Bennett.

That truth which might make our life deeper, purer, and better is the truth which is valuable, which should be sought with diligence, and which carries with it the sanction of responsibility.

A FEW THOUGHTS

About the Africans in general and Sherbro in particular.

My ears are constantly hearing hard things said about the Africans by foreigners, both Americans and English. They seem to have forgotten that there can be no effect without a cause. It is claimed by some that they are incorrigible, and were it not that I see daily Africans filling honorable positions of trust and holding the same for years—many who have served the Government faithfully for a number of years—I might become discouraged. Now in their old age they are receiving pensions. Much of this abuse comes from those whom we have a right to look to for sympathy and good council.

I am persuaded that there never was a more abused class of people inhabiting this globe. Every nation and every class of people feels called upon to give the poor Africans a thrust or a kick. Is it a crime to have a black skin and kinky hair? The African is despised, and it is not because Noah cursed Canaan either as some claim, but his degradation has been brought about by his own brethren who are of his own flesh and blood. If he is treacherous and cunning and is possessed of all those traits of character which make a people detestable, is it not because he has been taught by his superior brethren? I will give a specimen of the treatment he has received from his more enlightened brethren. It is an extract from a letter written from Freetown, Sierra Leone, in 1794 to the Sierra Leone Trading Company.

This letter will give a faint idea of the kind of treatment these people have been receiving for nearly 500 years, and things have not changed much for the better except in places favored with missionaries, and even in such places horrible deeds are often perpetrated, but to the extract,—

"A slave vessel which has been waiting for some time in the neighboring river for her load of slaves arrived here. The captain has been complaining bitterly of his tedious detention, and in the course of the conversation he went the length of observing that if he had been well manned he would not have allowed the trader with whom he had been dealing to detain him as he had done; for, said he, there is a large town directly opposite to where my vessel lay, and if my hands on board had been sufficient I would have carried off some of the people.

I asked him whether carrying off people in that way had been common.

Oh no, at all uncommon replied he. We do so every day on the Gold Coast, we call it panyaring. If a native in that part is not so speedy in his payments as he ought to be, you man your boats towards the dusk of the evening and bid your sailors go up to any town that is rather near where they catch as many people as they can, no matter whether it be your debtor's town or not. If your debt is large it may be necessary to catch the people of two towns. After this your debtor will very soon complete his number of slaves.

But what if he should not?

Why we carry away our prisoners to be sure.

But is this proper?

Necessity has no law, besides panyaring is country law.

Did you ever recover any debts in this manner?

Aye, many a time, and I hope to do so again. I wish we had the same law here as on the Gold Coast, or that the old mulatto trader was alive. He was a fine fellow to do business with. He would never cause any delay to any person; but as for the present man I think he is afraid to make a haul of the people as the man before him used to do. He wants a proper spirit.

I asked him afterwards how he contrived with his slender crew to keep a proper guard over his slaves.

I take good care, said he, that they shall never do me an injury, for I put them in leg irons; and if leg irons be not enough, why then I hand cuff them. If hand cuff be too little, I put a collar on the neck with a chain fastened to it which is locked to ring bolt fastened to the deck. If one chain is not sufficient I put two, and if two won't do I put three. You may trust me for that.

Towards the end of the conversation he very gravely assured me that he had never known any acts of cruelty committed in the slave trade."

But are not these things cruelty?

Oh no these are not cruelties. These are matters of course. There is no carrying on the business without such things as these.

G.

Shaingay, Oct. 1891.

SELECTIONS.

IN A NUTSHELL.

A school-boy gave the following paper as his reasons for being a total abstainer: I abstain from alcoholic drinks because, if I would excel as a cricketer, Grace says 'abstain' as a walker, Weston says abstain as an oarsman, Hanlan says abstain as a swimmer, Webb says abstain as an orator, Bright says abstain as a missionary, Livingstone says abstain as a doctor, Clarke says abstain as a preacher, Parrar says abstain, Asylums prisons, and workhouses repeat the cry abstain.

Another lad wrote: "I would abstain from the taking of alcohol as beverage because it is a very selfish and bad habit It becomes the more so when you are married, and have got a wife and children to keep. The money that ought to go to them is spent in drink, and the common result is that there are discomforts and poverty in the house. Drunkards as a rule do not provide for the future, and lay a little by, but they go on drinking, still, perhaps quite unexpectedly, they die and leave their family behind in misery.

INFLUENCE OF COMPANIONSHIP

There is a Persian fable that a man took up a piece of scented clay. Perceiving its fragrance, he addressed it, "Art thou musk or ambergris? I am delighted with thy perfume." The clay replied, "I was but a poor piece of clay; but I was sometime in the company of the rose, and the sweet quality of my companion was communicated to me." The story very beautifully teaches the important lesson of the influence of companionship on character. But the influence may work on the side of evil as well as of good And the upright and pure who hope by their contact with the erring to reform and save them have great need of vigilance lest instead of communicating good to them they are themselves contaminated with evil.

DRINKING ICE WATER.

"That cool refreshing drinks in warm weather are delicious, is undeniable. That drinking ice water in copious draughts when a person is overheated is injurious, not to say dangerous, is also undeniable. But that the free drinking of water in some form is hot weather must be avoided is deniable, and is one of the greatest popular errors extant. When a person is perspiring freely from every pore, a vast amount of water is drawn from the body, which must be resupplied or great injury is being done the physical health, and the foundation of some of the worst forms of kidney disease is being slowly, but surely laid, diseases which should be washed out of the body by copious draughts of water, that most perfect of all known solvents, the same as a series of pipes are flushed with water to clean them out.

Good resolutions are good things to form, "provided they are well lived up to," as Mrs. Partington said of the doctrine of total depravity. But it is not so much in the forming of the resolutions as in living up to them where the benefits come in.

Everything that injures humanity is distasteful and ugly.

Every true Christian is a channel through which God's love flows to refresh the weary.

He knows a great deal who knows how little he knows.

NOTICE.

The Manager of this Journal begs to inform the public of Bonthe and elsewhere, that the columns of this paper are open to correspondents, and that all letters sent for publication will receive his attention, provided they are accompanied by the names of the writers, not necessarily for publication, but as a guarantee Rejected manuscripts will not be returned. All work with which he is favored shall be done in such a manner as he hopes will give satisfaction and secure patronage always.

Printed at the Office of the Early Dawn Bonthe, Sherbro, November 12, 1891.

THE EARLY DAWN.

"The Morning Light is Breaking, The Darkness Disappears."

VOL. VIII. BONTHE, SHERBRO, WEST AFRICA, NOVEMBER 30, 1891. No. 21.

The 'Early Dawn'

Published Semi-Monthly at Bonthe Sherbro. Under the Auspices of the Board of Missions of the United Brethern In Christ

REV. E. C. BICKERSTETH, Editor and Publisher. Bonthe, Sherbro, West Africa.

AGENTS

United States—Revs. B. F. Booth and Wm. McKee, Dayton. Rev. Wm. J. Davis, Bush, Ohio Rev. D. K. Flickinger, Williamsburg, Ohio. M.J. Stoner, Manheim, Pa., Rev. G. W. Arnold Elderidge, Ohio.

West Africa—J. A. Richards, River Gambia Rev. J.R. Frederick, and Mr Rob. Lewis Freetown, Sierra Leone Rev. James Dennis Marshall, Liberia. Mr. Moses B. Bogle Liberia.

TERMS.

One Year by mail,	£0 6 0
Delivered in Bonthe,	0 5 0
Half yearly by mail,	0 3 0
Dito. delivered in Bonthe	0 3 0

REST AND LABOR.

The rest of the Christian is not the rest of idleness or indifference. It is a rest which is a preparation for work; it is a rest from our own labors, and from the anxieties which have disturbed us; a rest which enables us to stretch out our hands in helpful labor, and rescue others from the sorrows which we have felt, the burdens which we have borne, and the troubles which have afflicted our own souls.

No one can truly and effectually labor for others, until he has himself first entered into rest. No one can faithfully work the work of God, until he has come to cease from his own works. And when the strife and the toil for rest and peace and pardon are ended, and when the sweet assurance of the Saviour's love has possessed the soul with an abiding peace; when the great question is settled, and the great debt is paid; when at last, "being justified by faith, we have peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ, by whom also we have access unto this grace wherein we stand, and rejoice in hope of the glory of God;" then having entered into this rest, we are enabled to lay aside every weight, and the sin which so easily beset us, and run with patience the race set before us. Then we are workers together with God. Then we can "be steadfast immovable in the work of the Lord, forasmuch as we know that our labor is not in vain in the Lord."

Christian.

CHARACTER FORMING.

The important period for forming character is that of youth. The late Lord Shaftesbury, one of the wisest and best of Englishmen, stated in a public meeting in London that he had ascertained from personal observation that nearly all the criminals in that city fell into a course of crime between the ages of eight and sixteen, and that when a young man lived an honest and honorable life up to twenty the chances were forty to one out of fifty that he would continue to live so afterward. A late writer, also a governor of Massachusetts said that of a ven hundred inmates of the State prison the average age of six hundred was under twenty one. Mr. Anthony Comstock, of New York City, who watches more closely the criminal statistics than any other man in that city, said some time ago that of four hundred and sixty-seven criminals convicted in the police court, under twenty-one years old fully one half were under sixteen.

All these are startling figures; and their important lesson is that youth is not only the formative period of life, but also the period of the greatest peril. It is during the early years of life that the most enduring impressions are made In those years is cast the mold or form that character is to take permanently. The vicious young man will seldom be other than vicious. The drinking or, carousing or dishonest young man will rarely break entirely away from his habits and become a pure and thoroughly upright citizen. There may be periods of reformation, and strong hopes are entertained that the inebriate, the swearer, and the defaulter will throw off his evil ways and become useful and true, but usually such hopes are disappointed. The reformation is only spasmodic, and does not last. Birds molt and cast off their feathers, and form new The serpent casts off its skin and the crab or lobster its shell, and fur or hair bearing animals put on a new coat. But the cow does not become white like a swan. The serpent retains its markining, the leopard its spots, and all other animals their color. So too often reformation in character touches only the surface, and soon all the old characteristics appear again. The first temptation that comes sweeps down all before it.

To the young, the boys and the girls in the Sun lay schools, comes the important responsibility of building up now a character that shall endure through life, and in eternity as well. It is for them to determine of what kind it shall be, whether honorable, noble, and true, a delight and pride to friends and family, or low, and a perpetual sorrow and reproach.—Chil. Friend

WHAT IS A MODEL WIFE

A model wife, says the Ladies' Home Journal, is the woman in whom the heart of her husband doth safely trust. She is the woman who looks after his household, and makes her hospitality a delight to him, and not a burden Who has learned that a soft answer turneth away wrath. Who keeps her sweetest smiles and most loving words for her husband. Who is his confident in sorrow or in joy, and who does not feel the necessity of explaining her private affairs to the neighbourhood. Who respects the rights of husband and children, also in return has due regard paid to her. Who knows that the strongest argument is her womanliness, and so she cultivates it. Who is sympathetic in joy, or in grief, and who finds work for her hands to do. Who makes friends and keeps them. Who is not made bitter by trouble, but who strengthens and sweetens under it. Who tries to conceal the faults of her husband rather than blazon them forth to an uninterested public. The woman whose life-book has love written on every page. Who makes a home for a man—a home in a house and in a heart. A home that he is sure of, a home that is full of love presided over by one whose price is above rubies. She is the model wife. Now if she has been fortunate enough to find a model husband, they can have a model home and a model family.—The Christian.

QUEEN VICTORIA'S SURNAME MRS. WETTIN.

The question has sometimes been asked, "What is Queen Victoria's surname?" A correspondent of the New York Star thus answers the conundrum: A friend the other asked me if I knew Queen Victoria's family name. I thought a moment and answered, "Why 'Guelph' of course." "Oh, no," answered my friend, "that is the name of the members of the family, but not the surname. Why the members of Queen Victoria's family are Guelphs by descent, her Majesty's marriage with Prince Albert would give her his surname, as is usual in such cases. And what was the family name of the Prince Consort I had to confess that I did not know. "Well" said my friend, "you are excusable for not knowing I suppose, since only a short time ago the same question was asked at a dinner party in London, attended by a number of personages of rank, some of whom were very near royalty and not a soul of them could answer it except the propounder of the question. The name in question is 'Wettin,' and the dondation of Saxony came to this family in 1420. Therefore without her crown she would be simply 'Mrs Wettin."

A Surgeon can much easier and with much steadier nerve cut off another man's leg than his own. So with most people it is easier for them to remove the mote from other people's eyes than to cast the beam out of their own eyes.

To deceive others is bad enough; but to deceive ourselves in matters of religion is moral suicide.

☞ The Manager of this Journal will be very thankful to those subscribers who are in arrears for a settlement of their accounts, as it will enable him to make more improvements in the paper for the benefit of its readers.

We have been publishing this notice since August last, and with the solitary exception of a European house in Freetown, not one other subscriber has made a voluntary payment, that we may sing "Beauty and glory are beaming around."

THE EARLY DAWN.

BONTHE, NOVEMBER 30, 1891.

ACTING COMMANDANT BENNETT.

MR. S. M. BENNETT, the Acting Commandant of Sherbro is, we learn, soon to transfer to Mr. G. H. GARRETT, late Travelling Commissioner, who has been appointed the Commandant or Manager of the district, the office over which he presided for many months with exemplary credit to himself and honor to the Public Service; and it is fitting, therefore, that we invite the attention of the public—the Sherbro public in particular—to the all but close of MR. BENNETT'S official career, which bears a marked contrast with the reign of injustice and wrong by which many a holder of this high office—now beyond our reach—has afflicted Sherbro in consequence of leaning too much to those whose interests have more or less assumed a doubtful and mischievous character.

It is a trite saying that most European officials almost enter always upon their duties in West Africa with liberal views and pure sentiments; but that having no local experience, selfish native officials and clerks, having an eye to their individual welfare, generally set them wrong; in fine what we may at times regard as shortcomings in European officials are what we have ourselves made them to be.

We are, therefore, happy to notice that our present Commandant has kept clear of every shoal that opens him to the repoach of the Sherbro communnity.

Level-headed, MR. BENNETT'S actions have been even with Europeans and Natives, and would never allow any private feeling to interfere with the discharge of his public duties. Such working men as these are those that are greatly needed in West Africa.

We watch with interest what steps will be taken by the Sherbro community to demonstrate their appreciation of the services of Commandant BENNETT in Sherbro, which is so soon to terminate.

THE ADMINISTRATOR'S VISIT.

His Excellency the Administrator, Major J. J. Crooks, with His Honor Chief Justice Quayle-Jones, J. P. W. Elliott, Esq., Collector of Customs, and the Acting Inspector-General of Police, Capt. Lendy, arrived from Freetown in H.M. Colonial steamer 'Countess of Derby' on Sunday the 21st instant from Freetown. The party landed, and after a brief stay on shore returned to the Countess, which steamed over to Bendoo, where His Excellency inspected the Police Barracks and other Government buildings on Monday. He returned to Bonthe the same day and made quite a survey of the place, accompanied by the officials mentioned above. The various public buildings, as well as the roads and bridges, had the personal inspection of His Excellency; and it is rumored that he was perfectly satisfied with all he saw, and gave instruction for the erection of a substantial bridge over the rivulet which separates Bonthe proper from the road leading to Yhandahoo.

We had long cherished the hope that the Government would some day see fit to erect a proper bridge over this stream, as we have frequently noticed how timidly the gentler sex cross the rickety bridge which is now laid across it, especially when the tide is up, and we are more than gratified to hear today that a substantial bridge will be thrown over this main highway at no distant period, for the convenience of the public.

WE understand that rumours of tribal feuds are rife about the Shaingay district, causing great anxiety to the inhabitants of that place. We are not in a position to say whether it is groundless, but we may feign hope that the Sherbro people of that locality could scarcely be so fool-hardy as to again attempt to molest the peace of that district so soon after 1888, for the action taken by the Government for the punishment of those who disturbed the quiet of Shaingay and the neighboring districts in that year ought to be fresh in the memory of them, and unless those Sherbro people are the emissaries of Satan, or are blindfolded by avarice and rapine, we see no reason for another scare; as indeed the up-shot would be to their everlasting regret, or to break up the community of Shaingay altogether, and make it the habitation of wild animals instead of rational beings.

We have not had any news direct from the seat of the Superintendent of the U.B.C. Mission, and cannot write with certainty; but we trust, should there be any truth in the rumor, that he and all the workers in the vineyard, as well as others, will be preserved by Providence from harm, that they may live to do those things which will redound to His eternal praise and glory.

Since the foregoing was written, the Rev. Joseph Gomer, arrived here and gave us a full account of the war scare. From what we learn from him it is reported that one Francis Caulker, brother of the late W. T. G. Caulker, who was executed some time in 1888 for bringing war to Shaingay, was bent upon revenging his brother's cause, and to that end had sent spies to Shaingay, along with a good many supposed war-boys. The influx of these strangers on the banks of the Bargroo, each carrying a bundle of country cloths, arose the suspicion of the police Stationed there; and putting suspicion into action, arrested and examined these bundles, in each of which, it is said, sword blades were concealed. The only explanation they could give for carrying those weapons was their master sent them.

It was timely that the Rev. Jos. Gomer returned to Shaingay at the time he did towards the end of last month from Bonthe—whither he had gone on a tour of inspection—for his presence in the town inspired courage to the inhabitants and dread to the would-be ruffians.

The Mission premises were well protected, and most of the people took refuge in the compound. Fortunately, however, there was no necessity to either fire a gun or strike a blow, and Shaingay district was at peace before our Superintendent left. He is now at Good Hope Station, with Mrs. Gomer, having brought her for a change of air after a short illness in Freetown.

CORRESPONDENCE.

☞ We shall not be responsible for the opinions of our Correspondents.

Correspondents will please write on one side of paper only.

The Editor Early Dawn.

Sir,—It is very remarkable and no less true that we are often less acquainted with the facts of every day occurrence than with those of rarer description. This may be the result of one of two causes; either from the intricacy of their conditions and the purposes to which they are ultimately subservient, or from constantly neglecting the changes under our notice in consequence of our familiarity with them.

There can be no doubt if we understand the nature of the process by which our daily conversations combine to the formation of our character, important result would follow in reference to the particular weakness about to be pointed out. In short, one should never think more of himself than he ought. It would make a vast alteration in society if this rational rule were to be observed; if every one were to occupy his fit place of self-appreciation and be mindful of the sacred injuction to esteem others better than himself, a great many mistakes and humiliation would be prevented.

It requires years to know what people really are when "flore statis," hence self-conceit is so common and prevalent among us; and my feeble effort by way of friendly advice to set forward the welfare of those to whom I am about to express myself. It is better to learn our own insignificance by reflecting on, and observing it, than to have it pointed out to us by our friends. Some are, apt to be self-conceited, and thus by their infatuation defeat the noble object of education, which is intended to make them wise. It is a common saying amongst our daddies and mammies that "Orinjah nebber bear lem," if ever it does, let such be assured that their wishes, if dictated by right motives, will be attended with success. In the meantime it should be remembered that sush a change can never be accomplished by merely adopting the mien and attitudes of another. One word more—be not satisfied with imitation; it is more difficult than aiming at a reality. I hope and trust, Mr. Editor, that my humble remarks may be the means of elevating the minds of our young men above the sphere of formal civilization.—Yours,

EXCELSIOR.

Bonthe, 24th Nov. 1891.

The Editor Early Dawn.

Sir,—I am quite interested in all the transactions affecting our local commerce, and the welfare of those who are lawfully engaged in it, and as such will you allow me to ask certain questions:

Is it true that a man named Alpha Bundoo, who was doing business with Mr. Peter Williams, and after getting in debt to that gentleman made himself scarce in Bonthe?

Is it true that he is at large in Freetown and endeavoring to undo Mr. Peter Williams?

Is it true that he pledged a boy in Bonthe to obtain money?

Is it true that a summons was issued for his apprehension, and that the man is walking the streets of Freetown unmolested?

If you can answer these questions, Mr. Editor, I shall be greatly obliged.—Yours,

JOHN TRUTH.

Bonthe, 26th Nov. 1891.

We are unable to answer any of the above questions.—Ed. E. D.

The Editor Early Dawn.

Sir,

Can we whose souls are lighted,
With wisdom from on High;
Can we to men benighted,
The lamp of life deny?

The Kittam river has been in a great measure productive, consequently it is the source of wealth to good many Sierra Leoneans. To illustrate time and space may not permit. However, "if thou wouldst behold its monument look around you."

Many years ago the Upper Kittam was in a state of utter darkness, and the practice of big grain was common among our countrymen, who had then the good fortune of establishing themselves as traders among their benighted brethren. . . . But years have rolled away since then, leaving their changes as they pass. Let us see the effect upon the Kittam to-day. Instead of native rude 'kekree' houses, the banks of this river are lined with beautiful houses of substantial construction.

The trading system is still going on, with moderate benefit, and a lot of Sierra Leone traders to compete for it. But for a while let us ask—How are the Sundays spent after each week of labor?

If our Kittam friends are spending it in a manner that will tend to draw their heathen brethren from the thraldom of sin and Satan to the foot of the cross, well they are worthy of praise. But if otherwise, dreadful shame be theirs, until they can exterminate it, by erecting a little church for the unalloyed worship of God in that locality.

When the Romans were in Briton, they strove, and not without success, to leave vivid marks of improvement there, before they returned to their own country. You shall hear from me again.—Yours,

ALACRITY.

Bonthe, 25th Nov. 1891.

THE TRAINING SCHOOL.—AN OPEN LETTER TO OUR YOUNG PEOPLE.

Dear Young Friends,—I wish I could see each one of you, and talk with you for I am deeply interested in you and I am concerned about your future. As I cannot see you and talk with you, I have asked permission of the Editor of the 'Early Dawn,' for a space in his paper. By the way, I hope you are all readers of the Early Dawn, for I shall have something to write you occasionally through its columns. I remember your bright faces when I used to visit your School for inspection & examinations. I hope you still have love for your books, many of you are members of the U. B. Schools, and you ought to be interested in your own Paper. Suppose we make a bargain, that each of you will subscribe for the EARLY DAWN, and then I shall write something once in a while, and you write about your schools. I, for one, would be pleased to hear about you and your schools.

Well I want to talk to you about The United Brethren Training School at Shaingay. We call it the "Hafris Clark and Wife Theological Training School"—A big name some people say the name is too big for such a school, but then boys and girls, have not some of you got great long names that were given you when you were young, and dont you hope and pray that you may be worthy of the name you bear, and dont you hope that some day some body will add a little to your name? I suppose you know that this school was established for the benefit of our boys and, girls of Sherbro. Yes it is a fact that a good man and his wife in far-away America, who never saw you or your country, were moved by the love of Christ, to help Africa, and they concluded that the best way to help Africa is to give the young people a Christian Education For if a people are pious, and industrious and if their minds are cultivated they will become a great people. This he says the Training School must do for the people of Africa. He sees that the country needs thoroughly equipped ministers and teachers and men qualified to conduct business and trades on Christian principles and good intelligent farmers. These could be sent in numbers from England and America, but Mr. and Mrs Clark (they are the persons who gave the money to build the school) think that the only way to obtain permanent results in missionary work, is to get the native to take hold of the work; if not then all the money spent in sending good teachers and missionaries would be spent in vain. Some people do not think as this good man and wife do.—Some do not believe in the ability of the African to evangelize his country and they say so. But you know children that this is not true. The African race may yet be in an infantile state, and as such may be weak in some respects but what nation in the world is not weak in some respect? But does not the great apostle say "I can do all things through Christ who strengtheneth me"? Do not those persons if they are Christians know what the Bible says, and if they know do not they believe the truths they pretend to teach?

Again some people wait till just before they die, and then they make a will leaving their money (when they can no longer use it) for some charitable object—never children put off usefulness till too late in life but Mr. and Mrs Clark have given their money, that it may do good on earth while they live. They want to set in motion an influence that will be far reaching, and eternal in its influence. Will you not help me pray that they may have the joy and blessedness of giving for Christ, while on earth, ere they go to inherit the saints everlasting reward?

I take my leave of you now, hoping to write you again.—Your friend

DANIEL F WILBERFORCE

Shaingay November 24th 1891.

Mr. Travelling Commissioner T. J. Alldridge who had been absent about four months on furlough, arrived per steamer, Foutah and passed for his district in the Sulymah country on the 22nd instant.

The s.s. Foutah arrived from Freetown on the 20th instant with mails and passengers.

SHAINGAY NEWS.

From Shaingay we have intelligence of the visit of three American ladies—Missionaries to the Rotufank Mission—to that place, who were on their way to their field of labor to reinforce the work there. The ladies who are managing the work in that mission seem determined that it shall not flag for want of a full compliment of efficient workers; and then with such a grand old man as Sorie Kessebbeh to back them in the work, they cannot fail to expect a rich harvest.

The ladies were in the best of spirits, although Neptune had punished them severely on the voyage out. Miss Mett-Hatfield, the doctress, administered a very successful prescription to Miss F. J. Clark, who at the time was down with a strong fever.

Mr. and Mrs. Miller were with the ladies, and appeared none the worse after their first year's labor in the tropics. They are agreed that 'Every prospect pleases.'

THE LATE REV. W. S MACAULEY.

It is unfortunate in wirting this sketch, that we are without data as to the age and birth place of the lately deceased brother; and cannot therefore, recall exact dates of the more important events of his life as a Minister in the Church of the United Brethren in Christ; but may only state a few facts connected with his misisterial life that may be of interest to the general reader and of more importance to the ministers and members of the U. B Church. Brother Macauley's labors in connection with the U. B. Church Missions began, as nearly as we can now recollect, some time in the seventies, and with slight intermissions continued until his death on the 12th inst. He was first employed as a mason, but feeling called to preach the Gospel was in due course received into the Ministry, his preaching being blessed with success, not for brilliancy of oratory, but soul-winning; he was ordained in 1883. His first pastorate was Rembee Station, which he opened in 1881 in one of the great Cannibal Districts of the Sherbro country. Rev. Macauley labored at Rembee with marked success and great changes were observed in that vicinity for good. His next charge was Danville Station in the wilds of the Impereh. Here the Lord greatly blessed his ministry. During his charge at Danville he built a neat little Parsonage or Mission House and chapel and wrought a very radical change among the people of the vicinity. His last station, M'Charmay, where he was when taken with his last fatal illness will long remember the deceased, as he is said to have done good work for the short time he was permitted to labor among the people of that place.

From his station on the North branch of the Tucker River, Brother MaCauley was brought to this place on the first of this month in a helpless, speechless, condition, accompanied by his wife, who was also unable to help herself. And after about ten days of patient suffering, breathed out his life so sweetly that a bright smile remained on his countenance to the last. Thus has a man of God fallen into the arms of our Blessed Master. His wife Mrs. Hannah M'Cauley, has since died which took place on the 15th inst. and husband and wife have now joined the majority. May Heaven's blessing attend the relatives and friends.

☞ It is uncomfortable to think how some readers of the Early Dawn Newspaper like to do so on the CHEAP. Some of them have been supplied with the paper regularly without paying a farthing towards its support since its commencement seven years ago, and when applied to for payment they shuffle better than the most expert card player.

When cups to the crowd are thrown,
Each one makes that which fits his own.

GENERAL NEWS.

The Superintendent of the U. B. C. Missions tender his sincerest thanks to the gentlemen of the Kittam and Gallinas rivers as well as those at Bonthe for their liberal donations made to the Rev R C Taylor, in aid of the funds of the Mission.

Rev. S. Hughes, Pastor of St Matthew's Church, Bonthe, arrived from Freetown by the steamer Foutah on the 20th instant, also Mr. Pasha, Catechist of the same Mission. Mr. Mase, Agent of the French Company, was also a passenger by the same steamer.

We have received a very interesting account from the Rev. R. C. Taylor of the Shaingay District, of his missionary tour up the Boom and Gallinas rivers during last month; but want of space prevents its appearing in this issue. Will appear in our next.

Rev. J. Gomer, our Superintendent, who came over last Thursday is still with us. He preached both morning and evening at Good Hope Church, and the congregation at both services was unusually large.

We publish in this issue another of those extraordinary articles from the Christian Herald entitled 'Reasoning by Explosions' and commend it to its merits.

SELECTIONS.

SPEED THE PLOW.

There is no successful sowing unless it is preceded by plowing. It is useless to scatter seeds among the thorns, and the call of God to his people is to "Break up your fallow ground." Plowing causes commotion. Under the greenest sward there are abundance of living creatures which, when they are disturbed run in every direction. Snakes, toads, worms grubs, and all sorts of creeping things start when the plow overturns the sod and stones, cuts through the roots, turns up the turf, and reveals the hidden things that have been burrowing beneath. When the turf is dense and strong it requires a heavy plow, a strong team, a skilful ploughman, and an energetic driver, to tear through the sod and revolutionize the soil.

One of the great instrumentalities for the breaking up of fallow ground is the press, and often the printed page cuts its way as few other instrumentalities will; but this breaking up plowing, is only effective when it has a strong team to spell it through. The writer and the editor may direct the course, sharpen the plow and give it edge, but the drawing power comes through the subscribers and readers. They must carry the load, and if they pull long and strong a good plow is likely to cut its way through.

There are thousands of people who need to be enlightened by the word of truth, many of whom are not likely to be reached except by the printed page. Let Christians be zealous to make use of the press and every other means within their reach, and let those who have the interest in the work of God, speed every plow which cuts through turf and turns up the soil, no matter if it disturbs bugs and crickets, worms and snakes. Men need to be awakened, aroused, quickened, and turned from sin and turned to God. Let those who labor to do this work have the earnest aid of all who love the Lord, and love his truth, and they will accomplish great work for God and for humanity.—Common People.

Religious mysteries are not to be conquered by the intellect, but they are to be interpreted and illuminated by the soul.

LET YOUR COMPANY ALONE.

The best direction for entertaining company is, "Let your company alone." How many people there are who, in the fussiness of their kindly hospitality, weary every person who comes within their home. They cannot be contented with making people welcome and giving them the freedom of the house, but they must continually be asking them if they will not have this or do that; if this thing pleases them, or that thing suits them; urging them to eat and to drink, to get up and to sit down, to take this chair or that chair, and go from this room to that room, when the thing that would most please their guests is to be let alone and be allowed to rest in quiet undisturbed.

Many people do not at all comprehend how pleasant it is to have rest, and be allowed the privilege of doing or not doing as we like. If Christian people will give a kindly welcome and make suitable provision for the wants of their guests, and then will let them alone, they will confer a great favor on many who are afflicted with fussiness, and weary of incessant attentions, but who prize the quietude and restfulness of those dwellings where they are "turned loose," and allowed to wander at their own sweet will, sitting or standing, sleeping or waking, speaking or thinking as their own hearts shall desire.

Christian.

RAINMAKING BY EXPLOSIONS.

General Dyrenforth and the rainmakers at Midland Texas, U. S., are jubilant. The first important experiments have been a success. Rain was made to fall on August 18, from a sky which, when they began, was cloudless, and from which no farmer would have looked for rain inside of a week, and they claim that the rain was undoubtedly caused by their explosion of oxyhydrogen balloons, rackarock powder, and dynamite. A balloon, containing these explosives was sent up about a mile and a quarter, and then exploded, the report sounding like a stunning thunderclap. The sun at this time was shining brightly, the sky was blue, and there were only a few small white clouds to be seen. The weather instruments showed the air to be remarkably dry, and the barometer indicated fair weather. Ten minutes after the explosion a string of kites were set flying, and when high in the air the dynamite attached to their tails was exploded. Then large quantities of blasting powder were scattered on the ground over a space two miles square, and exploded by electricity. The noise was like the firing of successive batteries of artillery. The smoke rose to the height of 2000ft., and was soon afterwards beaten down by torrents of rain. The sky had quickly become overcast; the barometer began falling ten minutes after the balloon explosion, and the rain was heavy over an area of 100 miles.

NEEDLESS DELAY.

What is more vexing than needless delay? Some little thing needs to be done. On it depends the doing of a dozen other things, all of which must wait until the first thing is accomplished. Thus sometimes a little thing which might be done in an hour or a day hinders other matters which are of great importance, and wastes time which is of the utmost value.

Persons who desire to be useful in the world should learn to do things promptly. Delay is often disobedience. It is better to refuse to undertake a thing than to undertake it and delay and dally until the hindrance becomes ten times as grievous and injurious as a direct refusal would have been at the beginning. If one man says he will not do a thing perhaps some one else will do it but if one says "I go," and goes not, he not only fails to do the work himself, but he prevents others who would have done it and causes an amount of trouble of which we frequently have no conception. My good friend, be prompt. What you undertake, accomplish. Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it with thy might.—Common People.

Your soul is a greater and grander revelation of God than all the splendid galaxies of heaven.

A HORSE'S SENSE OF SMELL.

Although dumb animals have no speech nor laughter, God has given them a certain fineness of senses which is lacking in human beings.

The horse will leave most hay untouched in his bin however hungry. He will not drink of water objectionable to his questioning sniff, or from a bucket which some odor makes offensive, however thirsty. His intelligent nostril will widen, quiver, and quiver over the daintiest bit offered by the fairest of hands.

A mare is never satisfied either sight or whinny the her colt his really hers until she has a certified certificate to the fact. A blind horse, now living, will not follow the approach of any stranger without showing signs anger not safely to be disregarded. The distinction is evidently made by his sense of smell, and at a considerable distance. Blind horses, as a rule, will gallop wildly about a pasture without striking the surrounding fence. The sense of smell informs them of its proximity. Others will, when loosened from the stable, go directly to the gate or bars opened to their accustomed feeding-grounds, and when desiring to return, after hours of careless wandering, will distinguish one outlet and patiently await its opening. The color of that particular part of the fence is their pilot to it.

Give because you love to give—as the flower pours forth its perfume.

NOTICE.

The Manager of this Journal begs to inform the public of Boathe and elsewhere that the columns of this paper are open to correspondents, and that all letters sent for publication will receive his attention, provided they are accompanied by the names of the writers, not necessarily for publication, but as a guarantee. Rejected manuscripts will not be returned. All work with which he is favored shall be done in such a manner as he hopes will give satisfaction and secure patronage always.

Printed at the Office of the Early Dawn Boathe, Sherbro, November 30, 1861.

NEWS.

have intelligence merican ladies—
to Sank Mission—ere on their way
r to reinforce the es who are man-
ast mission seem shall not flag for ment of efficient
ith such a grand essebbeh to back ey cannot fail to he best of spirits,

id punished them e out. Miss Mett-administered a ption to Miss F.
time was down

filler were with ared none the year's labor in are agreed that es.'

TE ACAULEY.

ate in wirting
we are with-age and birth tely deceased not therefore,
s of the more
of his life as Church of the in Christ;
te a few facts
his misisterial of interest to r and of more h e ministers of the U. B. r Macauley's
tion with the issions began,
an now recol-
in the sevenight intermis
until his death
He was first ison, but feel-each the Gos-urse received y, his preach-with success,
y of oratory,
; he was or-
His first pas-bee Station, ed in 1851
eat' Cannibal iherbro counuley labored marked suc hanges were vicinity for charge was in the wilds lere the Lord
his ministry.
e at Danyille
tle Parsonage or Mission House and chapel and wrought a very radical change among the people of the vicinity. His last station, M'Charmany, where he was when taken with his last fatal illness will long remember the deceased, as he is said to have done good work for the short time he was permitted to labor among the people of that place.

From his station on the North branch of the Tucker River, Brother MaCauley was brought to this place on the first of this month in a helpless, speechless, condition, accompanied by his wife, who was also unable to help herself. And after about ten days of patient suffering, breathed out his life so sweetly that a bright smile remained on his countenance to the last. Thus has a man of God fallen into the arms of our Blessed Master. His wife Mrs. Hannah M'Cauley, has since died which took place on the 15th inst. and husband and wife have now joined the majority. May Heaven's blessing attend the relatives and friends.

☞ It is uncomfortable to think how some readers of the Early Dawn Newspaper like to do so on the CHEAP. Some of them have been supplied with the paper regularly without paying a farthing towards its support since its commencement seven years ago, and when applied to for payment they shuffle better than the most expert card player.

When cops to the crowd are thrown,
Each one notes that which fits his own.

GENERAL NEWS.

The Superintendent of the U. B. C. Missions tender his sincerest thanks to the gentlemen of the Kittam and Gallinas rivers as well as those at Boathe for their liberal donations made to the Rev R C Taylor, in aid of the funds of the Mission.

Rev. S. Hughes, Pastor of St Matthew's Church, Boathe, arrived from Freetown by the steamer Foutah on the 20th instant, also Mr. Pasha, Catechist of the same Mission. Mr. Mass, Agent of the French Company, was also a passenger by the same steamer.

We have received a very interesting account from the Rev. R. C. Taylor of the Shaingay District, of his missionary tour up the Boom and Gallinas rivers during last month; but want of space prevents its appearing in this issue. Will appear in our next.

Rev. J. Gomer, our Superintendent, who came over last Thursday is still with us. He preached both morning and evening at Good Hope Church, and the congregation at both services was unusually large.

We publish in this issue another of those extraordinary articles from the Christian Herald entitled 'Rainmaking by Explosions' and commend it to its merits.

ISSUES
MISSING

THE EARLY DAWN.

"The Morning Light is Breaking, The Darkness Disappears."

VOL. IX. BONTHE, SHERBRO, WEST AFRICA, JANUARY 15, 1892.

The 'Early Dawn'

Published Semi Monthly at Bo nthe Sherbro. Under the Auspices of the Board of Missions of the

United Brethern In Christ

REV. E. C. BICKERSTETH, Editor and Publisher. Bonthe, Sherbro, West Africa.

AGENTS

United States—Revs. B. F. Booth and Wm. McKee, Dayton Rev. Wm J. Davis, Basil, Ohio Rev. D. K. Flickinger, Wil. loughby, Ohio. M. J. Stoner, Manheim, Pa. Rev. G. W. Arnold, Eldorado Ohio.

West Africa—J. A. Richards, River Gambia, Rev. J. R. Frederick, Freetown, Sierra Leone, Rev. James Deputy, Marshal, Liberia. Mr. Moses S. Boyle, Liberia.

TERMS

One Year by mail,	£0 6 0
Delivered in Bonthe,	0 5 0
Half yearly by mail,	0 3 0
Ditto. delivered in Bonthe	0 3 0

AIR IN THE CHURCHES.

There is always air in the churches, but it is not always fresh air. Sometimes it has been breathed over and over again for a score of times, until it has been robbed of all its oxygen, and is heavy with poison and death. At other times it is foul with impurities which have been securely imprisoned to stagnate for a week. No wonder the sermon is uninteresting, the preacher dull and the entire congregation stupefied, some sleeping with their eyes open, and some with their eyes closed. Even if he were to think only of himself, no preacher can afford to let his audience go to sleep for want of fresh air, and if he thinks of his heaven-ordained commission and the import of his message, he will see to it personally that there is a sufficient supply of fresh air in his church, and at the same time that that temperature is what it should be, and that drafts are not permitted to blow unpleasantly on any one in the audience.

It is related of Mr. Spurgeon that while preaching in a large hall, the air became oppressive, and stopping in the midst of his sermon he said: 'If those persons sitting near the windows will take their canes and umbrellas and knock out sufficient glass to let in some fresh air, I will pay all the damages as soon as I am done preaching.' The success of some ministers is due to their good sense, as well as to their sermons.

Why can we not have fresh air? it costs nothing. It is abundant and always at hand, needing only a proper place to get in. It would be difficult to say whether there is absolutely any thing in the construction of a church more important than proper means of ventilating, and yet in most cases this is entirely overlooked. In adopting plans and specifications for new churches, let people every-where see that this important matter receives its merited attention.—C. Conservator

VALUE OF TIME.

Many do not appreciate the precious and priceless endowment of time. That was a sentiment worthy of immortality penned by the military scientist, General Mitchell, when he said to his military staff, 'Gentlemen, astronomy has taught me to put great value on the worth of a millionth part of a second.' It was Horace Mann who formulated the sad advertisement, 'Lost, somewhere between sunrise and sunset, two golden hours, each set with sixty diamond minutes.'

FAITH IN PRAYER.

The prayer of faith is the only prayer that is acceptable to God or profitable to man. This is one thing of which the church in general and its individual members in particular need a new supply. The formal stereotyped prayer, drawled out as a matter of course, just as it has been for months and years, is not the prayer of faith.

The prayer of faith comes from a heart that trusts God.

The prayer of faith has a specific object.

The prayer of faith is so offered that its very tone indicates that the petitioner believes it is proper for him to ask God for that specific object.

The prayer of faith comes from a heart that is willing and anxious to do all it can to bring about the answer to its petition.

The prayer of faith comes from heart that truly believes that God is a prayer-hearing and a prayer-answering God.

The prayer of faith comes from a heart that rejoices in the fact that through the intercession and atonement of Christ a lowly mortal has access to God the father, who hears and tenderly regards the cries of his children.

The prayer of faith comes from a heart that truly believes that all things work together for good to them that love God.

The prayer of faith comes from a heart that believes that God condescends to use frail mortals as instruments in his hands for the accomplishment of his great and gracious purposes of benevolence and mercy.

The prayer of faith links the frail mortal petitioner to the omnipotent God.

The prayer of faith comes a heart that always concludes its petition by exclaiming, in all sincerity, 'Nevertheless, not my will, but thine be done.'

Oh, this prayer of faith! What a power there is in it! How it has lifted frail mortals into a special alligeance with the Omnipotent One! We stand appalled before the vast amount of wickedness in the world; but when we think of the power there is in the prayer of faith, and of the many, many all over the church who are praying this prayer, we thank God and take courage. The gates of hell shall not prevail against his church so long as its members continue to pray the prayer of faith.

—R. Telescope.

TRACING GOD'S FOOT-PRINTS.

If the Psalmist, standing on the shore of the Mediterranean, asking, "What are the wild waves saying?" and getting from their moaning music this answer, "The judgments of God are a great deep"—if he had possessed a little clearer understanding, would perhaps have heard those waves saying this also: "What I do thou knowest not now, but thou shalt know hereafter." For, science exploring this mystery of the ocean, and still leaving much of it mysterious and unexplained, has learned this at least: there is no howling waste of waters. 'It is itself the mother of life' and all the streams that are brooded on its surface are life-giving and life-saving. There are two texts in Revelation that used to seem to me incongruous, inharmonious. One: "There shall be no more sea." The other: "I beheld a sea clear as crystal." Now environed with mystery, covered with fog, seeing but a little, not knowing how life began, not knowing what may lie beyond its seeming end, not able to comprehend it, nor the divine purpose and end in it all, to us life is a great mystery, and "the judgments of God a great deep." But by and by, when we stand on the other shore, there will be no more storm, no more fog, no more mystery; all will be clear because we shall see life from the beginning to the end, and, standing by God's own throne, and invested with God's own vision, shall know as we are known. His judgments will no longer be a great deep. There shall be no more sea; or 'The sea shall be clear as crystal.' I remember once sailing over the crystal waters of Lake Superior. We had just come out of the muddy waters of Lake Hurone during the night, and early in the morning I came on deck, and looking over the prow, started back in instinctive terror, for, down in the clear waters of that lake, it seemed to me as though our keel was just going to strike on the sharp-pointed rocks below; but I was looking through fifty or sixty feet of clear water at the great rockbed of the lake over which we were sailing. Now we endeavor in vain to fathom God's judgments. As by a great deep they are hidden from us. But by and by the sea will grow clear as crystal, and through the mystery we shall see and shall understand; we shall know not only the life that was in the ocean, but shall trace the foot-prints of Him that walked thereon.

Cm2 2 3 4 5
Ins. BRITISH MUSEUM

☞ The Manager of this Journal will be very thankful to those subscribers who are in arrears for a settlement of their accounts, as it will enable him to make more improvements in the paper for the benefit of its readers.

THE EARLY DAWN.

BONTHE, JANUARY 15, 1892.

THE FIRST GRADUATES.

On the 3rd of December, 1878, Charles Remmie entered the Shaingay Mission as a mission boy, but had not been constantly in the mission, and much of the time was not in school. He was a few months with Rev. Lesher at Avery Station, in the Bargroo, and spent some time in the printing office of the Early Dawn at Bonthe. Later on the Salem Sunday School of Lebanon, Pennsylvania, America, undertook his support in the Rufus Clarke and wife's Theological Training School. That gentleman and lady have done a praiseworthy deed. We hope in our next issue to give his graduating speech.

Joseph Hannibal Caulker, the first graduate, but the youngest of the boys, entered the Mission on the 5th of December, 1881. He too was at Avery Station with Mr. Lesher for six months when the Training school was opened. Like the other graduate, Joseph had the good fortune of being supported by Mr. and Mrs. Hope, of Chambersburg, Pennsylvania, America. Thus GOD in His goodness has helped these boys.

We publish in another column of this issue his graduating speech, composed entirely by himself, and do hope it will be read with interest, especially by the good people of America, to whom we owe so much gratitude. Joseph has just completed his teens.

The midnight army of burglars has commenced its raids again, which they started on Sunday night last. Several houses and yards were visited by them, from each of which they found some trifling booty, even in picking cocoanuts from the small and easily approached trees in Yhandahoo, but the person who suffered most was Mr. John Macaulay, a tailor. His premises were emptied of all that they contained.

Manager Garrett, Capt. Cockburn, and the new Police Clerk, Mr. S. W. Adams, left here on Saturday last for Bargroo river, and returned on the morning of the 13th instant,

CORRESPONDENCE.

☞ We shall not be responsible for the opinions of our Correspondents.

Correspondents will please write on one side of paper only.

Mo Hitteh, Cockboro River,
Dec. 10, 1891.

Rev. Joseph Gomer,
Gen. Supt. of U. B. Mission.

Dear Sir,—We have been thinking to write you just a few lines to ascertain from you the reason why we have been long neglected with the religious words. It is now about two years since an Itinerant came to our town.

We would have written long before this, but we failed in getting some one to do it for us.

Mr. Dixon came here last week and preached to us. He also visited several towns near here.

We hope you will send an Itinerant next year to visit us. We have not forgotten to pray and regard the Lord's day. We hope to hear from you soon, and beg to close with our sincere regards to self and wife.—Yours truly,

Gbannah Beh, Peyeh Boy,
Gbannah Bome and many others.

[This comes from one of our neglected towns, and we have received many similar ones. Mo Hitteh is a quiet little town and precious souls are therein. Will the Christians pray that God may help us to send these people the Gospel.]

CUT OVER.

The Editor Early Dawn.

Sir,—As I am a stranger in Bonthe, you will concede to me the curjosity of wishing to know all about the place, and as such I sometimes roam through the various farkies, endeavoring to notice whatever may come in my way, either the mode of living of the several tribes of people who live in and around Bonthe, or the means by which they obtain a livelihood, as I can assure you never was clamour louder about thieves in any other place than in this beautiful island.

I believe the peaceful and lawabiding portion of the community do not complain of thieves without reason, for I understand that not a week passes without there being cases of petty larceny before the Manager of the district.

Oh, by the way I am digressing. "Cut over" is my theme. Ever since I came here those two words have been resounding constantly through the streets, as when I hear "He no catch cut ober" uttered by almost all classes of people, I resolved to find out what they meant without exposing my curiosity to the asking of information.

Thus bent I followed the direction to which persons generally point cautiously and leisurely until I had the privilege of beholding the spot termed "Cut over." And what is it? A rivulet dividing Bonthe from Mocolo, forming a convenient ferry for persons travelling between the two places. It is about a quarter of a mile broad at high tide and half that breadth at low tide. A canoe is used to cross over persons during all hours of the day and sometimes during the night.

The road which leads to "Cut over" is kept in good order by the Government always, as it is simply a dam thrown up through what would have been a complete puddle had not the Government done what has been and is now considered a blessing to Bonthe and Mocolo. But as time moves on and progress is made in most directions, the idea to bridge over this stream may yet seize the Government, which would enhance intercommunication, and be an ornament to which one may point with pride, as immortalising the name of whoever may get the credit of completing its erection. I beg to thank you beforehand, Mr. Editor and hope to trouble you again at some future day.—Yours

OBSERVER.

Bonthe, 12th Jan., 1892.

The Editor Early Dawn.

Sir,—As I was perusing the last issue of the "Early Dawn," I observed certain remarks in one of its pages respecting St. Matthew's Church Choristers.

Rem. 1 That the greater part of the congregation are choristers.

2 That they are simply monuments and not singers.

3 That the above named church has no good ventilation.

The author of those detrimental annotation, indubitably, appears to be no churchman, therefore leniency can be granted on his part. Any true visitor of that church can fully attest that Remark 1 is not genuine, because the whole number of choristers cannot, in reality, form even the one-sixth part of the remaining congregation or non-choristers. With respect to the second remark, the author is quite accurate, but oversteps the bound by portraying them as monuments.

A monument (if I am correct) is a structure erected as a memorial; St. Matthew's choristers are no structures designed for such purpose; therefore the church choristers are no monuments.

Under the third Remark I have nothing whatever to say, as any reasonable individual can evidently see that the writer is a Non-conformist.

Has the Wesleyan or Mendi Mission Chapel better ventilation than St. Matthew's? Why did not the writer allude to either of the above-named Chapels? Or, has he never visited or seen any of them? The inference that can be drawn from the whole subject is 'that the writer wrote only from prejudice.' Of course, it was not my intention to say anything with regard to those remarks, but truth, whereever it is seen, must be confessed and pursued. By these statements, I do not mean to defend the church and her members, but to represent facts as they appear.

Thus far, Mr. Editor, I thank you for the space that has been kindly allowed me.—Yours truly,

EQUITY.

Bonthe, Jan. 13th, 1892.

MAIDEN SPEECH.

The following is the graduating speech of Mr. Joseph Hannibal Caulker, of the Rufus Clark and wife's Theological Institution at Shaingay:

VIRTUE versus VICE.

It is a remarkable fact, that notwithstanding the blight that sin has caused in our natures, man in various ages of the world, has been led by the light of reason to recognize certain moral precepts, the practice of which must improve our natures, and conduce to the happiness of mankind. Moral precepts among which are piety to God, benevolence to man, Justice, Charity, Temperance, and Sobriety. But however celebrated and admired are the teachings of some of the sages, it is due to the Christian dispensation, that these have been carried to a higher degree of purity and perfection. That a virtuous life as taught by Christianity, has been productive of the greatest good to the community and individual, is one of the self evident truths that scarcely need proof. A virtuous motive is most essential to life, capable of reaching consummate morality. It is the fundamental principle to the incipient piety, striking deep roots where vice has blasted the very germs of prosperity. Yet how surprising is it that man is inclined to accept the pernicious invitations of vice rather than adhere with tenacity to the beneficial offers of virtue. And what a great contrast there is existing between these two principles. In all their different phases, one would clearly see the dignity of virtue, and the baseness of vice. Whether it be in the empire or kingdom, in the nation or family, or among individuals. Where royal villainy has detached from the empire its inherent loyalty, integrity has restored an idolized monarchy. Where dissipation has entered the nation its labored wealth, integrity has filled its lavished coffers with treasures inestimable; dissolution has resulted in citizenship into formal expressions of loyalty, while under this veneer burns there a thirst for insurrection, integrity has reserved stanch and restrained personages worthy of the government; when licentiousness has stripped the nation of its glories, integrity has crowned it with the brightest laurels. Thus vice destroys while virtue builds and resuscitates. Apply them to the individual. Vice renders a man profligate Virtue holds him in probity: Vice is a perfidious instigator, Virtue a faithful mentor; Vice inculcates condemnation, Virtue treats with lenity: vice incurs the hatred of pure intelligence, virtue recieves its earnest embrace, vice is spurned, virtue is respected and venerated, vice deserves criminality, virtue merits favor. Virtue then should be the cherished principle in man. "If virtue and intelligence increase, wars would be few", says a great writer. Both internal and external wars. Virtue is the vital function of life, whose principles must be studied in order to be well grounded in its doctrines. Especially so to young men just verging on the threshold of life. Our future prosperity depends upon a strict adherence to virtue. Who is there of both young and old, that is not aware of the vast changes of time, and the many reverses in life, yet many of us have experienced but a little of it. There is one who scales the heights of fortune, there is another, pining in the wretchedness of poverty, here is one unknown to sorrow,—there, another in whose countenance melancholy depicts the very aspects of misery and woe, like one forlorn in the solitary desert; there is another whose name glitters in the records of the great, and here is one denied of fame; there sits one groveling in the depths of science, and there another blind in the abyss of illiteracy: there goes one who imbibes the spirit of true piety and virtue, here another a vicious miscreant: there recines one whose countenance sparkles with the full enjoyment of a happy family, and there, bows another ghastly pale with the heavy strokes of disappointments and bereavements. There are but a few instances. Turn to the right, left, behind and before, and every day brings to sight the results of the vicissitudes of life, that many [illegible] 'Return O! beautiful days of youth.' This the life then you and I must enter. There is no marked course of life laid out, but that men [illegible] only by experience. Nor is there any fortune awaiting one We must carve out a way by which to make existence sure. Our very lives must absorb the principles of virtue, for it is the only sure hope to existence, whose very essence breathes happiness. Our characters must be in conformity with the dictates of nature. Hear from Milton unfolds his genial mind in the description of a virtuous character

Faithful found
Among the faithless, faithful he
Among innumerable false, unmoved,
Unshaken, unseduced, unterified;
His loyalty he kept, his love, his zeal.
Nor number, nor example with him wrought,
To swerve from truth or change his constant mind
Though single."

But mark what a vast contrast there is of one who has no virtuous principle, nor yet a good character. Of him the poet bursts forth in this sad strain,—'I saw a wreck upon the ocean flood
How sad and desolate! No man was there;
No living thing was in it: there it stood
Its sails all gone; its masts were standing bare.
Tossed in the wind the boundless howling sea
The very sea birds screamed and passed it by.'
Would God that it were the thrilling impulse in each of us to embrace the teachings of virtue.

The country requires it, society demands it, life, present and future makes this imperative. In whatever vocation a man is, the principles of virtue must be practiced in order that he should soar to true eminence and magnanimity.—The minister on the pulpit, the orator at the bar, the king on the throne, the politician on the bench of public ministration, the laborer in his humble employment all must hold to the principles of virtue. Most necessary is it to young men and women just verging on the threshold of active life. They are to fill the places left by the fathers, when they shall have past and gone, they are to adorn society with their sprightly presence, and clothe scenes around with pleasures untold.

This day adds more to that vast concourse of actors on the stage of life. When I first entered within the precincts of this institution, I saw but faintly in the twilight of the future this day, that ere dawn must be numbered among the past.

Often my nights' repose have suffered uneasiness in salient thoughts of this day and these thoughts have found vent in many a rad exclamation, till sleep has lull'd them on to oblivion. Now comes another future like a spell, with its cloud gathered aspect, for which our early years have been taxed, in order to be qualified for its duties. Now it comes casting its drooping shades over the brightness of the past, and feign would show its realities Here it stands—a counterfeit perhaps, which never would reveal to any the secret of its bosom, till one has dared to peep through its dark unfathomable lanterns, wherein may be poign ant shafts, ready to pierce you through the core and lay you within at its feet; flatterers—dazzling the hopes of youth with vain illusions and leading them to a field of barrenness Therein may be melancholy, sorrow, and misery: as well as joy and happiness. And does it not require the strongest powers of virtue to take one through such a world? Yes! tried virtue Now our fragile barks are pushed anain into the world, wherein are unrelenting monsters of evil, that know no remorse, no caution nor tender mercy.

To be continued.

NOTICE.

The Annual District Meeting of American Missions of the United Brethren in Christ of the West Coast of Africa, will convene in the Mendi Mission Chapel at Bonthe, Sherbro Island, on the 28th of January, 1892, at 7 a.m.

CHURCH NEWS.

WATCHNIGHT SERVICE.

It is cheering to notice the response given to this service on the 31st ultimo. Good Hope Chapel was overflowingly full of real worshippers on the occasion. After suitable addresses had been delivered by the Revs. J. A. Evans and E. C. Bickersteth, conductors, the people heartily responded to a conference and praise meeting, which preceded a five minutes of silent prayer, in which the congregation was engaged till the announcement "We have now entered into a new year" was made.

The Master's presence was felt by all. We returned home with grateful hearts for what we had seen and heard. God grant that the resolutions then made may be ever kept.

From Danville Station, Bargroo river, we learn that at Watch Night Service 100 persons were present. On Sunday morning, 3rd January, 54 were in attendance, and in the evening 52. The number now reported is larger than on any previous occasion. The station is in charge of Mr. F. Anthony, a very promising young worker.

Rev. D. F. Wilberforce, who is spending the holiday season at Danville, reports interesting services on Sunday the 27th instant. In the morning service held at Danville Chapel 64 persons were present. The afternoon service in an adjoining town was attended by over one hundred persons.

United Prayer Meetings were held in Bonthe during the first week of the year. In the mornings in St. Matthew's Church and in the evenings in the Wesleyan and Mendi Mission Churches. The attendance on each occasion was very good.

The Anniversary Celebration of the Wesleyan Sabbath School was held in Bonthe on the 27th ultimo in their chapel. On the next day a public meeting was held in the same place, which was presided over by J. B. Parkinson, Esq. J.P. Several gentlemen addressed the meeting, after which a collection was made in aid of the school fund. In continuation of the celebration, a Tea Fight was given on the 1st instant at the Wesleyan Mission House at 7.30 p.m.

☞ It is uncomfortable to think how some readers of the Early Dawn Newspaper like us to do so on the CHEAP. Some of them have been supplied with the paper regularly without paying a farthing towards its support since its commencement seven years ago, and when applied to for payment they shuffle better than the most expert card player.

When cops to the crowd are thrown,
Each one makes that which fits his own.

GENERAL NEWS.

As it is not our policy to encourage newspaper controversy, but to publish whatever may be edifying and instructive, anent the correspondence on the subject of "Ventilation in Churches," begun by "E" and replied to by "Equity," we beg to refer them to two articles which appear in the outer pages of this issue and leave them to discriminate for themselves.

We beg to draw the attention of the Inspector of Public Works to the bad condition of the ferry or cut over, especially at low tide, when it is almost impassible.

On Wednesday 6th inst. the new Manager of the Sherbro District entertained at Dinner at the Government Compound, Bonthe, the principal gentlemen of the place, including the Asst. Colonial Surgeon, Dr. M. L. Jarrett, all the Government officials, the ministers of the various denominations excepting the Roman Catholic, J. B. Parkinson Esq. J.P. J. B Wright, Esq. J.P. of Bendoo, the Agents of the two European Houses, as well as the employes of the French Company The company we understand enjoyed themselves heartily and never separated until about midnight.

A policeman was buried on the morning of the 6th inst. who died from the effects of wounds received from the contents of a revolver chamber, discharged upon him at the Police Barracks, Bendoo by another policeman. The man who inflicted the wound we believe, is in custody at Bonthe Police Station.

We notice that the practice of gambling is becoming more common in the highways on Sundays, especially the one leading to Ebenezer Chapel, our place of worship in the farkie. And so indifferent are they that even when the bell is ringing and people are going to church they do not care to desist from gambling. Would that a sentry could be posted during the afternoon service at 4 o'clock along the road, his presence would have more effect than all we could tell these heathen people about the observance of the Lord's day

SELECTIONS.

THE BREATH OF LIFE.

The Lord God breathed into man the breath of life, and to perpetuate that breath the Lord has poured pure air out about forty miles deep all round us; and it is a great pity that people who meet to worship him cannot get enough of it to breathe decently. When a poor minister half choked himself with foul air, looks down and sees part of his congregation asleep and others fanning themselves to keep the vital spark alive, he usually calls for 'more ventilation,' whereupon the intelligent gentleman who has the matter in charge, proceeds to open one window on the right hand of the preacher, and another on his left hand, so that strong current will blow directly upon him, and this will bring his sermon to a close in short metre, unless he is willing to risk his life and health speaking in a current of air;—which is as dangerous as the arrow of an enemy.

As a rule no provision is made to ventilate a meeting-house. Money is wasted in paint, and marble, and screens, and spires and onaments, but the breath of life is left to take care of it self. Horrid looking 'memorial windows' perpetuate the memory of dead friends, but who has ever seen a memorial ventilator to save the lives of the living? Let the painted windows rest a little, and give us some ventilators which will enable us to breathe 'the breath of life.'

THE ABIDING WORD.

A century ago Voltaire, of France, and Thomas Paine, who did worthy service as an early American patriot, but who, like Robert G. Ingersoll, was a scoffing infidel, united in saying that in less than a century Christianity would be swept from the earth and become a thing of history. A century has now passed, and Christianity is rapidly covering the earth. The Bible, the book against which these men aimed their shafts, and which Ingersoll so much despises, has gained incomparably in its spread and power among men. Up to the year 1800 all the Bibles made since the world began, issuedin some thirty different languages, did not number more than four or five millions. In the next eight years —up to 1880—the Bible societies in the different countries printed in about two hundred and forty different languages not less than 163,000,000 copies of the Bible and New Testament. Besides these, millions of other copies were printed by private publishing houses. Jesus commanded the apostles, 'Go ye into all the world, and preach the Gospel to every creature.' The command is likely to reach a complete fulfilment, and the prophecies of skeptics will come to naught.

A BEAUTIFUL WOMAN.

The story is told of a famous lady who once reinged in Paris society that she was so very homely that her mother said one day, 'My poor child you are too ugly for any one ever to fall in love with you.' From this time Madame de Circourt (the young lady's name) began to be very kind to the pauper children of the village, to the servants of the household, and even to the birds that hopped about the garden walks. She was always distressed if she happened to be unable to render service. This good will toward everybody made her the idol of the city. Though her complexion was sallow, her gray eyes small and sunken, yet she held in devotion to her the greatest men of her time. Her unselfish interest in others made her, it is said perfectly irresistible. People could not help loving her, because she first loved them. Love makes the truest beauty, after all. It is beauty, too, that grows more beautiful as time runs on and age advances.—Christian Million

HOW ESQUIMAUX LIVE.

While you are reading this paper the snow-flakes are falling noiselessly over the vast white waters of the frozen North. In that bleak and desolate country live the Esquimaux.

A people who live neither by agriculture nor by the pasturage of sheep and cattle, nor yet, properly speaking by the chase as the chase is ordinarily understood; a people who have for food neither beef, mutton, nor pork, neither fruit, bread, nor vegetable, neither sugar nor salt; who have for drink neither tea, coffee, wine, beer, nor spirits of any kind, for clothing, neither silk, cotton flaxen, nor woolen stuffs; who have for fuel neither wood, coal, nor peat—such a people are the Esquimaux, or as they call themselves, the 'Innuits' of the Arctic.

It seems at first sight impossible that men should live amid such conditions The things I have enumerated appear to include all the possibilities of food, clothing, and fire found on the earth and the question unconsciously arises to our lips, 'Can a people, then live without either of these three first necessities of life—food, clothing, and fire?

But the Innuits, deprived literally of everything which in our climemakes life possible, have nevertheless found in the world they have chosen or into which they have been driven, the means of existence in a very different shape from that in which they abound in our southern clime.

They have found them all! food, fire, light, clothing, arms, implements, everything—combined in one single animal. That animal is the seal. Without it the existence of men in these regions would be an impossibility. Its flesh supplies him with food, its blubber with light and fire, its skin with clothing and shelter

LEARN TO ADMIRE.

Sir Benjamin West, born an American, but adopting England as his home, rose high in the walks of art, and won not only a title of nobility, but that which was even higher, the place of President of the Royal Academy of Art in London. Having heard some young American artists at an exhibition indulge freely in criticisms upon what they considered the faults of some of his paintings, he invited one of their number, a young man who was on his way to eminence, to dinner with him the following week. The young man observed how patiently the great master pointed out the graceful curves of various carvings, and never once referred to any defects, supposed or real. 'The first lesson for a man of taste," said Sir Benjamin, "is to learn what to admire. Any savage can find fault. And never forget, it is the peculiar province of the artist to see, to point out, and to perpetuate beauty."

This rule then is to be observed: Learn to admire, discriminately and wisely, to be sure, but learn to admire. Criticism does not consist in discovering and pointing out faults merely; it has a higher function, that of discovering and pointing out excellences. The art critic, so called, is often only a fault-finder. He looks for the defects in a picture or in a piece of statuary; and accustomig himself to this, he is almost sure to find something that to him is unsatisfactory. He even prides himself on this faculty, and deems himself entitled to distinction in the eyes of others because of his ability to point out errors in coloring or outline. But how slight the pleasure he gives to others, and how mean the pleasure he derives for himself, from regarding works of art from this lower standpoint. The true art critic discovers the virtues, the beauties of any piece of work it it possesses these qualities; and in helping others to see them he performs for them a most valuable service. A picture becomes all the more beautiful, its colorings the richer, the outlines of a bust or statue the more perfect, for having once's attention drawn to their excellences. The same may be said of literature, or a sermon or other address, of objects in nature or character, and so on. It is far better for one's self to cultivate the habit of seeing the good qualities of things.

To be continued.

NOTICE.

The Manager of this Journal begs to inform the public of Bonthe and elsewhere that the columns of this paper are open to correspondents, and that all letters sent for publication will receive his attention, provided they are accompanied by the names of the writers, not necessarily for publication, but as a guarantee. Rejected manuscripts will not be returned. All work with which he is favored shall be done in such a manner as he hopes will give satisfaction and secure patronage always.

Printed at the Office of the Early Dawn, Bonthe, Sierra Leone, January 15, 1892.

THE EARLY DAWN.

"The Morning Light is Breaking. The Darkness Disappears."

VOL. IX. BONTHE, SHERBRO, WEST AFRICA, JANUARY 30, 1892 No. 3.

The 'Early Dawn'

Published Semi Monthly at Bonthe Sherbro. Under the Auspices of the Board of Missions of the

United Brethern In Christ

REV E. C BICKERSTETH, Editor and Publisher. Bonthe, Sherbro, West Africa.

AGENTS

United States—Revs. B. F. Booth and Wm. McKee, Dayton Rev. Wm J. Davis, Basil, Ohio Rev. D. K. Flickinger, Wm. Loughby, Ohio. M. J. Stoner, Manheim, Pa., Rev G. W. Arnold, Eldorado Ohio.

West Africa—J. A. Richards, River Gambia, Rev. J. R. Frederick, Freetown, Sierra Leone, Rev. James Deputy, Marshal, Liberia. Mr. Moses B. Boyle, Liberia.

TERMS

One Year by mail.	$0 6 0
Delivered in Bonthe.	0 5 0
Half yearly by mail.	0 3 0
Ditto. delivered in Bonthe	0 3 0

WHAT ARE WE LIVING FOR?

The questions, What is life? and is life worth living? and many others of like character, have been often asked, and as often has the solution been attempted. But while the question, What is life? has never been entirely explained, there is another question which comes closer to us in its grave meaning than the problem of life. And I am constrained to think we should not ponder so much over the query, What is life? as over the more important question, What are we living for? This is the part of the problem we can solve and the part we are most intimately interested in. If, as often has been said, "every man is the architect of his own fortune," so every man is the architect of his own life too. You may say you are living because you can not help it; but that does not change the fact that you are living. Like the infidel who said God made him handsome without asking his advice or consent, we have our lives without our advice or consent, and we may, can or must live for something. Bacon said, 'Now that we have our lives it is a matter of great importance to us what we do with them.' The world is full of the beautiful, the grand, the sublime, the lovely, the loving, and the good. But it is so mixed up and twisted and entwined and tangled with the bad, the impure, the unholy that it is the unceasing work of a life-time to unravel, to discern between the extremes. There is no time to be idle. While we rest in the arbor of ease and slothfulness the enemy is sowing tares in the fields whereof we anticipated such a harvest of golden sheaves. We dare not slumber nor sleep lest thistles and brambles spring up and take the place of our good gain. It is difficult to always discern the right while temptations are so strong and varied, and everybody is so liable to make mistake and failures. But then there never was but one who did entirely right. But I will tell you what we can do, we can strive to keep close to that Presence which we may know but can not see, but which we may hope to reach out and touch in the great hereafter, which we all must spend somewhere. Oh, this life, this mind, this frame, this soul, which I possess, change it we must. We know that we live, and we know that we must die. But how do we live, how should we live, how will we live in the beyond, are the questions for us; for as we live we are most likely so to die. We are building for time and eternity; for we have that within us which outlasts the elements that destroy the perishing part of us, which defies the contamination of decay, which beats against the bars of the "case" containing the immortal part of us and impatiently awaits the time when like the chrysalis, the shell will open and that be freed and soar away above the cares, perplexities, the doubts and fears, and the happiness of earth to find the answer to the question, What have I lived for? We must all find out, we will find out, even if we are unwilling to examine, if we loathe to theorize, the time is coming when we will have to answer the great question, and we can not put it aside. Then why not meet it and conquer so far as we may? Shirk we can not. "Life is real," said the poet, "and the grave is not its goal." What shall we do, then, do you ask? Some may say, Be religious; some may say, Be moral; others may say, Do as you please. But let me say, Be good. We are all more or less the creatures of circumstances. The fact that we shape our destinies is, in a measure, modified by the fact that we are compelled by our surroundings to do as we can. Still this does not hinder us from doing nor lessen our responsibility to do. We can only accept in our weakness the authority of the power that be. If we are poor and can never be rich, if we are ignorant and can never be learned, if we are ugly and can never be handsome, if we are single and can never be married, if we are short and can never be tall, if we are unknown and want distinction, if there is an air-castle in the life of every one that must tumble down and a humble cot only be erected on the ruins, if there is an unattainable in all our ambitions, a goal we may not reach, there is an attainable, too, a goal we may all reach, a freedom which no prelate, king, or ruler can abridge or govern, a citadel impregnable, a fortress secure, a holy temple, within which we can purify and clean and none can rule and hinder. Let us then, face life and prepare for death. Let us be ourselves. And there is room for us, too, and need for all our untiring efforts. They may be limited, they may fall short of our hopes, but they can not utterly fail if they are right. Let us persevere in our efforts for the right, ever seek the good, the pure, the just and lovely, and whatever is of good report. Let us not make love to the continuance of days, but rather desire the usefulness of them; and if we can not be great let us be good.—R. Telescope

The sayings of many great men would fill volumes. Their doings could be written on a postal-card.

Concentrate all your energies for good, scatter all your bad desires, and life's harvest will fill your granary with wealth.

Few love to hear the sins they love to act.—Shak.

HOW TO LOVE GOD.

A woman once said to her pastor, 'I do love God very much, but want to love him more; how can I?' 'You must become better acquainted with him," was the reply. 'We love those who are worthy of our love in proportion as we become acquainted with them.' 'How can I get better acquainted?' she asked.

'Study the Bible more,' he said. 'God speaks to you, reveals himself to you, in the Bible. Read the New Testament the life of Jesus, and imagine you had been with him as John and Peter and Mary were —and pray more. Tell him all your joys and troubles and needs. He will answer you and every answer will draw you closer to him. Then try to please him in everything you do and say. We always love those whom we try to please. Love makes us wish to please the Lord, and love rewards us when we have done it.'

The woman followed these rules, simple as they were, and her love to God grew and spread all through her heart. It made her very happy; and all that knew her said, "What a bright cheerful person she is; I don't believe she ever has any trouble.' And yet she did have a great deal of trouble, but the love of God so filled her heart that it seemed like wings to lift her up and above it all. If she had been asked if she had any trouble, she would have smiled and said, "I don't believe I have. The minute it comes Jesus takes it all away."

"Love is of God; and every one that loveth is born of God, and knoweth God." 'He that dwelleth in love, dwelleth in God, and God in him.' The very essence of our religion is love. The love of God shed abroad in the heart by the Holy Ghost brightens life and prepares for death. Love is the atmosphere of heaven, and none can be admitted there who have not first learned to love. Teach us, Lord, at length to love.—Work and Work.

When you receive a kindness, remember it; when you do one, forget it.

It is saintly to forgive; God-like to forget.

☞ The Manager of this Journal will be very thankful to those subscribers who are in arrears for a settlement of their accounts, as it will enable him to make more improvements in the paper for the benefit of its readers.

Parties wishing to subscribe to the Early Dawn Newspaper will please take notice that in all cases payment is required in advance.

ERRATUM.—In our last issue, under the head of "The First Graduates' 2nd paragraph, 10th line, for Mr and Mrs Hope please read Mr and Mrs Hoke, &c.

THE EARLY DAWN.

Saturday, January 30, 1892.

CHIEF BANNAH LEWIS.

IF Chief Bannah Lewis' "One word Porroh," to which public attention has been invited in a recent editorial had been suggested in view of steps being taken to retain the much needed services of Gbormar Neppor for the purpose of freeing both banks of the Boom-Kittam river from the ravages of human leopards and human alligators, we should have hailed the movement as one of immense benefit to the country. But how stands the case? In the recent nomination of chiefs on this river, through his influence, from men who are said to regard cannibalism as a matter that should be left to take care of itself and the protection he has accorded to the runaway chiefs of Tossor, in the Impereh country, by both these incidents, one is able to judge at a glance of the suspicious nature of his present policy. To our mind the outlook appears gloomy, and we feel no hesitancy in declaring that for the good of Sherbro, morally, socially, and politically, this one word "porroh" should be at once relegated to the shades of heathenish darkness from whence it ought never to have been suffered to emerge. Porroh of this designation would naturally suggest to the minds of the aborigines themselves the existence of war, the peaceful termination of which alone has called into being, but never in the history of Sherbro had its aim been perverted as now to serve the cause of oppression of the aborigines and of creating strained relations between the civilized portion of the community and the barbarous and semi-barbarous masses. For the present unsatisfactory condition of things here, this chief is alone responsible.

With regard to cannibalism prominent supporters among the aborigines of his porroh are reported to have asked, Why need any notice be taken of it by the Government, as well as by the Sherbro public? If people are butchered to death and their flesh stewed or boiled for food, surely a man may do as he pleases with his property? But these individuals would seem to be in ignorance of the important fact that slaves cannot breathe on British territory; because the moment they set their feet on British ground that very moment they become free, as free to all intents and purposes, in the eye of British law, as their would-be owners.

We have no data by which we might discredit the rumour that in reference to the chiefs recently chosen on this river, at least in one or two instances, the consent of all the principal inhabitants had not been obtained prior to their being installed. In proof of this position, a case has been cited to us, that of Gbompey of Nongobar bullow. This newly created chief, had no sooner been set free from his purroh-bush confinement of several months, (where for aught we know he had been placed to be thoroughly initiated into the black secrets necessary to support this new dignity) than one of his first acts took the shape of placing "porroh" on certain area of land at Nongobar bullow, of which the late Cabba Cabba, a brother of the late chief W. E. Tucker, of Mogombo for many years had sole possession, and since his death, which occurred about ten years ago, had been in the sole possession of his son Gbannah Charles of Gbapp until a few weeks ago when this unlawful and most arbitrary act was committed by Gbompey.

We are not informed that the Manager has been made aware of the state of affairs in this portion of his district; at any rate the information contained herein should serve him in order that the necessary steps may be taken in the matter. His course is an easy one. Gbompey might be directed to at once cause the porroh to be removed, and be informed he may refer his claims, if any, to Freetown. However, we await with impatience to see what would be done.

It is self-evident even to a man of the most ordinary perception, that the district over which the Manager at Bonthe has control, is much too extensive for the efficient discharge of the duties of his office. At once the Manager of a district more than double the pen insula of Sierra Leone in size, Superintendent of Police, Coroner, Collector and Treasurer, besides the Police Magistrate of all the districts in Sherbro, (all Court cases in Sherbro land being adjudicated by him at Bonthe) it can hardly be expected that he should satisfactorily discharge these various duties.

It would be enough were his sphere confined to Sherbro island, Bendoo, and York island only. The Boom-Kittam river might be made into a separate district. It is a cannibal haunt and has been so for many years; besides, the river has been very unsettled since the death of chief William Tucker. The earth that covered his remains covered at the same instant the influence which the Tucker family had exercised for a series of years in Sherbro. To-day, between the scattered remnants of this family or the thousand and one individuals in Sherbro who bear its cognomen—whether rightly or wrongly it is not our present purpose to enquire—and those who term themselves the genuine aborigines, there seems to be brooding a feeling of rank distrust if not of down right enmity, that may perhaps give trouble in the near future, unless a managership be created for this river, and the person who may be appointed to this office be made to reside at Mogombo.

The altered condition of things makes it a political necessity for the steps suggested to be carried out. The interest of the community demands it, and we trust our remarks may be favorably considered by those in authority.

CORRESPONDENCE.

☞ We shall not be responsible for the opinions of our Correspondents.

Correspondents will please write on one side of paper only.

The Editor Early Dawn.

Sir—It is time now that the conduct of some of the policemen who are sent out to summon persons to attend a Coroner's inquest be brought to the notice of the Manager of the district, as the manner in which these officers are executing their duties is, in most cases, an over exercise of duty.

Instances are not wanting to prove that these officers, instead of summoning gentlemen in a polite way, would simply stand afar off and cry out "Mr. So-and-So, I have got your name down, and you are to be present at the police station at —— o'clock," in consequence of which men are to be seen running from these uncouth officers. At other times they venture even into the bed-room, thus taking undue advantage of their position without shewing or reading the warrants. I must say, Mr. Editor, that the conduct of these men is a disgrace to the Crown they wear and a stop should be put to such actions.

But as there are exceptions to every rule so are there in this case, but conspicuous among those whose conduct have been delineated above is the well known private Will Dong whose presence is a terror to every juryman.

We are quite willing and even ready to serve our Queen and country but it is essentially necessary that we be approached by her officers with becoming courtesy especially in the above case. However, I would suggest a remedy and that is, "that the Sergeant or officer in charge of the Station in the event of any inquest to be held cause summons to be sent from the Police Station with the names of persons who are to serve for that day &c. in order to do away with that habit of summoning the same person to attend at every inquest as has been done in most cases, much to the inconvenience of those parties. By adopting this system, I believe gentlemen will be better treated in future thanking you for space occupied —Yours A JUROR.

Bonthe Jan, 19th 1892.

FOR THE EARLY DAWN.

(From a Correspondent.)

Mental slander is otherwise called suspicion. Courts and officers of the law may deal with suspicions in order to protect society, but it may reasonably be doubted whether a discreet man who is always careful in the selection of his friends is in danger of harm at the hands of suspects. If he is not in danger he should not be concerned, except as all honest men should be interested in the protection of another's character against unjust censure. The law considers a prisoner innocent until proven guilty, and imposes hardship enough upon those merely suspected; sometimes before their trial Christian gentlemen needlessly and carelessly and to the burden by the expression of suspicion and by significant insinuations. The statement of a gossiper or a newspaper item is not sufficient evidence upon which even to base a mental charge of guilt. Such condemnation is not just from a Christian standpoint, to say nothing about that sentiment of fairness which is more or less common to all men In ninety-nine cases out of every hundred, those who retail and irritate those mild slanders called suspicions, have no positive knowledge concerning the things they talk about. Some men are even known to tell as facts what they only imagine. Such men should be boldly condemned for their meanness In the great majority of cases it is not necessary to judge at all in the case presented. One can afford to say I don't know It can give a Christian no satisfaction to find a man guilty of sin, or believe him to be so.

On the contrary, it ought to be, and it is his privilege to defend the unfortunate one as long as he can help him toward a better life. Suspicions and slanders are the kicks and cuffs given a man after he is down. They should have no place in a Christian's mental life.

The Retreat, Sherbro
Jan, 1892

MAIDEN SPEECH.

The following is the graduating speech of Mr. Joseph Hannibal Caulker, of the Rufus Clark and wife's Theological Institution at Shaingay:

(Concluded from our last)

VIRTUE versus VICE.

And now what shall guide us, seeing that we are drawn under that canopy that brooded o'er our youth? Nothing but character based on the fabric of moral excellence. Is it a matter then of small consequence that we shun the paths of vice and embrace the teachings of virtue! Great God, guide, direct, and keep us.

And now honored parents, guardians, and friends, our school days are for the present ended. Long have we been nursed by those indefatigable hands Your parental affection have softened many a trying hour. We now leave this institution, and the care of those to whom you entrusted us, to learn to stem life's current. May your prayers in our behalf be as fervent as they were wont to be during our school days.

And to you aged guardian farwell! Many are the years that you have led us, even before we were ever haunted with the dream of entering within the walls of this institution. Many too are the youths that you have led of whom a sad story may be told. Ah! methinks I could see in that aged mind the many scars that disappointments have caused. Can it be that your gray hair shall never witness the fruits of your labors, nor that troubled mind be lulled to ease from those sad moanings that many a solitary hour has stirred! Would God that your toilsome labors be not in vain, and that your days be prolonged to witness, before you enter that lonely rest, a harvest worthy of your labors.

And to you kind teachers, reverend, principal, farewell! Long have we seen enjoyed in words and actions that kindness in your bosom, not surpassed by that of parental affection. Your care of us has been that of paternal care. It is true that we must part with you, who have been the shield that protected our puny heads from the blasting demposts of life? You have cherished our future interest with such fondness, as that emanating from a maternal bosom that ingratitude now would pierce you through the vein, as the spear of Brutus pierced the side of great Ceasar. But now alas! we part And school-mates, I must bid a sad farewell! No more together shall we meet in the school room to greet our teachers and one another with lovely smiles and looks; No more together shall our pranks and conversations be with that wonted air as has been heretofore; No more in the woods, fields, and on the ocean shall we tune our jubilant songs in the same relation as heretofore. The time is come and we must go Adieu! The day shall come when if perseverance be your watchword, you also shall stand on this stage to bid farewell to loved ones behind. Methinks I see, as it were, sparkling in the dingy twilight of coming days, those bright gems that shall uncover the things hidden in the blackness of nature, and bring them into the sunshine of day. We go before you. When you shall have met us on the stage of life, then shall we talk of these school days of yore. "Yet long years may pass before we realize in full the sadness of this last goodbye. Providence will bring us greater joys or keener sorrows, than we have yet known, but no dreams so full of sircastles no days so full of quiet joy, as these school days now numbered among the things of the past."

[In some unaccountable way the speeches of the young gentlemen of the Rufus Clarke and wife's Theological Institution have been delayed at Shaingay until recently, hence the lateness of their publication. The following is Mr. Charles Remmie's speech.]

OUR PILGRIMAGE.

The fact of our being in this world in a state of probation, coupled with the fact that there is another existence which the Creator has designed for his sensitive creatures where our happiness or woe, our enjoyments or our sorrows are determined according to our actions in this of probation, marks us as pilgrims and strangers travelling on to our future destination, heaven or hell, as the case may be.

This is an idea fully illustrated in the Bible by the holy apostle St. Paul when he speaks of the patriarchs in languages such as these, "they confessed that they were pilgrims on the earth, that they seek a country and desire a country that is heavenly."

As pilgrims therefore, our pilgrimage may naturally fall into three great periods—childhood, youth, and old age; since these three mark important eras in Man's history. Childhood marks a very important era in the history of man, and on it we can say and that justly that the others mostly depend. Scarcely does the child enter into the world and into the arms of the mother whose gentle touch and tender caresses, becomes so soothing to it, and whose eagarness for the welfare of her darling pet, show the intense feeling of her mind, and the filial relationship existing between the two, and scarcely also is he capable of emotion than the year of his pilgrimage begins; this marks the begining of his infantile years which also marks the begining of childhood, during which years, under the fond caresses and kind protection of the dear mother, he becomes a little developed until he is able to copy to some extent, examples of those around, in imitating words and expressions uttered by them; this marks the begining of his education. And since in these days as it has been found by those who study the human mind, the mind is pliable, and capable of recieving and ready to receive impressions, and like the oak which grows according to the direction that the acorn was bent, the man formed from the child becomes good or bad according to the kind of training received when young. It is therefore me st necessary, and of the utmost importance, that care should be taken at this stage of life to cultivate the mind and to make those tender impressions will result in great memorable and lasting deeds, this duty mostly devolves on parents. Parents should be especially careful to make the early surroundings of their children, and the very scenes by which they are surrounded sources of developing the faculties, and also that the impressions then made be of a wholesome nature, since they become so indelibly fixed and immovable; they should be careful as to the sort of conversation indulged in, in the presence of the child, since conversation is to the health of the soul what the atmosphere is to the body; and even as the atmosphere when it is pregnated with impure air, brings consequences shameful and disastrous. The conversation of parents therefore in the presence of children in these early days, when the mind is tender and capable of being bent should be seasoned, solid, and calculated to inspire them to virtuous deeds, and to everything that is noble and pure, in this all important matter; parents can never be too careful, they should be careful also of their actions, for actions are teachers better than expressions.

To be continued.

GENERAL NEWS.

When we mentioned, in our last issue, the dinner given by the Manager on the 6th inst. we alluded to the absence of the Roman Catholic Fathers from it. Since then we learn that Father O'Carrole received an invitation but was unable to attend.

The Superintendent of the U.M. F. Churches, the Rev. Wm. Vivian, Rev. C. H. Goodman, of the same connexion, and Missionary Mr. Vircoe, arrived here on the 20th inst. and spent one night at our Mission House. They were on their way to Ticonko, an inland town in the mendi country. Both the Revs. Vivian and Goodman visited our Printing Establishment and expressed pleasure at what they saw. The party left the following morning for their destination..

Our Superintendent, the Rev. Joseph Gomer, arrived here during the night of the 29th instant, preparatory to the holding of the Annual District Meeting, which commenced it sittings on the 28th inst.

The Annual Conference of the U. B. C. was convened on the 28th instant at 7 a.m., and after an hour's devotion organized, by the election of Rev. J. Gomer chairman in the absence of a bishop, to preside; Prof. Wilberforce was re-elected Secretary. Most of the members were present at the opening, a few others arrived since. The proceedings of the conference thus far are quiet harmonious, a report of which we hope to give in our next, but the fuller minutes of the sessions will be published in pamphlet form; at this writing final adjournment is expected to be reached on Monday next.

Five of the ladies of the Rotifunk Mission in the Bompeh river, viz. the Misses Brockenbro, Williams, Harris, Bittle, and Schenk arrived here on the night of the 28th instant on a visit to our Annual Conference. They visited the Printing Department in connexion with the Mission and were pleased with its operation.

SELECTIONS.

LEARN TO ADMIRE.

Concluded.

The evil or defective can not indeed remain always unrecognized or unknown, but it is better to let one's thoughts rest upon the beautiful—and good. The sun itself has got dark spots; but who wishes to regard constantly these instead of its immeasurable glory and power for blessing? So let the bright, and beautiful, and lovely things of life occupy our thoughts rather than the things of an opposite character. "Whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are honest, whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report; if there be any virtue, and if there be any praise, think on these things."
—Children's Friend

QUIET PEOPLE.

There are earnest people who are noisy and bustling, and who seem to imagine that a continuous racket is proof that they are very busy and are accomplishing much. On the other hand, there are quiet people, who go along softly, but with so wisely-directed efforts as to really accomplish a great deal, yet with not the slightest effort to draw attention to themselves. General Grant was mighty in accomplishment, drawing the attention of the whole world to his achievement. Yet he was one of the quietest of men—so unostentatious that he might often be mistaken for an ordinary man of the ranks, the only visible of his high rank being the modest stars on his shoulder straps. Thomas Edison is a quiet man. We have found him genial and kind, but modest and unassuming—just the kind of a man to do deep thinking and make little noise. Some of the mightiest forces in the universe are noiseless in their action, as the heat from the sun attraction or gravity, electricity in equilibrium. No one must mistake fussiness or bluster for evidence of superior industry or success. Noise may attend action, as in the moving of a railway train or of the machinery of manufacturing establishments; but the forces which clothe the earth with beauty, which make the forests green which ripen the harvest and crown the orchards with luscious fruits, all proceed in silence. Noisy people are not noisy because they are earnest, neither are they earnest because they are noisy. Noise and earnestness do not necessarily go together.

THEY WERE ALL POOR BOYS.

John Adams, second President, was the son of a farmer of very moderate means. The only start he had was a good education.

Andrew Jackson was born in a log hut in North Carolina, and was raised in the pine woods for which the State is famous.

James K. Polk spent the earlier years of his life helping to dig a living out of a new farm in North Carolina. He was afterward a clerk in a country store.

Millard Fillmore was the son of a New York farmer, and his home was a very humble one. He learned the business of a clothier.

James Buchanan was born in a small town in the Alleghany Mountains. His father cut the logs and built the house in what was then a wilderness.

Abraham Lincoln was the son of a very poor farmer in Kentucky, and lived in a log cabin until he was twenty-one years old.

Andrew Johnson was apprenticed to a tailor at the age of ten years by his widowed mother. He was never able to attend school, and picked up all the education he ever had.

Gen. Grant lived the life of a common boy in a common house on the banks of the Ohio River until he was seventeen years of age.

James A. Garfield was born in a log cabin. He worked on the farm until the time he was strong enough to use carpenter tools, when he learned the trade. He afterwards worked on the canal.

BE THOROUGH.

This is a word to the girls, especially to the girls who have begun Latin before they are certain that they could say the multiplication table without a mistake; the girls who can tell you various facts about physiology and physical geography, but who always write a letter with a dictionary at their elbow; the girls who studied natural history 'all last term,' and who exclaim at the sight of a fiddler or a baby crab, 'Oh, what a queer little bug!'

Be thorough in your studies, and apply what you learn. Remember, all the knowledge you find in books was gathered by wise brains from the world around you. Somebody used his eyes to advantage, and then wrote down what they taught him. His eyes and brain were in partnership. Are yours? God gave you both to use in self development. They are part of the talents to be accounted for.

PERSEVERANCE.

Demosthenes, the poor, stuttering son of a butler, became the most famous orator of ancient times. Virgil, the son of a baker, was the most celebrated of Latin poets. Æsop, the son of a slave, and almost a slave himself, managed to acquire imperishable fame. Thomas Wolsey, the son of a butcher, became cardinal of the Church of Rome, and, next to the king, in his day the most powerful person in the English dominion. William Shakespeare, also the son of a butcher was yet one of the most famous poets the world ever beheld. Oliver Cromwell arose from a comparatively humble station to be protector of the English commonwealth. Benjamin Franklin was a printer in his early days; he afterward became one of the most celebrated philosophers and statesmen. William Guilford, editor of the Quarterly Review, was in youth a humble shoemaker's apprentice, and for want of paper was obliged to work his algebraic problems upon leather with an awl.—Christian at Work.

SWEARING REPROVED.

A good old man was once in company with a gentleman who occasionally introduced into conversation the words "devil," "deuce," etc., and who at last took the name of God in vain. "Stop, sir," said the old man; "I said nothing while you only used freedom with the name of your own master; but I insist upon it that you shall use no freedom with the name of mine."

ONE OF OUR NEIGHBORS.

Mercury, the nearest planet to the sun, is a globe of about 2950 miles in diameter (a little over one third of the earth's diameter) rotating on its axis in twenty-four hours and five and one half minutes and revolving round the sun in eighty-eight days, which therefore constitutes its complete year. From the earth it can only be seen occasionally in the morning or evening, as it never rises before or sets after the sun at a greater distance of time than one hour and fifty minutes. It appears to the naked eye as a small and brilliant star, but when observed through a telescope is horned like the moon, because we only see a part of the surface which the sun is illuminating. Mountains of great height have been observed on the surface of this planet, particularly on its lower or southern hemisphere.

One has been calculated at ten and three fourths miles in height, being about eight times higher, in proportion to the size of the planet, than the loftiest mountains upon the earth. The matter of Mercury is of greater density than that of the earth, equaling lead in weight, so that a human being placed upon its surface would be so strongly drawn toward the ground as scarcely to be able to crawl.

Good temper, like a sunny day sheds a brightness over everything. It is the sweetener of toil and the soother of disquietude.

NOTICE.

The Manager of this Journal begs to inform the public of Bonthe and elsewhere that the columns of this paper are open to correspondents, and that all letters sent for publication will receive his attention, provided they are accompanied by the names of the writers, not necessarily for publication, but as a guarantee Rejected manuscripts will not be returned. All work with which he is favored shall be done in such a manner as he hopes will give satisfaction and secure patronage always.

Printed at the Office of the Early Dawn, Bonthe, Sherbro, January 30, 1892.

THE EARLY DAWN.

"The Morning Light is Breaking, The Darkness Disappears."

VOL. IX. BONTHE, SHERBRO, WEST AFRICA, FEBRUARY 15, 1892. No. 3.

The 'Early Dawn'

Published Semi Monthly at Bonthe Sherbro. Under the Auspices of the Board of Missions of the United Brethern In Christ

AGENTS

United States—Revs. B. F. Booth and Wm. McKee, Dayton Rev. Wm J. Davis, Basil, Ohio Rev. D. K. Flickinger, Wh. Loughby, Ohio. M. J. Stoner, Manheim, Pa., Rev. G. W. Arnold, Eldorado Ohio.

West Africa—J. A. Richards, River Gambia, Rev. J. R. Frederick, Freetown, Sierra Leone, Rev. James Deputy, Marshal, Liberia. Mr. Moses S. Boyle, Liberia.

TERMS

One Year by mail,	£0 6 0
Delivered in Bonthe,	0 5 0
Half yearly by mail,	0 3 0
Ditto. delivered in Bonthe	0 3 0

A REAL HERO.

Not long ago, on board an English steamer a ragged little boy, aged nine years, was discovered on the fourth day of the voyage out from Liverpool to New York, and was carried before the first mate, whose duty it was to deal with such cases. When questioned as to his object in being stowed away, and who brought him on board, the boy, who had a beautiful sunny face and eyes that looked like mirrors of truth, replied that his stepfather did it because he could not afford to keep him or pay his passage out to Halifax, where he had an aunt who was well off, and to whose house he was going. The mate did not believe the story, in spite of the winning face and the truthful accents of the boy. He had seen too much of stowaways to be easily deceived by them, he said. It was his firm conviction that the boy had been brought on board and provided with food by the sailors. The little fellow was very roughly handled in consequence. Day by day he was questioned and requestioned, but always with the same result. He did not know a sailor on board, and his stepfather alone had secreted him and given the food which he ate. At last the mate, wearied with the boy's persistence in the same story, and perhaps a little anxious to inculpate the sailors, seized him one day by the collar and dragged him to the fore, and said to him that unless he told the truth in ten minutes from that time he would hang him from the yardarm. He then made him sit down under it on deck. All around him were the passengers and the sailors of the midday watch; and in front of him stood the inexorable mate, with his chronometer in his hand, and the other officers of the ship at his side. It was the finest sight, said our informant, he ever beheld—to see the pale, proud, sorrowful face of that noble boy, his head erect, his beautiful eyes bright through the tears that suffused them. When eight minutes had fled the mate told him he had but two minutes to live, and advised him to tell the truth and save his life. But he replied with the utmost simplicity and sincerity by asking the mate if he might pray. The mate said nothing, but nodded his head, and turned as pale as a ghost, and shook with trembling like a reed with the wind. And there, all eyes turned on him, the brave and noble little fellow, this poor waif whom society owned not, and whom his stepfather could not care for, knelt on the ship's deck and prayed. Our young friend was a true believer in the Lord Jesus Christ; and there with clasped hands and with eyes upturned to heaven he asked the Lord Jesus to take him to himself and forgive the mate. Our informant adds that there then occurred a scene as of Pentecost. Sobs broke from strong, hard hearts as the mate sprang forward to the boy and clasped him to his bosom, and kissed him and blessed him, and told him how sincerely he now believed his story, and how glad he was that he had been brave enough to face death and be willing to sacrifice his life for the truth of his word.—Children's Friend.

God knows what you are praying for without listening to your words. He takes notice of your thoughts.

BROTHERLY LOVE.

The Psalmist with great beauty exclaims, "Behold, how good and how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity." Discord, contentions, strifes, divisions, how unlike the spirit and love of the gospel they are.

In that last wonderful prayer of Jesus for his disciples he pleaded with the Father that all his disciples might be one, even as he and the Father are one. The whole Bible is a book of brotherhood. It is the great light revealing and power upholding the universal brotherhood of man. On this is based the idea of the death of Jesus as an atonement for all men. Jesus Christ has with his own blood sealed the doctrine of the universal brotherhood of man.

With this as a great fact, what estimate must we place upon those strifes which gender division in the church of Christ, and destroy even the brotherhood of the saints.

The separation which now distracts our beloved Zion grows out of a lack of this brotherly love. Other things have been exalted far above the love of the Christian heart and the purity of fellowship in Jesus.

A few years ago, when this resistance to the Majority of the Church began, which culminated in the separation at York, one of the leaders of the movement, whose name and writings and standing have done more perhaps than that of any one else to give it prestige and power, said to the writer in giving counsels as to the manner of conducting the Religious Telescope," We want no homily in the Telescope on brotherly love. We have too much Brotherly love in the United Brethren Church now," and more of that sentiment. We wonder what such words could mean. We had not so learned Christ, nor so read God's word. Such was the seed sown by our brethren, and such the harvest now being gathered for the years to come.

We need again to study the epistle of John. We need to read over and over the thirteenth chapter of I Corinthians. We need to go once again to our master and learn a lesson of gospel truth, and attain an experience and state of the heart which is equal to our zeal for our own opinions of ecclesiasticism. Are we willing to take lesson in brotherly love? What shall we do in the hereafter—R. Telescope.

Public feeling in England is extremely bitter against the Prince of Wales, the great Masonic mogul, and his gambling habits, as exposed in the Cummings baccarat case. Indeed, in some quarters of the kingdom, the expressions of the people are assuming a revolutionary form, with mutterings that portend trouble of a serious character whenever he shall endeavor to ascend the throne. Better counsels will, however, undoubtedly prevail as soon as the first exasperation at his conduct has subsided, but his future conduct will be watched with active interest. His youthful recklessness and extravagance were bad enough, but at his present age, if ever, he should be able to exercise the discretion of a wise sovereign, with the moral convictions of a churchman, as becomes the representative of a great government involving the interest of both church and State. The popular censure of his habits was also heightened by the report that he had gone from the Cummings trial to attend the Ascot horse races. There seems to be plenty of room for reformation in his career.—Christian Cynosure.

Live in the life which enlarges, live with all your might in the life of God, and you forget that any one has asked whether life is worth the living.

Young man, young woman, strive to be popular. Not popular in the rude or low sense, but to be popular by being useful, pure, industrious, and honest. Popularity secured in that way has a substantial foundation, and will last.

True religion demands that a man be as tender in his heart as he is in his pocket.

☞ The Manager of this Journal will be very thankful to those subscribers who are in arrears for a settlement of their accounts, as it will enable him to make more improvements in the paper for the benefit of its readers.

Parties wishing to subscribe to the Early Dawn Newspaper will please take notice that in all cases payment is required in advance.

THE EARLY DAWN.

Monday, February 15, 1892.

U. B. CONFERENCE.

The Annual District Meeting of the above Conference was convened on the 28th ultimo in Good Hope Chapel, at Bonthe, Sherbro. The Superintendent of the Sherbro-Mendi Mission conducted an hour's devotion, after which the Secretary, in the absence of a Bishop, proceeded to organise the house. Rev. Joseph Gomer, Superintendent, was chosen chairman, and Professor Wilberforce, Principal of the Rufus Clarke Training School was re-elected Secretary. The minutes of the morning was devoted to the fixing of the Bar of the Conference which was made to include the two front and side seats.

The chairman authorized to appoint all committees.

The ladies from Rotufunk and all the regularly employed teachers of the past year were admitted to advisory seats.

The Standing Committees were reviewed and vacancies filled; other committees were also appointed and announced. Time was fixed to meet at 7.30 a.m. and 12 noon and adjourned on motion at 8.45 a.m.

Afternoon session opened with singing and prayer, and after a very little miscellaneous business, Conference proceeded to hear reports. Miss Frances Williams, Superintendent of Bompeh Mission, read a full report of the Bompeh district, which showed that much and good work had been done during the year. The converts of last as well as this year were going well, growing in grace and knowledge of the truth, of which very few had fallen away.

Sherbro-Mendi district was next reported by Rev. J. Gomer, whose report was quite full but showed that many charges were vacant and had been so since July and a few all the year. From such there was no regular report but so far as known, to the superintendent, who in some cases had recently heard from or visited them, the members remain faithful but greatly need pastoral care. There had been many conversions during the year. Shaingay Station had been specially blessed by the outpouring of the spirit. Converts hold on well, seekers that have died have died in peace and except shortness of funds for the general work everything has progressed well. Collections from the members and friends have been much in advance of last year. The reports of the pastors and others in charge of Stations &c, having been included in the General Report, they only made short verbal statements, and with their superintendents their characters were passed as far as present, and members of the conference.

Afternoon session adjourned about 3. 30 p.m. for committees to work. It would occupy too much space to speak further in particular of each session, especially since the minutes are to published in pamphlet form.

Friday sessions were spent each in hearing reports chiefly of the various committees. Bros. Bickersteth and Williams were passed from first to second year's course of reading. Bros. J. H. Pratt and A. P. Doomahbey were received and granted license to preach.

Saturday a.m. session was given to the discussion of Missions and Temperance, in which many persons engaged enthusiastically, especially on the latter reports on publishing interests and on moral reform were received without discussion. A half hour of prayer was held at 12 o'clock at opening of the afternoon session for the United States Senate that that body may be directed by God to reach a final decision in regards to spirits traffic with native races. Most of the business being finished, it was thought better to adjourn early on Saturday afternoon and hold a short session Monday morning

Sabbath was a high-day and from morning to evening intense interest prevailed services which were held in each of our Chapels at the usual hours, all of which were well attended. The Conference sermon was preached at Good Hope Chapel at 11. a. m. by Rev. J. Gomer. It was an earnest and practical discourse to an overflowing congregation. Memorial service was held at 2. p. m. The Revd Frances Williams preached a soul stirring discourse at Ebenezar Chapel at 4. p. m. to a crowded house. In the evening at 7. p. m. at Good Hope Chapel. Prof. Wilberforce preached an eloquent sermon to a very large congregation.

Monday morning a short session of an hour hearing reports &c, brought the conference to a final adjournment. There were but few changes made hence. only one or two removals, from its commencement to its conclusion. the conference was a success and all went out again with renewed determination to work for the Master.

SIR W. H. QUAYL -JONES, KNT

His Excellency the Administrator of the Government, Sir W H. Quayle-Jones, Knt., arrived here on Saturday the 30th ultimo in the Colonial steamer Countess of Derby accompanied by his Aide-de-Camp Capt. Donovan, Lieut.-Col. Saunders, Mrs. Varian Walshe, and Mr. Thaniton. The Manager of Sherbro, Mr. G. H. Garrett, went on board immediately after the vessel had come to anchor to welcome His Excellency and suite, but returned to the shore without delay to complete some official business before again going on board to accompany the Governor and party to Bendoo. After Divine Service on Sunday they steamed out to Sea-lar for the purpose of enjoying the pure air of the Atlantic.

On Monday the 2nd instant a dinner was given by His Excellency, amongst the guests were J. B. Wright Esq. J.P., J. B. Parkinson Esq. J.P., Messrs Eugene Mosu, Agent French Company, Astbury, Agent Pickering & Berthoud, T. E. Macfoy, Agent Paterson & Zochonis, and H Cordner, Agent Sierra Leone Coaling Company. His Excellency left early on Tuesday morning, leading the Manager at Bonthe as he passed.

CORRESPONDENCE.

☞ We shall not be responsible for the opinions of our Correspondents.

Correspondents will please write on one side of paper only.

FOR THE EARLY DAWN.

(From a Correspondent.)

In trespassing upon space in your valuable journal—the only newspaper in Sherbro—I must ask your indulgence, as the subject I intend attacking is of such moment that I think it would be unjust and unfair to allow it to pass unnoticed, as it may mislead people outside of Bonthe who, perchance may get a glimpse of your paper.

Your last leading article was such a mixture of subjects (although it had one main head) that one cannot arrive exactly at what you intended to deal with, for you commenced with Chief Bannah Lewis of Yonnie, mentioned Wm. E. Tucker as having been dead ten years ago—he died last July—and finished up with Manager Garrett. I really cannot imagine what connection there is between the three individuals so as to put them side by side in an editorial.

If Bannah Lewis, as you state is wielding a power for no good by his porroh institution, is intended to be paraded through the medium of your paper to the view of the Manager of the Sherbro district, then deal with him absolutely, in order that your aim may either be accomplished or not; on the other hand if you have any means of knowing that Manager Garrett has ever been wanting in constant attention to his duties, or that any official work of his department is in arrear then mention so; but until then your assumption that his duties are more than he can discharge faithfully is simply idle. Maybe if either you or I had the opportunity or concern to know about the routine of official duties as they are in Sherbro, we may conclude that it was a pity to so dissect the Sherbro, as apart from Travelling Commissioner Alldridge outside of Bonthe, the other officers sent out here have no knowledge whatever of Sherbro affairs, and even before they acquire the knowledge to make them competent and useful men in the service of the Government, especially in putting down cannibalism, they are drafted to some other sphere of labor.

That the Boom-Kittam river has been a cannibal haunt for years is not denied, but how are the fiends to be reached and brought to justice effectually? Already we see something looming like signs of improvement in Imperehland, and the same means applied to that den of infamy may also be applied with the same result to the Boom-Kittam.

The Editor Early Dawn

Dear Mr Editor,—Will you kindly allow me to say a few words about the United Brethren in Christ yearly session or annual meeting. They did not appoint me to write for any of the papers and I only want simply to say that I was highly pleased with what I had seen and heard. Although some of the delegates never said a word except when called upon, others had a great deal to say. I do sincerely like the way they debate on important questions.

I was more than pleased with the active part taken in the meeting by the five white ladies from Rotufunk, and they made themselves quite familiar with us black people. They are the kind of missionaries I believe that will do good in Africa. Often white missionaries fail to do any good here because they hold themselves aloof from the people, and take pains to make the natives feel that they are their superiors. I wish these ladies a long life of usefulness. I was very glad to meet my old friends Mr Sawyerr and Mr. Jarrett there, as both of these brothers have served their Master long and well. Thank you, Mr. Editor.—Yours,

A TEACHER.

Bonthe, 8th Feb. 1892

The Editor Early Dawn.

Sir,—Histories are generally great teachers, but on account of the in different way we sometimes read the histories of the various tribe and nations who have existed during the several stages of the world's development, we sometimes pass over some very great lessons and truths, which if we had taken notice of, would have contributed to success in various undertakings. Among the nations that have contributed much to the civilization of man and from whose history very many and good lessons might be learnt, the Romans stand conspicuous. And, one great lesson which might be learnt from them but which has sometimes been overlooked is the consummate prudence with which they carried on their wars, which was the secret of all their victories. We find that their great and many conquests were obtained not by means of Roman soldiers, but using all prudence and wisdom they admitted into the rights of citizenship those nations conquered by them and thus by thier combined efforts, they carried on their victorious arms to regions far remote. This is a lesson which all those who are interested in the extending of Christ's kingdom, and in the carrying out the great and all-important work of missions ought to learn. It is indeed gratifying to note the wonderful strides the gospel has taken in Africa through the instrumentality of workers non-natives; nevertheless it is still a matter of fact that not till the Africans themselves who have received the light be received into full partnership and take up the work progress will be but slow. The inauguration of climate to the health of European workers with the want of paternal feelings generally with the natives impede the progress of the work but apart from these, there is no one who can reach the minds of the Africans with a degree of force but the Africans themselves and not till those natives who are true lovers of their country and whose desire is to take up the torch of the gospel and wave it wide to their fatherland-brethren be admitted into a share of citizenship there will be still a large vacuum in this all glorious work which otherwise could have been filled.

Feb 6, 1892 H.

The Editor Early Dawn.

Sir,—Frequent and loud have been the complaints about the monotony of Bonthe, made by several young gentlemen, and not without some degree of truth, as the cause for it is not far to seek. Morality I am sorry to say is at a very low degree, simple because instead of there being some institution or society to entice the young men to spend their leisure hours, other institutions of the most debasing character pervade the whole of Bonthe, and it is with difficulty the sincere resolved youth resists the fascinations with which they are pregnant.

In Bonthe the serpent has crawled into Eden again, and with its subtlety begun before the object is aware. But the thing required to dispel the monotony complained of, can hardly be defined since development of the intellectual powers, there are various dispositions, all leaning towards various directions without having a common centre. If one should declare that hilarity and mirth are the best ways to employ one's spare time, another more genial and inclined to virtue, would advance and suppose the innocent exercises such as erecting assemblies for the purpose of exchanging thoughts who rely out of institution will be the outcome, since as communicative beings we give and receive by the interchanging of views.

Truly the young men of Bonthe deserve to be encouraged to engage themselves in more useful and instructive societies than those which pest the country and render the atmosphere of morality pollute, and Mr. Editor, thanking you as I do for the favor of a space in your paper, let me hope that ere I ask another place for a letter, that this evil will have been forgotten, and a parent and rubber institution raised up in Bonthe for the improvement of the young and rising generation, the future ornaments of society —Yours,

OBSERVER.

Bonthe, 13th Feb. 1892

The following is the concluding portion of Mr. Charles Remmie's speech :—

They should be careful as to the playmates of their young ones that breath in an atmosphere of virtue; this makes it always most suitable that strong impressions be made ere the child be sent to school where he comes in contact with boys of different stamps and grades whose influences some for evil on others have been paramount. Care too should be taken to find out the moral atmosphere of the school to which the child is sent, and when sent to school parents should not think their duty done, but should think them but, now begun; every thing should not be left in the hands of the teacher, for very few are the hours spent with him in comparison to those spent at home and abroad as the child advances in years the memory becomes refined and the faculties developed as care was taken by parents and surroundings for his education when young. For, even as a child in the cradle is delighted to speak, without knowing the use of language and without knowing what to say and also with walking without knowing where to go even so is a child growing is delighted to be led or refined without even reference to the end to be attained, and since also the mind at this period is not engaged in the solution of any difficult problem and neither experience nor distress are familiar to him, but simplicity and modesty are his characteristics at this extraordinary period, the most extraordinary perhaps in the periods of this life; too much are can not be taken in the moulding of his mind and the building of his character for better and future years.

Gradually and silently he is ushered from this transient condition to the ally manned by the fearful current of threshold of youth, here, the mind be. Time's Mighty River such friends is the comes more active and can draw con state of this life, that we are travellers clusions, and the child begins to think from the cradle to the grave, we start and act for himself, and sally from from the cradle with hopes brilliant man's moral nature we hear that good and fair, to a fate regardless of our and evil are equally balanced, by the expectations and desires and at last end development of the intellectual powers, our course, the end of our earthly pilthe propensities therefore for good or grimage. evil, grow stronger or weaker; and if the early impressions were of a nature solid and good then there are strong expectations of success at the end, but if they have been of a pernicious kind then there is stronger influence for good on the nature already formed, but tho' there may be periods of reformation, yet it is seldom the case that wild oats once sown produce wheat, and 'tis but the grace of God alone that can change a ruined state into one of good nature. Vice practised at this period naturally becomes immanent; here the seed of future harvest sown in childhood's days, begins to take root, and shall in future years bring forth fruits in exact correspondence with the words, "whatsoever a man soweth that shall he also reaps; when youth is passed in vice, manhood necessarily endures the consequences of its follies; this period of youth is one also in which the designs of future prospects, impressed in childhood are consolidated and our natural inclinations, which are always to that which is evil enabled or allowed to have full sway, at this stage, the mind succumbs to either vice or virtue, the two component elements of our nature, and if the seed of vice had been sown, success is espied far away glimmering in the dusky twilight of the dismal future whose direful pathways, craggy slopes, and rugged steeps would cause to shudder the mind of any horse leader on and would make success in future career a thing not to be hoped for; this period silently gliding away, ushers us into manhood a period of transition between youth and old age, where the mind reaches its full climax of development where all our acquirements are put into action, where we are troubled with the stern anxiety and cares of life and to attend or fall beneath their sovereign sway. This period of transition passed over, we are swiftly borne to the period of old age which marks the interval of repose, between the hurry and the end of life, in it the man reaps what he had sown in youth, good or bad, whatever it was, it is an age of rest for to the imbecility of old age, quietness and repose are positive qualifications; in the serene and dignified state placed as it were on the confines of two Worlds, we look back to the past and if we have been good, we review them with the complacency of an approving conscience, and with humble confidence in the mercy of God, and with devout aspiration towards his eternal favors, also at this stage we look forward to the time when we shall be swallowed up in the fathomless abyss of death for now this last bar that doth sustain the bridge of life, is strongly and continuously menaced by the fearful current of time which we shall be swallowed up in the fathomless abyss of death for now this last bar that doth sustain the bridge of life, is strongly and continu-

NOTICE.

Messrs Lutterodt & Son

PHOTOGRAPHERS

beg to inform the Public in general that they are here, with their Apparatus to spend only a

WEEK OR TWO

with them. They are now ready to receive sitter daily. For further particulars apply to the above at Mrs. Cole's house Victoria Street. Bonthe 6th February 1892.

A HOUSE AND LOT

situate between Mr. J B. Parkinson and Mr. W. S. D. Pratt at Bonthe Victoria Road is

FOR SALE

with Kolah Tree, Cocoa, Coffee, &c. &c.

Lot measuring 150 feet in length to the water mark. For further particulars apply to

ELI CHRISTOPHER DAVIS Cooper

Bonthe Victoria Rd. 13th, Feb. 1893.

GENERAL NEWS.

We have much pleasure in informing the public here and elsewhere that the Manager has placed a Beacon on the bank in mid-stream opposite Keelah, which will be a guide in future to steamers, as frequently they get aground when either going or coming in port.

The Rev. William Vivian, Superintendent of the U. M. Churches with Rev. C. Goodman and Mr. Vircoe, who passed here the latter part of last month on a little journey to an inland town in the Mendi country, returned in the morning of the 12th instant, looking none the worse after their trip. They left yesterday morning by the contract boat for Freetown.

Rev. S. B. Morrison, Pastor in charge of Avery Station, Bargroo river, was a passenger in the s. s. Foutah, whither he is gone to witness the hymeneal celebration of his daughter.

cause they hold themselves aloof from the people, and take pains to make the natives feel that they are their superiors. I wish these ladies a long life of usefulness. I was very glad to meet my old friends Mr. Sawyerr and Mr. Jewett there, as both of these brothers have served their Master long and well. Thank you, Mr. Editor.—Yours,

A TEACHER.

Bonthe, 8th Feb. 1892.

The Editor Early Dawn.

SIR,—Histories are generally great teachers, but on account of the in different way we sometimes read the histories of the various tribe and nations who have existed during the several stages of the world's development, we sometimes pass over some very great lessons and truths, which if we had taken notice of, would have contributed to success in various undertakings. Among the nations that have contributed much to the civilization of man and from whose history very many and good lessons might be learnt, the Romans stand conspicuous. And, one great lesson which might be learnt from them but which has sometimes been overlooked is the consummate prudence with which they carried on their wars, which was the secret of all their victories. We find that their great and many conquests were obtained not by means of koman soldiers, but using all prudence and wisdom they admitted into the rights of citizenship those nations conquered by them and thus by thier combined efforts, they carried on their victorious arms to regions far remote. This is a lesson which all those who are interested in the extending of Christ's kingdom, and in the carrying out the great and all-important work of missions ought to learn. It is indeed gratifying to note the wonderful strides the gospel has taken in Africa through the instrumentality of workers non-natives; nevertheless it is still a matter of fact that not till the Africans themselves who have received the light be received into full partnership and take up the work progress will be but slow. The inadaptation of climate to the health of European workers with the want of paternal feelings generally with the natives impede the progress of the work. But apart from these, there is no one who can reach the minds of the Africans with a degree of force, but the Africans themselves and not till those natives who are true lovers of their country and whose desire is to take up the torch of the gospel and wave it wide to their far less favored brethren be admitted into rights of citizenship there will be still a large vacuum in this all glorious work which otherwise could have been filled.

Feb 6, 1892 H.

The Editor Early Dawn.

SIR.—Frequent and loud have been the complaints about the monotony of Bonthe, made by several young gentlemen; and not without some degree of truth, as the cause for it is not far to seek. Morality I am sorry to say is at a very low degree, simple because instead of there being some institution or society to advise the young men to spend their leisure hours, other delightful of the most riveting character prevail the whole of Bonthe, and it is with difficulty the inexperienced youth resists the fascinations with which they are pregnant.

In Bonthe the serpent has crawled into Eden again, and with its subtlety beguiled before the objects aware. But the limit of pleasure required to dispel the monotony complained of, can hardly be defined since there are various dispositions, all leaning towards various directions without having a common centre. If one should declare that hilarity and mirth are the best ways to employ one's spare time, another more genial and inclined to virtue, would advance and support the innocent exercises such as evening assemblies for the purpose of exchanging thoughts whereby mutual instruction will be the outcome, since as communicative beings we give and receive by the interchanging of views.

Truly the young men of Bonthe deserve to be encouraged to engage themselves in more useful and instructive societies than those which post the country and rend er the atmosphere of morality polluted, and Mr. Editor, thanking you as I do for the favor of a space in your paper, let me hope that ere I ask another place for a letter, that this evil will have been forgotten, and a pure and nobler institution raised up in Bonthe for the improvement of the young and rising generation, the future ornaments of society.—Yours,

OBSERVER.

Bonthe, 13th Feb. 1892

The following is the concluding portion of Mr. Charles Remmie's speech :—

They should be careful as to the playmates of their young ones that breath in an atmosphere of virtue; this makes it always most suitable that strong impressions be made e're the child be sent to school where he comes in contact with boys of different stamps and grades whose influences some for evil on others have been paramount. Care too should be taken to find out the moral atmosphere of the school to which the child is sent, and when sent to school parents should not think their duty done, but should think them but, now begun; every thing should not be left in the hands of the teacher, for very few are the hours spent with him in comparison to those spent at home and abroad as the child advances in years the memory becomes refined and the faculties developed as care was taken by parents and surroundings for his education when young. For, even as a child in the cradle is delighted to speak, without knowing the use of language and without knowing what to say and also with walking without knowing where to go even so is youth growing is delighted to be led or reined without even reference to the end to be attained, and since also the mind at this period is not engaged in the solution of any difficult problem and neither experience nor distress are familiar to him, but simplicity and modesty are his characteristics at this extraordinary period, the most extraordinary perhaps in the periods of this life; too much care can not be taken in the moulding of his mind and the building of his character for better and future years.

Gradually and silently he is ushered into the regions of life, is strongly and continuously impressed by the fearful current of time that doth sustains the vast bridge of life, is strongly and continuously impressed by the fearful current of time that doth sustains the vast bridge of life, is strongly and continuously impressed by the fearful current of threshold of youth, here, the mind be comes more active and can draw conclusions, and the child begins to think from the cradle to the grave, we start and not far thence, not since from from the cradle with hopes brilliant man's moral nature we learn that good and fair, to a fate regardless of our and evil are equally balanced, by the expectations and desires and at last end development of the intellectual powers, our course, the end of our earthly pilthe propensities therefore for good or grimage. evil, grow stronger or weaker; and if the early impressions were of a nature solid and good then there are strong expectations of success at the end, but if they have been of a pernicious kind then there is stronger influence for good on the nature already formed, but the there may be periods of reformation, yet it is seldom the case that wild oats once sown produce wheat, and its but the grace of God alone that can change a ruined state into one of good nature. Vice practised at this period naturally becomes immanent; here the seed of future harvest sown in childhood's days, begins to take root, and shall in future years bring forth fruits in exact correspondence with the seeds, whatsoever a man soweth that shall he also reape; when youth is passed in vice, manhood necessarily endures the consequences of its follies; this period of youth is one also in which the designs of future prospects, impressed in childhood are consolidated and our natural inclinations, which are always to that which is evil curbed or allowed to have full sway. At this stage, the mind succumbs to either vice or virtue, the two component elements of our nature, and if the seed of vice had been sown, success is espied far away glimmering in the dusky twilight of the dismal future whose direful pathways, craggy slopes, and rugged steps would cause to shudder the mind of any honest looker on and would make success in future career a thing not to be hoped for; this period silently gliding away ushers us into manhood a period of transition between youth and old age, where the mind reaches its full climax of development where all our acquirements are put into action, where we are troubled with the stern anxiety and cares of life and to attend or fall beneath their sovereign sway. This period of transition passed over, we are gaily borne to the period of old age which marks the interval of repose, between the hurry and the end of life, in it the man reaps what he had sown in youth, good or bad, whatever it was, it is an age of rest for to the imbecility of old age, quietness and repose are positive qualifications; in the serene and dignified sage placed as it were on the confines of two Worlds, we look back to the past and if we have been good, we review them with the complacency of an approving conscience, and with humble confidence in the mercy of God, and with devout aspiration towards his eternal favors, also at this stage we look forward to the time when we shall be swallowed up in the fathomless abyss of death for now this last bar that doth sustains the

NOTICE.

Messrs Lutterodt & Son

PHOTOGRAPHERS

beg to inform the Public in general that they are here, with their Apparatus to spend only a

WEEK OR TWO

with them. They are now ready to receive sitter daily. For further particulars apply to the above at Mrs. Cole's house Victoria Street. Bonthe 6th February 1892.

A HOUSE AND LOT

situate between Mr. J. B. Parkinson and Mr. W. S. D. Pratt at Bonthe Victoria Road is

FOR SALE

with Kolah Tree, Cocoa, Coffee, &c. &c.

Let measuring 150 feet in length to the water mark. For further particulars apply to

ELI CHRISTOPHER DAVIS
Cooper
Bonthe Victoria Rd.
13th. Feb. 1892.

GENERAL NEWS.

We have much pleasure in informing the public here and elsewhere that the Manager has placed a Beacon on the bank in mid-stream opposite Keelah, which will be a guide in future to steamers, as frequently they get aground when either going or coming in port.

The Rev. William Vivian, Superintendent of the U. M. Churches with Rev. C. Goodman and Mr. Vircoe, who passed here the latter part of last month on a little journey to an inland town in the Mendi country, returned in the morning of the 12th instant, looking none the worse after their trip. They left yesterday morning by the contract boat for Freetown.

Rev. S. B. Morrison, Pastor in charge of Avery Station, Bargroo river, was a passenger in the s. s. Foutah, whither he is gone to witness the hymeneal celebration of his daughter.

SELECTIONS.

VALUE OF GOOD BOOKS.

Books to-day have much to do in the formation of character. Bad books, which are abundant, give false ideals of life, poison the mind and corrupt the whole man. The best remedy for the effect of this class of literature is to be found in good books. Many young people are going to ruin more because of bad books than anything else.

A thoughtful writer tells that it is doubtful whether John Bunyan would have written his immortal work, "The Pilgrim's Progress," had not his wife brought with her as her marriage portion two books "The Plain Man's Pathway to Heaven," and "The Practice of Piety," which her father had left her when he died. It is easy to imagine how the reading of these books led the way to Jack Bunyan, giving his mind to the subject as he year after year was confined in Bedford jail, until he dreamed the dream which has led to the awakening of thousands of men and women to the importance of a Christian life.—S. Telegraph.

SET THE CLOCK RIGHT.

In one of our daily papers these latery appeared a story of a colored man, who came to a watchmaker and gave him two bunds of a watch, saying:

"I want yer to fix up dese hands. Dey jess done keep on now 'bout time for me 'dun eat meals."

"Where is the clock?" asked the watchmaker.

"Dat at de house on Injun Creek."

"But I must have the clock."

"Didn't I tell yer dat was de matter with de clock 'cepin' de hands, and I done brought 'em to you. You jess want de clock so you kin tinker wid it and charge me a big price.—Gimme back dem hands. And so saying he went off to find some reasonable watchmaker.

Foolish as he was, his action was very like that of those who try to regulate their conduct without being made right on the inside. They go wrong, but refuse to believe that the trouble is with their hearts. They are sure that it is not the clock, but the people that are [illegible]. They know no

BIG AT A DIST

If you undertake some things at a dista out the aid of a theo are next to sure usually in the way o at on. If it is a dis see ahead, it looks m as large as it really is of an obstruction, a a trial of any sort. things for us are not they look, and the t not as good. Last s saw something that dimly like a deer distant hill-side but a nine at I is head a his heels, and to t one to the other have to be twelve long. But curiosity me to go and see w look so exactly like a and yet not be one. short distance was g as he jumped, pran blew his horn to the deer in the coun look out for themse then away he went white handkerchief comical fashion. The were only nine tu set apart. There ar instances of this exa of things at a dist sense—it the Ch —will climb the to spire and scan the the sea-shore, or across the sea, for fill your pulpit, whe better man than yo not ten miles away, see them off they ar by men, tremendou

SELECTIONS.

VALUE OF GOOD BOOKS.

Books to-day have much to do in the formation of character. Bad books, which are abundant, give false ideals of life, poison the mind, and corrupt the whole man. The best remedy for the effect of this class of literature is to be found in good books. Many young people are going to ruin more because of bad books than anything else.

A thoughtful writer tells that it is doubtful whether John Bunyan would have written his immortal work, "The Pilgrim's Progress," had not his wife brought with her as her marriage portion two books "The Plain Man's Pathway to Heaven," and "The Practice of Piety," which her father had left her when he died. It is easy to imagine how the reading of these books led the way to John Bunyan, giving his mind to the subject as he year after year was confined in Bedford jail, until he dreamed the dream which has led to the awakening of thousands of men and women to the importance of a Christian life.—R. Telescope.

SET THE CLOCK RIGHT.

In one of our daily papers there lately appeared a story of a colored man, who came to a watchmaker and gave him two hands of a clock, saying:

"I want yer to fix up dese han's. Dey jess doan keep no mo' kerec time for mo' den six months."

"Where is the clock?" asked the watchmaker.

"Out at de house on Injun Creek"

"But I must have the clock."

"Didn't I tell yer dar's nuffin de matter wid de clock 'ceptin' de han's, and I done brought 'em to you. You jess want de clock so you kin tinker wid it and charge me a big price.—Gimme back dem han's. And so saying, he went off to find some reasonable watchmaker.

Foolish as he was, his action was very like that of those who try to regulate their conduct without being made right on the inside. They go wrong, but refuse to believe that the trouble is with their hearts They are sure that it is not the clock, but the hands that are out of order. They know no more of the need of a change in their spiritual condition than the poor negroe did of the works of his clock. They are unwilling to give themselves over into the hands of the great Artificer, who will set their works right, so they may keep time with the great clock of the universe, and no longer attempt to set themselves according to the incorrect time of the world. And their reason for not putting themselves into the hand of the Lord is very similar to the reason the colored man gave—They are afraid the price will be too great. They say: "We only wish to avoid this or that bad habit." But the great Clockmaker says: "I cannot regulate the hands unless I have the clock. I must have the Clock."—Weekly Itinerant.

BIG AT A DISTANCE.

If you undertake to measure things at a distance without the aid of a theodolite you are next to sure to miss it usually in the way of exaggeration. If it is a disaster you see ahead, it looks many times as large as it really is—and so of an obstruction, a difficulty a trial of any sort. The worst things for us are not as bad as they look, and the best things not as good. Last summer I saw something that was wondrously like a deer lying on a distant hill-side but there was a pine at his head and one at his heels, and to reach from one to the other he would have to be twelve feet or so long. But curiosity impelled me to go and see what could look so exaly like a huge deer and yet not be one. Only a short distance was gone before up he jumped, pranced about blew his horn to tell all the deer in the country-side to look out for themselves, and then away he went waving his white handkerchief in a most conical fashion. The pine trees were only pine bushes, four feet apart. There are constant instances of this exaggeration of things at a distance. Your session—it the Church be rich—will climb the top of the spire and scan the horizon of the sea-shore, or look clear across the sea, for a man to fill your pulpit, when there is a better man than you will call not ten miles away. As you see them off they are mighty big men, 'tremendous fellows, four feet taller than Goliath and broad in proportion. The fact is you cannot find a better man in the world, better friend neighbor, and citizen than you can find within three miles of your farm, or two blocks of your office—and if you cannot get a preacher to suit you inside of your presbytery, you will never find him though you roam the wide world all over. The Interior.

We never have more than we can bear. The present hour we are alway able to endure. As our day, so is our strength. If the trials of many years were gathered into one they would overwhelm us; therefore in pity to our little strength, he sends first one, then another, then removes both and lays a third, heavier perhaps than either; but all is so wisely measured to our strength that the bruised reed is never broken. We do not enough look at our trials in this continuous and successive view. Each one is sent to teach us something, and altogether they have a lesson which is beyond the power of any to teach alone.

TRANSPARENT SIMPLICITY.

There is no aspect of a really noble nature that commands our admiration beyond this. Affectation, is visible in religious profession or service, particularly distasteful and repellant. Wherever it is seen, there is originated within us an instinctive distrust, an inward revolt against accepting either such testimony or leadership. Impress one that we study mere effect in what we say and do, and no amount of artifice on our part will counteract the prejudice that must eventually destroy our influence for good upon the individual. There is a sufficient explanation for all this. Ostentatious display of fancied religious attainments is so inconsistent with humanity and meekness that one cannot but suspect the entire basis of character. These persons are self-centered—to make use of an expression which indicates a deficiency that will surely sink into positive irreligion in some form unless it is arrested by the cleansing blood. There is just here a subtle ground of approach by the arch enemy of the soul an assailable point character, which unhappily, he is too often successful in discovering Nothing is more dangerous, or more difficult to dislodge, than spiritual self conceit, as opposed to an artless genuine simplicity.—Weekly Itinerant.

THE FLOWERS OF EGYPT.

The flowers which bloomed in the valley of the Nile fifty centuries ago bloom there still, unchanged even in color. There are to be seen there blue sprays of larkspur, which loving hands laid upon the bodies of those who died a thousand years before Abraham and Sarah went down into Egypt. In the tombs of later date have been found, together with apparently simply ornamental flowers as hollyhocks and chrysanthemums, the various fruits vegetables and grain for which the land has ever been renowned, as figs, dates, olives, grapes pomegranates, onions, beans, barley and wheat.

He who tries to live in the spiritual sense alone, or in the moral sense alone, must fail in his effort, for the two were bound together We, therefore, ought to let no insistence of men on the doing of the simple duty as the sum of life blind us to the relations in which we stand to God, and we ought to let no sublime associations of the way in which man may hold communion with God make us shut our eyes to the imperiousness of the daily duty we owe to our fellow-men.

NOTICE.

The Manager of this Journal begs to inform the public of Bonthe and elsewhere that the columns of this paper are open to correspondents, and that all letters sent for publication will receive his attention, provided they are accompanied by the names of the writers, not necessarily for publication, but as a guarantee Rejected manuscripts will not be returned. All work with which he is favored shall be done in such a manner as he hopes will give satisfaction and secure patronage always.

Printed at the Office of the Early Dawn, Bonthe Sherbro, February 15, 1892.

ISSUES
MISSING

THE EARLY DAWN.

"The Morning Light is Breaking. The Darkness Disappears."

VOL. IX. BONTHE, SHERBRO, WEST AFRICA, JUNE 15, 1892. No. 11.

The Early Dawn.

Published Semi Monthly at Bonthe Sherbro. Under the Auspices of the Board of Missions of the United Brethern In Christ

AGENTS

United States—Revs. B. F. Booth and Wm. McKee, Dayton Rev. Wm. J. Davis, Buell, Ohio Rev. D. K. Flickinger, Willoughby, Ohio. M. J. Stoner, Manheim, Pa., Rev. G. W. Arnold, Eldorado Ohio.

West Africa—G. D. Leigh, River Gambia. A O Sackey, Freetown, Sierra Leone, Rev. James Deputy, Marshal, Liberia. Mr. Moses S. Boyle, Liberia.

TERMS

One Year by mail,	£0 5 0
Delivered in Bonthe,	0 3 0
Half yearly by mail,	0 3 0
Ditto. delivered in Bonthe	0 2 6

NOTICE.

We beg to inform our Subscribers in America that they can either pay subscriptions on our behalf to the Rev Wm. McKee, Telescope office, Dayton, Ohio, or direct to the undersigned in Green Backs.

We would also ask those in arrears to be kind enough to make settlement through the same medium.

JOSEPH GOMER.

FIRST ARMORED SHIP.

The first account we have of an armored ship is in 1530. It was one of the fleet of the Knights of St. John, entirely sheathed with lead, and is said to have successfully resisted all the shot of that day. At the siege of Gibraltar in 1782 the French and Spaniards employed a light iron bomb-proofing over their decks. The first practical use of wrought iron plates as a defense for the sides of vessels was by the French in the Crimean war in 1853, to be used against the Russian forts in the Baltic.

Young Men's Era.

GOOD RULES FOR YOUNG MEN.

Professor Blakie, in a recent number of the Young Man, enumerates a few of the rules which have guided him through life, and which no doubt have contributed largely to his eminent usefulness:

1. Never indulge the notion that you have any absolute right to choose the sphere or the circumstances in which you are to put forth your powers of social action; but let your daily wisdom of life be in making a good use of the opportunities given you.

2. We live in a real, and a solid, and a truthful word. In such a world only truth, in the long run, can hope to prosper. Therefore avoid lies, mere show and sham, and hollow superficiality of all kinds, which is, at the best, a painted lie. Let whatever you are, and whatever you do, grow out of a firm root of truth and a strong soil of reality.

3. The nobility of life is work. We live in a working world. The lazy and idle man does not coun in the plan of campaign. "My Father worketh hitherto, and I work." Let that text be enough.

4. Never forget St. Paul's sentence: "Love is the fulfilling of the law." This is the steam of the social machine.

5. But the steam requires regulation. It is regulated by intelligence and moderation. Healthy action is always a balance of forces, and all extremes are dangerous, the excess of a good thing being often more dangerous in its social consequences than the excess of what is radically bad.

6. Do one thing well. "Be a whole man;" as Chancellor Thurlow said: 'Do one thing at one time." Make clean work, and leave no tags. Allow no delays when you are at a thing; do it and be done with it.

7. Avoid miscellaneous reading. Read nothing that you do not care to remember; and remember nothing that you do not mean to use.

8. Never desire to appear clever and make a show of your talents before men. Be honest, loving, kindly, and sympathetic in all you say and do. Cleverness will flow from you naturally, if you have it; and applause will come to you unsought from those who know what to applaud; but the applause of fools is to be shunned.

9. Above all things avoid fault finding and a habit of criticism. Let your rule in reference to your social sentiments be simply this: Pray for the bad, pity the weak, enjoy the good, and reverence both the great and the small as playing each his part aptly in the divine symphony of the universe.

THE MEMORY.

There is no better way to strengthen the memory than by the habit of speaking the exact truth. In some minds there is a strong tendency to exaggerate or diminish, to magnify or minify. Various motives operate to encourage this teudency. Aside from its moral bearings, the habit of exaggeration is injurious as affecting the memory. It is not enough that one is able to recall facts in a general way. Too much minuteness, indeed, may not be desirable; but whenever it is important that details should be given, exactness is absolutely essential; not the least coloring of a fact is justifiable. You may draw [illegible] reasonable extent to illustrate a principle or a sentiment, for the cases are not supposed to have necessary existence, save in the imagination; and if the principle or sentiment is thus brought more distinctly to view, the precise object sought is gained, the principal and not the imaginary or illustrative facts being the central point of observation. But it is otherwise with the relation of events that have transpired or objects seen; the imagination has nothing to do with the relation, and should be utterly excluded, and the naked facts only preserved.—C. Advocate.

ADVICE TO PARENTS.

Be very vigilant over thy child in the April of his understanding, lest the frosts of May nip his blossoms. While he is a tender twig, straighten him; whilst he is a new vessel, season him; such as thou makest him, such commonly shall thou find him. Let his first lesson be obedience, and his second shall be what thou wilt. Give him education in good letters, to the utmost of thy ability and his capacity. Season his youth with the love of his Creator, and make the fear of his God the beginning of his knowledge. If he have an active spirit, rather rectify than curb it; but reckon idleness among his chiefest faults. As his judgment ripens, observe his inclination, and tender him a calling that shall not cross it. Forced marriages and callings seldom prosper. Show him both the plow and the plow, and prepare him as well for the dauber of the skirmish as possess him with the honor of the prize.

M Telescope.

WHAT BOYS SHOULD DO.

Horace Mann gives this bit of advice to boys: "You are made to be kind, boys, generous, magnanimous. If there is a boy in school who has a club foot, don't let him know you ever see it. If there is a boy with ragged clothes, don't talk about rags in his hearing. If there is a lame boy, [illegible] If there is a hungry one, give him part of your dinner. If there is a dull one, help him to get his lessons. If there is a bright one, be not envious of him for if one boy is proud of his talents and another is envious of them, there are two great wrongs, and no more talent than before. If a larger or stronger boy has injured you, and is sorry for it, forgive him. All the school will know by their countenance how much better it is than to have a great fuss. And remember who said 'Love your enemies,' and 'Bless them which curse you.'—Telescope.

HOW HE BECAME RICH.

A rich man who was poor when a boy, was asked how to become rich. He replied: My father taught me never to play until my work was finished, and never to spend money until I had earned it. If I had but one hour's work in a day, I must do that first; after that I was allowed to play. Then I could play with more pleasure than if I had an unfinished task. I formed the habit of doing everything in time. It soon became easy to do so."

Ins. BRITISH MUSEUM

THE EARLY DAWN.

"The Morning Light is Breaking. The Darkness Disappears."

VOL. IX. BONTHE, SHERBRO, WEST AFRICA, JUNE 15, 1892. No. 11

The Early Dawn.

Issued Semi-Monthly at Bonthe

Under the Auspices of the Board of Missions of the United Brethern In Christ

AGENTS

United States—Revs. B. F. Booth and W. B. McKee, Dayton Rev. Wm. J. Davis, Bonthe, Ohio Rev. D. K. Flickinger, Wilmot, Ohio. M. J. Stoner, Manheim, Pa. Rev. G. W. Arnold, Eldorado Ohio. S. West Africa—G. D. Lough, River Gambia. A. O. Sackey, Freetown, Sierra Leone, Rev. James Dennis, Marshall, Liberia. Rev. Moses S. Boyer, Liberia.

TERMS

One Year by mail,	£0 6 0
Delivered in Bonthe,	0 5 0
Half yearly by mail,	0 3 0
Ditto. deliver. in Bonthe	0 2 6

NOTICE.

We beg to inform our Subscribers in America that they can either pay subscriptions on our behalf to the Rev. Wm. McKee, Telescope office, Dayton, Ohio, or direct to the undersigned in Green Backs. — [illegible] to make settlement through the same office.

JOSEPH SOGER.

FIRST ARMORED SHIP.

The first account we have of an armored ship is in 1430. It was one of the fleet of the Knights of St. John, entirely sheathed with lead, and is said to have successfully resisted all the shot of that day. At the siege of Gibraltar in 1782 the French and Spaniards exposed a light in bomb-proof over their decks. The first practical use of wrought iron plates as a defense for the sides of vessels was by the French in the Crimean war in 1854, to be used against the Russian forts in the Baltic.

Young Men's Era.

GOOD RULES FOR YOUNG MEN.

Professor Bakie in a recent number of the Young [illegible] a few of the rules which guided him [illegible] and which read:

1. Never indulge the idea that [illegible] have any peculiar reference to your own individual [illegible] as the sphere in which you are to put forth your powers of social action; but let your daily wisdom, or folly, be in making a good use of the opportunities given you.

2. We live in a real and a solid, and a truthful world. In such a world only truth, in the long run, can hope to prosper. Therefore avoid lies, mere show and sham, and hollow superficiality of all kinds, which is, at the best, a painted lie. Let whatever you are, and whatever you do, grow out of a firm root of truth and a strong soil of reality.

3. The nobility of life is work. We live in a working world. The lazy and idle man does not count in the plan of campaign. "My Father worketh hitherto, and I work." Let that text be enough.

4. Never forget St. Paul's sentence: "Love is the fulfilling of the law." This is the steam of the social machine.

5. But the steam requires regulation. It is regulated by intelligence and moderation. Healthy action is always a balance of forces, and all extremes are dangerous, the excess of a good thing being often more dangerous in its social consequences than the excess of what is radically bad.

6. Do one thing well. "Be a whole man," as Chancellor Thurlow said. "Do one thing at one time." Make clean work, and leave no tags. Allow no delays when you are at a thing; do it and be done with it.

7. Avoid miscellaneous reading. Read nothing that you do not care to remember, and remember nothing that you do not mean to use.

8. Never desire to appear clever and make a show of your talents before men. Be honest, living, kindly, and sympathetic in all you say and do. Cleverness will flow from you naturally if you have it; and applause will come to you unsought from those who know [illegible] to applaud; but the approving [illegible] guided him please of fools is to be shunned like [illegible] which no one [illegible]

9. Above all things avoid [illegible] and a habit of [illegible] Never [illegible] the idea that [illegible] have any peculiar reference to your own individual [illegible] as the sphere in which you are to put forth your powers of social action; but let your daily wisdom, or folly, be in making a good use of the opportunities given you.

2. We live in a real and a solid, and a truthful world. In such a world only truth, in the long run, can hope to prosper. Therefore avoid lies, mere show and sham, and hollow superficiality of all kinds, which is, at the best, a painted lie. Let whatever you are, and whatever you do, grow out of a firm root of truth and a strong soil of reality.

3. The nobility of life is work. We live in a working world. The lazy and idle man does not count in the plan of campaign. "My Father worketh hitherto, and I work." Let that text be enough.

4. Never forget St. Paul's sentence: "Love is the fulfilling of the law." This is the steam of the social machine.

5. But the steam requires regulation. It is regulated by intelligence and moderation. Healthy action is always a balance of forces, and all extremes are dangerous, the excess of a good thing being often more dangerous in its social consequences than the excess of what is radically bad.

6. Do one thing well. "Be a whole man," as Chancellor Thurlow said. "Do one thing at one time." Make clean work, and leave no tags. Allow no delays when you are at a thing; do it and be done with it.

7. Avoid miscellaneous reading. Read nothing that you do not care to remember, and remember nothing that you do not mean to use.

8. Never desire to appear clever and make a show of your talents before men. Be honest, living, kindly, and sympathetic in all you say and do. Cleverness will flow from you naturally if you have it; and applause will come to you unsought from those who know enough to applaud; but the approving [illegible] guided him please of fools is to be shunned like [illegible] which no one [illegible]

9. Above all things avoid [illegible] and a habit of [illegible] for the bad, pity the weak, enjoy the good, and reverence both the great and the small as playing each his part aptly in the divine symphony of the universe.—

THE MEMORY.

There is no better way to strengthen the memory than by the habit of speaking the exact truth. In some minds there is a strong tendency to exaggerate or diminish, to magnify or minify. Various motives operate to encourage this tendency. Aside from its moral bearings, the habit of exaggeration is injurious as affecting the memory. It is not enough that one is able to recall facts in a general way. Too much minuteness, indeed, may not be desirable; but whenever it is important that details should be given, exactness is absolutely essential; not the least coloring of a fact is justifiable. You may draw upon your imagination to any reasonable extent to illustrate a principle or a sentiment, for the cases are not supposed to have necessary existence, save in the imagination; and if the principle or sentiment is thus brought more distinctly to view, the precise object sought is gained, the principal and not the imaginary or illustrative facts being the central point of observation. But it is otherwise with the relation of events that have transpired or objects seen; the imagination has nothing to do with the relation, and should be entirely excluded, and the naked facts only preserved.—C. Advocate.

ADVICE TO PARENTS.

Be very vigilant over thy child in the April of his understanding, lest the frosts of May nip his blossoms. While he is a tender twig, straighten him; whilst he is a new vessel, season him; such as thou makest him he commonly shall then first find him. Let his first lesson be obedience, and his second shall be what thou wilt. Give him education in good letters, in the rules of thy ability and his capacity. Season his youth with the love of his Creator, and the fear of his God the beginning of his knowledge. If he have an active spirit, rather restrain than curb it; but reckon idleness among his chiefest faults. As his judgement ripens, observe his inclination, and tender him a calling that shall not cross it. Forced marriages and callings seldom prosper. Show him both the mow and the plow, and prepare him as well for the thunder of the skirmish as possess him with the honor of the prize.

R. Telescope.

WHAT BOYS SHOULD DO.

Horace, Mann gives this bit of advice to boys: "You are made to be kind, boys, generous, magnanimous. If there is a boy in school who has a club foot, don't let him know you ever saw it. If there is a boy with ragged clothes, don't talk about rags in his hearing. If there is a lame boy, assign him some part of the game that doesn't require running. If there is a hungry one, give him part of your dinner. If there is a dull one, help him to get his lessons. If there is a bright one, be not envious of him for if one boy is proud of his talents and another is envious of them, there are two great wrongs, and no more talent than before. If a larger or stronger boy has injured you, and is sorry for it, forgive him. All the school will show by their countenance how much better it is than to have a great fuss. And remember who said 'Love your enemies,' and 'Bless them which curse you'—Telescope.

HOW HE BECAME RICH.

A rich man who was poor when a boy, was asked how to become rich. He replied: My father taught me never to play until my work was finished, and never to spend money until I had earned it. If I had but one hour's work in a day, I must do that first; after that I was allowed to play. Then I could play with more pleasure than if I had an unfinished task. I formed the habit of doing everything in time. It soon became easy to do so."

Cent. 1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 10
The BRITISH MUSEUM

ARLY DAWN.

is Breaking, The Darkness Disappears."

SHERBRO, WEST AFRICA, JUNE 15, 1892. No. 11.

...ness in which ...forth your pow... action; but let ...dom of life be ...and not of the ...given you. ...is a real, and a ...ultiful word. In ...only truth, in the ...hope to prosper, ...cold lies, mere ...ase, and hollow ...of all kinds, ...he best, a painted ...ver you are, and ...do, grow out of ...of truth and a ...reality. ...bility of life is ...ve in a working ...laze and idle ...coun in the plan ..."My Father ...erto, and I work." ...be enough. ...forget St Paul's ...love is the true ...w." This is the ...social machine. ...steam requires ...It is regulated ...ge and modera... action is always ...f forces, and all ...dangerous, the ...good thing being ...dangerous in its ...ences than the ...it is radically bad ...thing well. "Be ...," as Chancellor ..."Do one thing ..." Make clean ...ve no tags. Allow ...hen you are at a ...and be done with ...

...miscellaneous ...read nothing that ...are to remember; ...er nothing that ...mean to use. ...desire to appear ...make a show of ...before men. Be ...ng, kindly, and ...n all you say and ...ess will flow from ...y, if you have it; ...will come to you ...n those who know ...aud; but the ap... is to be shun... ...all things avoid ...and a habit of ...Get your place in ...your work; culti... ...simplicity. Lay ...love of his Creator, and be ...to ...for the bad, pity the weak, enjoy the good, and reverence both the great and the small as playing each his part aptly in the divine symphony of the universe.—

THE MEMORY.

There is no better way to strengthen the memory than by the habit of speaking the exact truth. In some minds there is a strong tendency to exaggerate or diminish, to magnify or minify. Various motives operate to encourage this tendency. Aside from its moral bearings the habit of exaggeration is injurious as affecting the memory. It is not enough that one is able to recall facts in a general way. Too much minuteness, indeed, may not be desirable; but however it is important that details should be given, exactness is absolutely essential; not the least coloring of a fact is justifiable. You may draw upon your imagination to any reasonable extent to illustrate a principle or a sentiment, but the cases are not supposed to have necessary existence, save in the imagination; and if the principle or sentiment is thus brought more distinctly to view, the precise object sought is gained, the principle and not the imaginary or illustrative facts being the central point of observation. But it is otherwise with the relation of events that have transpired or objects seen; the imagination has nothing to do with the relation, and should be utterly excluded, and the naked facts only preserved.—C. Advocate.

ADVICE TO PARENTS.

Be very vigilant over thy child in the April of his understanding lest the frosts of May nip his blossoms. While he is a tender twig, straighten him; whilst he is a new vessel, season him; such as then he makes him, such commonly shall then find him. Let his first lesson be obedience, and his second shall be what thou wilt. Give him education in good letters, to the measure of thy ability, and his capacity. Season his youth with the love of his Creator, and the fear of his God the beginning of his knowledge. If he have an active spirit, rather rectify than curb it; but reckon idleness among his chiefest faults. As his judgment ripens, observe his inclination, and tender him a calling that shall not cross it. Forced marriages and callings seldom prosper. Show him both the mow and the plow, and prepare him as well for the dangers of the sithe as possess him with the honor of the prize.

R. Telescope.

WHAT BOYS SHOULD DO.

Horace Mann gives this bit of advice to boys: "You are made to be kind, boys, generous, magnanimous. If there is a boy in school who has a club foot, don't let him know you ever saw it. If there is a boy with ragged clothes, don't talk about rags in his hearing. If there is a lame boy, assign him some part of the game that doesn't require running. If there is a hungry one, give him part of your dinner. If there is a dull one, help him to get his lessons. If there is a bright one, be not envious of him for if one boy is proud of his talents and another is envious of them, there are two great wrongs, and no more talent than before. If a larger or stronger boy has injured you, and is sorry for it, forgive him. All the school will show by their countenance how much better it is than to have a great fuss. And remember who said 'Love your enemies,' and 'Bless them which curse you'—Telescope.

HOW HE BECAME RICH.

A rich man who was poor when a boy, was asked how to become rich. He replied: My father taught me never to play until my work was finished, and never to spend money until I had earned it. If I had but one hour's work in a day, I must do that first; after that I was allowed to play. Then I could play with more pleasure than if I had an unfinished task. I formed the habit of doing everything in time. It soon became easy to

Cms 2 3 1 3 2 BRITISH MUSEUM

DAWN.

Darkness Disappears."

A. JUNE 15, 1892. No. 11.

...the fear of his God the beginning of his knowledge. If he have an active spirit, rather rectify than curb it; but reckon idleness among his chiefest faults. As his judgment ripens, observe his inclination, and tender him a calling that shall not cross it. Forced marriages and callings seldom prosper. Show him both the mow and the plow, and prepare him as well for the danger of the sithe as possess him with the honor of the prize.

R. Telescope.

WHAT BOYS SHOULD DO.

Horace Mann gives this bit of advice to boys: "You are made to be kind, boys, generous, magnanimous. If there is a boy in school who has a club foot, don't let him know you ever saw it. If there is a boy with ragged clothes, don't talk about rags in his hearing. If there is a lame boy, assign him some part of the game that doesn't require running. If there is a hungry one, give him part of your dinner. If there is a dull one, help him to get his lessons. If there is a bright one, be not envious of him for if one boy is proud of his talents and another is envious of them, there are two great wrongs, and no more talent than before. If a larger or stronger boy has injured you, and is sorry for it, forgive him. All the school will show by their countenance how much better it is than to have a great fuss. And remember who said 'Love your, enemies,' and 'Bless them which curse you'—Telescope.

HOW HE BECAME RICH.

A rich man who was poor when a boy, was asked how to become rich. He replied: My father taught me never to play until my work was finished, and never to spend money until I had earned it. If I had but one hour's work in a day, I must do that first; after that I was allowed to play. Then I could play with more pleasure than if I had an unfinished task. I formed the habit of doing everything in time. It soon became easy to

Cms 2 3 1 3 2 BRITISH MUSEUM

☞ The Manager of this Journal will be very thankful to those subscribers who are in arrears for a settlement of their accounts, as it will enable him to make more improvements in the paper for the benefit of its readers.

Persons wishing to subscribe to the Early Dawn Newspaper will please take notice that in all cases payment is required in advance.

THE EARLY DAWN.

Monday, June 15, 1892.

UNITED STATES IN THE CONGO.

From several reliable reports which have reached us from time to time, we are in a position to state that after so long a time since the European scramble for Africa, the United States of America intend manifesting an interest in the Congo river, and to that end it is rumored that a line of steamers is in contemplation to run between Boston, one of the principal seaports of the United States of America, and Boma, the commercial centre of the Congo River, West Coast of Africa.

Whether or not it was by the favorable report carried home to their Government by the men of science who were sent from America in the United States sloop-of-war Pensacola, in the year 1850, to witness the comet which appeared at St. Paul de Loanda in that year or otherwise is no matter for cavil, as it is certain that some very unalloyed description of the Congo territory must have reached America, and fermented by those unsophisticated gentlemen who consider all men equal on earth, the climax has been reached, and determination for the good of the Dark Continent has been resounded in several Northern States of America.

Mr. R. I. Dorsey Mohun, formerly a Lieutenant in the United States Navy, has been appointed Consul-General at Boma.

The commodities of such famous manufacturing cities as those of Massachesuests and Counecticut, in the States, will readily find a demand in that world-attractive river, and behind them those guardian angels—the missionaries—will and must surely follow with their works of faith and labor of love, and we do earnestly hope before another decade astonishing proofs of the stretching out of Ethiopia's hand may be acknowledged, without a dissent, by the whole civilized world.

THE STEAMSHIP FOOTAH.

This steamer, which is the property of Messrs. Fisher & Randell, one of the oldest firms in Sierra Leone, and the contractors for the conveyance of Her Majesty's mails between Freetown and Sherbro, and vice versa, has been the subject of complaint over and again by persons sufficiently intelligent to make a reasonable complaint, which we felt compelled more than once to publish; but notwithstanding our efforts to bring about a change for the better in the working arrangements of this steamer, louder complaints are still made against her especially by passengers compelled of necessity to travel in her.

The growing needs of Sherbro today certainly demand a more commodious vessel, as scarcely a trip either way does she not carry from 40 to 50 passengers, and sometimes more. Since the wreck of the steamer Susu, twelve months ago, if the interest of the Sherbro public were considered, we unhesitatingly say a better steamer would have been plying the waters between Freetown and Sherbro before now.

Aside from the vessel being a contract boat to carry the mails, she also takes cargo for the merchants in Sherbro, who are ready always to pay necessary freight; but these gentlemen, or some of them, have been often reduced to the discomfort of seeing their long expected package or packages, as the case may be, taken back to Freetown on no other pretext than that it was too late to deliver, although she may be in port an hour or more after.

None would dispute that the convenience of the merchants and the public should be consulted, as where there is a reciprocity of arrangement, the outcome must be satisfactory. If the agents of the steamer could only drop the idea of "false economy" and procure a better steamer and try to give merchants twelve pence for their shilling, complaints must cease.

BOARD OF MISSIONS.

The Parent Board of Missions of the church of the United Brethren in Christ, United States of America, has held its Annual Session at Lima, Ohio, U.S.A. and is reported to have been largely attended by both members and friends of the cause of missions, and while it was to be regretted that the five-cent collections had not come up to last year, yet it was gratifying to note that the other collections had been more than measurably better, so that the Committee on Foreign Missions were encouraged to recommend the early repairs of the Mission buildings, and also liberal appropriations to Germany and Africa. It also recommended that Rev. J. Gomer be relieved, at his own request, from the General Superintendency of the work, and that he be assigned to Good Hope Station as Presiding Elder of the district, and that Rev. D. F. Wilberforce be requested to continue in charge of the Training School until the Bishop visits Africa. From the above it would appear that our Missions are to be sucecoured speedily, so all should take fresh courage and work with a will.

CORRESPONDENCE.

☞ We shall not be responsible for the opinions of our Correspondents. Correspondents will plea s write on one side of paper only.

The Editor Early Dawn.

Dear Mr. Editor,—Kindly acknowledge the following receipts towards the Native Pastorate Church 1891-92, omitted in our last and oblige

M. Z. Macauley	....£1	1	0
C. T. O. Davis	 1	0	0
S. A. Macauley	 0	15	0
Three Freeschmen—N. N. Bremond and Grumby	 0	15	0
M. J. Macauley	 0	10	6

Yours faithfully,

S. HUGHES, Pastor.

The Parsonage,
June 13, 1892.

ST. MATTHEW'S CHURCH, BONTHE.

The Editor Early Dawn.

Sir,—On Sunday last the 12th June, commonly known as Trinity Sudnay, there were Divine Services held at the above-named church in the morning and evening, which are worthy of observation, as they tend to bring to our view two great facts which will be further on evinced, viz., 1. Pastor Hughes' popularity. 2 Sad condition of St. Matthew's church.

Both services were conducted by the Rev. S. Hughes. During that held in the morning at 11 a.m., our little inconvenient church was densely crowded with people from far and near, to hear the wisdom of Rev. Hughes. As the hymn before sermon was being sung, the Pastor ascended the pulpit; soon after the hymn the usual brief prayer was offered and then the text announced, which was selected from 1st John, 5th chap., 7th verse—"For there are three that bear record in heaven, the Father the Word and the Holy Ghost: and these three are one." No sooner was the text announced and read, than the attention of the whole church in general was aroused and appreheuded. The pastor then began not to teach new doctrine but to expound pre existing facts as regards "The Trinity" as the words of the text would affirm. His procedure was gradual, leading from one degree of conception to another. As I cannot possibly and fully preceed to offer any narrative of the sermon, I beg to suggest that request should be made by those who are desirous to have an account of the sermon, that it be printed and offered for sale. The service for that morning was subsequently concluded, after which the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper was administered.

During that held in the evening at 7 p.m. although the congregation was not so large owing to the inclemency of the weather, yet the pastor endeavored to arrest our attention, but in vain, for no sooner was he on the height of his sermon than there fell a heavy shower of rain which continued to ooze through the shingles that covered the roof of the church. The choristers who were the first to experience the leakage began then to abandon their seats for secure ones, —then others, theirs. It rained so much that even the pulpit lamp (singly as it stood) began to admit in some drops and was consequently extinguished from its flame and candle-light substituted.

At this juncture, the whole church was in a restless and inattentive position, during which the pastor now and then paused for lack of attention. However, after much disorder, the service came to a close that night at about 8.15.

In conclusion, I thank you, Mr. Editor, for the space thus allowed me and beg to bring before the members of St. Matthew's the necessity of a new church, which subject is said to have always been under their contemplation but has never been undertaken. As God has procured for us a faithful and energetic pastor, may He also grant the members of the Church Committee one mind and one determination to prosecute that which had ever been under their meditation. —Yours truly,

A MEMBER.

Bonthe, June 15, 1891.

The Manager of the district, Mr G. H. Garrett, left on the 7th instant for the Bagroo river, where it was reported a man had shot his son.

The Editor Early Dawn.

Sir,—Enclosed is a very interesting article from the Sulymah Branch of our Church.

I visited that District in October last and was most satisfied with all I saw. The Church there, is not "Methodist or Independent" as it was thought but a genuine branch of the Church of England now with a Resident Catechist whose article I have now forwarded.

I will be most thankful if all who read this article will send something however small to the help of that Church. The chief supporters who are Mr. Tippin and his Assistant of the Firm of Palma Trading Company Messrs Z. E. T. Williams J. Songo Davis and Samuel Bell deserve our warmest thanks and hearty support. They are doing our work and all chu chuses in particular and Christians in general should generously support them.

S. HUGHES, Pastor.

The Parsonage
Bonthe, June 14, 1892.

Sulymah is a large extensive district apart from the Sherbro district under the British influence, lying on the Southeastern part of Sierra Leone which is about 188 miles distance by sea. The town is built at the mouth of a river called by the natives the Moa which has its rise from Footah, and is seperated from the Liberian territory by the Manoh river. It is washed on the West and South Western part by the Atlantic subjected to heavy breakers that have been the means of capsizing boats several times when steamers are discharging or loading cargoes whereby several lives have been lost.

Sulymah is a Vie word from Suli or Soli a point, answering to our English word Promontory, as it terminates an extensive tract of land connecting the Mendi, Connos, Kijus, and other interior tribes. I have been informed on good authority that one can travel from here to Lagos and other parts of the coast by the land route only has to wade several rivers and rivulets.

During the 15th 16th 17th and part of the 18th centuries when Captains Carnot, Fernandez (Fernando) and others of their craft were plying these seas with their diabolical traffick in human blood, and even as late as when Prince Mannah was in the acme of grandeur, power, and wealth Sulymah was an emporium for slaves Hundreds and hundreds of her noble sons and daughters has perished by drowning at her very shores when the slave trade was rife this way; at the same time thousands and tens of thousands have been shipped to Cuba and other slave ports where their descendants are to be seen even to this day.

Though Sulymah is part of the Gallinas, yet the medium of communication for the most part is the Mendi language spoken in all common transactions, and it is the only language so far as I have yet known in this part of Western Africa, that has been reduced to writing of their own apart from the Arabic of which there are hundreds of characters.

Sulymah is subjected to extreme heat during the dries, owing for the most part to its sandy soil, and but for the South West wind that blows profusely from the Atlantic, the heat would have been unbearable, and also to severe cold during the wet season.

Though its soil is for the most part sandy, yet there are spots here and there which can be profitably cultivated, but the natives as a rule prefer to do jobbing when steamers are here, or to be engaged as labourers in Factory when allowances of provision are served out daily, and where too they can rob when opportunities offer.

Both sexes indulge in strong drink profusely and in almost every transaction of theirs it strong drink be absent it would be considered a great desideratum. I have seen in several instances children between nine and ten smoking which is the next step to drinking.

To be continued.

SHAINGAY NEWS.

Mr. Thomas Williams, of Rembi Station called at the Mission a few days ago and reported that the tornado which raged lately with such fury did much damage to his house, taking off the entire cap of the roof.

Mr. C. A. E. Campbell is building a new Mission House at Mambo to replace the frame house lately destroyed by bugs; and Mr. Wm. Brown is repairing tornado damages done to the Mission house at Rembi.

The good people of Daymah are happy because their preacher has promised not to leave them comfortless; but will remain with, and watch over them as the good shepherd doth to the sheep.

Rev. S. B. Morrison is making it go at Avery station, in the Bargroo river. He has recently opened a new and very promising school at Mattro, a town not far distant from his own station. His son, Mr. Nathan S. A. Morrison, is at present in charge.

Mr. James A. King is doing nobly at Gendamah, in the Tucker river, by keeping up the meetings at that place and at all of our stations in his neighborhood. This being the rainy season, the congregations are generally small, as most of the adults, as well as children have to be in the farms to drive away birds on Sundays as on any other day of the week. This keeps away many children from the Sabbath school.

A big leopard has been prowling about here of late. It first visited Eastbourne Grove and relieved Professor Wilberforce's fowl coop of 18 fowls; thence to our Boys' Home and there secured 14 more. It came to the mission premises after managing to cross two picket fences 6 feet high, got on top of fowl coop 6 ft. high, which was covered with grass, tore it off and broke away the lathing. There was a division in the coop and the beast only got 2 setting hens for its pains. The previous night, however, Captain Palmer's yellow dog, which was also a pest in stealing eggs, was numbered among its prey. Several other places were visited by the monster, when it entered Mrs. Luke's house in which there was an open room where fowls slept and killed several of them. The men in the house heard the noise but trembled more than the fowls, having no weapons to make an attack. Various kinds of reptiles—snakes, mosquitoes, and sandflies abound here this year since the commencement of the rains.

CHILDREN'S DAY AT SHAINGAY.

Over one hundred children took part in the exercises and they were very neatly dressed and persons witnessing the performance could never believe that they were in a heathen country and that these were once a heathen people Mr. Wilberforce and Mr. Pratt are entitled to the credit for the carrying out of the program. The gates of Childhood was the program used. They are exercises prepared in the States for the United Brethren in Christ. The church was most tastefully decorated with palm branches and flowers. There were five arches showing five gates, each with its appropriate motto over it, and all of these very tastefully bordered with braided palms thickly studded with all the flowers of the season. Lovely boquets in vases were on the pulpit, Bible pictures and mottoes adorned the walls. Mr. Pratt presided at the organ. The opening prayer was made by the pastor. Bro. Taylor could not have been more appropiate. Heavenly blessings were asked for on the heads of all the dear Christians that have been supporting the work here; God's holy spirit was implored to visit these children all throughout life,—then Mr. Wilberforce explained to the crowded church the origin of the children's day and the use to be made of the money called for. Several weeks our Shaingay boys and girls have been very busy doing jobs on the farm, cleaning roads, gathering nuts, and doing whatever they could find to do to earn money for children's day. Bundles of wood at 1d. a bundle were brought to the Mission house as late as 8 o'clock Saturday night, and very few were content to sell only one bundle as they all wanted to carry in silver money and not coppers, hence out of the whole amount given which was just five pounds there was only 3s. 6d. in pennies and half pennies I have never in all my life seen people so eager to give. Some little girls had gathered as much as three and four shillings and all was given. If the people here had any way to earn money they would not trouble the society to support them.

F. J. CLARK.

Shaingay Mission,
June 7th, 1892.

NOTICE.

A Drama & Concert

by the Union Reserve Club of Shaingay will be given on the evenings of the 4th and 5th of July next. Admission by tickets. By order

A. P. DOMAHBEY,
Pres U. R. C.

GENERAL NEWS.

Mr James Baylor, the tailor who lately arrived at Shaingay from Dayton, Ohio, in the United States of America, with his wife and two children, have gone to Freetown for the purpose of consulting medical advice as they have had a severe attack of fever also Mr Richard Gomer, who came out in January last.

Rev R. N and Mrs West of the Rotufunk Mission are expected to return to Africa, leaving America about September next.

Rev M. W Randall, Wesleyan Minister, who had been absent up the Boom to dedicate to the worship of the Blessed Trinity on Whit-Sunday the chapel recently erected at Morfore by J. A. Williams, Esq. merchant, returned on the 9th instant. We hope to publish an account of the proceedings on that day in a future issue.

The Juvenile Institute, a private school recently started by Mr J. A Richards is making commendable progress, and offers advantages to advanced students as well as to primary pupils.

A boy named Tosh, of Mo Sherbro, in the Bargroo river was accidentally shot by his father whilst they were out hunting. He lived a few hours after the accident.

SELECTIONS.

HASTE.

This is the age of hurry. Every interest in the world, commercial, scientific, religious, seems to be in earnest quest of some way by which results may be brought about more quickly. Ocean steamers race the seas against time, and railroads compete for the reputation of having the fastest trains Newspaper correspondents are given every facility that money and influence can command that they may compass the globe in the shortest time ever known. The civilised nations of the world are in eager haste in the accomplishment of great political movements, and even the oriental countries, usually considered behind the age, have caught the spirit of the times. As individuals men are in haste to make fortunes and become famous. Enterprise is commendable; energy is essential to success; and the brevity of life demands that what hands find to do shall be done with might. But there are serious dangers in the headlong rush in which the world is living. Thoroughness may be sacrificed to gratify ambitious haste. The student cuts short his college course that he may get into active business, and the mastery of self, and influence over others that comes only with a thorough education is lost. Young men, not willing to rise step by step as the result of faithful service where employed, join the host of adventurers, who oftener lose than win. Be quick to see and use every opportunity, but avoid undue haste. Set a high mark; fix the eye upon the summit, but do not permit ambition to persuade you to attempt the attainment of the height by unknown and seemingly shorter ways. A man who carelessly pushes his boat into the stream of reckless haste will soon find himself helpless in the rapids of failure.

A WORD ABOUT SAVING.

Do not be too kind to your relatives. I do not say that you should be selfish or mean, but only prudent. Before lending to be used in their business, see that the business is a safe one. You may have the fullest confidence in the honest intentions of the borrower, but make sure that his capacity is to be depended on. Many teachers give their savings to help in the education of their brothers. Here, too, charity should be guided by prudence. It is no true kindness to help a stupid boy to a university education. You had much better help him in some other way. It is also bad for to be allowed to take your savings without any recompense. In most cases you had better lend than give. The The knowledge that he must repay what he now spends, out of his future earnings, will help to keep him from extravagance. And let all such transactions be conducted on a business footing. Take receipts for your money, and formal bonds for repayment. An affection that would think itself insulted by being asked to observe such forms is a very poor sort of thing.

Saving, as well investing, should be done in a commonsense way. It is penny wise and pound foolish to stint yourself in food or firing (I have known foreign teachers to do this sometimes), for the sake of adding a few pounds to your store. Live as simple as you like, but take care to keep yourself as far as you can in perfect health. Your health is part of your capital, and on its preservation depends your power of supporting your at all. Do not consider all recreation as extravagance. Teachers often err in the matter of holidays, not giving themselves any real rest or change, and then wonder when they find themselves losing their freshness and interest in their work—deteriorating in value, in fact. Not only is this an injury to themselves, but also their employers. In dress, too, you are bound to keep yourself tidy; if your employers pay you a fair salary, they have a right to expect to find you fit be seen. To much economy in this direction will only injure you. Lastly, you may have opportunities of improving yourself by going abroad for a time, or by attending classes at home. Do not lose such opportunities from motives of economy; they are investments rather than spendings.—Telescope.

Give because you like to give, as the flower pours forth its perfume.

THE DEDICATION of the Rotufunk Mission School followed by a Teachers' Institute.

(Concluded from our last.)

The subjects taken on Thursday, March 17. 1892, were :—Primary Arithmetic, Miss M. E. Hatfield; Geography, Miss M. E. Schenck; Language, Miss E. Bittle; Reading, Mr. J. H. Pratt; Reading, 2nd and 3rd reader, Miss M. E. Schenck; Physiology, Anatomy, and Hygiene, Miss A. Harris.

On Friday March 18, 1892—Primary Numbers, Miss M. E Hatfield; Geography, Miss M. E. Schenck; Language, Miss M. E. Bittle; Physiology, Anatomy, Hygiene, Miss A. Harris; Temperance Manual No. 1, Miss E. Groenendyke; Notation, Miss M. Hatfield; Compound Numbers, Mr. J. H. Pratt; Phonetics, Miss M. Hatfield.

On Saturday, March 19, '92—Review of Primary Reading, Mr. E. C. Biekersteth; Geography, Mr. Joseph Caulker; Language, F. Thompson; Notation, Miss Hatfield; Lecture on Special Senses, Miss Hatfield.

The lecture on Anatomy, Physiology, Hygiene, and the Special Senses, the two doctors were as interesting as they were instructive, and they were enjoyed and appreciated by all.

Before the adjournment of the Morning Session on Saturday, the members of the Institute were photographed in a body by Miss Schenck

The Constitutions and Byelaws for the working of the Institute were read and passed during the afternoon session, after which every member of the Institute present expressed in a short speech his thought about the Institute, which was unanimously one of pleasure and satisfaction

A vote of thanks was given to the Missionaries at Rotufunk by the Rev. J. Gomer on behalf of self and the Shaingay visitors for the kind and royal way that they were entertained. Miss Groenendyke also returned thanks on behalf of self and the other missionaries to the visitors for their kind acceptance of their invitation.

Sloth, if it has prevented many crimes, has also smothered many virtues.

THE VALUE OF A WIFE.

An English sailor killed the wife of a Chinaman by accident—an event which gave him considerable uneasiness. The woman's husband, hearing of the circumstance, came to the vessel, and after much talk, agreed to make up with the man compromising the affair for thirty dollars. The sailor was glad to escape so easily, and paid the money; when the Chinaman said "It not matter so much, as she was an old wife, and he could get a new one for twenty-five dollars, which would leave five dollars to buy rice."

ADVERTISEMENTS.

The Juvenile Institute,

Victoria Road, Yhandahun.

UNDENOMINATIONAL.

Patron—REV. J. A. EVANS.

Mr. J. Arthur Richards will receive pupils for private tuition at the above Institute at very moderate charges.

The Curriculum of studies will embrace Scripture, English History, Reading, Grammar, Geography, Arithmetic, &c. &c. &c.

SPECIAL.

Latin, Algebra, Euclid, Phonography, Book-keeping.

Hours—7 to 9 a.m.
3.30 to 5 p.m.

☞ For further particulars please make personal application.

June, 1892.

NOTICE.

The Manager of this Journal begs to inform the public of Bonthe and elsewhere that the columns of this paper are open to correspondents, and that all letters sent for publication will receive his attention, provided they are accompanied by the names of the writers, not necessarily for publication, but as a guarantee Rejected manuscripts will not be returned. All work with which he is favored shall be done in such a manner as he hopes will give satisfaction and secure patronage always.

Printed at the office of the Early Dawn Bonthe Sherbro, June 15, 1892.

END